A WARNING FROM THE AUTHOR

THIS is the first time I have ever attached any condition to the perusal of my books except the simple ceremony of walking into a bookshop and paying for them I now find myself a party to a plan by which nobody, not even a millionaire, can obtain a copy of this edition of my plays unless he or she is a regular reader of one or other of certain newspapers or periodicals which credit their readers with brains beyond the ordinary and literary tastes not entirely vulgar On this condition you can get the book for what it costs to manufacture, or less, and except on this condition you cannot get it at all

This is an odd state of things, but what makes it odder is that I must warn you, before you attempt to enjoy my plays, to clear out of your consciousness most resolutely everything you have ever read about me in a newspaper Otherwise you will not enjoy them you will read them with a sophisticated mind, and a store of beliefs concerning me which have not the slightest foundation either in prosaic fact or in poetic truth In some unaccountable way I seem to cast a spell on journalists which makes them recklessly indifferent not only to common veracity, but to human possibility The person they represent me to be not only does not exist but could not possibly exist

Now it may be that a pen portrait of an imaginary monster with my name attached to it may already have taken possession of your own mind through your inevitable daily contact with the newspaper press If so, please class it with the unicorn and the dragon, the jabberwock and the bandersnatch, as a creature perhaps amusing but certainly entirely fabulous If you are to get any good out of me you must accept me as a quite straightforward practitioner of the art I make my living by Inasmuch as that living depends finally on you as reader or playgoer or both, I am your very faithful servant, and I should no more dream of pulling your leg or trifling with you or insulting you than any decent shopkeeper would dream of doing that to his best customers If I make you laugh at yourself, remember that my business as a classic writer of comedies is "to chasten morals with ridicule", and if I sometimes make you feel like a fool, remember that I have by the same action cured your folly, just as the dentist cures your toothache by pulling out your tooth And I never do it without giving you plenty of laughing gas

When you once get accustomed to my habit of mind, which I was born with and cannot help, you will not find me such bad company But please do not think you can take in the work of my long lifetime at one reading You must make it your practice to read all my works at least twice over every year for ten years or so That is why this edition is so substantially bound for you

By Bernard Shaw.

THE COMPLETE PLAYS OF BERNARD SHAW

I

BEING THE FIRST OF THREE UNPLEASANT PLAYS

ACT I

In the garden restaurant of a hotel at Remagen on the Rhine, on a fine afternoon in August in the eighteen-eighties Looking down the Rhine towards Bonn, the gate leading from the garden to the riverside is seen on the right The hotel is on the left It has a wooden annexe with an entrance marked Table d'Hôte A waiter is in attendance

A couple of English tourists come out of the hotel The younger, Dr Harry Trench, is about 24, stoutly built, thick in the neck, close-cropped and black in the hair, with undignified medical-student manners, frank, hasty, rather boyish The other, Mr William de Burgh Cokane, is probably over 40, possibly 50 an ill-nourished, scanty-haired gentleman, with affected manners fidgety, touchy, and constitutionally ridiculous in uncompassionate eyes

COKANE [on the threshold of the hotel, calling peremptorily to the waiter] Two beers for us out here [The waiter goes for the beer Cokane comes into the garden] We have scoured the room with the best view in the hotel, Harry, thanks to my tact We'll leave in the morning, and do Mainz and Frankfurt There is a very graceful female statue in the private house of a nobleman in Frankfurt Also a zoo Next day, Nuremberg! finest collection of instruments of torture in the world

TRENCH All right You look out the trains, will you? [He takes a Continental Bradshaw from his pocket, and tosses it on one of the tables]

COKANE [bauling himself in the act of sitting down] Pah! the seat is all dusty These foreigners are deplorably unclean in their habits

TRENCH [buoyantly] Never mind it dont matter, old chappie. Buck up, Billy, buck up Enjoy yourself [He throws Cokane into the chair, and sits down opposite him, taking out his pipe, and singing noisily]

Pour out the Rhine wine let it flow
Like a free and bounding river—

COKANE [scandalized] In the name of common decency, Harry, will you remember that you are a Gentleman, and not a coster on Hampstead Heath on Bank Holiday? Would you dream of behaving like this in London?

TRENCH Oh, rot! I've come abroad to enjoy myself So would you if you'd just passed an examination after four years in the medical school and walking the hospital [He again bursts into song]

COKANE [rising] Trench either you travel as a gentleman, or you travel alone This is what makes Englishmen unpopular on the Continent It may not matter before the natives, but the people who came on board the steamer at Bonn are English I have been uneasy all the afternoon about what they must think of us Look at our appearance

TRENCH Whats wrong with our appearance?

COKANE Négligé, my dear fellow, négligé On the steamboat a little négligé was quite en règle, but here, in this hotel, some of them are sure to dress for dinner, and you have nothing but that Norfolk jacket How are they to know that you are well connected if you do not shew it by your costume?

TRENCH Pooh! the steamboat people were the seum of the earth Americans and all sorts They may go hang themselves, Billy I shall not bother about them [He strikes a match, and proceeds to light his pipe]

COKANE Do drop calling me Billy in public, Trench My name is Cokane I am sure they were persons of consequence you were struck with the distinguished appearance of the father yourself

TRENCH [sobered at once] What! those people? [He blows out the match and puts up his pipe]

COKANE [following up his advantage triumphantly] Here, Harry, here at this hotel I recognized the father's umbrella in the hall

TRENCH [with a touch of genuine shame] I suppose I ought to have brought a change But a lot of luggage is such a nuisance, and [rising abruptly] at all events we can go and have a wash [He turns to go into the hotel, but stops in consternation, seeing some people coming up to the riverside gate] Oh, I say! Here they are

A lady and gentleman, followed by a porter with some light parcels, not luggage, but shop purchases, come into the garden They are apparently father and daughter The gentleman is 50, tall, well preserved, and of upright carriage His incisive, domineering utterance and imposing style, with his strong aquiline nose and resolute clean-shaven mouth, give him an air of importance He wears a light grey frock-coat with silk linings, a white hat, and a field-glass slung in a new leather case A self-made man, formidable to servants, not easily accessible to anyone His daughter is a well-dressed, well-fed, good-looking, strongminded young woman, presentably ladylike, but still her father's daughter Nevertheless fresh and attractive, and none the worse for being vital and energetic rather than delicate and refined

COKANE [quickly taking the arm of Trench, who is staring as if transfixed] Recollect yourself, Harry presence of mind, presence of mind! [He strolls with him towards the hotel The waiter comes out with the beer] Kellner ceci-la est notre table Est ce que vous comprenez Français?

WAITER Yes, zare Oll right, zare

THE GENTLEMAN [to his porter] Place those things on that table [The porter does not understand]

WAITER [interposing] Zese zhentellmen are using zis table, zare Would you mind—

THE GENTLEMAN [severely] You should have told me so before [To Cokane, with fierce condescension] I regret the mistake, sir

COKANE Dont mention it, my dear sir dont mention it Retain the place, I beg

THE GENTLEMAN [coldly turning his back on him] Thank you [To the porter] Place them on that table [The porter makes no movement until the gentleman points to the parcels and peremptorily raps on another table, nearer the gate]

PORTER Ja wohl, gnäd'g' Herr [He puts down the parcels]

THE GENTLEMAN [taking out a handful of money] Waiter.

WAITER [awestruck] Yes, zare

THE GENTLEMAN Tea For two Out here

WAITER Yes, zare [He goes into the hotel]

The gentleman selects a small coin from his handful of money, and gives it to the porter, who receives it with a submissive touch to his cap, and goes out, not daring to speak His daughter sits down and opens a parcel of photographs The gentleman takes out a Baedeker, places a chair for himself, and then, before sitting down, looks truculently at Cokane, as if waiting for him to take himself off Cokane not at all abashed, resumes his place at the other table with an air of modest good breeding, and calls to Trench, who is promling irresolutely in the background

COKANE Trench, my dear fellow your beer is waiting for you [He drinks]

TRENCH [glad of the excuse to come back to his chair] Thank you, Cokane [He also drinks]

COKANE By the way, Harry, I have often meant to ask you is Lady Rowdale your mother's sister or your father's?

This shot tells immediately The gentleman is perceptibly interested

TRENCH My mother's, of course. What put that into your head?

COKANE Nothing I was just thinking—hm! She will expect you to marry, Harry a doctor ought to marry

TRENCH What has she got to do with it?

COKANE A great deal, dear boy She looks forward to floating your wife in society in London

TRENCH What rot!

COKANE Ah, you are young, dear boy you dont know the importance of these things apparently idle ceremonial trifles, really the springs and wheels of a great aristocratic system [The waiter comes back with the tea things, which he brings to the gentleman's table Colane rises and addresses the gentleman] My dear sir, excuse my addressing you, but I cannot help feeling that you prefer this table, and that we are in your way

THE GENTLEMAN [graciously] Thank you. Blanche this gentleman very kindly offers us his table, if you would prefer it

BLANCHE Oh, thanks it makes no difference

THE GENTLEMAN [to Cokane] We are fellow travellers, I believe, sir

COKANE Fellow travellers and fellow countrymen Ah, we rarely feel the charm of our own tongue until it reaches our ears under a foreign sky You have no doubt noticed that?

THE GENTLEMAN [a little puzzled] Hm! From a romantic point of view, possibly, very possibly As a matter of fact, the sound of English makes me feel at home, and I dislike feeling at home when I am abroad It is not precisely what one goes to the expense for [He looks at Trench] I think this gentleman travelled with us also

COKANE [acting as master of the ceremonies] My valued friend, Dr Trench [The gentleman and Trench rise] Trench, my dear fellow, allow me to introduce you to—er—? [He looks inquiringly at the gentleman, waiting for the name]

THE GENTLEMAN Permit me to shake your hand, Dr Trench My name is Sartorius, and I have the honor of being known to Lady Roxdale, who is, I believe, a near relative of yours Blanche [She looks up] Dr Trench [They bow]

TRENCH Perhaps I should introduce my friend Cokane to you Mr Sartorius Mr William de Burgh Cokane [Cokane makes an elaborate bow Sartorius accepts it with dignity The waiter meanwhile returns with the tea things]

SARTORIUS [to the waiter] Two more cups

WAITER Yes, zare [He goes into the hotel]

BLANCHE Do you take sugar, Mr Cokane?

COKANE Thank you [To Sartorius] This is really too kind Harry bring your chair round

SARTORIUS You are very welcome [Trench brings his chair to the tea table, and they all sit round it The waiter returns with two more cups]

WAITER Table d'hôte at alf pass zeex, zhentellmenn Somesing else now, zare?

SARTORIUS No You can go [The waiter goes]

COKANE [very agreeably] Do you contemplate a long stay here, Miss Sartorius?

BLANCHE We were thinking of going on to Rolandseck Is it as nice as this place?

COKANE Harry the Baedeker [Trench produces it from the other pocket] Thank you [He consults the index for Rolandseck]

BLANCHE Sugar, Dr Trench?

TRENCH Thanks [She hands him the cup, and looks meaningly at him for an instant He looks down hastily, and glances apprehensively at Sartorius, who is preoccupied with the bread and butter]

COKANE Rolandseck appears to be an extremely interesting place [He reads] "It is one of the most beautiful and frequented spots on the river, and is surrounded with numerous villas and pleasant gardens, chiefly belonging to wealthy merchants from the Lower Rhine, and extending along the wooded slopes at the back of the village"

BLANCHE That sounds civilized and comfortable I vote we go there

SARTORIUS Quite like our place at Surbiton, my dear

BLANCHE Quite

COKANE You have a place down the river? Ah, I envy you

SARTORIUS No I have merely taken a furnished villa at Surbiton for the summer I live in Bedford Square I am a vestryman, and must reside in the parish

BLANCHE Another cup, Mr Cokane?

COKANE Thank you, no [To Sartorius] I presume you have been round this little place Not much to see here, except the Apollinaris Church

SARTORIUS [scandalized] The what!

COKANE The Apollinaris Church

SARTORIUS A strange name to give a church Very continental, I must say

COKANE Ah, yes, yes, yes That is where our neighbors fall short sometimes, Mr Sartorius Taste! taste is what they occasionally fail in But in this instance they are not to blame The water is called after the church, not the church after the water

SARTORIUS [as if this were an extenuating circumstance, but not a complete excuse] I am glad to hear it Is the church a celebrated one?

COKANE Baedeker stars it

SARTORIUS [respectfully] Oh, in that case I should like to see it

COKANE [reading] "—erected in 1839 by Zwirner, the late eminent architect of the cathedral of Cologne, at the expense of Count Furstenberg-Stammheim"

SARTORIUS [much impressed] We must certainly see that, Mr Cokane I had no idea that the architect of Cologne cathedral lived so recently

BLANCHE Dont let us bother about any more churches, papa theyre all the same I'm tired to death of them

SARTORIUS Well, my dear, if you think it sensible to take a long and expensive journey to see what there is to be seen, and then go away without seeing it—

BLANCHE Not this afternoon, papa, please

SARTORIUS My dear I should like you to see everything It is part of your education—

BLANCHE [rising, with a petulant sigh] Oh, my education! Very well, very well I suppose I must go through with it Are you coming, Dr Trench? [With a grimace] I'm sure the Johannis Church will be a treat for you

COKANE [laughing softly and archly] Ah, excellent, excellent very good indeed [Seriously] But do you know, Miss Sartorius, there actually are Johannis churches here—several of them—as well as Apollinaris ones?

SARTORIUS [sententiously, taking out his field-glass and leading the way to the gate] There is many a true word spoken in jest, Mr Cokane COKANE [accompanying him] How true! How true!

They go out together, ruminating profoundly Blanche makes no movement to follow them She watches until they are safely out of sight, and then posts herself before Trench, looking at him with an enigmatic smile, which he returns with a half sheepish, half conceited grin

BLANCHE Well! So you have done it at last

TRENCH Yes At least Cokane's done it I told you he'd manage it He's rather an ass in some ways, but he has tremendous tact

BLANCHE [contemptuously] Tact! That's not tact that's inquisitiveness Inquisitive people always have a lot of practice in getting into conversation with strangers Why didn't you speak to my father yourself on the boat? You were ready enough to speak to me without any introduction

TRENCH I didn't particularly want to talk to him

BLANCHE It didn't occur to you, I suppose, that you put me in a false position by that

TRENCH Oh, I don't see that, exactly Besides, your father isn't an easy man to tackle Of course, now that I know him, I see that he's pleasant enough, but then you've got to know him first, haven't you?

BLANCHE [impatiently] Everybody is afraid of papa I'm sure I don't know why [She sits down again, pouting a little]

TRENCH [tenderly] However it's all right now isn't it? [He sits near her]

BLANCHE [sharply] I don't know How should I? You had no right to speak to me that day on board the steamer You thought I was alone, because [with false pathos] I had no mother with me

TRENCH [protesting] Oh, I say! Come! It was you who spoke to me Of course I was only too glad of the chance, but on my word I shouldn't have moved an eyelid if you hadn't given me a lead

BLANCHE I only asked you the name of a castle There was nothing unladylike in that TRENCH Of course not Why shouldn't you? [With renewed tenderness] But it's all right now isn't it?

BLANCHE [softly, looking subtly at him] Is it?

TRENCH [suddenly becoming shy] I—I suppose so By the way, what about the Apollinaris Church? Your father expects us to follow him, doesn't he?

BLANCHE [with suppressed resentment] Don't let me detain you if you wish to see it

TRENCH Won't you come?

BLANCHE No [She turns her face away moodily]

TRENCH [alarmed] I say you're not offended, are you? [She looks round at him for a moment with a reproachful film on her eyes] Blanche [She bristles instantly, overdoes it, and frightens him] I beg your pardon for calling you by your name, but I—er— [She corrects her mistake by softening her expression eloquently He responds with a gush] You don't mind, do you? I felt sure you wouldn't, somehow Well, look here I have no idea how you will receive this it must seem horribly abrupt, but the circumstances do not admit of—the fact is, my utter want of tact— [he flounders more and more, unable to see that she can hardly contain her eagerness] Now, if it were Cokane—

BLANCHE [impatiently] Cokane!

TRENCH [terrified] No, not Cokane Though I assure you I was only going to say about him that—

BLANCHE That he will be back presently with papa

TRENCH [stupidly] Yes they can't be very long now I hope I'm not detaining you

BLANCHE I thought you were detaining me because you had something to say

TRENCH [totally unnerved] Not at all At least, nothing very particular That is, I'm afraid you wouldn't think it very particular Another time, perhaps—

BLANCHE What other time? How do you know that we shall ever meet again? [Desperately] Tell me now I want you to tell me now

TRENCH Well, I was thinking that if we could make up our minds to—or not to—at least—er— [His nervousness deprives him of the power of speech]

BLANCHE [giving him up as hopeless] I don't think theres much danger of your making up your mind, Dr Trench

TRENCH [stammering] I only thought— [He stops and looks at her piteously She hesitates a moment, and then puts her hands into his with calculated impulsiveness He snatches her into his arms with a cry of relief] Dear Blanche! I thought I should never have said it I believe I should have stood stuttering here all day if you hadnt helped me out with it

BLANCHE [indignantly trying to break loose from him] I didnt help you out with it

TRENCH [holding her] I dont mean that you did it on purpose, of course Only instinctively

BLANCHE [still a little anxious] But you havnt said anything

TRENCH What more can I say than this? [He kisses her again]

BLANCHE [overcome by the kiss, but holding on to her point] But Harry—

TRENCH [delighted at the name] Yes

BLANCHE When shall we be married?

TRENCH At the first church we meet the Apollinaris Church, if you like

BLANCHE No, but seriously This is serious, Harry you musnt joke about it

TRENCH [looking suddenly round to the river-side gate and quickly releasing her] Sh! Here they are back again

BLANCHE Oh, d— [The word is drowned by the clangor of a bell from within the hotel The waiter appears on the steps, ringing it Cokane and Sartorius are seen returning by the river gate]

WAITER Table d'hôte in dwendy minutes, ladies and zhentellmenn [He goes into the hotel]

SARTORIUS [gravely] I intended you to accompany us, Blanche

BLANCHE Yes, papa We were just about to start

SARTORIUS We are rather dusty we must make ourselves presentable at the table d'hôte I think you had better come in with me, my child Come

He offers Blanche his arm The gravity of his manner overawes them all Blanche silently takes his arm and goes into the hotel with him Cokane, hardly less momentous than Sartorius himself, contemplates Trench with the severity of a judge

COKANE [with reprobation] No, my dear boy No, no Never I blush for you I was never so ashamed in my life You have been taking advantage of that unprotected girl

TRENCH [holly] Cokane!

COKANE [inexorable] Her father seems to be a perfect gentleman I obtained the privilege of his acquaintance I introduced you I allowed him to believe that he might leave his daughter in your charge with absolute confidence And what did I see on our return? what did her father see? Oh, Trench, Trench! No, my dear fellow, no, no Bad taste, Harry, bad form!

TRENCH Stuff! There was nothing to see

COKANE Nothing to see! She, a perfect lady, a person of the highest breeding, actually in your arms, and you say there was nothing to see! with a waiter there actually ringing a heavy bell to call attention to his presence! [Lecturing him with redoubled severity] Have you no principles, Trench? Have you no religious convictions? Have you no acquaintance with the usages of society? You actually kissed—

TRENCH You didnt see me kiss her

COKANE We not only saw but heard it the report positively reverberated down the Rhine Dont condescend to subterfuge, Trench

TRENCH Nonsense, my dear Billy You—

COKANE There you go again Dont use that low abbreviation How am I to preserve the respect of fellow travellers of position and wealth, if I am to be Billied at every turn? My name is Wilham Wilham de Burgh Cokane

TRENCH Oh, bother! There dont be offended, old chap Whats the use of putting your back up at every trifle? It comes natural to me to call you Billy it suits you, somehow

COKANE [mortified] You have no delicacy of feeling, Trench no tact I never mention it to any one, but nothing, I am afraid, will ever make a true gentleman of you [Sartorius appears on the threshold of the hotel] Here is my friend Sartorius, coming, no doubt, to ask you for an explanation of your conduct I really should not have been surprised to see him bring a horsewhip with him I shall not intrude on the painful scene

TRENCH Dont go, confound it I dont want to meet him alone just now

COKANE [shaking his head] Delhcacy, Harry, delicacy! Good taste! Savoir faire! [He walks away Trench tries to escape in the opposite direction by strolling off towards the garden entrance]

SARTORIUS [mesmerically] Dr Trench

TRENCH [stopping and turning] Oh, is that you, Mr Sartorius? How did you find the church?

Sartorius, without a word, points to a seat Trench, half hypnotized by his own nervousness and the impressiveness of Sartorius, sits down helplessly

SARTORIUS [also seating himself] You have been speaking to my daughter, Dr Trench

TRENCH [with an attempt at ease of manner] Yes we had a conversation—quite a chat, in fact—while you were at the church with Cokane. How did you get on with Cokane, Mr Sartorius? I always think he has such wonderful tact

SARTORIUS [ignoring the digression] I have just had a word with my daughter, Dr Trench, and I find her under the impression that something has passed between you which it is my duty as a father—the father of a motherless girl—to inquire into at once. My daughter, perhaps foolishly, has taken you quite seriously, and—

TRENCH But—

SARTORIUS One moment, if you will be so good. I have been a young man myself younger, perhaps, than you would suppose from my present appearance. I mean, of course, in character. If you were not serious—

TRENCH [ingenuously] But I was perfectly serious. I want to marry your daughter, Mr Sartorius. I hope you don't object.

SARTORIUS [condescending to Trench's humility from the mere instinct to seize an advantage, and yet deferring to Lady Roxdale's relative] So far, no. I may say that your proposal seems to be an honourable and straightforward one, and that it is very gratifying to me personally.

TRENCH [agreeably surprised] Then I suppose we may consider the affair as settled. It's really very good of you.

SARTORIUS Gently, Dr Trench, gently. Such a transaction as this cannot be settled off-hand.

TRENCH Not off-hand, no. There are settlements and things, of course. But it may be regarded as settled between ourselves, mayn't it?

SARTORIUS Hm! Have you nothing further to mention?

TRENCH Only that—that—No. I don't know that I have, except that I love—

SARTORIUS [interrupting] Anything about your family, for example? You do not anticipate any objection on their part, do you?

TRENCH Oh, they have nothing to do with it.

SARTORIUS [warmly] Excuse me, sir, they have a great deal to do with it. [Trench is abashed] I am resolved that my daughter shall approach no circle in which she will not be received with the full consideration to which her education and her breeding [here his self-control slips a little, and he repeats, as if Trench had contradicted him—I say, her breeding—entitle her.

TRENCH [bewildered] Of course not. But what makes you think my family won't like Blanche? Of course my father was a younger son, and I've had to take to a profession and all that, so my people won't expect us to entertain them. They'll know we can't afford it. But they'll entertain us. They always ask me.

SARTORIUS That won't do for me, sir. Families often think it due to themselves to turn their backs on newcomers whom they may not think quite good enough for them.

TRENCH But I assure you my people aren't a bit snobbish. Blanche is a lady that'll be good enough for them.

SARTORIUS [moved] I am glad you think so. [He offers his hand. Trench, astonished, takes it] I think so myself. [He presses Trench's hand gratefully and releases it] And now, Dr Trench, since you have acted handsomely, you shall have no cause to complain of me. There shall be no difficulty about money. You shall entertain as much as you please. I will guarantee all that. But I must have a guarantee on my side that she will be received on equal terms by your family.

TRENCH Guarantee!

SARTORIUS Yes, a reasonable guarantee. I shall expect you to write to your relatives explaining your intention and adding what you think proper as to my daughter's fitness for the best society. When you can shew me a few letters from the principal members of your family, congratulating you in a fairly cordial way, I shall be satisfied. Can I say more?

TRENCH [much puzzled, but grateful] No indeed. You are really very good. Many thanks. Since you wish it, I'll write to my people. But I assure you you'll find them as jolly as possible over it. I'll make them write by return.

SARTORIUS Thank you In the meantime, I must ask you not to regard the matter as settled

TRENCH Oh! Not to regard the—I see You mean between Blanche and—

SARTORIUS I mean between you and Miss Sartorius When I interrupted your conversation here some time ago, you and she were evidently regarding it as settled In case difficulties arise, and the match—you see I call it a match—is broken off, I should not wish Blanche to think that she had allowed a gentleman to—to— [Trench nods sympathetically] Quite so May I depend on you to keep a fair distance, and so spare me the necessity of having to restrain an intercourse which promises to be very pleasant to us all?

TRENCH Certainly, since you prefer it [They shake hands on it]

SARTORIUS [rising] You will write today, I think you said?

TRENCH [eagerly] I'll write now, before I leave here straight off

SARTORIUS I will leave you to yourself then [He hesitates, the conversation having made him self-conscious and embarrassed, then recovers himself with an effort, and adds with dignity, as he turns to go] I am pleased to have come to an understanding with you [He goes into the hotel, and Cokane, who has been hanging about inquisitively, emerges from the shrubbery]

TRENCH [excitedly] Billy, old chap youre just in time to do me a favor I want you to draft a letter for me to copy out

COKANE I came with you on this tour as a friend, Trench not as a secretary

TRENCH Well, youll write as a friend It's to my Aunt Maria, about Blanche and me To tell her, you know COKANE Tell her about Blanche and you! Tell her about your conduct! Betray you, my friend, and forget that I am writing to a lady? Never!

TRENCH Bosh, Billy dont pretend you dont understand We're engaged engaged, my boy! what do you think of that? I must write by tonight's post You are the man to tell me what to say Come, old chap [coaxing him to sit down at one of the tables] heres a pencil Have you a bit of—oh, here thisll do write it on the back of the map [He tears the map out of his Baedeker and spreads it face downwards on the table Cokane takes the pencil and prepares to write] Thats right Thanks awfully, old chap Now fire away [Anxiously] Be careful how you word it though, Cokane

COKANE [putting down the pencil] If you doubt my ability to express myself becomingly to Lady Rowdale—

TRENCH [propitiating him] All right, old fellow, all right theres not a man alive who could do it half so well as you I only wanted to explain You see, Sartorius has got it into his head, somehow, that my people will snub Blanche, and he wont consent unless they send letters and invitations and congratulations and the deuce knows what not So just put it in such a way that Aunt Maria will write by return saying she is delighted, and asking us—Blanche and me, you know—to stay with her, and so forth You know what I mean Just tell her all about it in a chatty way, and—

COKANE [crushingly] If you will tell me all about it in a chatty way, I daresay I can communicate it to Lady Rowdale with becoming delicacy What is Sartorius?

TRENCH [taken aback] I dont know I didnt ask It's a sort of question you cant very well put to a man—at least a man like him Do you think you could word the letter so as to pass all that over? I really dont like to ask him

COKANE I can pass it over if you wish Nothing easier But if you think Lady Rowdale will pass it over, I differ from you I may be wrong no doubt I am I generally am wrong, I believe, but that is my opinion

TRENCH [much perplexed] Oh, confound it! What the deuce am I to do? Cant you say he's a gentleman that wont commit us to anything If you dwell on his being well off, and Blanche an only child, Aunt Maria will be satisfied

COKANE Henry Trench when will you begin to get a little sense? This is a serious business Act responsibly, Harry act responsibly

TRENCH Bosh! Dont be moral!

COKANE I am not moral, Trench At least I am not a moralist that is the expression I should have used Moral, but not a moralist If you are going to get money with your wife, doesnt it concern your family to know how that money was made? Doesnt it concern you—you, Harry? [Trench looks at him helplessly, twisting his fingers nervously Cokane throws down the pencil and leans back with ostentatious indifference] Of course it is no business of mine I only throw out the suggestion Sartorius may be a retired burglar for all I know [Sartorius and Blanche, ready for dinner, come from the hotel]

TRENCH Sh! Here they come Get the letter finished before dinner, like a good old chappie I shall be awfully obliged to you

COKANE [impatiently] Leave me, leave me you disturb me [He waves him off, and begins to write]

TRENCH [humbly and gratefully] Yes, old chap Thanks awfully [By this time Blanche has left her father, and is strolling off towards the riverside Sartorius comes down the garden, Baedeker in hand, and sits near Cokane, reading Trench addresses him] You wont mind my taking Blanche in to dinner, I hope, sir?

SARTORIUS By all means, Dr Trench Pray do so [He graciously waves him off to join Blanche Trench hurries after her through the gate The light reddens as the Rhemish sunset begins Cokane, making wry faces in the agonies of composition, is disconcerted to find Sartorius's eye upon him]

SARTORIUS I do not disturb you, I hope, Mr Cokane

COKANE By no means Our friend Trench has entrusted me with a difficult and delicate task. He has requested me, as a friend of the family, to write to them on a subject that concerns you

SARTORIUS Indeed, Mr Cokane! Well, the communication could not be in better hands

COKANE [with an air of modesty] Ah, that is going too far, my dear sir, too far Still, you see what Trench is A capital fellow in his way, Mr Sartorius, an excellent young fellow But family communications like these require good manners They require tact, and tact is Trench's weak point He has an excellent heart, but no tact none whatever Everything depends on the way the matter is put to Lady Roydale But as to that, you may rely on me— I understand the sex

SARTORIUS Well, however she may receive it—and I care as little as any man, Mr Cokane, how people may choose to receive me—I trust I may at least have the pleasure of seeing you sometimes at my house when we return to England

COKANE [olentrhelmed] My dear sir! You express yourself in the true spirit of an English gentleman

SARTORIUS Not at all You will always be most welcome But I fear I have disturbed

you in the composition of your letter Pray resume it I shall leave you to yourself [He pretends to rise, but checks himself to add] Unless indeed I can assist you in any way? by clearing up any point on which you are not informed, for instance? or even, if I may so far presume on my years, giving you the benefit of my experience as to the best way of wording the matter? [Cokane looks a little surprised at this Sartorius looks hard at him, and continues deliberately and meaningly] I shall always be happy to help any friend of Dr Trench's, in any way, to the best of my ability and of my means

COKANE My dear sir you are really very good Trench and I were putting our heads together over the letter just now, and there certainly were one or two points on which we were a little in the dark [Scrupulously] But I would not permit Harry to question you No I pointed out to him that, as a matter of taste, it would be more delicate to wait until you volunteered the necessary information

SARTORIUS Hm! May I ask what you have said, so far?

COKANE "My dear Aunt Maria" That is, Trench's dear Aunt Maria, my friend Lady Roydale You understand that I am only drafting a letter for Trench to copy

SARTORIUS Quite so Will you proceed, or would it help you if I were to suggest a word or two?

COKANE [effusively] Your suggestions will be most valuable, my dear sir, most welcome

SARTORIUS I think I should begin in some such way as this "In travelling with my friend Mr Cokane up the Rhine—"

COKANE [murmuring as he writes] Invaluable, invaluable The very thing—"my friend Mr Cokane up the Rhine—"

SARTORIUS "I have made the acquaintance of"—or you may say "picked up," or "come across," if you think that would suit your friend's style better We must not be too formal

COKANE "Picked up"! oh no too dégagé, Mr Sartorius, too dégagé I should say "had the privilege of becoming acquainted with"

SARTORIUS [quickly] By no means Lady Roydale must judge of that for herself Let it stand as I said "I have made the acquaintance of a young lady, the daughter of—" [He hesitates]

COKANE [writing] "acquaintance of a young lady, the daughter of"—yes?

SARTORIUS "of"—you had better say "a gentleman"

COKANE [surprised] Of course

SARTORIUS [with sudden passion] It is not of course, sir [Cokane, startled, looks at him with dawning suspicion Sartorius recovers himself somewhat shamefacedly] Hm!—"of a gentleman of considerable wealth and position—"

COKANE [echoing him with a new note of coldness in his voice as he writes the last words]—"and position"

SARTORIUS "which, however, he has made entirely for himself" [Cokane, now fully enlightened, stares at him instead of writing] Have you written that?

COKANE [expanding into an attitude of patronage and encouragement] Ah, indeed Quite so, quite so [He writes]—"entirely for himself" Just so Proceed, Sartorius, proceed Very clearly expressed

SARTORIUS "The young lady will inherit the bulk of her father's fortune, and will be liberally treated on her marriage Her education has been of the most expensive and complete kind obtainable, and her surroundings have been characterized by the strictest refinement She is in every essential particular—"

COKANE [interrupting] Excuse the remark, but don't you think this is rather too much in the style of a prospectus of the young lady? I throw out the suggestion as a matter of taste

SARTORIUS [troubled] Perhaps you are right I am of course not dictating the exact words,—

COKANE Of course not of course not

SARTORIUS —but I desire that there may be no wrong impression as to my daughter's—er—breeding As to myself—

COKANE Oh, it will be sufficient to mention your profession, or pursuits, or— [He pauses, and they look pretty hard at one another]

SARTORIUS [very deliberately] My income, sir, is derived from the rental of a very extensive real estate in London Lady Rowdale is one of the head landlords, and Dr Trench holds a mortgage from which, if I mistake not, his entire income is derived The truth is, Mr Cokane, I am quite well acquainted with Dr Trench's position and affairs, and I have long desired to know him personally

COKANE [again obsequious, but still inquisitive]

What a remarkable coincidence! In what quarter is the estate situated, did you say?

SARTORIUS In London, sir Its management occupies as much of my time as is not devoted to the ordinary pursuits of a gentleman [He rises and takes out his card case] The rest I leave to your discretion [He leaves a card on the table] That is my address at Surbiton If it should unfortunately happen, Mr Cokane, that this leads to nothing but a disappointment for Blanche, probably she would rather not see you afterwards But if all turns out as we hope, Dr Trench's best friends will then be our best friends

COKANE [rising and confronting Sartorius confidently, pencil and paper in hand] Rely on me, Mr Sartorius The letter is already finished here [pointing to his brain] In five minutes it will be finished there [He points to the paper, nods to emphasize the assertion, and begins to pace up and down the garden, writing, and tapping his forehead from time to time as he goes with every appearance of severe intellectual exertion]

SARTORIUS [calling through the gate after a glance at his watch] Blanche BLANCHE [replying in the distance] Yes?

SARTORIUS Time, my dear [He goes into the table d'hôte]

BLANCHE [nearer] Coming [She comes back through the gate followed by Trench]

TRENCH [in a half whisper, as Blanche goes towards the table d'hôte] Blanche stop One moment [She stops] We must be careful when your father is by I had to promise him not to regard anything as settled until I hear from my people at home

BLANCHE [chilled] Oh, I see Your family may object to me, and then it will be all over between us They are almost sure to

TRENCH [anxiously] Don't say that, Blanche it sounds as if you didn't care I hope you regard it as settled You haven't made any promise, you know

BLANCHE [earnestly] Yes, I have I promised papa too But I have broken my promise for your sake I suppose I am not so conscientious as you And if the matter is not to be regarded as settled, family or no family, promise or no promise, let us break it off here and now

TRENCH [intoxicated with affection] Blanche on my most sacred honor, family or no family, promise or no promise— [The waiter reappears]

at the table d'hôte entrance, ringing his bell]
Damn that noise!

COKANE [as he comes to them, flourishing the letter] Finished, dear boy, finished Done to a turn, punctually to the second C'est fini, mon cher garçon, c'est fini [Sartorius returns]

SARTORIUS Will you take Blanche in, Dr Trench? [Trench takes Blanche in to the table d'hôte] Is the letter finished, Mr Cokane?

COKANE [with an author's pride, handing his draft to Sartorius] There! [Sartorius reads it, nodding gravely over it with complete approval]

SARTORIUS [returning the draft] Thank you, Mr Cokane You have the pen of a ready writer

COKANE [as they go in together] Not at all, not at all A little tact, Mr Sartorius, a little knowledge of the world, a little experience of women— [They disappear into the annexe]

ACT II

In the library of a handsomely appointed villa at Surbiton on a sunny forenoon in September Sartorius is busy at a writing table littered with business letters The fireplace, decorated for summer, is close behind him the window is in the opposite wall Between the table and the window Blanche, in her prettiest frock, sits reading The Queen The door is in the middle All the walls are lined with shelves of smartly tooled books, fitting into their places like bricks

SARTORIUS Blanche

BLANCHE Yes, papa

SARTORIUS I have some news here

BLANCHE What is it?

SARTORIUS I mean news for you—from Trench

BLANCHE [with affected indifference] Indeed?

SARTORIUS "Indeed?" Is that all you have to say to me? Oh, very well

He resumes his work Silence

BLANCHE What do his people say, papa?

SARTORIUS His people? I don't know [Still busy]

Another pause

BLANCHE What does he say?

SARTORIUS He! He says nothing [He folds a letter leisurely, and looks for the envelope] He prefers to communicate the result of his— where did I put?—oh, here Yes he prefers to communicate the result in person

BLANCHE [springing up] Oh, papa! When is he coming?

SARTORIUS If he walks from the station,

he may arrive in the course of the next half-hour If he drives, he may be here at any moment

BLANCHE [making hastily for the door] Oh!

SARTORIUS Blanche

BLANCHE Yes, papa

SARTORIUS You will of course not meet him until he has spoken to me

BLANCHE [hypocritically] Of course not, papa I shouldn't have thought of such a thing

SARTORIUS That is all [She is going, when he puts out his hand, and says with fatherly emotion] My dear child [She responds by going over to kiss him A tap at the door] Come in

Lickcheese enters, carrying a black handbag He is a shabby, needy man, with dirty face and linen, scrubby beard and whiskers, going bald A nervous, wiry, pertinacious human terrier, judged by his mouth and eyes, but miserably apprehensive and servile before Sartorius He bids Blanche "Good morning, miss", and she passes out with a slight and contemptuous recognition of him

LICKCHEESE Good morning, sir

SARTORIUS [harsh and peremptory] Good morning

LICKCHEESE [taking a little sack of money from his bag] Not much this morning, sir I have just had the honor of making Dr Trench's acquaintance, sir

SARTORIUS [looking up from his writing, displeased] Indeed?

LICKCHEESE Yes, sir Dr Trench asked his way of me, and was kind enough to drive me from the station

SARTORIUS Where is he, then?

LICKCHEESE I left him in the hall, with his friend, sir. I should think he is speaking to Miss Sartorius

SARTORIUS Hm! What do you mean by his friend?

LICKCHEESE There is a Mr Cokane with him, sir

SARTORIUS I see you have been talking to him, eh?

LICKCHEESE As we drove along yes, sir

SARTORIUS [sharply] Why did you not come by the nine o'clock train?

LICKCHEESE I thought—

SARTORIUS It cannot be helped now, so never mind what you thought But do not put off my business again to the last moment Has there been any further trouble about the St Giles property?

LICKCHEESE The Sanitary Inspector has been complaining again about No 13 Robbins's Row He says he'll bring it before the vestry

SARTORIUS Did you tell him that I am on the vestry?

LICKCHEESE Yes, sir

SARTORIUS What did he say to that?

LICKCHEESE Said he supposed so, or you wouldnt dare to break the law so scand'lous I only tell you what he said

SARTORIUS Hm! Do you know his name?

LICKCHEESE Yes, sir Speakman

SARTORIUS Write it down in the diary for the day of the next meeting of the Health Committee I will teach Mr Speakman his duty to members of the vestry

LICKCHEESE [doubtfully] The vestry cant hurt him, sir He's under the Local Government Board

SARTORIUS I did not ask you that Let me see the books [Lickcheese produces the rent book, and hands it to Sartorius, then makes the desired entry in the diary on the table, watching Sartorius with misgiving as the rent book is examined Sartorius rises, frowning] One pound four for repairs to number thirteen! What does this mean?

LICKCHEESE Well, sir, it was the staircase on the third floor It was downright dangerous there werent but three whole steps in it, and no handrail I thought it best to have a few boards put in

SARTORIUS Boards! Firewood, sir, firewood! They will burn every stick of it You have spent twenty-four shillings of my money on firewood for them

LICKCHEESE There ought to be stone stairs, sir it would be a saving in the long run The clergyman says—

SARTORIUS What! Who says?

LICKCHEESE The clergyman, sir, only the clergyman Not that I make much account of him, but if you knew how he has worried me over that staircase—

SARTORIUS I am an Englishman, and I will suffer no priest to interfere in my business [He turns suddenly on Lickcheese] Now look here, Mr Lickcheese! This is the third time this year that you have brought me a bill of over a pound for repairs I have warned you repeatedly against dealing with these tene-ment houses as if they were mansions in a West-End square I have had occasion to warn you too against discussing my affairs with strangers You have chosen to disregard my wishes You are discharged

LICKCHEESE [dismayed] Oh, sir, dont say that

SARTORIUS [fiercely] You are discharged

LICKCHEESE Well, Mr Sartorius, it is hard, so it is No man alive could have sercwed more out of them poor destitute devils for you than I have, or spent less in doing it I have dirtied my hands at it until theyre not fit for clean work hardly, and now you turn me—

SARTORIUS [interrupting him menacingly] What do you mean by dirtying your hands? If I find that you have stepped an inch outside the letter of the law, Mr Lickcheese, I will prosecute you myself The way to keep your hands clean is to gain the confidence of your employers You will do well to bear that in mind in your next situation

THE PARLORMAID [opening the door] Mr Trench and Mr Cokane

Cokane and Trench come in Trench festively dressed and in buoyant spirits Cokane highly self-satisfied

SARTORIUS How do you do, Dr Trench? Good morning, Mr Cokane I am pleased to see you here Mr Lickcheese you will place your accounts and money on the table I will examine them and settle with you presently

Lickcheese retires to the table, and begins to arrange his accounts, greatly depressed The parlormaid withdraws

TRENCH [glancing at Lickcheese] I hope we're not in the way

SARTORIUS By no means Sit down, pray I fear you have been kept waiting

TRENCH [taking Blanche's chair] Not at all Weve only just come in [He takes out a packet of letters, and begins untying them]

COKANE [going to a chair nearer the window, but stopping to look admiringly round before sitting down] You must be happy here with all these books, Mr Sartorius A literary atmosphere

SARTORIUS [resuming his seat] I have not looked into them They are pleasant for Blanche occasionally when she wishes to read I chose the house because it is on gravel The death-rate is very low

TRENCH [triumphantly] I have any amount of letters for you All my people are delighted that I am going to settle Aunt Maria wants Blanche to be married from her house [He hands Sartorius a letter]

SARTORIUS Aunt Maria?

COKANE Lady Rowdale, my dear sir he means Lady Roxdale Do express yourself with a little more tact, my dear fellow

TRENCH Lady Roxdale, of course Uncle Harry—

COKANE Sir Harry Trench His godfather, my dear sir, his godfather

TRENCH Just so The pleasantest fellow for his age you ever met He offers us his house at St Andrews for a couple of months, if we care to pass our honeymoon there [He hands Sartorius another letter] It's the sort of house nobody can live in, you know, but it's a nice thing for him to offer Dont you think so?

SARTORIUS [dissembling a thrill at the titles] No doubt These seem very gratifying, Dr Trench

TRENCH Yes, arnt they? Aunt Maria has really behaved like a brick If you read the postscript youll see she spotted Cokane's hand in my letter [Chuckling] He wrote it for me

SARTORIUS [glancing at Cokane] Indeed! Mr Cokane evidently did it with great tact

COKANE [returning the glance] Dont mention it

TRENCH [gleefully] Well, what do you say now, Mr Sartorius? May we regard the matter as settled at last?

SARTORIUS Quite settled [He rises and offers his hand Trench, glowing with gratitude, rises and shakes it vehemently, unable to find words for his feelings]

COKANE [coming between them] Allow me to congratulate you both [He shakes hands with the two at the same time]

SARTORIUS And now, gentlemen, I have a word to say to my daughter Dr Trench you will not, I hope, grudge me the pleasure of breaking this news to her I have had to disappoint her more than once since I last saw you Will you excuse me for ten minutes?

COKANE [in a flush of friendly protest] My dear sir can you ask?

TRENCH Certainly

SARTORIUS Thank you [He goes out]

TRENCH [chuckling again] He wont have any news to break, poor old boy she's seen all the letters already

COKANE I must say your behavior has been far from straightforward, Harry You have been carrying on a clandestine correspondence

LICKCHEESE [stealthily] Gentlemen—

TRENCH [turning they had for- {

COKANE } gotten his presence] {Hallo!

LICKCHEESE [coming between them very humbly, but in mortal anxiety and haste] Look here, gentlemen [To Trench] You, sir, I address myself to more particular Will you say a word in my favor to the guvnor? He's just given me the sack, and I have four children looking to me for their bread A word from you, sir, on this happy day, might get him to take me on again

TRENCH [embarrassed] Well, you see, Mr Lickcheese, I dont see how I can interfere I'm very sorry, of course

COKANE Certainly you cannot interfere It would be in the most execrable taste

LICKCHEESE Oh, gentlemen, youre young, and you dont know what loss of employment means to the like of me What harm would it do you to help a poor man? Just listen to the circumstances, sir I only—

TRENCH [moved, but snatching at an excuse for taking a high tone in avoiding the unpleasantness of helping him] No I had rather not Excuse my saying plainly that I think Mr Sartorius is not a man to act hastily or harshly I have always found him very fair and generous, and I believe he is a better judge of the circumstances than I am

COKANE [inquisitive] I think you ought to hear the circumstances, Harry It can do no harm Hear the circumstances by all means

LICKCHEESE Never mind, sir it aint any use When I hear that man called generous and fair!—well, never mind

TRENCH [severely] If you wish me to do anything for you, Mr Lickcheese, let me tell you that you are not going the right way about it in speaking ill of Mr Sartorius

LICKCHEESE Have I said one word against him, sir? I leave it to your friend have I said a word?

COKANE True true Quite true Harry be just LICKCHEESE Mark my words, gentlemen he'll find what a man he's lost the very first week's rents the new man'll bring him Youll find the difference yourself, Dr Trench, if you or your children come into the property Ive took money there when no other collector alive would have wrung it out And this is the thanks I get for it! Why, see here, gentlemen! Look at that bag of money on the table Hardly a penny of that but there was a hungry child crying for the bread it would have bought But I got it for him—screwed and worried and bullied it out of them I—look here, gentlemen I'm pretty seasoned to the work, but theres money there that I couldnt have taken if it hadnt been for the thought of my own children depending on me for giving him satisfaction And because I charged him four-and-twenty shillin to mend a staircase that three women have been hurt on, and that would have got him prosecuted for manslaughter if it had been let go much longer, he gives me the sack Wouldnt listen to a word, though I would have offered to make up the money out of my own pocket aye, and am willing to do it still if you will only put in a word for me

TRENCH [aghast] You took money that ought to have fed starving children! Serve you right! If I had been the father of one of those children, I'd have given you something worse than the sack I wouldnt say a word to save your soul, if you have such a thing Mr Sartorius was quite right

LICKCHEESE [staring at him, surprised into contemptuous amusement in the midst of his anxiety] Just listen to this! Well, you are an innocent young gentleman Do you suppose he sacked me because I was too hard? Not a bit on it it was because I wasnt hard enough I never heard him say he was satisfied yet no, nor he wouldnt, not if I skinned em alive I dont say he's the worst landlord in London he couldnt be worse than some, but he's no better than the worst I ever had to do with And, though I say it, I'm better than the best collector he ever done business with Ive screwed more and spent less on his properties than anyone would believe that knows what such properties are I know my merits, Dr Trench, and will speak for myself if no one else will COKANE What description of properties? Houses?

LICKCHEESE Tenement houses, let from week to week by the room or half room aye, or quarter room It pays when you know how to work it, sir Nothing like it It's been calculated on the cubic foot of space, sir, that you can get higher rents letting by the room than you can for a mansion in Park Lane

TRENCH I hope Mr Sartorius hasnt much of that sort of property, however it may pay

LICKCHEESE He has nothing else, sir, and he shews his sense in it, too Every few hundred pounds he could scrape together he bought old houses with houses that you wouldnt hardly look at without holding your nose He has em in St Giles's he has em in Marylebone he has em in Bethnal Green Just look how he lives himself, and youll see the good of it to him He likes a low death-rate and a gravel soil for himself, he does You come down with me to Robbins's Row, and I'll shew you a soil and a death-rate, I will! And, mind you, it's me that makes it pay him so well Catch him going down to collect his own rents! Not likely!

TRENCH Do you mean to say that all his property—all his means—come from this sort of thing?

LICKCHEESE Every penny of it, sir

Trench, overwhelmed, has to sit down

COKANE [looking compassionately at him] Ah, my dear fellow, the love of money is the root of all evil

LICKCHEESE Yes, sir, and we'd all like to have the tree growing in our garden

COKANE [revolted] Mr Lickcheese I did not address myself to you I do not wish to be severe with you, but there is something peculiarly repugnant to my feelings in the calling of a rent collector

LICKCHEESE It's no worse than many another I have my children looking to me

COKANE True I admit it So has our friend Sartorius His affection for his daughter is a redeeming point—a redeeming point, certainly

LICKCHEESE She's a lucky daughter, sir Many another daughter has been turned out upon the streets to gratify his affection for her Thats what business is, sir, you see Come, sir I think your friend will say a word for me now he knows I'm not in fault

TRENCH [rising angrily] I will not It's a damnable business from beginning to end, and you deserve no better luck for helping in it Ive seen it all among the out-patients at the hospital, and it used to make my blood boil to think that such things couldnt be prevented

LICKCHEESE [his suppressed spleen breaking out] Oh indeed, sir But I suppose youll take your share when you marry Miss Blanche, all the same [Furiously] Which of us is the worse, I should like to know? me that wrings the money out to keep a home over my children, or you that spend it and try to shove the blame on to me?

COKANE A most improper observation to address to a gentleman, Mr Lickcheese! A most revolutionary sentiment!

LICKCHEESE Perhaps so But then Robbins's Row aint a school for manners You collect a week or two there—youre welcome to my place if I cant keep it for myself—and youll hear a little plain speaking, you will COKANE [with dignity] Do you know to whom you aie speaking, my good man?

LICKCHEESE [recklessly] I know well enough who I'm speaking to What do I care for you, or a thousand such? I'm poor thats enough to make a rascal of me No consideration for me! nothing to be got by saying a word for me! [Suddenly cringing to Trench] Just a word, sir It would cost you nothing [Sartorius appears at the door, unobserved] Have some feeling for the poor

TRENCH I'm afraid you have shewn very little, by your own confession

LICKCHEESE [breaking out again] More than your precious father-in-law, anyhow I— [Sartorius's voice, striking in with deadly coldness, paralyzes him]

SARTORIUS You will come here tomorrow not later than ten, Mr Lickcheese, to conclude our business I shall trouble you no further today [Lickcheese, cowed, goes out amid dead silence Sartorius continues, after an awkward pause] He is one of my agents, or rather was, for I have unfortunately had to dismiss him for repeatedly disregarding my instructions [Trench says nothing Sartorius throws off his embarrassment, and assumes a jocose, rallying air, unbecoming to him under any circumstances, and just now almost unbearably jarring] Blanche will be down presently, Harry [Trench recoils—I suppose I must call you Harry now What do you say to a stroll through the garden, Mr Cokane? We are celebrated here for our flowers

COKANE Charmed, my dear sir, charmed Life here is an idyll—a perfect idyll We were just dwelling on it

SARTORIUS [slyly] Harry can follow with Blanche She will be down directly

TRENCH [hastily] No I cant face her just now

SARTORIUS [rallying him] Indeed! Ha, ha! The laugh, the first they have heard from him, sets Trench's teeth on edge Cokane is taken aback but instantly recovers himself

COKANE Ha! ha! ha! Ho! ho!

TRENCH But you dont understand

SARTORIUS Oh, I think we do, I think we do Eh, Mr Cokane? Ha! ha!

COKANE I should think we do Ha! ha! ha!

They go out together, laughing at him He collapses into a chair, shuddering in every nerve Blanche appears at the door. Her face lights up when she sees that he is alone She trips noiselessly to the back of his chair and clasps her hands over his eyes With a convulsive start and exclamation he springs up and breaks away from her

BLANCHE [astomshed] Harry!

TRENCH [with distracted politeness] I beg your pardon I was thinking—wont you sit down?

BLANCHE [looking suspiciously at him] Is anything the matter? [She sits down slowly near the writing table He takes Cokane's chair]

TRENCH No Oh no

BLANCHE Papa has not been disagreeable, I hope

TRENCH No I have hardly spoken to him since I was with you [He rises, takes up his chair, and plants it beside hers This pleases her better She looks at him with her most winning smile A sort of sob breaks from him, and he catches her hands and kisses them passionately Then, looking into her eyes with intense earnestness, he says] Blanche are you fond of money?

BLANCHE [gaily] Very Are you going to give me any?

TRENCH [wincing] Dont make a joke of it I'm serious Do you know that we shall be very poor?

BLANCHE Is that what made you look as if you had neuralgia?

TRENCH [pleadingly] My dear it's no laughing matter Do you know that I have a bare seven hundred a year to live on?

BLANCHE How dreadful!

TRENCH Blanche it's very serious indeed I assure you it is

BLANCHE It would keep me rather short in my housekeeping, dearest boy, if I had nothing of my own But papa has promised me that I shall be richer than ever when we are married

TRENCH We must do the best we can with seven hundred I think we ought to be self-supporting

BLANCHE Thats just what I mean to be, Harry If I were to eat up half your seven hundred, I should be making you twice as poor, but I'm going to make you twice as rich instead [He shakes his head] Has papa made any difficulty?

TRENCH [rising with a sigh and taking his chair] back to its former place] No None at all [He sits down dejectedly When Blanche speaks again her face and voice betray the beginning of a struggle with her temper]

BLANCHE Harry are you too proud to take money from my father?

TRENCH Yes, Blanche I am too proud

BLANCHE [after a pause] That is not nice to me, Harry

TRENCH You must bear with me, Blanche I—I cant explain After all, it's very natural BLANCHE Has it occurred to you that I may be proud too?

TRENCH Oh, thats nonsense No one will accuse you of marrying for money

BLANCHE No one would think the worse of me if I did, or of you either [She rises and begins to walk restlessly about] We really cannot live on seven hundred a year, Harry, and I dont think it quite fair of you to ask me merely because you are afraid of people talking

TRENCH It's not that alone, Blanche

BLANCHE What else is it, then?

TRENCH Nothing I—

BLANCHE [getting behind him, and speaking with forced playfulness as she bends over him, her hands on his shoulders] Of course it's nothing Now dont be absurd, Harry be good, and listen to me I know how to settle it You are too proud to owe anything to me, and I am too proud to owe anything to you You have seven hundred a year Well, I will take just seven hundred a year from papa at first, and then we shall be quits Now, now, Harry, you know youve not a word to say against that

TRENCH It's impossible

BLANCHE Impossible!

TRENCH Yes, impossible I have resolved not to take any money from your father

BLANCHE But he'll give the money to me, not to you

TRENCH It's the same thing [With an effort to be sentimental] I love you too well to see any distinction [He puts up his hand half-heartedly she takes it over his shoulder with equal indecision They are both trying hard to conciliate one another]

BLANCHE Thats a very nice way of putting it, Harry, but I'm sure theres something I ought to know Has papa been disagreeable?

TRENCH No he has been very kind—to me, at least It's not that It's nothing you can guess, Blanche It would only pain you—

perhaps offend you I dont mean, of course, that we shall live always on seven hundred a year I intend to go at my profession in earnest, and work my fingers to the bone

BLANCHE [playing with his fingers, still over his shoulder] But I shouldnt like you with your fingers worked to the bone, Harry I must be told what the matter is [He takes his hand quickly away she flushes angrily, and her voice is no longer even an imitation of the voice of a lady as she exclaims] I hate secrets, and I dont like to be treated as if I were a child

TRENCH [annoyed by her tone] Theres nothing to tell I dont choose to trespass on your father's generosity thats all

BLANCHE You had no objection half an hour ago, when you met me in the hall, and shewed me all the letters Your family doesnt object Do you object?

TRENCH [earnestly] I do not indeed It's only a question of money

BLANCHE [imploringly, the voice softening and refining for the last time] Harry theres no use in our fencing in this way Papa will never consent to my being absolutely dependent on you, and I dont like the idea of it myself If you even mention such a thing to him you will break off the match you will indeed

TRENCH [obstinately] I cant help that

BLANCHE [white with rage] You cant help—! Oh, I'm beginning to understand I will save you the trouble You can tell papa that I have broken off the match, and then there will be no further difficulty TRENCH [taken aback] What do you mean, Blanche? Are you offended?

BLANCHE Offended! How dare you ask me?

TRENCH Dare!

BLANCHE How much more manly it would have been to confess that you were trifling with me that time on the Rhine! Why did you come here today? Why did you write to your people?

TRENCH Well, Blanche, if you are going to lose your temper—

BLANCHE Thats no answer You depended on your family to get you out of your engagement, and they did not object they were only too glad to be rid of you You were not mean enough to stay away, and not manly enough to tell the truth You thought you could provoke me to break the engagement thats so like a man—to try to put the woman in the wrong Well, you have your way I

release you I wish you'd opened my eyes by downright brutality, by striking me, by anything rather than shuffling as you have done

TRENCH [holy] Shuffling! If I'd thought you capable of turning on me like this, I'd never have spoken to you I've a good mind never to speak to you again

BLANCHE You shall not—not ever I will take care of that [going to the door]

TRENCH [alarmed] What are you going to do?

BLANCHE To get your letters your false letters, and your presents your hateful presents, to return them to you I'm very glad it's all broken off and if—[as she puts her hand to the door it is opened from without by Sartorius, who enters and shuts it behind him]

SARTORIUS [interrupting her severely] Hush, pray, Blanche you are forgetting yourself you can be heard all over the house What is the matter?

BLANCHE [too angry to care whether she is overheard or not] You had better ask him He has some excuse about money

SARTORIUS Excuse! Excuse for what?

BLANCHE For throwing me over

TRENCH [vehemently] I declare I never—

BLANCHE [interrupting him still more vehemently] You did You did You are doing nothing else

TRENCH [together each trying to shout down BLANCHE the other]

I am doing nothing of the sort You know very well that what you are saying is disgracefully untrue It's a damned lie I won't stand—[hated you Beastly—dirty—vile—]

SARTORIUS [in desperation at the noise] Silence! [Still more firmly] Silence! [They obey He proceeds firmly] Blanche you must control your temper I will not have these repeated scenes within hearing of the servants Dr Trench will answer for himself to me You had better leave us [He opens the door, and calls] Mr Cokane will you kindly join us here

COKANE [in the conservatory] Coming, my dear sir, coming [He appears at the door]

BLANCHE I'm sure I have no wish to stay I hope I shall find you alone when I come back [An inarticulate exclamation bursts from Trench She goes out, passing Cokane resent-] fully He looks after her in surprise, then looks questioningly at the two men Sartorius shuts the door with an angry stroke, and turns to Trench]

SARTORIUS [aggressively] Sir—

TRENCH [interrupting him more aggressively] Well, sir?

COKANE [getting between them] Gently, dear boy, gently Suavity, Harry, suavity

SARTORIUS [mastering himself] If you have anything to say to me, Dr Trench, I will listen to you patiently You will then allow me to say what I have to say on my part

TRENCH [ashamed] I beg your pardon Of course, yes Fire away

SARTORIUS May I take it that you have refused to fulfil your engagement with my daughter?

TRENCH Certainly not your daughter has refused to fulfil her engagement with me But the match is broken off, if that's what you mean

SARTORIUS Dr Trench I will be plain with you I know that Blanche has a quick temper It is part of her strong character and her physical courage which is greater than that of most men, I can assure you You must be prepared for that If this quarrel is only Blanche's temper, you may take my word for it that it will be over before tomorrow But I understood from what she said just now that you have made some difficulty on the score of money

TRENCH [with renewed excitement] It was Miss Sartorius who made the difficulty I shouldn't have minded that so much, if it hadn't been for the things she said She shewed that she doesn't care that [snapping his fingers] for me

COKANE [soothingly] Dear boy—

TRENCH Hold your tongue, Billy it's enough to make a man wish he'd never seen a woman Look here, Mr Sartorius I put the matter to her as delicately and considerably as possible, never mentioning a word of my reasons, but just asking her to be content to live on my own little income, and yet she turned on me as if I'd behaved like a savage

SARTORIUS Live on your income! Impossible my daughter is accustomed to a proper establishment Did I not expressly undertake to provide for that? Did she not tell you I promised her to do so?

TRENCH Yes I know all about that, Mr

Sartorius, and I'm greatly obliged to you, but I'd rather not take anything from you except Blanche herself

SARTORIUS And why did you not say so before?

TRENCH No matter why Let us drop the subject

SARTORIUS No matter! But it does matter, sir I insist on an answer Why did you not say so before?

TRENCH I didnt know before

SARTORIUS [provoked] Then you ought to have known your own mind on a point of such vital importance

TRENCH [much injured] I ought to have known! Cokane is this reasonable? [Cokane's features are contorted by an air of judicial consideration, but he says nothing, and Trench again addresses Sartorius, this time with a marked diminution of respect] How the deuce could I have known? You didnt tell me

SARTORIUS You are trifling with me, sir You said that you did not know your own mind before

TRENCH I said nothing of the sort I say that I did not know where your money came from before

SARTORIUS That is not true, sir I—

COKANE Gently, my dear sir Gently, Harry dear boy Suaviter in modo fort—

TRENCH Let him begin then What does he mean by attacking me in this fashion?

SARTORIUS Mr Cokane you will bear me out I was explicit on the point I said I was a self-made man, and I am not ashamed of it

TRENCH You are nothing of the sort I found out this morning from your man—Lickecheese, or whatever his confounded name is—that your fortune has been made out of a parcel of unfortunate creatures that have hardly enough to keep body and soul together—made by screwing, and bullying, and threatening, and all sorts of pettifoggery and tyranny

SARTORIUS [outraged] Sir! [They confront one another thrcatcnungly]

COKANE [softly] Rent must be paid, dear boy It is inevitable, Harry, inevitable [Trench turns away petulantly Sartorius looks after him reflectively for a moment, then resumes his former deliberate and dignified manner, and addresses Trench with studied consideration, but with a perceptible condescension to his youth and folly]

SARTORIUS I am afraid, Dr Trench, that you are a very young hand at business, and I am sorry I forgot that for a moment or so May I ask you to suspend your judgment until we have had a little quiet discussion of this sentimental notion of yours? if you will excuse me for calling it so [He takes a chair, and motions Trench to another on his right]

COKANE Very nicely put, my dear sir Come, Harry sit down and listen, and consider the matter calmly and judicially Dont be headstrong

TRENCH I have no objection to sit down and listen, but I dont see how that can make black white, and I am tired of being turned on as if I were in the wrong [He sits down]

Cokane sits at Trench's elbow, on his right They compose themselves for a conference

SARTORIUS I assume, to begin with, Dr Trench, that you are not a Socialist, or anything of that sort

TRENCH Certainly not I'm a Conservative At least, if I ever took the trouble to vote, I should vote for the Conservative and against the other fellow COKANE True blue, Harry, true blue!

SARTORIUS I am glad to find that so far we are in perfect sympathy I am, of course, a Conservative Not a narrow or prejudiced one, I hope, nor at all opposed to true progress Still, a sound Conservative As to Lickecheese, I need say no more about him than that I have dismissed him from my service this morning for a breach of trust, and you will hardly accept his testimony as friendly or disinterested As to my business, it is simply to provide homes suited to the small means of very poor people, who require roofs to shelter them just like other people Do you suppose I can keep up those roofs for nothing?

TRENCH Yes thats all very fine, but the point is, what sort of homes do you give them for their money? People must live somewhere or else go to jail Advantage is taken of that to make them pay for houses that are not fit for dogs Why dont you build proper dwellings, and give fair value for the money you take?

SARTORIUS [plying his innocence] My young friend these poor people do not know how to live in proper dwellings they would wreck them in a week You doubt me try it for yourself You are welcome to replace all the missing banisters, handrails, eistern lids and dusthole tops at your own expense, and you will find them missing again in less than three days burnt, sir every stick of them I do not blame the poor creatures they need fires, and often have no other way of getting them But I really cannot spend pound after pound in repairs for them to pull down, when I can barely get them to pay me four and sixpence a week for a room, which is the recognized fair London rent. No gentlemen when people are very poor, you cannot help them, no matter how much you may sympathize with them It does them more harm than good in the long run I prefer to save my money in order to provide additional houses for the homeless, and to lay by a little for Blanche [He looks at them They are silent Trench unconvinced, but talked down; Cokane humanely perplexed Sartorius bends his brows; comes forward in his chair as if gathering himself for a spring, and addresses himself, with impressive significance to Trench] And now, Dr Trench, may I ask what your income is derived from?

TRENCH [defiantly] From interest not from houses My hands are clean as far as that goes Interest on a mortgage

SARTORIUS [forcibly] Yes a mortgage on my property When I, to use your own words, screw, and bully, and drive these people to pay what they have freely undertaken to pay me, I cannot touch one penny of the money they give me until I have first paid you your seven hundred a year out of it What Lickcheese did for me, I do for you He and I are alike intermediaries you are the principal It is because of the risks I run through the poverty of my tenants that you exact interest from me at the monstrous and exorbitant rate of seven per cent, forcing me to exact the uttermost farthing in my turn from the tenants And yet, Dr Trench you, who have never done a hand's turn of work in connection with the place, you have not hesitated to speak contemptuously of me because I have applied my industry and forethought to the management of our property, and am maintaining it by the same honorable means

COKANE [greatly relieved] Admirable my dear sir, excellent! I felt instinctively that Trench was talking unpractical nonsense Let us drop the subject, my dear boy you only make an ass of yourself when you meddle in business matters I told you it was inevitable

TRENCH [dazed] Do you mean to say that I am just as bad as you are?

COKANE Shame, Harry, shame! Grossly bad taste! Be a gentleman Apologize

SARTORIUS Allow me, Mr Cokane. [To Trench] If, when you say you are just as bad as I am, you mean that you are just as powerless to alter the state of society, then you are unfortunately quite right

Trench does not at once reply He stares at Sartorius, and then hangs his head and gazes stupidly at the floor, morally beggared, with his clasped knuckles between his knees, a living picture of disillusion Cokane comes sympathetically to him and puts an encouraging hand on his shoulder

COKANE [gently] Come, Harry, come! Pull yourself together You owe a word to Mr Sartorius

TRENCH [still stupefied, slowly unlaces his fingers; puts his hands on his knees, and lifts himself upright, pulls his waistcoat straight with a tug, and tries to take his disenchantment philosophically as he says, turning to Sartorius] Well, people who live in glass houses have no right to throw stones But, on my honor, I never knew that my house was a glass one until you pointed it out. I beg your pardon [He offers his hand]

SARTORIUS Say no more, Harry your feelings do you credit I assure you I feel exactly as you do, myself Every man who has a heart must wish that a better state of things was practicable But unhappily it is not

TRENCH [a little consoled] I suppose not

COKANE Not a doubt of it, my dear sir not a doubt of it The increase of the population is at the bottom of it all

SARTORIUS [to Trench] I trust I have convinced you that you need no more object to Blanche sharing my fortune, than I need object to her sharing yours

TRENCH [with dull mindfulness] It seems so We're all in the same swim it appears I hope you'll excuse my making such a fuss

SARTORIUS Not another word In fact, I thank you for refraining from explaining the nature of your scruples to Blanche I admire that in you, Harry Perhaps it will be as well to leave her in ignorance

TRENCH [anxiously] But I must explain now You saw how angry she was

SARTORIUS You had better leave that to me [He looks at his watch, and rings the bell]

Lunch is nearly due while you are getting ready for it I can see Blanche, and I hope the result will be quite satisfactory to us all [The parlormaid answers the bell he addresses her with his habitual peremptoriness] Tell Miss Blanche I want her

THE PARLORMAID [her face falling expressively] Yes, sir [She turns reluctantly to go]

SARTORIUS [on second thoughts] Stop [She stops] My love to Miss Blanche, and I am alone here and would like to see her for a moment if she is not busy

THE PARLORMAID [relieved] Yes, sir [She goes out]

SARTORIUS I will shew you your room, Harry I hope you will soon be perfectly at home in it You also, Mr Cokane, must learn your way about here Let us go before Blanche comes [He leads the way to the door]

COKANE [cheerily, following him] Our little discussion has given me quite an appetite

TRENCH [moodily] It's taken mine away
The two friends go out, Sartorius holding the door for them He is following when the parlormaid reappears She is a snivelling sympathetic creature, and is on the verge of tears

SARTORIUS Well is Miss Blanche coming?

THE PARLORMAID Yes, sir I think so, sir

SARTORIUS Wait here until she comes, and tell her that I will be back in a moment I have to shew Dr Trench his room

THE PARLORMAID Yes, sir [She comes into the room A sound between a sob and a sniff escapes her]

Sartorius looks suspiciously at her He half closes the door

SARTORIUS [lowering his voice] Whats the matter with you?

THE PARLORMAID [whimpering] Nothing, sir

SARTORIUS [at the same pitch, more menacingly] Take care how you behave yourself when there are visitors present Do you hear?

THE PARLORMAID Yes, sir [Sartorius goes out]

SARTORIUS [outside] Excuse me I had a word to say to the servant

Trench is heard replying "Not at all," and Cokane "Dont mention it, my dear sir"

Their voices pass out of hearing The parlormaid sniffs, dries her eyes, and takes some brown paper and a ball of string from a cupboard under the bookcase She puts them on the table, and wrestles with another sob Blanche comes in with a jewel box in her hands Her expression is that of a strong and determined woman in an intense passion The maid looks at her with abject wounded affection and bodily terror

BLANCHE [looking round] Wheres my father?

THE PARLORMAID [tremulously propitiatory] He left word he'd be back directly, miss I'm sure he wont be long Heres the paper and string all ready, miss [She spreads the paper on the table] Can I do the parcel for you, miss?

BLANCHE No Mind your own business [She empties the box on the sheet of brown paper It contains a packet of letters and some jewellery She plucks a ring from her finger and throws it down on the heap so angrily that it rolls an ay and falls on the carpet The maid submissively picks it up and puts it on the table, again sniffing and drying her eyes] What are you crying for?

THE PARLORMAID [plaintively] You speak so brutal to me, Miss Blanche, and I do love you so I'm sure no one else would stay and put up with what I have to put up with

BLANCHE Then go I dont want you Do you hear Go

THE PARLORMAID [piteously, falling on her knees] Oh no, Miss Blanche Dont send me away from you dont—

BLANCHE [with fierce disgust] Agh! I hate the sight of you [The maid, wounded to the heart, cries bitterly] Hold your tongue Are those two gentlemen gone?

THE PARLORMAID [weeping] Oh, how could you say such a thing to me, Miss Blanche me that—

BLANCHE [seizing her by the hair and throat] Stop that noise, I tell you, unless you want me to kill you

THE PARLORMAID [protesting and imploring, but in a carefully subdued voice] Let me go, Miss Blanche you know youll be sorry you always are Remember how dreadfully my head was cut last time

BLANCHE [raging] Answer me, will you Have they gone?

THE PARLORMAID Lickcheese has gone, looking dreadf— [she breaks off with a stifled cry as Blanche's fingers tighten furiously on her]

BLANCHE Did I ask you about Lickcheese? You beast you know who I mean youre doing it on purpose

THE PARLORMAID [in a gasp] They re staying to lunch

BLANCHE [looking intently into her face] He?

THE PARLORMAID [whispering with a sympathetic nod] Yes, miss [Blanche lets her drop, and stands forlorn, with despair in her face The parlormaid, recognizing the passing of the crisis of passion, and fearing no further violence, sits discomfitedly on her heels, and tries to arrange her hair and cap, whimpering a little with exhaustion and soreness] Now you've set my hands all trembling, and I shall jingle the things on the tray at lunch so that everybody will notice me It's too bad of you, Miss Bl— [Sartorius coughs outside]

BLANCHE [quickly] Sh! Get up The parlormaid hastily rises, and goes out as demurely as she can Sartorius glances sternly at her and comes to Blanche SARTORIUS [mournfully] My dear can you not make a little better fight with your temper?

BLANCHE [panting with the subsidence of her fit] No I can't I won't I do my best Nobody who really cares for me gives me up because of my temper I never shew my temper to any of the servants but that girl, and she is the only one that will stay with us

SARTORIUS But, my dear, remember that we have to meet our visitors at luncheon presently I have run down before them to say that I have arranged that little difficulty with Trench It was only a piece of mischief made by Lickcheese Trench is a young fool, but it is all right now

BLANCHE I don't want to marry a fool

SARTORIUS Then you will have to take a husband over thirty, Blanche You must not expect too much, my child You will be richer than your husband, and, I think, cleverer too I am better pleased that it should be so

BLANCHE [seizing his arm] Papa

SARTORIUS Yes, my dear

BLANCHE May I do as I like about this marriage, or must I do as you like?

SARTORIUS [uneasily] Blanche—

BLANCHE No, papa you must answer me

SARTORIUS [abandoning his self-control, and giving way recklessly to his affection for her] You shall do as you like now and always, my beloved child I only wish to do as my own darling pleases

BLANCHE Then I will not marry him He has played fast and loose with me He thinks us beneath him he is ashamed of us he dared to object to being benefited by you—as if it were not natural for him to owe you everything, and yet the money tempted him after all [She throws her arms hysterically

about his neck] Papa I don't want to marry I only want to stay with you and be happy as we have always been I hate the thought of being married I don't care for him I don't want to leave you [Trench and Cokane come in, but she can hear nothing but her own voice and does not notice them] Only send him away promise me that you will send him away and keep me here with you as we have always— [seeing Trench] Oh! [She hides her face on her father's breast]

TRENCH [nervously] I hope we are not intruding

SARTORIUS [formidably] Dr Trench my daughter has changed her mind

TRENCH [disconcerted] Am I to understand—

COKANE [striking in in his most vinegary manner] I think, Harry, under the circumstances, we have no alternative but to seek luncheon elsewhere

TRENCH But, Mr Sartorius, have you explained?

SARTORIUS [straight in Trench's face] I have explained, sir Good morning [Trench, outraged, advances a step Blanche sinks away from her father into a chair Sartorius stands his ground rigidly]

TRENCH [turning away indignantly] Come on, Cokane

COKANE Certainly, Harry, certainly [Trench goes out, very angry The parlormaid, with a tray jingling in her hands, passes outside] You have disappointed me, sir, very acutely Good morning [He follows Trench]

ACT III

The drawing-room in Sartorius's house in Bedford Square, London Winter evening fire burning, curtains drawn, and lamps lighted Sartorius and Blanche are sitting glumly near the fire The parlormaid, who has just brought in coffee, is placing it on a small table between them There is a large table in the middle of the room Looking from it towards the two windows, the pianoforte, a grand, is on the right, with a photographic portrait of Blanche on a miniature easel on a sort of bedspread which covers the top, shewing that the instrument is seldom, if ever, opened There are two doors one on the left, further forward than the fireplace, leading to the study, the other by the corner nearest the right hand window, leading to the lobby Blanche has her work basket at hand, and is knitting Sartorius, closer to the fire, has a newspaper

The parlormaid goes out

SARTORIUS Blanche, my love

BLANCHE Yes

SARTORIUS I had a long talk to the doctor today about our going abroad

BLANCHE [impatiently] I am quite well, and I will not go abroad I loathe the very thought of the Continent Why will you bother me so about my health?

SARTORIUS It was not about your health, Blanche, but about my own

BLANCHE [rising] Yours! [She goes anxiously to him] Oh, papa, theres nothing the matter with you, I hope?

SARTORIUS There will be there must be, Blanche, long before you begin to consider yourself an old woman

BLANCHE But theres nothing the matter now?

SARTORIUS Well, my dear, the doctor says I need change, travel, excitement—

BLANCHE Excitement! You need excitement! [She laughs joylessly, and sits down on the rug at his feet] How is it, papa, that you, who are so clever with everybody else, are not a bit clever with me? Do you think I cant see through your little plan to take me abroad? Since I will not be the invalid and allow you to be the nurse, you are to be the invalid and I am to be the nurse

SARTORIUS Well, Blanche, if you will have it that you are well and have nothing preying on your spirits, I must insist on being ill and have something preying on mine And indeed, my girl, there is no use in our going on as we have for the last four months You have not been happy, and I have been very far from comfortable [Blanche's face clouds she turns away from him, and sits dumb and brooding He waits in vain for some reply, then adds in a lower tone] Need you be so inflexible, Blanche?

BLANCHE I thought you admired inflexibility you have always prided yourself on it

SARTORIUS Nonsense, my dear, nonsense! I have had to give in often enough And I could shew you plenty of soft fellows who have done as well as I, and enjoyed themselves more, perhaps If it is only for the sake of inflexibility that you are standing out—

BLANCHE I am not standing out I dont know what you mean [She tries to rise and go away]

SARTORIUS [catching her arm and arresting her on her knees] Come, my child! you must not trifle with me as if I were a stranger You are fretting because—

BLANCHE [violently twisting herself free and speaking as she rises] If you say it, papa, I will kill myself It is not true If he were here on his knees tonight, I would walk out of the house sooner than endure it [She goes out excitedly]

Sartorius, greatly troubled, turns again to the fire with a heavy sigh

SARTORIUS [gazing gloomily into the glon] Now if I fight it out with her, no more comfort for months! I might as well live with my clerk or my servant And if I give in now, I shall have to give in always Well! I cant help it I have stuck to having my own way all my life, but there must be an end to that drudgery some day She is young let her have her turn at it

The parlormaid comes in, evidently excited

THE PARLORMAID Please, sir, Mr Lickcheese wants to see you very particular On important business, Your business, he told me to say SARTORIUS Mr Lickcheese! Do you mean Lickcheese who used to come here on my business?

THE PARLORMAID Yes, sir But indeed, sir, youd scarcely know him

SARTORIUS [frowning] Hm! Starving, I suppose Come to beg?

THE PARLORMAID [intensely repudiating the idea] O-o-o-h NO, sir Quite the gentleman, sir! Sealskin overcoat, sir! Come in a hansom, all shaved and clean! I'm sure he's come into a fortune, sir

SARTORIUS Hm! Shew him up

Lickcheese, who has been waiting at the door, instantly comes in The change in his appearance is dazzling He is in evening dress, with an overcoat lined throughout with furs presenting all the hues of the tiger His shirt is fastened at the breast with a single diamond stud His silk hat is of the glossiest black, a handsome gold watch-chain hangs like a garland on his filled-out waistcoat, he has shaved his whiskers and grown a moustache, the ends of which are waxed and pointed As Sartorius stares speechless at him, he stands, smiling, to be admired, intensely enjoying the effect he is producing The parlormaid, hardly less pleased with her own share in this coup-de-théâtre goes out beaming full of the news for the kitchen Lickcheese clinches the situation by a triumphant nod at Sartorius

SARTORIUS [bracing himself hostile] Well—

LICKCHEESE Quite well, Sartorius, thankee

SARTORIUS I was not asking after your health, sir, as you know, I think, as well as I do What is your business?

LICKCHEESE Business that I can take elsewhere if I meet with less civility than I please to put up with, Sartorius You and me is man and man now It was money that used to be my master, and not you dont think it Now that I'm independent in respect of money—

SARTORIUS [crossing determinedly to the door, and holding it open] You can take your independence out of my house, then I wont have it here

LICKCHEESE [indulgently] Come, Sartorius dont be stiff-necked I come here as a friend to put money in your pocket No use your lettin on to me that youre above money Eh?

SARTORIUS [hesitates, and at last shuts the door, saying guardedly] How much money?

LICKCHEESE [victorious, going to Blanche's chair and taking off his overcoat] Ah! there you speak like yourself, Sartorius Now suppose you ask me to sit down and make myself comfortable?

SARTORIUS [coming from the door] I have a mind to put you downstairs by the back of your neck, you infernal blackguard

LICKCHEESE [not a bit ruffled, hangs his overcoat on the back of Blanche's chair, pulling a cigar case out of one of the pockets as he does so] You and me is too much of a pair for me to take anything you say in bad part, Sartorius Ave a cigar?

SARTORIUS No smoking here this is my daughter's room However, sit down, sit down [They sit]

LICKCHEESE I' bin gittin on a little since I saw you last

SARTORIUS So I see

LICKCHEESE I owe it partly to you, you know Does that surprise you?

SARTORIUS It doesnt concern me

LICKCHEESE So you think, Sartorius, because it never did concern you how I got on, so long as I got you on by bringin in the rents But I picked up something for myself down at Robbins's Row

SARTORIUS, I always thought so, Have you come to make restitution?

LICKCHEESE You wouldnt take it if I offered it to you, Sartorius It wasnt monecy it was knowledge knowledge of the great public question of the Ousing of the Working Classes You know theres a Royal Commission on it, dont you?

SARTORIUS Oh, I see Youve been giving evidence

LICKCHEESE Giving evidence! Not me What good would that do me? Only my expenses, and that not on the professional scale, neither No I gev no evidence But I'll tell you what I did I kep it back, jast to oblige one or two people whose feelins would a' bin urt by seen their names in a bluebook as keepin a fever den Their Agent got so friendly with me over it that he put his name on a bill of mine to the tune of—well, no matter it gev me a start, and a start was all I ever wanted to get on my feet Ive got a copy of the first report of the Commission in the pocket of my overcoat [He rises and gets at his overcoat, from a pocket of which he takes a bluebook] I turned down the page to shew you I thought youd like to see it [He doubles the book back at the place indicated, and hands it to Sartorius]

SARTORIUS So blackmail is the game, eh? [He puts the book on the table without looking at it, and strikes it emphatically with his fist] I dont care that for my name being in blue-books My friends dont read them, and I'm neither a Cabinet Minister nor a candidate for Parhamment Theres nothing to be got out of me on that lay

LICKCHEESE [shocked] Blackmail! Oh, Mr Sartorius, do you think I would let out a word about your premises? Round on an old pal! no that aint Lickcheese's way Besides, they know all about you already Them stars that you and me quarrelled about, they was a whole arternoon examin in the clergyman that made such a fuss—you remember?—about the women that was urt on it He made the worst he could of it, in an ungentlemanly, unchristian spirit I wouldnt have that clergyman's disposition for worlds Oh no thats not what was in my thoughts

SARTORIUS Come, come, man! what was in your thoughts? Out with it

LICKCHEESE [with provoking deliberation, smiling and looking mysteriously at him] You aint spent a few hundreds in repairs since we parted, ave you? [Sartorius, losing patience, makes a threatening movement] Now dont fly out at me I know a landlord that owned as beastly a slum as you could find in London, down there by the Tower By my advice that man put half the houses into first-class repair, and let the other half to a new Company the North Thames Iced Mutton Depot Company, of which I hold a few shares promoters' shares And what was the end of it, do you think?

SARTORIUS Smash, I suppose

LICKCHEESE Smash! not a bit of it Compensation, Mr Sartorius, compensation Do you understand that?

SARTORIUS Compensation for what?

LICKCHEESE Why, the land was wanted for an extension of the Mint, and the Company had to be bought out, and the buildings compensated for Somebody has to know these things beforehand, you know, no matter how dark they're kept

SARTORIUS [interested, but cautious] Well?

LICKCHEESE Is that all you have to say to me, Mr Sartorius? "Well!" as if I was next door's dog! Suppose I'd got wind of a new street that would knock down Robbins's Row and turn Burke's Walk into a frontage worth thirty pound a foot! would you say no more to me than [mumicking] "Well"? [Sartorius hesitates, looking at him in great doubt Lickcheese rises and exhibits himself] Come! look at my get-up, Mr Sartorius Look at this watch-chain! Look at the corporation I've got on me! Do you think all that came from keeping my mouth shut? No it came from keeping my ears and eyes open

Blanche comes in, followed by the parlormaid, who has a silver tray on which she collects the coffee cups Sartorius, impatient at the interruption, rises and motions Lickcheese to the door of the study

SARTORIUS Sh! We must talk this over in the study There is a good fire there, and you can smoke Blanche an old friend of ours

LICKCHEESE And a kind one to me I hope I see you well, Miss Blanche BLANCHE Why, it's Mr Lickcheese! I hardly knew you

LICKCHEESE I find you a little changed yourself, miss

BLANCHE [hastily] Oh, I am the same as ever How are Mrs Lickcheese and the chil—

SARTORIUS [impatiently] We have business to transact, Blanche You can talk to Mr Lickcheese afterwards Come on

Sartorius and Lickcheese go into the study Blanche, surprised at her father's abruptness, looks after them for a moment Then, seeing Lickcheese's overcoat on her chair, she takes it up, amused, and looks at the fur

THE PARLORMAID Oh, we are fine, aint we Miss Blanche? I think Mr Lickcheese must have come into a legacy [Confidentially] I wonder what he can want with the master, Miss Blanche! He brought him this big book [She shews the bluebook to Blanche]

BLANCHE [her curiosity roused] Let me see [She takes the book and looks at it] There's something about papa in it [She sits down and begins to read]

THE PARLORMAID [folding the tea-table and putting it out of the way] He looks ever s'much younger, Miss Blanche, don't he? I couldn't help laughing when I saw him with his whiskers shaved off it do look so silly when you're not accustomed to it [No answer from Blanche] You havn't finished your coffee, miss I suppose I may take it away? [No answer] Oh, you are interested in Mr Lickcheese's book, miss

Blanche springs up The parlormaid looks at her face, and instantly hurries out of the room on tiptoe with her tray

BLANCHE So that was why he would not touch the money [She tries to tear the book across Finding this impossible she throws it violently into the fireplace It falls into the fender] Oh, if only a girl could have no father, no family, just as I have no mother! Clergyman! beast! "The worst slum landlord in London" "Slum landlord" Oh! [She covers her face with her hands, and sinks shuddering into the chair on which the overcoat lies The study door opens]

LICKCHEESE [in the study] You just wait five minutes I'll fetch him [Blanche snatches a piece of work from her basket, and sits erect and quiet, stitching at it Lickcheese comes back, speaking to Sartorius, who follows him] He lodges round the corner in Gower Street, and my private ansom's at the door By your leave, Miss Blanche [pulling gently at his overcoat]

BLANCHE [rising] I beg your pardon I hope I havn't crushed it

LICKCHEESE [gallantly, as he gets into the coat] You're welcome to crush it again now, Miss Blanche Don't say good evenin to me, miss I'm comin back presently me and a friend or two Ta ta, Sartorius I shant be long [He goes out]

Sartorius looks about for the bluebook

BLANCHE I thought we were done with Lickcheese

SARTORIUS Not quite yet, I think He left a book here for me to look over a large book in a blue paper cover. Has the girl put it away? [He sees it in the fender, looks at Blanche, and adds] Have you seen it?

BLANCHE No. Yes [Angrily] No. I have not seen it. What have I to do with it?

SARTORIUS picks up the book and dusts it, then sits down quietly to read. After a glance up and down the columns, he nods assentingly, as if he found there exactly what he expected.

SARTORIUS It's a curious thing, Blanche, that the Parliamentary gentlemen who write such books as these should be so ignorant of practical business. One would suppose, to read this, that we are the most grasping, grinding, heartless pair in the world, you and I.

BLANCHE Is it not true? About the state of the houses, I mean?

SARTORIUS [calmly] Oh, quite true.

BLANCHE Then it is not our fault?

SARTORIUS My dear, if we made the houses any better, the rents would have to be raised so much that the poor people would be unable to pay, and would be thrown homeless on the streets.

BLANCHE Well, turn them out and get in a respectable class of people. Why should we have the disgrace of harboring such wretches?

SARTORIUS [opening his eyes] That sounds a little hard on them, doesn't it, my child?

BLANCHE Oh, I hate the poor. At least I hate those dirty, drunken, disreputable people who live like pigs. If they must be provided for, let other people look after them. How can you expect any one to think well of us when such things are written about us in that infamous book?

SARTORIUS [coldly and a little mistfully] I see I have made a real lady of you, Blanche.

BLANCHE [defiantly] Well? Are you sorry for that?

SARTORIUS No, my dear, of course not. But do you know, Blanche, that my mother was a very poor woman, and that her poverty was not her fault?

BLANCHE I suppose not, but the people we want to mix with now don't know that. And it was not my fault, so I don't see why I should be made to suffer for it.

SARTORIUS [enraged] Who makes you suffer for it, miss? What would you be now but for what your grandmother did for me when she stood at her wash-tub for thirteen hours a day and thought herself rich when she made fifteen shillings a week?

BLANCHE [angrily] I suppose I should have been down on her level instead of being raised above it, as I am now. Would you like us to go and live in that place in the book for the sake of grandmamma? I hate the idea of such things. I don't want to know about them. I love you because you brought me up to something better [Half aside as she turns away from him] I should hate you if you had not.

SARTORIUS [giving in] Well, my child, I suppose it is natural for you to feel that way, after your bringing up. It is the ladylike view of the matter. So don't let us quarrel, my girl. You shall not be made to suffer any more. I have made up my mind to improve the property, and get in quite a new class of tenants. There! does that satisfy you? I am only waiting for the consent of the ground landlord, Lady Roxdale.

BLANCHE Lady Roxdale!

SARTORIUS Yes. But I shall expect the mortgagee to take his share of the risk.

BLANCHE The mortgagee! Do you mean— [She cannot finish the sentence. Sartorius does it for her.]

SARTORIUS Harry Trench. Yes. And remember, Blanche, if he consents to join me in the scheme, I shall have to be friends with him.

BLANCHE And to ask him to the house?

SARTORIUS Only on business. You need not meet him unless you like.

BLANCHE [overwhelmed] When is he coming?

SARTORIUS There is no time to be lost. Lickcheese has gone to ask him to come round.

BLANCHE [in dismay] Then he will be here in a few minutes! What shall I do?

SARTORIUS I advise you to receive him as if nothing had happened, and then go out and leave us to our business. You are not afraid to meet him?

BLANCHE. Afraid! No, most certainly not. But—

LICKCHEESE'S VOICE [without] Straight in front of you, doctor. You never bin here before, but I know the house better than my own.

BLANCHE. Here they are. Don't say I'm here, papa. [She rushes away into the study.]

Lickcheese comes in with Trench and Colare. Both are in evening dress. Colare shakes hands effusively with Sartorius. Trench, who is coarsened and sullen, and has evidently not been making the best of his disappointment, bows shortly and resentfully Lickcheese covers the general embarrassment by talking cheerfully until they are all seated round the large table Trench nearest the fireplace, Cokane nearest the piano, and the other two between them, with Lickcheese next Cokane]

LICKCHEESE Here we are, all friends round St Paul's You remember Mr Cokane? he does a little business for me now as a friend, and gives me a help with my correspondence sekkterry we call it I've no literary style, and thats the truth, so Mr Cokane kindly puts it into my letters and draft prospectuses and advertisements and the like Dont you, Cokane? Of course you do why shouldnt you? He's been helping me to persuade his old friend, Dr Trench, about the matter we were speaking of

COKANE [austerely] No, Mr Lickcheese, not trying to persuade him No this is a matter of principle with me I say it is your duty, Henry—your duty—to put those abominable buildings into proper and habitable repair As a man of science you owe it to the community to perfect the sanitary arrangements In questions of duty there is no room for persuasion, even from the oldest friend

SARTORIUS [to Trench] I certainly feel, as Mr Cokane puts it, that it is our duty one which I have perhaps too long neglected out of regard for the poorest class of tenants

LICKCHEESE Not a doubt of it, gents a dooty I can be as sharp as any man when it's a question of business, but dooty's another pan o' shoes

TRENCH Well, I dont see that it's any more my duty now than it was four months ago I look at it simply as a question of so much money

COKANE Shame, Harry, shame! Shame!

TRENCH Oh, shut up, you fool [Cokane springs up]

LICKCHEESE [catching his coat and holding him] Steady! steady! Mr Sekkterry Dr Trench is only joking

COKANE I insist on the withdrawal of that expression I have been called a fool

TRENCH [morosely] So you are a fool

COKANE Then you are a damned fool

TRENCH All right Now we've settled that [Cokane, with a snort, sits down] What I mean is this Dont lets have any nonsense about this job As I understand it, Robbins's Row is to be pulled down to make way for the new street into the Strand, and the straight tip now is to go for compensation

LICKCHEESE [chuckling] That'so, Dr Trench Thats it

TRENCH [continuing] Well, it appears that the dirtier a place is the more rent you get, and the decenter it is, the more compensation you get So we're to give up dirt and go in for decency

SARTORIUS I should not put it exactly in that way, but—

COKANE Quite right, Mr Sartorius, quite right The case could not have been stated in worse taste or with less tact

LICKCHEESE Sh-sh-sh-sh!

SARTORIUS I do not quite go with you there Mr Cokane Dr Trench puts the case frankly as a man of business I take the wider view of a public man We live in a progressive age, and humanitarian ideas are advancing and must be taken into account But my practical conclusion is the same as his I should hardly feel justified in making a large claim for compensation under existing circumstances

LICKCHEESE Of course not, and you wouldnt get it if you did You see, it's like this, Dr Trench Theres no doubt that the Vestries has legal powers to play old Harry with slum properties, and spoil the houseknacking game if they please Thrt didnt matter in the good old times, because the Vestries used to be us ourselves Nobody ever knew a word about the election, and we used to get ten of us into a room and elect one another, and do what we liked Well, that cock wont fight any longer, and, to put it short, the game is up for men in the position of you and Mr Sartorius My advice to you is, take the present chance of getting out of it Spend a little money on the block at the Cribbs Market end enough to make it look like a model dwelling, you know, and let the other block to me on fair terms for a depot of the North Thames Iceed Mutton Company Theyll be knocked down inside of two year to make room for the new north and south main thoroughfare, and youll be compensated to the tune of double the present valuation, with the cost of the improvements thrown in Leave things as they are, and you stand a good chance of being fined, or condemned, or pulled down before long

Now's your time

COKANE Hear, hear! Hear, hear! Hear, hear! Admirably put from the business point of view! I recognize the uselessness of putting the moral point of view to you, Trench, but even you must feel the cogency of Mr Lickcheese's business statement

TRENCH But why cant you act without me? What have I got to do with it? I'm only a mortgagee

SARTORIUS There is a certain risk in this compensation investment, Dr Trench The County Council may alter the line of the new street If that happens, the money spent in improving the houses will be thrown away simply thrown away Worse than thrown away, in fact, for the new buildings may stand unlet or half let for years But you will expect your seven per cent as usual

TRENCH A man must live

COKANE Je ne'n vois pas la nécessité

TRENCH Shut up, Billy, or else speak some language you understand No, Mr Sartorius I should be very glad to stand in with you if I could afford it, but I cant, so you may leave me out of it

LICKCHEESE Well, all I can say is that youre a very foolish young man

COKANE What did I tell you, Harry?

TRENCH I dont see that it's any business of yours, Mr Lickcheese

LICKCHEESE It's a free country every man has a right to his opinion

COKANE Hear, hear!

LICKCHEESE Come! wheres your feelins for them poor people, Dr Trench? Remember how it went to your heart when I first told you about them What! are you going to turn hard?

TRENCH No it wont do you cant get over me that way You proved to me before that there was no use in being sentimental over that slum shop of ours, and it's no good your turning round on the philanthropic tack now that you want me to put my capital into your speculation I've had my lesson, and I'm going to stick to my present income It's little enough for me as it is

SARTORIUS It really matters nothing to me, Dr Trench, how you decide I can easily raise the money elsewhere and pay you off Then, since you are resolved to run no risks, you can invest your ten thousand pounds in Consols and get two hundred and fifty pounds a year for it instead of seven hundred

Trench, completely outwitted, stares at them in consternation Cokane breaks the silence

COKANE This is what comes of being avacious, Harry Two thirds of your income gone at one blow And I must say it serves you right

TRENCH Thats all very fine, but I dont understand it If you can do this to me, why didnt you do it long ago?

SARTORIUS Because, as I should probably have had to borrow at the same rate, I should have saved nothing, whereas you would have lost over four hundred a year a very serious matter for you I had no desire to be unfriendly, and even now I should be glad to let the mortgage stand, were it not that the circumstances mentioned by Mr Lickcheese force my hand Besides, Dr Trench, I hoped for some time that our interests might be joined by closer ties even than those of friendship

LICKCHEESE [jumping up, relieved] There! Now the murder's out Excuse me, Dr Trench Excuse me, Mr Sartorius excuse my freedom Why not Dr Trench marry Miss Blanche, and settle the whole affair that way?

Sensation Lickcheese sits down triumphant

COKANE You forget, Mr Lickcheese, that the young lady, whose taste has to be considered, decisively objected to him

TRENCH Oh! Perhaps you think she was struck with you

COKANE I do not say so, Trench No man of any delicacy would suggest such a thing You have an untutored mind, Trench, an untutored mind

TRENCH Well, Cokane Ive told you my opinion of you already

COKANE [rising wildly] And I have told you my opinion of you I will repeat it if you wish I am ready to repeat it

LICKCHEESE Come, Mr Sekketerry you and me, as married men, is out of the unt as far as young ladies is concerned I know Miss Blanche she has her father's eye for business Explain this job to her, and she'll make it up with Dr Trench Why not have a bit of romance in business when it costs nothing? We all have our feelins we aint mere calculatin machines

SARTORIUS [revolted] Do you think, Lickcheese, that my daughter is to be made part of a money bargain between you and these gentlemen?

LICKCHEESE Oh come, Sartorius! dont talk as if you was the only father in the world I have a daughter too, and my feelins in that matter is just as fine as yours I propose nothing but what is for Miss Blanche's advantage and Dr Trench's

COKANE Lickcheese expresses himself roughly, Mr Sartorius, but his is a sterling nature, and what he says is to the point If Miss Sartorius can really bring herself to care for Harry, I am far from desiring to stand in the way of such an arrangement

TRENCH Why, what have you got to do with it?

LICKCHEESE Easy, Dr Trench, easy We want your opinion Are you still on for marrying Miss Blanche if she's agreeable?

TRENCH [shortly] I dont know that I am [Sartorius rises indignantly]

LICKCHEESE Easy one moment, Mr Sartorius [To Trench] Come now, Dr Trench! you say that you dont know that you are But do you know that you aint? thats what we want to know

TRENCH [sulkily] I wont have the relations between Miss Sartorius and myself made part of a bargain [He rises to leave the table]

LICKCHEESE [rising] Thats enough a gentleman could say no less [Insinuatingly] Now, would you mind me and Cokane and the guv'nor steppin into the study to arrange about the lease to the North Thames Iced Mutton Company?

TRENCH Oh, I dont mind I'm going home Theres nothing more to say

LICKCHEESE No dont go Only just a minute me and Cokane will be back in no time to see you home Youll wait for us, wont you?

TRENCH Oh well, if you wish, yes

LICKCHEESE [cheerily] Didnt I know you would!

SARTORIUS [at the study door, to Cokane] After you, sir

Cokane bows formally and goes into the study

LICKCHEESE [at the door, aside to Sartorius] You never ad such a managin man as me, Sartorius [He goes into the study chuckling, followed by Sartorius]

Trench, left alone, looks round carefully and listens a moment Then he goes on tiptoe to the piano and leans upon it with folded arms, gazing at Blanche's portrait Blanche herself appears presently at the study door When she sees how he is occupied, she closes it softly and steals o'er to him, watching him intently He rises from his leaning attitude, and takes the portrait from the easel, and is about to kiss it when, taking a second look round to reassure himself that nobody is watching him, he finds Blanche close upon him He drops the portrait, and stares at her without the least presence of mind

BLANCHE [shrenishly] Well? So you have come back here You have had the meanness to come into this house again [He flushes and retreats a step She follows him up remorselessly] What a poor spirited creature you must be! Why dont you go? [Red and rancing, he starts huffily to get his hat from the table, but when he turns to the door with it she deliberately stands in his way, so that he has to stop] I dont want you to stay [For a moment they stand face to face, quite close to one another, she provocative, taunting, half defying, half inviting him to advance, in a flush of undisguised animal excitement It suddenly flashes on him that all this ferocity is erotic that she is making love to him His eye lights up a cunning expression comes into the corners of his mouth with a heavy assumption of indifference he walks straight back to his chair, and plants himself in it with his arms folded She comes down the room after him] But I forgot you have found that there is some money to be made here Lickcheese told you You, who were so disinterested, so independent, that you could not accept anything from my father! [At the end of every sentence she nails to see what execution she has done] I suppose you will try to persuade me that you have come down here on a great philanthropic enterprise—to befriend the poor by having those houses rebuilt, eh? [Trench maintains his attitude and makes no sign] Yes when my father makes you do it And when Lickcheese has discovered some way of making it profitable Oh, I know papa, and I know you And for the sake of that, you come back here—into the house where you were refused—ordered out [Trench's face darkens her eyes gleam as she sees it] Ah! you remember that You know it's true you cant deny it [She sits down, and softens her tone a little as she affects to pity him] Well, let me tell you that you cut a poor figure, a very, very poor figure, Harry [At the word Harry he relaxes the fold of his arms, and a faint grin of anticipated victory appears on his face] And you, too, a gentleman! so highly connected! with such distinguished relations! so particular as to where your money comes from! I wonder at you I really wonder at you I should have thought that if your fine family gave you nothing else, it might at least have given you some sense of personal dignity. Perhaps you think you look dignified at present eh? [No reply] Well, I can assure you that you don't look most ridiculous—as foolish as a man could look—you don't know what to say, and you don't know what to do. But after all, I really don't see what any one could say in defence of such conduct. [He looks straight in front of him, and purses up his lips as if whistling. This annoys her, and she becomes affectedly polite.] I am afraid I am in your way, Dr Trench. [She rises.] I shall not intrude on you any longer. You seem so perfectly at home that I need make no apology for leaving you to yourself. [She makes a feint of going to the door, but he does not budge, and she returns and comes behind his chair.] Harry [He does not turn. She comes a step nearer.] Harry I want you to answer me a question. [Earnestly, stooping over him.] Look me in the face. [No reply.] Do you hear? [Seizing his cheeks and twisting his head round.] Look—me—in—the—face. [He shuts his eyes tight and grins. She suddenly kneels down beside him with her breast against his shoulder.] Harry what were you doing with my photograph just now, when you thought you were alone? [He opens his eyes. They are full of delight. She flings her arms round him, and crushes him in an ecstatic embrace as she adds, with furious tenderness.] How dare you touch anything belonging to me?

The study door opens and voices are heard.
TRENCH I hear some one coming.

She regains her chair with a bound, and pushes it back as far as possible. Cokane, Lackcheese, and Sartorius come from the study. Sartorius and Lackcheese come to Trench. Cokane crosses to Blanche in his most killing manner.

COKANE How do you do, Miss Sartorius? Nice weather for the return of l'enfant prodigue, eh?

BLANCHE Capital, Mr Cokane. So glad to see you. [She gives him her hand, which he kisses with gallantry.]

LICKCHEESE [on Trench's left, in a low voice.] Any noos for us, Dr Trench?

TRENCH [to Sartorius, on his right.] I'll stand in, compensation or no compensation. [He shakes Sartorius's hand.]

The parlormaid has just appeared at the door.

THE PARLORMAID Supper is ready, miss.

COKANE Allow me.

Exeunt omnes. Blanche on Cokane's arm, Lackcheese jocosely taking Sartorius on one arm, and Trench on the other.

THE END

II

BEING THE SECOND OF THREE UNPLEASANT PLAYS

ACT I

A lady and gentleman are making love to one another in the drawing room of a flat in Ashley Gardens in the Victoria district of London. It is past ten at night. The walls are hung with theatrical engravings and photographs. Kemble as Hamlet, Mrs Siddons as Queen Katharine pleading in court, Macready as Werner (after Machise), Sir Henry Irving as Richard III (after Long), Ellen Terry, Mrs Kendal, Ada Rehan, Sarah Bernhardt, Henry Arthur Jones, Sir Arthur Pinero, Sydney Grundy, and so on, but not Eleonora Duse nor any one connected with Ibsen. The room is not rectangular, one corner being cut off diagonally by the doorway, and the opposite one rounded by a turret window filled up with a stand of flowers surrounding a statuette of Shakespear. The fireplace is on the doorway side, with an armchair near it. A small round table, further from the door on the same side, with a chair beside it, has a yellow backed French novel lying open on it. The piano, a grand, is on the Shakespear side, open, with the keyboard at right angles to the wall. The piece of music on the desk is 'When Other Lips'. Incandescent lights, well shaded, are on the piano and mantelpiece. Near the piano is a sofa, on which the lady and gentleman are seated affectionately side by side, in one another's arms.

The lady, Grace Tranfield, is about 32, slight of build, delicate of feature, and sensitive in expression. She is just now given up to the emotion of the moment, but her well closed mouth, proudly set brows, firm chin, and elegant carriage shew plenty of determination and self-respect She is in evening dress

The gentleman, Leonard Charteris, a few years older, is unconventionally but smartly dressed in a velvet jacket and cashmere trousers His collar, dyed Wotan blue, is part of his shirt, and turns over a garnet colored scarf of Indian silk, secured by a turquoise ring He wears blue socks and leather sandals The arrangement of his tawny hair, and of his moustaches and short beard, is apparently left to Nature, but he has taken care that Nature shall do him the fullest justice His amative enthusiasm, at which he is himself laughing, and his clever, imaginative, humorous ways, contrast strongly with the sincere tenderness and dignified quietness of the woman

CHARTERIS [impulsively clasping Grace] My dearest love

GRACE [responding affectionately] My darling Are you happy?

CHARTERIS In Heaven

GRACE My own

CHARTERIS My heart's love [He sighs happily, and takes her hands in his, looking quaintly at her] That must positively be my last kiss, Grace, or I shall become downright silly Let us talk [He releases her and sits a little apart] Grace is this your first love affair?

GRACE Have you forgotten that I am a widow? Do you think I married Tranfield for money?

CHARTERIS How do I know? Besides, you might have married him not because you loved him, but because you didn't love anybody else When one is young, one marries out of mere curiosity, just to see what it's like

GRACE Well, since you ask me, I never was in love with Tranfield, though I only found that out when I fell in love with you But I used to like him for being in love with me It brought out all the good in him so much that I have wanted to be in love with someone ever since I hope, now that I am in love with you, you will like me for it just as I liked Tranfield

CHARTERIS My dear it is because I like you that I want to marry you I could love anybody—any pretty woman, that is

GRACE Do you really mean that, Leonard?

CHARTERIS Of course Why not?

GRACE [reflecting] Never mind Now tell me, is this your first love affair?

CHARTERIS [amazed at the simplicity of the question] No, bless my soul, no, nor my second, nor my third

GRACE But I mean your first serious one? CHARTERIS [with a certain hesitation] Yes [There is a pause She is not convinced He adds, with a very perceptible load on his conscience] It is the first in which I have been serious

GRACE [searchingly] I see The other parties were always serious

CHARTERIS Not always Heaven forbid!

GRACE How often?

CHARTERIS Well, once

GRACE Julia Claven?

CHARTERIS [recoiling] Who told you that? [She shakes her head mysteriously He turns away from her moodily and adds] You had much better not have asked

GRACE [gently] I'm sorry, dear [She puts out her hand and pulls softly at him to bring him near her again]

CHARTERIS [yielding mechanically to the pull, and allowing her hand to rest on his arm, but sitting squarely without the least attempt to return the caress] Do I feel harder to the touch than I did five minutes ago?

GRACE What nonsense!

CHARTERIS I feel as if my body had turned into the toughest hickory That is what comes of reminding me of Julia Claven [Brooding, with his chin on his right hand and his elbow on his knee] I have sat alone with her just as I am sitting with you—

GRACE [shrinking from him] Just!

CHARTERIS [sitting upright and facing her steadily] Just exactly She has put her hands in mine, and laid her cheek against mine, and listened to me saying all sorts of silly things [Grace, chilled to the soul, rises from the sofa and sits down on the piano stool, with her back to the keyboard] Ah, you don't want to hear any more of the story So much the better

GRACE [deeply hurt, but controlling herself] When did you break it off?

CHARTERIS [guiltily] Break it off?

GRACE [firmly] Yes break it off

CHARTERIS Well let me see When did I fall in love with you?

GRACE Did you break it off then?

CHARTERIS [making it plainer and plainer that it has not been broken off] It was clear then, of course, that it must be broken off

GRACE And did you break it off?

CHARTERIS Oh, yes I broke it off

GRACE But did she break it off?

CHARTERIS [rising] As a favor to me dearest, change the subject Come away from the piano I want you to sit here with me [He takes a step towards her]

GRACE No I also have grown hard to the touch much harder than hickory for the present Did she break it off?

CHARTERIS My dear, be reasonable It was fully explained to her that it was to be broken off

GRACE Did she accept the explanation?

CHARTERIS She did what a woman like Julia always does When I explained personally, she said it was not my better self that was speaking, and that she knew I still really loved her When I wrote it to her with brutal explicitness, she read the letter carefully and then sent it back to me with a note to say that she had not had the courage to open it, and that I ought to be ashamed of having written it [He comes beside Grace, and puts his left hand caressingly round her neck] You see, dearie, she wont look the situation in the face

GRACE [shaking off his hand and turning a little away on the stool] I am afraid, from the light way you speak of it, you did not sound the right chord

CHARTERIS My dear when you are doing what a woman calls breaking her heart, you may sound the very prettiest chords you can find on the piano, but to her ears it is just like this [He sits down on the bass end of the keyboard Grace puts her fingers in her ears He rises and moves away from the piano, saying] No, my dear Ive been kind, Ive been frank, Ive been everything that a goodnatured man can be, but she only takes it as the making up of a lovers' quarrel [Grace ninces] Frankness and kindness one is as bad as the other Especially frankness Ive tried both [He crosses to the fireplace, and stands facing the fire looking at the ornaments on the mantelpiece and narming his hands]

GRACE [her voice a little strained] What are you going to try now?

CHARTERIS [on the hearthrug, turning to face her] Action, my dear Marriage In that she must believe. She wont be convinced by anything short of it, because, you see, Ive had some tremendous philanderings before, and have gone back to her after them

GRACE And so that is why you want to marry me?

CHARTERIS I cannot deny it, my love Yes it is your mission to rescue me from Julia

GRACE [rising] Then if you please. I decline to be made use of for any such purpose I will not steal you from another woman [She walks up and down the room with ominous disquiet]

CHARTERIS Steal me! [He comes towards her] Grace I have a question to put to you as an advanced woman Mind! as an advanced woman Does Julia belong to me? Am I her owner—her master?

GRACE Certainly not No woman is the property of a man A woman belongs to herself and to nobody else

CHARTERIS Quite right Ibsen for ever! Thats exactly my opinion Now tell me, do I belong to Julia, or have I a right to belong to myself?

GRACE [puzzled] Of course you have, but—

CHARTERIS [interrupting her triumphantly] Then how can you steal me from Julia if I dont belong to her? [He catches her by the shoulders and holds her out at arms length in front of him] Eh, little philosopher? No, my dear if Ibsen sauce is good for the goose, it's good for the gander as well Besides [coaxing her] it was nothing but a philander with Julia Nothing else in the world, I assure you

GRACE [breaking away from him] So much the worse! I hate your philanderings they make me ashamed of you and of myself [She goes to the sofa and sits in the corner furthest from the piano, leaning gloomily on her elbow with her face averted]

CHARTERIS. Grace you utterly misunderstand the origin of my philanderings [He sits down beside her] Listen to me Am I a particularly handsome man?

GRACE [astonished at his conceit] No

CHARTERIS [triumphantly] You admit it. Am I a well dressed man?

GRACE Not particularly

CHARTERIS Of course not Have I a romantic mysterious charm about me? do I look as if a secret sorrow preyed on me? am I gallant to women?

GRACE Not in the least.

CHARTERIS Certainly not No one can accuse me of it Then whose fault is it that half the women I speak to fall in love with me? Not mine I hate it. it bores me to distraction At first it flattered me—delighted me—that was how Julia got me, because she was the first woman who had the pluck to make me a declaration But I soon had enough of it, and at no time have I taken the initiative and persecuted women with my advances as women have persecuted me Never Except, of course, in your case

GRACE. Oh, you need not make any exception I had a good deal of trouble to induce you to come and see us You were very coy

CHARTERIS [fondly, taking her hand] With you, dearest, the coyness was sheer coquetry I loved you from the first, and fled only that you might pursue But come! let us talk about something really interesting [He takes her in his arms] Do you love me better than anyone else in the world?

GRACE I don't think you like to be loved too much

CHARTERIS That depends on who the person is You [pressing her to his heart] cannot love me too much you cannot love me half enough I reproach you every day for your coldness, your—[A violent double knock without They start and listen, still in one another's arms, hardly daring to breathe] Who the deuce is calling at this hour?

GRACE I can't imagine [They listen guiltily The door of the flat is opened without They hastily get away from one another]

A WOMAN'S VOICE OUTSIDE Is Mr Charteris here?

CHARTERIS [springing up] Julia! The devil! [He stands at the end of the sofa with his eyes fixed on the door and his heart beating very unpleasantly]

GRACE [rising also] What can she want?

THE VOICE Never mind I will announce myself [A beautiful, dark, tragic looking woman in mantle and toque, appears at the door, raging] Oh, this is charming I have interrupted a pretty tête-à-tête Oh, you villain! [She comes straight at Grace Charteris runs across behind the sofa, and stops her She struggles furiously with him Grace preserves her self-possession, but retreats quietly to the piano Julia, finding Charteris too strong for her, gives up her attempt to get at Grace, but strikes him in the face as she frees herself]

CHARTERIS [shocked] Oh, Julia, Julia! This is too bad

JULIA Is it, indeed, too bad? What are you doing up here with that woman? You scoundrel! But now listen to me, Leonard you have driven me to desperation, and I don't care what I do, or who hears me I'll not bear it She shall not have my place with you—

CHARTERIS Sh-sh!

JULIA No, no I don't care I will expose her true character before everybody You belong to me you have no right to be here, and she knows it

CHARTERIS I think you had better let me take you home, Julia

JULIA I will not I am not going home I am going to stay here—here—until I have made you give her up

CHARTERIS My dear you must be reasonable You really cannot stay in Mrs Tranfield's house if she objects She can ring the bell and have us both put out

JULIA Let her do it then Let her ring the bell if she dares Let us see how this pure virtuous creature will face the scandal of what I will declare about her Let us see how you will face it I have nothing to lose Everybody knows how you have treated me you have boasted of your conquests, you poor pitiful vain creature I am the common talk of your acquaintances and hers Oh, I have calculated my advantage [she tears off her mantle] I am a most unhappy and injured woman, but I am not the fool you take me to be I am going to stay see? [She flings the mantle on the round table, puts her toque on it, and sits down] Now, Mrs Tranfield there's the bell [pointing to the button beside the fireplace] why don't you ring? [Grace, looking attentively at Charteris, does not move] Ha! ha! I thought so

CHARTERIS [quietly, without relaxing his watch on Julia] Mrs Tranfield I think you had better go into another room [Grace makes a movement towards the door, but stops and looks inquiringly at Charteris as Julia springs up to intercept her He advances a step to guard the way to the door]

JULIA She shall not She shall stay here She shall know what you are, and how you have been in love with me how it is not two days since you kissed me and told me that the future would be as happy as the past [Screaming at him] You did deny it if you dare

CHARTERIS [to Grace in a low voice] Go

GRACE [with nonchalant disgust, going] Get her away as soon as you can, Leonard

Julia, with a stifled cry of rage, rushes at Grace, who is crossing behind the sofa towards the door Charteris seizes Julia, and prevents her from getting past the sofa Grace goes out Charteris, holding Julia fast, looks round to the door to see whether Grace is safely out of the room

JULIA [suddenly ceasing to struggle, and speaking with the most pathetic dignity] Oh there is no need to be violent [He passes her across to the sofa, and leans against the end of it, panting and repping his forehead] That is worthy of you! to use brute force! to humiliate me before her! [She bursts into tears]

CHARTERIS [to himself, with melancholy conviction] This is going to be a cheerful evening Now patience! patience! patience! [He sits down on a chair near the round table]

JULIA [in anguish] Leonard have you no feeling for me?

CHARTERIS Only an intense desire to get you safely out of this

JULIA [fiercely] I am not going to stir

CHARTERIS [wearily] Well, well [He heaves a long sigh]

They sit silent for a while Julia striving, not to regain her self-control, but to maintain her rage at boiling point

JULIA [rising suddenly] I am going to speak to that woman

CHARTERIS [jumping up] No, no Hang it, Julia, don't let's have another wrestling match Remember I'm getting on for forty you're too young for me Sit down, or else let me take you home Suppose her father comes in!

JULIA I don't care It rests with you I am ready to go if she will give you up until then I stay Those are my terms you owe me that [She sits down determinedly]

Charteris looks at her for a moment, then, making up his mind, goes resolutely to the sofa, sits down near the end of it, she being at the opposite end, and speaks with biting emphasis.

CHARTERIS I owe you just exactly nothing

JULIA [reproachfully] Nothing! You can look me in the face and say that? Oh, Leonard!

CHARTERIS Let me remind you, Julia, that when first we became acquainted, the position you took up was that of a woman of advanced views

JULIA That should have made you respect me the more

CHARTERIS [placably] So it did, my dear But that is not the point As a woman of advanced views, you were determined to be free You regarded marriage as a degrading bargain, by which a woman sells herself to a man for the social status of a wife and the right to be supported and pensioned in old age out of his income That's the advanced view our view Besides, if you had married me, I might have turned out a drunkard, a criminal, an imbecile, a horror to you, and you couldn't have released yourself Too big a risk, you see That's the rational view our view Accordingly, you reserved the right to leave me at any time if you found our companionship incompatible with—what was the expression you used?—with your full development as a human being I think that was how you put the Ibsenist view our view So I had to be content with a charming philander, which taught me a great deal, and brought me some hours of exquisite happiness

JULIA Leonard you confess then, that you owe me something?

CHARTERIS [haughtily] No what I received, I paid Did you learn nothing from me? was there no delight for you in our friendship?

JULIA [vehemently and movingly, for she is now sincere] No You made me pay dearly for every moment of happiness You revenged yourself on me for the humiliation of being the slave of your passion for me I was never sure of you for a moment I trembled whenever a letter came from you, lest it should contain some stab for me I dreaded your visits almost as much as I longed for them I was your plaything, not your companion [She rises, exclaiming] Oh, there was such suffering in my happiness that I hardly knew joy from pain [She sinks on the piano stool, and adds, as she buries her face in her hands and turns away from him] Better for me if I had never met you!

CHARTERIS [rising indignantly] You ungenerous wretch! Is this your gratitude for the way I have just been flattering you? What have I not endured from you? endured with angelic patience? Did I not find out, before our friendship was a fortnight old, that all your advanced views were merely a fashion picked up and followed like any other fashion, without understanding or meaning a word of them? Did you not, in spite of your care for your own liberty, set up claims on me compared to which the claims of the most jealous wife would have been trifles? Have I a single woman friend whom you have not abused as old, ugly, vicious—

JULIA [quickly looking up] So they are

CHARTERIS Well, then, I'll come to grievances that even you can understand I accuse you of habitual and intolerable jealousy and ill temper, of insulting me on imaginary provocation, of positively beating me, of stealing letters of mine—

JULIA Yes, nice letters!

CHARTERIS —of breaking your solemn promises not to do it again, of spending hours—aye, days! piecing together the contents of my waste paper basket in your search for more letters, and then representing yourself as an ill used saint and martyr wantonly betrayed and deserted by a selfish monster of a man

JULIA [rising] I was justified in reading your letters Our perfect confidence in one another gave me the right to do it

CHARTERIS Thank you Then I hasten to break off a confidence which gives such rights [He sits down sulkily on the sofa]

JULIA [bending over him threateningly] You have no right to break it off

CHARTERIS I have You refused to marry me because—

JULIA I did not You never asked me If we were married, you would never dare treat me as you are doing now

CHARTERIS [laborously going back to his argument] It was understood between us as people of advanced views that we were not to marry, because, as the law stands, I might have become a drunkard, a—

JULIA —a criminal, an imbecile or a horror You said that before [She sits down beside him with a fling]

CHARTERIS [politely] I beg your pardon, my dear I know I have a habit of repeating myself The point is that you reserved your freedom to give me up when you pleased

JULIA Well, what of that? I do not please to give you up, and I will not You have not become a drunkard or a criminal

CHARTERIS You don't see the point yet, Julia You seem to forget that in reserving your freedom to leave me in case I should turn out badly, you also reserved my freedom to leave you in case you should turn out badly

JULIA Very ingenious And pray, have I become a drunkard, or a criminal, or an imbecile?

CHARTERIS You have become what is infinitely worse than all three together a jealous termagant

JULIA [shaking her head bitterly] Yes abuse me call me names

CHARTERIS I now assert the right I reserved the right of breaking with you when I please Advanced views, Julia, involve advanced duties you cannot be an advanced woman when you want to bring a man to your feet; and a conventional woman when you want to hold him there against his will Advanced people form charming friendships conventional people marry Marriage suits a good many people, and its first duty is fidelity Friendship suits some people, and its first duty is unhesitating uncomplaining acceptance of a notice of change of feeling from either side You chose friendship instead of marriage Now do your duty, and accept your notice

JULIA Never We are engaged in the eye of —the eye of—

CHARTERIS Yes, Julia? Cant you get it out? In the eye of something that advanced women dont believe in, eh?

JULIA [throwing herself at his feet] Oh, Leonard, dont be cruel I'm too miserable to argue—to think I only know I love you You reproach me with not wanting to marry you I would have married you at any time after I came to love you, if you had asked me I will marry you now if you will

CHARTERIS I wont, my dear Thats flat We're intellectually incompatible

JULIA But why? We could be so happy You love me I know you love me I feel it You say "My dear" to me you have said it several times this evening I know I have been wicked, odious, bad I say nothing in defence of myself But dont be hard on me I was distracted by the thought of losing you I cant face life without you, Leonard I was happy when I met you I had never loved any one and if you had only let me alone, I could have gone on contentedly by myself But I cant now I must have you with me Dont cast me off without a thought of all I have at stake I could be a friend to you if you would only let me, if you would only tell me your plans, give me a share in your work, treat me as something more than the amusement of an idle hour Oh, Leonard, Leonard, you've never given me a chance indeed you havnt I'll take pains, I'll read, I'll try to think, I'll conquer my jealousy, I'll— [she breaks down, rocking her head desperately on his knees and writhing] Oh, I'm mad I'm mad you'll kill me if you desert me

CHARTERIS [petting her] My dear love dont cry dont go on in this way You know I cant help it

JULIA [sobbing as he rises and tenderly lifts her with him] Oh, you can, you can One word from you will make us happy for ever

CHARTERIS [diplomatically] Come, my dear we really must go We cant stay until Cutlbertson comes [He releases her gently, and takes her mantle from the table] Here is your mantle put it on and be good You have given me a terrible evening you must have some consideration for me

JULIA [dangerous again] Then I am to be cast off?

CHARTERIS [coaxingly] You are to put on your bonnet, dearest [He puts the mantle on her shoulders]

JULIA [with a bitter half laugh, half sob] Well, I suppose I must do what I am told [She goes to the table, and looks for her toque She sees the yellow backed French novel] Ah, look at that [holding it out to him]' Look at what the creature reads! filthy, vile French stuff that no decent woman would touch And you—you have been reading it with her

CHARTERIS You recommended that book to me yourself

JULIA Faugh! [She dashes it on the floor]

CHARTERIS [running anxiously to the book] Dont damage property, Julia [He picks it up and dusts it] Making scenes is an affair of sentiment damaging property is serious [He replaces it on the table] And now do pray come along

JULIA [implacably] You can go there is nothing to prevent you I will not stir [She sits down stubbornly on the sofa]

CHARTERIS [losing patience] Oh come! I am not going to begin all this over again There are limits even to my forbearance Come on

JULIA I will not, I tell you

CHARTERIS Then goodnight [He makes resolutely for the door With a rush, she gets there before him and bars his way] I thought you wanted me to go

JULIA [at the door] You shall not leave me here alone

CHARTERIS Then come with me

JULIA Not until you have sworn to me to give up that woman

CHARTERIS My dear I will swear anything if youll only come away and put an end to this

JULIA [perplexed, doubting him] You will swear?

CHARTERIS Solemnly Propose the oath I have been on the point of swearing for the last half hour

JULIA [despairingly] You are only making fun of me I want no oaths I want your promise your sacred word of honor

CHARTERIS Certainly anything you demand, on condition that you come away immediately On my sacred word of honor as a gentleman—as an Englishman—as anything you like—I will never see her again never speak to her, never think of her Now come

JULIA But are you in earnest? Will you keep your word?

CHARTERIS [smiling subtly] Now you are getting unreasonable Do come along without any more nonsense At any rate, I am going I am not strong enough to carry you home, but I am strong enough to make my way through that door in spite of you You will then have a new grievance against me for my brutal violence [He takes a step towards the door]

JULIA [solemnly] If you do, I swear I will throw myself from that window, Leonard, as you pass out

CHARTERIS [unimpressed] That window is at the back of the building I shall pass out at the front, so you will not hurt me Goodnight [He approaches the door]

JULIA Leonard have you no pity?

CHARTERIS Not the least When you condescend to these antics you force me to despise you How can a woman who behaves like a spoiled child and talks like a sentimental novel have the audacity to dream of being a companion for a man of any sort of sense or character? [She gives an inarticulate cry, and throws herself sobbing on his breast] Come! dont cry, my dear Julia you dont look half so beautiful as when youre happy, and it makes me all damp Come along

Julia [affectionately] I'll come, dear, if you wish it Give me one kiss

CHARTERIS [exasperated] This is too much No I'm dashed if I will Here let me go, Julia [She clings to him] Will you come without another word if I give you a kiss?

JULIA I will do anything you wish, darling

CHARTERIS Well, here [He takes her in his arms and gives her an unceremonious kiss] Now remember your promise Come along

JULIA That was not a nice kiss, dearest I want one of our old real kisses

CHARTERIS [furious] Oh, go to the deuce [He disengages himself impulsively, and she, as if he had flung her down, falls pathetically with a stifled moan With an angry look at her, he strides out and slams the door She raises herself on one hand, listening to his retreating footsteps They stop Her face lights up with eager, triumphant cunning The steps return] hastily She throws herself down again as before Charteris reappears, in the utmost dismay, exclaiming] Julia we're done Cuthbertson's coming upstairs with your father [she sits up quickly] Do you hear? the two fathers!

JULIA [sitting on the floor] Impossible They don't know one another

CHARTERIS [desperately] I tell you they're coming up together like twins What on earth are we to do?

JULIA [scrambling up with the help of his hand] Quick the lift we can go down in that [She rushes to the table for her toque]

CHARTERIS No the man's gone home, and the lift's locked

JULIA [putting on her toque at express speed] Let's go up to the next floor

CHARTERIS There's no next floor We're at the top of the house No, no you must invent some thumping lie I can't think of one you can, Julia Exercise all your genius I'll back you up

JULIA But—

CHARTERIS Sh-sh! Here they are Sit down and look at home [Julia tears off her toque and mantle, throws them on the table, and darts to the piano, at which she seats herself]

JULIA Come and sing

She plays the symphony to When Other Lips Charteris stands at the piano, as if about to sing Two elderly gentlemen enter Julia stops playing

The elder of the two newcomers, Colonel Daniel Craven, affects the bluff simple veteran, and carries it off pleasantly and well, having a fine upright figure, and being, in fact, a good-naturedly impulsive credulous person who, after an entirely thoughtless career as an officer and a gentleman, is now being startled into some sort of self-education by the surprising proceedings of his children

His companion, Mr Joseph Cuthbertson, Grace's father, has none of the Colonel's boyishness He is a man of fervent idealistic sentiment, so frequently outraged by the facts of life that he has acquired an habitually indignant manner, which unexpectedly becomes enthusiastic or affectionate when he speaks

The two men differ greatly in expression The Colonel's face is lined with weather, with age, with eating and drinking, and with the cumulative effect of many petty vexations, but not with thought he is still fresh, still full of expectations of pleasure and novelty Cuthbertson has the lines of sedentary London brain work, with its chronic fatigue and longing for rest and recreative emotion, and its disillusioned indifference to adventure and enjoyment, except as a means of recuperation His vigilant, irascible eye, piled-up hair, and the honorable seriousness with which he takes himself, give him an air of considerable consequence

They are both in evening dress Cuthbertson has not taken off his fur-collared overcoat

CUTHBERTSON [with a hospitable show of delight at finding visitors] Don't stop, Miss Craven Go on, Charteris

He comes behind the sofa, and hangs his overcoat on it, after taking an opera glass and a theatre program from the pockets, and putting them down on the piano Craven meanwhile goes to the fireplace, and plants himself on the hearth-rug

CHARTERIS No, thank you Miss Craven has just been taking me through an old song, and I've had enough of it [He takes the song off the piano desk and lays it aside, then closes the lid over the keyboard]

JULIA [passing between the sofa and piano to shake hands with Cuthbertson] Why, you've brought Daddy! What a 'surprise! [Looking across to Craven] So glad you've come, Dad [She takes a chair near the window, and sits there]

CUTHBERTSON Craven let me introduce you to Mr Leonard Charteris, the famous Ibsenist philosopher

Craven Oh, we know one another already Charteris is quite at home in our house, Jo CUTHBERTSON I beg both your pardons He's quite at home here too [Charteris sits down on the piano stool] By the bye, where's Grace?

JULIA AND CHARTERIS Er— [They stop and look at one another]

JULIA [politely] I beg your pardon, Mr Charteris I interrupted you

CHARTERIS Not at all, Miss Craven [an awkward pause]

CUTHBERTSON [to help them out] You were going to tell us about Grace, Charteris

CHARTERIS I was only going to say that I didn't know that you and Craven were acquainted

Craven Why, I didn't know it until tonight It's a most extraordinary thing We met by chance at the theatre, and he turns out to be my oldest friend

CUTHBERTSON [energetically] Yes, Craven, and do you see how this proves what I was saying to you about the break-up of family life? Here are all our young people bosom friends, inseparables, and yet they never said a word of it to us. We two, who knew each other before they were born, might never have met again if you hadn't popped into the stall next mine to-might by pure chance. Come sit down [bustling over to him affectionately, and pushing him into the armchair above the fire] there's your place, by my fireside, whenever you choose to fill it [He posts himself at the end of the sofa, leaning against it and admiring Craven]. Just imagine you being Dan Craven!

CRAVEN Just imagine you being Jo Cuthbertson, though! That's a far more extraordinary coincidence, because I'd got it into my head that your name was Tranfield.

CUTHBERTSON Oh, that's my daughter's name. She's a widow, you know. How uncommonly well you look, Dan! The years haven't hurt you much.

CRAVEN [suddenly becoming unnaturally gloomy] I look well. I even feel well. But my days are numbered.

CUTHBERTSON [alarmed] Oh, don't say that, my dear fellow. I hope not.

JULIA [with anguish in her voice] Daddy! [Cuthbertson looks inquiringly round at her].

CRAVEN There, there, my dear. I was wrong to talk of it. It's a sad subject. But it's better that Cuthbertson should know. We used to be very close friends, and are so still, I hope [Cuthbertson goes to Craven and presses his hand silently, then returns to the sofa and sits down, pulling out his handkerchief, and displaying some emotion].

CHARTERIS [a little impatiently] The fact is, Cuthbertson, Craven's a devout believer in the department of witchcraft called medical science. He's celebrated in all the medical schools as an example of the newest sort of liver complaint. The doctors say he can't last another year, and he has fully made up his mind not to survive next Easter, just to oblige them.

CRAVEN [with military affectation] It's very kind of you to try to keep up my spirits by making light of it, Charteris. But I shall be ready when my time comes. I'm a soldier [A sob from Julia]. Don't cry, Julia.

CUTHBERTSON [hushily] I hope you may long be spared, Dan.

CRAVEN To oblige me, Jo, change the subject [He gets up, and again posts himself on the hearthrug with his back to the fire].

CHARTERIS Persuade him to join our club, Cuthbertson. He mopes.

JULIA It's no use. Sylvia and I are always at him to join, but he won't.

CRAVEN My child. I have my own club.

CHARTERIS [contemptuously] Yes, the Junior Army and Navy! Do you call that a club? Why, they don't let a woman cross the doorstep!

CRAVEN [a little ruffled] Clubs are a matter of taste, Charteris. You like a cock-and-hen club. I don't. It's bad enough to have Julia and her sister—a girl under twenty!—spending half their time at such a place. Besides, now're a l-l-y, such a name for a club! The Ibsen club! I should be laughed out of London. The Ibsen club! Come, Cuthbertson! back me up. I'm sure you agree with me.

CHARTERIS Cuthbertson's a member.

CRAVEN [amazed] No! Why, he's been talking to me all the evening about the way in which everything is going to the dogs through advanced ideas in the younger generation.

CHARTERIS Of course. He's been studying it in the club. He's always there.

CUTHBERTSON [warmly] Not always. Don't exaggerate, Charteris. You know very well that though I joined the club on Grace's account, thinking that her father's presence there would be a protection and a—a sort of sanction, as it were, I never approved of it.

CRAVEN [tactlessly harping on Cuthbertson's inconsistency] Well, you know, this is unexpected now. It's really very unexpected. I should never have thought it from hearing you talk, Jo. Why, you said the whole modern movement was abhorrent to you because your life had been passed in witnessing scenes of suffering nobly endured and sacrifice willingly rendered by womanly women and manly men and deuce knows what else. Is it at the Ibsen club that you see all this manliness and womanliness?

CHARTERIS Certainly not the rules of the club forbid anything of the sort. Every candidate for membership must be nominated by a man and a woman, who both guarantee that the candidate, if female, is not womanly, and if male, not manly.

CRAVEN [chuckling cunningly as he stoops to press his heated trousers against his legs, which are chilly] Won't do, Charteris. Can't take me in with so thin a story as that.

CUTHBERTSON [vehemently] It's true. It's monstrous, but it's true.

THE PHILANDERER

CRAVEN [with rising indignation, as he begins to draw the inevitable inferences] Do you mean to say that somebody had the audacity to guarantee that my Julia is not a womanly woman?

CHARTERIS [darkly] It sounds incredible, but a man was found ready to take that inconceivable he on his conscience

JULIA [firing up] If he has nothing worse than that on his conscience, he may sleep pretty well. In what way am I more womanly than any of the rest of them, I should like to know? They are always saying things like that behind my back. I hear of them from Sylvia. Only the other day a member of the committee said I ought never to have been elected—that you [to Charteris] had smuggled me in. I should like to see her say it to my face that's all.

CRAVEN But, my precious, I most sincerely hope she was right. She paid you the highest compliment. Why, the place must be a den of infamy.

CUTHBERTSON [emphatically] So it is, Craven, so it is.

CHARTERIS Exactly. That's what keeps it so select: nobody but people whose reputations are above suspicion dare belong to it. If we once got a good name, we should become a mere whitewashing shop for all the shady characters in London. Better join us, Craven. Let me put you up.

CRAVEN What! Join a club where there's some scoundrel who guaranteed my daughter to be an unwomanly woman? If I weren't an invalid, I'd kick him.

CHARTERIS Oh don't say that. It was I, Craven [reproachfully]. You! Now upon my soul, Charteris, this is very vexing. Now how could you bring yourself to do such a thing?

CHARTERIS She made me. Why, I had to guarantee Cuthbertson as unmanly, and he's the leading representative of manly sentiment in London.

CRAVEN That didn't do Jo any harm, but it took away my Julia's character.

JULIA [outraged] Daddy!

CHARTERIS Not at the Ibsen club quite the contrary. After all, what can we do? You know what breaks up most clubs for men and women. There's a quarrel—a scandal—cherchez la femme—always a woman at the bottom of it. Well, we knew this when we founded the club, but we noticed that the woman at the bottom of it was always a womanly woman. The unwomanly women who work for their living, and know how to take care of themselves, never give any trouble. So we simply said we wouldn't have any womanly women, and when one gets smuggled in she has to take care not to behave in a womanly way. We get on all right [He rises]. Come to lunch with me there tomorrow and see the place.

CUTHBERTSON [rising] No, he's engaged to me. But you can join us.

CHARTERIS What hour?

CUTHBERTSON Any time after twelve [To Craven]. It's at 90 Cork Street, at the other end of the Burlington Arcade.

CRAVEN [making a note on his cuff] 90, you say. After twelve [Suddenly relapsing into gloom]. By the bye, don't order anything special for me. I'm not allowed wine only Apollinaris. No meat either only a scrap of fish occasionally. I'm to have a short life, but not a merry one [Sighing]. Well, well [Bracing himself up]. Now, Julia, it's time for us to be off [Julia rises].

CUTHBERTSON But where on earth is Grace? I must go and look for her [He turns to the door].

JULIA [stopping him] Oh pray don't disturb her, Mr Cuthbertson. She's so tired.

CUTHBERTSON But just for a moment, to say goodnight [Julia and Charteris look at one another in dismay]. Cuthbertson looks quickly at them, perceiving that something is wrong.

CHARTERIS We must make a clean breast of it, I see.

CUTHBERTSON Of what?

CHARTERIS The truth is, Cuthbertson, Mrs Tranfield, who is, as you know, the most thoughtful of women, took it into her head that I—well, that I particularly wanted to speak to Miss Craven alone. So she said she was tired, and went to bed.

CRAVEN [scandalized] Tut! tut!

CUTHBERTSON Oh! is that it? Then it's all right she never goes to bed as early as this. I'll fetch her in a moment [He goes out confidently, leaving Charteris aghast].

JULIA Now you've done it [She rushes to the round table, and snatches up her mantle and toque]. I'm off [She makes for the door].

CRAVEN [horrified] What are you doing, Julia? You can't go until you've said good-night to Mrs Tranfield. It'd be horribly rude.

JULIA You can stay if you like, Daddy. I cant I'll wait for you in the hall [She hurries out]

Craven [following her] But what on earth am I to say? [She disappears, shutting the door behind her in his face He turns to Charteris, grumbling] Now really you know, Charteris, this is devilish awkward upon my life it is That was a most indelicate thing of you to say plump out before us all that about you and Julia

Charteris I'll explain it all tomorrow Just at present we'd really better follow Julia's example and bolt [He starts for the door]

Craven [intercepting him] Stop! dont leave me like this I shall look like a fool Now I shall really take it in bad part if you run away, Charteris

Charteris All right I'll stay [He lifts himself on to the shoulder of the grand piano and sits there swinging his legs and contemplating Craven resignedly]

Craven [pacing up and down] I'm excessively vexed about Julia's conduct I am indeed She cant bear to be crossed in the slightest thing, poor child I'll have to apologize for her, you know her going away is a downright slap in the face for these people here Cuthbertson may be offended already for all I know

Charteris Oh never mind about him Mrs Tranfield bosses this establishment

Craven [cunningly] Ah, thats it, is it? He's just the sort of fellow that would have no control over his daughter [He goes back to his former place on the hearthrug with his back to the fire] By the bye, what the dickens did he mean by all that about passing his life amid—what was it?—"scenes of suffering nobly endured and sacrifice willingly rendered by womanly women and manly men" and a lot more of the same sort? I suppose he's something in a hospital

Charteris Hospital! Nonsense! he's a dramatic critic. Didnt you hear me say he was the leading representative of manly sentiment in London?

Craven You dont say so! Now really, who'd have thought it! How jolly it must be to be able to go to the theatre for nothing! I must ask him to get me a few tickets occasionally But isnt it ridiculous for a man to talk like that? I'm hanged if he dont take what he sees on the stage quite seriously

Charteris Of course thats why he's a good critic Besides, if you take people seriously off the stage, why shouldnt you take them seriously on it where theyre undersome sort of decent restraint? [He jumps down from the piano and goes to the window]

Cuthbertson comes back

Cuthbertson [to Craven, rather sheepishly] The fact is, Grace has gone to bed I must apologize to you and Miss—[He turns to Julia's seat, and stops on seeing it vacant]

Craven [embarrassed] It is I who have to apologize for Julia, Jo She—

Charteris [interrupting] She said she was quite sure that if we didnt go, youd persuade Mrs Tranfield to get up to say goodnight for the sake of politeness, so she went straight off

Cuthbertson Very kind of her indeed I'm really ashamed—

Craven Dont mention it Jo dont mention it She's waiting for me below [Going] Goodnight Goodnight, Charteris

Charteris Goodnight

Cuthbertson [seeing Craven out] Goodnight. Say goodnight and thanks to Miss Craven for me Tomorrow any time after twelve, remember [They go out]

Charteris, with a long sigh, crosses to the fireplace, thoroughly tired out

Craven [outside] All right

Cuthbertson [outside] Take care of the stairs theyre rather steep Goodnight [The outside door shuts]

Cuthbertson returns Instead of entering, he stands impressively in the doorway with one hand in the breast of his waistcoat, eyeing Charteris sternly

Charteris Whats the matter?

Cuthbertson [sternly] Charteris what has been going on here? I insist on knowing Grace has not gone to bed I have seen and spoken with her What is it all about?

Charteris Ask your theatrical experience, Cuthbertson A man, of course

Cuthbertson [coming forward and confronting him] Dont play the fool with me, Charteris I'm too old a hand to be amused by it I ask you, seriously, what is the matter?

Charteris I tell you seriously, I'm the matter Julia wants to marry me I want to marry Grace I came here tonight to sweetheart Grace Enter Julia Alarums and excursions Exit Grace Enter you and Craven Subterfuges and excuses Exit Craven and Julia And here we are Thats the whole story Sleep over it. Goodnight [He leaves]

CUTHBERTSON [staring after him] Well I'll be—

ACT II

Next day at noon, in the library of the Ibsen club. A long room, with glass doors half-way down on both sides, leading respectively to the dining room corridor and the main staircase. At the end, in the middle, is the fireplace, surmounted by a handsome mantelpiece, with a bust of Ibsen, and decorative inscriptions of the titles of his plays. There are circular recesses at each side of the fireplace, with divan seats running round them, the space above the divans lined with books. A long settee faces the fire. Along the back of the settee, and touching it, is a green table, littered with journals. Ibsen, looking down the room, has the dining room door on his left, and further on, nearly in the middle of the library a revolving bookcase, with an easy chair close to it. On his right, between the door and the recess, is a light library step-ladder. Further on, past the door an easy chair, and a smaller one between it and the middle of the room. Placards inscribed SILENCE are conspicuously exhibited here and there.

Cuthbertson is seated in the easy chair at the revolving book stand, reading The Daily Graphic. Dr Paramore is on the divan in the recess on Ibsen's right, reading The British Medical Journal. He is young as age is counted in the professions, barely forty. His hair is nearing bald on his forehead, and his dark arched eyebrows, coming rather close together, give him a conscientiously sinister appearance. He wears the frock coat of the fashionable physician, and cultivates the professional bed-side manner with scrupulous conventionality. Not at all a happy or frank man, but not consciously unhappy nor intentionally insincere, and highly self-satisfied intellectually.

Sylvia Craven is sitting in the middle of the settee before the fire, reading a volume of Ibsen, only the back of her head being visible from the middle of the room. She is a pretty girl of eighteen, small and trim, wearing a mountaineering suit of Norfolk jacket and breeches with neat town stockings and shoes. A detachable cloth skirt lies ready to her hand across the end of the settee.

salver with a card on it] Dr Par—

PARAMORE [sharply, sitting up] Here, boy [The boy presents the salver. Paramore takes the card and looks at it.] All right. I'll come down to him [The boy goes. Paramore rises, and comes from the recess, throwing his paper on the table.] Good morning, Mr Cuthbertson [stopping to pull out his cuffs, and shake his coat straight.] Mrs Tranfield quite well, I hope?

SYLVIA [turning her head indignantly] Sh—sh—sh!

Paramore turns, surprised. Cuthbertson rises energetically and looks across the bookstand to see who is the author of this impertinence.

PARAMORE [to Sylvia, stiffly] I beg your pardon, Miss Craven. I did not mean to disturb you.

SYLVIA [flustered and self-assertive] You may talk as much as you like if you will have the common consideration to ask first whether the other people object. What I protest against is your assumption that my presence doesn't matter because I'm only a female member. That's all. Now go on, pray. You don't disturb me in the least. [She turns to the fire, and again buries herself in Ibsen.]

CUTHBERTSON [with emphatic dignity] No gentleman would have dreamt of objecting to our exchanging a few words, madam. [She takes no notice. He resumes angrily.] As a matter of fact I was about to say to Dr Paramore that if he would care to bring his visitor up here, I should not object. The impudence! [He dashes his paper down on the chair.]

PARAMORE Oh, many thanks, but it's only an instrument maker.

CUTHBERTSON Any new medical discoveries, doctor?

PARAMORE Well, since you ask me, yes, perhaps a most important one. I have discovered something that has hitherto been overlooked: a minute duct in the liver of the guinea pig. Miss Craven will forgive my mentioning it when I say that it may throw an important light on her father's case. The first thing of course, is to find out what the duct is there for.

CUTHBERTSON [reverently, feeling that he is in the presence of Science] Indeed? How will you do that?

PARAMORE Oh, easily enough, by simply cutting the duct, and seeing what will happen to the guinea pig. [Sylvia rises, horrified.] I shall require a knife specially made to get at it. The man who is waiting for me down—stairs has brought me a few handles to try before fitting it and sending it to the laboratory I am afraid it would not do to bring such weapons up here

SYLVIA If you attempt such a thing, Dr Paramore, I will complain to the committee. A majority of the members are anti-vivisectionists. You ought to be ashamed of yourself. [She snatches up the detachable skirt, and begins buttoning it on as she flounces out at the staircase door]

PARAMORE [with patient contempt] That's the sort of thing we scientific men have to put up with nowadays, Mr Cuthbertson. Ignorance, superstition, sentimentality, they are all one. A guinea pig's convenience is set above the health and lives of the entire human race.

CUTHBERTSON [vehemently] It's not ignorance nor superstition, Paramore. It's sheer downright Ibsenism. That's what it is. I've been wanting to sit comfortably at that fire the whole morning, but I've never had a chance with that girl there. I couldn't go and plump myself down on a seat beside her. Goodness knows what she'd think I wanted! That's one of the delights of having women in the club when they come in here they all want to sit at the fire and adore that bust. I sometimes feel that I should like to take the poker, and fetch it a wipe across the nose. Ugh!

PARAMORE I must say I prefer the elder Miss Craven to her sister.

CUTHBERTSON [his eye lighting up] Ah, Julia! I believe you. A splendid fine creature every inch a woman. No Ibsenism about her!

PARAMORE I quite agree with you there, Mr Cuthbertson. Er—by the way, do you think Miss Craven attached to Charteris at all?

CUTHBERTSON What! that fellow! Not he. He hangs about after her, but he's not man enough for her. A woman of that sort likes a strong, manly, deep-throated, broad-chested man.

PARAMORE [anxiously] Hm! a sort of sporting character, you think?

CUTHBERTSON Oh, no, no. A scientific man, perhaps like yourself. But you know what I mean. A MAN [He strikes himself a sounding blow on the chest]

PARAMORE Of course, but Charteris is a man.

CUTHBERTSON Pah! you don't see what I

THE PAGE [calling monotonously as before] Mr Cuthbertson. Mr Cuthbertson, Mr Cuth—

CUTHBERTSON Here, boy. [He takes a card from the salver] Bring the gentleman up here. [The boy goes out] It's Craven. He's coming to lunch with me and Charteris. You might join us if you've nothing better to do, when you've finished with the instrument man. If Julia turns up I'll ask her too.

PARAMORE [flushing with pleasure] I shall be very pleased. Thank you. [He is going out at the staircase door when Craven enters] Good morning, Colonel Craven.

CRAVEN [at the door] Good morning, glad to see you. I'm looking for Cuthbertson.

PARAMORE [smiling] There he is. [He goes out]

CUTHBERTSON [greeting Craven effusively] Delighted to see you. Now will you come to the smoking room, or will you sit down here, and have a chat while we're waiting for Charteris? If you like company, the smoking room's always full of women. Here in the library we shall have it pretty well all to ourselves until about three o'clock.

CRAVEN I don't like to see women smoking. I'll make myself comfortable here. [He sits in the easy chair on the staircase side]

CUTHBERTSON [taking the smaller chair on his left] Neither do I. There's not a room in this club where I can enjoy a pipe quietly without a woman coming in and beginning to roll a cigaret. It's a disgusting habit in a woman. It's not natural to her sex.

CRAVEN [sighing] Ah, Jo, times have changed since we both courted Molly Ebdon all those years ago. I took my defeat well, old chap, didn't I?

CUTHBERTSON [with earnest approval] You did, Dan. The thought of it has often helped me to behave well myself. It has, on my honor.

CRAVEN Yes, you always believed in hearth and home. Jo, in a true English wife, and a happy wholesome fireside. How did Molly turn out?

CUTHBERTSON [trying to be fair to Molly] Well, not bad. She might have been worse. You see, I couldn't stand her relations. All the men were roaring cads, and she couldn't get on with my mother. And then she hated being in town, and of course I couldn't live in the country on account of my work. But we hit it off as well as most people until we separated

CRAVEN [taken aback] Separated! [He is irresistibly amused] Oh! that was the end of the hearth and home, Jo, was it?

CUTHBERTSON [warmly] Some day the world will know how I loved that woman. But she was incapable of valuing a true man's affection. Do you know, she often said she wished she'd married you instead.

CRAVEN [sobbed by the suggestion] Dear me! dear me! Well, perhaps it was better as it was. You heard about my marriage I suppose.

CUTHBERTSON Oh yes we all heard of it. CRAVEN Well, Jo, I may as well make a clean breast of it everybody knew it I married for money.

CUTHBERTSON [encouragingly] And why not, Dan? Why not? We can't get on without it, you know.

CRAVEN [with sincere feeling] I got to be very fond of her, Jo. I had a home until she died. Now everything's changed. Julia's always here. Sylvia's of a different nature, but she's always here too.

CUTHBERTSON [sympathetically] I know. It's the same with Grace. She's always here.

CRAVEN And now they want me to be always here. They're at me every day to join the club. To stop my grumbling, I suppose. That's what I want to consult you about. Do you think I ought to join?

CUTHBERTSON Well, if you have no conscientious objection—

CRAVEN [testily interrupting him] I object to the existence of the place on principle, but what's the use of that? Here it is in spite of my objection, and I may as well have the benefit of any good that may be in it.

CUTHBERTSON [soothing him] Of course that's the only reasonable view of the matter. Well, the fact is, it's not so inconvenient as you might think. When you're at home, you have the house more to yourself, and when you want to have your family about you, you can dine with them at the club.

CRAVEN [not much attracted by this] True. CUTHBERTSON Besides, if you don't want to dine with them, you needn't.

CRAVEN [convinced] True, very true. But don't they carry on here, rather?

CUTHBERTSON Oh, no they don't exactly carry on. Of course the usual tone of the club is low, because the women smoke, and earn their own living, and all that, but still there's nothing actually to complain of. And it's convenient, certainly.

CRAVEN [rising] Do you know, I've a great mind to join, just to see what it's like. CHARTERIS [coming between them] Do so by all means. I hope I haven't disturbed your chat by coming too soon.

CRAVEN Not at all [He shakes his hand cordially].

CHARTERIS That's right. I'm earlier than I intended. The fact is, I have something rather pressing to say to Cuthbertson.

CRAVEN Private? CHARTERIS Not particularly [To Cuthbertson] Only what we were speaking of last night.

CUTHBERTSON Well, Charteris, I think that is private, or ought to be. CRAVEN [retiring discreetly towards the table] I'll just take a look at The Times—

CHARTERIS [stopping him] Oh, it's no secret everybody in the club guesses it [To Cuthbertson] Has Grace never mentioned to you that she wants to marry me?

CUTHBERTSON [indignantly] She has mentioned that you want to marry her. CHARTERIS Ah, but then it's not what I want, but what Grace wants, that will weigh CRAVEN [a little shocked] Excuse me, Charteris. This is private. I'll leave you to yourselves [again moving towards the table].

CHARTERIS Wait a bit, Craven. You're concerned in this. Julia wants to marry me too. CRAVEN [in a tone of the strongest remonstrance] Now really! Now upon my life and soul!

CHARTERIS It's a fact, I assure you. Didn't it strike you as rather odd, our being up there last night, and Mrs. Tranfield not with us?

CRAVEN Well, yes it did. But you explained it. And now really Charteris, I must say your explanation was in shocking bad taste before Julia.

CHARTERIS Never mind. It was a good, fat, healthy, bouncing lie.

CRAVEN AND CUTHBERTSON Lie!

CHARTERIS Didn't you suspect that?

CRAVEN Certainly not. Did you, Jo?

CUTHBERTSON Not at the moment.

CRAVEN Whats more, I don't believe you're sorry to have to say such a thing, but you forget that Julia was present, and didn't contradict you

CHARTERIS She didnt want to Craven Do you mean to say that my daughter deceived me?

CHARTERIS Delicacy towards me compelled her to, Craven

Craven [taking a very serious tone] Now look here, Charteris have you any proper sense of the fact that youre standing between two fathers?

CUTHBERTSON Quite right, Dan, quite right I repeat the question on my own account

CHARTERIS Well, I'm a little dazed still by standing for so long between two daughters, but I think I grasp the situation [Cuthbertson flings away with an exclamation of disgust]

Craven Then I'm sorry for your manners, Charteris thats all [He turns away sulkily, then suddenly flares up and comes back at Charteris] How dare you tell me my daughter wants to marry you? Who are you, pray, that she should have any such ambition?

CHARTERIS Just so youre quite right she couldnt have made a worse choice But she wont listen to reason I assure you, my dear Craven, Ive said everything that fifty fathers could have said, but it's no use she wont give me up And if she wont listen to me, what likelihood is there of her listening to you?

Craven [in angry bewilderment] Cuthbertson did you ever hear anything like this?

CUTHBERTSON Never! Never!

CHARTERIS Oh, bother! Come! dont behave like a couple of conventional old fathers this is a serious affair Look at these letters [producing a letter and a letter-card] This [showing the card] is from Grace—by the way, Cuthbertson, I wish youd ask her not to write on letter-cards the blue color makes it so easy for Julia to pick the bits out of my waste paper basket and piece them together Now listen "My dear Leonard Nothing could make it worth my while to be exposed to such scenes as last night's You had much better go back to Julia, and forget me Yours sincerely, Grace Tranfield"

CUTHBERTSON I approve of every word of that letter

CHARTERIS [turning to Craven and preparing to read the letter] Now for Julia [The Colonel turns away to hide his face from Charteris, anticipating a shock, and puts his hand on a chair to steady himself] "My dearest boy Nothing will make me believe that this odious woman can take my place in your heart I send some of the letters you wrote me when we first met, and I ask you to read them They will recall what you felt when you wrote them You cannot have changed so much as to be indifferent to me whoever may have struck your fancy for the moment, your heart is still mine"—and so on you know the sort of thing—"Ever and always your loving Julia" [The Colonel sinks on the chair, and covers his face with his hand] You dont suppose she's serious, do you? thats the sort of thing she writes me three times a day [To Cuthbertson] Grace is in earnest though, confound it [He holds out Grace's letter] A blue card as usual! This time I shall not trust the waste paper basket [He goes to the fire, and throws the letters into it]

CUTHBERTSON [facing him with folded arms as he comes back to them] May I ask, Mr Charteris, is this the New Humor?

CHARTERIS [still too preoccupied with his own affairs to have any sense of the effect he is producing on the others] Oh, stuff! Do you suppose it's a joke to be situated as I am? Youve got your head so stuffed with the New Humor and the New Woman and the New This, That, and The Other, all mixed up with your own old Adam, that youve lost your senses

CUTHBERTSON [strenuously] Do you see that old man, grown grey in the honored service of his country, whose last days you have blighted?

CHARTERIS [surprised, looking at Craven and realizing his distress with genuine concern] I'm very sorry Come, Craven dont take it to heart [Craven shakes his head] I assure you it means nothing it happens to me constantly

CUTHBERTSON There is only one excuse for you You are not fully responsible for your actions Like all advanced people, you have got neurasthemia

CHARTERIS [appalled] Great Heavens! whats that?

CUTHBERTSON I decline to explain You know as well as I do I'm going downstairs now to order lunch I shall order it for three, but the third place is for Paramore, whom I have invited, not for you [He goes out through the dining room door]

CHARTERIS [putting his hand on Craven's shoulder] Come, Craven advise me Youve been in this sort of fix yourself probably

Craven Charteris no woman writes such a letter to a man unless he has made advances to her

CHARTERIS [mournfully] How little you know the world, Colonel! The New Woman is not like that

CRAVEN I can only give you very old-fashioned advice, my boy, and that is that it's well to be off with the Old Woman before you're on with the New. I'm sorry you told me. You might have waited for my death. It's not far off now. [His head droops again]

Julia and Paramore come in from the staircase. Julia stops as she catches sight of Charteris, her face clouding, and her breast heaving. Paramore, seeing the Colonel apparently ill, hurries down to him with his bedside manner in full play

CHARTERIS [seeing Julia] Oh, Lord! [He retreats under the lee of the revolving bookstand]

PARAMORE [sympathetically to the Colonel, taking his wrist, and beginning to count his pulse] Allow me

CRAVEN [looking up] Eh? [He withdraws his hand and rises rather crossly] No, Paramore. It's not my liver now. It's private business.

A chase begins between Julia and Charteris, all the more exciting to them because the huntress and her prey alike must conceal the real object of their movements from the others. Charteris first makes for the staircase door. Julia immediately retreats to it, barring his path. He doubles back round the bookstand, setting it whirling as he makes for the other door, Julia crossing in pursuit of him. He is about to escape when he is cut off by the return of Cuthbertson. Turning back, he sees Julia close upon him. There being nothing else for it, he bolts into the recess on Ibsen's left.

CUTHBERTSON Good morning, Miss Craven. [They shake hands] Wont you join us at lunch? Paramore's coming too.

JULIA Thanks. I shall be very pleased. [She strolls with affected purposelessness towards the recess. Charteris, almost trapped in it, crosses to the opposite recess by way of the fender, knocking down the fireirons with a crash as he does so]

CRAVEN [who has crossed to the whirling bookcase and stopped it] What the dickens are you doing there, Charteris?

CHARTERIS Nothing. It's such a confounded room to get about in.

JULIA [maliciously] Yes, isn't it? [She is about to move to guard the staircase door when Cuthbertson offers her his arm]

CUTHBERTSON May I take you down?

JULIA No, really. You know it's against the rules of the club to coddle women in any way. Whoever is nearest the door goes first.

CUTHBERTSON Oh, well, if you insist. Come gentlemen, let us go to lunch in the Ibsen fashion, the unsexed fashion. [He turns and goes out, followed by Paramore, who raises his politest consulting-room laugh. Craven goes last]

CRAVEN [at the door, gravely] Come, Julia.

JULIA [with patronizing affection] Yes, Daddy, dear, presently. Dont wait for me. I'll come in a moment. [The Colonel hesitates] It's all right, Daddy.

CRAVEN [very gravely] Dont be long, my dear. [He goes out]

CHARTERIS I'm off. [He makes a dash for the staircase door]

JULIA [darting at him and seizing his wrist] Arnt you coming?

CHARTERIS No. Unhand me, Julia. [He tries to get away. She holds him] If you dont let me go, I'll scream for help.

JULIA [reproachfully] Leonard! [He breaks away from her] Oh, how can you be so rough with me, dear! Did you get my letter?

CHARTERIS Burnt it—

Julia turns away, struck to the heart, and buries her face in her hands.

CHARTERIS [continuing] —along with hers.

JULIA [quickly turning again] Hers! Has she written to you?

CHARTERIS Yes, to break off with me on your account!

JULIA [her eyes gleaming] Ah!

CHARTERIS You are pleased. Wretch! Now you have lost the last scrap of my regard. [He turns to go, but is stopped by the return of Sylvia. Julia turns away and stands pretending to read a paper which she picks up from the table]

SYLVIA [offhandedly] Hallo, Charteris! how are you getting on? [She takes his arm familiarly, and walks down the room with him] Have you seen Grace Tranfield this morning? [Julia drops the paper, and comes a step nearer to listen] You generally know where she's to be found.

CHARTERIS I shall never know any more, Sylvia. She's quarrelled with me.

SYLVIA Sylvia! How often am I to tell you that I am not Sylvia at the club?

CHARTERIS I forgot. I beg your pardon, Craven, old chap. [slapping her on the shoulder]

SYLVIA Thats better. A little overdone, but better.

JULIA Dont be a fool, Silly.

SYLVIA Remember, Julia, if you please,

THE COMPLETE PLAYS OF BERNARD SHAW

that here we are members of the club, not sisters I don't take liberties with you here on family grounds don't you take any with me [She goes to the settee, and resumes her former place]

CHARTERIS Quite right, Craven Down with the tyranny of the elder sister!

JULIA You ought to know better than to encourage a child to make herself ridiculous,

CHARTERIS [seating himself on the edge of the table] Your lunch will be cold, Julia

Julia is about to retort furiously when she is checked by the reappearance of Cuthbertson at the dining room door

CUTHBERTSON What has become of you, Miss Craven? Your father is getting quite uneasy We're all waiting for you

JULIA So I have just been reminded, thank you [She goes out angrily past him, Sylvia looking round to see]

CUTHBERTSON [looking first after her, then at Charteris] More neurasthenia! [He follows her]

SYLVIA [jumping up on her knees on the settee, and speaking over the back of it] Whats up, Charteris? Julia been making love to you?

CHARTERIS [speaking to her over his shoulder] No Jealous of Grace

SYLVIA Serve you right You are an awful devil for philandering

CHARTERIS [calmly] Do you consider it good club form to talk that way to a man who might nearly be your father?

SYLVIA [knowingly] Oh, I know you, my lad

CHARTERIS Then you know that I never pay any special attention to any woman

SYLVIA [thoughtfully] Do you know, Leonard, I really believe you I don't think you care a bit more for one woman than for another

CHARTERIS You mean I don't care a bit less for one woman than another

SYLVIA That makes it worse But what I mean is that you never bother about their being only women you talk to them just as you do to me or any other fellow That's the secret of your success You can't think how sick they get of being treated with the respect due to their sex

CHARTERIS Ah if Julia only had your wisdom, Craven! [He gets off the table with a sigh, and perches himself reflectively on the step ladder]

SYLVIA She can't take things easy can she, old man? But don't you be afraid of breaking her heart she gets over her little tragedies We found that out at home when our great sorrow came

CHARTERIS What was that?

SYLVIA I mean when we learned that poor papa had Paramore's disease

CHARTERIS Paramore's disease! Why, what's the matter with Paramore?

SYLVIA Oh, not a disease that he suffers from, but one that he discovered

CHARTERIS The liver business?

SYLVIA Yes that's what made Paramore's reputation, you know Papa used to get bad occasionally, but we always thought that it was partly his Indian service, and partly his eating and drinking too much He used to wolf down a lot in those days, did Dad The doctor never knew what was wrong with him until Paramore discovered a dreadful little microbe in his liver There are forty millions of them to every square inch of liver Paramore discovered them first, and now he declares that everybody should be inoculated against them as well as vaccinated But it was too late to inoculate poor papa All they could do was to prolong his life for two years more by putting him on a strict diet Poor old boy! they cut off his liquor, and he's not allowed to eat meat

CHARTERIS Your father appears to me to be uncommonly well

SYLVIA Yes you would think he was a great deal better But the microbe is at work, slowly but surely In another year it will be all over Poor old Dad! it's unfeeling to talk about him in this attitude I must sit down properly [She comes down from the settee, and takes the chair near the bookstand] I should like papa to live for ever just to take the conceit out of Paramore I believe he's in love with Julia CHARTERIS [starting up excitedly] In love with Julia! A ray of hope on the horizon! Do you really mean it?

SYLVIA I should think I do Why do you suppose he's hanging about the club today in a beautiful new coat and tie instead of attending to his patients? That lunch with Julia will finish him He'll ask Daddy's consent before they come back I'll bet you three to one he will, in anything you please CHARTERIS Gloves?

SYLVIA No cigars?

CHARTERIS Done! But what does she think about it? Does she give him any encouragement?

SYLVIA Oh, the usual thing Enough to keep any other woman from getting him

CHARTERIS Just so I understand Now listen to me I am going to speak as a philosopher Julia is jealous of everybody everybody. If she saw you flirting with Paramore she'd begin to value him directly You might play up a little, Claven, for my sake eh?

SYLVIA [rising] You're too awful, Leonard For shame! However, anything to oblige a fellow Ibsenite I'll bear your affair in mind But I think it would be more effective if you got Grace to do it

CHARTERIS Think so? Hm! perhaps you're right

THE PAGE [outside as before] Dr Paramore, Dr Paramore, Dr Paramore—

SYLVIA They ought to get that boy's voice properly cultivated it's a disgrace to the club [She goes into the recess on Ibsen's left]

The page enters, carrying the British Medical Journal

CHARTERIS [calling to the page] Dr Paramore is in the dining room

THE PAGE Thank you, sir [He is about to go into the dining room when Sylvia swoops on him]

SYLVIA Here where are you taking that paper? It belongs to this room

THE PAGE It's Dr Paramore's particular orders, miss The British Medical Journal has always to be brought to him directly it comes SYLVIA What cheek! Charteris oughtn't we to stop this on principle?

CHARTERIS Certainly not Principle's the poorest reason I know for making yourself nasty SYLVIA Bosh! Ibsen!

CHARTERIS [to the page] Off with you, my boy Dr Paramore's waiting breathless with expectation

THE PAGE [seriously] Indeed, sir? [He hurries off]

CHARTERIS That boy will make his way in this country He has no sense of humor

Grace comes in Her dress, very convenient and businesslike, is made to please herself and serve her own purposes without the slightest regard to fashion, though by no means without a careful concern for her personal elegance She enters briskly, like an habitually busy woman

SYLVIA [running to her] Here you are at last, Tranfield, old girl I've been waiting for you this last hour I'm starving

GRACE All right, dear [To Charteris] Did you get my letter?

CHARTERIS Yes I wish you wouldn't write on those confounded blue letter-cards

SYLVIA [to Grace] Shall I go down first, and secure a table?

CHARTERIS [taking the reply out of Grace's mouth] Do, old boy

SYLVIA Don't be too long [She goes into the dining room]

GRACE Well?

CHARTERIS I'm afraid to face you after last night Can you imagine a more horrible scene? Don't you hate the very sight of me after it?

GRACE Oh no

CHARTERIS Then you ought to Ugh! it was hideous an insult an outrage A nice end to all my plans for making you happy for making you an exception to all the women who swear I have made them miserable!

GRACE [sitting down placidly] I am not at all miserable I'm sorry, but I shan't break my heart

CHARTERIS No yours is a thoroughbred heart you don't scream and cry every time it's pinched That's why you are the only possible woman for me

GRACE [shaking her head] Not now Never any more

CHARTERIS Never! What do you mean?

GRACE What I say, Leonard

CHARTERIS Jilted again! The fickleness of the women I love is only equalled by the infernal constancy of the women who love me Well, well! I see how it is, Grace you can't forget that horrible scene last night Imagine her saying I had kissed her within the last two days!

GRACE [rising eagerly] Was that not true?

CHARTERIS True! No a thumping lie

GRACE Oh, I'm so glad That was the only thing that really hurt me

CHARTERIS Just why she said it How adorable of you to care! My darling [He seizes her hands, and presses them to his breast]

GRACE Remember! it's all broken off

CHARTERIS Ah yes you have my heart in your hands Break it Throw my happiness out of the window

GRACE Oh, Leonard, does your happiness really depend on me?

CHARTERIS [tenderly] Absolutely [She bears with delight A sudden revulsion comes to him at the sight he recoils dropping her hands and crying] Ah no why should I lie to you? [He folds his arms and adds firmly] My happiness depends on nobody but myself I can do without you

GRACE [nervng herself] So you shall Thank you for the truth Now I will tell you the truth

CHARTERIS [unfolding his arms in terror] No, please Dont As a philosopher, it's my business to tell other people the truth, but it's not their business to tell it to me I dont like it, it hurts

GRACE [quely] It's only that I love you

CHARTERIS Ah! thats not a philosophic truth You may tell me that as often as you like [He takes her in his arms]

GRACE Yes, Leonard, but I'm an advanced woman [He checks himself, and looks at her in some consternation] I'm what my father calls the New Woman [He lets her go, and stares at her] I quite agree with all your ideas

CHARTERIS [scandalized] Thats a nice thing for a respectable woman to say! You ought to be ashamed of yourself

GRACE I am quite in earnest about them too, though you are not That is why I will never marry a man I love too much It would give him a terrible advantage over me I should be utterly in his power Thats what the New Woman is like Isnt she right, Mr Philosopher?

CHARTERIS The struggle between the Philosopher and the Man is fearful, Grace But the Philosopher says you are right

GRACE I know I am right And so we must part

CHARTERIS Not at all You must marry some one else, and then I'll come and philander with you

Sylvia comes back

SYLVIA [holding the door open] Oh, I say come along I'm starving

CHARTERIS So am I I'll lunch with you if I may

SYLVIA I thought you would Ive ordered soup for three [Grace passes out Sylvia continues, to Charteris] You can watch Paramore from our table he's pretending to read the British Medical Journal, but he must be making up his mind for the plunge he looks green with nervousness [She goes out]

CHARTERIS Good luck to him! [He follows her]

The library remains unoccupied for ten minutes

Then Julia, angry and miserable, comes in from the dining room folloned by Craven She crosses the room tormentedly, and throws herself into a chair

CRAVEN [impatiently] What is the matter? Has every one gone mad today? What do you mean by suddenly getting up from the table and tearing away like that? What does Paramore mean by reading his paper, and not answering when he's spoken to? [Julia writhes impatiently] Come, come [tenderly] wont my pet tell her own Daddy what—[irritably] what the devil is wrong with everybody Do pull yourself together, Julia, before Cuthbertson comes He's only paying the bill he'll be here in a moment

JULIA I couldnt bear it any longer Oh, to see them sitting there at lunch together, laughing, chatting, making game of me! I should have screamed out in another moment. I should have taken a knife and killed her I should have—

Cuthbertson appears, stuffing the luncheon bill into his waistcoat pocket as he comes to them He begins speaking the moment he enters

CUTHBERTSON I'm afraid youve had a very poor lunch, Dan It's disheartening to see you picking at a few beans, and drinking soda water I wonder how you live!

JULIA Thats all he ever takes, Mr Cuthbertson, I assure you He hates to be bothered about it

CRAVEN Wheres Paramore?

CUTHBERTSON Reading his paper I asked him wasnt he coming, but he didnt hear me It's amazing how anything scientific absorbs him Clever man! Monstrously clever man!

CRAVEN [pettishly] Oh yes, thats all very well, Jo, but it's not good manners at table he should shut up the shop sometimes Heaven knows I am only too anxious to forget his science, since it has pronounced my doom [He sits down with a melancholy air]

CUTHBERTSON [compassionately] You musnt think about that, Craven perhaps he was mistaken [He sighs deeply and sits down] But he certainly is a very clever fellow He thinks twice before he commits himself

They sit in silence, full of gloom Suddenly Paramore enters, pale and in the utmost disorder, with the British Medical Journal in his clenched hand They rise in alarm He tries to speak, but chokes, clutches at his throat, and staggers Cuthbertson quickly takes his chair and places it behind Paramore, who sinks into it as they crowd about him, Craven at his right shoulder,

Craven Whats the matter, Paramore?

Julia Are you ill?

Cuthbertson No bad news, I hope?

Paramore [despairingly] The worst of news! Terrible news! Fatal news! My disease—

Craven [quickly] Do you mean my disease?

Paramore [fiercely] I mean my disease Paramore's disease the disease I discovered the work of my life! Look here [he points to the journal with a ghastly expression of horror] If this is true, it was all a mistake there is no such disease

Cuthbertson and Julia look at one another, hardly daring to believe the good news

Craven [in strong remonstrance] And you call this bad news! Now really, Paramore—

Paramore [cutting him short hoarsely] It's natural for you to think only of yourself I dont blame you all invalids are selfish Only a scientific man can feel what I feel now [Writhing under a sense of intolerable injustice] It's the fault of the wickedly sentimental laws of this country I was not able to make experiments enough only three dogs and a monkey Think of that, with all Europe full of my professional rivals! men burning to prove me wrong! There is freedom in France enlightened republican France! One Frenchman experiments on two hundred monkeys to disprove my theory Another sacrifices £36—three hundred dogs at three francs apiece—to upset the monkey experiments A third proves them both wrong by a single experiment in which he gets the temperature of a camel's liver sixty degrees below zero And now comes this cursed Italian who has ruined me He has a government grant to buy animals with, besides having the run of the largest hospital in Italy [With desperate resolution] But I wont be beaten by any Italian I'll go to Italy myself I'll rediscover my disease I know it exists, I feel it, and I'll prove it if I have to experiment on every mortal animal thats got a liver at all [He folds his arms and breathes hard at them]

Craven [his sense of injury groning on him] Am I to understand, Paramore, that you took it on yourself to pass sentence of death on me yes, of Death! on the strength of three dogs and an infernal monkey?

Paramore [utterly contemptuous of Craven's narrow personal view of the matter] Yes That was all I could get a license for

Craven Now upon my soul, Paramore I'm vexed at this I dont wish to be unfriendly, but I'm extremely vexed, really Why, confound it, do you realize what youve done? Youve cut off my meat and drink for a year! made me an object of public scorn! a miserable vegetarian and teetotaller

Paramore [rising] Well, you can make up for lost time now [Bitterly, shewing Craven the Journal] There! you can read for yourself The camel was fed on beef dissolved in alcohol, and he gained half a ton on it Eat and drink as much as you please [Still unable to stand without support, he makes his way past Cuthbertson to the revolving bookcase, and stands there with his back to them, leaning on it with his head on his hands]

Craven [grumbling] Oh yes it's very easy for you to talk, Paramore But what am I to say to the Humanitarian societies and the Vegetarian societies that have made me Vice President?

Cuthbertson [chuckling] Aha! You made a virtue of it, did you, Dan?

Craven [narrowly] I made a virtue of necessity, Jo No one can blame me

Julia [soothing him] Well, never mind, Daddy Come back to the dining room, and have a good beefsteak

Craven [shuddering] Ugh! [Plaintively] No Ive lost my old manly taste for it My very nature's been corrupted by living on pap [To Paramore] Thats what comes of all this vivisection You go experimenting on horses, and of course the result is that you try to get me into condition by feeding me on beans

Paramore [curtly, without changing his position] Well, if they've done you good, so much the better for you

Craven [querulously] Thats all very well, but it's very vexing You dont half see how serious it is to make a man believe that he has only another year to live you really dont, Paramore I cant help saying it Ive made my will, which was altogether unnecessary, and Ive been reconciled to a lot of people I'd quarrelled with people I cant stand under ordinary circumstances Then Ive let the girls get round me at home to an extent I should never have done if I'd had my life before me Ive done a lot of serious thinking and reading and extra church going And now it turns out simple waste of time On my soul, it's too disgusting I'd far rather die like a man when I said I would

PARAMORE [as before] Perhaps you may Your heart's shaky, if thats any satisfaction to you

CRAVEN [offended] You must excuse me, Paramore, if I say that I no longer feel any confidence in your opinion as a medical man [Paramore's eye flashes he straightens himself and listens] I paid you a pretty stiff fee for that consultation when you condemned me, and I cant say I think you gave me value for it

PARAMORE [turning and facing Craven with dignity] Thats unanswerable, Colonel Craven I shall return the fee

CRAVEN Oh, it's not the money, but I think you ought to realize your position [Paramore turns stiffly away Craven follows him impulsively, exclaiming remorsefully] Well, perhaps it was a nasty thing of me to allude to it [He offers Paramore his hand]

PARAMORE [conscientiously taking it] Not at all You are quite in the right, Colonel Craven my diagnosis was wrong, and I must take the consequences

CRAVEN [holding his hand] No, dont say that It was natural enough my liver is enough to set any man's diagnosis wrong [A long hand-shake, very trying to Paramore's nerves Paramore then retires to the recess on Ibsen's left, and throws himself on the divan with a half suppressed sob, bending over The British Medical Journal with his head on his hands and his elbows on his knees]

CUTHBERTSON [who has been rejoicing with Julia at the other side of the room] Well, lets say no more about it I congratulate you, Craven, and hope you may long be spared [Craven offers his hand] No, Dan your daughter first [He takes Julia's hand gently and hands her across to Craven, into whose arms she flies with a gush of feeling]

JULIA Dear old Daddy!

CRAVEN Ah, is Julia glad that the old Dad is let off for a few years more?

JULIA [almost crying] Oh, so glad! so glad!

Cuthbertson sobs audibly The Colonel is affected Sylvia, entering from the dining room, stops abruptly at the door on seeing the three Paramore, in the recess, escapes her notice

SYLVIA Hallo!

CRAVEN Tell her the news, Julia it would sound ridiculous from me [He goes to the weeping Cuthbertson, and pats him consolingly on the shoulder]

JULIA Silly only think! Dad's not ill at all

It was only a mistake of Dr Paramore's Oh, dear! [She catches Craven's left hand and stoops to kiss it, his right hand being still on Cuthbertson's shoulder]

SYLVIA [contemptuously] I knew it Of course it was nothing but eating too much I always said Paramore was an ass [Sensation The group of Cuthbertson, Craven, and Julia breaks up as they turn in dismay]

PARAMORE [without malice] Never mind, Miss Craven That is what is being said all over Europe now Never mind

SYLVIA [a little abashed] I'm so sorry, Dr Paramore You must excuse a daughter's feelings

CRAVEN [huffed] It evidently doesnt make much difference to you, Sylvia

SYLVIA I'm not going to be sentimental over it, Dad, you may bet [Coming to Craven] Besides, I knew it was nonsense all along [Petting him] Poor dear old Dad! why should your days be numbered any more than any one else's? [He pats her cheek, mollified Julia impatiently turns away from them] Come to the smoking room, and lets see what you can do after teetotalling for a year

CRAVEN [playfully] Vulgar little girl! [He pinches her ear] Shall we come, Jo! Youll be the better for a pick-me-up after all this emotion

CUTHBERTSON I'm not ashamed of it, Dan It has done me good [He goes up to the table and shakes his fist at the bust over the mantel-piece] It would do you good too, if you had eyes and ears to take it in CRAVEN [astomshed] Who?

SYLVIA Why, good old Henrik, of course

CRAVEN [puzzled] Henrik?

CUTHBERTSON [impatiently] Ibsen, man Ibsen [He goes out by the staircase door, followed by Sylvia, who kisses her hand to the bust as she passes Craven stares blankly after her, and then at the bust Giving the problem up as insoluble, he shakes his head and follows them Near the door, he checks himself, and comes back]

CRAVEN [softly] By the way, Paramore?

PARAMORE [rousing himself with an effort] Yes?

CRAVEN You werent in earnest that time about my heart, were you?

PARAMORE Oh nothing, nothing Theres a slight murmur mitral valves a little worn perhaps, but theyll last your time if youre careful Dont smoke too much

CRAVEN What! More privations! Now really,

Paramore, really—

PARAMORE [rising distractedly] Excuse me I cant pursue the subject I—I—

JULIA Dont worry him now, Daddy

CRAVEN Well, well I wont [He comes to Paramore, who is pacing restlessly up and down the middle of the room] Come, Paramore! I'm not selfish, believe me I can feel for your disappointment But you must face it like a man And after all, now really, doesnt this shew that theres a lot of rot about modern science? Between ourselves, you know, it's horribly cruel you must admit that it's a deuced nasty thing to go ripping up and crucifying camels and monkeyes It must blunt all the finer feelings sooner or later PARAMORE [turning on him] How many camels and horses and men were ripped up in that Soudan campaign where you won your Victoria Cross, Colonel Craven?

CRAVEN [firing up] That was fair fighting a very different thing, Paramore

PARAMORE Yes Martinis and machine guns against naked spearmen

CRAVEN [hollly] Naked spearmen can kill, Paramore I risked my life dont forget that

PARAMORE [with equal spirit] And I have risked mine, as all doctors do, oftener than any soldier

CRAVEN [handsomely] Thats true I didnt think of that I beg your pardon, Paramore I'll never say another word against your profession But I hope youll let me stick to the good oldfashioned shaking-up treatment for my liver a clinking lun across country with the hounds

PARAMORE [with bitter irony] Isnt that rather cruel? a pack of dogs ripping up a fox?

JULIA [coming coarngly between them] Oh please dont begin arguing again Do go to the smoking room, Daddy Mr Cutlibertson will wonder what has become of you

CRAVEN Very well, very well I'll go But youre really not reasonable today, Paramore, to talk that way of fair sport—

JULIA Sh—sh [coaring him towards the door]

CRAVEN Well, well, I'm off [He goes good-humoredly, pushed out by Julia]

JULIA [turning at the door with her utmostitchery of manner] Dont look so disappointed, Dr Paramore Cheer up Youve been most kind to us, and youve done up a lot of good PARAMORE [delighted, rushing over to her] How beautiful it is of you to say that to me, Miss Craven!

JULIA I hate to see any one unhappy I cant bear unhappiness [She runs out, casting a Partian glance at him as she flies]

Paramore stands enraptured, gazing after her through the glass door Whilst he is thus absorbed, Charteris comes in from the dining room and touches him on the arm

PARAMORE [starting] Eh? Whats the matter?

CHARTERIS [significantly] Charming woman, isnt she, Paramore? [Looking admiringly at him] How have you managed to fascinate her?

PARAMORE I! Do you really mean— [He looks at him, then recovers himself, and adds coldly] Excuse me this is a subject I do not care to jest about [He walks away from Charteris, and sits down in the nearest easy chair, reading his journal to intimate that he does not wish to pursue the conversation]

CHARTERIS [ignoring the hint, and coolly sitting down beside him] Why dont you get married, Paramore? You know it's a scandalous thing for a man in your profession to be single

PARAMORE [shortly, still pretending to read] Thats my own business not yours

CHARTERIS Not at all it's pre eminently a social question Youre going to get married, arnt you?

PARAMORE Not that I am aware of CHARTERIS [alarmed] No! Dont say that Why?

PARAMORE [rising angrily and rapping one of the SILENCE placards] Allow me to call your attention to that [He crosses the room to the easy chair near the revolving bookstand, and flings himself into it with determined hostility]

CHARTERIS [following him, too deeply concerned to mind the rebuff] Paramore you alarm me more than I can say Youve muffed this business somehow I fully expected to find you a joyful accepted smitor

PARAMORE [angrily] Yes, you have been watching me because you admire Miss Craven yourself Well, you may go in and win now You will be pleased to hear that I am a ruined man CHARTERIS You! Ruined! How? The turf?

PARAMORE [contemptuously] The turf! Certainly not

CHARTERIS Paramore if the loan of all I possess will help you over this difficulty, you have only to ask PARAMORE [rising in surprise] Charteris! I— [Suspiciously] Are you joking?

CHARTERIS Why on earth do you always suspect me of joking? I never was more serious in my life

PARAMORE [shamed by Charteris's generosity] Then I beg your pardon I thought the news would please you CHARTERIS [deprecating this injustice to his good feeling] My dear fellow!

PARAMORE I see I was wrong I am really very sorry [They shake hands] And now you may as well learn the truth I had rather you heard it from me than from the gossip of the club My liver discovery has been—er—er—
[he cannot bring himself to say it]

CHARTERIS [helping him out] Confirmed? [Sadly] I see the poor Colonel's doomed

PARAMORE No on the contrary, it has been—er—called in question The Colonel now believes himself to be in perfectly good health, and my friendly relations with the Cravens are entirely spoilt

CHARTERIS Who told him about it?

PARAMORE I did, of course, the moment I read the news in this [He shews the journal, and puts it down on the bookstand]

CHARTERIS Why, man you've been a messenger of glad tidings! Didn't you congratulate him?

PARAMORE [scandalised] Congratulate him! Congratulate a man on the worst blow pathological science has received for the last three hundred years!

CHARTERIS No, no, no Congratulate him on having his life saved Congratulate Juha on having her father spared Swear that your discovery and your reputation are as nothing to you compared with the pleasure of restoring happiness to the household in which the best hopes of your life are centred Confound it, man, you'll never get married if you can't turn things to account with a woman in these little ways

PARAMORE [gravely] Excuse me, but my self-respect is dearer to me even than Miss Craven I cannot trifle with scientific questions for the sake of a personal advantage [He turns away coldly, and goes towards the table]

CHARTERIS Well, this beats me! The Non-conformist conscience is bad enough, but the scientific conscience is the very devil [He follows Paramore, and puts his arm familiarly round his shoulder, bringing him back again whilst he speaks] Now look here, Paramore I have no conscience in that sense at all I loathe it as I loathe all the snares of idealism, but I have some common humanity and common sense [He replaces him in the easy chair, and sits down opposite him] Come! what is a really scientific theory? A true theory, isn't it?

PARAMORE No doubt

CHARTERIS For instance, you have a theory about Craven's liver, eh?

PARAMORE I still believe that to be a true theory, though it has been upset for the moment

CHARTERIS And you have a theory that it would be pleasant to be married to Juha?

PARAMORE I suppose so In a sense

CHARTERIS That theory also will be upset, probably, before you're a year older

PARAMORE Always cynical, Charteris

CHARTERIS Never mind that Now it's a perfectly damnable thing for you to hope that your liver theory is true, because it amounts to hoping that Craven will die an agonizing death

PARAMORE And always paradoxical, Charteris

CHARTERIS Well, at least you'll admit that it's amiable and human to hope that your theory about Juha is right, because it amounts to hoping that she may live happily ever after

PARAMORE I do hope that with all my soul—[correcting himself] I mean with all my function of hoping

CHARTERIS Then, since both theories are equally scientific, why not devote yourself, as a humane man, to proving the amiable theory rather than the damnable one?

PARAMORE But how?

CHARTERIS I'll tell you You think I'm fond of Juha myself So I am, but then I'm fond of everybody, so I don't count Besides, if you try the scientific experiment of asking her whether she loves me, she'll tell you that she hates and despises me So I'm out of the running Nevertheless, like you, I hope that she may be happy with all my—what did you call your soul?

PARAMORE [impatiently] Oh, go on, go on finish what you were going to say

CHARTERIS [suddenly affecting complete indifference, and rising carelessly] I don't know that I was going to say anything more If I were you I should invite the Cravens to tea in honor of the Colonel's escape from a horrible doom By the way, if you've done with that British Medical Journal, I should like to see how they've smashed your theory up

PARAMORE [wincing as he also rises] Oh, certainly, if you wish it I have no objection [He takes the journal from the bookstand] I admit that the Italian experiments apparently upset my theory But please remember that it is doubtful—extremely doubtful—whether anything can be proved by experiments on animals [He hands Charteris the journal]

CHARTERIS [taking it] It doesn't matter I don't intend to make any [He retires to the recess on Ibsen's right, picking up the step-ladder as he passes and placing it so that he is able to use it for a leg rest as he settles himself to read on the divan with his back to the corner of the mantelpiece]

PARAMORE goes to the dining room door, and is about to leave the library when he meets Grace entering

GRACE How do you do, Dr Paramore? So glad to see you [They shake hands]

PARAMORE Thanks Quite well, I hope?

GRACE Quite, thank you You're looking overworked We must take more care of you, Doctor

PARAMORE You are too kind

GRACE It is you who are too kind—to your patients You sacrifice yourself Have a little rest Come and talk to me Tell me all about the latest scientific discoveries, and what I ought to read to keep myself up to date But perhaps you're busy

PARAMORE No, not at all Only too delighted [They go into the recess on Ibsen's left, and sit there chatting in whispers, very confidentially]

CHARTERIS How they all love a doctor! They can say what they like to him [Julia returns, but does not look his way He takes his feet from the ladder and sits up] Whew! [Julia wanders along his side of the room, apparently looking for some one Charteris steals after her]

CHARTERIS [in a low voice] Looking for me, Julia?

JULIA [starting violently] Oh! How you startled me!

CHARTERIS Sh! I want to shew you something Look! [He points to the pair in the recess]

JULIA [jealously] That woman!

CHARTERIS My young woman, carrying off your young man

JULIA What do you mean? Do you dare insinuate—

CHARTERIS Sh—sh—sh! Don't disturb them

PARAMORE rises, takes down a book, and sits on a footstool at Grace's feet

JULIA Why are they whispering like that?
CHARTERIS Because they don't want any one to hear what they are saying to one another

PARAMORE shews Grace a picture in the book
They both laugh heartily over it

JULIA What is he shewing her?

CHARTERIS Probably a diagram of the liver [Julia, with an exclamation of disgust, makes for the recess Charteris catches her sleeve] Stop be careful, Julia [She fixes herself by giving him a push which upsets him into the easy chair, then crosses to the recess, and stands looking down at Grace and Paramore from the corner next the fireplace]

JULIA [with suppressed fury] You seem to have found a very interesting book Dr Paramore [They look up, astonished] May I ask what it is? [She stoops swiftly, snatches the book from Paramore, and comes down to the table quickly to look at it whilst they rise in amazement] Good Words! [She flings it on the table, and sneeps back past Charteris, exclaiming contemptuously] You fool! [Paramore and Grace, meanwhile, come from the recess Paramore bewildered Grace very determined]

CHARTERIS [aside to Julia as he gets out of the easy chair] Idiot! She'll have you turned out of the club for this

JULIA [terrified] She can't can she?

PARAMORE What is the matter, Miss Craven?

CHARTERIS [hastily] Nothing My fault a stupid practical joke I beg your pardon and Mrs Tranfield's

GRACE [firmly] It is not your fault in the least, Mr Charteris Dr Paramore will you oblige me by finding Sylvia Craven for me, if you can?

PARAMORE [hesitating] But—

GRACE I want you to go now, if you please

PARAMORE [succumbing] Certainly [He bows and goes out by the staircase door]

GRACE You are going with him, Charteris

JULIA You will not leave me here to be insulted by this woman, Mr Charteris [She takes his arm as if to go with him]

GRACE When two ladies quarrel in this club, it is against the rules to settle it when there are gentlemen present especially the gentleman they are quarrelling about I presume you do not wish to break that rule, Miss Craven [Julia sullenly drops Charteris's arm Grace turns to Charteris, and adds] Now! Trot off

CHARTERIS Certainly Certainly [He follows Paramore ignominiously]

GRACE [to Julia, with quiet peremptoriness] Now what have you to say to me?

JULIA [suddenly throwing herself tragically on her knees at Grace's feet] Don't take him from me. Oh don't—don't be so cruel. Give him back to me. You don't know what you're doing—what our past has been—how I love him. You don't know—

GRACE Get up, and don't be a fool. Suppose any one comes in and sees you in that ridiculous attitude!

JULIA I hardly know what I'm doing. I don't care what I'm doing. I'm too miserable. Oh, won't you listen to me?

GRACE Do you suppose I am a man, to be imposed on by this sort of rubbish?

JULIA [getting up and looking darkly at her] You intend to take him from me, then?

GRACE Do you expect me to help you to keep him after the way you have behaved?

JULIA [trying her theatrical method in a milder form reasonable and impulsively goodnatureed instead of tragic] I know I was wrong to act as I did last night. I beg your pardon. I am sorry. I was mad.

GRACE Not a bit mad. You calculated to an inch how far you could go. When he is present to stand between us and play out the scene with you, I count for nothing. When we are alone, you fall back on your natural way of getting anything you want crying for it like a baby until it is given to you.

JULIA [with unconcealed hatred] You learnt this from him.

GRACE I learnt it from yourself, last night and now. How I hate to be a woman when I see, by you, what wretched childish creatures we are! Those two men would cut you dead and have you turned out of the club if you were a man, and had behaved in such a way before them. But because you are only a woman, they are forbearing! sympathetic! gallant! Oh, if you had a scrap of self-respect, their indulgence would make you creep all over. I understand now why Charteris has no respect for women.

JULIA How dare you say that?

GRACE Dare! I love him. And I have refused his offer to marry me.

JULIA [incredulous, but hopeful] You have refused!

GRACE Yes, because I will not give myself to any man who has learnt to treat women from you and your like. I can do without his love, but not without his respect, and it is your fault that I cannot have both. Take his love then, and much good may it do you! Run to him, and beg him to take you back.

JULIA Oh, what a liar you are! He loved me before he ever saw you—before he ever dreamt of you, you pitiful thing. Do you think I need go down on my knees to men to make them come to me? That may be your experience, you creature with no figure. It is not mine. There are dozens of men who would give their souls for a look from me. I have only to lift my finger.

GRACE Lift it then, and see whether he will come.

JULIA How I should like to kill you! I don't know why I don't.

GRACE Yes, you like to get out of your difficulties at other people's expense. It is something to boast of, isn't it, that dozens of men would make love to you if you invited them?

JULIA [sullenly] I suppose it's better to be like you, with a cold heart and a serpent's tongue. Thank Heaven, I have a heart that is why you can hurt me as I cannot hurt you. And you are a coward. You are giving him up to me without a struggle.

GRACE Yes, it is for you to struggle. I wish you success. [She turns away contemptuously, and is going to the dining room door when Sylvia enters on the opposite side followed by Cuthbertson and Craven, who come to Julia, whilst Sylvia crosses to Grace]

SYLVIA Here I am, sent by the faithful Paramore. He hinted that I'd better bring the elder members of the family too here they are. Whats the row?

GRACE [quietly] Nothing, dear. There's no row.

JULIA [hysterically, tottering and stretching out her arms to Craven] Daddy!

CRAVEN [taking her in his arms] My precious! Whats the matter?

JULIA [through her tears] She's going to have me expelled from the club, and we shall all be disgraced. Can she do it, Daddy?

CRAVEN Well, really, the rules of this club are so extraordinary that I don't know. [To Grace] May I ask, madam, whether you have any complaint to make of my daughter's conduct?

GRACE Yes, sir. I am going to complain to the committee

SYLVIA I knew you'd overdo it some day, Julia

CRAVEN Do you know this lady, Jo?

CUTHBERTSON This is my daughter, Mrs Tranfield, Dan Grace this is my old friend Colonel Craven

Grace and Craven bow to one another constrainedly

CRAVEN May I ask the ground of complaint, Mrs Tranfield?

GRACE Simply that Miss Craven is essentially a womanly woman, and, as such, not eligible for membership

JULIA It's false I'm not a womanly woman I was guaranteed when I joined just as you were

GRACE By Mr Charteris, I think, at your own request I shall call him as a witness to your thoroughly womanly conduct just now in his presence and Dr Paramore's

CRAVEN Cuthbertson are they joking? or am I dreaming?

CUTHBERTSON [grimly] It's real, Dan you're awake

SYLVIA [taking Craven's left arm, and hugging it affectionately] Dear old Rip Van Winkle!

CRAVEN Well, Mrs Tranfield, all I can say is that I hope you will succeed in establishing your complaint, and that Julia may soon see the last of this most outrageous institution

Charteris returns

CHARTERIS [at the door] May I come in?

SYLVIA Yes you're wanted here as a witness [Charteris comes in, and places himself with evident misgiving between Julia and Grace] It's a bad case of womanliness

GRACE [half aside to him, significantly] You understand? [Julia, watching them jealously, leaves her father and gets close to Charteris Grace adds aloud] I shall expect your support before the committee

JULIA If you have a scrap of manhood in you you will take my part

CHARTERIS But then I shall be expelled for being a manly man Besides, I'm on the committee myself I can't act as judge and witness too You must apply to Paramore he saw it all

GRACE Where is Dr Paramore?

CHARTERIS Just gone home

JULIA [with sudden resolution] What is Dr Paramore's number in Savile Row?

CHARTERIS Seventy-nine

Julia goes out quickly by the staircase door, to their astonishment Charteris follows her to the door, which swings back in his face leaving him staring after her through the glass

SYLVIA [running to Grace] Grace go after her Don't let her get beforehand with Paramore She'll tell him the most heartbreaking stories about how she's been treated, and get round him completely

CRAVEN [thundering] Sylvia! Is that the way to speak of your sister, miss? [Grace squeezes Sylvia's hand to console her, takes a magazine from the table, and sits down calmly Sylvia posts herself behind Grace's chair, leaning over the back to watch the ensuing colloquy between the three men] I assure you, Mrs Tranfield, Dr Paramore has just invited us all to take afternoon tea with him, and if my daughter has gone to his house, she is simply taking advantage of his invitation to extricate herself from a very embarrassing scene here We're all going there Come, Sylvia [He turns to go, followed by Cuthbertson]

CHARTERIS [in consternation] Stop! [He gets between Craven and Cuthbertson] What hurry is there? Can't you give the man time?

CRAVEN Time! What for?

CHARTERIS [talking foolishly in his agitation] Well, to get a little rest you know a busy professional man like that! He's not had a moment to himself all day

CRAVEN But Julia's with him

CHARTERIS Well, no matter she's only one person And she ought to have an opportunity of laying her case before him As a member of the committee, I think that's only just Be reasonable, Craven give him half an hour

CUTHBERTSON [sternly] What do you mean by this, Charteris?

CHARTERIS Nothing, I assure you Only common consideration for poor Paramore

CUTHBERTSON You've some motive Craven I strongly advise that we go at once [He grasps the door handle]

CHARTERIS [coaxingly] No, no [He puts his hand persuasively on Craven's arm adding] It's not good for your liver, Craven, to rush about immediately after lunch

CUTHBERTSON His liver's cured Come on, Craven [He opens the door]

CHARTERIS [catching Cuthbertson by the sleeve] Cuthbertson you're mad Paramore's going to propose to Julia We must give him time he's not the man to come to the point in three seconds as you or I would [Turning to Craven] Don't you see that will get me out of the difficulty we were speaking of this morning you and I and Cuthbertson You remember?

CRAVEN Now is this a thing to say plump out before everybody, Charteris? Confound it, have you no decency?

CUTHBERTSON [severely] None whatever

CHARTERIS [turning to Cuthbertson] No dont be unkind, Cuthbertson Back me up My future, her future, Mrs Tranfield's future, Craven's future, everybody's future depends on Julia being Paramore's affianced bride when we arrive He's certain to propose if youll only give him time You know youre a kindly and sensible man as well as a deucedly clever one, Cuthbertson, in spite of all the nonsense you pick up in the theatre Say a word for me

CRAVEN I'm quite willing to leave the decision to Cuthbertson, and I have no doubt whatever as to what that decision will be

Cuthbertson carefully shuts the door, and comes back into the room with an air of weighty reflection

CUTHBERTSON I am now going to speak as a man of the world that is, without moral responsibility

CRAVEN Quite so, Jo Of course

CUTHBERTSON Therefore, though I have no sympathy whatever with Charteris's views, I think we can do no harm by waiting—say ten minutes or so [He sits down]

CHARTERIS [delighted] Ah, there's nobody like you after all, Cuthbertson, when theres a difficult situation to be judged [He sits down on the settee back]

CRAVEN [deeply disappointed] Oh well, Jo, if that is your decision, I must keep my word and abide by it Better sit down and make ourselves comfortable, I suppose [He sits also, under protest]

A pause, very trying for the three men

GRACE [looking up from her magazine] Dont fidget, Leonard

CHARTERIS [slipping off the settee back] I cant help it I'm too restless The fact is, Julia has made me so nervous that I cant answer for myself until I know her decision Mrs Tranfield will tell you what a time Ive had lately Julia's really a most determined woman, you know

CRAVEN [starting up] Well, upon my life! Upon my honor and conscience! Now really! I shall go this instant Come on, Sylvia Cuthbertson, I hope youll mark your sense of this sort of thing by coming on to Paramore's with us at once [He marches to the door]

CHARTERIS [desperately] Craven youre trifling with your daughter's happiness I ask only five minutes more

CRAVEN Not five seconds, sir I'm for shame, Charteris! [He goes out]

CUTHBERTSON [to Charteris, as he passes him on his way to the door] Bungler! [He follows Craven]

SYLVIA Serve you right, you duffer! [She follows Cuthbertson]

CHARTERIS Oh, these headstrong old men! [To Grace] Nothing to be done now but go with them, and delay the Colonel as much as possible So I'm afraid I must leave you

GRACE [rising] Not at all Paramore invited me, too

CHARTERIS [aghast] You dont mean to say youre coming!

GRACE Most certainly Do you suppose I will let that woman think I am afraid to meet her? [Charteris sinks on a chair with a prolonged groan] Come dont be silly youll not overtake the Colonel if you delay any longer

CHARTERIS Why was I ever born, child of misfortune that I am! [He rises despairingly] Well, if you must come, you must [He offers his arm, which she takes] By the way, what happened after I left you?

GRACE I gave her a lecture on her behavior which she will remember to the last day of her life

CHARTERIS [approvingly] That was right, darling [He slips his arm round her waist] Just one kiss To soothe me

GRACE [complacently offering her cheek] Foolish boy! [He kisses her] Now come along [They go out together]

Paramore's reception room in Savile Row Viewing the room from the front windows, the door is seen in the opposite wall near the left hand corner Another door, a light noiseless one covered with green baize, leading to the consulting room, is in the right hand wall towards the back The fireplace is on the left At the nearer corner of it a couch is placed at right angles to the wall, settlewise At the other corner, an easy chair On the right the wall is occupied by a book-case, further forward than the green baize door Beyond the door is a cabinet of anatomical pre-

Paramore is seated in a round-backed chair, on castors, pouring out tea. Julia sits opposite him, with her back to the fire. He is in high spirits, she very downcast.

PARAMORE [handing her the cup he has just filled] There! Making tea is one of the few things I consider myself able to do thoroughly well. Cake?

JULIA No, thank you. I don't like sweet things. [She sets down the cup untasted].

PARAMORE Any thing wrong with the tea?

JULIA No. It's very nice.

PARAMORE I'm afraid I'm a bad entertainer. The fact is, I am too professional. I shine only in consultation. I almost wish you had something serious the matter with you, so that you might call out my knowledge and sympathy. As it is, I can only admire you, and feel how pleasant it is to have you here.

JULIA [bitterly] And pet me, and say pretty things to me. I wonder you don't offer me a saucer of milk at once.

PARAMORE [astonished] Why?

JULIA Because you seem to regard me very much as if I were a Persian cat.

PARAMORE [in strong remonstrance] Miss Craven—

JULIA [cutting him short] Oh, you needn't protest. I'm used to it. It's the sort of attachment I seem always to inspire. [Ironically] You can't think how flattering it is.

PARAMORE My dear Miss Craven, what a cynical thing to say! You! who are loved at first sight by the people in the street as you pass. Why, in the club I can tell by the faces of the men whether you have been lately in the room or not.

JULIA [shrinking fiercely] Oh, I hate that look in their faces. Do you know that I have never had one human being care for me since I was born?

PARAMORE That's not true, Miss Craven. Even if it were true of your father, and of Charteris, who loves you madly in spite of your dislike for him, it is not true of me.

JULIA [startled] Who told you that about Charteris?

PARAMORE Why, he himself.

JULIA [with deep, poignant conviction] He cares for only one person in the world, and that is himself. There is not in his whole nature one unselfish spot. He would not spend one hour of his real life with—[a sob chokes her, she rises passionately, crying] You are all alike, every one of you. Even my father only makes a pet of me. [She goes at once to the fireplace, and stands with her back to him to hide her face].

PARAMORE [following her humbly] I don't deserve this from you. Indeed I do not.

JULIA [rating him] Then why do you gossip about me behind my back with Charteris?

PARAMORE We said nothing disparaging of you. Nobody shall ever do that in my presence. We spoke of the subject nearest our hearts.

JULIA His heart! Oh God, his heart! [She sits down on the couch, and covers her face].

PARAMORE [sadly] I am afraid you love him, for all that, Miss Craven.

JULIA [raising her head instantly] If he says that, he lies. If ever you hear it said that I cared for him, contradict it. It is false.

PARAMORE [quickly advancing to her] Miss Craven is the way clear for me then?

JULIA [losing interest in the conversation, and looking crossly away from him] What do you mean?

PARAMORE [impetuously] You must see what I mean. Contradict the rumor of your attachment to Charteris, not by words—it has gone too far for that—but by becoming my wife. [Earnestly] Believe me, it is not merely your beauty that attracts me. [Julia, interested, looks up at him quickly] I know other beautiful women. It is your heart, your sincerity, your sterling reality, [Julia rises and gazes at him, breathless with a new hope] your great gifts of character that are only half developed because you have never been understood by those about you.

JULIA [looking intently at him, and yet beginning to be derisively sceptical in spite of herself] Have you really seen all that in me?

PARAMORE I have felt it. I have been alone in the world, and I need you, Julia. That is how I have divined that you, also, are alone in the world.

JULIA [with theatrical pathos] You are right there. I am indeed alone in the world.

PARAMORE [trudly approaching her] With you I should not be alone. And you with me?

JULIA You! [She gets quietly out of his reach, taking refuge at the teatable] No, no. I can't bring myself—[She breaks off, perplexed, and looks uneasily about her] Oh, I don't know what to do. You will expect too much from me [She sits down]

PARAMORE I have more faith in you than you have in yourself Your nature is richer than you think

JULIA [doubtfully] Do you really believe that I am not the shallow, jealous, devilish tempered creature they all pretend I am?

PARAMORE I am ready to place my happiness in your hands Does that prove what I think of you?

JULIA Yes I believe you really care for me [He approaches her eagerly she has a violent revulsion, and rises with her hands up as if to beat him off, crying] No, no, no, no I cannot It's impossible. [She goes towards the door]

PARAMORE [looking nistfully after her] Is it Charteris?

JULIA [stopping and turning] Ah, you think that! [She comes back] Listen to me If I say yes, will you promise not to touch me? Will you give me time to accustom myself to our new relations?

PARAMORE I promise most faithfully I would not press you for the world

JULIA Then—then— Yes I promise

PARAMORE Oh, how unspeakably hap—

JULIA [stopping his raptures] No not another word Let us forget it [She resumes her seat at the table] I havnt touched my tea [He hastens to his former seat As he passes, she puts her left hand on his arm and says] Be good to me, Percy I need it sorely PARAMORE [transported] You have called me Percy! Hurrah!

Charteris and Craven come in Paramore hastens to meet them, beaming

PARAMORE Delighted to see you here with me, Colonel Craven And you too, Charteris Sit down [The Colonel sits down on the end of the couch] Where are the others?

CHARTERIS Sylvia has dragged Cuthbertson off into the Burlington Arcade to buy some caramels He likes to encourage her in eating caramels he thinks it's a womanly taste Besides, he likes them himself They'll be here presently [He strolls across to the cabinet, and pretends to study the Rembrandt photograph, so as to be as far out of Julia's reach as possible]

Craven Yes, and Charteris has been trying to persuade me that theres a short cut between Cork Street and Savile Row somewhere in Conduit Street Now did you ever hear such nonsense? Then he said my coat was getting shabby, and wanted me to go into Poole's and order a new one Paramore is my coat shabby?

PARAMORE Not that I can see

Craven I should think not Then he wanted to draw me into an argument about the Egyptian war We should have been here quarter of an hour ago only for his nonsense

CHARTERIS [still contemplating Rembrandt] I did my best to keep him from disturbing you, Paramore

PARAMORE [gratefully] You kept him exactly the right time, to a second [Formally] Colonel Craven I have something very particular to say to you

Craven [springing up in alarm] In private, Paramore now really it must be in private

PARAMORE [surprised] Of course I was about to suggest my consulting room theres nobody there Miss Craven will you excuse me Charteris will entertain you until I return [He leads the way to the green baize door]

CHARTERIS [aghas] Oh, I say, hadnt you better wait until the others come?

PARAMORE [exultant] No need for further delay now, my best friend [He wrings Charteris's hand] Will you come, Colonel?

Craven At your service, Paramore at your service

Craven and Paramore go into the consulting room Julia turns her head, and stares insolently at Charteris His nerves play him false he is completely out of countenance in a moment She rises suddenly He starts, and comes hastily forward between the table and the bookcase She crosses to that side behind the table, and he immediately crosses to the opposite side in front of it, dodging her

CHARTERIS [nervously] Dont, Julia Now dont abuse your advantage Youve got me here at your mercy Be good for once, and dont make a scene

JULIA [contemptuously] Do you suppose I am going to touch you?

CHARTERIS No Of course not

She comes forward on her side of the table He retreats on his side of it She looks at him with utter scorn, sneeps across to the couch, and sits down imperially With a great sigh of relief he drops into Paramore's chair

JULIA Come here I have something to say to you

CHARTERIS Yes? [He rolls the chair a few inches towards her]

JULIA Come here, I say I am not going to shout across the room at you Are you afraid of me?

CHARTERIS Horribly [He moves the chair slowly, with great misgiving, to the end of the couch]

JULIA [with studied insolence] Has that woman told you that she has given you up to me without an attempt to defend her conquest?

CHARTERIS [whispering persuasively] Shew that you are capable of the same sacrifice. Give me up too.

JULIA Sacrifice! And so you think I'm dying to marry you, do you?

CHARTERIS I am afraid your intentions have been honorable, Julia.

JULIA You cad!

CHARTERIS [with a sigh] I confess I am something either more or less than a gentleman, Julia. You once gave me the benefit of the doubt.

JULIA Indeed! I never told you so. If you cannot behave like a gentleman, you had better go back to the society of the woman who has given you up: if such a coldblooded, cowardly creature can be called a woman [She rises majestically, he makes his chair fly back to the table] I know you now, Leonard Charteris, through and through, in all your falseness, your petty spite, your cruelty and your vanity. The place you coveted has been won by a man more worthy of it.

CHARTERIS [springing up, and coming close to her, gasping with eagerness] What do you mean? Out with it. Have you accep—

JULIA I am engaged to Dr Paramore.

CHARTERIS [enraptured] My own Julia! [He attempts to embrace her]

JULIA [recoiling, he catching her hands and holding them] How dare you! Are you mad? Do you wish me to call Dr Paramore?

CHARTERIS Call everybody, my darling—everybody in London. Now I shall no longer have to be brutal, to defend myself, to go in fear of you. How I have looked forward to this day! You know now that I don't want you to marry me or to love me. Paramore can have all that. I only want to look on and rejoice disinterestedly in the happiness of [kissing her hand] my dear Julia [kissing the other], my beautiful Julia [She tears her hands away and raises them as if to strike him, as she did the night before at Cuthbertson's, he faces them with joyous recklessness] No use to threaten me now. I am not afraid of those hands, the loveliest hands in the world.

JULIA How have you the face to turn round like this after insulting and torturing me?

CHARTERIS Never mind, dearest. You never did understand me, and you never will. Our wiseacting friend has made a successful experiment at last.

JULIA [earnestly] It is you who are the wiseactor—a far crueler, more wanton wiseactor than he.

CHARTERIS Yes, but then I learn so much more from my experiments than he does! And the victims learn as much as I do. That's where my moral superiority comes in.

JULIA [sitting down again on the couch with rueful humor] Well, you shall not experiment on me any more. Go to your Grace if you want a victim. She'll be a tough one.

CHARTERIS [reproachfully, sitting down beside her] And you drove me to propose to her to escape from you! Suppose she had accepted me, where should I be now?

JULIA Where I am, I suppose, now that I have accepted Paramore.

CHARTERIS But I should have made Grace unhappy [Julia sneers]. However, now I come to think of it, you'll make Paramore unhappy. And yet if you refused him he would be in despair. Poor devil!

JULIA [her temper flashing up for a moment again] He is a better man than you.

CHARTERIS [humbly] I grant you that, my dear.

JULIA [impetuously] Don't call me your dear. And what do you mean by saying that I shall make him unhappy? Am I not good enough for him?

CHARTERIS [dubiously] Well, that depends on what you mean by good enough.

JULIA [earnestly] You might have made me good if you had chosen to. You had a great power over me. I was like a child in your hands, and you knew it.

CHARTERIS Yes, my dear. That means that whenever you got jealous and flew into a tearing rage, I could always depend on its ending happily if I only waited long enough, and petted you very hard all the time. When you had had your fling, and called the object of your jealousy every name you could lay your tongue to, and abused me to your heart's content for a couple of hours, then the reaction would come and you would at last subside into a soothing rapture of affection which gave you a sensation of being angelically good and forgiving. Oh, I know that sort of goodness! You may have thought on these occasions that I was bringing out your latent amiability, but I thought you were bringing out mine, and using up rather more than your fair share of it

JULIA According to you, then, I have no good in me I am an utterly vile, worthless woman Is that it?

CHARTERIS Yes, if you are to be judged as you judge others From the conventional point of view, theres nothing to be said for you, Julia nothing Thats why I have to find some other point of view to save my self-respect when I remember how I have loved you Oh, what I have learnt from you! from you! who could learn nothing from me! I made a fool of you, and you brought me wisdom I broke your heart, and you brought me joy I made you curse your womanhood, and you revealed my manhood to me Blessings for ever and ever on my Julia's name! [With genuine emotion, he takes her hand to kiss it again]

JULIA [snatching her hand away in disgust] Oh, stop talking that nasty sneering stuff

CHARTERIS [laughingly appealing to the heavens] She calls it nasty sneering stuff! Well, well I'll never talk like that to you again, dearest It only means that you are a beautiful woman, and that we all love you

JULIA Dont say that I hate it It sounds as if I were a mere animal

CHARTERIS Hm! A fine animal is a very wonderful thing Dont let us disparage animals, Julia

JULIA That is what you really think me

CHARTERIS Come, Julia! you dont expect me to admire you for your moral qualities, do you?

Julia turns and looks hard at him He starts up apprehensively, and backs away from her She rises and follows him up slowly and intently

JULIA [deliberately] I have seen you very much infatuated with this depraved creature who has no moral qualities

CHARTERIS [retreating] Keep off, Julia Remember your new obligations to Paramore

JULIA [overtaking him in the middle of the room] Never mind Paramore that is my business [She grasps the lappels of his coat in her hands, and looks fixedly at him] Oh, if the people you talk so cleverly to could only know you as I know you! Sometimes I wonder at myself for ever caring for you

CHARTERIS [beaming at her] Only sometimes?

JULIA You fraud! You humbug! You miserable little-plaster saint! [He looks delighted] Oh! [In a paroxysm half of rage, half of tenderness, she shakes him, growling over him like a tigress over her cub]

Paramore and Craven return from the consulting room, and are thunderstruck at the spectacle

Craven [shouting, utterly scandalized] Julia! Julia releases Charteris, but stands her ground disdainfully as they come forward, Craven on her left, Paramore on her right

PARAMORE Whats the matter?

CHARTERIS Nothing, nothing Youll soon get used to this, Paramore

Craven Now really, Julia, this is a very extraordinary way to behave Its not fair to Paramore

JULIA [coldly] If Dr Paramore objects, he can break off our engagement [To Paramore] Pray dont hesitate PARAMORE [looking doubtfully and anxiously at her] Do you wish me to break it off?

CHARTERIS [alarmed] Nonsense! dont act so hastily It was my fault I annoyed Miss Craven—insulted her Hang it all, dont go and spoil everything like this Craven This is most infernally perplexing I cant believe that you insulted Julia, Charteris Ive no doubt you annoyed her youd annoy anybody upon my soul you would, but insult! now what do you mean by that?

PARAMORE [very earnestly] Miss Craven in all delicacy and sincerity I ask you to be frank with me What are the relations between you and Charteris?

JULIA [enigmatically] Ask him [She goes to the fireplace, turning her back on them]

CHARTERIS Certainly I'll confess I'm in love with Miss Craven Ive persecuted her with my addresses ever since I knew her Its been no use she utterly despises me A moment ago the spectacle of a rival's happiness stung me to make a nasty sneering speech, and she—well, she just shook me a little, as you saw

PARAMORE [chivalrously] I shall never forget that you helped me to win her, Charteris [Julia turns quickly, a spasm of fury in her face]

CHARTERIS Sh! For Heaven's sake dont mention it

Craven This is a very different story to the one you told Cuthbertson and myself this morning Youll excuse my saying that it sounds much more like the truth Come! you were humbugging us, weren't you?

CHARTERIS [enigmatically] Ask Julia

Paramore and Craven turn to Julia Charteris remains doggedly looking straight before him

JULIA It's quite true. He has been in love with me, he has persecuted me, and I utterly despise him

CrAVEN Dont rub it in, Julia it's not kind. No man is quite himself when he's crossed in love [To Charteris] Now listen to me, Charteris. When I was a young fellow, Cuthbertson and I fell in love with the same woman. She preferred Cuthbertson. I was taken aback. I wont deny it. But I knew my duty, and I did it. I gave her up, and wished Cuthbertson joy. He told me this morning, when we met after many years, that he has respected and liked me ever since for it. And I believe him, and feel the better for it [Impressively] Now, Charteris. Paramore and you stand today where Cuthbertson and I stood on a certain July evening thirty-five years ago. How are you going to take it?

JULIA [indignantly] How is he going to take it, indeed! Really, papa, this is too much. If Mrs Cuthbertson wouldnt have you, it may have been very noble of you to make a virtue of giving her up, just as you made a virtue of being a teetotaller when Percy cut off your wine. But he shant be virtuous over me. I have refused him, and if he doesnt like it he can—he can—

CHARTERIS I can lump it. Precisely. Craven you can depend on me. I'll lump it [He moves off nonchalantly, and leans against the bookcase with his hands in his pockets]

CrAVEN [hurt] Julia you dont treat me respectfully. I dont wish to complain, but that was not a becoming speech.

JULIA [bursting into tears, and throwing herself into the easy chair] Is there any one in the world who has any feeling for me? who does not think me utterly vile?

Craven and Paramore hurry to her in the greatest consternation

CrAVEN [remorsefully] My pet. I didnt for a moment mean—

JULIA Must I stand to be bargained for by two men—passed from one to the other like a slave in the market, and not say a word in my own defence?

CrAVEN But, my love—

JULIA Oh, go away, all of you. Leave me I—oh—[she gives way to a passion of tears]

PARAMORE [reproachfully to Craven] Youve wounded her cruelly, Colonel Craven. Cruelly.

CrAVEN But I didnt mean to. I said nothing. Charteris was I harsh?

CHARTERIS You forget the revolt of the daughters, Craven. And you certainly wouldnt have gone on like that to any grown-up woman who was not your daughter.

CrAVEN Do you mean to say that I am expected to treat my daughter the same as I would any other girl?

PARAMORE I should say certainly, Colonel Craven.

CrAVEN Well, dash me if I will. There!

PARAMORE If you take that tone I have nothing more to say [He crosses the room with offended dignity, and posts himself with his back to the bookcase beside Charteris]

JULIA [with a sob] Daddy

CrAVEN [turning solicitously to her] Yes, my love.

JULIA [looking up at him tearfully, and kissing his hand] Dont mind them. You didnt mean it, Daddy, did you?

CrAVEN No, no, my precious. Come dont cry.

PARAMORE [to Charteris, looking at Julia with delight] How beautiful she is!

CHARTERIS [throwing up his hands] Oh Lord help you, Paramore! [He leaves the bookcase, and sits at the end of the couch farthest from the fire]

Sylvia arrives

Sylvia [contemplating Julia] Crying again! Well, you are a womanly one!

CrAVEN Dont worry your sister, Sylvia. You know she cant bear it.

Sylvia I speak for her good, Dad. All the world cant be expected to know that she's the family baby.

JULIA You will get your ears boxed presently. Silly.

CrAVEN Now! now! now! my dear children, really now! Come, Julia put up your handkerchief before Mrs Tranfield sees you. She's coming along with Jo.

JULIA [rising] That woman again!

Sylvia Another row! Go it Julia!

CrAVEN Hold your tongue, Sylvia [He turns commandingly to Julia] Now look here Julia.

CHARTERIS Hallo! A revolt of the father!

CrAVEN Silence, Charteris [To Julia, earnestly] The test of a mans or a womans breeding is how they behave in a quarrel Anybody can behave well when things are going smoothly Now you said today, at that iniquitous club, that you were not a womanly woman Very well I dont mind But if you are not going to behave like a lady when Mrs Tranfield comes into this room, youve got to behave like a gentleman, or fond as I am of you, I'll cut you dead exactly as I would if you were my son

PARAMORE [remonstrating] Colonel Craven—

CAVEN [cutting him short] Dont be a fool, Paramore

JULIA [tearfully excusing herself] I'm sure,
Daddy—

CAVEN Stop snivelling I'm not speaking as your Daddy now I'm speaking as your commanding officer

SYLVIA Good old Victoria Cross! [Craven turns sharply on her, and she darts away behind Charteris, and presently seats herself on the couch, so that she and Charteris are shoulder to shoulder, facing opposite ways]

Cuthbertson arrives with Grace, who remains near the door whilst her father joins the others

CAVEN Ah, Jo, here you are Now, Paramore tell em the news

PARAMORE Mrs Tranfield Cuthbertson allow me to introduce you to my future wife

CUTHBERTSON [coming forward to shake hands with Paramore] My heartiest congratulations!
Miss Craven you will accept Grace's congratulations as well as mine, I hope

CAVEN She will, Jo [Peremptorily] Now, Julia

Julia slowly rises

CUTHBERTSON Now, Grace [He conducts her to Julia's right, then posts himself on the hearthrug, with his back to the fire, watching them, whilst the Colonel keeps guard on the other side]

GRACE [speaking in a low voice to Julia alone]
So you have shewn him that you can do without him! Now I take back everything I said Will you shake hands with me? [Julia gives her hand painfully, with her face averted] They think this a happy ending, Julia, these men our lords and masters!

The two stand silent hand in hand

SYLVIA [leaning back across the couch, aside to Charteris] Has she really chucked you? [He nods assent She looks at him dubiously, and adds]
I expect you chucked her

CUTHBERTSON And now, Paramore, mind you dont stand any chaff from Charteris about this He's in the same predicament himself

He's engaged to Grace

JULIA [dropping Grace's hand, and speaking with breathless anguish, but not violently] Again!

CHARTERIS [rising hastily] Dont be alarmed
It's all off

SYLVIA [rising indignantly] What! Youve chucked Grace too! What a shame! [She goes to the other side of the room, fuming]

CHARTERIS [following her, and putting his hand soothingly on her shoulder] She wont have me, old chap That is [turning to the others], unless Mrs Tranfield has changed her mind again

GRACE No we shall remain very good friends, I hope, but nothing would induce me to marry you [She takes the easy chair at the fireplace, and sits down with perfect composure]

JULIA Ah! [She sits down on the couch with a great sigh of relief]

SYLVIA [consoling Charteris] Poor old Leonard!

CHARTERIS Yes this is the doom of the philanderer I shall have to go on philander-ing now all my life No domesticity, no fireside, no little ones, nothing at all in Cuth-bertson's line! Nobody will marry me—unless you, Sylvia eh?

SYLVIA Not if I know it, Charteris

CHARTERIS [to them all] You see!

CAVEN [coming between Charteris and Sylvia]
Now you really shouldnt make a jest of these things upon my life and soul you shouldnt, Charteris

CUTHBERTSON [on the hearthrug] The only use he can find for sacred things is to make a jest of them Thats the New Order Thank Heaven, we belong to the Old Order, Dan!

CHARTERIS Cuthbertson dont be symbolic CUTHBERTSON [outraged] Symbolic! That is an accusation of Ibsenism What do you mean?

CHARTERIS Symbolic of the Old Order
Dont persuade yourself that you represent the Old Order There never was any Old Order

CAVEN There I flatly contradict you, and stand up for Jo I'd no more have behaved as you do when I was a young man than I'd have cheated at cards I belong to the Old Order

CHARTERIS Youre getting old, Craven, and you want to make a merit of it, as usual

CAVEN Come now, Charteris, youre not offended, I hope [With a conciliatory outburst]
Well, perhaps I shouldnt have said that about cheating at cards I withdraw it [offering his hand]

MRS WARREN'S PROFESSION

 CHARTERIS [taking Craven's hand] No offence, my dear Craven none in the world I didn't mean to show any temper But [aside, after looking round to see whether the others are listening] only just consider! the spectacle of a rival's happiness! the—CRAVEN [aloud, decisively] Charteris now you've got to behave like a man Your duty's plain before you [To Cuthbertson] Am I right, Jo?
 CUTHBERTSON [firmly] You are, Dan
 CRAVEN [to Charteris] Go straight up and congratulate Julia And do it like a gentleman, smiling CHARTERIS Colonel I will Not a quiver shall betray the conflict within CRAVEN Julia Charteris has not congratulated you yet He's coming to do it
 Julia rises, and fixes a dangerous look on Charteris
 SYLVIA [whispering quickly behind Charteris] as he is about to advance] Take care She's going to hit you I know her Charteris stops and looks cautiously at Julia, measuring the situation They regard one another steadily for a moment Grace softly rises and gets close to Julia
 CHARTERIS [whispering over his shoulder to Sylvia] I'll chance it [He walks confidently up to Julia] Julia? [He proffers his hand]
 JULIA [exhausted, allowing herself to take it] You are right I am a worthless woman CHARTERIS [triumphant, and gaily remonstrating] Oh, why?
 JULIA Because I am not brave enough to kill you
 GRACE [taking her in her arms as she sinks, almost fainting away from him] Oh no Never make a hero of a philanderer
 Charteris, amused and untouched, shakes his head laughingly The rest look at Julia with concern, and even a little awe, feeling for the first time the presence of a keen sorron
 THE END

III MRS WARREN'S PROFESSION 1894 BEING THE THIRD OF THREE UNPLEASANT PLAYS

ACT I

Summer afternoon in a cottage garden on the eastern slope of a hill a little south of Haslemere in Surrey Looking up the hill, the cottage is seen in the left hand corner of the garden, with its thatched roof and porch, and a large latticed window to the left of the porch A paling completely shuts the garden, except for a gate on the right The common rises uphill beyond the paling to the sky line Some folded canvas garden chairs are leaning against the side bench in the porch A lady's bicycle is propped against the wall, under the window A little to the right of the porch a hammock is slung from two posts A big canvas umbrella, stuck in the ground, keeps the sun off the hammock, in which a young lady lies reading and making notes, her head towards the cottage and her feet towards the gate In front of the hammock, and within reach of her hand, is a common kitchen chair, with a pile of serious-looking books and a supply of writing paper on it

A gentleman walking on the common comes into sight from behind the cottage He is hardly past middle age, with something of the artist about him, un conventionally but carefully dressed, and clean-shaven except for a moustache, with an eager susceptible face and very amiable and considerate manners He has silky black hair with waves of grey and white in it His eyebrows are white, his moustache black He seems not certain of his way He looks over the paling, takes stock of the place, and sees the young lady
 THE GENTLEMAN [taking off his hat] I beg your pardon Can you direct me to Hindhead View—Mrs Alison's?
 THE YOUNG LADY [glaring up from her book] This is Mrs Alison's [She resumes her novel]
 THE GENTLEMAN Indeed! Perhaps—may I ask are you Miss Vivie Warren?
 THE YOUNG LADY [sharply, as she rises to her elbow to get a good look at him] Yes
 THE GENTLEMAN [downted and conciliatory]

I'm afraid I appear intrusive My name is Praed [Flies at once throws her boots upon the chair, and gets out of the hammock] Oh, pray dont let me disturb you

VIVIE [striding to the gate and opening it for him] Come in Mr Praed [He comes in] Glad to see you [She proffers her hand and takes his with a resolute and hearty grip She is an attractive specimen of the sensible, able, highly-educated young middle-class Englishwoman Age 22 Prompt, strong, confident self-possessed Plain business-like dress, but not dordy She wears a chatelaine at her belt, with a fountain pen and a paper knife among its pendants]

PRAED Very kind of you indeed Miss Warren [She shuts the gate with a vigorous slam He passes in to the middle of the garden, exercising his fingers which are slightly numbed by her greeting] Has your mother arrived?

VIVIE [quickly evidently scenting aggression] Is she coming?

PRAED [surprised] Didnt you expect us?

VIVIE No

PRAED Now goodness me I hope I've not mistaken the day That would be just like me, you know Your mother arranged that she was to come down from London and that I was to come over from Horsham to be introduced to you

VIVIE [not at all pleased] Did she? Hm! My mother has rather a trick of taking me by surprise—to see how I behave myself when she's away, I suppose I fancy I shall take my mother very much by surprise one of these days, if she makes arrangements that concern me without consulting me beforehand She hasn't come.

PRAED [embarrassed] I'm really very sorry

VIVIE [throwing off her displeasure] It's not your fault Mr Praed, is it? And I'm very glad you've come You are the only one of my mother's friends I have ever asked her to bring to see me

PRAED [relieved and delighted] Oh, now this is really very good of you, Miss Warren!

VIVIE Will you come indoors, or would you rather sit out here and talk?

PRAED It will be nicer out here, dont you think?

VIVIE Then I'll go and get you a chair [She goes to the porch for a garden chair]

PRAED [following her] Oh, pray, pray! Allow me [He lays hands on the chair]

VIVIE [letting him take it] Take care of your fingers they're rather dodgy things, those chairs [She goes across to the chair with the boots on it, pitches them into the hammock, and brings the chair forward with one swing]

PRAED [who has just unfolded his chair] Oh, now do let me take that hard chair I like hard chairs

VIVIE So do I Sit down, Mr Praed [This invitation she gives with genial peremptoriness, his anxiety to please her clearly striking her as a sign of weakness of character on his part But he does not immediately obey]

PRAED By the way, though, hadn't we better go to the station to meet your mother?

VIVIE [coolly] Why? She knows the way

PRAED [disconcerted] Er—I suppose she does [he sits down]

VIVIE Do you know, you are just like what I expected I hope you are disposed to be friends with me.

PRAED [again beaming] Thank you my dear Miss Warren thank you Dear me! I'm so glad your mother hasn't spoilt you!

VIVIE How?

PRAED Well, in making you too conventional You know my dear Miss Warren, I am a born anarchist. I hate authority It spoils the relations between parent and child even between mother and daughter Now I was always afraid that your mother would strain her authority to make you very conventional It's such a relief to find that she hasn't VIVIE Oh! have I been behaving unconventionally?

PRAED Oh no oh dear no At least not conventionally unconventionally you understand [She nods and sits down He goes on with a cordial outburst] But it was so charming of you to say that you were disposed to be friends with me! You modern young ladies are splendid perfectly splendid!

VIVIE [dubiously] Eh? [natching him with dawning disappointment as to the quality of his brains and character]

PRAED When I was your age, young men and women were afraid of each other there was no good fellowship Nothing real Only gallantry copied out of novels, and as vulgar and affected as it could be Maidenly reserve! gentlemanly chivalry! always saying no when you meant yes! simple purgatory for shy and sincere souls

VIVIE Yes I imagine there must have been a frightful waste of time Especially women's time

PRAED Oh. waste of life, waste of everything But things are improving Do you know, I have been in a positive state of excitement about meeting you ever since your magnificent achievements at Cambridge a thing unheard of in my day It was perfectly splendid, your tying with the third wrangler Just the right place, you know The first wrangler is always a dreamy, morbid fellow, in whom the thing is pushed to the length of a disease

VIVIE It doesn't pay I wouldn't do it again for the same money

PRAED [aghast] The same money!

VIVIE I did it for £50

PRAED Fifty pounds!

VIVIE Yes Fifty pounds Perhaps you don't know how it was Miss Latham, my tutor at Newnham, told my mother that I could distinguish myself in the mathematical tripos if I went in for it in earnest The papers were full just then of Philippa Summers beating the senior wrangler You remember about it, of course

PRAED [shakes his head energetically]

VIVIE Well anyhow she did, and nothing would please my mother but that I should do the same thing I said flatly it was not worth my while to face the grind since I was not going in for teaching, but I offered to try for fourth wrangler or thereabouts for £50 She closed with me at that, after a little grumbling, and I was better than my bargain But I wouldn't do it again for that £200 would have been nearer the mark

PRAED [much damped] Lord bless me! That's a very practical way of looking at it

VIVIE Did you expect to find me an unpractical person?

PRAED But surely it's practical to consider not only the work these honors cost, but also the culture they bring

VIVIE Culture! My dear Mr Praed do you know what the mathematical tripos means? It means grind, grind, grind for six to eight hours a day at mathematics, and nothing but mathematics I'm supposed to know something about science, but I know nothing except the mathematics it involves I can make calculations for engineers, electricians, insurance companies, and so on, but I know next to nothing about engineering or electricity or insurance I don't even know arithmetic well Outside mathematics, lawn-tennis, eating, sleeping, cycling, and walking, I'm a more ignorant barbarian than any woman could possibly be who hadn't gone in for the tripos

PRAED [recoiled] What a monstrous, vicious, rascally system! I knew it! I felt it once that it meant destroying all that makes womanhood beautiful

VIVIE I don't object to it on that score in the least I shall turn it to very good account I assure you

PRAED Pooh! In what way?

VIVIE I shall set up in chambers in the City, and work at actuarial calculations and conveyancing Under cover of that I shall do something, with one eye on the Stock Exchange all the time I've come down here by myself to read law not for a holiday, as my mother imagines I hate holidays

PRAED You make my blood run cold Are you to have no romance, no beauty in your life?

VIVIE I don't care for either, I assure you

PRAED You can't mean that

VIVIE Oh, yes I do I like working and getting paid for it When I'm tired of working I like a comfortable chair, a cigar, a little whisky, and a novel with a good detective story in it

PRAED [rising in a frenzy of repudiation] I don't believe it I am an artist, and I can't believe it I refuse to believe it It's only that you haven't discovered yet what a wonderful world art can open up to you

VIVIE Yes I have Last May I spent six weeks in London with Honoria Fraser Mamma thought we were doing a round of sight-seeing together, but I was really at Honoria's chamber in Chancery Lane every day, working away at actuarial calculations for her, and helping her as well as a greenhorn could In the evenings we smoked and talked, and never dreamt of going out except for exercise And I never enjoyed myself more in my life I cleared all my expenses, and got initiated into the business without a fee into the bargain

PRAED But bless my heart and soul, Miss Warren, do you call that discovering art?

VIVIE Wait a bit That wasn't the beginning I went up to town on an invitation from some artistic people in Fitzjohn's Avenue one of the girls was a Newnham chum They took me to the National Gallery—

PRAED [approving] Ah! [He sits down, relieved]

VIVIE [continuing]—to the Opera—

PRAED [still more pleased] Good!

VIVIE—and to a concert where the band played all the evening. Beethoven and Wagner and so on I wouldn't go through that experience again for anything you could offer me I held out for civility's sake until the third day, and then I said, plump out, that I couldn't stand any more of it, and went off to Chancery Lane Now you know the sort of perfectly splendid modern young lady I am How do you think I shall get on with my mother?

PRAED [startled] Well, I hope—er—

VIVIE It's not so much what you hope as what you believe, that I want to know

PRAED Well, frankly, I am afraid your mother will be a little disappointed Not from any shortcoming on your part, you know I don't mean that But you are so different from her ideal VIVIE Her what?

PRAED Her ideal

VIVIE Do you mean her ideal of me?

PRAED Yes

VIVIE What on earth is it like?

PRAED Well, you must have observed, Miss Warren, that people who are dissatisfied with their own bringing-up generally think that the world would be all right if everybody were to be brought up quite differently Now your mother's life has been—er—I suppose you know—

VIVIE Don't suppose anything, Mr Praed I hardly know my mother Since I was a child I have lived in England, at school or college, or with people paid to take charge of me I have been boarded out all my life My mother has lived in Brussels or Vienna and never let me go to her I only see her when she visits England for a few days I don't complain it's been very pleasant, for people have been very good to me, and there has always been plenty of money to make things smooth But don't imagine I know anything about my mother I know far less than you do

PRAED [very ill at ease] In that case—[He stops, quite at a loss Then, with a forced attempt at gaiety] But what nonsense we are talking! Of course you and your mother will get on capitally [He rises, and looks abroad at the view] What a charming little place you have here!

VIVIE [unmoved] Rather a violent change of subject, Mr Praed Why won't my mother's life bear being talked about?

PRAED Oh, you really mustn't say that Isn't it natural that I should have a certain delicacy in talking to my old friend's daughter about her behind her back? You and she will have plenty of opportunity of talking about it when she comes

VIVIE No she won't talk about it either [Rising] However, I daresay you have good reasons for telling me nothing Only, mind this, Mr Praed I expect there will be a battle royal when my mother hears of my Chancery Lane project

PRAED [ruefully] I'm afraid there will

VIVIE Well, I shall win, because I want nothing but my fare to London to start there to-morrow earning my own living by devilling for Honoria Besides, I have no mysteries to keep up, and it seems she has I shall use that advantage over her if necessary

PRAED [greatly shocked] Oh no! No, pray, you'd not do such a thing

VIVIE Then tell me why not

PRAED I really cannot I appeal to your good feeling [She smiles at his sentimentality] Besides, you may be too bold Your mother is not to be trifled with when she's angry

VIVIE You can't frighten me, Mr Praed In that month at Chancery Lane I had opportunities of taking the measure of one or two women very like my mother You may back me to win But if I hit harder in my ignorance than I need, remember that it is you who refuse to enlighten me Now, let us drop the subject [She takes her chair and replaces it near the hammock with the same vigorous spring as before]

PRAED [taking a desperate resolution] One word, Miss Warren I had better tell you It's very difficult, but—

Mrs Warren and Sir George Crofts arrive at the gate Mrs Warren is between 40 and 50, formerly pretty, shonily dressed in a brilliant hat and a gay blouse fitting tightly over her bust and flanked by fashionable sleeves Rather spoilt and domineering, and decidedly vulgar, but, on the whole, a genial and fairly presentable old blackguard of a woman

Crofts is a tall powerfully-built man of about 50, fashionably dressed in the style of a young man Nasal voice, reedier than might be expected from his strong frame Clean-shaven bulldog jaws, large flat ears, and thick neck gentlemanly combination of the most brutal types of city man, sporting man, and man about town

VIVIE Here they are [Coming to them as they enter the garden] How do, mater? Mr

Praed's been here this half hour, waiting for you

MRS WARREN Well, if you've been waiting, Praddy, it's your own fault. I thought you'd have had the gumption to know I was coming by the 3.10 train. Vivie put your hat on, dear, you'll get sunburnt. Oh, I forgot to introduce you. Sir George Crofts, my little Vivie.

Crofts advances to Vivie with his most courtly manner. She nods, but makes no motion to shake hands.

CROFTS May I shake hands with a young lady whom I have known by reputation very long as the daughter of one of my oldest friends?

VIVIE [who has been looking him up and down sharply] If you like. [She takes his tenderly proffered hand and gives it a squeeze that makes him open his eyes, then turns away, and says to her mother] Will you come in, or shall I get a couple more chairs? [She goes into the porch for the chairs]

MRS WARREN Well, George, what do you think of her?

CROFTS [ruefully] She has a powerful fist. Did you shake hands with her, Praed?

PRAED Yes, it will pass off presently.

CROFTS I hope so. [Vivie reappears with two more chairs. He hurries to her assistance]. Allow me.

MRS WARREN [patronisingly] Let Sir George help you with the chairs, dear.

VIVIE [pitching them into his arms] Here you are. [She dusts her hands and turns to Mrs Warren] You'd like some tea, wouldn't you?

MRS WARREN [sitting in Praed's chair and fanning herself] I'm dying for a drop to drink.

VIVIE I'll see about it. [She goes into the cottage].

Sir George has by this time managed to unfold a chair and plant it beside Mrs Warren, on her left. He throws the other on the grass and sits down, looking dejected and rather foolish, with the handle of his stick in his mouth. Praed, still very uneasy, fidgets about the garden on their right.

MRS WARREN [to Praed, looking at Crofts] Just look at him, Praddy, he looks cheerful, don't he? He's been worrying my life out these three years to have that little girl of mine shewn to him, and now that I've done it, he's quite out of countenance. [Bristly] Come! sit up, George, and take your stick out of your mouth. [Crofts sulkily obeys].

PRAED I think, you know—if you don't mind my saying so—that we had better get out of the habit of thinking of her as a little girl. You see she has really distinguished herself, and I'm not sure, from what I have seen of her, that she is not older than any of us.

MRS WARREN [greatly amused] Only listen to him, George! Older than any of us! Well, she has been stuffing you nicely with her importance.

PRAED But young people are particularly sensitive about being treated in that way.

MRS WARREN Yes, and young people have to get all that nonsense taken out of them, and a good deal more besides. Don't you interfere, Praddy. I know how to treat my own child as well as you do. [Praed, with a grave shake of his head, walks up the garden, with his hands behind his back. Mrs Warren pretends to laugh, but looks after him with perceptible concern. Then she whispers to Crofts] What's the matter with him? What does he take it like that for?

CROFTS [morosely] You're afraid of Praed.

MRS WARREN What! Me! Afraid of dear old Praddy! Why, a fly wouldn't be afraid of him.

CROFTS You're afraid of him.

MRS WARREN [angry] I'll trouble you to mind your own business and not try any of your sulks on me. I'm not afraid of you, anyhow. If you can't make yourself agreeable, you'd better go home. [She gets up, and, turning her back on him, finds herself face to face with Praed]. Come, Praddy, I know it was only your tender-heartedness. You're afraid I'll bully her.

PRAED My dear Kitty, you think I'm offended. Don't imagine that. Pray don't. But you know I often notice things that escape you, and though you never take my advice, you sometimes admit afterwards that you ought to have taken it.

MRS WARREN Well, what do you notice now?

PRAED Only that Vivie is a grown woman. Pray, Kitty, treat her with every respect.

MRS WARREN [with genuine amazement] Respect! Treat my own daughter with respect! What next, pray!

VIVIE [appearing at the cottage door and calling to Mrs Warren] Mother, will you come to my room before tea?

MRS WARREN Yes, dearie. [She looks significantly at Praed's gravestone, and points to it with her cheek as she passes him on her way to the porch]. Don't be cross, Praddy. [She follows her into the cottage]

CROFTS [furtively] I say, Praed

PRÆD Yes

CROFTS I want to ask you a rather particular question

PRÆD Certainly [He takes Mrs Warren's chair and sits close to Crofts]

CROFTS That's right they might hear us from the window Look here did Kitty ever tell you who that girl's father is?

PRÆD Never

CROFTS Have you any suspicion of who it might be?

PRÆD None

CROFTS [not believing him] I know, of course, that you perhaps might feel bound not to tell if she had said anything to you But it's very awkward to be uncertain about it now that we shall be meeting the girl every day We don't exactly know how we ought to feel towards her PRÆD What difference can that make? We take her on her own merits What does it matter who her father was?

CROFTS [suspiciously] Then you know who he was?

PRÆD [with a touch of temper] I said no just now Did you not hear me?

CROFTS Look here, Praed I ask you as a particular favor If you do know [movement of protest from Praed]*—*I only say, if you know, you might at least set my mind at rest about her The fact is I feel attracted.

PRÆD [sternly] What do you mean?

CROFTS Oh don't be alarmed it's quite an innocent feeling That's what puzzles me about it Why, for all I know, I might be her father

PRÆD You! Impossible!

CROFTS [catching him up cunningly] You know for certain that I'm not?

PRÆD I know nothing about it, I tell you, any more than you But really, Crofts—oh no, it's out of the question There's not the least resemblance

CROFTS As to that, there's no resemblance between her and her mother that I can see I suppose she's not your daughter, is she?

PRÆD [rising indignantly] Really, Crofts—!

CROFTS No offence Praed Quite allowable as between two men of the world

PRÆD [recollecting himself with an effort and speaking gently and gravely] Now listen to me, my dear Crofts [He sits down again] I have nothing to do with that side of Mrs Warren's life and never had She has never spoken to me about it, and of course I have never spoken to her about it Your delicacy will tell you that a handsome woman needs some friends who are not—well not on that footing with her The effect of her own beauty would become a torment to her if she could not escape from it occasionally You are probably on much more confidential terms with Kitty than I am Surely you can ask her the question yourself

CROFTS I have asked her, often enough But she's so determined to keep the child all to herself that she would deny that it ever had a father if she could [Rising] I'm thoroughly uncomfortable about it, Praed

PRÆD [rising also] Well, as you are, at all events, old enough to be her father I don't mind agreeing that we both regard Miss Vivie in a parental way, as a young girl whom we are bound to protect and help What do you say?

CROFTS [aggressively] I'm no older than you, if you come to that

PRÆD Yes you are, my dear fellow you were born old I was born a boy I've never been able to feel the assurance of a grown-up man in my life [He folds his chair and carries it to the porch]

MRS WARREN [calling from within the cottage] Prad-dee! George! Tea-ea-ea-ea!

CROFTS [hastily] She's calling us [He hurries in]

Praed shakes his head bodingly, and is following Crofts when he is hailed by a young gentleman who has just appeared on the common and is making for the gate He is pleasant, pretty, smartly dressed, cleverly good-for-nothing, not long turned 20, with a charming voice and agreeably disrespectful manners He carries a light sporting magazine rifle

THE YOUNG GENTLEMAN Hallo! Praed!

PRÆD Why, Frank Gardner! [Frank comes in and shakes hands cordially] What on earth are you doing here?

FRANK Staying with my father

PRÆD The Roman father?

FRANK He's rector here I'm living with my people this autumn for the sake of economy Things came to a crisis in July the Roman father had to pay my debts He's stony broke in consequence, and so am I What are you up to in these parts? Do you know the people here?

PRÆD Yes I'm spending the day with a

Miss Warren

FRANK [enthusiastically] What! Do you know Vivie? Isn't she a jolly girl? I'm teaching her to shoot with this [putting down the rifle] I'm so glad she knows you you're just the sort of fellow she ought to know [He smiles, and raises the charming voice almost to a singing tone as he exclaims] It's ever so jolly to find you here, Praed

PRAED I'm an old friend of her mother Mrs Warren brought me over to make her daughter's acquaintance

FRANK The mother! Is she here?

PRAED Yes inside, at tea

MRS WARREN [calling from within] Pead-dee-ee-ee-eee! The tea-cake'll be cold

PRAED [calling] Yes, Mrs Warren In a moment I've just met a friend here

MRS WARREN A what?

PRAED [louder] A friend

MRS WARREN Bring him in

PRAED All right [To Frank] Will you accept the invitation?

FRANK [incredulous, but immensely amused] Is that Vivie's mother?

PRAED Yes

FRANK By Jove! What a lark! Do you think she'll like me?

PRAED I've no doubt you'll make yourself popular, as usual Come in and try [moving towards the house]

FRANK Stop a bit [Seriously] I want to take you into my confidence

PRAED Pray don't It's only some fresh folly, like the barmaid at Redhill

FRANK It's ever so much more serious than that You say you've only just met Vivie for the first time?

PRAED Yes

FRANK [rhapsodically] Then you can have no idea what a girl she is Such character! Such sense! And her cleverness! Oh, my eye, Praed, but I can tell you she is clever! And—need I add?—she loves me

CROFTS [putting his head out of the window] I say, Praed what are you about? Do come along [He disappears]

FRANK Hallo! Sort of chap that would take a prize at a dog show, ain't he? Who's he?

PRAED Sir George Crofts, an old friend of Mrs Warren's I think we had better come in

On their way to the porch they are interrupted by a call from the gate Turning, they see an elderly clergyman looking over it

THE CLERGYMAN [calling] Frank!

FRANK Hallo! [To Praed] The Roman father [To the clergyman] Yes, gov'nor all right presently [To Praed] Look here, Praed you'd better go in to tea I'll join you directly

PRAED Very good [He goes into the cottage]

The clergyman remains outside the gate, with his hands on the top of it The Rev Samuel Gardner, a beneficed clergyman of the Established Church, is over 50 Externally he is pretentious, booming, noisy, important Really he is that obsolescent social phenomenon the fool of the family dumped on the Church by his father the patron, clamorously asserting himself as father and clergyman without being able to command respect in either capacity

REV S Well, sir Who are your friends here, if I may ask?

FRANK Oh, it's all right, gov'nor! Come in

REV S No, sir, not until I know whose garden I am entering

FRANK It's all right It's Miss Warren's

REV S I have not seen her at church since she came

FRANK Of course not she's a third wrangler Ever so intellectual Took a higher degree than you did, so why should she go to hear you preach?

REV S Don't be disrespectful, sir

FRANK Oh, it don't matter nobody hears us Come in [He opens the gate, unceremoniously pulling his father with it into the garden] I want to introduce you to her Do you remember the advice you gave me last July, gov'nor?

REV S [severely] Yes I advised you to conquer your idleness and flippancy, and to work your way into an honorable profession and live on it and not upon me

FRANK No that's what you thought of afterwards What you actually said was that since I had neither brains nor money, I'd better turn my good looks to account by marrying somebody with both Well, look here Miss Warren has brains you can't deny that

REV S Brains are not every thing

FRANK No, of course not there's the money—

REV S [interrupting him austere] I was not thinking of money, sir I was speaking of higher things Social position, for instance

FRANK I don't care a rap about that

REV S But I do, sir

FRANK Well, nobody wants you to marry her Anyhow, she has what amounts to a high Cambridge degree, and she seems to have as much money as she wants

REV S [sinking into a feeble vein of humor] I greatly doubt whether she has as much money as you will want

FRANK Oh, come I havnt been so very extravagant I live ever so quietly, I dont drink, I dont bet much, and I never go regularly on the razzle-dazzle as you did when you were my age

REV S [booming hollowly] Silence, sir

FRANK Well, you told me yourself, when I was making ever such an ass of myself about the barmaid at Redhill, that you once offered a woman £50 for the letters you wrote to her when—

REV S [terrified] Sh-sh-sh, Frank, for Heaven's sake! [He looks round apprehensively Seeing no one within earshot he plucks up courage to boom again but more subduedly] You are taking an ungentlemanly advantage of what I confided to you for your own good, to save you from an error you would have repented all your life long Take warning by your father's follies, sir and dont make them an excuse for your own

FRANK Did you ever hear the story of the Duke of Wellington and his letters?

REV S No, sir, and I dont want to hear it

FRANK The old Iron Duke didnt throw away £50 not he He just wrote "Dear Jenny publish and be damned! Yours affectionately, Wellington" Thats what you should have done

REV S [piteously] Frank, my boy when I wrote those letters I put myself into that woman's power When I told you about them I put myself, to some extent, I am sorry to say, in your power She refused my money with these words, which I shall never forget "Knowledge is power" she said, "and I never sell power" Thats more than twenty years ago, and she has never made use of her power or caused me a moment's uneasiness You are behaving worse to me than she did, Frank

FRANK Oh yes I dare say! Did you ever preach at her the way you preach at me every day?

REV S [wounded almost to tears] I leave you, sir. You are incorrigible. [He turns towards the gate]

FRANK [utterly unmoved] Tell them I shant be home to tea, will you, gov'nor, like a good fellow? [He moves towards the cottage door and is met by Praed and Fvine coming out]

VIVIE [to Frank] Is that your father, Frank? I do so want to meet him

FRANK Certainly [Calling after his father] Gov'nor Youre wanted [The parson turns at the gate, fumbling nervously at his hat Praed crosses the garden to the opposite side, beaming in anticipation of civilities] My father Miss Warren

VIVIE [going to the clergyman and shaking his hand] Very glad to see you here. Mr Gardner [Calling to the cottage] Mother come along youre wanted

Mrs Warren appears on the threshold, and is immediately transfixed, recognizing the clergyman

VIVIE [continuing] Let me introduce—

MRS WARREN [swooping on the Reverend Samuel] Why, it's Sam Gardner, gone into the Church! Well, I never! Dont you know us, Sam? This is George Crofts, as large as life and twice as natural Dont you remember me?

REV S [very red] I really—er—

MRS WARREN Of course you do Why I have a whole album of your letters still I came across them only the other day

REV S [miserably confused] Miss Vavasour, I believe

MRS WARREN [correcting him quickly in a loud whisper] Tch! Nonsense! Mrs Warren dont you see my daughter there?

ACT II

Inside the cottage after nightfall Looking eastward from within instead of westward from without, the latticed window, with its curtains drawn, is now seen in the middle of the front wall of the cottage, with the porch door to the left of it In the left-hand side wall is the door leading to the kitchen Farther back against the same wall is a dresser with a candle and matches on it and Frank's rifle standing beside them, with the barrel resting in the plate-rack In the centre a table stands with a lighted lamp on it Fvine's books and writing materials are on a table to the right of the window against the wall The fireplace is on the right, with a settle there is no fire Two of the chairs are set right and left of the table

The cottage door opens shewing a fine starlit night without, and Mrs Warren her shoulders wrapped in a shawl borrowed from Fvine, enters, followed by Frank, who throws his cap on the window seat. She has had enough of walking, and gives a gasp of relief as she unpins her hat, takes it off, sticks the pin through the crown, and puts it on the table.

MRS WARREN O Lord! I dont know which is the worst of the country, the walking or the sitting at home with nothing to do. I could do with a whisky and soda now very well, if only they had such a thing in this place.

FRANK Perhaps Vivie's got some young girl like her be doing with such things! Never mind it dont matter. I wonder how she passes her time here! I'd a good deal rather be in Vienna.

FRANK Let me take you there [He helps her to take off her shawl, gallantly giving her shoulders a very perceptible squeeze as he does so].

MRS WARREN Ah! would you? I'm beginning to think you're a chip of the old block.

FRANK Like the gov'nor, eh? [He hangs the shawl on the nearest chair and sits down].

MRS WARREN Never you mind. What do you know about such things? You're only a boy [She goes to the hearth, to be farther from temptation].

FRANK Do come to Vienna with me? It'd be ever such larks.

MRS WARREN No, thank you. Vienna is no place for you—at least not until you're a little older [She nods at him to emphasise this piece of advice]. He makes a mock-piteous face, belied by his laughing eyes. She looks at him, then comes back to him. Now, look here, little boy [taking his face in her hands and turning it up to her]. I know you through and through by your likeness to your father, better than you know yourself. Dont you go taking any silly ideas into your head about me. Do you hear?

FRANK [gallantly wooing her with his voice]. Cant help it, my dear Mrs Warren. It runs in the family.

She pretends to box his ears, then looks at the pretty laughing upturned face for a moment, tempted. At last she kisses him, and immediately turns away, out of patience with herself.

MRS WARREN There! I shouldnt have done that. I am wicked. Never you mind, my dear. It's only a motherly kiss. Go and make love to Vivie.

FRANK So I have.

MRS WARREN [turning on him with a sharp

note of alarm in her voice] What!

FRANK Vivie and I are ever such chums here. I wont have any young scamp tampering with my little girl. Do you hear? I wont have it.

FRANK [quite unabashed]. My dear Mrs Warren dont you be alarmed. My intentions are honorable—ever so honorable, and your little girl is jolly well able to take care of herself. She dont need looking after half so much as her mother. She aint so handsome, you know.

MRS WARREN [taken aback by his assurance]. Well, you have got a nice healthy two inches thick of cheek all over you. I dont know where you got it. Not from your father, any-how.

CROFTS [in the garden]. The gipsies, I suppose?

REV S [replying]. The bloomsquares are far worse.

MRS WARREN [to Frank]. S-sh! Remember! youve had your warning. Crofts and the Reverend Samuel come in from the garden, the clergyman continuing his conversation as he enters.

REV S The perjury at the Winchester assizes is deplorable.

MRS WARREN Well? what beame of you two? And wheres Praddy and Vivie?

CROFTS [putting his hat on the settle and his stick in the chimney corner]. They went up the hill. We went to the village. I wanted a drink [He sits down on the settle, putting his legs up along the seat].

MRS WARREN Well, she oughtnt to go off like that without telling me [To Frank]. Get your father a chair, Frank, where are your manners? [Frank springs up and gracefully offers his father his chair, then takes another from the wall and sits down at the table, in the middle, with his father on his right and Mrs Warren on his left]. George where are you going to stay to-night? You cant stay here. And whats Praddy going to do?

CROFTS Gardner'll put me up.

MRS WARREN Oh, no doubt youve taken care of yourself? But what about Praddy?

CROFTS Dont know. I suppose he can sleep at the inn.

MRS WARREN Havnt you room for him Sam?

REV S Well—cr—you see, as rector here, I am not free to do as I like. Er—what is Mr Praed's social position?

MRS WARREN Oh, he's all right he's an architect What an old stick-in-the-mud you are, Sam!

FRANK Yes, it's all right, gov'nor He built that place down in Wales for the Duke Caernarvon Castle they call it You must have heard of it. [He winks with lightning smartness at Mrs Warren, and regards his father blandly]

REV S Oh, in that case, of course we shall only be too happy I suppose he knows the Duke personally

FRANK Oh, ever so intimately! We can stick him in Georgina's old room

MRS WARREN Well, that's settled Now if those two would only come in and let us have supper They've no right to stay out after dark like this

CROFTS [aggressively] What harm are they doing you?

MRS WARREN Well, harm or not, I don't like it

FRANK Better not wait for them, Mrs Warren Praed will stay out as long as possible He has never known before what it is to stray over the heath on a summer night with my Vivie CROFTS [sitting up in some consternation] I say, you know! Come!

REV S [rising, startled out of his professional manner into real force and sincerity] Frank once for all, it's out of the question Mrs Warren will tell you that it's not to be thought of

CROFTS Of course not

FRANK [with enchanting placidity] Is that so, Mrs Warren?

MRS WARREN [reflectively] Well, Sam, I don't know If the girl wants to get married, no good can come of keeping her unmarried

REV S [astounded] But married to him!—your daughter to my son! Only think it's impossible

CROFTS Of course it's impossible Don't be a fool, Kitty

MRS WARREN [nettled] Why not? Isn't my daughter good enough for your son?

REV S But surely, my dear Mrs Warren, you know the reasons—

MRS WARREN [defiantly] I know no reasons If you know any, you can tell them to the lad, or to the girl, or to your congregation, if you like

REV S [collapsing helplessly into his chair]

You know very well that I couldn't tell anyone the reasons But my boy will believe me when I tell him there are reasons

FRANK Quite right, Dad he will But has your boy's conduct ever been influenced by your reasons?

CROFTS You can't marry her, and that's all about it [He gets up and stands on the hearth, with his back to the fireplace, frowning determinedly]

MRS WARREN [turning on him sharply] What have you got to do with it, pray?

FRANK [with his prettiest lyrical cadence] Precisely what I was going to ask, myself, in my own graceful fashion

CROFTS [to Mrs Warren] I suppose you don't want to marry the girl to a man younger than herself and without either a profession or twopence to keep her on Ash Sam, if you don't believe me [To the parson] How much more money are you going to give him?

REV S Not another penny He has had his patrimony, and he spent the last of it in July [Mrs Warren's face falls]

CROFTS [watching her] There! I told you [He resumes his place on the settle and puts up his legs on the seat again as if the matter were finally disposed of]

FRANK [plaintively] This is ever so mercenary Do you suppose Miss Warren's going to marry for money? If we love one another—

MRS WARREN Thank you Your love's a pretty cheap commodity, my lad If you have no means of keeping a wife, that settles it you can't have Vivie

FRANK [much amused] What do you say, gov'nor, eh?

REV S I agree with Mrs Warren

FRANK And good old Crofts has already expressed his opinion

CROFTS [turning angrily on his elbow] Look here I want none of your cheek

FRANK [pointedly] I'm ever so sorry to surprise you, Crofts, but you allowed yourself the liberty of speaking to me like a father a moment ago One father is enough, thank you

CROFTS [contemptuously] Yah! [He turns away again]

FRANK [rising] Mrs Warren I cannot give my Vivie up, even for your sake

MRS WARREN [muttering] Young scamp!

FRANK [continuing] And as you no doubt intend to hold out other prospects to her, I shall lose no time in placing my case before her [They stare at him, and he begins to declaim gracefully]

He either fears his fate too much,
Or his deserts are small,
That dares not put it to the touch
To gain or lose it all

The cottage door opens whilst he is reciting, and Vivie and Praed come in. He breaks off. Praed puts his hat on the dresser. There is an immediate improvement in the company's behavior. Crofts takes down his legs from the settle and pulls himself together as Praed joins him at the fireplace. Mrs Warren loses her ease of manner and takes refuge in querulousness.

MRS WARREN Wherever have you been, Vivie?

VIVIE [taking off her hat and throwing it carelessly on the table] On the hill

MRS WARREN Well, you shouldnt go off like that without letting me know. How could I tell what had become of you? And night coming on too!

VIVIE [going to the door of the kitchen and opening it, ignoring her mother] Now, about supper? [All rise except Mrs Warren] We shall be rather crowded in here, I'm afraid

MRS WARREN Did you hear what I said, Vivie?

VIVIE [quietly] Yes, mother [Reverting to the supper difficulty] How many are we? [Counting] One, two, three, four, five, six. Well, two will have to wait until the rest are done. Mrs Alison has only plates and knives for four.

PRAED Oh, it doesnt matter about me. I—

VIVIE You have had a long walk and are hungry, Mr Praed. you shall have your supper at once. I can wait myself. I want one person to wait with me. Frank, are you hungry?

FRANK Not the least in the world. Completely off my peck, in fact.

MRS WARREN [to Crofts] Neither are you, George. You can wait.

CROFTS Oh, hang it, I've eaten nothing since tea-time. Cant Sam do it?

FRANK Would you starve my poor father?

REV S [testily] Allow me to speak for myself, sir. I am perfectly willing to wait.

VIVIE [decisively] Theres no need. Only two are wanted. [She opens the door of the kitchen] Will you take my mother in, Mr Gardner? [The parson takes Mrs Warren, and they pass into the kitchen. Praed and Crofts follow. All except Praed clearly disapprove of the arrangement, but do not know how to resist it. Vivie stands at the door looking in at them] Can you squeeze past to that corner, Mr Praed? it's rather a tight fit. Take care of your coat against the white-wash. Thats right. Now, are you all comfortable?

PRAED [within] Quite, thank you.

MRS WARREN [within] Leave the door open, dearie. [Vivie frowns, but Frank checks her with a gesture, and steals to the cottage door, which he softly sets wide open] Oh, Lor, what a draught! You'd better shut it, dear.

Vivie shuts it with a slam, and then, noting with disgust that her mother's hat and shawl are lying about, takes them tidily to the nelson seat, whilst Frank noiselessly shuts the cottage door.

FRANK [exulting] Aha! Got rid of em. Well, Vivvums, what do you think of my governor?

VIVIE [preoccupied and serious] Ive hardly spoken to him. He doesnt strike me as being a particularly able person.

FRANK Well, you know, the old man is not altogether such a fool as he looks. You see, he was shoved into the Church rather, and in trying to live up to it he makes a much bigger ass of himself than he really is. I dont dislike him as much as you might expect. He means well. How do you think you'll get on with him?

VIVIE [rather grimly] I dont think my future life will be much concerned with him, or with any of that old circle of my mother's, except perhaps Praed. [She sits down on the settle] What do you think of my mother?

FRANK Really and truly?

VIVIE Yes, really and truly.

FRANK Well, she's ever so jolly. But she's rather a caution, isnt she? And Crofts! Oh, my eye, Crofts! [He sits beside her]

VIVIE What a lot, Frank!

FRANK What a crew!

VIVIE [with intense contempt for them] If I thought that I was like that—that I was going to be a waster, shifting along from one meal to another with no purpose, and no character, and no grit in me, I'd open an artery and bleed to death without one moment's hesitation.

FRANK Oh no, you wouldnt. Why should they take any grind when they can afford not to? I wish I had their luck. No, what I object to is their form. It isnt the thing. It's slovenly, ever so slovenly.

VIVIE Do you think your form will be any better when you're as old as Crofts, if you dont work?

FRANK Of course I do Ever so much better Vivvums mustnt lecture her little boy's incorrigible [He attempts to take her face caressingly in his hands]

VIVIE [striking his hands down sharply] Off with you Vivvums is not in a humor for petting her little boy this evening [She rises and comes forward to the other side of the room]

FRANK [following her] How unkind!

VIVIE [stamping at him] Be serious I'm serious

FRANK Good Let us talk learnedly Miss Warren do you know that all the most advanced thinkers are agreed that half the diseases of modern civilization are due to starvation of the affections in the young Now, I—

VIVIE [cutting him short] You are very tiresome [She opens the inner door] Have you room for Frank there? He's complaining of starvation

MRS WARREN [within] Of course there is [clatter of knives and glasses as she moves the things on the table] Here! theres room now beside me Come along, Mr Frank

FRANK Her little boy will be ever so even with his Vivvums for this [He passes into the kitchen]

MRS WARREN [within] Here Vivie come on you too, child You must be famished [She enters, followed by Crofts, who holds the door open for Vivie with marked deference She goes out without looking at him; and he shuts the door after her] Why, George, you cant be done youve eaten nothing Is there anything wrong with you?

CROFTS Oh, all I wanted was a drink [He thrusts his hands in his pockets, and begins prondling about the room, restless and sulky]

MRS WARREN Well I like enough to eat But a little of that cold beef and cheese and lettuce goes a long way [With a sigh of only half repletion she sits down lazily on the settle]

CROFTS What do you go encouraging that young pup for?

MRS WARREN [on the alert at once] Now see here George what are you up to about that girl? Ive been watching your way of looking at her Remember I know you and what your looks mean

CROFTS Theres no harm in looking at her, is there?

MRS WARREN I'd put you out and pack you back to London pretty soon if I saw any of your nonsense My girl's little finger is more to me than your whole body and soul [Crofts receives this with a sneering grin Mrs Warren, flushing a little at her failure to impose on him in the character of a theatrically devoted mother, adds in a lower key] Make your mind easy the young pup has no more chance than you have

CROFTS Maynt a man take an interest in a girl?

MRS WARREN Not a man like you

CROFTS How old is she?

MRS WARREN Never you mind how old she is

CROFTS Why do you make such a secret of it?

MRS WARREN Because I choose

CROFTS Well I'm not fifty yet, and my property is as good as ever it was—

MRS WARREN [interrupting him] Yes, because youre as stingy as youre vicious

CROFTS [continuing] And a baronet isnt to be picked up every day No other man in my position would put up with you for a mother-in-law Why shouldnt she marry me?

MRS WARREN You!

CROFTS We three could live together quite comfortably I'd die before her and leave her a bouncing widow with plenty of money Why not? It's been growing in my mind all the time Ive been walking with that fool inside there

MRS WARREN [recoiled] Yes it's the sort of thing that would grow in your mind

He halts in his prondling, and the two look at one another, she steadfastly, with a sort of awe behind her contemptuous disgust he stealthily, with a carnal gleam in his eye and a loose grin

CROFTS [suddenly becoming anxious and urgent as he sees no sign of sympathy in her] Look here Kitty youre a sensible woman you neednt put on any moral airs I'll ask no more questions, and you need answer none I'll settle the whole property on her, and if you want a cheque for yourself on the wedding day, you can name any figure you like—in reason

MRS WARREN So it's come to that with you, George, like all the other worn-out old creatures!

CROFTS [saragely] Damn you!

Before she can retort the door of the kitchen is opened, and the voices of the others are heard returning Crofts, unable to recover his presence of mind, hurries out of the cottage The clergyman appears at the kitchen door

REV S [looking round] Where is Sir George?

MRS WARREN Gone out to have a pipe
[The clergyman takes his hat from the table, and joins Mrs Warren at the fireside. Meanwhile Vivie comes in, followed by Frank, who collapses into the nearest chair with an air of extreme exhaustion. Mrs Warren looks round at Vivie and says, with her affectation of maternal patronage even more forced than usual] Well, dearie have you had a good supper?

VIVIE You know what Mrs Alison's suppers are [She turns to Frank and pets him] Poor Frank! was all the beef gone? did it get nothing but bread and cheese and ginger-beer? [Seriously, as if she had done quite enough trifling for one evening] Her butter is really awful I must get some down from the stores

FRANK Do, in Heaven's name!

Vivie goes to the writing-table and makes a memorandum to order the butter. Praed comes in from the kitchen, putting up his handkerchief, which he has been using as a napkin

REV S Frank, my boy it is time for us to be thinking of home. Your mother does not know yet that we have visitors

PRAED I'm afraid we're giving trouble

FRANK [rising] Not the least in the world my mother will be delighted to see you. She's a genuinely intellectual artistic woman, and she sees nobody here from one year's end to another except the gov'nor, so you can imagine how jolly dull it pans out for her [To his father] You're not intellectual or artistic are you, pater? So take Praed home at once, and I'll stay here and entertain Mrs Warren. You'll pick up Crofts in the garden. He'll be excellent company for the bull-pup

PRAED [taking his hat from the dresser, and coming close to Frank] Come with us, Frank. Mrs Warren has not seen Miss Vivie for a long time, and we have prevented them from having a moment together yet

FRANK [quite softened, and looking at Praed with romantic admiration] Of course I forgot. Ever so thanks for reminding me. Perfect gentleman, Praddy. Always were. My ideal through life [He rises to go, but pauses a moment between the two older men, and puts his hand on Praed's shoulder] Ah, if you had only been my father instead of this unworthy old man! [He puts his other hand on his father's shoulder]

REV S [blustering] Silence, sir, silence you are profane

MRS WARREN [laughing heartily] You should keep him in better order, Sam. Good-night. Here take George his hat and stick with my compliments

REV S [taking them] Good-night [They shake hands. As he passes Vivie he shakes hands with her also and bids her goodnight. Then, in booming command, to Frank] Come along, sir, at once [He goes out]

MRS WARREN Byebye, Praddy

PRAED Byebye, Kitty

They shake hands affectionately and go out together, she accompanying him to the garden gate

FRANK [to Vivie] Kissums?

VIVIE [fiercely] No I hate you [She takes a couple of books and some paper from the writing-table, and sits down with them at the middle table, at the end next the fireplace]

FRANK [grimacing] Sorry [He goes for his cap and rifle. Mrs Warren returns. He takes her hand] Good-night, dear Mrs Warren [He kisses her hand. She snatches it away, her lips tightening, and looks more than half disposed to box his ears. He laughs mischievously and runs off, clapping to the door behind him]

MRS WARREN [resigning herself to an evening of boredom now that the men are gone] Did you ever in your life hear anyone rattle on so? Isn't he a tease? [She sits at the table] Now that I think of it, dearie, don't you go encouraging him. I'm sure he's a regular good-for-nothing

VIVIE [rising to fetch more books] I'm afraid so. Poor Frank! I shall have to get rid of him, but I shall feel sorry for him, though he's not worth it. That man Crofts does not seem to me to be good for much either. Is he? [She throws the books on the table rather roughly]

MRS WARREN [galled by Vivie's indifference] What do you know of men, child, to talk that way about them? You'll have to make up your mind to see a good deal of Sir George Crofts, as he's a friend of mine

VIVIE [quite unmoved] Why? [She sits down and opens a book] Do you expect that we shall be much together? You and I, I mean?

MRS WARREN [staring at her] Of course until you're married. You're not going back to college again

VIVIE Do you think my way of life would suit you? I doubt it

MRS WARREN Your way of life. What do you mean?

VIVIE [cutting a page of her book with the paper knife on her chatelaine] Has it really never occurred to you, mother, that I have a way of life like other people?

MRS WARREN What nonsense is this you're trying to talk? Do you want to shew your independence, now that you're a great little person at school? Don't be a fool, child VIVIE [indulgently] That's all you have to say on the subject, is it, mother?

MRS WARREN [puzzled, then angry] Don't you keep on asking me questions like that [Violently] Hold your tongue [Vivie works on, losing no time, and saying nothing] You and your way of life, indeed! What next? [She looks at Vivie again. No reply] Your way of life will be what I please, so it will [Another pause] I've been noticing these airs in you ever since you got that tripos or whatever you call it. If you think I'm going to put up with them you're mistaken; and the sooner you find it out, the better [Muttering] All I have to say on the subject, indeed! [Again raising her voice angrily] Do you know who you're speaking to, Miss?

VIVIE [looking across at her without raising her head from her book] No. Who are you? What are you?

MRS WARREN [rising breathless] You young imp!

VIVIE Everybody knows my reputation, my social standing, and the profession I intend to pursue. I know nothing about you. What is that way of life which you invite me to share with you and Sir George Crofts, pray?

MRS WARREN Take care. I shall do something I'll be sorry for after, and you too.

VIVIE [putting aside her books with cool decision] Well, let us drop the subject until you are better able to face it [Looking critically at her mother] You want some good walks and a little lawn tennis to set you up. You are shockingly out of condition. You were not able to manage twenty yards uphill today without stopping to pant, and your wrists are mere rolls of fat. Look at mine [She holds out her wrists]

MRS WARREN [after looking at her helplessly, begins to whimper] Vivie—

VIVIE [springing up sharply] Now pray don't begin to cry. Anything but that. I really cannot stand whimpering. I will go out of the room if you do.

MRS WARREN [piteously] Oh, my darling, how can you be so hard on me? Have I no rights over you as your mother?

VIVIE Are you my mother?

MRS WARREN [appalled] Am I your mother? Oh, Vivie!

VIVIE Then where are our relatives? my father? our family friends? You claim the rights of a mother: the right to call me fool and child, to speak to me as no woman in authority over me at college dare speak to me, to dictate my way of life, and to force on me the acquaintance of a brute whom anyone can see to be the most vicious sort of London man about town. Before I give myself the trouble to resist such claims, I may as well find out whether they have any real existence.

MRS WARREN [distracted, throwing herself on her knees] Oh no, no. Stop, stop. I am your mother. I swear it. Oh, you cant mean to turn on me—my own child! It's not natural. You believe me, don't you? Say you believe me.

VIVIE Who was my father?

MRS WARREN You don't know what you're asking. I can't tell you.

VIVIE [determinedly] Oh yes you can, if you like. I have a right to know, and you know very well that I have that right. You can refuse to tell me, if you please, but if you do, you will see the last of me tomorrow morning.

MRS WARREN Oh, it's too horrible to hear you talk like that. You wouldn't—you couldn't leave me.

VIVIE [ruthlessly] Yes, without a moment's hesitation, if you trifle with me about this [Shivering with disgust] How can I feel sure that I may not have the contaminated blood of that brutal waster in my veins?

MRS WARREN No, no. On my oath it's not he, nor any of the rest that you have ever met. I'm certain of that, at least.

Vivie's eyes fasten sternly on her mother as the significance of this flashes on her.

VIVIE [slowly] You are certain of that, at least. Ah! You mean that that is all you are certain of [Thoughtfully] I see [Mrs Warren buries her face in her hands] Don't do that, mother. You know you don't feel it a bit. Mrs Warren takes down her hands and looks up deplorably at Vivie, who takes out her watch and says] Well, that is enough for tonight. At what hour would you like breakfast? Is half-past eight too early for you?

MRS WARREN [wildly] My God, what sort of woman are you?

VIVIE [coolly] The sort the world is mostly made of, I should hope. Otherwise I don't understand how it gets its business done. Come [taking her mother by the wrist, and pulling her up pretty resolutely] pull yourself together. That's right.

MRS WARREN [querulously] You're very rough with me, Vivie.

VIVIE Nonsense. What about bed? It's past ten.

MRS WARREN [passionately] What's the use of my going to bed? Do you think I could sleep?

VIVIE Why not? I shall.

MRS WARREN You! you've no heart [She suddenly breaks out vehemently in her natural tongue—the dialect of a woman of the people—with all her affectations of maternal authority and conventional manners gone, and an overwhelming inspiration of true conviction and scorn in her] Oh, I won't bear it. I won't put up with the injustice of it. What right have you to set yourself up above me like this? You boast of what you are to me—to me, who gave you the chance of being what you are. What chance had I? Shame on you for a bad daughter and a stuck-up prude!

VIVIE [sitting down with a shrug, no longer confident, for her replies, which have sounded sensible and strong to her so far, now begin to ring rather noodily and even priggishly against the new tone of her mother] Don't think for a moment I set myself above you in any way. You attacked me with the conventional authority of a mother. I defended myself with the conventional superiority of a respectable woman. Frankly, I am not going to stand any of your nonsense, and when you drop it I shall not expect you to stand any of mine. I shall always respect your right to your own opinions and your own way of life.

MRS WARREN My own opinions and my own way of life! Listen to her talking! Do you think I was brought up like you? Able to pick and choose my own way of life? Do you think I did what I did because I liked it, or thought it right, or wouldn't rather have gone to college and been a lady if I'd had the chance?

VIVIE Everybody has some choice, mother. The poorest girl alive may not be able to choose between being Queen of England or Principal of Newnham, but she can choose between rag-picking and flower-selling, according to her taste. People are always blaming their circumstances for what they are. I don't believe in circumstances. The people who get on in this world are the people who get up, and look for the circumstances they want, and, if they can't find them, make them.

MRS WARREN Oh, it's easy to talk, very easy, isn't it? Here! would you like to know what my circumstances were?

VIVIE Yes, you had better tell me. Won't you sit down?

MRS WARREN Oh, I'll sit down. Don't you be afraid [She plants her chair farther forward with brazen energy, and sits down. Vivie is impressed in spite of herself] D'you know what your gran'mother was?

VIVIE No.

MRS WARREN No, you don't. I do. She called herself a widow and had a fried-fish shop down by the Mint, and kept herself and four daughters out of it. Two of us were sisters that was me and Liz, and we were both good-looking and well-made. I suppose our father was a well-fed man. Mother pretended he was a gentleman, but I don't know. The other two were only half-sisters, undersized, ugly, starved-looking, hard-working, honest poor creatures. Liz and I would have half-murdered them if mother hadn't half-murdered us to keep our hands off them. They were the respectable ones. Well, what did they get by their respectability? I'll tell you. One of them worked in a whitelead factory twelve hours a day for nine shillings a week until she died of lead poisoning. She only expected to get her hands a little paralyzed, but she died. The other was always held up to us as a model because she married a Government laborer in the Deptford victualling yard, and kept his room and the three children neat and tidy on eighteen shillings a week—until he took to drink. That was worth being respectable for, wasn't it?

VIVIE [now thoughtfully attentive] Did you and your sister think so?

MRS WARREN Liz didn't, I can tell you. She had more spirit. We both went to a church school—that was part of the lady-like airs we gave ourselves to be superior to the children that knew nothing and went nowhere—and we stayed there until Liz went out one night and never came back. I know the school-mistress thought I'd soon follow her example, for the clergyman was always warning me that Lizzie'd end by jumping off Waterloo Bridge. Poor fool that was all he knew about it! But I was more afraid of the whitelead factory than I was of the river, and so would you have been in my place. That clergyman got me a situation as scullery maid in a temperance restaurant where they sent out for anything you liked. Then I was waitress, and then I went to the bar at Waterloo station fourteen hours a day serving drinks and washing glasses for four shillings a week and my board. That was considered a great promotion for me. Well, one cold, wretched night, when I was so tired I could hardly keep myself awake, who should come up for a half of Scotch but Lizzie, in a long fur cloak, elegant and comfortable, with a lot of sovereigns in her purse.

VIVIE [grimly] My aunt Lizzie!

MRS WARREN Yes, and a very good aunt to have, too. She's living down at Winchester now, close to the cathedral, one of the most respectable ladies there. Chaperones girls at the county ball, if you please. No river for Liz, thank you! You remind me of Liz a little—she was a first-rate business woman—saved money from the beginning—never let herself look too like what she was—never lost her head or threw away a chance. When she saw I'd grown up good-looking she said to me across the bar "What are you doing there, you little fool? wearing out your health and your appearance for other people's profit!" Liz was saving money then to take a house for herself in Brussels, and she thought we two could save faster than one. So she lent me some money and gave me a start, and I saved steadily and first paid her back, and then went into business with her as her partner. Why shouldn't I have done it? The house in Brussels was real high class—a much better place for a woman to be in than the factory where Anne Jane got poisoned. None of our girls were ever treated as I was treated in the scullery of that temperance place, or at the Waterloo bar, or at home. Would you have had me stay in them and become a worn out old drudge before I was forty?

VIVIE [intensely interested by this time] No, but why did you choose that business? Saving money and good management will succeed in any business.

MRS WARREN Yes, saving money. But where can a woman get the money to save in any other business? Could you save out of four shillings a week and keep yourself dressed as well? Not you. Of course, if you're a plain woman and can't earn anything more, or if you have a turn for music, or the stage or newspaper-writing—that's different. But neither Liz nor I had any turn for such things all we had was our appearance and our turn for pleasing men. Do you think we were such fools as to let other people trade in our good looks by employing us as shopgirls, or barmaids, or waitresses, when we could trade in them ourselves and get all the profits instead of starvation wages? Not likely.

VIVIE You were certainly quite justified—from the business point of view.

MRS WARREN Yes, or any other point of view. What is any respectable girl brought up to do but to catch some rich man's fancy and get the benefit of his money by marrying him?—as if a marriage ceremony could make any difference in the right or wrong of the thing! Oh, the hypocrisy of the world makes me sick! Liz and I had to work and save and calculate just like other people, elseways we should be as poor as any good-for-nothing drunken waster of a woman that thinks her luck will last for ever. [With great energy] I despise such people—they've no character, and if there's a thing I hate in a woman, it's want of character.

VIVIE Come now, mother, frankly! Isn't it part of what you call character in a woman that she should greatly dislike such a way of making money?

MRS WARREN Why, of course. Everybody dislikes having to work and make money, but they have to do it all the same. I'm sure I've often pitied a poor girl, tired out and in low spirits, having to try to please some man that she doesn't care two straws for—some half-drunk fool that thinks he's making himself agreeable when he's teasing and worrying and disgusting a woman so that hardly any money could pay her for putting up with it. But she has to bear with disagreeables and take the rough with the smooth, just like a nurse in a hospital or anyone else. It's not work that any woman would do for pleasure, goodness knows, though to hear the pious people talk you would suppose it was a bed of roses.

VIVIE Still, you consider it worth while. It pays.

MRS WARREN Of course it's worth while to a poor girl, if she can resist temptation and is good-looking and well conducted and sensible. It's far better than any other employment open to her I always thought that oughtnt to be It cant be right, Vivie, that there shouldnt be better opportunities for women I stiek to that it's wrong But it's so, right or wrong, and a girl must make the best of it But of course it's not worth while for a lady If you took to it you'd be a fool, but I should have been a fool if I'd taken to anything else

VIVIE [more and more deeply moved] Mother suppose we were both as poor as you were in those wretched old days, are you quite sure that you wouldnt advise me to try the Waterloo bar, or marry a laborer, or even go into the factory?

MRS WARREN [indignantly] Of course not What sort of mother do you take me for! How could you keep your self-respect in such starvation and slavery? And whats a woman worth? whats life worth? without self-respect! Why am I independent and able to give my daughter a first-rate education, when other women that had just as good opportunities are in the gutter? Because I always knew how to respect myself and control myself Why is Liz looked up to in a cathedral town? The same reason Where would we be now if we'd minded the elergyman's foolishness? Scrubbing floors for one and sixpence a day and nothing to look forward to but the workhouse infirmary Dont you be led astray by people who dont know the world, my girl The only way for a woman to provide for herself decently is for her to be good to some man that can afford to be good to her If she's in his own station of life, let her make him marry her, but if she's far beneath him she cant expect it why should she? it wouldnt be for her own happiness Ask any lady in London society that has daughters, and she'll tell you the same, except that I tell you straight and she'll tell you crooked Thats all the difference

VIVIE [fascinated, gazing at her] My dear mother you are a wonderful woman you are stronger than all England And are you really and truly not one wee bit doubtful—or—or—ashamed?

MRS WARREN Well, of course, dearie, it's only good manners to be ashamed of it it's expected from a woman Women have to pretend to feel a great deal that they dont feel Liz used to be angry with me for plumping out the truth about it She used to say that when every woman could learn enough from what was going on in the world before her eyes, there was no need to talk about it to her But then Liz was such a perfect lady! She had the true instinct of it, while I was always a bit of a vulgarian I used to be so pleased when you sent me your photos to see that you were growing up like Liz you've just her ladylike, determined way But I cant stand saying one thing when everyone knows I mean another Whats the use in such hypocrisy? If people arrange the world that way for women, theres no good pretending it's arranged the other way No I never was a bit ashamed really I consider I had a right to be proud of how we managed everything so respectably, and never had a word against us, and how the girls were so well taken care of Some of them did very well one of them married an ambassador But of course now I darent talk about such things whatever would they think of us! [She yawns] Oh dear! I do believe I'm getting sleepy after all [She stretches herself lazily, thoroughly relieved by her explosion, and placidly ready for her night's rest]

VIVIE I believe it is I who will not be able to sleep now [She goes to the dresser and lights the candle Then she extinguishes the lamp, darkening the room a good deal] Better let in some fresh air before locking up [She opens the cottage door, and finds that it is broad moonlight] What a beautiful night! Look! [She draws aside the curtains of the window The landscape is seen bathed in the radiance of the harvest moon rising over Blackdown]

MRS WARREN [with a perfunctory glance at the scene] Yes, dear, but take care you dont catch your death of cold from the night air

VIVIE [contemptuously] Nonsense

MRS WARREN [querulously] Oh yes everything I say is nonsense, according to you

VIVIE [turning to her quickly] No really that is not so, mother You have got completely the better of me tonight, though I intended it to be the other way Let us be good friends now

MRS WARREN [shaking her head a little ruefully] So it has been the other way But I suppose I must give in to it I always got the worst of it from Liz, and now I suppose it'll be the same with you

VIVIE Well, never mind Come good-night, dear old mother [She takes her mother in her arms]

MRS WARREN [fondly] I brought you up well, didnt I, dearie?

VIVIE You did

MRS WARREN And youll be good to your poor old mother for it, wont you?

VIVIE I will, dear [Kissing her] Goodnight

MRS WARREN [with unction] Blessings on my own dearie darling! a mother's blessing!

She embraces her daughter protectingly, instinctively looking upward for divine sanction

ACT III

In the Rectory garden next morning, with the sun shining from a cloudless sky The garden wall has a five-barred wooden gate, wide enough to admit a carriage, in the middle Beside the gate hangs a bell on a coiled spring, communicating with a pull outside The carriage drive comes down the middle of the garden and then sverves to its left, where it ends in a little gravelled circus opposite the Rectory porch Beyond the gate is seen the dusty high road, parallel with the wall, bounded on the farther side by a strip of turf and an unfenced pine wood On the lawn, between the house and the drive, is a clipped yew tree, with a garden bench in its shade On the opposite side the garden is shut in by a box hedge, and there is a sundial on the turf, with an iron chair near it A little path leads off through the box hedge, behind the sundial

Frank, seated on the chair near the sundial, on which he has placed the morning papers, is reading The Standard His father comes from the house, red-eyed and shivery, and meets Frank's eye with misgiving

FRANK [looking at his watch] Half-past eleven Nice hour for a rector to come down to breakfast!

REV S Dont mock, Frank dont mock I am a little—er—[Shivering]—

FRANK Off color?

REV S [repudiating the expression] No, sir unwell this morning Wheres your mother?

FRANK Dont be alarmed she's not here Gone to town by the 11 13 with Bessie She left several messages for you Do you feel equal to receiving them now, or shall I wait til youve breakfasted?

REV S I have breakfasted, sir I am surprised at your mother going to town when we have people staying with us Theyll think it very strange

FRANK Possibly she has considered that At all events, if Crofts is going to stay here and you are going to sit up every night with him until four, recalling the incidents of your fiery youth, it is clearly my mother's duty, as a prudent housekeeper, to go up to the stores and order a barrel of whisky and a few hundred siphons

REV S I did not observe that Sir George drank excessively

FRANK You were not in a condition to, gov'nor

REV S Do you mean to say that I—?

FRANK [calmly] I never saw a beneficed clergyman less sober The anecdotes you told about your past career were so awful that I really dont think Praed would have passed the night under your roof if it hadnt been for the way my mother and he took to one another

REV S Nonsense, sir I am Sir George Crofts' host I must talk to him about something, and he has only one subject Where is Mr Praed now?

FRANK He is driving my mother and Bessie to the station

REV S Is Crofts up yet?

FRANK Oh, long ago He hasnt turned a hair he's in much better practice than you Has kept it up ever since, probably He's taken himself off somewhere to smoke

Frank resumes his paper The parson turns disconsolately towards the gate, then comes back irresolutely

REV S Er—Frank

FRANK Yes

REV S Do you think the Warrens will expect to be asked here after yesterday afternoon?

FRANK Theyve been asked already

REV S [appalled] What!!!

FRANK Crofts informed us at breakfast that you told him to bring Mrs Warren and Vivie over here today, and to invite them to make this house their home My mother then found she must go to town by the 11 13 train

REV S [with despairing vehemence] I never gave any such invitation I never thought of such a thing

FRANK [compassionately] How do you know, gov'nor, what you said and thought last night?

PRÆD [coming in through the hedge] Good morning

REV S Good morning I must apologize for not having met you at breakfast I have a touch of—of—

FRANK Clergyman's sore throat, Praed Fortunately not chronic

PRAED [changing the subject] Well, I must say your house is in a charming spot here Really most charming

REV S Yes it is indeed, Frank will take you for a walk, Mr Praed, if you like I'll ask you to excuse me I must take the opportunity to write my sermon while Mrs Gardner is away and you are all amusing yourselves You wont mind, will you?

PRAED Certainly not Dont stand on the slightest ceremony with me

REV S Thank you I'll—er—er— [He stammers his way to the porch and vanishes into the house]

PRAED Curious thing it must be writing a sermon every week

FRANK Ever so curious, if he did it He buys em He's gone for some soda water

PRAED My dear boy I wish you would be more respectful to your father You know you can be so nice when you like

FRANK My dear Praddy you forget that I have to live with the governor When two people live together—it dont matter whether theyre father and son or husband and wife or brother and sister—they cant keep up the polite humbug thats so easy for ten minutes on an afternoon call Now the governor, who unites to many admirable domestic qualities the irresoluteness of a sheep and the pompousness and aggressiveness of a jackass—

PRAED No, pray, pray, my dear Frank, remember! He is your father

FRANK I give him due credit for that [Rising and flinging down his paper] But just imagine his telling Crofts to bring the Warrens over here! He must have been ever so drunk You know, my dear Praddy, my mother wouldnt stand Mrs Warren for a moment Vivie mustnt come here until she's gone back to town

PRAED But your mother doesnt know anything about Mrs Warren, does she? [He picks up the paper and sits down to read it]

FRANK I dont know Her journey to town looks as if she did Not that my mother would mind in the ordinary way she has stuck like a brick to lots of women who had got into trouble But they were all nice women Thats what makes the real difference Mrs Warren, no doubt, has her merits, but she's ever so rowdy, and my mother simply wouldnt put up with her So—hallo! [This exclamation is provoked by the reappearance of the clergyman, who comes out of the house in haste and dismay]

REV S Frank Mrs Warren and her daughter are coming across the heath with Crofts I saw them from the study windows What am I to say about your mother?

FRANK Stick on your hat and go out and say how delighted you are to see them, and that Frank's in the garden, and that mother and Bessie have been called to the bedside of a sick relative, and were ever so sorry they couldnt stop, and that you hope Mrs Warren slept well, and—and—say any blessed thing except the truth, and leave the rest to Providence

REV S But how are we to get rid of them afterwards?

FRANK Theres no time to think of that now Here! [He bounds into the house]

REV S He's so impetuous I dont know what to do with him, Mr Praed

FRANK [returning with a clerical felt hat, which he claps on his father's head] Now off with you [Rushing him through the gate] Praed and I'll wait here, to give the thing an unpremeditated air [The clergyman, dazed but obedient, hurries off]

FRANK We must get the old girl back to town somehow, Praed Come! Honestly, dear Praddy, do you like seeing them together?

PRAED Oh, why not?

FRANK [his teeth on edge] Dont it make your flesh creep ever so little? that wicked old devil, up to every villainy under the sun, I'll swear, and Vivie—ugh!

PRAED Hush, pray Theyre coming
The clergyman and Crofts are seen coming along the road, followed by Mrs Warren and Vivie walking affectionately together

FRANK Look she actually has her arm round the old woman's waist It's her right arm she began it She's gone sentimental, by God! Ugh! Ugh! Now do you feel the creeps? [The clergyman opens the gate, and Mrs Warren and Vivie pass him and stand in the middle of the garden looking at the house Frank, in an ecstasy of dissimulation, turns gaily to Mrs Warren, exclaiming] Ever so delighted to see you, Mrs Warren This quiet old rectory garden becomes you perfectly

MRS WARREN Well, I never! Did you hear that, George? He says I look well in a quiet old rectory garden

REV S [still holding the gate for Crofts, who loafs through it, heavily bored] You look well everywhere, Mrs Warren

FRANK Bravo, gov'nor! Now look here lets have a treat before lunch First lets see the church Everyone has to do that It's a regular old thirteenth century church, you know the gov'nor's ever so fond of it, because he got up a restoration fund and had it completely rebuilt six years ago Praed will be able to shew its points

PRAED [rising] Certainly, if the restoration has left any to shew.

REV S [mooning hospitably at them] I shall be pleased, I'm sure, if Sir George and Mrs Warren really care about it

MRS WARREN Oh, come along and get it over

CROFTS [turning back towards the gate] I've no objection

REV S Not that way We go through the fields, if you dont mind Round here [He leads the way by the little path through the box hedge]

CROFTS Oh, all right [He goes with the parson]

Praed follows with Mrs Warren Vivie does not stir she watches them until they have gone, with all the lines of purpose in her face marking it strongly

FRANK Aint you coming?

VIVIE No I want to give you a warning, Frank You were making fun of my mother just now when you said that about the rectory garden That is barred in future Please treat my mother with as much respect as you treat your own

FRANK My dear VIV she wouldnt appreciate it the two cases require different treatment But what on earth has happened to you? Last night we were perfectly agreed as to your mother and her set This morning I find you attitudinizing sentimentally with your arm around your parent's waist

VIVIE [flushing] Attitudinizing!

FRANK That was how it struck me First time I ever saw you do a second-rate thing

VIVIE [controlling herself] Yes, Frank there has been a change, but I dont think it a change for the worse Yesterday I was a little prig

FRANK And today?

VIVIE [nincing, then looking at him steadily] Today I know my mother better than you do

FRANK Heaven forbid!

VIVIE What do you mean?

FRANK VIV theres a freemasonry among thoroughly immoral people that you know nothing of Youve too much character Thats the bond between your mother and me thats why I know her better than youll ever know her

VIVIE You are wrong you know nothing about her If you knew the circumstances against which my mother had to struggle—

FRANK [adroitly finishing the sentence for her] I should know why she is what she is, shouldnt I? What difference would that make? Circumstances or no circumstances, VIV, you wont be able to stand your mother

VIVIE [very angry] Why not?

FRANK Because she's an old wretch, VIV If you ever put your arm round her waist in my presence again, I'll shoot myself there and then as a protest against an exhibition which revolts me

VIVIE Must I choose between dropping your acquaintance and dropping my mother's?

FRANK [gracefully] That would put the old lady at ever such a disadvantage No, VIV your infatuated little boy will have to stick to you in any case But he's all the more anxious that you shouldnt make mistakes It's no use, VIV your mother's impossible She may be a good sort, but she's a bad lot, a very bad lot

VIVIE [hotly] Frank—! [He stands his ground She turns away and sits down on the bench under the yew tree, struggling to recover her self-command Then she says] Is she to be deserted by all the world because she's what you call a bad lot? Has she no right to live?

FRANK No fear of that, VIV she wont ever be deserted [He sits on the bench beside her]

VIVIE But I am to desert her, I suppose

FRANK [babyishly, lulling her and making love to her with his voice] Musnt go live with her Little family group of mother and daughter wouldnt be a success Spoil our little group

VIVIE [falling under the spell] What little group?

FRANK The babes in the wood Vivie and little Frank [He nestles against her like a neary child] Lets go and get covered up with leaves

VIVIE [rhythmically, rocking him like a nurse] Fast asleep, hand in hand, under the trees

VIVIE The dear little boy with his dowdy little girl

FRANK Ever so peaceful, and relieved from the imbecility of the little boy's father and the questionableness of the little girl's—

VIVIE [smothering the word against her breast] Sh-sh-sh-sh! little girl wants to forget all about her mother [They are silent for some moments, rocking one another Then Vivie wakes up with a shock, exclaiming] What a pair of fools we are! Come sit up Gracious! your hair [She smooths it] I wonder do all grown up people play in that childish way when nobody is looking. I never did it when I was a child

FRANK Neither did I You are my first playmate [He catches her hand to kiss it, but checks himself to look round first Very unexpectedly, he sees Crofts emerging from the box hedge] Oh damn!

VIVIE Why damn, dear?

FRANK [whispering] Sh! Heres this brute Crofts [He sits farther away from her with an unconcerned air]

CROFTS Could I have a few words with you, Miss Vivie?

VIVIE Certainly

CROFTS [to Frank] Youll excuse me, Gardner Theyre waiting for you in the church, if you dont mind

FRANK [rising] Anything to oblige you, Crofts—except church If you should happen to want me, Vivvums, ring the gate bell [He goes into the house with unruffled suavity]

CROFTS [watching him with a crafty air as he disappears, and speaking to Vivie with an assumption of being on privileged terms with her] Pleasant young fellow that, Miss Vivie Pity he has no money, isnt it?

VIVIE Do you think so?

CROFTS Well, whats he to do? No profession No property Whats he good for?

VIVIE I realize his disadvantages, Sir George

CROFTS [a little taken aback at being so precisely interpreted] Oh, it's not that But while we're in this world we're in it, and money's money [Vivie does not answer] Nice day, isnt it?

VIVIE [with scarcely veiled contempt for this effort at conversation] Very

CROFTS [with brutal good humor, as if he liked her pluck] Well, thats not what I came to say [Sitting down beside her] Now listen, Miss Vivie I'm quite aware that I'm not a young lady's man

VIVIE Indeed, Sir George?

CROFTS No, and to tell you the honest truth I dont want to be either But when I say a thing I mean it, when I feel a sentiment I feel it in earnest, and what I value I pay hard money for Thats the sort of man I am

VIVIE It does you great credit, I m sure

CROFTS Oh, I dont mean to praise myself I have my faults Heaven knows no man is more sensible of that than I am I know I'm not perfect thats one of the advantages of being a middle-aged man, for I'm not a young man, and I know it But my code is a simple one, and, I think, a good one Honor between man and man, fidelity between man and woman, and no cant about this religion or that religion, but an honest belief that things are making for good on the whole

VIVIE [with biting irony] "A power, not ourselves, that makes for righteousness," eh?

CROFTS [taking her seriously] Oh certainly Not ourselves, of course You understand what I mean Well, now as to practical matters You may have an idea that Ive flung my money about, but I havnt I'm richer today than when I first came into the property Ive used my knowledge of the world to invest my money in ways that other men have overlooked, and whatever else I may be, I'm a safe man from the money point of view

VIVIE Its very kind of you to tell me all this

CROFTS Oh well, come, Miss Vivie you neednt pretend you dont see what I'm driving at I want to settle down with a Lady Crofts I suppose you think me very blunt, eh?

VIVIE Not at all I am much obliged to you for being so definite and business-like I quite appreciate the offer the money, the position, Lady Crofts, and soon But I think I will say no, if you dont mind I'd rather not [She rises, and strolls across to the sundial to get out of his immediate neighborhood]

CROFTS [not at all discouraged, and taking advantage of the additional room left him or the seat to spread himself comfortably, as if a few preliminary refusals were part of the inevitable routine of courtship] I'm in no hurry It's as only just to let you know in case young Gardner should try to trap you Leave the question open

VIVIE [sharply] My no is final I wont go back from it

Crofts is not impressed He grins, leans forward with his elbows on his knees to prod with his stick at some unfortunate insect in the grass, and looks cunningly at her She turns away impatiently

CROFTS I'm a good deal older than you Twenty-five years quarter of a century I shant live for ever, and I'll take care that you shall be well off when I'm gone

VIVIE I am proof against even that inducement, Sir George Dont you think youd better take your answer? There is not the slightest chance of my altering it

CROFTS [rising, after a final slash at a daisy, and coming nearer to her] Well, no matter I could tell you some things that would change your mind fast enough, but I wont, because I'd rather win you by honest affection I was a good friend to your mother ask her whether I wasnt She'd never have made the money that paid for your education if it hadnt been for my advice and help, not to mention the money I advanced her There are not many men would have stood by her as I have I put not less than £40,000 into it, from first to last VIVIE [staring at him] Do you mean to say you were my mother's business partner?

CROFTS Yes Now just think of all the trouble and the explanations it would save if we were to keep the whole thing in the family, so to speak Ask your mother whether she'd like to have to explain all her affairs to a perfect stranger

VIVIE I see no difficulty, since I understand that the business is wound up, and the money invested

CROFTS [stopping short, amazed] Wound up! Wind up a business thats paying 35 per cent in the worst years! Not likely Who told you that?

VIVIE [her color quite gone] Do you mean that it is still—? [She stops abruptly and puts her hand on the sundial to support herself Then she gets quickly to the iron chair and sits down] What business are you talking about?

CROFTS Well the fact is it's not what would be considered exactly a high-class business in my set—the county set, you know—our set it will be if you think better of my offer Not that theres any mystery about it dont think that Of course you know by your mother's being in it that it's perfectly straight and honest Ive known her for many years, and I can say of her that she'd cut off her hands sooner than touch anything that was not what it ought to be I'll tell you all about it if you like I dont know whether youve found in travelling how hard it is to find a really comfortable private hotel

VIVIE [sickened, averting her face] Yes go on

CROFTS Well, thats all it is Your mother has a genius for managing such things We've got two in Brussels, one in Ostend, one in Vienna, and two in Budapest Of course there are others besides ourselves in it, but we hold most of the capital, and your mother's indispensable as managing director Youve noticed, I daresay, that she travels a good deal But you see you cant mention such things in society Once let out the word hotel and everybody says you keep a public-house You wouldnt like people to say that of your mother, would you? Thats why we're so reserved about it By the way, youll keep it to yourself, wont you? Since it's been a secret so long, it had better remain so VIVIE And this is the business you invite me to join you in?

CROFTS Oh no My wife shant be troubled with business Youll not be in it more than youve always been VIVIE I always been! What do you mean?

CROFTS Only that youve always lived on it It paid for your education and the dress you have on your back Dont turn up your nose at business, Miss Vivie where would your Newnams and Girtons be without it?

VIVIE [rising, almost beside herself] Take care I know what this business is CROFTS [starting, with a suppressed oath] Who told you?

VIVIE Your partner My mother

CROFTS [black with rage] The old—

VIVIE Just so

He swallows the epithet and stands for a moment sneering and raging foully to himself But he knows that his cue is to be sympathetic He takes refuge in generous indignation

CROFTS She ought to have had more consideration for you I'd never have told you

VIVIE I think you would probably have told me when we were married it would have been a convenient weapon to break me in with

CROFTS [quite sincerely] I never intended that. On my word as a gentleman I didnt

Vivie wonders at him Her sense of the irony of his protest cools and braces her She replies with contemptuous self-possession

VIVIE It does not matter I suppose you understand that when we leave here today our acquaintance ceases

CROFTS Why? Is it for helping your mother?

VIVIE My mother was a very poor woman who had no reasonable choice but to do as she did. You were a rich gentleman, and you did the same for the sake of 35 per cent. You are a pretty common sort of scoundrel, I think. That is my opinion of you.

CROFTS [after a stare not at all displeased, and much more at his ease on these frank terms than on their former ceremonious ones] Ha! ha! ha! Go it, little missie, go it. It doesn't hurt me and it amuses you. Why the devil shouldn't I invest my money that way? I take the interest on my capital like other people. I hope you don't think I dirty my own hands with the work. Come! you wouldn't refuse the acquaintance of my mother's cousin the Duke of Belgravia because some of the rents he gets are earned in queer ways. You wouldn't cut the Archbishop of Canterbury, I suppose, because the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have a few publicans and sinners among their tenants. Do you remember your Crofts scholarship at Newnham? Well, that was founded by my brother the M.P. He gets his 22 per cent out of a factory with 600 girls in it, and not one of them getting wages enough to live on. How d'ye suppose they manage when they have no family to fall back on? Ask your mother. And do you expect me to turn my back on 35 per cent when all the rest are pocketing what they can, like sensible men? No such fool! If you're going to pick and choose your acquaintances on moral principles, you'd better clear out of this country, unless you want to cut yourself out of all decent society.

VIVIE [conscience stricken] You might go on to point out that I myself never asked where the money I spent came from. I believe I am just as bad as you.

CROFTS [greatly reassured] Of course you are, and a very good thing too! What harm does it do after all? [Rallying her jocularly] So you don't think me such a scoundrel now you come to think it over. Eh?

VIVIE I have shared profits with you, and I admitted you just now to the familiarity of knowing what I think of you.

CROFTS [with serious friendliness] To be sure you did. You won't find me a bad sort. I don't go in for being superfine intellectually, but I've plenty of honest human feeling, and the old Crofts breed comes out in a sort of instinctive hatred of anything low, in which I'm sure you'll sympathize with me. Believe me, Miss Vivie, the world isn't such a bad place as the croakers make out. As long as you don't fly openly in the face of society, society doesn't ask any inconvenient questions, and it makes precious short work of the cads who do. There are no secrets better kept than the secrets everybody guesses. In the class of people I can introduce you to, no lady or gentleman would so far forget themselves as to discuss my business affairs or your mother's. No man can offer you a safer position.

VIVIE [studying him curiously] I suppose you really think you're getting on famously with me.

CROFTS Well, I hope I may flatter myself that you think better of me than you did at first.

VIVIE [quietly] I hardly find you worth thinking about at all now. When I think of the society that tolerates you, and the laws that protect you! When I think of how helpless nine out of ten young girls would be in the hands of you and my mother! the unmentionable woman and her capitalist bully—

CROFTS [livid] Damn you!

VIVIE You need not. I feel among the damned already.

She raises the latch of the gate to open it and go out. He follows her and puts his hand heavily on the top bar to prevent its opening.

CROFTS [panting with fury] Do you think I'll put up with this from you, you young devil?

VIVIE [unmoved] Be quiet. Someone will answer the bell. [Without flinching a step she strikes the bell with the back of her hand. It clangs harshly, and he starts back involuntarily. Almost immediately Frank appears at the porch with his rifle.]

FRANK [with cheerful politeness] Will you have the rifle, Viv, or shall I operate?

VIVIE Frank, have you been listening?

FRANK [coming down into the garden] Only for the bell, I assure you, so that you shouldn't have to wait. I think I shewed great insight into your character, Crofts.

CROFTS For two pins I'd take that gun from you and break it across your head

FRANK [stalking him cautiously] Pray dont. I'm ever so careless in handling firearms Sure to be a fatal accident with a reprimand from the coroner's jury for my negligence

VIVIE Put the rifle away, Frank it's quite unnecessary

FRANK Quite right, Viv Much more sportsmanlike to catch him in a trap [Crofts, understanding the insult, makes a threatening movement] Crofts there are fifteen cartridges in the magazine here, and I am a dead shot at the present distance and at an object of your size

CROFTS Oh, you neednt be afraid I'm not going to touch you

FRANK Ever so magnanimous of you under the circumstances! Thank you

CROFTS I'll just tell you this before I go It may interest you since youre so fond of one another Allow me, Mister Frank, to introduce you to your half-sister, the eldest daughter of the Reverend Samuel Gardner Miss Vivie your half-brother Good morning [He goes out through the gate and along the road]

FRANK [after a pause of stupefaction raising the rifle] Youll testify before the coroner that it's an accident, Viv [He takes aim at the retreating figure of Crofts Vivie seizes the muzzle and pulls it round against her breast]

VIVIE Fire now You may

FRANK [dropping his end of the rifle hastily] Stop! take care [She lets it go It falls on the turf] Oh youve given your little boy such a turn Suppose it had gone off! ough! [He sinks on the garden seat, overcome]

VIVIE Suppose it had do you think it would not have been a relief to have some sharp physical pain tearing through me?

FRANK [coaxingly] Take it ever so easy, dear Viv Remember even if the rifle scared that fellow into telling the truth for the first time in his life that only makes us the babes in the wood in earnest [He holds out his arms to her] Come and be covered up with leaves again

VIVIE [with a cry of disgust] Ah not that, not that You make all my flesh creep

FRANK Why whats the matter?

VIVIE Goodbye [She makes for the gate]

FRANK [jumping up] Hallo! Stop! Viv! Viv! [She turns in the gateway] Where are you going to? Where shall we find you?

VIVIE At Honoria Fraser's chambers, 67 Chancery Lane, for the rest of my life. [She goes off quickly in the opposite direction to that taken by Crofts]

FRANK But I say—wait—dash it! [He runs after her]

ACT IV

Honoria Fraser's chambers in Chancery Lane An office at the top of New Stone Buildings, with a plate-glass window, distempered walls, electric light, and a patent stove Saturday afternoon The chimneys of Lincoln's Inn and the western sky beyond are seen through the window There is a double writing table in the middle of the room with a cigar box, ash pans, and a portable electric reading lamp almost snored up in heaps of papers and books This table has knee holes and chairs right and left and is very untidy The clerk's desk, closed and tidy, with its high stool, is against the wall near a door communicating with the inner rooms In the opposite wall is the door leading to the public corridor Its upper panel is of opaque glass, lettered in black on the outside, FRASER AND WARREN A bawse screen hides the corner between this door and the window

Frank, in a fashionable light-colored coaching suit, with his stick, gloves, and white hat in his hands, is pacing up and down the office Somebody tries the door with a key

FRANK [calling] Come in It's not locked

Vivie comes in, in her hat and jacket She stops and stares at him

VIVIE [sternly] What are you doing here?

FRANK Waiting to see you Ive been here for hours Is this the way you attend to your business? [He puts his hat and stick on the table, and perches himself with a vault on the clerk's stool, looking at her with every appearance of being in a specially restless, teasing, flippant mood]

VIVIE Ive been away exactly twenty minutes for a cup of tea [She takes off her hat and jacket and hangs them up behind the screen] How did you get in?

FRANK The staff had not left when I arrived He's gone to play cricket on Primrose Hill Why dont you employ a woman, and give your sex a chance?

VIVIE What have you come for?

FRANK [springing off the stool and coming close to her] Viv lets go and enjoy the Saturday half-holiday somewhere, like the staff What do you say to Richmond, and then a music hall, and a jolly supper?

VIVIE Cant afford it I shall put in another six hours work before I go to bed

FRANK Cant afford it, cant we? Aha! Look here [He takes out a handful of sovereigns and makes them clink] Gold, Viv gold!

VIVIE Where did you get it?

FRANK Gambling, Viv gambling Poker

VIVIE Pah! It's meaner than stealing it
No I'm not coming [She sits down to work at the table, with her back to the glass door, and begins turning over the papers]

FRANK [remonstrating piteously] But, my dear Viv, I want to talk to you ever so seriously

VIVIE Very well sit down in Honoria's chair and talk here I like ten minutes chat after tea [He murmurs] No use groaning I'm inexorable [He takes the opposite seat disconsolately] Pass that cigar box, will you?

FRANK [pushing the cigar box across] Nasty womanly habit Nice men dont do it any longer

VIVIE Yes they object to the smell in the office, and weve had to take to cigarets See! [She opens the box and takes out a cigaret, which she lights She offers him one, but he shakes his head with a wry face She settles herself comfortably in her chair, smoking] Go ahead

FRANK Well, I want to know what youve done—what arrangements youve made

VIVIE Everything was settled twenty minutes after I arrived here Honoria has found the business too much for her this year, and she was on the point of sending for me and proposing a partnership when I walked in and told her I hadnt a farthing in the world So I installed myself and packed her off for a fortnight's holiday What happened at Haslemere when I left?

FRANK Nothing at all I said youd gone to town on partucular business

VIVIE Well?

FRANK Well, either they were too flabbergasted to say anything, or else Crofts had prepared your mother Anyhow, she didnt say anything, and Crofts didnt say anything, and Praddy only stared After tea they got up and went, and Ive not seen them since

VIVIE [nodding placidly with one eye on a wreath of smoke] Thats all right

FRANK [looking round disparagingly] Do you intend to stick in this confounded place?

VIVIE [blowing the wreath decisively away, and sitting straight up] Yes These two days have given me back all my strength and self-possession I will never take a holiday again

as long as I live

FRANK [with a very wry face] Mps! You look quite happy And as hard as nails

VIVIE [grimly] Well for me that I am!

FRANK [rising] Look here, Viv we must have an explanation We parted the other day under a complete misunderstanding [He sits on the table, close to her]

VIVIE [putting away the cigaret] Well clear it up

FRANK You remember what Crofts said?

VIVIE Yes

FRANK That revelation was supposed to bring about a complete change in the nature of our feeling for one another It placed us on the footing of brother and sister

VIVIE Yes

FRANK Have you ever had a brother?

VIVIE No

FRANK Then you dont know what being brother and sister feels like? Now I have lots of sisters, and the fraternal feeling is quite familiar to me I assure you my feeling for you is not the least in the world like it The girls will go their way, I will go mine, and we shant care if we never see one another again Thats brother and sister But as to you, I cant be easy if I have to pass a week without seeing you Thats not brother and sister It's exactly what I felt an hour before Crofts made his revelation In short, dear Viv, it's love's young dream

VIVIE [bitingly] The same feeling, Frank, that brought your father to my mother's feet Is that it?

FRANK [so revolted that he slips off the table for a moment] I very strongly object, Viv, to have my feelings compared to any which the Reverend Samuel is capable of harboring, and I object still more to a comparison of you to your mother [Resuming his perch] Besides, I dont believe the story I have taxed my father with it, and obtained from him what I consider tantamount to a denial

VIVIE What did he say?

FRANK He said he was sure there must be some mistake

VIVIE Do you believe him?

FRANK I am prepared to take his word as against Crofts'

VIVIE Does it make any difference? I mean in your imagination or conscience, for of course it makes no real difference

FRANK [shaking his head] None whatever to me

VIVIE Nor to me

FRANK [staring] But this is ever so surprising! [He goes back to his chair] I thought our whole relations were altered in your imagination and conscience, as you put it, the moment those words were out of that brute's muzzle

VIVIE No it was not that I didnt believe him I only wish I could

FRANK Eh?

VIVIE I think brother and sister would be a very suitable relation for us

FRANK You really mean that?

VIVIE Yes It's the only relation I care for, even if we could afford any other. I mean that.

FRANK [raising his eyebrows like one on whom a new light has dawned, and rising with quite an effusion of chivalrous sentiment] My dear Viv why didnt you say so before? I am ever so sorry for persecuting you I understand, of course

VIVIE [puzzled] Understand what?

FRANK Oh, I'm not a fool in the ordinary sense only in the Scriptural sense of doing all the things the wise man declared to be folly, after trying them himself on the most extensive scale I see I am no longer Vivvums's little boy Dont be alarmed I shall never call you Vivvums again—at least unless you get tired of your new little boy, whoever he may be

VIVIE My new little boy!

FRANK [with conviction] Must be a new little boy Always happens that way. No other way, in fact

VIVIE None that you know of, fortunately for you

Someone knocks at the door

FRANK My curse upon yon caller, who'er he be!

VIVIE It's Praed He's going to Italy and wants to say goodbye I asked him to call this afternoon Go and let him in

FRANK We can continue our conversation after his departure for Italy I'll stay him out [He goes to the door and opens it] How are you, Praddy? Delighted to see you Come in

Praed, dressed for travelling comes in in high spirits

PRAED How do you do Miss Warren? [She presses his hand cordially though a certain sentimentality in his high spirits jars on her] I start in an hour from Holborn Viaduct I wish I could persuade you to try Italy

VIVIE What for?

PRAED Why, to saturate yourself with beauty and romance, of course

Vivie, with a shudder, turns her chair to the table as if the work waiting for her there were a support to her Praed sits opposite to her Frank places a chair near Vivie, and drops lazily and carelessly into it talking at her over his shoulder

FRANK No use Praddy Viv is a little Philistine She is indifferent to my romance, and insensible to my beauty

VIVIE Mr Praed once for all, there is no beauty and no romance in life for me Life is what it is, and I am prepared to take it as it is

PRAED [enthusiastically] You will not say that if you come with me to Verona and on to Venice You will cry with delight at living in such a beautiful world

FRANK This is most eloquent, Praddy Keep it up

PRAED Oh, I assure you I have cried—I shall cry again, I hope—at fifty! At your age, Miss Warren, you would not need to go so far as Verona Your spirits would absolutely fly up at the mere sight of Ostend You would be charmed with the gaiety, the vivacity, the happy air of Brussels

VIVIE [springing up with an exclamation of loathing] Agh!

PRAED [rising] Whats the matter?

FRANK [rising] Hallo, Viv!

VIVIE [to Praed, with deep reproach] Can you find no better example of your beauty and romance than Brussels to talk to me about?

PRAED [puzzled] Of course it's very different from Verona. I dont suggest for a moment that—

VIVIE [bitterly] Probably the beauty and romance come to much the same in both places

PRAED [completely sobered and much concerned] My dear Miss Warren I— [looking inquiringly at Frank] Is anything the matter?

FRANK She thinks your enthusiasm frivolous, Praddy She's had ever such a serious call

VIVIE [sharply] Hold your tongue, Frank Dont be silly

FRANK [sitting down] Do you call this good manners Praed?

PRAED [anxious and considerate] Shall I take him away, Miss Warren? I feel sure we have disturbed you at your work

VIVIE Sit down I'm not ready to go back to work yet [Praed sits] You both think I have an attack of nerves Not a bit of it But there are two subjects I want dropped, if you dont mind One of them [to Frank] is love's young dream in any shape or form the other [to Praed] is the romance and beauty of life, especially Ostend and the gaiety of Brussels You are welcome to any illusions you may have left on these subjects I have none If we three are to remain friends, I must be treated as a woman of business, permanently single [to Frank] and permanently unromantic [to Praed]

FRANK I also shall remain permanently single until you change your mind Praddy change the subject Be eloquent about something else

PRÆD [diffidently] I'm afraid theres nothing else in the world that I can talk about The Gospel of Art is the only one I can preach I know Miss Warren is a great devotee of the Gospel of Getting On, but we cant discuss that without hurting your feelings, Frank, since you are determined not to get on

FRANK Oh, dont mind my feelings Give me some improving advice by all means it does me ever so much good Have another try to make a successful man of me, Viv Come lets have it all energy, thrift, foresight, self-respect, character Dont you hate people who have no character, Viv?

VIVIE [winning] Oh, stop, stop let us have no more of that horrible cant Mr Praed if there are really only those two gospels in the world, we had better all kill ourselves, for the same taint is in both, through and through

FRANK [looking critically at her] There is a touch of poetry about you today, Viv, which has hitherto been lacking

PRÆD [remonstrating] My dear Frank arnt you a little unsympathetic?

VIVIE [merciless to herself] No it's good for me It keeps me from being sentimental FRANK [bantering her] Checks your strong natural propensity that way, dont it?

VIVIE [almost hysterically] Oh yes go on dont spare me I was sentimental for one moment in my life—beautifully sentimental—by moonlight, and now—

FRANK [quickly] I say, Viv take care Dont give yourself away

VIVIE Oh, do you think Mr Praed does not know all about my mother? [Turning on Praed] You had better have told me that morning, Mr Praed You are very old fashioned in your delicacies, after all

PRÆD Surely it is you who are a little old fashioned in your prejudices, Miss Warren I feel bound to tell you, speaking as an artist, and believing that the most intimate human relationships are far beyond and above the scope of the law, that though I know that your mother is an unmarried woman, I do not respect her the less on that account I respect her more

FRANK [airily] Hear' hear!

VIVIE [staring at him] Is that all you know?

PRÆD Certainly that is all

VIVIE Then you neither of you know anything Your guesses are innocence itself compared to the truth

PRÆD [rising, startled and indignant, and preserving his politeness with an effort] I hope not [More emphatically] I hope not, Miss Warren

FRANK [whistles] Whew!

VIVIE You are not making it easy for me to tell you, Mr Praed

PRÆD [his chivalry drooping before their conviction] If there is anything worse—that is, anything else—are you sure you are right to tell us, Miss Warren?

VIVIE I am sure that if I had the courage I should spend the rest of my life in telling everybody—stamping and branding it into them until they all felt their part in its abomination as I feel mine There is nothing I despise more than the wicked convention that protects these things by forbidding a woman to mention them And yet I cant tell you The two infamous words that describe what my mother is are ringing in my ears and struggling on my tongue, but I cant utter them the shame of them is too horrible for me [She buries her face in her hands The two men, astonished, stare at one another and then at her She raises her head again desperately and snatches a sheet of paper and a pen] Here let me draft you a prospectus

FRANK Oh, shes mad Do you hear, Viv? mad Come! pull yourself together

VIVIE You shall see [She writes] "Paid up capital not less than £10,000 standing in the name of Sir George Crofts, Baronet, the chief shareholder Premises at Brussels, Ostend, Vienna, and Budapest Managing director Mrs Warren", and now dont let us forget her qualifications the two words [She writes the words and pushes the paper to them] There! Oh no dont read it dont! [She snatches it back and tears it to pieces, then seizes her head in her hands and hides her face on the table]

Frank, who has watched the writing over her shoulder, and opened his eyes very nidey at it, takes a card from his pocket, scribbles the two words on it, and silently hands it to Praed, who reads it with amazement, and hides it hastily in his pocket

FRANK [whispering tenderly] Viv, dear thats all right I read what you wrote so did Praddy We understand And we remain, as this leaves us at present, yours ever so devotedly

PRAED We do indeed, Miss Warren I declare you are the most splendidly courageous woman I ever met

This sentimental compliment braces Vivie She throws it away from her with an impatient shake, and force's herself to stand up, though not without some support from the table

FRANK Dont stir, Viv, if you dont want to Take it easy

VIVIE Thank you You can always depend on me for two things not to cry and not to faint [She moves a few steps towards the door of the inner room, and stops close to Praed to say] I shall need much more courage than that when I tell my mother that we have come to the parting of the ways Now I must go into the next room for a moment to make myself neat again, if you dont mind

PRAED Shall we go away?

VIVIE No I'll be back presently Only for a moment [She goes into the other room, Praed opening the door for her]

PRAED What an amazing revelation! I'm extremely disappointed in Crofts I am indeed

FRANK I'm not in the least I feel he's perfectly accounted for at last But what a facer for me, Praddy! I cant marry her now

PRAED [sternly] Frank! [The two look at one another, Frank unruffled, Praed deeply indignant] Let me tell you, Gardner, that if you desert her now you will behave very despicably

FRANK Good old Praddy! Ever chivalrous! But you mistake it's not the moral aspect of the case it's the money aspect I really cant bring myself to touch the old woman's money now?

PRAED And was that what you were going to marry on?

FRANK What else? I havnt any money, nor the smallest turn for making it If I married Viv now she would have to support me, and I should cost her more than I am worth

PRAED But surely a clever bright fellow like you can make something by your own brains

FRANK Oh yes, a little [He takes out his money again] I made all that yesterday in an hour and a half But I made it in a highly speculative business No, dear Praddy even if Bessie and Georgina marry millionaires and the governor dies after cutting them off with a shilling, I shall have only four hundred a year And he wont die until he's three score and ten he hasnt originality enough I shall be on short allowance for the next twenty years No short allowance for Viv, if I can help it I withdraw gracefully and leave the field to the gilded youth of England So thats settled I shant worry her about it I'll just send her a little note after we're gone She'll understand PRAED [grasping his hand] Good fellow, Frank! I heartily beg your pardon But must you never see her again?

FRANK Never see her again! Hang it all, be reasonable I shall come along as often as possible, and be her brother I can not understand the absurd consequences you romantic people expect from the most ordinary transactions [A knock at the door] I wonder who this is Would you mind opening the door? If it's a client it will look more respectable than if I appeared

PRAED Certainly [He goes to the door and opens it Frank sits down in Vivie's chair to scribble a note] My dear Kitty come in come in

Mrs Warren comes in, looking apprehensively round for Vivie She has done her best to make herself matronly and dignified The brilliant hat is replaced by a sober bonnet, and the gay blouse covered by a costly black silk mantle She is pitably anxious and ill at ease evidently panic-stricken

MRS WARREN [to Frank] What! You're here, are you?

FRANK [turning in his chair from his writing, but not rising] Here, and charmed to see you You come like a breath of spring

MRS WARREN Oh, get out with your nonsense [In a low voice] Wheres Vivie?

Frank points expressively to the door of the inner room, but says nothing

MRS WARREN [sitting down suddenly and almost beginning to cry] Praddy wont she see me, dont you think?

PRAED My dear Kitty dont distress yourself Why should she not?

MRS WARREN Oh, you never can see why not you're too innocent Mr Frank did she say anything to you?

FRANK [folding his note] She must see you, if [very expressively] you wait til she comes in MRS WARREN [frightened] Why shouldn't I wait?

Frank looks quizzically at her, puts his note carefully on the ink-bottle, so that Vivie cannot fail to find it when next she dips her pen, then rises and devotes his attention entirely to her

FRANK My dear Mrs Warren suppose you were a sparrow—ever so tiny and pretty a sparrow hopping in the roadway—and you saw a steam roller coming in your direction, would you wait for it?

MRS WARREN Oh, don't bother me with your sparrows What did she run away from Haslemere like that for?

FRANK I'm afraid she'll tell you if you rashly await her return

MRS WARREN Do you want me to go away?

FRANK No I always want you to stay But I advise you to go away

MRS WARREN What! And never see her again!

FRANK Precisely

MRS WARREN [crying again] Praddy don't let him be cruel to me [She hastily checks her tears and wipes her eyes] She'll be so angry if she sees I've been crying

FRANK [with a touch of real compassion in his airy tenderness] You know that Praddy is the soul of kindness, Mrs Warren Praddy what do you say? Go or stay?

PRÆD [to Mrs Warren] I really should be very sorry to cause you unnecessary pain, but I think perhaps you had better not wait The fact is—[Vivie is heard at the inner door]

FRANK Sh! Too late She's coming

MRS WARREN Don't tell her I was crying [Vivie comes in She stops gravely on seeing Mrs Warren, who greets her with hysterical cheerfulness] Well, dearie So here you are at last

VIVIE I am glad you have come I want to speak to you You said you were going, Frank, I think

FRANK Yes Will you come with me, Mrs Warren? What do you say to a trip to Richmond, and the theatre in the evening? There is safety in Richmond No steam roller there

VIVIE Nonsense, Frank My mother will stay here

MRS WARREN [scared] I don't know perhaps

I'd better go We're disturbing you at your work

VIVIE [with quiet decision] Mr Præd please take Frank away Sit down, mother [Mrs Warren obeys helplessly]

PRÆD Come, Frank Goodbye, Miss Vivie

VIVIE [shaking hands] Goodbye A pleasant trip

PRÆD Thank you thank you I hope so
FRANK [to Mrs Warren] Goodbye you'd ever so much better have taken my advice [He shakes hands with her Then awily to Vivie] Byebye, Viv

VIVIE Goodbye [He goes out gaily without shaking hands with her]

PRÆD [sadly] Goodbye, Kitty

MRS WARREN [snivelling]—oohye!

Præd goes Vivie, composed and extremely grave, sits down in Honoria's chair, and waits for her mother to speak Mrs Warren, dreading a pause, loses no time in beginning

MRS WARREN Well, Vivie, what did you go away like that for without saying a word to me? How could you do such a thing! And what have you done to poor George? I wanted him to come with me, but he shuffled out of it I could see that he was quite afraid of you Only fancy he wanted me not to come As if [trembling] I should be afraid of you, dearie [Vivie's gravity deepens] But of course I told him it was all settled and comfortable between us, and that we were on the best of terms [She breaks down] Vivie what's the meaning of this? [She produces a commercial envelope, and fumbles at the enclosure with trembling fingers] I got it from the bank this morning

VIVIE It is my month's allowance They sent it to me as usual the other day I simply sent it back to be placed to your credit, and asked them to send you the lodgment receipt In future I shall support myself

MRS WARREN [not daring to understand] Wasn't it enough? Why didn't you tell me? [With a cunning gleam in her eye] I'll double it I was intending to double it Only let me know how much you want

VIVIE You know very well that that has nothing to do with it From this time I go my own way in my own business and among my own friends And you will go yours [She rises] Goodbye

MRS WARREN [rising, appalled] Goodbye?

VIVIE Yes goodbye Come don't let us make a useless scene you understand perfectly well Sir George Crofts has told me the whole business

MRS WARREN [angrily] Silly old— [She swallows an epithet and turns white at the narrowness of her escape from uttering it]

VIVIE Just so

MRS WARREN He ought to have his tongue cut out But I thought it was ended you said you didnt mind

VIVIE [steadfastly] Excuse me I do mind

MRS WARREN But I explained—

VIVIE You explained how it came about. You did not tell me that it is still going on [She sits]

Mrs Warren, silenced for a moment, looks forlornly at Vivie, who waits secretly hoping that the combat is over But the cunning expression comes back into Mrs Warren's face, and she bends across the table, sly and urgent, half whispering

MRS WARREN Vivie do you know how rich I am?

VIVIE I have no doubt you are very rich

MRS WARREN But you dont know all that that means youre too young. It means a new dress every day, it means theatres and balls every night, it means having the pick of all the gentlemen in Europe at your feet; it means a lovely house and plenty of servants it means the choicest of eating and drinking, it means everything you like, everything you want, everything you can think of And what are you here? A mere drudge, toiling and moiling early and late for your bare living and two cheap dresses a year Think over it [Soothingly] Youre shocked, I know. I can enter into your feelings, and I think they do you credit, but trust me, nobody will blame you you may take my word for that I know what young girls are, and I know youll think better of it when youve turned it over in your mind

VIVIE So thats how it's done, is it? You must have said all that to many a woman, mother. to have it so pat

MRS WARREN [passionately] What harm am I asking you to do? [Vivie turns away contemptuously Mrs Warren continues desperately] Vivie listen to me you dont understand youve been taught wrong on purpose you dont know what the world is really like VIVIE [arrested] Taught wrong on purpose! What do you mean?

MRS WARREN I mean that youre throwing away all your chances for nothing You think that people are what they pretend to be that the way you were taught at school and college to think right and proper is the way things really are But it's not it's all only a pretence, to keep the cowardly slavish common run of people quiet Do you want to find that out, like other women at forty, when youve thrown yourself away and lost your chances, or wont you take it in good time now from your own mother, that loves you and swears to you that it's truth gospel truth? [Urgently] Vivie the big people, the clever people, the managing people, all know it They do as I do, and think what I think I know plenty of them I know them to speak to to introduce you to to make friends of for you I dont mean anything wrong thats what you dont understand your head is full of ignorant ideas about me What do the people that taught you know about life or about people like me? When did they ever meet me, or speak to me, or let anyone tell them about me? the fools! Would they ever have done anything for you if I hadnt paid them? Havnt I told you that I want you to be respectable? Havnt I brought you up to be respectable? And how can you keep it up without my money and my influence and Lizzie's friends? Cant you see that youre cutting your own throat as well as breaking my heart in turning your back on me?

VIVIE I recognize the Crofts philosophy of life, mother I heard it all from him that day at the Gardners'

MRS WARREN You think I want to force that played-out old sot on you! I dont, Vivie on my oath I dont.

VIVIE It would not matter if you did you would not succeed [Mrs Warren winces, deeply hurt by the implied indifference towards her affectionate intention Vivie, neither understanding this nor concerning herself about it, goes on calmly] Mother you dont at all know the sort of person I am I dont object to Crofts more than to any other coarsely built man of his class To tell you the truth, I rather admire him for being strongminded enough to enjoy himself in his own way and make plenty of money instead of living the usual shooting, hunting, dining-out, tailoring, loafing life of his set merely because all the rest do it. And I'm perfectly aware that if I'd been in the same circumstances as my aunt Liz, I'd have done exactly what she did I dont think I'm more prejudiced or straitlaced than you I think I'm less I'm certain I'm less sentimental I know very well that fashionable morality is all a pretence, and that if I took your money and devoted the rest of my life to spending it fashionably, I might be as worthless and vicious as the silliest woman could possibly want to be without having a word said to me about it But I dont want to be worthless I shouldnt enjoy trotting about the park to advertize my dressmaker and carriage builder, or being bored at the opera to shew off a shopwindowful of diamonds

MRS WARREN [bewildered] But—

VIVIE Wait a moment Ive not done Tell me why you continue your business now that you are independent of it Your sister, you told me, has left all that behind her Why dont you do the same?

MRS WARREN Oh, it's all very easy for Liz she likes good society, and has the air of being a lady Imagine me in a cathedral town! Why, the very rooks in the trees would find me out even if I could stand the dulness of it I must have work and excitement, or I should go melancholy mad And what else is there for me to do? The life suits me I'm fit for it and not for anything else If I didnt do it somebody else would, so I dont do any real harm by it And then it brings in money, and I like making money No it's no use I cant give it up—not for anybody But what need you know about it? I'll never mention it I'll keep Crofts away I'll not trouble you much you see I have to be constantly running about from one place to another You'll be quit of me altogether when I die

VIVIE No I am my mother's daughter I am like you I must have work, and must make more money than I spend But my work is not your work, and my way not your way We must part It will not make much difference to us instead of meeting one another for perhaps a few months in twenty years, we shall never meet thats all

MRS WARREN [her voice stifled in tears] Vivie I meant to have been more with you I did indeed

VIVIE It's no use, mother I am not to be changed by a few cheap tears and entreaties any more than you are, I daresay

MRS WARREN [wildly] Oh, you call a mother's tears cheap

VIVIE They cost you nothing, and you ask me to give you the peace and quietness of my whole life in exchange for them What use would my company be to you if you could get it? What have we two in common that could make either of us happy together?

MRS WARREN [lapsing recklessly into her dialect] We're mother and daughter I want my daughter Ive a right to you Who is to care for me when I'm old? Plenty of girls have taken to me like daughters and cried at leaving me, but I let them all go because I had you to look forward to I kept myself lonely for you Youve no right to turn on me now and refuse to do your duty as a daughter VIVIE [jarred and antagonized by the echo of the slurs in her mother's voice] My duty as a daughter! I thought we should come to that presently Now once for all, mother, you want a daughter and Frank wants a wife I dont want a mother, and I dont want a husband I have spared neither Frank nor myself in sending him about his business Do you think I will spare you?

MRS WARREN [violently] Oh, I know the sort, you are no mercy for yourself or anyone else I know My experience has done that for me anyhow I can tell the pious, canting, hard, selfish woman when I meet her Well, keep yourself to yourself I dont want you But listen to this Do you know what I would do with you if you were a baby again? aye, as sure as theres a Heaven above us

VIVIE Strangle me, perhaps

MRS WARREN No I'd bring you up to be a real daughter to me, and not what you are now, with your pride and your prejudices and the college education you stole from me yes, stole deny it if you can what was it but stealing? I'd bring you up in my own house, I would

VIVIE [quietly] In one of your own houses

MRS WARREN [screaming] Listen to her! listen to how she spits on her mother's grey hairs! Oh, may you live to have your own daughter tear and trample on you as you have trampled on me And you will you will No woman ever had luck with a mother's curse on her

VIVIE I wish you wouldnt rant, mother It only hardens me Come I suppose I am the only young woman you ever had in your power that you did good to Dont spoil it all now

MRS WARREN Yes, Heaven forgive me, it's true, and you are the only one that ever

turned on me Oh, the injustice of it! the injustice! the injustice! I always wanted to be a good woman I tried honest work, and I was slave-driven until I cursed the day I ever heard of honest work I was a good mother, and because I made my daughter a good woman she turns me out as if I was a leper Oh, if I only had my life to live over again! I'd talk to that lying clergyman in the school From this time forth, so help me Heaven in my last hour, I'll do wrong and nothing but wrong And I'll prosper on it

VIVIE Yes it's better to choose your line and go through with it If I had been you, mother, I might have done as you did, but I should not have lived one life and believed in another You are a conventional woman at heart That is why I am bidding you goodbye now I am right, am I not?

MRS WARREN [taken aback] Right to throw away all my money!

VIVIE No right to get rid of you? I should be a fool not to? Isn't that so?

MRS WARREN [sulkily] Oh well, yes, if you come to that, I suppose you are But Lord help the world if everybody took to doing the right thing! And now I'd better go than stay where I'm not wanted [She turns to the door]

VIVIE [kindly] Wont you shake hands? MRS WARREN [after looking at her fiercely for a moment with a savage impulse to strike her]

No, thank you Goodbye

ARMS AND THE MAN

1894

BEING THE FIRST OF FOUR PLEASANT PLAYS

ACT I

Night A lady's bedchamber in Bulgaria, in a small town near the Dragoman Pass, late in November in the year 1885 Through an open window with a little balcony a peak of the Balkans wonderfully white and beautiful in the starlit snow, seems quite close at hand, though it is really miles away The interior of the room is not like anything to be seen in the west of Europe It is half rich Bulgarian half cheap Viennese Above the head of the bed, which stands against a little wall cutting off the left hand corner of the room, is a painted wooden shrine, blue and gold, with an ivory image of Christ, and a light hanging before it in a pierced metal ball suspended by three chains The principal seat placed towards the other side of the room and opposite the window, is a Turkish ottoman The counterpane and hangings of the bed, the window curtains the little carpet, and all the ornamental textile fabrics in the room are oriental and gorgeous the paper on the walls is occidental and paltry The washstand, against the wall on the side nearest the ottoman and window, consists of an enamelled iron basin with a pail beneath it in a painted metal frame, and a single towel on the rail at the side The dressing table, between the bed and the window is a common pine table, covered with a cloth of many colors with an expensive toilet mirror on it The door is on the side nearest the bed, and there is a chest of drawers between This chest of drawers is also covered by a variegated native cloth, and on it there is a pile of paper backed novels a box of chocolate creams, and a miniature easel with a large photograph of an extremely handsome officer, whose lofty bearing and magnetic glance can be felt even from the portrait The room is lighted by a candle on the chest of drawers, and another on the dressing table with a box of matches beside it

The window is hinged doornwise and stands wide open Outside, a pair of wooden shutters, opening outwards, also stand open On the balcony a young lady, intensely conscious of the romantic beauty of the night, and of the fact that her own youth and beauty are part of it, is gazing at the snowy Balkans She is in her nightgown, well covered by a long mantle of furs, north, on a moderate estimate, about three times the furniture of her room

Her reverie is interrupted by her mother, Catherine Petkoff, a woman over forty, imperiously energetic, with magnificent black hair and eyes, who might be a very splendid specimen of the wife of a mountain farmer, but is determined to be a Viennese lady, and to that end wears a fashionable tea gown on all occasions

CATHERINE [entering hastily, full of good news] Raina! [She pronounces it Rah-eena, with the stress on the ee] Raina! [She goes to the bed, expecting to find Raina there] Why, where—? [Raina looks into the room] Heavens, child! are you out in the night air instead of in your bed? You'll catch your death Louka told me you were asleep

RAINA [dreamily] I sent her away I wanted to be alone The stars are so beautiful! What is the matter?

CATHERINE Such news! There has been a battle

RAINA [her eyes dilating] Ah! [She comes eagerly to Catherine]

CATHERINE A great battle at Shvinitza! A victory! And it was won by Sergius

RAINA [with a cry of delight] Ah! [They embrace rapturously] Oh, mother! [Then, with sudden anxiety] Is father safe?

CATHERINE Of course he sends me the news Sergius is the hero of the hour, the idol of the regiment

RAINA Tell me, tell me How was it? [Ecstatically] Oh, mother! mother! mother! [She pulls her mother down on the ottoman, and they kiss one another frantically]

CATHERINE [with surging enthusiasm] You can't guess how splendid it is A cavalry charge! think of that! He defied our Russian commanders—acted without orders—led a charge on his own responsibility—headed it himself—was the first man to sweep through their guns Can't you see it, Raina our gallant splendid Bulgarians, with their swords and eyes flashing, thundering down like an avalanche and scattering the wretched Serbs and their dandified Austrian officers like chaff And you! you kept Sergius waiting a year before you would be betrothed to him Oh, if you have a drop of Bulgarian blood in your veins, you will worship him when he comes back

RAINA What will he care for my poor little worship after the acclamations of a whole army of heroes? But no matter I am so happy! so proud! [She rises and walks about excitedly] It proves that all our ideas were real after all

CATHERINE [indignantly] Our ideas real! What do you mean?

RAINA Our ideas of what Sergius would do Our patriotism Our heroic ideals I sometimes used to doubt whether they were anything but dreams Oh, what faithless little creatures girls are! When I buckled on Sergius's sword he looked so noble it was treason to think of disillusion or humiliation or failure And yet—and yet— [She sits down again suddenly] Promise me you'll never tell him

CATHERINE Don't ask me for promises until I know what I'm promising

RAINA Well, it came into my head just as he was holding me in his arms and looking into my eyes that perhaps we only had our heroic ideas because we are so fond of reading Byron and Pushkin, and because we were so delighted with the opera that season at Bucharest Real life is so seldom like that! indeed never, as far as I knew it then [Remorsefully] Only think, mother I doubted him I wondered whether all his heroic qualities and his soldiership might not prove mere imagination when he went into a real battle I had an uneasy fear that he might cut a poor figure there beside all those clever officers from the Tsar's court

CATHERINE A poor figure! Shame on you! The Serbs have Austrian officers who are just as clever as the Russians, but we have beaten them in every battle for all that RAINA [laughing and snuggling against her mother] Yes I was only a prosaic little coward Oh, to think that it was all true! that Sergius is just as splendid and noble as he looks! that the world is really a glorious world for women who can see its glory and men who can act its romance! What happiness! what unspeakable fulfilment!

They are interrupted by the entry of Louka, a handsome proud girl in a pretty Bulgarian peasant's dress with double apron, so defiant that her servility to Raina is almost insolent. She is afraid of Catherine, but even with her goes as far as she dares LOUKA If you please, madam, all the windows are to be closed and the shutters made fast. They say there may be shooting in the streets [Raina and Catherine rise together, alarmed]. The Serbs are being chased right back through the pass, and they say they may run into the town. Our cavalry will be after them, and our people will be ready for them, you may be sure, now they're running away [She goes out on the balcony, and pulls the outside shutters to; then steps back into the room].

CATHERINE [businesslike, her housekeeping instincts aroused]. I must see that everything is made safe downstairs.

RAINA I wish our people were not so cruel. What glory is there in killing wretched fugitives?

CATHERINE Cruel! Do you suppose they would hesitate to kill you—or worse?

RAINA [to Louka]. Leave the shutters so that I can just close them if I hear any noise.

CATHERINE [authoritatively, turning on her way to the door]. Oh no, dear, you must keep them fastened. You would be sure to drop off to sleep and leave them open. Make them fast, Louka.

LOUKA Yes, madam [She fastens them].

RAINA Don't be anxious about me. The moment I hear a shot, I shall blow out the candles and roll myself up in bed with my ears well covered.

CATHERINE Quite the wisest thing you can do, my love. Goodnight.

RAINA Goodnight. [Her emotion comes back for a moment]. Wish me joy. [They kiss]. This is the happiest night of my life—if only there are no fugitives.

CATHERINE Go to bed, dear, and don't think of them [She goes out].

LOUKA [secretly, to Raina]. If you would like the shutters open, just give them a push like this [she pushes them, they open, she pulls them to again]. One of them ought to be bolted at the bottom, but the bolt's gone.

RAINA [with dignity, reproving her]. Thanks, Louka, but we must do what we are told [Louka makes a grimace]. Goodnight.

LOUKA [carelessly]. Goodnight. [She goes out, swaggering].

Raina, left alone, takes off her fur cloak and throws it on the ottoman. Then she goes to the chest of drawers, and adores the portrait there with feelings that are beyond all expression. She does not kiss it or press it to her breast, or shew it any mark of bodily affection, but she takes it in her hands and elevates it, like a priestess

RAINA [looking up at the picture]. Oh, I shall never be unworthy of you any more, my soul's hero, never, never, never [She replaces it reverently. Then she selects a novel from the little pile of books. She turns over the leaves dreamily, finds her page, turns the book inside out at it, and, with a happy sigh, gets into bed and prepares to read herself to sleep. But before abandoning herself to fiction, she raises her eyes once more, thinking of the blessed reality, and murmurs]. My hero! my hero!

A distant shot breaks the quiet of the night. She starts, listening, and two more shots much nearer follow, startling her so that she scrambles out of bed, and hastily blows out the candle on the chest of drawers. Then, putting her fingers in her ears, she runs to the dressing table, blows out the light there, and hurries back to bed in the dark, nothing being visible but the glimmer of the light in the pierced ball before the image, and the starlight seen through the slits at the top of the shutters. The firing breaks out again, there is a startling fusillade quite close at hand. Whilst it is still echoing, the shutters disappear, pulled open from without, and for an instant the rectangle of snowy starlight flashes out with the figure of a man silhouetted in black upon it. The shutters close immediately, and the room is dark again. But the silence is now broken by the sound of panting. Then there is a scratch, and the flame of a match is seen in the middle of the room.

RAINA [crouching on the bed]. Who's there? [The match is out instantly]. Who's there? Who is that?

A MAN'S VOICE [in the darkness, subdued, but threateningly]. Sh—sh! Don't call out, or you'll be shot. Be good, and no harm will happen to you [She is heard leaving her bed, and making for the door]. Take care, it's no use trying to run away.

RAINA But who—

THE VOICE [warning]. Remember, if you raise your voice my revolver will go off [Commandingly]. Strike a light and let me see you. Do you hear? [Another moment of silence and darkness as she retreats to the chest of drawers. Then she lights a candle, and the mystery is at an end. He is a man of about 35, in a deplorable plight, bespattered with mud and blood and sweat, his belt and the strap of his revolver-case keeping

together the torn ruins of the blue tunic of a Serbian artillery officer. All that the candlelight and his unwashed unkempt condition make it possible to discern is that he is of middling stature and undistinguished appearance, with strong neck and shoulders, roundish obstinate looking head covered with short crisp bronze curls, clear quick eyes and good brows and mouth, hopelessly prosaic nose like that of a strong minded baby, trim soldierlike carriage and energetic manner, and with all his wits about him in spite of his desperate predicament even with a sense of the humor of it, without, however, the least intention of trifling with it or throwing away a chance. Reckoning up what he can guess about Raina her age, her social position, her character, and the extent to which she is frightened, he continues, more politely but still most determinedly] Excuse my disturbing you, but you recognize my uniform? Serb! If I'm caught I shall be killed [Menacingly] Do you understand that?

RAINA Yes

THE MAN Well, I don't intend to get killed if I can help it [Still more formidably] Do you understand that? [He locks the door quickly but quietly]

RAINA [disdainfully] I suppose not [She draws herself up superbly, and looks him straight in the face, adding, with cutting emphasis] Some soldiers, I know, are afraid to die

THE MAN [with grim good humor] All of them, dear lady, all of them, believe me. It is our duty to live as long as we can. Now, if you raise an alarm—

RAINA [cutting him short] You will shoot me. How do you know that I am afraid to die?

THE MAN [cunningly] Ah, but suppose I don't shoot you, what will happen then? A lot of your cavalry will burst into this pretty room of yours and slaughter me here like a pig, for I'll fight like a demon. They shan't get me into the street to amuse themselves with. I know what they are. Are you prepared to receive that sort of company in your present undress? [Raina, suddenly conscious of her nightgown, instinctively shrinks, and gathers it more closely about her neck. He natches her, and adds, pitilessly] Hardly presentable, eh? [She turns to the ottoman. He raises his pistol instantly, and cries] Stop! [She stops] Where are you going?

RAINA [with dignified patience] Only to get my cloak

THE MAN [passing swiftly to the ottoman and snatching the cloak] A good idea! I'll keep the cloak, and you'll take care that nobody comes in and sees you without it. This is a better weapon than the revolver, eh? [He throws the pistol down on the ottoman]

RAINA [revolted] It is not the weapon of a gentleman!

THE MAN It's good enough for a man with only you to stand between him and death [As they look at one another for a moment, Raina hardly able to believe that even a Serbian officer can be so cynically and selfishly unchivalrous, they are startled by a sharp fusillade in the street. The chill of imminent death hushes the man's voice as he adds] Do you hear? If you are going to bring those blackguards in on me you shall receive them as you are

Clamor and disturbance. The pursuers in the street batter at the house door, shouting. Open the door! Open the door! Wake up, will you! A man servant's voice calls to them angrily from within. This is Major Petkoff's house, you can't come in here, but a renewal of the clamor, and a torrent of blows on the door, end with his letting a chain down with a clank, followed by a rush of heavy footsteps and a din of triumphant yells, dominated at last by the voice of Catherine, indignantly addressing an officer with. What does this mean, sir? Do you know where you are? The noise subsides suddenly

LOUISE [outside, knocking at the bedroom door] My lady! my lady! get up quick and open the door. If you don't they will break it down

The fugitive throws up his head with the gesture of a man who sees that it is all over with him, and drops the manner he has been assuming to intimidate Raina

THE MAN [sincerely and kindly] No use, dear. I'm done for [Flinging the cloak to her] Quick! wrap yourself up. They're coming

RAINA Oh, thank you [She wraps herself up with intense relief]

THE MAN [between his teeth] Don't mention it

RAINA [anxiously] What will you do?

THE MAN [grimly] The first man in will find out. Keep out of the way, and don't look. It won't last long, but it will not be nice [He draws his sabre and faces the door, waiting]

RAINA [impulsively] I'll help you. I'll save you

THE MAN You can't

RAINA I can. I'll hide you [She drags him towards the window] Here! behind the curtains

THE MAN [yielding to her] There's just half a chance, if you keep your head

RAINA [drawing the curtain before him] S-sh! [She makes for the ottoman]

THE MAN [putting out his head] Remember—

RAINA [running back to him] Yes?

THE MAN ~~—nine soldiers out of ten are~~ born fools

RAINA Oh! [She draws the curtain angrily before him]

THE MAN [looking out at the other side] If they find me, I promise you a fight a devil of a fight

She stamps at him He disappears hastily She takes off her cloak, and throws it across the foot of the bed Then, with a sleepy, disturbed air, she opens the door Louka enters excitedly

LOUKA One of those beasts of Serbs has been seen climbing up the waterpipe to your balcony Our men want to search for him, and they are so wild and drunk and furious [She makes for the other side of the room to get as far from the door as possible] My lady says you are to dress at once, and to— [She sees the revolver lying on the ottoman, and stops, petrified]

RAINA [as if annoyed at being disturbed] They shall not search here Why have they been let in?

CATHERINE [coming in hastily] Raina, darling are you safe? Have you seen anyone or heard anything?

RAINA I heard the shooting Surely the soldiers will not dare come in here?

CATHERINE I have found a Russian officer, thank Heaven he knows Sergius [Speaking through the door to someone outside] Sir will you come in now My daughter will receive you

A young Russian officer, in Bulgarian uniform, enters, sword in hand OFFICER [with soft feline politeness and stuff military carriage] Good evening, gracious lady I am sorry to intrude, but there is a Serb hiding on the balcony Will you and the gracious lady your mother please to withdraw whilst we search?

RAINA [petulantly] Nonsense, sir you can see that there is no one on the balcony [She throws the shutters wide open and stands with her back to the curtain where the man is hidden, pointing to the moonlit balcony A couple of shots are fired right under the window, and a bullet shatters the glass opposite Raina, who winks and gasps, but stands her ground, whilst Catherine screams, and the officer, with a cry of Take care! rushes to the balcony]

THE OFFICER [on the balcony, shouting savagely down to the street] Cease firing there, you fools do you hear? Cease firing, damn you! [He glares down for a moment, then turns to Raina, trying to resume his polite manner] Could anyone have got in without your knowledge? Were you asleep?

RAINA No I have not been to bed

THE OFFICER [impatiently, coming back into the room] Your neighbors have their heads so full of runaway Serbs that they see them everywhere [Pohitely] Gracious lady a thousand pardons Goodnight [Military bow, which Raina returns coldly Another to Catherine, who follows him out]

Raina closes the shutters She turns and sees Louka, who has been watching the scene curiously

RAINA Dont leave my mother, Louka, until the soldiers go away

Louka glances at Raina, at the ottoman, at the curtain, then purses her lips secretly, laughs insolently, and goes out Raina, highly offended by this demonstration, follows her to the door, and shuts it behind her with a slam, locking it violently The man immediately steps out from behind the curtain, sheathing his sabre Then, dismissing the danger from his mind in a businesslike way, he comes affably to Raina

THE MAN A narrow shave, but a miss is as good as a mile Dear young lady your servant to the death I wish for your sake I had joined the Bulgarian army instead of the other one I am not a native Serb

RAINA [haughtily] No you are one of the Austrians who set the Serbs on to rob us of our national liberty, and who officer their army for them We hate them!

THE MAN Austrian! not I Dont hate me, dear young lady I am a Swiss, fighting merely as a professional soldier I joined the Serbs because they came first on the road from Switzerland Be generous youve beaten us hollow

RAINA Have I not been generous?

THE MAN Noble! Heroic! But I'm not saved yet This particular rush will soon pass through, but the pursuit will go on all night by fits and starts I must take my chance to get off in a quiet interval [Pleasantly] You dont mind my waiting just a minute or two, do you?

RAINA [putting on her most genteel society manner] Oh, not at all Wont you sit down?

THE MAN Thanks [He sits on the foot of the bed]

Raina walks with studied elegance to the ottoman and sits down. Unfortunately she sits on the pistol, and jumps up with a shriek. The man, all nerves, shies like a frightened horse to the other side of the room.

THE MAN [irritably] Don't frighten me like that! What is it?

RAINA Your revolver! It was staring that officer in the face all the time! What an escape!

THE MAN [vexed at being unnecessarily terrified] Oh, is that all?

RAINA [staring at him rather superciliously as she conceives a poorer and poorer opinion of him, and feels proportionately more and more at her ease] I am sorry I frightened you [She takes up the pistol and hands it to him]. Pray take it to protect yourself against me.

THE MAN [grinning wearily at the sarcasm as he takes the pistol] No use, dear young lady! There's nothing in it. It's not loaded [He makes a grimace at it, and drops it disparagingly into his revolver case].

RAINA Load it by all means.

THE MAN I've no ammunition! What use are cartridges in battle? I always carry chocolate instead, and I finished the last cake of that hours ago.

RAINA [outraged in her most cherished ideals of manhood] Chocolate! Do you stuff your pockets with sweets—like a schoolboy—even in the field?

THE MAN [grinning] Yes! Isn't it contemptible? [Hungrily] I wish I had some now.

RAINA Allow me [She sails away scornfully to the chest of drawers, and returns with the box of confectionery in her hand]. I am sorry I have eaten them all except these [She offers him the box].

THE MAN [ravenously] You're an angel! [He gobbles the contents]. Creams! Delicious! [He looks anxiously to see whether there are any more. There are none. He can only scrape the box with his fingers and suck them. When that nourishment is exhausted he accepts the inevitable with pathetic goodhumor, and says, with grateful emotion]. Bless you, dear lady! You can always tell an old soldier by the inside of his holsters and cartridge boxes. The young ones carry pistols and cartridges; the old ones, grub. Thank you [He hands back the box. She snatches it contemptuously from him and throws it away. He shies again, as if she had meant to strike him]. Ugh! Don't do things so suddenly, gracious lady! It's mean to revenge yourself because I frightened you just now.

RAINA [loftily] Frighten me! Do you know, sir, that though I am only a woman, I think I am at heart as brave as you.

THE MAN I should think so! You haven't been under fire for three days as I have. I can stand two days without shewing it much, but no man can stand three days. I'm as nervous as a mouse [He sits down on the ottoman, and takes his head in his hands]. Would you like to see me cry?

RAINA [alarmed] No.

THE MAN If you would, all you have to do is to scold me just as if I were a little boy and you my nurse. If I were in camp now, they'd play all sorts of tricks on me.

RAINA [a little moved] I'm sorry I won't scold you [Touched by the sympathy in her tone, he raises his head and looks gratefully at her. She immediately draws back and says stiffly]. You must excuse me: our soldiers are not like that [She moves away from the ottoman].

THE MAN Oh, yes, they are. There are only two sorts of soldiers: old ones and young ones. I've served fourteen years; half of your fellows never smelt powder before. Why, how is it that you've just beaten us? Sheer ignorance of the art of war, nothing else [Indignantly]. I never saw anything so unprofessional.

RAINA [ironically] Oh! was it unprofessional to beat you?

THE MAN Well, come! is it professional to throw a regiment of cavalry on a battery of machine guns, with the dead certainty that if the guns go off not a horse or man will ever get within fifty yards of the fire? I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw it.

RAINA [eagerly turning to him, as all her enthusiasm and her dreams of glory rush back on her]. Did you see the great cavalry charge? Oh! tell me about it. Describe it to me.

THE MAN You never saw a cavalry charge, did you?

RAINA How could I?

THE MAN Ah, perhaps not. No, of course not! Well, it's a funny sight. It's like slinging a handful of peas against a window pane: first one comes, then two or three close behind him, and then all the rest in a lump.

RAINA [her eyes dilating as she raises her clasped hands ecstatically]. Yes, first One! the bravest of the brave!

THE MAN [prosaically] Hm! you should see the poor devil pulling at his horse

RAINA Why should he pull at his horse?

THE MAN [impatently of so stupid a question] It's running away with him, of course do you suppose the fellow wants to get there before the others and be killed? Then they all come You can tell the young ones by their wildness and their slashing The old ones come bunched up under the number one guard they know that they're mere projectiles, and that it's no use trying to fight The wounds are mostly broken knees, from the horses cannoning together

RAINA Ugh! But I don't believe the first man is a coward I know he is a hero!

THE MAN [goodhumoredly] That's what you'd have said if you'd seen the first man in the charge today

RAINA [breathless, forgiving him everything] Ah, I knew it! Tell me Tell me about him

THE MAN He did it like an operatic tenor A regular handsome fellow, with flashing eyes and lovely moustache, shouting his war-cry and charging like Don Quixote at the windmills We did laugh

RAINA You dared to laugh!

THE MAN Yes, but when the sergeant ran up as white as a sheet, and told us they'd sent us the wrong ammunition, and that we couldn't fire a round for the next ten minutes, we laughed at the other side of our mouths I never felt so sick in my life, though I've been in one or two very tight places And I hadn't even a revolver cartridge only chocolate We'd no bayonets nothing Of course, they just cut us to bits And there was Don Quixote flourishing like a drum major, thinking he'd done the cleverest thing ever known, whereas he ought to be court-martialled for it Of all the fools ever let loose on a field of battle, that man must be the very maddest He and his regiment simply committed suicide, only the pistol missed fire that's all RAINA [deeply wounded, but steadfastly loyal to her ideals] Indeed! Would you know him again if you saw him?

THE MAN Shall I ever forget him!

She again goes to the chest of drawers. He watches her with a vague hope that she may have something more for him to eat. She takes the portrait from its stand and brings it to him.

RAINA That is a photograph of the gentleman—the patriot and hero—to whom I am betrothed

THE MAN [recognizing it with a shock] I'm really very sorry [Looking at her] Was it fair to lead me on? [He looks at the portrait again] Yes that's Don Quixote not a doubt of it [He stifles a laugh]

RAINA [quickly] Why do you laugh?

THE MAN [apologetic, but still greatly tickled] I didn't laugh, I assure you At least I didn't mean to But when I think of him charging the windmills and imagining he was doing the finest thing— [He chokes with suppressed laughter]

RAINA [sternly] Give me back the portrait, sir

THE MAN [with sincere remorse] Of course Certainly I'm really very sorry [He hands her the picture. She deliberately kisses it and looks him straight in the face before returning to the chest of drawers to replace it. He follows her, apologizing] Perhaps I'm quite wrong, you know no doubt I am Most likely he had got wind of the cartridge business somehow, and knew it was a safe job

RAINA That is to say, he was a pretender and a coward! You did not dare say that before

THE MAN [with a comic gesture of despair] It's no use, dear lady I can't make you see it from the professional point of view [As he turns away to get back to the ottoman, a couple of distant shots threaten renewed trouble]

RAINA [sternly, as she sees him listening to the shots] So much the better for you!

THE MAN [turning] How?

RAINA You are my enemy, and you are at my mercy What would I do if I were a professional soldier?

THE MAN Ah, true, dear young lady you're always right I know how good you've been to me to my last hour I shall remember those three chocolate creams It was unsoldierly, but it was angelic

RAINA [coldly] Thank you And now I will do a soldierly thing You cannot stay here after what you have just said about my future husband, but I will go out on the balcony and see whether it is safe for you to climb down into the street [She turns to the window]

THE MAN [changing countenance] Down that waterpipe! Stop! Wait! I can't! I daren't! The very thought of it makes me giddy I came up it fast enough with death behind me But to face it now in cold blood—! [He sinks on the ottoman] It's no use I give up I'm beaten

Give the alarm [He drops his head on his hands in the deepest dejection]

RAINA [disarmed by pity] Come dont be disheartened [She stoops over him almost maternally he shakes his head] Oh, you are a very poor soldier a chocolate cream soldier! Come, cheer up! it takes less courage to climb down than to face capture remember that

THE MAN [dreamily, lulled by her voice] No capture only means death, and death is sleep! oh, sleep, sleep, sleep, undisturbed sleep! Climbing down the pipe means doing something—exerting myself—thinking! Death ten times over first RAINA [softly and wonderingly, catching the rhythm of his weariness] Are you as sleepy as that?

THE MAN Ive not had two hours undisturbed sleep since I joined I havnt closed my eyes for forty-eight hours

RAINA [at her wit's end] But what am I to do with you?

THE MAN [staggering up, roused by her desperation] Of course I must do something [He shakes himself, pulls himself together, and speaks with rallied vigor and courage] You see, sleep or no sleep, hunger or no hunger, tired or not tired, you can always do a thing when you know it must be done Well, that pipe must be got down [he hits himself on the chest] do you hear that, you chocolate cream soldier? [He turns to the window]

RAINA [anxiously] But if you fall?

THE MAN I shall sleep as if the stones were a feather bed Goodbye [He makes boldly for the window, and his hand is on the shutter when there is a terrible burst of firing in the street beneath]

RAINA [rushing to him] Stop! [She seizes him recklessly, and pulls him quite round] Theyll kill you

THE MAN [coolly, but attentively] Never mind this sort of thing is all in my day's work I'm bound to take my chance [Decisively] Now do what I tell you Put out the candle, so that they shant see the light when I open the shutters And keep away from the window, whatever you do If they see me theyre sure to have a shot at me

RAINA [clinging to him] Theyre sure to see you it's bright moonlight I'll save you Oh, how can you be so indifferent! You want me to save you, dont you?

THE MAN I really dont want to be troublesome [She shakes him in her impatience] I am not indifferent, dear young lady, I assure you But how is it to be done?

RAINA Come away from the window [She takes him firmly back to the middle of the room The moment she releases him he turns mechanically towards the window again She seizes him and turns him back, exclaiming] Please! [He becomes motionless, like a hypnotized rabbit, his fatigue gaining fast on him She releases him, and addresses him patronizingly] Now listen You must trust to our hospitality You do not yet know in whose house you are I am a Petkoff

THE MAN A pet what?

RAINA [rather indignantly] I mean that I belong to the family of the Petkoffs, the richest and best known in our country

THE MAN Oh yes, of course I beg your pardon The Petkoffs, to be sure How stupid of me!

RAINA You know you never heard of them until this moment How can you stoop to pretend!

THE MAN Forgive me I'm too tired to think, and the change of subject was too much for me Dont scold me

RAINA I forgot It might make you cry [He nods, quite seriously She pouts and then resumes her patronizing tone] I must tell you that my father holds the highest command of any Bulgarian in our army He is [proudly] a Major

THE MAN [pretending to be deeply impressed] A Major! Bless me! Think of that!

RAINA You shewed great ignorance in thinking that it was necessary to climb up to the balcony because ours is the only private house that has two rows of windows There is a flight of stairs inside to get up and down by

THE MAN Stairs! How grand! You live in great luxury indeed, dear young lady

RAINA Do you know what a library is?

THE MAN A library? A roomful of books?

RAINA Yes We have one, the only one in Bulgaria

THE MAN Actually a real library! I should like to see that

RAINA [affectedly] I tell you these things to shew you that you are not in the house of ignorant country folk who would kill you the moment they saw your Serbian uniform, but among civilized people We go to Bucharest every year for the opera season, and I have spent a whole month in Vienna

THE MAN I saw that, dear young lady I saw at once that you knew the world

RAINA Have you ever seen the opera of Ernani?

THE MAN Is that the one with the devil in it in red velvet, and a soldiers' chorus?

RAINA [contemptuously] No!

THE MAN [stifling a heavy sigh of neariness] Then I don't know it

RAINA I thought you might have remembered the great scene where Ernani, flying from his foes just as you are tonight, takes refuge in the castle of his bitterest enemy, an old Castilian noble. The noble refuses to give him up. His guest is sacred to him.

THE MAN [quickly, waking up a little] Have your people got that notion?

RAINA [with dignity] My mother and I can understand that notion, as you call it. And if instead of threatening me with your pistol as you did you had simply thrown yourself as a fugitive on our hospitality, you would have been as safe as in your father's house.

THE MAN Quite sure?

RAINA [turning her back on him in disgust] Oh, it is useless to try to make you understand.

THE MAN Don't be angry you see how awkward it would be for me if there was any mistake. My father is a very hospitable man. He keeps six hotels, but I couldn't trust him as far as that. What about your father?

RAINA He is away at Shivmitza fighting for his country. I answer for your safety. There is my hand in pledge of it. Will that reassure you? [She offers him her hand]

THE MAN [looking dubiously at his own hand] Better not touch my hand, dear young lady. I must have a wash first.

RAINA [touched] That is very nice of you. I see that you are a gentleman.

THE MAN [puzzled] Eh?

RAINA You must not think I am surprised. Bulgarians of really good standing—people in our position—wash their hands nearly every day. So you see I can appreciate your delicacy. You may take my hand. [She offers it again]

THE MAN [kissing it with his hands behind his back] Thanks, gracious young lady. I feel safe at last. And now would you mind breaking the news to your mother? I had better not stay here secretly longer than is necessary.

RAINA If you will be so good as to keep perfectly still whilst I am away.

THE MAN Certainly [He sits down on the ottoman]

Raina goes to the bed and wraps herself in the fur cloak. His eyes close. She goes to the door. Turning for a last look at him, she sees that he is dropping off to sleep.

RAINA [at the door] You are not going asleep, are you? [He murmurs inarticulately, she runs to him and shakes him] Do you hear? Wake up you are falling asleep.

THE MAN Eh? Falling asleep—? Oh no not the least in the world. I was only thinking. It's all right. I'm wide awake.

RAINA [severely] Will you please stand up while I am away. [He rises reluctantly] All the time, mind.

THE MAN [standing unsteadily] Certainly. Certainly you may depend on me.

Raina looks doubtfully at him. He smiles weakly. She goes reluctantly, turning again at the door, and almost catching him in the act of yawning. She goes out.

THE MAN [drowsily] Sleep, sleep, sleep sleep, sleep— [The words trail off into a murmur. He wakes again with a shock on the point of falling] Where am I? That's what I want to know. Where am I? Must keep awake. Nothing keeps me awake except danger. Remember that [intently] danger, danger, danger, danger— [trailing off again another shock] Where's danger? Must find it. [He starts off vaguely round the room in search of it] What am I looking for? Sleep—danger—don't know. [He stumbles against the bed] Ah yes now I know. All right now. I'm to go to bed, but not to sleep. Be sure not to sleep, because of danger. Not to lie down either, only sit down. [He sits on the bed. A blissful expression comes into his face] Ah! [With a happy sigh he sinks back at full length, lifts his boots into the bed with a final effort, and falls fast asleep instantly]

Catherine comes in, followed by Raina.

CATHERINE Here! Then he must have climbed down from the—

RAINA [seeing him] Oh! [She points]

CATHERINE [scandalized] Well! [She strides to the bed, Raina following until she is opposite her on the other side] He's fast asleep. The brute!

RAINA [anxiously] Sh!

CATHERINE [shaking him] Sir! [Shaking him again, harder] Sir!! [Vehemently, shaking very hard] Sir!!!

RAINA [catching her arm] Don't, mamma. The poor darling is worn out. Let him sleep.

CATHERINE [letting him go, and turning amazed to Raina] The poor darling! Raina!¹¹
[She looks sternly at her daughter]
The man sleeps profoundly

ACT II

The sixth of March, 1886 In the garden of Major Petkoff's house It is a fine spring morning the garden looks fresh and pretty Beyond the paling the tops of a couple of minarets can be seen, shewing that there is a valley there, with the little town in it A few miles further the Balkan mountains rise and shut in the landscape Looking towards them from within the garden, the side of the house is seen on the left, with a garden door reached by a little flight of steps On the right the stable yard, with its gateway, encroaches on the garden There are fruit bushes along the paling and house, covered with washing spread out to dry A path runs by the house, and rises by two steps at the corner, where it turns out of sight In the middle, a small table, with two bent wood chairs at it, is laid for breakfast with Turkish coffee pot, cups, rolls, etc., but the cups have been used and the bread broken There is a wooden garden seat against the wall on the right

Louka, smoking a cigaret, is standing between the table and the house, turning her back with angry disdain on a man servant who is lecturing her He is a middle-aged man of cool temperament and low but clear and keen intelligence, with the complacency of the servant who values himself on his rank in servitude, and the imperturbability of the accurate calculator who has no illusions He wears a white Bulgarian costume jacket with embroidered border, sash, wide knickerbockers, and decorated gaiters His head is shaved up to the crown, giving him a high Japanese forehead His name is Nicola

NICOLA Be warned in time, Louka mend your manners I know the mistress She is so grand that she never dreams that any servant could dare be disrespectful to her, but if she once suspects that you are defying her, out you go

LOUKA I do defy her I will defy her What do I care for her?

NICOLA If you quarrel with the family, I never can marry you It's the same as if you quarrelled with me!

LOUKA You take her part against me, do you?

NICOLA [sedately] I shall always be dependent on the good will of the family When I leave their service and start a shop in Sofia, their custom will be half my capital their bad word would ruin me

LOUKA You have no spirit I should like to catch them saying a word against me!

NICOLA [putyingly] I should have expected more sense from you, Louka But you're young you're young!

LOUKA Yes, and you like me the better for it, don't you? But I know some family secrets they wouldn't care to have told, young as I am Let them quarrel with me if they dare!

NICOLA [with compassionate superiority] Do you know what they would do if they heard you talk like that?

LOUKA What could they do?

NICOLA Discharge you for untruthfulness Who would believe any stories you told after that? Who would give you another situation? Who in this house would dare be seen speaking to you ever again? How long would your father be left on his little farm? [She impatiently throws away the end of her cigaret, and stamps on it] Child you don't know the power such high people have over the like of you and me when we try to rise out of our poverty against them [He goes close to her and lowers his voice] Look at me, ten years in their service Do you think I know no secrets? I know things about the mistress that she wouldn't have the master know for a thousand levas I know things about him that she wouldn't let him hear the last of for six months if I blabbed them to her I know things about Raina that would break off her match with Sergius if—

LOUKA [turning on him quickly] How do you know? I never told you!

NICOLA [opening his eyes cunningly] So that's your little secret, is it? I thought it might be something like that Well, you take my advice and be respectful, and make the mistress feel that no matter what you know or don't know, she can depend on you to hold your tongue and serve the family faithfully That's what they like, and that's how you'll make most out of them

LOUKA [with searching scorn] You have the soul of a servant, Nicola

NICOLA [complacently] Yes that's the secret of success in service

A loud knocking with a whip handle on a wooden door is heard from the stable yard

MALE VOICE OUTSIDE Hollo! Hollo there!

Nicola!

LOUKA Master! back from the war!

NICOLA [quickly] My word for it, Louka, the war's over Off with you and get some fresh coffee [He runs out into the stable yard]

LOUKA [as she collects the coffee pot and cups on the tray, and carries it into the house] You'll never put the soul of a servant into me

Major Petkoff comes from the stable yard, followed by Nicola He is a cheerful, excitable, insignificant, unpolished man of about 50, naturally unambitious except as to his income and his importance in local society, but just now greatly pleased with the military rank which the war has thrust on him as a man of consequence in his town The fever of plucky patriotism which the Serbian attack roused in all the Bulgarians has pulled him through the war, but he is obviously glad to be home again

PETKOFF [pointing to the table with his whip] Breakfast out here, eh?

NICOLA Yes, sir The mistress and Miss Raina have just gone in

PETKOFF [sitting down and taking a roll] Go in and say I've come, and get me some fresh coffee

NICOLA It's coming, sir [He goes to the house door Louka, with fresh coffee, a clean cup, and a brandy bottle on her tray, meets him] Have you told the mistress?

LOUKA Yes she's coming

Nicola goes into the house Louka brings the coffee to the table

PETKOFF Well the Serbs haven't run away with you, have they?

LOUKA No, sir

PETKOFF. That's right Have you brought me some cognac?

LOUKA [putting the bottle on the table] Here, sir

PETKOFF That's right [He pours some into his coffee]

Catherine, who, having at this early hour made only a very perfunctory toilet, wears a Bulgarian apron over a once brilliant but now half worn-out dressing gown, and a colored handkerchief tied over her thick black hair, comes from the house with Turkish slippers on her bare feet, looking astonishingly handsome and stately under all the circumstances Louka goes into the house

CATHERINE My dear Paul what a surprise for us! [She stoops over the back of his chair to kiss him] Have they brought you fresh coffee?

PETKOFF Yes Louka's been looking after me The war's over The treaty was signed three days ago at Bucharest, and the decree for our army to demobilize was issued yesterday

CATHERINE [springing erect, with flashing eyes] Paul have you let the Austrians force you to make peace?

PETKOFF [submissively] My dear they didn't consult me What could I do? [She sits down and turns away from him] But of course we saw to it that the treaty was an honorable one It declares peace—

CATHERINE [outraged] Peace!

PETKOFF [appeasing her] —but not friendly relations remember that They wanted to put that in, but I insisted on its being struck out What more could I do?

CATHERINE You could have annexed Serbia and made Prince Alexander Emperor of the Balkans That's what I would have done

PETKOFF. I don't doubt it in the least, my dear But I should have had to subdue the whole Austrian Empire first, and that would have kept me too long away from you I missed you greatly

CATHERINE [relenting] Ah! [She stretches her hand affectionately across the table to squeeze his]

PETKOFF And how have you been, my dear?

CATHERINE Oh, my usual sore throats—that's all

PETKOFF [with conviction] That comes from washing your neck every day I've often told you so

CATHERINE. Nonsense, Paul!

PETKOFF [over his coffee and cigar] I don't believe in going too far with these modern customs All this washing can't be good for the health it's not natural There was an Englishman at Philippopolis who used to wet himself all over with cold water every morning when he got up Disgusting! It all comes from the English their climate makes them so dirty that they have to be perpetually washing themselves Look at my father! he never had a bath in his life, and he lived to be ninety-eight, the healthiest man in Bulgaria I don't mind a good wash once a week to keep up my position, but once a day is carrying the thing to a ridiculous extreme

CATHERINE You are a barbarian at heart still, Paul I hope you behaved yourself before all those Russian officers

PETKOFF I did my best I took care to let them know that we have a library

CATHERINE Ah, but you didnt tell them that we have an electric bell in it? I have had one put up

PETKOFF Whats an electric bell?

CATHERINE You touch a button something tinkles in the kitchen, and then Nicola comes up

PETKOFF Why not shout for him?

CATHERINE Civilized people never shout for their servants Ive learnt that while you were away

PETKOFF Well, I'll tell you something Ive learnt too Civilized people dont hang out their washing to dry where visitors can see it, so youd better have all that [indicating the clothes on the bushes] put somewhere else

CATHERINE Oh, thats absurd, Paul I dont believe really refined people notice such things

SERGIUS [knocking at the stable gates] Gate, Nicola!

PETKOFF Theres Sergius [Shouting] Hollo, Nicola!

CATHERINE Oh, dont shout, Paul it really isnt nice

PETKOFF Bosh! [He shouts louder than before] Nicola!

NICOLA [appearing at the house door] Yes, sir

PETKOFF Are you deaf? Dont you hear Major Saranoff knocking? Bring him round this way [He pronounces the name with the stress on the second syllable Sarahnoff]

NICOLA Yes, major [He goes into the stable yard]

PETKOFF You must talk to him, my dear, until Raina takes him off our hands He bores my life out about our not promoting him Over my head, if you please

CATHERINE He certainly ought to be promoted when he marries Raina Besides, the country should insist on having at least one native general

PETKOFF Yes, so that he could throw away whole brigades instead of regiments Its no use, my dear he hasnt the slightest chance of promotion until we're quite sure that the peace will be a lasting one

NICOLA [at the gate, announcing] Major Sergius Saranoff! [He goes into the house and returns presently with a third chair, which he places at the table He then withdraws]

Major Sergius Saranoff, the original of the portrait in Raina's room, is a tall romantically handsome man, with the physical hardihood, the high spirit, and the susceptible imagination of an untamed mountaineer chieftain But his remarkable personal distinction is of a characteristically civilized type The ridges of his eyebrows, curving with an interrogative twist round the projections at the outer corners, his jealously observant eye, his nose, thin, keen, and apprehensive in spite of the pugnacious high bridge and large nostril, his assertive chin would not be out of place in a Parisian salon, shewing that the clever imaginative barbarian has an acute critical faculty which has been thrown into intense activity by the arrival of western civilization in the Balkans The result is precisely what the advent of nineteenth century thought first produced in England to wit, Byronism By his brooding on the perpetual failure, not only of others, but of himself, to live up to his ideals, by his consequent cynical scorn for humanity, by his jejune credulity as to the absolute validity of his concepts and the unorthodoxy of the world in disregarding them, by his nuances and mockeries under the sting of the petty disillusion which every hour spent among men brings to his sensitive observation, he has acquired the half tragic, half ironic air, the mysterious moodiness, the suggestion of a strange and terrible history that has left nothing but undying remorse, by which Childe Harold fascinated the grandmothers of his English contemporaries It is clear that here or nowhere is Raina's ideal hero Catherine is hardly less enthusiastic about him than her daughter, and much less reserved in shewing her enthusiasm As he enters from the stable gate, she rises effusively to greet him Petkoff is distinctly less disposed to make a fuss about him

PETKOFF Here already, Sergius! Glad to see you

CATHERINE My dear Sergius! [She holds out both her hands]

SERGIUS [kissing them with scrupulous gallantry] My dear mother, if I may call you so PETKOFF [dryly] Mother-in-law, Sergius mother-in-law! Sit down, and have some coffee

SERGIUS Thank you none for me [He gets away from the table with a certain distaste for Petkoff's enjoyment of it, and posts himself with conscious dignity against the rail of the steps leading to the house]

CATHERINE You look superb The campaign has improved you, Sergius Everybody here is mad about you We were all wild with enthusiasm about that magnificent cavalry charge

SERGIUS [with grave irony] Madam it was the cradle and the grave of my military reputation

CATHERINE How so?

SERGIUS I won the battle the wrong way when our worthy Russian generals were losing it the right way In short, I upset their plans, and wounded their self-esteem Two Cossack colonels had their regiments routed on the most correct principles of scientific warfare Two major-generals got killed strictly according to military etiquette The two colonels are now major-generals, and I am still a simple major

CATHERINE You shall not remain so, Sergius The women are on your side, and they will see that justice is done you

SERGIUS It is too late I have only waited for the peace to send in my resignation

PETKOFF [dropping his cup in his amazement] Your resignation!

CATHERINE Oh, you must withdraw it!

SERGIUS [with resolute measured emphasis, folding his arms] I never withdraw PETKOFF [vexed] Now who could have supposed you were going to do such a thing?

SERGIUS [with fire] Everyone that knew me But enough of myself and my affairs How is Raina, and where is Raina?

RAINA [suddenly coming round the corner of the house and standing at the top of the steps in the path] Raina is here

She makes a charming picture as they turn to look at her She wears an underdress of pale green silk, draped with an overdress of thin ecru canvas embroidered with gold She is crowned with a dainty eastern cap of gold tinsel Sergius goes impulsively to meet her Posing regally, she presents her hand he drops chivalrously on one knee and kisses it

PETKOFF [aside to Catherine, beaming with parental pride] Pretty, isn't it? She always appears at the right moment

CATHERINE [impatiently] Yes she listens for it It is an abominable habit

Sergius leads Raina forward with splendid gallantry When they arrive at the table, she turns to him with a bend of the head he bows, and thus they separate, he coming to his place, and she going behind her father's chair

RAINA [stooping and kissing her father] Dear father! Welcome home!

PETKOFF [patting her cheek] My little pet girl [He kisses her She goes to the chair left by

Nicola for Sergius, and sits down]

CATHERINE And so you're no longer a soldier, Sergius

SERGIUS I am no longer a soldier Soldiering, my dear madam, is the coward's art of attacking mercilessly when you are strong, and keeping out of harm's way when you are weak That is the whole secret of successful fighting Get your enemy at a disadvantage, and never, on any account, fight him on equal terms

PETKOFF They wouldn't let us make a fair stand-up fight of it However, I suppose soldiering has to be a trade like any other trade

SERGIUS Precisely But I have no ambition to shine as a tradesman, so I have taken the advice of that bagman of a captain that settled the exchange of prisoners with us at Pirot, and given it up

PETKOFF What! that Swiss fellow? Sergius I've often thought of that exchange since He over-reached us about those horses

SERGIUS Of course he over-reached us His father was a hotel and livery stable keeper, and he owed his first step to his knowledge of horse-dealing [With mock enthusiasm] Ah, he was a soldier every inch a soldier! If only I had bought the horses for my regiment instead of foolishly leading it into danger, I should have been a field-marshal now!

CATHERINE A Swiss? What was he doing in the Serbian army?

PETKOFF A volunteer, of course keen on picking up his profession [Chuckling] We shouldn't have been able to begin fighting if these foreigners hadn't shown us how to do it we knew nothing about it, and neither did the Serbs Egad, there'd have been no war without them!

RAINA Are there many Swiss officers in the Serbian Army?

PETKOFF No All Austrians, just as our officers were all Russians This was the only Swiss I came across I'll never trust a Swiss again He humbugged us into giving him fifty able-bodied men for two hundred worn out chargers They weren't even eatable!

SERGIUS We were two children in the hands of that consummate soldier, Major simply two innocent little children

RAINA What was he like?

CATHERINE Oh, Raina, what a silly question!

SERGIUS He was like a commercial traveller in uniform Bourgeois to his boots!

PETKOFF [grinning] Sergius tell Catherine that queer story his friend told us about how he escaped after Shvinitza. You remember About his being hid by two women SERGIUS [with bitter irony] Oh yes quite a romance! He was serving in the very battery I so unprofessionally charged. Being a thorough soldier, he ran away like the rest of them, with our cavalry at his heels. To escape their sabres he climbed a waterpipe and made his way into the bedroom of a young Bulgarian lady. The young lady was enchanted by his persuasive commercial traveller's manners. She very modestly entertained him for an hour or so, and then called in her mother lest her conduct should appear unmaidenly. The old lady was equally fascinated, and the fugitive was sent on his way in the morning, disguised in an old coat belonging to the master of the house, who was away at the war.

RAINA [rising with marked stateliness] Your life in the camp has made you coarse, Sergius. I did not think you would have repeated such a story before me. [She turns away coldly]

CATHERINE [also rising] She is right, Sergius. If such women exist, we should be spared the knowledge of them.

PETKOFF Pooh! nonsense! what does it matter?

SERGIUS [ashamed] No, Petkoff I was wrong [To Raina, with earnest humility] I beg your pardon. I have behaved abominably. Forgive me, Raina. [She bows reservedly] And you too, madam. [Catherine bows graciously and sits down. He proceeds solemnly, again addressing Raina] The glimpses I have had of the seamy side of life during the last few months have made me cynical, but I should not have brought my cynicism here. Least of all into your presence, Raina. I— [Here, turning to the others, he is evidently going to begin a long speech when the Major interrupts him]

PETKOFF Stuff and nonsense, Sergius! That's quite enough fuss about nothing. A soldier's daughter should be able to stand up without flinching to a little strong conversation. [He rises] Come. It's time for us to get to business. We have to make up our minds how those three regiments are to get back to Philippopolis. There's no forage for them on the Sofia route. [He goes towards the house] Come along. [Sergius is about to follow him when Catherine rises and intervenes]

CATHERINE Oh, Paul, can't you spare

Sergius for a few moments? Raina has hardly seen him yet. Perhaps I can help you to settle about the regiments.

SERGIUS [protesting] My dear madam, impossible you—

CATHERINE [stopping him playfully] You stay here, my dear Sergius. There's no hurry. I have a word or two to say to Paul. [Sergius instantly bows and steps back] Now, dear [taking Petkoff's arm] come and see the electric bell.

PETKOFF Oh, very well, very well.

They go into the house together affectionately. Sergius, left alone with Raina, looks anxiously at her, fearing that she is still offended. She smiles, and stretches out her arms to him.

SERGIUS [hastening to her] Am I forgiven?

RAINA [placing her hands on his shoulders as she looks up at him with admiration and worship] My hero! My king!

SERGIUS My queen! [He kisses her on the forehead]

RAINA How I have envied you, Sergius! You have been out in the world, on the field of battle, able to prove yourself there worthy of any woman in the world, whilst I have had to sit at home inactive—dreaming—useless—doing nothing that could give me the right to call myself worthy of any man.

SERGIUS Dearest, all my deeds have been yours. You inspired me. I have gone through the war like a knight in a tournament with his lady looking down at him!

RAINA And you have never been absent from my thoughts for a moment. [Very solemnly] Sergius I think we two have found the higher love. When I think of you, I feel that I could never do a base deed, or think an ignoble thought.

SERGIUS My lady and my saint! [He clasps her reverently]

RAINA [returning his embrace] My lord and my—

SERGIUS Sh—sh! Let me be the worshipper, dear. You little know how unworthy even the best man is of a girl's pure passion!

RAINA I trust you love me. You will never disappoint me, Sergius. [Louka is heard singing within the house. They quickly release each other] I can't pretend to talk indifferently before her. My heart is too full. [Louka comes from the house with her tray. She goes to the table, and begins to clear it, with her back turned to them] I will get my hat, and then we can go out until lunch time. Wouldn't you like that?

SERGIUS Be quick If you are away five minutes, it will seem five hours [Raina runs to the top of the steps, and turns there to exchange looks with him and wave him a kiss with both hands He looks after her with emotion for a moment, then turns slowly away, his face radiant with the loftiest exaltation The movement shifts his field of vision, into the corner of which there now comes the tail of Louka's double apron His attention is arrested at once He takes a stealthy look at her, and begins to twirl his moustache mischievously, with his left hand akimbo on his hip Finally, striking the ground with his heels in something of a cavalry swagger, he strolls over to the other side of the table, opposite her, and says] Louka do you know what the higher love is?

LOUKA [astonished] No, sir

SERGIUS Very fatiguing thing to keep up for any length of time, Louka One feels the need of some relief after it

LOUKA [innocently] Perhaps you would like some coffee, sir? [She stretches her hand across the table for the coffee pot]

SERGIUS [taking her hand] Thank you, Louka

LOUKA [pretending to pull] Oh, sir, you know I didn't mean that I'm surprised at you!

SERGIUS [coming clear of the table and drawing her with him] I am surprised at myself, Louka What would Sergius, the hero of Shvmitza, say if he saw me now? What would Sergius, the apostle of the higher love, say if he saw me now? What would the half dozen Sergiuses who keep popping in and out of this handsome figure of mine say if they caught us here? [Letting go her hand and slipping his arm dexterously round her waist] Do you consider my figure handsome, Louka?

LOUKA Let me go, sir I shall be disgraced [She struggles he holds her inexorably] Oh, will you let go?

SERGIUS [looking straight into her eyes] No

LOUKA Then stand back where we can't be seen Have you no common sense?

SERGIUS Ah! that's reasonable [He takes her into the stableyard gateway, where they are hidden from the house]

LOUKA [plaintively] I may have been seen from the windows Miss Raina is sure to be spying about after you

SERGIUS [stung letting her go] Take care, Louka I may be worthless enough to betray the higher love, but do not you insult it

LOUKA [demurely] Not for the world, sir, I'm sure May I go on with my work, please,

now?

SERGIUS [again putting his arm round her] You are a provoking little witch, Louka If you were in love with me, would you spy out of windows on me?

LOUKA Well, you see, sir, since you say you are half a dozen different gentlemen all at once, I should have a great deal to look after

SERGIUS [charmed] Witty as well as pretty [He tries to kiss her]

LOUKA [avoiding him] No I don't want your kisses Gentlefolk are all alike you making love to me behind Miss Raina's back, and she doing the same behind yours

SERGIUS [recoiling a step] Louka!

LOUKA It shews how little you really care

SERGIUS [dropping his familiarity, and speaking with freezing politeness] If our conversation is to continue, Louka, you will please remember that a gentleman does not discuss the conduct of the lady he is engaged to with her maid

LOUKA It's so hard to know what a gentleman considers right I thought from your trying to kiss me that you had given up being so particular SERGIUS [turning from her and striking his forehead as he comes back into the garden from the gateway] Devil! devil!

LOUKA Ha! ha! I expect one of the six of you is very like me, sir, though I am only Miss Raina's maid [She goes back to her work at the table, taking no further notice of him]

SERGIUS [speaking to himself] Which of the six is the real man? that's the question that torments me One of them is a hero, another a buffoon, another a humbug, another perhaps a bit of a blackguard [He pauses, and looks furtively at Louka as he adds, with deep bitterness] And one, at least, is a coward jealous, like all cowards [He goes to the table] Louka

LOUKA Yes?

SERGIUS Who is my rival?

LOUKA You shall never get that out of me, for love or money

SERGIUS Why?

LOUKA Never mind why Besides, you would tell that I told you, and I should lose my place

SERGIUS [holding out his right hand in affirmation] No! on the honor of a—[He checks himself, and his hand drops, nerveless, as he concludes sardonically]—of a man capable of behaving as I have been behaving for the last five minutes Who is he?

LOUKA I dont know I never saw him I only heard his voice through the door of her room

SERGIUS Damnation! How dare you?

LOUKA [retreating] Oh, I mean no harm youve no right to take up my words like that The mistress knows all about it And I tell you that if that gentleman ever comes here again, Miss Raina will marry him, whether he likes it or not I know the difference between the sort of manner you and she put on before one another and the real manner

Sergius shivers as if she had stabbed him Then, setting his face like iron, he strides grimly to her, and grips her above the elbows with both hands

SERGIUS Now listen you to me

LOUKA [wincing] Not so tight youre hurting me

SERGIUS That doesnt matter You have stained my honor by making me a party to your eavesdropping And you have betrayed your mistress

LOUKA [writhing] Please—

SERGIUS That shews that you are an abominable little clod of common clay, with the soul of a servant [He lets her go as if she were an unclean thing, and turns away, dusting his hands of her, to the bench by the wall, where he sits down with averted head, meditating gloomily]

LOUKA [whimpering angrily with her hands up her sleeves, feeling her bruised arms] You know how to hurt with your tongue as well as with your hands But I dont care, now Ive found out that whatever clay I'm made of, youre made of the same As for her, she's a liar, and her fine airs are a cheat, and I'm worth six of her [She shakes the pain off hardily, tosses her head, and sets to work to put the things on the tray]

He looks doubtfully at her She finishes packing the tray, and laps the cloth over the edges, so as to carry all out together As she stoops to lift it, he rises

SERGIUS Louka! [She stops and looks defiantly at him] A gentleman has no right to hurt a woman under any circumstances [With profound humility, uncovering his head] I beg your pardon

LOUKA That sort of apology may satisfy a lady Of what use is it to a servant?

SERGIUS [rudely crossed in his chivalry, throns it off with a bitter laugh, and says slight- ingly] Oh! you wish to be paid for the hurt? [He puts on his shako, and takes some money from his pocket]

LOUKA [her eyes filling with tears in spite of herself] No I want my hurt made well

SERGIUS [sobered by her tone] How?

She rolls up her left sleeve, clasps her arm with the thumb and fingers of her right hand, and looks down at the bruise Then she raises her head and looks straight at him Finally, with a superb gesture, she presents her arm to be kissed Amazed, he looks at her, at the arm, at her again, hesitates, and then, with shuddering intensity, exclaims Never! and gets an ay as far as possible from her

Her arm drops Without a word, and with unaffected dignity, she takes her tray, and is approaching the house when Raina returns, wearing a hat and jacket in the height of the Vienna fashion of the previous year, 1885 Louka makes nay proudly for her, and then goes into the house

RAINA I'm ready Whats the matter? [Gaily] Have you been flirting with Louka?

SERGIUS [hastily] No, no How can you think such a thing?

RAINA [ashamed of herself] Forgive me, dear it was only a jest I am so happy today

He goes quickly to her, and kisses her hand remorsefully Catherine comes out and calls to them from the top of the steps

CATHERINE [coming down to them] I am sorry to disturb you, children, but Paul is distracted over those three regiments He doesnt know how to send them to Philippopolis, and he objects to every suggestion of mine You must go and help him, Sergius He is in the library

RAINA [disappointed] But we are just going out for a walk

SERGIUS I shall not be long Wait for me just five minutes [He runs up the steps to the door]

RAINA [following him to the foot of the steps and looking up at him with timid coquetry] I shall go round and wait in full view of the library windows Be sure you draw father's attention to me If you are a moment longer than five minutes, I shall go in and fetch you, regiments or no regiments

SERGIUS [laughing] Very well [He goes in] Raina watches him until he is out of her sight Then, with a perceptible relaxation of manner, she begins to pace up and down the garden in a brown study

CATHERINE Imagine their meeting that

Swiss and hearing the whole story! The very first thing your father asked for was the old coat we sent him off in. A nice mess you have got us into!

RAINA [gazing thoughtfully at the gravel as she walks] The little beast!

CATHERINE Little beast! What little beast?

RAINA To go and tell! Oh if I had him here, I'd cram him with chocolate creams til he couldnt ever speak again!

CATHERINE Dont talk such stuff! Tell me the truth, Raina. How long was he in your room before you came to me?

RAINA [whisking round and recommencing her march in the opposite direction] Oh, I forget.

CATHERINE You cannot forget! Did he really climb up after the soldiers were gone, or was he there when that officer searched the room?

RAINA No. Yes. I think he must have been there then.

CATHERINE You think! Oh, Raina! Raina! Will anything ever make you straightforward? If Sergius finds out, it will be all over between you.

RAINA [with cool impertinence] Oh, I know. Sergius is your pet. I sometimes wish you could marry him instead of me. You would just suit him. You would pet him, and spoil him, and mother him to perfection.

CATHERINE [opening her eyes very widely indeed] Well, upon my word!

RAINA [capriciously half to herself] I always feel a longing to do or say something dreadful to him—to shock his propriety—to scandalize the five senses out of him [To Catherine, perversely] I dont care whether he finds out about the chocolate cream soldier or not. I half hope he may [She again turns and strolls slipperily away up the path to the corner of the house].

CATHERINE And what should I be able to say to your father, pray?

RAINA [over her shoulder, from the top of the two steps] Oh, poor father! As if he could help himself! [She turns the corner and passes out of sight].

CATHERINE [looking after her, her fingers itching] Oh, if you were only ten years younger! [Louka comes from the house with a salver, which she carries hanging down by her side] Well?

LOUKA Theres a gentleman just called, madam. A Serbian officer.

CATHERINE [flaming] A Serb! And how dare

he— [checking herself bitterly] Oh, I forgot. We are at peace now. I suppose we shall have them calling every day to pay their compliments. Well, if he is an officer why dont you tell your master? He is in the library with Major Saranoff. Why do you come to me?

LOUKA But he asks for you, madam. And I dont think he knows who you are. He said the lady of the house. He gave me this little ticket for you [She takes a card out of her bosom, puts it on the salver, and offers it to Catherine].

CATHERINE [reading] "Captain Bluntschli"? Thats a German name.

LOUKA Swiss, madam, I think.

CATHERINE [with a bound that makes Louka jump back] Swiss! What is he like?

LOUKA [timidly] He has a big carpet bag, madam.

CATHERINE Oh Heavens! he's come to return the coat. Send him away. Say we're not at home. Ask him to leave his address and I'll write to him. Oh stop! that will never do. Wait! [She throws herself into a chair to think it out. Louka waits]. The master and Major Saranoff are busy in the library, arnt they?

LOUKA Yes, madam.

CATHERINE [decisively] Bring the gentleman out here at once [Peremptorily]. And be very polite to him. Dont delay. Here [impatiently snatching the salver from her] leave that here, and go straight back to him.

LOUKA Yes, madam [going].

CATHERINE Louka!

LOUKA [stopping] Yes, madam.

CATHERINE Is the library door shut?

LOUKA I think so, madam.

CATHERINE If not, shut it as you pass through.

LOUKA Yes, madam [going].

CATHERINE Stop! [Louka stops]. He will have to go that way [indicating the gate of the stable yard]. Tell Nicola to bring his bag here after him. Dont forget.

LOUKA [surprised] His bag?

CATHERINE Yes here as soon as possible [Vehemently]. Be quick! [Louka runs into the house. Catherine snatches her apron off and throws it behind a bush. She then takes up the salver and uses it as a mirror, with the result that the handkerchief tied round her head follows the apron. A touch to her hair and a shake to her dressing gown make her presentable]. Oh, how? how? how can a man be such a fool! Such a moment to select! [Louka appears at the door of the house, announcing Captain Bluntschli. She stands aside at the top of the steps to let him pass before she goes in again. He is the man of the midnight adventure in Raina's room, clean, well brushed, smartly uniformed, and out of trouble, but still unmistakably the same man. The moment Louka's back is turned, Catherine swoops on him with impetuous, urgent, coaxing appeal.] Captain Bluntschli I am very glad to see you, but you must leave this house at once [He raises his eyebrows] My husband has just returned with my future son-in-law, and they know nothing. If they did, the consequences would be terrible. You are a foreigner; you do not feel our national animosities as we do. We still hate the Serbs; the effect of the peace on my husband has been to make him feel like a lion balked of his prey. If he discovers our secret, he will never forgive me, and my daughter's life will hardly be safe. Will you, like the chivalrous gentleman and soldier you are, leave at once before he finds you here?

BLUNTSCHLI [disappointed, but philosophical] At once, gracious lady. I only came to thank you and return the coat you lent me. If you will allow me to take it out of my bag and leave it with your servant as I pass out, I need detain you no further [He turns to go into the house.]

CATHERINE [catching him by the sleeve] Oh, you must not think of going back that way [Coaxing him across to the stable gates] This is the shortest way out. Many thanks. So glad to have been of service to you. Good-bye.

BLUNTSCHLI But my bag?

CATHERINE It shall be sent on. You will leave me your address.

BLUNTSCHLI True. Allow me [He takes out his card-case, and stops to write his address, keeping Catherine in an agony of impatience. As he hands her the card, Petkoff, hatless, rushes from the house in a flutter of hospitality, followed by Sergius.]

PETKOFF [as he hurries down the steps] My dear Captain Bluntschli—

CATHERINE Oh Heavens! [She sinks on the seat against the wall.]

PETKOFF [too preoccupied to notice her as he shakes Bluntschli's hand heartily] Those stupid people of mine thought I was out here, instead of in the—hah!—library [he cannot mention the library without betraying how proud

he is of it] I saw you through the window. I was wondering why you didn't come in. Saranoff is with me; you remember him, don't you?

SERGIUS [saluting humorously, and then offering his hand with great charm of manner] Welcome, our friend the enemy!

PETKOFF No longer the enemy, happily [Rather anxiously] I hope you've called as a friend, and not about horses or prisoners.

CATHERINE Oh, quite as a friend, Paul. I was just asking Captain Bluntschli to stay to lunch, but he declares he must go at once.

SERGIUS [sardonically] Impossible, Bluntschli. We want you here badly. We have to send on three cavalry regiments to Philippopolis, and we don't in the least know how to do it.

BLUNTSCHLI [suddenly attentive and business-like] Philippopolis? The forage is the trouble, I suppose.

PETKOFF [eagerly] Yes, that's it [To Sergius] He sees the whole thing at once.

BLUNTSCHLI I think I can shew you how to manage that.

SERGIUS Invaluable man! Come along! [Towering over Bluntschli, he puts his hand on his shoulder and takes him to the steps, Petkoff following.]

Raina comes from the house as Bluntschli puts his foot on the first step.

RAINA Oh! The chocolate cream soldier!

Bluntschli stands rigid. Sergius, amazed, looks at Raina, then at Petkoff, who looks back at him and then at his wife.

CATHERINE [with commanding presence of mind] My dear Raina, don't you see that we have a guest here? Captain Bluntschli, one of our new Serbian friends.

Raina bows. Bluntschli bows.

RAINA How silly of me! [She comes down into the centre of the group, between Bluntschli and Petkoff.] I made a beautiful ornament this morning for the ice pudding, and that stupid Nicola has just put down a pile of plates on it and spoilt it [To Bluntschli, winking] I hope you didn't think that you were the chocolate cream soldier, Captain Bluntschli.

BLUNTSCHLI [laughing] I assure you I did [Stealing a whimsical glance at her] Your explanation was a relief.

PETKOFF [suspiciously, to Raina] And since when, pray, have you taken to cooking?

CATHERINE Oh, whilst you were away It is her latest fancy

PETKOFF [testily] And has Nicola taken to drinking? He used to be careful enough First he shews Captain Bluntschli out here when he knew quite well I was in the library, and then he goes downstairs and breaks Raina's chocolate soldier He must— [Nicola appears at the top of the steps with the bag He descends, places it respectfully before Bluntschli, and waits for further orders General amazement Nicola, unconscious of the effect he is producing, looks perfectly satisfied with himself When Petkoff recovers his power of speech, he breaks out at him with] Are you mad, Nicola?

NICOLA [taken aback] Sir?

PETKOFF What have you brought that for?

NICOLA My lady's orders, major Louka told me that—

CATHERINE [interrupting him] My orders! Why should I order you to bring Captain Bluntschli's luggage out here? What are you thinking of, Nicola?

NICOLA [after a moment's bewilderment, picking up the bag as he addresses Bluntschli with the very perfection of servile discretion] I beg your pardon, captain, I am sure [To Catherine] My fault, madam I hope you'll overlook it [He bows, and is going to the steps with the bag, when Petkoff addresses him angrily]

PETKOFF You'd better go and slam that bag, too, down on Miss Raina's ice pudding! [This is too much for Nicola The bag drops from his hand almost on his master's toes, eliciting a roar of] Begone, you butter-fingered donkey

NICOLA [snatching up the bag, and escaping into the house] Yes, major

CATHERINE Oh, never mind, Paul don't be angry

PETKOFF [blustering] Scoundrel! He's got out of hand while I was away I'll teach him Infernal blackguard! The sack next Saturday! I'll clear out the whole establishment— [He is stifled by the caresses of his wife and daughter, who hang round his neck, petting him]

CATHERINE } [together] { Now, now, now, it
RAINA } { Wow, wow, wow
{ mustn't be angry He meant
{ not on your first day at home
{ no harm Be good to please
{ I'll make another ice pudding
{ me, dear Sh-sh-sh-sh!
{ Tch-ch-ch!

PETKOFF [yielding] Oh well, never mind

Come, Bluntschli let's have no more nonsense about going away You know very well you're not going back to Switzerland yet Until you do go back you'll stay with us

RAINA Oh, do, Captain Bluntschli

PETKOFF [to Catherine] Now, Catherine it's of you he's afraid Press him, and he'll stay

CATHERINE Of course I shall be only too delighted if [appealingly] Captain Bluntschli really wishes to stay He knows my wishes

BLUNTSCHLI [in his driest military manner] I am at madam's orders

SERGIUS [cordially] That settles it!

PETKOFF [heartily] Of course!

RAINA You see you must stay

BLUNTSCHLI [smiling] Well, if I must, I must Gesture of despair from Catherine

ACT III

In the library after lunch It is not much of a library Its literary equipment consists of a single fixed shelf stocked with old paper covered novels, broken backed, coffee stained, torn and thumb'd, and a couple of little hanging shelves with a few gift books on them the rest of the wall space being occupied by trophies of war and the chase But it is a most comfortable sitting room A row of three large windows shews a mountain panorama, just now seen in one of its friendliest aspects in the mellowing afternoon light In the corner next the right hand window a square earthenware stove, a perfect toner of glistening pottery, rises nearly to the ceiling and guarantees plenty of warmth The ottoman is like that in Raina's room, and similarly placed, and the window seats are luxurious with decorated cushions There is one object, however, hopelessly out of keeping with its surroundings This is a small kitchen table, much the worse for wear, fitted as a writing table with an old canister full of pens, an eggcup filled with ink, and a deplorable scrap of heavily used pink blotting paper

At the side of this table, which stands to the left of anyone facing the window, Bluntschli is hard at work with a couple of maps before him, writing orders At the head of it sits Sergius, who is supposed to be also at work, but is actually gnawing the feather of a pen, and contemplating Bluntschli's quick, sure, businesslike progress with a mixture of envious irritation at his own incapacity and awestruck wonder at an ability which seems to him almost miraculous, though its prosaic character forbids him to esteem it

The Major is comfortably established on the ottoman, with a newspaper in his hand and the tube of his hookah within easy reach Catherine sits at the stove, with her back to them, embroidering Raina, reclining on the divan, is gazing in a daydream out at the Balkan landscape, with a neglected novel in her lap

The door is on the same side as the stove, farther from the window The button of the electric bell is at the opposite side, behind Bluntschli

PETKOFF [looking up from his paper to watch how they are getting on at the table] Are you sure I cant help you in any way, Bluntschli?

BLUNTSCHLI [without interrupting his writing or looking up] Quite sure, thank you Saranoff and I will manage it

SERGIUS [grimly] Yes we'll manage it He finds out what to do, draws up the orders, and I sign em Division of labor! [Bluntschli passes him a paper] Another one? Thank you [He plants the paper squarely before him, sets his chair carefully parallel to it, and signs with his cheek on his elbow and his protruded tongue following the movements of his pen] This hand is more accustomed to the sword than to the pen PETKOFF It's very good of you, Bluntschli it is indeed, to let yourself be put upon in this way Now are you quite sure I can do nothing?

CATHERINE [in a low warning tone] You can stop interrupting, Paul

PETKOFF [starting and looking round at her] Eh? Oh! Quite right, my love quite right [He takes his newspaper up again, but presently lets it drop] Ah, you havnt been campaigning, Catherine you dont know how pleasant it is for us to sit here, after a good lunch, with nothing to do but enjoy ourselves Theres only one thing I want to make me thoroughly comfortable

CATHERINE What is that?

PETKOFF My old coat I'm not at home in this one I feel as if I were on parade

CATHERINE My dear Paul, how absurd you are about that old coat! It must be hanging in the blue closet where you left it

PETKOFF My dear Catherine, I tell you I've looked there Am I to believe my own eyes or not? [Catherine rises and crosses the room to press the button of the electric bell] What are you shewing off that bell for? [She looks at him majestically, and silently resumes her chair and her needlework] My dear if you think the obstinacy of your sex can make a coat out of two old dressing gowns of Raina's, your waterproof, and my mackintosh, youre mistaken Thats exactly what the blue closet contains at present

Nicola presents himself

CATHERINE Nicola go to the blue closet and bring your master's old coat here the braided one he wears in the house

NICOLA Yes, madame [He goes out]

PETKOFF Catherine

CATHERINE Yes, Paul?

PETKOFF I bet you any piece of jewellery you like to order from Sofia against a week's housekeeping money that the coat isnt there

CATHERINE Done, Paul!

PETKOFF [excited by the prospect of a gamble] Come heres an opportunity for some sport Wholl bet on it? Bluntschli I'll give you six to one

BLUNTSCHLI [imperturbably] It would be robbing you, major Madame is sure to be right [Without looking up, he passes another batch of papers to Sergius]

SERGIUS [also excited] Bravo, Switzerland! Major I bet my best charger against an Arab mare for Raina that Nicola finds the coat in the blue closet

PETKOFF [eagerly] Your best char—

CATHERINE [hastily interrupting him] Dont be foolish, Paul An Arabian mare will cost you 50,000 levas

RAINA [suddenly coming out of her picturesque reverie] Really, mother, if you are going to take the jewellery, I dont see why you should grudge me my Arab

Nicola comes back with the coat, and brings it to Petkoff, who can hardly believe his eyes

CATHERINE Where was it, Nicola?

NICOLA Hanging in the blue closet, madame

PETKOFF Well, I am d—

CATHERINE [stopping him] Paul!

PETKOFF I could have sworn it wasnt there Age is beginning to tell on me I'm getting hallucinations [To Nicola] Here help me to change Excuse me, Bluntschli [He begins changing coats, Nicola acting as valet] Remember I didnt take that bet of yours, Sergius Youd better give Raina that Arab steed yourself, since youve roused her expectations Eh, Raina? [He looks round at her, but she is again rapt in the landscape With a little gush of parental affection and pride, he points her out to them, and says] She's dreaming, as usual

SERGIUS Assuredly she shall not be the loser

PETKOFF So much the better for her I shant come off so cheaply, I expect [The change is now complete Nicola goes out with the discarded coat] Ah, now I feel at home at last [He sits down and takes his newspaper with a grunt of relief]

BLUNTSCHLI [to Sergius, handing a paper] Thats the last order

PETKOFF [jumping up] What! Finished?

BLUNTSCHLI Finished

PETKOFF [with childlike envy] Havnt you anything for me to sign?

BLUNTSCHLI Not necessary His signature will do

PETKOFF [inflating his chest and thumping it] Ah well, I think weve done a thundering good day's work Can I do anything more?

BLUNTSCHLI You had better both see the fellows that are to take these [Sergius rises] Pack them off at once, and shew them that Ive marked on the orders the time they should hand them in by Tell them that if they stop to drink or tell stories—if theyre five minutes late, theyll have the skin taken off their backs

SERGIUS [stiffening indignantly] I'll say so [He strides to the door] And if one of them is man enough to spit in my face for insulting him, I'll buy his discharge and give him a pension [He goes out]

BLUNTSCHLI [confidentially] Just see that he talks to them properly, major, will you?

PETKOFF [officiously] Quite right, Bluntschli, quite right I'll see to it [He goes to the door importantly, but hesitates on the threshold] By the bye, Catherine, you may as well come too Theyll be far more frightened of you than of me

CATHERINE [putting down her embroidery] I daresay I had better You would only splutter at them [She goes out, Petkoff holding the door for her and following her]

BLUNTSCHLI What an army! They make cannons out of cherry trees, and the officers send for their wives to keep discipline! [He begins to fold and docket the papers]

Raina, who has risen from the divan, marches slowly down the room with her hands clasped behind her, and looks mischievously at him

RAINA You look ever so much nicer than when we last met [He looks up, surprised] What have you done to yourself?

BLUNTSCHLI Washed, brushed, good night's sleep and breakfast Thats all

RAINA Did you get back safely that morning?

BLUNTSCHLI Quite, thanks

RAINA Were they angry with you for running away from Sergius's charge?

BLUNTSCHLI [grinning] No they were glad, because theyd all just run away themselves

RAINA [going to the table, and leaning over it towards him] It must have made a lovely story for them all that about me and my room

BLUNTSCHLI Capital story But I only told it to one of them a particular friend

RAINA On whose discretion you could absolutely rely?

BLUNTSCHLI Absolutely

RAINA Hm! He told it all to my father and Sergius the day you exchanged the prisoners [She turns away and strolls carelessly across to the other side of the room]

BLUNTSCHLI [deeply concerned, and half incredulous] No! You dont mean that, do you?

RAINA [turning, with sudden earnestness] I do indeed But they dont know that it was in this house you took refuge If Sergius knew, he would challenge you and kill you in a duel

BLUNTSCHLI Bless me! then dont tell him

RAINA Please be serious, Captain Bluntschli Can you not realize what it is to me to deceive him? I want to be quite perfect with Sergius no meanness, no smallness, no deceit My relation to him is the one really beautiful and noble part of my life I hope you can understand that

BLUNTSCHLI [sceptically] You mean that you wouldnt like him to find out that the story about the ice pudding was a—a—a—You know

RAINA [wincing] Ah dont talk of it in that flippant way I lied I know it But I did it to save your life He would have killed you That was the second time I ever uttered a falsehood [Bluntschli rises quickly and looks doubtfully and somewhat severely at her] Do you remember the first time?

BLUNTSCHLI I! No Was I present?

RAINA Yes, and I told the officer who was searching for you that you were not present

BLUNTSCHLI True I should have remembered it

RAINA [greatly encouraged] Ah, it is natural that you should forget it first It cost you nothing it cost me a lie! A lie!!

She sits down on the ottoman, looking straight before her with her hands clasped round her knee Bluntschli, quite touched, goes to the ottoman with a particularly reassuring and considerate air, and sits down beside her

BLUNTSCHLI My dear young lady, dont let this worry you Remember I'm a soldier Now what are the two things that happen to a soldier so often that he comes to think nothing of them? One is hearing people tell lies [Raina recoils] the other is getting his life saved in all sorts of ways by all sorts of people

RAINA [rising in indignant protest] And so he becomes a creature incapable of faith and of gratitude

BLUNTSCHLI [making a wry face] Do you like gratitude? I dont If pity is akin to love, gratitude is akin to the other thing

RAINA Gratitude! [Turning on him] If you are incapable of gratitude you are incapable of any noble sentiment Even animals are grateful Oh, I see now exactly what you think of me! You were not surprised to hear me lie To you it was something I probably did every day! every hour! That is how men think of women [She paces the room tragically]

BLUNTSCHLI [dubiously] Theres reason in everything You said youd told only two lies in your whole life Dear young lady isnt that rather a short allowance? I'm quite a straightforward man myself, but it wouldnt last me a whole morning

RAINA [staring haughtily at him] Do you know, sir, that you are insulting me?

BLUNTSCHLI I cant help it When you strike that noble attitude and speak in that thrilling voice, I admire you, but I find it impossible to believe a single word you say

RAINA [superbly] Captain Bluntschli!

BLUNTSCHLI [unmoved] Yes?

RAINA [standing over him, as if she could not believe her senses] Do you mean what you said just now? Do you know what you said just now?

BLUNTSCHLI I do

RAINA [gasping] I! I!!! [She points to herself incredulously, meaning "I, Raina Petkoff, tell lies!" He meets her gaze unflinchingly She suddenly sits down beside him, and adds, with a complete change of manner from the heroic to a babyish familiarity] How did you find me out?

BLUNTSCHLI [promptly] Instinct, dear young lady Instinct, and experience of the world

RAINA [nonderingly] Do you know, you are the first man I ever met who did not take me seriously?

BLUNTSCHLI You mean, dont you, that I am the first man that has ever taken you quite seriously?

RAINA Yes I suppose I do mean that [Cosily, quite at her ease with him] How strange it is to be talked to in such a way! You know, Ive always gone on like that BLUNTSCHLI You mean the—?

RAINA I mean the noble attitude and the thrilling voice [They laugh together] I did it when I was a tiny child to my nurse She believed in it I do it before my parents They believe in it I do it before Sergius He believes in it BLUNTSCHLI Yes he's a little in that line himself, isnt he?

RAINA [startled] Oh! Do you think so?

BLUNTSCHLI You know him better than I do

RAINA I wonder—I wonder is he? If I thought that—! [Discouraged] Ah, well what does it matter? I suppose, now youve found me out, you despise me

BLUNTSCHLI [namely, rising] No, my dear young lady, no, no, no a thousand times Its part of your youth part of your charm I'm like all the rest of them the nurse, your parents, Sergius I'm your infatuated admirer

RAINA [pleased] Really?

BLUNTSCHLI [slapping his breast smartly with his hand, German fashion] Hand aufs Herz! Really and truly

RAINA [very happy] But what did you think of me for giving you my portrait?

BLUNTSCHLI [astonished] Your portrait! You never gave me your portrait

RAINA [quickly] Do you mean to say you never got it?

BLUNTSCHLI No [He sits down beside her, with renewed interest, and says, with some complacency] When did you send it to me?

RAINA [indignantly] I did not send it to you [She turns her head away, and adds, reluctantly] It was in the pocket of that coat

BLUNTSCHLI [pursing his lips and rounding his eyes] Oh-o-oh! I never found it It must be there still RAINA [springing up] There still! for my father to find the first time he puts his hand in his pocket! Oh, how could you be so stupid?

BLUNTSCHLI [rising also] It doesnt matter I suppose its only a photograph how can he tell who it was intended for? Tell him he put it there himself

RAINA [bitterly] Yes that is so clever! isn't it? [Distractedly] Oh! what shall I do?

BLUNTSCHLI Ah, I see You wrote something on it That was rash

RAINA [vexed almost to tears] Oh, to have done such a thing for you, who care no more—except to laugh at me—oh! Are you sure nobody has touched it?

BLUNTSCHLI Well, I can't be quite sure You see, I couldn't carry it about with me all the time one can't take much luggage on active service

RAINA What did you do with it?

BLUNTSCHLI When I got through to Pirot I had to put it in safe keeping somehow I thought of the railway cloak room, but that's the surest place to get looted in modern warfare So I pawned it

RAINA Pawned it!!!

BLUNTSCHLI I know it doesn't sound nice, but it was much the safest plan I redeemed it the day before yesterday Heaven only knows whether the pawnbroker cleared out the pockets or not

RAINA [furious throwing the words right into his face] You have a low shopkeeping mind You think of things that would never come into a gentleman's head

BLUNTSCHLI [phlegmatically] That's the Swiss national character, dear lady [He returns to the table]

RAINA Oh, I wish I had never met you [She flounces away, and sits at the window fuming]

Louka comes in with a heap of letters and telegrams on her salver, and crosses, with her bold free gait, to the table Her left sleeve is looped up to the shoulder with a brooch, showing her naked arm, with a broad gilt bracelet covering the bruise

LOUKA [to Bluntschli] For you [She empties the salver with a fling on to the table] The messenger is waiting [She is determined not to be civil to an enemy, even if she must bring him his letters]

BLUNTSCHLI [to Raina] Will you excuse me the last postal delivery that reached me was three weeks ago These are the subsequent accumulations Four telegrams a week old [He opens one] Oho! Bad news!

RAINA [rising and advancing a little remorsefully] Bad news?

BLUNTSCHLI My father's dead [He looks at the telegram with his lips pursed, musing on the unexpected change in his arrangements Louka crosses herself hastily]

RAINA Oh, how very sad!

BLUNTSCHLI Yes I shall have to start for home in an hour He has left a lot of big hotels behind him to be looked after [He takes up a fat letter in a long blue envelope] Here's a whacking letter from the family solicitor [He pulls out the enclosures and glances over them] Great Heavens! Seventy! Two hundred! [In a crescendo of dismay] Four hundred! Four thousand! Nine thousand six hundred!!! What on earth am I to do with them all?

RAINA [timidly] Nine thousand hotels?

BLUNTSCHLI Hotels! nonsense If you only knew! Oh, it's too ridiculous! Excuse me I must give my fellow orders about starting [He leaves the room hastily, with the documents in his hand]

LOUKA [knowing instinctively that she can annoy Raina by disparaging Bluntschli] He has not much heart, that Swiss He has not a word of grief for his poor father

RAINA [bitterly] Grief! A man who has been doing nothing but killing people for years! What does he care? What does any soldier care? [She goes to the door, restraining her tears with difficulty]

LOUKA Major Saranoff has been fighting too, and he has plenty of heart left [Raina, at the door, draws herself up haughtily and goes out] Aha! I thought you wouldn't get much feeling out of your soldier [She is following Raina when Nicola enters with an armful of logs for the stove]

NICOLA [grinning amorously at her] I've been trying all the afternoon to get a minute alone with you, my girl [His countenance changes as he notices her arm] Why, what fashion is that of wearing your sleeve, child?

LOUKA [proudly] My own fashion

NICOLA Indeed! If the mistress catches you, she'll talk to you [He puts the logs down, and seats himself comfortably on the ottoman]

LOUKA Is that any reason why you should take it on yourself to talk to me?

NICOLA Come! don't be so contrary with me I've some good news for you [She sits down beside him He takes out some paper money Louka, with an eager gleam in her eyes, tries to snatch it, but he shifts it quickly to his left hand, out of her reach] See! a twenty leva bill! Sergius gave me that, out of pure swagger A fool and his money are soon parted There's ten levas more The Swiss gave me that for backing up the mistress's and Raina's lies about him He's no fool, he isn't You should have heard old Catherine downstairs as polite as you please to me, telling me not to mind the Major being a little impatient, for they knew what a good servant I was—after making a fool and a liar of me before them all! The twenty will go to our savings, and you shall have the ten to spend if you'll only talk to me so as to remind me I'm a human being I get tired of being a servant occasionally

LOUKA Yes sell your manhood for 30 levas, and buy me for 10! [Rising scornfully] Keep your money You were born to be a servant I was not When you set up your shop you will only be everybody's servant instead of somebody's servant [She goes moodily to the table and seats herself regally in Sergius's chair]

NICOLA [picking up his logs, and going to the stove] Ah, wait til you see We shall have our evenings to ourselves, and I shall be master in my own house, I promise you [He throws the logs down and kneels at the stove]

LOUKA You shall never be master in mine

NICOLA [turning, still on his knees, and squatting down rather forlornly on his calves, daunted by her implacable disdain] You have a great ambition in you, Louka Remember if any luck comes to you, it was I that made a woman of you

LOUKA You!

NICOLA [scrambling up and going at her] Yes, me Who was it made you give up wearing a couple of pounds of false black hair on your head and reddening your lips and cheeks like any other Bulgarian girl? I did Who taught you to trim your nails, and keep your hands clean, and be dainty about yourself, like a fine Russian lady? Me do you hear that? me! [She tosses her head defiantly, and he turns away, adding, more coolly] I've often thought that if Raina were out of the way, and you just a little less of a fool and Sergius just a little more of one, you might come to be one of my grandest customers, instead of only being my wife and costing me money

LOUKA I believe you would rather be my servant than my husband You would make more out of me Oh, I know that soul of yours

NICOLA [going closer to her for greater emphasis] Never you mind my soul, but just listen to my advice If you want to be a lady, your present behavior to me won't do at all, unless when we're alone It's too sharp and impudent, and impudence is a sort of familiarity it shews affection for me And don't you try being high and mighty with me, either You're like all country girls you think it's genteel to treat a servant the way I treat a stableboy That's only your ignorance, and don't you forget it And don't be so ready to defy everybody Act as if you expected to have your own way, not as if you expected to be ordered about The way to get on as a lady is the same as the way to get on as a servant you've got to know your place that's the secret of it And you may depend on me to know my place if you get promoted Think over it, my girl I'll stand by you one servant should always stand by another

LOUKA [rising impatiently] Oh, I must behave in my own way You take all the courage out of me with your cold-blooded wisdom Go and put those logs on the fire that's the sort of thing you understand

Before Nicola can retort, Sergius comes in He checks himself a moment on seeing Louka, then goes to the stove

SERGIUS [to Nicola] I am not in the way of your work, I hope

NICOLA [in a smooth, elderly manner] Oh no, sir thank you kindly I was only speaking to this foolish girl about her habit of running up here to the library whenever she gets a chance, to look at the books That's the worst of her education, sir it gives her habits above her station [To Louka] Make that table tidy, Louka, for the Major [He goes out sedately]

Louka, without looking at Sergius, pretends to arrange the papers on the table He crosses slowly to her, and studies the arrangement of her sleeve reflectively

SERGIUS Let me see is there a mark there? [He turns up the bracelet and sees the bruise made by his grasp She stands motionless, not looking at him fascinated, but on her guard] Fiff! Does it hurt?

LOUKA Yes

SERGIUS Shall I cure it?

LOUKA [instantly withdrawing herself proudly, but still not looking at him] No You cannot cure it now

SERGIUS [masterfully] Quite sure? [He makes a movement as if to take her in his arms]

LOUKA Don't trifle with me, please An officer should not trifle with a servant

SERGIUS [indicating the bruise with a merciless stroke of his forefinger] That was no trifle, Louka LOUKA [flinching, then looking at him for the first time] Are you sorry?

SERGIUS [with measured emphasis, folding his arms] I am never sorry

LOUKA [wistfully] I wish I could believe a man could be as unlike a woman as that I wonder are you really a brave man?

SERGIUS [unaffectedly, relaxing his attitude] Yes I am a brave man My heart jumped like a woman's at the first shot, but in the charge I found that I was brave Yes that at least is real about me

LOUKA Did you find in the charge that the men whose fathers are poor like mine were any less brave than the men who are rich like you

SERGIUS [with bitter levity] Not a bit They all slashed and cursed and yelled like heroes Psha! the courage to rage and kill is cheap I have an English bull terrier who has as much of that sort of courage as the whole Bulgarian nation, and the whole Russian nation at its back But he lets my groom thrash him, all the same That's your soldier all over! No, Louka your poor men can cut throats, but they are afraid of their officers, they put up with insults and blows, they stand by and see one another punished like children aye, and help to do it when they are ordered And the officers! Well [with a short harsh laugh] I am an officer Oh, [fer- vently] give me the man who will defy to the death any power on earth or in heaven that sets itself up against his own will and conscience he alone is the brave man

LOUKA How easy it is to talk! Men never seem to me to grow up they all have school-boy's ideas You don't know what true courage is

SERGIUS [ironically] Indeed! I am willing to be instructed [He sits on the ottoman, sprawling magnificently]

LOUKA Look at me! how much am I allowed to have my own will? I have to get your room ready for you to sweep and dust, to fetch and carry How could that degrade me if it did not degrade you to have it done for you? But [with subdued passion] if I were Empress of Russia, above everyone in the world, then! Ah then, though according to you I could shew no courage at all, you should see, you should see

SERGIUS What would you do, most noble Empress?

LOUKA I would marry the man I loved, which no other queen in Europe has the courage to do If I loved you, though you would be as far beneath me as I am beneath you, I would dare to be the equal of my inferior Would you dare as much if you loved me? No if you felt the beginnings of love for me you would not let it grow You would not dare you would marry a rich man's daughter because you would be afraid of what other people would say of you

SERGIUS [bounding up] You lie it is not so, by all the stars! If I loved you, and I were the Czar himself, I would set you on the throne by my side You know that I love another woman, a woman as high above you as heaven is above earth And you are jealous of her

LOUKA I have no reason to be She will never marry you now The man I told you of has come back She will marry the Swiss SERGIUS [recoiling] The Swiss!

LOUKA A man worth ten of you Then you can come to me, and I will refuse you You are not good enough for me [She turns to the door]

SERGIUS [springing after her and catching her fiercely in his arms] I will kill the Swiss, and afterwards I will do as I please with you

LOUKA [in his arms, passive and steadfast] The Swiss will kill you, perhaps He has beaten you in love He may beat you in war

SERGIUS [tormentedly] Do you think I believe that she—she! whose woist thoughts are higher than your best ones, is capable of trifling with another man behind my back?

LOUKA Do you think she would believe the Swiss if he told her now that I am in your arms?

SERGIUS [releasing her in despair] Damnation! Oh, damnation! Mockery! mockery everywhere! everything I think is mocked by everything I do [He strikes himself frantically on the breast] Coward! liar! fool! Shall I kill myself like a man, or live and pretend to laugh at myself? [She again turns to go] Louka! [She stops near the door] Remember you belong to me

LOUKA [turning] What does that mean? An insult?

SERGIUS [commandingly] It means that you love me, and that I have had you here in my arms, and will perhaps have you there again

Whether that is an insult I neither know nor care take it as you please But [vehemently] I will not be a coward and a trifler If I choose to love you, I dare marry you, in spite of all Bulgaria If these hands ever touch you again, they shall touch my affianced bride

LOUKA We shall see whether you dare keep your word And take care I will not wait long

SERGIUS [again folding his arms and standing motionless in the middle of the room] Yes we shall see And you shall wait my pleasure

Bluntschli, much preoccupied, with his papers still in his hand, enters, leaving the door open for Louka to go out He goes across to the table, glancing at her as he passes Sergius, without altering his resolute attitude, watches him steadily Louka goes out, leaving the door open

BLUNTSCHLI [absently, sitting at the table as before, and putting down his papers] That's a remarkable looking young woman

SERGIUS [gravely, without moving] Captain Bluntschli

BLUNTSCHLI Eh?

SERGIUS You have deceived me You are my rival I brook no rivals At six o'clock I shall be in the drilling-ground on the Klissoura road, alone, on horseback, with my sabre Do you understand?

BLUNTSCHLI [staring, but sitting quite at his ease] Oh, thank you that's a cavalry man's proposal I'm in the artillery, and I have the choice of weapons If I go, I shall take a machine gun And there shall be no mistake about the cartridges this time

SERGIUS [flushing, but with deadly coldness] Take care, sir It is not our custom in Bulgaria to allow invitations of that kind to be trifled with

BLUNTSCHLI [warmly] Poo! don't talk to me about Bulgaria You don't know what fighting is But have it your own way Bring your sabre along I'll meet you

SERGIUS [fiercely delighted to find his opponent a man of spirit] Well said, Switzer Shall I lend you my best horse?

BLUNTSCHLI No damn your horse! thank you all the same, my dear fellow [Raina comes in, and hears the next sentence] I shall fight you on foot Horseback's too dangerous I don't want to kill you if I can help it

RAINA [hurrying forward anxiously] I have heard what Captain Bluntschli said, Sergius You are going to fight Why? [Sergius turns away in silence, and goes to the stove, where he stands watching her as she continues, to Bluntschli] What about?

BLUNTSCHLI I don't know he hasn't told me Better not interfere, dear young lady No harm will be done I've often acted as sword instructor He won't be able to touch me, and I'll not hurt him It will save explanations In the morning I shall be off home, and you'll never see me or hear of me again You and he will then make it up and live happily ever after

RAINA [turning away deeply hurt, almost with a sob in her voice] I never said I wanted to see you again

SERGIUS [striding forward] Ha! That is a confession

RAINA [haughtily] What do you mean?

SERGIUS You love that man!

RAINA [scandalized] Sergius!

SERGIUS You allow him to make love to you behind my back, just as you treat me as your affianced husband behind his Bluntschli you knew our relations, and you deceived me It is for that that I call you to account, not for having received favors I never enjoyed

BLUNTSCHLI [jumping up indignantly] Stuff! Rubbish! I have received no favors Why, the young lady doesn't even know whether I'm married or not

RAINA [forgetting herself] Oh! [Collapsing on the ottoman] Are you?

SERGIUS You see the young lady's concern, Captain Bluntschli Denial is useless You have enjoyed the privilege of being received in her own room, late at night—

BLUNTSCHLI [interrupting him peevishly] Yes, you blockhead! she received me with a pistol at her head Your cavalry were at my heels I'd have blown out her brains if she'd uttered a cry

SERGIUS [taken aback] Bluntschli! Raina is this true?

RAINA [rising in wrathful majesty] Oh, how dare you, how dare you?

BLUNTSCHLI Apologize, man apologize [He resumes his seat at the table]

SERGIUS [with the old measured emphasis, folding his arms] I never apologize!

RAINA [passionately] This is the doing of that friend of yours, Captain Bluntschli It is he who is spreading this horrible story about me [She walks about excitedly]

BLUNTSCHLI No he's dead Burnt alive

RAINA [stopping shocked] Burnt alive!

BLUNTSCHLI Shot in the hip in a woodward

Couldnt drag himself out Your fellows' shells set the timber on fire and burnt him, with half a dozen other poor devils in the same predicament

RAINA How horrible!

SERGIUS And how ridiculous! Oh, war! war! the dream of patriots and heroes! A fraud, Bluntschli A hollow sham, like love

RAINA [outraged] Like love! You say that before me!

BLUNTSCHLI Come, Saranoff that matter is explained

SERGIUS A hollow sham, I say Would you have come back here if nothing had passed between you except at the muzzle of your pistol? Raina is mistaken about your friend who was burnt He was not my informant

RAINA Who then? [Suddenly guessing the truth] Ah, Louka! my maid! my servant! You were with her this morning all that time after—after— Oh, what sort of god is this I have been worshipping! [He meets her gaze with sardonic enjoyment of her disenchantment Angered all the more, she goes closer to him, and says, in a lower, intenser tone] Do you know that I looked out of the window as I went upstairs, to have another sight of my hero, and I saw something I did not understand then I know now that you were making love to her SERGIUS [with grim humor] You saw that?

RAINA Only too well [She turns away, and throws herself on the divan under the centre window, quite overcome]

SERGIUS [cynically] Raina our romance is shattered Life's a farce

BLUNTSCHLI [to Raina, whimsically] You see he's found himself out now

SERGIUS [going to him] Bluntschli I have allowed you to call me a blockhead You may now call me a coward as well I refuse to fight you Do you know why?

BLUNTSCHLI No, but it doesnt matter I didnt ask the reason when you cried on, and I dont ask the reason now that you cry off I'm a professional soldier I fight when I have to, and am very glad to get out of it when I havnt to You're only an amateur you think fighting's an amusement

SERGIUS [sitting down at the table, nose to nose with him] You shall hear the reason all the same, my professional The reason is that it takes two men—real men—men of heart, blood and honor—to make a genuine combat I could no more fight with you than I could make love to an ugly woman You've no magnetism you're not a man you're a machine

BLUNTSCHLI [apologetically] Quite true, quite true I always was that sort of chap I'm very sorry

SERGIUS Psha!

BLUNTSCHLI But now that you've found that life isn't a farce, but something quite sensible and serious, what further obstacle is there to your happiness?

RAINA [rising] You are very solicitous about my happiness and his Do you forget his new love—Louka? It is not you that he must fight now, but his rival, Nicola

SERGIUS Rival! [bounding half across the room]

RAINA Dont you know that they're engaged?

SERGIUS Nicola! Are fresh abysses opening? Nicola!

RAINA [sarcastically] A shocking sacrifice, isn't it? Such beauty! such intellect! such modesty! wasted on a middle-aged servant man Really, Sergius, you cannot stand by and allow such a thing It would be unworthy of your chivalry

SERGIUS [losing all self-control] Viper! Viper! [He rushes to and fro, raging]

BLUNTSCHLI Look here, Saranoff you're getting the worst of this

RAINA [getting angrier] Do you realize what he has done, Captain Bluntschli? He has set this girl as a spy on us, and her reward is that he makes love to her SERGIUS False! Monstrous!

RAINA Monstrous! [Confronting him] Do you deny that she told you about Captain Bluntschli being in my room?

SERGIUS No, but—

RAINA [interrupting] Do you deny that you were making love to her when she told you?

SERGIUS No, but I tell you—

RAINA [cutting him short contemptuously] It is unnecessary to tell us anything more That is quite enough for us [She turns away from him and sneeps majestically back to the window]

BLUNTSCHLI [quietly, as Sergius, in an agony of mortification, sinks on the ottoman, clutching his averted head between his fists] I told you you were getting the worst of it, Saranoff

SERGIUS Tiger cat!

RAINA [running excitedly to Bluntschli] You hear this man calling me names, Captain Bluntschli?

BLUNTSCHLI What else can he do, dear lady? He must defend himself somehow Come [very persuasively] dont quarrel What good does it do?

Raina, with a gasp, sits down on the ottoman, and after a vain effort to look vexedly at Bluntschli, falls a victim to her sense of humor, and actually leans back babyishly against the writhing shoulder of Sergius

SERGIUS Engaged to Nicola! Ha! ha! Ah well, Bluntschli, you are right to take this huge imposture of a world coolly RAINA [quaintly to Bluntschli, with an intuitive guess at his state of mind] I daresay you think us a couple of grown-up babies, dont you?

SERGIUS [grinning savagely] He does he does Swiss civilization nursetending Bulgarian barbarism, eh?

BLUNTSCHLI [blushing] Not at all, I assure you I'm only very glad to get you two quieted There! there! let's be pleasant and talk it over in a friendly way Where is this other young lady?

RAINA Listening at the door, probably

SERGIUS [shivering as if a bullet had struck him, and speaking with quiet but deep indignation] I will prove that that, at least, is a calumny [He goes with dignity to the door and opens it A yell of fury bursts from him as he looks out He darts into the passage, and returns dragging in Louka, whom he flings violently against the table, exclaiming] Judge her, Bluntschli You, the cool impartial man judge the eavesdropper

Louka stands her ground, proud and silent

BLUNTSCHLI [shaking his head] I musnt judge her I once listened myself outside a tent when there was a mutiny brewing It's all a question of the degree of provocation My life was at stake

LOUKA My love was at stake I am not ashamed

RAINA [contemptuously] Your love! Your curiosity, you mean

LOUKA [facing her and retorting her contempt with interest] My love, stronger than anything you can feel, even for your chocolate cream soldier

SERGIUS [with quick suspicion, to Louka] What does that mean?

LOUKA [fiercely] It means—

SERGIUS [interrupting her slightly] Oh, I remember the ice pudding A paltry taunt, girl!

Major Petkoff enters, in his shirtsleeves

PETKOFF Excuse my shirtsleeves, gentlemen Raina somebody has been wearing that coat of mine I'll swear it Somebody with a differently shaped back It's all burst open at the sleeve Your mother is mending it I wish she'd make haste I shall catch cold [He looks more attentively at them] Is anything the matter?

RAINA No [She sits down at the stove, with a tranquil air]

SERGIUS Oh no [He sits down at the end of the table, as at first]

BLUNTSCHLI [who is already seated] Nothing Nothing

PETKOFF [sitting down on the ottoman in his old place] That's all right [He notices Louka] Anything the matter, Louka?

LOUKA No, sir

PETKOFF [genially] That's all right [He sneezes] Go and ask your mistress for my coat, like a good girl, will you?

Nicola enters with the coat Louka makes a pretence of having business in the room by taking the little table with the hookah away to the wall near the windows

RAINA [rising quickly as she sees the coat on Nicola's arm] Here it is, papa Give it to me, Nicola, and do you put some more wood on the fire [She takes the coat, and brings it to the Major, who stands up to put it on Nicola attends to the fire]

PETKOFF [to Raina, teasing her affectionately] Aha! Going to be very good to poor old papa just for one day after his return from the wars, eh?

RAINA [with solemn reproach] Ah, how can you say that to me, father?

PETKOFF Well, well, only a joke, little one Come give me a kiss [She kisses him] Now give me the coat

RAINA No I am going to put it on for you Turn your back [He turns his back and feels behind him with his arms for the sleeves She dexterously takes the photograph from the pocket and throns it on the table before Bluntschli, who covers it with a sheet of paper under the very nose of Sergius, who looks on amazed, with his suspicions roused in the highest degree She then helps Petkoff on with his coat] There, dear! Now are you comfortable?

PETKOFF Quite, little love Thanks [He sits down, and Raina returns to her seat near the stove] Oh, by the bye, I've found something funny. Whats the meaning of this? [He puts his hand into the picked pocket] Eh? Hallo!

 [He tries the other pocket] Well, I could have sworn—! [Much puzzled, he tries the breast pocket] I wonder—[trying the original pocket] Where can it—? [He rises, exclaiming] Your mother's taken it!

RAINA [very red] Taken what?

PETKOFF Your photograph, with the inscription "Raina, to her Chocolate Cream Soldier a Souvenir" Now you know theres something more in this than meets the eye, and I'm going to find it out [Shouting] Nicola!

NICOLA [coming to him] Sir!

PETKOFF Did you spoil any pastry of Miss Raina's this morning?

NICOLA You heard Miss Raina say that I did, sir

PETKOFF I know that, you idiot Was it true?

NICOLA I am sure Miss Raina is incapable of saying anything that is not true, sir

PETKOFF. Are you? Then I'm not [Turning to the others] Come do you think I dont see it all? [He goes to Sergius, and slaps him on the shoulder] Sergius youre the chocolate cream soldier, arnt you?

SERGIUS [starting up] I! A chocolate cream soldier! Certainly not PETKOFF Not! [He looks at them They are all very serious and very conscious] Do you mean to tell me that Raina sends things like that to other men?

SERGIUS [enigmatically] The world is not such an innocent place as we used to think, Petkoff

BLUNTSCHLI [rising] It's all right, Major I'm the chocolate cream soldier [Petkoff and Sergius are equally astonished] The gracious young lady saved my life by giving me chocolate creams when I was starving shall I ever forget their flavour! My late friend Stolz told you the story at Piro! I was the fugitive PETKOFF You! [He gasps] Sergius do you remember how these two women went on this morning when we mentioned it? [Sergius smiles cynically Petkoff confronts Raina severely] Youre a nice young woman, arnt you?

RAINA [bitterly] Major Saranoff has changed his mind And when I wrote that on the photograph, I did not know that Captain Bluntschli was married

BLUNTSCHLI [startled into vehement protest]

I'm not married

RAINA [with deep reproach] You said you were

BLUNTSCHLI I did not I positively did not I never was married in my life

PETKOFF [exasperated] Raina will you kindly inform me, if I am not asking too much, which of these gentlemen you are engaged to?

RAINA To neither of them This young lady [introducing Louka, who faces them all proudly] is the object of Major Saranoff's affections at present

PETKOFF Louka! Are you mad, Sergius? Why, this girl's engaged to Nicola

NICOLA I beg your pardon, sir There is a mistake Louka is not engaged to me

PETKOFF Not engaged to you, you scoundrel! Why, you had twenty-five levas from me on the day of your betrothal, and she had that gilt bracelet from Miss Raina

NICOLA [with cool unction] We gave it out so, sir But it was only to give Louka protection She had a soul above her station, and I have been no more than her confidential servant I intend, as you know, sir, to set up a shop later on in Sofia, and I look forward to her custom and recommendation should she marry into the nobility [He goes out with impressive discretion, leaving them all staring after him]

PETKOFF [breaking the silence] Well, I am—hm!

SERGIUS This is either the finest heroism or the most crawling baseness Which is it, Bluntschli?

BLUNTSCHLI Never mind whether it's heroism or baseness Nicola's the ablest man I've met in Bulgaria I'll make him manager of a hotel if he can speak French and German

LOUKA [suddenly breaking out at Sergius] I have been insulted by everyone here You set them the example You owe me an apology

Sergius, like a repeating clock of which the spring has been touched, immediately begins to fold his arms

BLUNTSCHLI [before he can speak] It's no use He never apologizes

LOUKA Not to you, his equal and his enemy To me, his poor servant, he will not refuse to apologize

SERGIUS [approvingly] You are right [He bends his knee in his grandest manner] Forgive me

LOUKA I forgive you [She timidly gives him her hand, which he kisses] That touch makes me your affianced wife

SERGIUS [springing up] Ah! I forgot that

LOUKA [coldly] You can withdraw if you like

SERGIUS Withdraw! Never! You belong to me [He puts his arm about her]

Catherine comes in and finds Louka in Sergius's arms, with all the rest gazing at them in bewildered astonishment

CATHERINE What does this mean?

Sergius releases Louka

PETKOFF Well, my dear, it appears that Sergius is going to marry Louka instead of Raina [She is about to break out indignantly at him he stops her by exclaiming testily] Don't blame me I've nothing to do with it [He retreats to the stove]

CATHERINE Marry Louka! Sergius you are bound by your word to us!

SERGIUS [folding his arms] Nothing binds me

BLUNTSCHLI [much pleased by this piece of common sense] Saranoff your hand My congratulations These heroics of yours have their practical side after all [To Louka] Gracious young lady the best wishes of a good Republican! [He kisses her hand, to Raina's great disgust, and returns to his seat]

CATHERINE Louka you have been telling stories

LOUKA I have done Raina no harm

CATHERINE [haughtily] Raina!

Raina, equally indignant, almost snorts at the liberty

LOUKA I have a right to call her Raina she calls me Louka I told Major Saranoff she would never marry him if the Swiss gentleman came back

BLUNTSCHLI [rising, much surprised] Hallo!

LOUKA [turning to Raina] I thought you were fonder of him than of Sergius You know best whether I was right

BLUNTSCHLI What nonsense! I assure you, my dear Major, my dear Madame, the gracious young lady simply saved my life, nothing else She never cared two straws for me Why, bless my heart and soul, look at the young lady and look at me She, rich, young, beautiful, with her imagination full of fairy princes and noble natures and cavalry charges and goodness knows what! And I, a commonplace Swiss soldier who hardly knows what a decent life is after fifteen years of barracks and battles a vagabond, a man who has spoiled all his chances in life through an incurably romantic disposition, a man—

SERGIUS [starting as if a needle had pricked him and interrupting Bluntschli in incredulous amazement] Excuse me, Bluntschli what did you say had spoiled your chances in life?

BLUNTSCHLI [promptly] An incurably romantic disposition I ran away from home twice when I was a boy I went into the army instead of into my father's business I climbed the balcony of this house when a man of sense would have dived into the nearest cellar I came sneaking back here to have another look at the young lady when any other man of my age would have sent the coat back—

PETKOFF My coat!

BLUNTSCHLI—yes that's the coat I mean—would have sent it back and gone quietly home Do you suppose I am the sort of fellow a young girl falls in love with? Why, look at our ages! I'm thirty-four I don't suppose the young lady is much over seventeen [This estimate produces a marked sensation, all the rest turning and staring at one another He proceeds innocently] All that adventure which was life or death to me, was only a schoolgirl's game to her—chocolate creams and hide and seek Here's the proof! [He takes the photograph from the table] Now, I ask you, would a woman who took the affair seriously have sent me this and written on it "Raina, to her Chocolate Cream Soldier a Souvenir"? [He exhibits the photograph triumphantly, as if it settled the matter beyond all possibility of refutation]

PETKOFF That's what I was looking for How the deuce did it get there? [He comes from the stove to look at it, and sits down on the ottoman]

BLUNTSCHLI [to Raina, complacently] I have put every thing right, I hope, gracious young lady

RAINA [going to the table to face him] I quite agree with your account of yourself You are a romantic idiot [Bluntschli is unspeakably taken aback] Next time, I hope you will know the difference between a schoolgirl of seventeen and a woman of twenty-three BLUNTSCHLI [stupefied] Twenty-three!

Raina snaps the photograph contemptuously from his hand, tears it up, throws the pieces in his face, and sneeps back to her former place

SERGIUS [with grim enjoyment of his rival's

discomfiture] Bluntschli my one last belief is gone Your sagacity is a fraud, like everything else You have less sense than even I!

BLUNTSCHLI [overwhelmed] Twenty-three! Twenty-three!! [He considers] Hm! [Swiftly making up his mind and coming to his host] In that case, Major Petkoff, I beg to propose formally to become a suitor for your daughter's hand, in place of Major Saranoff retired

RAINA You dare!

BLUNTSCHLI If you were twenty-three when you said those things to me this afternoon, I shall take them seriously

CATHERINE [loftily polite] I doubt, sir, whether you quite realize either my daughter's position or that of Major Sergius Saranoff, whose place you propose to take The Petkoffs and the Saranoffs are known as the richest and most important families in the country Our position is almost historical we can go back for twenty years

PETKOFF Oh, never mind that, Catherine [To Bluntschli] We should be most happy, Bluntschli, if it were only a question of your position, but hang it, you know, Raina is accustomed to a very comfortable establishment Sergius keeps twenty horses

BLUNTSCHLI But who wants twenty horses? We're not going to keep a circus

CATHERINE [severely] My daughter, sir, is accustomed to a first-rate stable

RAINA Hush, mother you're making me ridiculous

BLUNTSCHLI Oh well, if it comes to a question of an establishment, here goes! [He darts impetuously to the table, seizes the papers in the blue envelope, and turns to Sergius] How many horses did you say?

SERGIUS Twenty, noble Switzer

BLUNTSCHLI I have two hundred horses [They are amazed] How many carriages?

SERGIUS Three

BLUNTSCHLI I have seventy Twenty-four of them will hold twelve inside, besides two on the box, without counting the driver and conductor How many tablecloths have you?

SERGIUS How the deuce do I know?

BLUNTSCHLI Have you four thousand?

SERGIUS No

BLUNTSCHLI I have I have nine thousand six hundred pairs of sheets and blankets, with two thousand four hundred eider-down quilts I have ten thousand knives and forks, and the same quantity of dessert spoons I have three hundred servants I have six palatial establishments, besides two livery stables a tea gardens, and a private house I have four medals for distinguished services, I have the rank of an officer and the standing of a gentleman, and I have three native languages Shew me any man in Bulgaria that can offer as much!

PETKOFF [with childish awe] Are you Emperor of Switzerland?

BLUNTSCHLI My rank is the highest known in Switzerland I am a free citizen

CATHERINE Then, Captain Bluntschli, since you are my daughter's choice—

RAINA [mutinously] He's not

CATHERINE [ignoring her]—I shall not stand in the way of her happiness [Petkoff is about to speak] That is Major Petkoff's feeling also PETKOFF Oh, I shall be only too glad Two hundred horses! Whew!

SERGIUS What says the lady?

RAINA [pretending to sulk] The lady says that he can keep his tablecloths and his omnibuses I am not here to be sold to the highest bidder [She turns her back on him]

BLUNTSCHLI I won't take that answer I appealed to you as a fugitive, a beggar, and a starving man You accepted me You gave me your hand to kiss, your bed to sleep in, and your roof to shelter me

RAINA I did not give them to the Emperor of Switzerland

BLUNTSCHLI That's just what I say [He catches her by the shoulders and turns her face-to-face with him] Now tell us whom you did give them to

RAINA [succumbing with a shy smile] To my chocolate cream soldier

BLUNTSCHLI [with a boyish laugh of delight] That'll do Thank you [He looks at his watch and suddenly becomes businesslike] Time's up, Major You've managed those regiments so well that you're sure to be asked to get rid of some of the infantry of the Timok division Send them home by way of Lom Palanka Saranoff don't get married until I come back I shall be here punctually at five in the evening on Tuesday fortnight Gracious ladies [his heels click] good evening [He makes them a military bow, and goes]

SERGIUS What a man! Is he a man?

1895

BEING THE SECOND OF FOUR PLEASANT PLAYS

ACT I

A fine morning in October 1894 in the north east quarter of London, a vast district miles away from the London of Mayfair and St James's, and much less narrow, squalid, fetid and airless in its slums. It is strong in unfashionable middle class life wide-streeted, myriad-populated, well served with ugly iron urinals, Radical clubs, and tram lines carrying a perpetual stream of yellow cars, enjoying in its main thoroughfares the luxury of grass-grown "front gardens" untrodden by the foot of man save as to the path from the gate to the hall door, blighted by a callously endured monotony of miles and miles of unlovely brick houses, black iron railings, stony pavements, slated roofs, and respectably ill dressed or disreputably worse dressed people, quite accustomed to the place, and mostly plodding uninterestedly about somebody's else's work. The little energy and eagerness that crop up shew themselves in cockney cupidity and business "push." Even the policemen and the chapels are not infrequent enough to break the monotony. The sun is shining cheerfully there is no fog, and though the smoke effectually prevents anything, whether faces and hands or bricks and mortar, from looking fresh and clean, it is not hanging heavily enough to trouble a Londoner.

This desert of unattractiveness has its oasis. Near the outer end of the Hackney road is a park of 217 acres, fenced in, not by railings, but by a wooden paling, and containing plenty of greensward, trees, a lake for bathers, flower beds which are triumphs of the admired cockney art of carpet gardening, and a sandpit, originally imported from the seaside for the delight of children, but speedily deserted on its becoming a natural vermin preserve for all the petty fauna of Kingsland, Hackney, and Hoxton. A bandstand, an unfurnished forum for religious, anti-religious, and political orators, cricket pitches, a gymnasium, and an old fashioned stone kiosk are among its attractions. Wherever the prospect is bounded by trees or rising green grounds, it is a pleasant place. Where the ground stretches flat to the grey palings, with bricks and mortar, sky signs, crowded chimneys and smoke beyond, the prospect makes it desolate and sordid.

The best view of Victoria Park is commanded by the front window of St Dominic's Parsonage, from which not a brick is visible. The parsonage is semi-detached, with a front garden and a porch. Visitors go up the flight of steps to the porch, tradespeople and members of the family go down by a door under the steps to the basement, with a breakfastroom, used for all meals, in front, and the kitchen at the back. Upstairs, on the level of the hall door, is the drawing room, with its large plate glass window looking out on the park. In this, the only sitting room that can be spared from the children and the family meals, the parson, the Reverend James Major Morell, does his work. He is sitting in a strong round backed revolving chair at the end of a long table, which stands across the window, so that he can cheer himself with a view of the park over his left shoulder. At the opposite end of the table, adjoining it, is a little table only half as wide as the other, with a typewriter on it. His typist is sitting at this machine, with her back to the window. The large table is littered with pamphlets, journals, letters, nests of drawers, an office diary, postage scales and the like. A spare chair for visitors having business with the parson is in the middle, turned to his end. Within reach of his hand is a stationery case, and a photograph in a frame. The wall behind him is fitted with bookshelves, on which an adept eye can measure the parson's casuistry and divinity by Maurice's Theological Essays and a complete set of Browning's poems, and the reformer's politics by a yellow backed Progress and Poverty, Fabian Essays, A Dream of John Ball, Marx's Capital, and half a dozen other literary landmarks in Socialism. Facing him on the other side of the room, near the typewriter, is the door. Further down opposite the fireplace, a bookcase stands on a cellaret, with a sofa near it. There is a generous fire burning, and the hearth, with a comfortable armchair and a black japanned flower-painted coal scuttle at one side, a miniature chair for children on the other, a varnished wooden mantelpiece, with neatly moulded shelves, tiny bits of mirror let into the panels, a travelling clock in a leather case (the inevitable wedding present), and on the wall above a large autotype of the chief figure in Titian's Assumption of the Virgin is very inviting. Altogether the room is the room of a good housekeeper, vanquished, as far as the table is concerned, by an untidy man, but elsewhere mistress of the situation. The furniture, in its ornamental aspect, betrays the style of the advertized "drawingroom suite" of the pushing suburban furniture dealer, but there is nothing useless or pretentious in the room, money being too scarce in the house of an east end parson to be wasted on snobbish trimmings.

The Reverend James Mavor Morell is a Christian Socialist clergyman of the Church of England, and an active member of the Guild of St Matthew and the Christian Social Union. A vigorous, genial, popular man of forty, robust and goodlooking, full of energy, with pleasant, hearty, considerate manners, and a sound unaffected voice, which he uses with the clean athletic articulation of a practised orator, and with a wide range and perfect command of expression. He is a first rate clergyman, able to say what he likes to whom he likes, to lecture people without setting himself up against them, to impose his authority on them without humiliating them and, on occasion, to interfere in their business without impertinence. His well-spring of enthusiasm and sympathetic emotion has never run dry for a moment: he still eats and sleeps heartily enough to win the daily battle between exhaustion and recuperation triumphantly. Withal, a great baby, pardonably vain of his powers and unconsciously pleased with himself. He has a healthy complexion, good forehead, with the brows somewhat blunt, and the eyes bright and eager, mouth resolute but not particularly well cut, and a substantial nose, with the mobile spreading nostrils of the dramatic orator, void, like all his features, of subtlety.

The typist, Miss Proserpine Garnett, is a brisk little woman of about 30, of the loner middle class, neatly but cheaply dressed in a black merino skirt and a blouse, notably pert and quick of speech, and not very civil in her manner, but sensitive and affectionate. She is clattering away busily at her machine whilst Morell opens the last of his morning's letters. He realizes its contents with a comic groan of despair.

PROSERPINE Another lecture?

MORELL Yes. The Hoxton Freedom Group want me to address them on Sunday morning [he lays great emphasis on Sunday, this being the unreasonable part of the business] What are they?

PROSERPINE Communist Anarchists, I think.

MORELL Just like Anarchists not to know that they can't have a parson on Sunday! Tell them to come to church if they want to hear me: it will do them good. Say I can come on Mondays and Thursdays only. Have you the diary there?

PROSERPINE [taking up the diary] Yes.

MORELL Have I any lecture on for next Monday?

PROSERPINE [referring to diary] Tower Hamlets Radical Club.

MORELL Well, Thursday then?

PROSERPINE English Land Restoration League.

MORELL What next?

PROSERPINE Guild of St Matthew on Monday. Independent Labor Party, Greenwich Branch, on Thursday. Monday, Social-Democratic Federation, Mile End Branch. Thursday, first Confirmation class [Impatiently] Oh, I'd better tell them you can't come. They're only half a dozen ignorant and conceited costermongers without five shillings between them.

MORELL [amused] Ah, but you see they're near relatives of mine.

PROSERPINE [staring at him] Relatives of yours!

MORELL Yes, we have the same father—in Heaven.

PROSERPINE [relieved] Oh, is that all?

MORELL [with a sadness which is a luxury to a man whose voice expresses it so finely] Ah, you don't believe it. Everybody says it, nobody believes it, nobody [Briskly, getting back to business] Well, well! Come, Miss Proserpine, can't you find a date for the costers? What about the 25th? That was vacant the day before yesterday.

PROSERPINE [referring to diary] Engaged. The Fabian Society.

MORELL Bother the Fabian Society! Is the 28th gone too?

PROSERPINE City dinner. You're invited to dine with the Founders' Company.

MORELL That'll do. I'll go to the Hoxton Group of Freedom instead. [She enters the engagement in silence, with implacable disparagement of the Hoxton Anarchists in every line of her face. Morell bursts open the cover of a copy of The Church Reformer, which has come by post, and glances through Mr Stenart Headlam's leader and the Guild of St Matthew news These proceedings are presently enlivened by the appearance of Morell's curate, the Reverend Alexander Moll, a young gentleman gathered by Morell from the nearest University settlement, whither he had come from Oxford to give the east end of London the benefit of his university training He is a conceitedly well intentioned, enthusiastic, immature novice, with nothing positively unbearable about him except a habit of speaking with his lips carefully closed a full half inch from each corner for the sake of a fineking articulation and a set of university vowels, this being his chief means so far of bringing his Oxford refinement (as he calls his habits) to bear on Hackney vulgarity Morell, whom he has won over by a doglike devotion, looks up indulgently from The Church Reformer, and remarks] Well, Levy? Late again, as usual!

LEVY I'm afraid so I wish I could get up in the morning

MORELL [exulting in his own energy] Ha! Ha! [Whimsically] Watch and pray, Levy watch and pray

LEVY I know [Rising withly to the occasion] But how can I watch and pray when I am asleep? Isn't that so, Miss Prossy? [He makes for the warmth of the fire]

PROSERPINE [sharply] Miss Garnett, if you please

LEVY I beg your pardon Miss Garnett

PROSERPINE You've got to do all the work today

LEVY [on the hearth] Why?

PROSERPINE Never mind why It will do you good to earn your supper before you eat it, for once in a way, as I do Come! don't dawdle You should have been off on your rounds half an hour ago

LEVY [perplexed] Is she in earnest, Morell?

MORELL [in the highest spirits his eyes dancing] Yes I am going to dawdle today

LEVY You! You don't know how

MORELL [rising] Ha! ha! Don't I? I'm going to have this morning all to myself My wife's coming back she's due here at 11 45

LEVY [surprised] Coming back already! with the children? I thought they were to stay to the end of the month

MORELL So they are she's only coming up for two days, to get some flannel things for Jimmy, and to see how we're getting on without her

LEVY [anxiously] But, my dear Morell, if what Jimmy and Fluffy had was scarlatina do you think it wise—

MORELL Scarlatina! Rubbish! it was German measles I brought it into the house myself from the Pycroft Street school A parson is like a doctor, my boy he must face infection as a soldier must face bullets [He elaps Levy manfully on the shoulders] Catch the measles if you can, Levy she'll nurse you, and what a piece of luck that will be for you! Eh?

LEVY [smiling uneasily] It's so hard to understand you about Mrs Morell—

MORELL [tenderly] Ah, my boy, get married get married to a good woman, and then you'll understand That's a foretaste of what will be best in the Kingdom of Heaven we are trying to establish on earth That will cure you of dawdling An honest man feels that he must pay Heaven for every hour of happiness with a good spell of hard unselfish work to make others happy We have no more right to consume happiness without producing it than to consume wealth without producing it Get a wife like my Candida, and you'll always be in arrears with your repayment [He pats Levy affectionately and moves to leave the room]

LEVY Oh, wait a bit I forgot [Morell halts and turns with the door knob in his hand] Your father-in-law is coming round to see you

Morell, surprised and not pleased, shuts the door again, with a complete change of manner

MORELL Mr Burgess?

LEVY Yes I passed him in the park, arguing with somebody He asked me to let you know that he was coming MORELL [half incredulous] But he hasn't called here for three years Are you sure, Levy? You're not joking, are you?

LEVY [earnestly] No sir, really

MORELL [thoughtfully] Hm! Time for him to take another look at Candida before she grows out of his knowledge [He resigns himself to the inevitable, and goes out]

Levy looks after him with beaming worship Miss Garnett, not being able to shake Levy, relieves her feelings by nortying the typewriter

LEVY What a good man! What a thorough loving soul he is! [He takes Morell's place at the table, making himself very comfortable as he takes out a cigar]

PROSERPINE [impatiently, pulling the letter she has been norting at off the typewriter and folding it] Oh, a man ought to be able to be fond of his wife without making a fool of himself about her

LEXY [shocked] Oh, Miss Prossy!

PROSERPINE [snatching at the stationery case for an envelope, in which she encloses the letter as she speaks] Candida here, and Candida there, and Candida everywhere! [She licks the envelope] It's enough to drive anyone out of their senses [thumping the envelope to make it stick] to hear a woman raved about in that absurd manner merely because she's got good hair and a tolerable figure

LEXY [with reproachful gravity] I think her extremely beautiful, Miss Garnett [He takes the photograph up, looks at it, and adds, with even greater impressiveness] extremely beautiful How fine her eyes are!

PROSERPINE Her eyes are not a bit better than mine now! [He puts down the photograph and stares austerely at her] And you know very well you think me dowdy and second rate enough

LEXY [rising majestically] Heaven forbid that I should think of any of God's creatures in such a way! [He moves stiffly away from her across the room to the neighborhood of the bookcase]

PROSERPINE [sarcastically] Thank you That's very nice and comforting

LEXY [saddened by her depravity] I had no idea you had any feeling against Mrs Morell

PROSERPINE [indignantly] I have no feeling against her She's very nice, very good-hearted I'm very fond of her, and can appreciate her real qualities far better than any man can [He shakes his head sadly She rises and comes at him with intense pepperiness] You dont believe me? You think I'm jealous? Oh, what a knowledge of the human heart you have, Mr Lexy Mill! How well you know the weaknesses of Woman, dont you? It must be so nice to be a man and have a fine penetrating intellect instead of mere emotions like us, and to know that the reason we dont share your amorous delusions is that we're all jealous of one another! [She abandons him with a toss of her shoulders, and crosses to the fire to warm her hands]

LEXY Ah, if you women only had the same clue to Man's strength that you have to his weakness, Miss Prossy, there would be no Woman Question

PROSERPINE [over her shoulder, as she stoops, holding her hands to the blaze] Where did you hear Morell say that? You didnt invent it yourself youre not clever enough

LEXY That's quite true I am not ashamed of owing him that, as I owe him so many other spiritual truths He said it at the annual conference of the Women's Liberal Federation Allow me to add that though they didnt appreciate it, I, a mere man, did [He turns to the bookcase again, hoping that this may leave her crushed]

PROSERPINE [putting her hair straight at a panel of mirror in the mantelpiece] Well, when you talk to me, give me your own ideas, such as they are, and not his You never cut a poorer figure than when you are trying to imitate him

LEXY [stung] I try to follow his example, not to imitate him

PROSERPINE [coming at him again on her way back to her work] Yes, you do you imitate him Why do you tuck your umbrella under your left arm instead of carrying it in your hand like anyone else? Why do you walk with your chin stuck out before you, hurrying along with that eager look in your eyes? you! who never get up before half past nine in the morning Why do you say "knoledge" in church, though you always say "knolledge" in private conversation! Bah! do you think I dont know? [She goes back to the typewriter] Here! come and set about your work we've wasted enough time for one morning Here's a copy of the diary for today [She hands him a memorandum]

LEXY [deeply offended] Thank you [He takes it and stands at the table with his back to her, reading it She begins to transcribe her shorthand notes on the typewriter without troubling herself about his feelings]

The door opens, and Mr Burgess enters unannounced He is a man of sixty, made coarse and sordid by the compulsory selfishness of petty commerce, and later on softened into sluggish bumptiousness by overfeeding and commercial success A vulgar ignorant guzzling man, offensive and contemptuous to people whose labor is cheap, respectful to wealth and rank, and quite sincere and without rancor or envy in both attitudes The world has offered him no decently paid work except that of a sweeter, and he has become, in consequence, somewhat hoggish But he has no suspicion of this himself, and honestly regards his commercial prosperity as the inevitable and socially wholesome triumph of the ability, industry, shrewdness, and experience in business of a man who in private is easygoing, affectionate, and humorously convivial to a fault

Corporeally he is podgy, with a snoutish nose in the centre of a flat square face, a dust colored beard with a patch of grey in the centre under his chin, and small watery blue eyes with a plaintively sentimental expression, which he transfers easily to his voice by his habit of pompously intoning his sentences

BURGESS [stopping on the threshold, and looking round] They told me Mr Morell was here

PROSERPINE [rising] I'll fetch him for you

BURGESS [staring disappointedly at her] You're not the same young lady as hused to type-write for him?

PROSERPINE No

BURGESS [grumbling on his way to the hearth-rug] No she was young-er [Miss Garnett stares at him, then goes out, slamming the door] Startin on your rounds, Mr Mill?

LEXY [folding his memorandum and pocketing it] Yes I must be off presently

BURGESS [momentously] Dont let me detain you, Mr Mill What I come about is private between me and Mr Morell

LEXY [huffily] I have no intention of intruding, I am sure, Mr Burgess Good morning

BURGESS [patronizingly] Oh, good morning to you

Morell returns as Lexy is making for the door

MORELL [to Lexy] Off to work?

LEXY Yes, sir

MORELL Take my silk handkerchief and wrap your throat up Theres a cold wind Away with you

Lexy, more than consoled for Burgess's rudeness, brightens up and goes out

BURGESS Spoilm your korates as usual, James Good mornin When I pay a man, an' 'is livin' depens on me, I keep him in 'is place

MORELL [rather shortly] I always keep my curates in their places as my helpers and comrades If you get as much work out of your clerks and warehousemen as I do out of my curates, you must be getting rich pretty fast Will you take your old chair?

He points with curt authority to the armchair beside the fireplace, then takes the spare chair from the table and sits down at an unfamiliar distance from his visitor

BURGESS [without moving] Just the same as hever, James!

MORELL When you last called—it was about three years ago, I think—you said the same thing a little more frankly Your exact words then were "Just as big a fool as ever, James!"

BURGESS [soothingly] Well, praps I did, but [with conciliatory cheerfulness] I meant no offence by it A elorgy man is privileged to be a bit of a fool, you know it's ony becomin in 'is profession that he should Anyhow, I come here, not to rake up hold differences, but to let bygones be bygones [Suddenly becoming very solemn, and approaching Morell] James three years ago, you done me a hilt turn You done me hout of a contric, in when I gev you arsh words in my natral disappointment, you turned my daughter again me Well, I've come to haet the part of a Kerisehin [Offering his hand] I forgive you, James MORELL [starting up] Confound your impudenee!

BURGESS [retreating, with almost lachrymose deprecation of this treatment] Is that becomin language for a elorgy man, James? And you so particular, too!

MORELL [hotly] No, sir it is not becoming language for a elergyman I used the wrong word I should have said damn your impudence thats what St Paul or any honest priest would have said to you Do you think I have forgotten that tender of yours for the contract to supply clothing to the workhouse?

BURGESS [in a paroxysm of public spirit] I haected in the hinterest of the ratepayers, James It was the lowest tender you earnt deny that

MORELL Yes, the lowest, because you paid worse wages than any other employer—starvation wages—aye, worse than starvation wages—to the women who made the clothing Your wages would have driven them to the streets to keep body and soul together [Getting angrier and angrier] Those women were my parishioners I shamed the Guardians out of aaccepting your tender I shamed the ratepayers out of letting them do it I shamed everybody but you [Boiling over] How dare you, sir, come here and offer to forgive me, and talk about your daughter, and—

BURGESS Heasy, James! heasy! heasy! Dont git hinto a fluster about nothink I've howned I was wrong

MORELL Have you? I didnt hear you

BURGESS Of course I did I hown it now Come I harsk your pardon for the letter I wrote you Is that enough?

MORELL [snapping his fingers] That's nothing
Have you raised the wages?

BURGESS [triumphantly] Yes

MORELL What!

BURGESS [unctuously] I've turned a muddle hemployer I don't hemploy no women now they're all sacked, and the work is done by machinery Not a man 'as less than sixpence a hour, and the skilled 'ands gits the Trade Union rate [Proudly] What ave you to say to me now?

MORELL [overwhelmed] Is it possible! Well, theres more joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth!—[Going to Burgess with an explosion of apologetic cordiality] My dear Burgess how splendid of you! I most heartily beg your pardon for my hard thoughts [Grasping his hand] And now, don't you feel the better for the change? Come! confess!
you're happier You look happier

BURGESS [ruefully] Well, praps I do I spose
I must, since you notice it At all events, I git my contrax assepted by the County Council [Savagely] They dussent ave no-think to do with me unless I paid fair wages curse em for a parcel o meddlin fools!

MORELL [dropping his hand, utterly discouraged] So that was why you raised the wages!
[He sits down moodily]

BURGESS [severely, in spreading, mounting tones] Woy helse should I do it? What does it lead to but drink and huppishness in workin men? [He seats himself magisterially in the easy chair] It's hall very well for you, James it gits you hinto the papers and makes a great man of you, but you never think of the arm you do, puttin money into the pockets of workin men that they dunno ow to spend, and takin it from people that might be makin
a good huse on it

MORELL [with a heavy sigh, speaking with cold politeness] What is your business with me this morning? I shall not pretend to believe that you are here merely out of family sentiment

BURGESS [obstinately] Yes I ham just family sentiment and nothink helse

MORELL [with weary calm] I don't believe
you

BURGESS [rising threateningly] Don't say that to me again, James Mavor Morell

MORELL [unmoved] I'll say it just as often as may be necessary to convince you that it's true I don't believe you

BURGESS [collapsing into an abyss of wounded

feeling] Oh, well, if you're determined to be unfriendly, I spose I'd better go [He moves reluctantly towards the door Morell makes no sign He lingers] I didn't expect to find a unforgivin spirit in you, James [Morell still not responding, he takes a few more reluctant steps doorwards Then he comes back, unhung]
We huseter git on well enough, spite of our different hopinions Woy are you so changed to me? I give you my word I come here in peeorr [pure] frenliness, not wishin to be hon-bad terms with my hown daught'r's usban Come, James be a Kerischin, and shake ands [He puts his hand sentimentally on Morell's shoulder]

MORELL [looking up at him thoughtfully] Look here, Burgess Do you want to be as welcome here as you were before you lost that contract?

BURGESS I do, James I do—honest

MORELL Then why don't you believe as you did then?

BURGESS [cautiously removing his hand] Ow d'y' mean?

MORELL I'll tell you You thought me a young fool then

BURGESS [coaxingly] No I didn't, James I—

MORELL [cutting him short] Yes, you did And I thought you an old scoundrel

BURGESS [most vehemently deprecating this gross self-accusation on Morell's part] No you didn't, James Now you do yourself a hin-justice

MORELL Yes I did Well, that did not prevent our getting on very well together God made you what I call a scoundrel as He made me what you call a fool [The effect of this observation on Burgess is to remove the keystone of his moral arch He becomes bodily weak, and, with his eyes fixed on Morell in a helpless stare, puts out his hand apprehensively to balance himself, as if the floor had suddenly sloped under him Morell proceeds, in the same tone of quiet conviction] It was not for me to quarrel with His handiwork in the one case more than in the other So long as you come here honestly as a self-respecting, thorough, convinced scoundrel, justifying your scoundrelism and proud of it, you are welcome But [and now Morell's tone becomes formidable, and he rises and strikes the back of the chair for greater emphasis] I won't have you here snivelling about being a model employer and a converted man when you're only an apostate with your coat turned for the sake of a County Council contract [He nods at him to enforce the point, then goes to the hearth-rug, where he takes up a comfortably commanding position with his back to the fire, and continues] No I like a man to be true to himself, even in wickedness. Come now either take your hat and go, or else sit down and give me a good soundrelly reason for wanting to be friends with me [Burgess, whose emotions have subsided sufficiently to be expressed by a dazed grin, is relieved by this concrete proposition. He ponders it for a moment, and then, slowly and very modestly, sits down in the chair Morell has just left] That's right. Now out with it.

BURGESS [chuckling in spite of himself] Well, you orr a queer bird, James, and no mistake. But [almost enthusiastically] one earnt elp likin you besides, as I said afore, of course one dont take hall a elorgyman says seriously, or the world couldnt go on. Could it now? [He composes himself for graver discourse, and, turning his eyes on Morell, proceeds with dull seriousness] Well, I dont mind tellin you, since it's your wish we should be free with one another, that I did think you a bit of a fool once, but I'm beginnin to think that praps I was be'ind the times a bit.

MORELL [exultant] Aha! You're finding that out at last, are you?

BURGESS [portentously] Yes times 'as changed mor'n I could a believed. Five yori [year] ago, no sensible man would a thought o takin hup with your ludears. I hused to wonder you was let preach at all. Why, I know a elorgyman what 'as bin kep hout of his job for yorrs by the Bishop o London, although the pore feller's not a bit more religious than you are. But today, if henny-one was to horffer to bet me a thousan poun that you'll hend by bein a bishop yourself, I dussent take the bet. [Very impressively] You and your crew are gittin influential. I can see that. They'll ave to give you somethink someday, if it's honly to stop your mouth. You'ad the right instine arter all, James. The line you took is the payin line in the long run for a man o your sort.

MORELL [offering his hand with thorough decision] Shake hands, Burgess. Now you're talking honestly. I dont think they'll make me a bishop, but if they do, I'll introduce you to the biggest jobbers. I can get to come to my dinner parties.

BURGESS [who has risen with a sheepish grin and accepted the hand of friendship] You will ave your joke, James. Our quarrel's made up now, ain it?

A WOMAN'S VOICE Say yes, James.

Startled, they turn quickly and find that Candida has just come in, and is looking at them with an amused maternal indulgence which is her characteristic expression. She is a woman of 33, well built, well nourished, likely, one guesses, to become matronly later on, but none quite at her best, with the double charm of youth and motherhood. Her ways are those of a woman who has found that she can always manage people by engaging their affection, and who does so frankly and instinctively without the smallest scruple. So far, she is like any other pretty woman who is just clever enough to make the most of her sexual attractions for trivially selfish ends, but Candida's serene brow, courageous eyes, and well set mouth and chin signify largeness of mind and dignity of character to ennoble her cunning in the affections. A wisehearted observer, looking at her, would at once guess that whoever had placed the Virgin of the Assumption over her hearth did so because he fancied some spiritual resemblance between them, and yet would not suspect either her husband or herself of any such idea, or indeed of any concern with the art of Titian.

Just now she is in bonnet and mantle, carrying a strapped rug with her umbrella stuck through it, a handbag, and a supply of illustrated papers.

MORELL [shocked at his remissness] Candida! Why— [he looks at his watch, and is horrified to find it so late] My darling! [Hurrying to her and seizing the rug strap, pouring forth his remorseful regrets all the time] I intended to meet you at the train. I let the time slip. [Flinging the rug on the sofa] I was so engrossed by— [returning to her]—I forgot—oh! [He embraces her with penitent emotion]

BURGESS [a little shamefaced and doubtful of his reception] How orr you, Candy? [She, still in Morell's arms, offers him her cheek, which he kisses] James and me is come to aunner-stannin. A honorable unnerstannin. Ain we, James?

MORELL [impetuously] Oh bother your understanding! you've kept me late for Candida. [With compassionate feror] My poor love how did you manage about the luggage? How—CANDIDA [stopping him and disengaging herself] There! there! there! I wasnt alone. Eugene has been down with us, and we travelled together.

MORELL [pleased] Eugene!

CANDIDA Yes he's struggling with my luggage, poor boy Go out, dear, at once, or he'll pay for the cab, and I dont want that [Morell hurries out Candida puts down her handbag, then takes off her mantle and bonnet and puts them on the sofa with the rug, chatting meanwhile] Well, papa how are you getting on at home?

BURGESS The ouse aint worth livin in since you left it, Candy I wish youd come round and give the gurl a talkin to Who's this Eugene thats come with you?

CANDIDA Oh, Eugene's one of James's discoveries He found him sleeping on the Embankment last June Havnt you noticed our new picture [pointing to the Virgin]? He gave us that

BURGESS [incredulously] Garn! D'you mean to tell me—your hown father!—that cab touts or such like, orf the Embankment, buys pictures like that? [Severely] Dont deceive me, Candy it's a 'Igh Church picture, and James chose it hisself

CANDIDA Guess again Eugene isnt a cab tout

BURGESS Then what is he? [Sarcastically] A nobleman, I spose

CANDIDA [nodding delightedly] Yes His uncle's a peer! A real live earl BURGESS [not daring to believe such good news] No!

CANDIDA Yes He had a seven day bill for £55 in his pocket when James found him on the Embankment He thought he couldnt get any money for it until the seven days were up, and he was too shy to ask for credit Oh, he's a dear boy! We are very fond of him

BURGESS [pretending to belittle the aristocracy, but with his eyes gleaming] Hm! I thort you wouldnt git a hearl's nevvv visitin in Victawriar Pawrk unless he were a bit of a flat [Looking again at the picture] Of course I dont old with that picture, Candy, but still it's a 'igh class fust rate work of ort I can see that Be sure you hintrodooce me to im, Candy [He looks at his watch anxiously] I can ony stay about two minutes

Morell comes back with Eugene, whom Burgess contemplates moist-eyed with enthusiasm He is a strange, shy youth of eighteen, slight, effeminate, with a delicate childish voice, and a hunted tormented expression and shrinking manner that shew the painful sensitiveness of very swift and acute apprehensiveness in youth, before the character has grown to its full strength Miserably irresolute, he does not know where to stand or what to do He is afraid of Burgess, and would run away into solitude if he dared, but the very intensity with which he feels a perfectly commonplace position comes from excessive nervous force, and his nostrils, mouth, and eyes betray a fiercely petulant wilfulness, as to the bent of which his brow, already lined with pity, is reassuring He is so uncommon as to be almost unearthly, and to prosaic people there is something noxious in this unearthliness, just as to poetic people there is something angelic in it His dress is anarchic He wears an old blue serge jacket, unbuttoned, over a noollen lann tennis shirt, with a silk handkerchief for a cravat, trousers matching the jacket, and brown canvas shoes In these garments he has apparently lain in the heather and waded through the naters, and there is no evidence of his having ever brushed them

As he catches sight of a stranger on entering, he stops, and edges along the wall on the opposite side of the room

MORELL [as he enters] Come along you can spare us quarter of an hour at all events This is my father-in-law Mr Burgess—Mr Marchbanks

MARCHBANKS [nervously backing against the bookcase] Glad to meet you, sir

BURGESS [crossing to him with great heartiness, whilst Morell joins Candida at the fire] Glad to meet you, I'm shore, Mr Morchbanks [Forcing him to shake hands] Ow do you find yoreself this weather? Ope you aint lettin James put no foolish ideas into your ed?

MARCHBANKS Foolish ideas? Oh, you mean Socialism? No

BURGESS Thats right [Again looking at his watch] Well, I must go now theres no elp for it Yore not comin my way, orr you, Mr Morchbanks?

MARCHBANKS Which way is that?

BURGESS Victawriar Pawrk Station Theres a city train at 12 25

MORELL Nonsense Eugene will stay to lunch with us, I expect

MARCHBANKS [anxiously excusing himself] No—I—I—

BURGESS Well, well, I shornt press you I bet youd rather lunch with Candy Some night, I ope, youll come and dine with me at my club, the Freeman Founders in Nortn Folgit Come say you will!

MARCHBANKS Thank you, Mr Burgess Where is Norton Folgate? Down in Surrey, isnt it?

Burgess, inexpressibly tickled, begins to splutter with laughter

CANDIDA [coming to the rescue] You'll lose your train, papa, if you don't go at once. Come back in the afternoon and tell Mr Marchbanks where to find the club.

BURGESS [roaring with glee] Down in Surrey! Har, har! that's not a bad one. Well, I never met a man as didn't know Norton Folgate afore [Abashed at his own noisiness] Goodbye, Mr Marchbanks. I know you're too highbred to take my pleasantry in bad part [He again offers his hand].

MARCHBANKS [taking it with a nervous jerk] Not at all.

BURGESS Bye, bye, Candy. I'll look in again later on. So long, James.

MORELL Must you go?

BURGESS Don't stir [He goes out with unabated heartiness].

MORELL Oh, I'll see you off [He follows him]. Eugene stares after them apprehensively, holding his breath until Burgess disappears.

CANDIDA [laughing] Well, Eugene? [He turns with a start, and comes eagerly towards her, but stops irresolutely as he meets her amused look] What do you think of my father?

MARCHBANKS I—I hardly know him yet. He seems to be a very nice old gentleman.

CANDIDA [with gentle irony] And you'll go to the Freeman Founders to dine with him, won't you?

MARCHBANKS [miserably, taking it quite seriously] Yes, if it will please you.

CANDIDA [touched] Do you know, you are a very nice boy, Eugene, with all your queer-ness. If you had laughed at my father I shouldn't have minded, but I like you ever so much better for being nice to him.

MARCHBANKS Ought I to have laughed? I noticed that he said something funny, but I am so ill at ease with strangers, and I never can see a joke. I'm very sorry [He sits down on the sofa, his elbows on his knees and his temples between his fists, with an expression of hopeless suffering].

CANDIDA [bustling him goodnaturedly] Oh come! You great baby, you! You are worse than usual this morning. Why were you so melancholy as we came along in the cab?

MARCHBANKS Oh, that was nothing. I was wondering how much I ought to give the cabman. I know it's utterly silly, but you don't know how dreadful such things are to me—how I shrink from having to deal with strange people [Quickly and reassuringly]. But it's all right. He beamed all over and touched his hat when Morell gave him two shillings. I was on the point of offering him ten.

Morell comes back with a few letters and newspapers which have come by the midday post.

CANDIDA Oh, James dear, he was going to give the cabman ten shillings! ten shillings for a three minutes drive! Oh dear!

MORELL [at the table, glancing through the letters] Never mind her, Marchbanks. The overpaying instinct is a generous one, better than the underpaying instinct, and not so common.

MARCHBANKS [relapsing into dejection] No cowardice, incompetence. Mrs Morell's quite right.

CANDIDA Of course she is [She takes up her hand-bag]. And now I must leave you to James for the present. I suppose you are too much of a poet to know the state a woman finds her house in when she's been away for three weeks. Give me my rug [Eugene takes the strapped rug from the couch, and gives it to her. She takes it in her left hand, having the bag in her right]. Now hang my cloak across my arm [He obeys]. Now my hat [He puts it into the hand which has the bag]. Now open the door for me [He hurries before her and opens the door]. Thanks [She goes out, and Marchbanks shuts the door].

MORELL [still busy at the table] You'll stay to lunch, Marchbanks, of course.

MARCHBANKS [scared] I mustn't [He glances quickly at Morell, but at once avoids his frank look, and adds, with obvious dissingenuousness] I mean I can't.

MORELL You mean you won't.

MARCHBANKS [earnestly] No. I should like to, indeed. Thank you very much. But—but—

MORELL But—but—but—but—Bosh! If you'd like to stay, stay. If you're shy, go and take a turn in the park and write poetry until half past one, and then come in and have a good feed.

MARCHBANKS Thank you, I should like that very much. But I really mustn't. The truth is, Mrs Morell told me not to. She said she didn't think you'd ask me to stay to lunch, but that I was to remember if you did, that you didn't really want me to [Plaintively]. She said I'd understand, but I don't. Please don't tell her I told you.

MORELL [drolly] Oh, is that all? Won't my suggestion that you should take a turn in the park meet the difficulty?

MARCHBANKS How?

MORELL [exploding good-humoredly] Why, you duffer— [But this boisterousness jars himself as well as Eugene He checks himself] No I wont put it in that way [He comes to Eugene with affectionate seriousness] My dear lad in a happy marriage like ours, there is something very sacred in the return of the wife to her home [Marchbanks looks quickly at him, half anticipating his meaning] An old friend or a truly noble and sympathetic soul is not in the way on such occasions, but a chance visitor is [The hunted horror-stricken expression comes out with sudden vividness in Eugene's face as he understands Morell, occupied with his own thoughts, goes on without noticing this] Candida thought I would rather not have you here, but she was wrong I'm very fond of you, my boy, and I should like you to see for yourself what a happy thing it is to be married as I am MARCHBANKS Happy! Your marriage! You think that! You believe that!

MORELL [buoyantly] I know it, my lad Larochevoucauld said that there are convenient marriages but no delightful ones You dont know the comfort of seeing through and through a thundering liar and rotten cynic like that fellow Ha! ha! Now, off with you to the park, and write your poem Half past one, sharp, mind we never wait for anybody

MARCHBANKS [mildly] No stop you shant I'll force it into the light

MORELL [puzzled] Eh? Force what?

MARCHBANKS I must speak to you There is something that must be settled between us

MORELL [with a whimsical glance at his watch] Now?

MARCHBANKS [passionately] Now Before you leave this room [He retreats a few steps, and stands as if to bar Morell's way to the door]

MORELL [without moving, and gravely, perceiving now that there is something serious the matter] I'm not going to leave it, my dear boy I thought you were [Eugene, baffled by his firm tone, turns his back on him, writhing with anger Morell goes to him and puts his hand on his shoulder strongly and kindly, disregarding his attempt to shake it off] Come sit down quietly, and tell me what it is And remember we are friends, and need not fear that either of us will be anything but patient and kind to the other, whatever we may have to say

MARCHBANKS [twisting himself round on him] Oh, I am not forgetting myself I am only [covering his face desperately with his hands] full of horror [Then, dropping his hands, and thrusting his face forward fiercely at Morell, he goes on threateningly] You shall see whether this is a time for patience and kindness [Morell, firm as a rock, looks indulgently at him] Dont look at me in that self-complacent way You think yourself stronger than I am, but I shall stagger you if you have a heart in your breast

MORELL [powerfully confident] Stagger me, my boy Out with it

MARCHBANKS First—

MORELL First?

MARCHBANKS I love your wife

Morell recoils, and, after staring at him for a moment in utter amazement, bursts into uncontrollable laughter Eugene is taken aback, but not disconcerted, and he soon becomes indignant and contemptuous

MORELL [sitting down to have his laugh out] Why, my dear child, of course you do Everybody loves her they cant help it I like it But [looking up jocosely at him] I say, Eugene do you think yours is a case to be talked about? Youre under twenty she's over thirty Doesnt it look rather too like a case of calf love?

MARCHBANKS [vehemently] You dare say that of her! You think that way of the love she inspires! It is an insult to her!

MORELL [rising quickly, in an altered tone] To her! Eugene take care I have been patient I hope to remain patient But there are some things I wont allow Dont force me to shew you the indulgence I should shew to a child Be a man

MARCHBANKS [with a gesture as if sweeping something behind him] Oh, let us put aside all that cant It horrifies me when I think of the doses of it she has had to endure in all the weary years during which you have selfishly and blindly sacrificed her to minister to your self-sufficiency you! [turning on him] who have not one thought—one sense—in common with her

MORELL [philosophically] She seems to bear it pretty well [Looking him straight in the face] Eugene, my boy you are making a fool of yourself a very great fool of yourself Theres a piece of wholesome plain speaking for you [He knocks in the lesson with a nod in his old way, and posts himself on the hearth-rug, holding his hands behind him to warm them]

MARCHBANKS Oh, do you think I don't know all that? Do you think that the things people make fools of themselves about are any less real and true than the things they behave sensibly about? [Morell's gaze wavers for the first time. He forgets to warm his hands, and stands listening, startled and thoughtful] They are more true—they are the only things that are true. You are very calm and sensible and moderate with me because you can see that I am a fool about your wife, just as no doubt that old man who was here just now is very wise over your Socialism, because he sees that you are a fool about it. [Morell's perplexity deepens markedly. Eugene follows up his advantage, plying him fiercely with questions] Does that prove you wrong? Does your complacent superiority to me prove that I am wrong?

MORELL Marchbanks some devil is putting these words into your mouth. It is easy—terribly easy—to shake a man's faith in himself. To take advantage of that to break a man's spirit is devil's work. Take care of what you are doing. Take care.

MARCHBANKS [ruthlessly] I know. I'm doing it on purpose. I told you I should stagger you. They confront one another threateningly for a moment. Then Morell recovers his dignity.

MORELL [with noble tenderness] Eugene listen to me. Some day, I hope and trust, you will be a happy man like me. [Eugene chafes intolerantly, repudiating the north of his happiness. Morell, deeply insulted, controls himself with fine forbearance, and continues steadily, with great artistic beauty of delivery] You will be married, and you will be working with all your might and valor to make every spot on earth as happy as your own home. You will be one of the makers of the Kingdom of Heaven on earth, and—who knows?—you may be a master builder where I am only a humble journeyman, for don't think, my boy, that I cannot see in you, young as you are, promise of higher powers than I can ever pretend to. I well know that it is in the poet that the holy spirit of man—the god within him—is most godlike. It should make you tremble to think of that—to think that the heavy burthen and great gift of a poet may be laid upon you.

MARCHBANKS [unimpressed and remorseless, his boyish crudity of assertion telling sharply against Morell's oratory] It does not make me tremble. It is the want of it in others that makes me tremble.

MORELL [redoubling his force of style under the stimulus of his genuine feeling and Eugene's obduracy] Then help to kindle it in them—in me—not to extinguish it. In the future, when you are as happy as I am, I will be your true brother in the faith. I will help you to believe that God has given us a world that nothing but our own folly keeps from being a paradise. I will help you to believe that every stroke of your work is sowing happiness for the great harvest that all—even the humblest—shall one day reap. And last, but trust me, not least, I will help you to believe that your wife loves you and is happy in her home. We need such help, Marchbanks—we need it greatly and always. There are so many things to make us doubt, if once we let our understanding be troubled. Even at home, we sit as if in camp, encompassed by a hostile army of doubts. Will you play the traitor and let them in on me?

MARCHBANKS [looking round nildly] Is it like this for her here always? A woman, with a great soul, craving for reality, truth, freedom, and being fed on metaphors, sermons, stale perorations, mere rhetoric. Do you think a woman's soul can live on your talent for preaching?

MORELL [stung] Marchbanks you make it hard for me to control myself. My talent is like yours insofar as it has any real worth at all. It is the gift of finding words for divine truth.

MARCHBANKS [impetuously] It's the gift of the gab, nothing more and nothing less. What has your knack of fine talking to do with the truth, any more than playing the organ has? I've never been in your church, but I've been to your political meetings, and I've seen you do what's called rousing the meeting to enthusiasm—that is, you excited them until they behaved exactly as if they were drunk. And their wives looked on and saw what fools they were. Oh, it's an old story. You'll find it in the Bible. I imagine King David, in his fits of enthusiasm, was very like you. [Stabbing him with the words] "But his wife despised him in her heart."

MORELL [wrathfully] Leave my house. Do you hear? [He advances on him threateningly]

MARCHBANKS [shrinking back against the couch] Let me alone Dont touch me [Morell grasps him powerfully by the lappell of his coat he covers down on the sofa and screams passionately] Stop, Morell if you strike me, I'll kill myself I wont bear it [Almost in hysterics] Let me go Take your hand away

MORELL [with slow emphatic scorn] You little snivelling cowardly whelp [He releases him] Go, before you frighten yourself into a fit

MARCHBANKS [on the sofa, gasping, but relieved by the withdrawal of Morell's hand] I'm not afraid of you it's you who are afraid of me

MORELL [quietly, as he stands over him] It looks like it, doesnt it?

MARCHBANKS [with petulant vehemence] Yes, it does [Morell turns away contemptuously Eugene scrambles to his feet and follows him] You think because I shrink from being brutally handled—because [with tears in his voice] I can do nothing but cry with rage when I am met with violence—because I cant lift a heavy trunk down from the top of a cab like you—because I cant fight you for your wife as a drunken navvy would all that makes you think I'm afraid of you But youre wrong If I havnt got what you call British pluck, I havnt British cowardice either I'm not afraid of a clergyman's ideas I'll fight your ideas I'll rescue her from her slavery to them I'll pit my own ideas against them You are driving me out of the house because you darent let her choose between your ideas and mine You are afraid to let me see her again [Morell, angered, turns suddenly on him He flies to the door in involuntary dread] Let me alone, I say I'm going

MORELL [with cold scorn] Wait a moment I am not going to touch you dont be afraid When my wife comes back she will want to know why you have gone And when she finds that you are never going to cross our threshold again, she will want to have that explained too Now I dont wish to distress her by telling her that you have behaved like a blackguard

MARCHBANKS [coming back with renewed vehemence] You shall You must If you give any explanation but the true one, you are a liar and a coward Tell her what I said, and how you were strong and manly, and shook me as a terrier shakes a rat, and how I shrank and was terrified, and how you called me a snivelling little whelp and put me out of the house If you dont tell her, I will I'll write it to her MORELL [puzzled] Why do you want her to know this?

MARCHBANKS [with lyric rapture] Because she will understand me, and know that I understand her If you keep back one word of it from her—if you are not ready to lay the truth at her feet as I am—then you will know to the end of your days that she really belongs to me and not to you Goodbye [Going]

MORELL [terribly disquieted] Stop I will not tell her

MARCHBANKS [turning near the door] Either the truth or a lie you must tell her, if I go

MORELL [temporizing] Marchbanks it is sometimes justifiable—

MARCHBANKS [cutting him short] I know to lie It will be useless Goodbye, Mr Clergyman

As he turns finally to the door, it opens and Candida enters in her housekeeping dress

CANDIDA Are you going, Eugene? [Looking more observantly at him] Well, dear me, just look at you, going out into the street in that state! You are a poet, certainly Look at him, James! [She takes him by the coat, and brings him forward, shoving him to Morell] Look at his collar! look at his tie! look at his hair! One would think somebody had been throttling you [Eugene instinctively tries to look round at Morell, but she pulls him back] Here! Stand still [She buttons his collar, ties his neckerchief in a bow, and arranges his hair] There! Now you look so nice that I think youd better stay to lunch after all, though I told you you mustnt It will be ready in half an hour [She puts a final touch to the bow He kisses her hand] Dont be silly

MARCHBANKS I want to stay, of course, unless the reverend gentleman your husband has anything to advance to the contrary

CANDIDA Shall he stay, James, if he promises to be a good boy and help me to lay the table?

MORELL [shortly] Oh yes, certainly he had better [He goes to the table and pretends to busy himself with his papers there]

MARCHBANKS [offering his arm to Candida] Come and lay the table [She takes it They go to the door together As they pass out he adds] I am the happiest of mortals

MORELL So was I—an hour ago

ACT II

The same day later in the afternoon The same room The chair for visitors has been replaced at the table Marchbanks, alone and idle, is trying to find out how the typewriter works Hearing someone at the door, he steals guiltily away to the window and pretends to be absorbed in the view Miss Garnett, carrying the notebook in which she takes down Morell's letters in shorthand from his dictation, sits down at the typewriter and sets to work transcribing them, much too busy to notice Eugene When she begins the second line she stops and stares at the machine Something wrong evidently

PROSERPINE Bother! You've been meddling with my typewriter, Mr Marchbanks, and there's not the least use in your trying to look as if you hadn't

MARCHBANKS [timidly] I'm very sorry, Miss Garnett I only tried to make it write [Plaintively] But it wouldn't

PROSERPINE Well, you've altered the spacing

MARCHBANKS [earnestly] I assure you I didn't I didn't indeed I only turned a little wheel It gave a sort of click PROSERPINE Oh, now I understand [She restores the spacing, talking volubly all the time] I suppose you thought it was a sort of barrel-organ Nothing to do but turn the handle, and it would write a beautiful love letter for you straight off, eh?

MARCHBANKS [seriously] I suppose a machine could be made to write love letters They're all the same, aren't they?

PROSERPINE [somewhat indignantly any such discussion, except by way of pleasantry, being outside her code of manners] How do I know? Why do you ask me?

MARCHBANKS I beg your pardon I thought clever people—people who can do business and write letters and that sort of thing—always had to have love affairs to keep them from going mad

PROSERPINE [rising, outraged] Mr Marchbanks! [She looks severely at him, and marches majestically to the bookcase]

MARCHBANKS [approaching her humbly] I hope I haven't offended you Perhaps I shouldn't have alluded to your love affairs

PROSERPINE [plucking a blue book from the shelf and turning sharply on him] I haven't any love affairs How dare you say such a thing? The idea! [She tucks the book under her arm, and is slouching back to her machine when he addresses her with awed interest and sympathy]

MARCHBANKS Really! Oh, then you are shy, like me

PROSERPINE Certainly I am not shy What do you mean?

MARCHBANKS [secretly] You must be that is the reason there are so few love affairs in the world We all go about longing for love it is the first need of our natures, the first prayer of our hearts, but we dare not utter our longing we are too shy [Very earnestly] Oh, Miss Garnett, what would you not give to be without fear, without shame—

PROSERPINE [scandalized] Well, upon my word!

MARCHBANKS [with petulant impatience] Ah, don't say those stupid things to me they don't deceive me what use are they? Why are you afraid to be your real self with me? I am just like you

PROSERPINE Like me! Pray are you flattering me or flattering yourself? I don't feel quite sure which [She again tries to get back to her work]

MARCHBANKS [stopping her mysteriously] Hush! I go about in search of love, and I find it in unmeasured stores in the bosoms of others But when I try to ask for it, this horrible shyness strangles me and I stand dumb, or worse than dumb, saying meaningless things foolish lies And I see the affection I am longing for given to dogs and cats and pet birds, because they come and ask for it [Almost whispering] It must be asked for it is like a ghost it cannot speak unless it is first spoken to [At his usual pitch, but with deep melancholy] All the love in the world is longing to speak, only it dare not, because it is shy! shy! shy! That is the world's tragedy [With a deep sigh he sits in the visitor's chair and buries his face in his hands]

PROSERPINE [amazed, but keeping her wits about her her point of honor in encounters with strange young men] Wicked people get over that shyness occasionally, don't they?

MARCHBANKS [scrambling up almost fiercely] Wicked people means people who have no love therefore they have no shame They have the power to ask love because they don't need it they have the power to offer it because they have none to give [He collapses into his seat, and adds, mournfully] But we, who have love, and long to mingle it with the love of others we cannot utter a word [Timidly] You find that, dont you?

PROSERPINE Look here if you dont stop talking like this, I'll leave the room Mr Marchbanks I really will It's not proper

She resumes her seat at the typewriter, opening the blue book and preparing to copy a passage from it

MARCHBANKS [hopelessly] Nothing thats worth saying is proper [He rises, and wanders about the room in his lost way] I cant understand you, Miss Garnett What am I to talk about?

PROSERPINE [snubbing him] Talk about in-different things Talk about the weather

MARCHBANKS Would you talk about in-different things if a child were by, crying bitterly with hunger?

PROSERPINE I suppose not

MARCHBANKS Well I cant talk about in-different things with my heart crying out bitterly in its hunger

PROSERPINE Then hold your tongue

MARCHBANKS Yes that is what it always comes to We hold our tongues Does that stop the cry of your heart? for it does cry doesnt it? It must, if you have a heart.

PROSERPINE [suddenly rising with her hand pressed on her heart] Oh, it's no use trying to work while you talk like that. [She leaves her little table and sits on the sofa Her feelings are keenly stirred] It's no business of yours whether my heart cries or not, but I have a mind to tell you for all that.

MARCHBANKS You neednt. I know already that it must.

PROSERPINE But mind! if you ever say I said so, I'll deny it.

MARCHBANKS [compassionately] Yes I know And so you havnt the courage to tell him?

PROSERPINE [bouncing up] Him! Who?

MARCHBANKS Whoever he is The man you love It might be anybody The curate, Mr Mill, perhaps

PROSERPINE [with disdain] Mr Mill! A fine man to break my heart about, indeed! I'd rather have you than Mr Mill

MARCHBANKS [recoiling] No really I'm very sorry; but you musnt think of that. I—

PROSERPINE [testily going to the fireplace and staring at it with her back to him] Oh dont be frightened it's not you It's not any one particular person

MARCHBANKS I know You feel that you could love anybody that offered—

PROSERPINE [turning, exasperated] Anybody that offered! No I do not What do you take me for?

MARCHBANKS [discouraged] No use You wont make me real answers only those things that everybody says [He strays to the sofa and sits down disconsolately]

PROSERPINE [nettled at what she takes to be a disparagement of her manners by an aristocrat] Oh well, if you want original conversation, youd better go and talk to yourself

MARCHBANKS That is what all poets do they talk to themselves out loud, and the world overhears them But it's horribly lonely not to hear someone else talk sometimes

PROSERPINE Wait until Mr Morell comes He'll talk to you [Marchbanks shudders] Oh, you neednt make wry faces over him he can talk better than you [With temper] He'd talk your little head off [She is going back angrily to her place, when he, suddenly enlightened, springs up and stops her]

MARCHBANKS Ah! I understand now

PROSERPINE [reddening] What do you understand?

MARCHBANKS Your secret Tell me is it really and truly possible for a woman to love him?

PROSERPINE [as if this were beyond all bounds] Well!

MARCHBANKS [passionately] No answer me I want to know I must know I cant understand it I can see nothing in him but words, pious resolutions, what people call goodness You cant love that.

PROSERPINE [attempting to snub him by an air of cool propriety] I simply dont know what youre talking about I dont understand you

MARCHBANKS [vehemently] You do You lie

PROSERPINE Oh!

MARCHBANKS You do understand, and you know [Determined to have an answer] Is it possible for a woman to love him?

PROSERPINE [looking him straight in the face] Yes [He covers his face with his hands] Whatever is the matter with you! [He takes down his hands Frightened at the tragic mask presented to her she hurries past him at the utmost possible distance keeping her eyes on his face until he turns from her and goes to the child's chair beside the hearth, where he sits in the deepest dejection As she approaches the door, it opens and Burgess enters Seeing him, she ejaculates] Praise heaven! here's somebody [and feels safe enough to resume her place at her table] She puts a fresh sheet of paper into the typewriter as Burgess crosses to Eugene

BURGESS [bent on taking care of the distinguished visitor] Well so this is the way they leave you to yourself, Mr Morebanks. I come to keep you company [Marchbanks looks up at him in consternation, which is quite lost on him] James is receiving a deputation in the dining room, and Candy is upstairs educating of a young stitcher girl she's interested in [Condolingly] You must find it lonesome here with no one but the typist to talk to [He pulls round the easy chair, and sits down]

PROSERPINE [highly incensed] He'll be all right now that he has the advantage of your polished conversation that's one comfort, anyhow [She begins to typewrite with clattering asperity]

BURGESS [amazed at her audacity] He was not addressin' myself to you, young woman, that I'm awerr of PROSERPINE Did you ever see worse manners, Mr Marchbanks?

BURGESS [with pompous severity] Mr Morebanks is a gentleman, and knows his place, which is more than some people do

PROSERPINE [freely] It's well you and I are not ladies and gentlemen I'd talk to you pretty straight if Mr Marchbanks wasn't here [She pulls the letter out of the machine so crossly that it tears] There! now I've spoiled this letter! have to be done all over again!

BURGESS [rising, breathless with indignation] Oh, I can't contain myself silly old fathead! Ho! I'm a silly ole fathead, am I? Ho, indeed [gasping] Hall right, my girl! Hall right You just wait til I tell that to your employer You'll see I'll teach you see if I don't

PROSERPINE [conscious of having gone too far] I—

BURGESS [cutting her short] No you've done it now No huse a-talkin' to me I'll let you know who I am [Proserpine shifts her paper carriage with a defiant bang, and disdainfully goes on with her work] Don't you take no notice of her, Mr Morebanks She's beneath it [He lofly sits down again]

MARCHBANKS [miserably nervous and disconcerted] Hadn't we better change the subject? I—I don't think Miss Garnett meant anything

PROSERPINE [with intense conviction] Oh, didn't I though, just!

BURGESS I wouldn't demean myself to take notice on her

An electric bell rings twice
PROSERPINE [gathering up her notebook and papers] That's for me [She hurries out]

BURGESS [calling after her] Oh, we can spare you [Somewhat relieved by the triumph of having the last word, and yet half inclined to try to improve on it, he looks after her for a moment, then subsides into his seat by Eugene, and addresses him very confidentially] Now we're alone, Mr Morebanks, let me give you a friendly hint that I wouldn't give to everybody Ow long ave you known my son-in-law James ere?

MARCHBANKS I don't know I never can remember dates A few months, perhaps

BURGESS Ever notice hennythink queer about him?

MARCHBANKS I don't think so
BURGESS [impressively] No more you wouldn't That's the danger on it Well, he's mad

MARCHBANKS Mad!
BURGESS Mad as a Moreb! are You take notice on him and you'll see

MARCHBANKS [uneasily] But surely that is only because his opinions—

BURGESS [touching him on the knee with his forefinger, and pressing it to hold his attention] That's the same what I hused to think, Mr Morebanks He thought long enough that it was only his opinions, though, mind you, hopinions becomes hurry serious things when people takes to hactin' on em as e does But that's not what I go on [He looks round to make sure that they are alone, and bends over to Eugene's ear] What do you think he sez to me this mornin' in this very room?

MARCHBANKS What?
BURGESS He sez to me—this is as sure as we're settin' here now—he sez "I'm a fool," he sez, "and yore a scoundrel!" Me a scoundrel, mind you! And then shook hands with me on it, as if it was to my credit! Do you mean to tell me as that man's sane?

MORELL [outside, calling to Proserpine as he opens the door] Get all their names and addresses, Miss Garnett

PROSERPINE [in the distance] Yes, Mr Morell
Morell comes in, with the deputation's documents in his hands

BURGESS [aside to Marchbanks] Yorr he is Just you keep your heye on im and see [Rising momentarily] I'm sorry, James, to have to make a complaint to you I don't want to do it, but I feel I oughter, as a matter o' right and dooty

MORELL What's the matter?

BURGESS Mr Morchbanks will bear me hout he was a witness [Very solemnly] Yore young woman so far forgot herself as to call me a silly ole fat'ead MORELL [with tremendous heartiness] Oh, now isn't that exactly like Prossy? She's so frank she can't contain herself! Poor Prossy! Ha! ha!

BURGESS [trembling with rage] And do you expect me to put up with it from the like of er?

MORELL Pooh, nonsense! you can't take any notice of it. Never mind [He goes to the cellaret and puts the papers into one of the drawers]

BURGESS Oh, Hi don't mind. Hi'm above it. But is it right? that's what I want to know. Is it right?

MORELL That's a question for the Church, not for the laity. Has it done you any harm? that's the question for you, eh? Of course it hasn't. Think no more of it [He dismisses the subject by going to his place at the table and setting to work at his correspondence]

BURGESS [aside to Marchbanks] What did I tell you? Mad as aatter [He goes to the table and asks, with the sickly civility of a hungry man] When's dinner, James?

MORELL Not for a couple of hours yet.

BURGESS [with plaintive resignation] Gimme a nice book to read over the fire, will you, James. Thur's a good chap.

MORELL What sort of book? A good one?

BURGESS [with almost a yell of remonstrance] Nah-oo! Summat pleasant, just to pass the time [Morell takes an illustrated paper from the table and offers it. He accepts it humbly] Thank yer, James [He goes back to the big chair at the fire, and sits there at his ease, reading]

MORELL [as he writes] Candida will come to entertain you presently. She has got rid of her pupil. She is filling the lamps.

MARCHBANKS [starting up in the wildest consternation] But that will soil her hands. I can't bear that, Morell. It's a shame. I'll go and fill them [He makes for the door]

MORELL You'd better not [Marchbanks stops irresolutely] She'd only set you to clean my boots, to save me the trouble of doing it myself in the morning.

BURGESS [with grave disapproval] Don't you keep a servant now, James?

MORELL Yes, but she isn't a slave, and the house looks as if I kept three. That means that everyone has to lend a hand. It's not a bad plan. Prossy and I can talk business after breakfast while we're washing up. Washing up's no trouble when there are two people to do it.

MARCHBANKS [tormentedly] Do you think every woman is as coarsegrained as Miss Garnett?

BURGESS [emphatically] That's quite right, Mr Morchbanks. That's quite right. She is coarsegrained.

MORELL [quietly and significantly] Marchbanks!

MARCHBANKS Yes?

MORELL How many servants does your father keep?

MARCHBANKS [pettishly] Oh, I don't know [He moves to the sofa, as if to get as far as possible from Morell's questioning, and sits down in great agony of spirit, thinking of the paraffin]

MORELL [very gravely] So many that you don't know! [More aggressively] When there's anything coarsegrained to be done, you just ring the bell and throw it on to somebody else, eh?

MARCHBANKS Oh, don't torture me. You don't even ring the bell. But your wife's beautiful fingers are dabbling in paraffin oil while you sit here comfortably preaching about it. everlasting preaching! preaching! words! words! words!

BURGESS [intensely appreciating this retort] Har, har! Devil a better! [Radiantly] Ad you there, James, straight.

Candida comes in, well aproned, with a reading lamp trimmed, filled, and ready for lighting. She places it on the table near Morell, ready for use.

CANDIDA [brushing her finger tips together with a slight twitch of her nose] If you stay with us, Eugene, I think I will hand over the lamps to you.

MARCHBANKS I will stay on condition that you hand over all the rough work to me.

CANDIDA That's very gallant, but I think I should like to see how you do it first [Turning to Morell] James, you've not been looking after the house properly.

MORELL What have I done—or not done—my love?

CANDIDA [with serious vexation] My own particular pet scrubbing brush has been used for blackleading [A heart-breaking wail bursts from Marchbanks Burgess looks round, amazed Candida hurries to the sofa] Whats the matter? Are you ill, Eugene?

MARCHBANKS No not ill Only horror! horror! horror! [He bows his head on his hands]

BURGESS [shocked] What! Got the orrors, Mr Morehbanks! Oh, thats bad, at your age You must leave it off grajally

CANDIDA [reassured] Nonsense, papa! It's only poetic horror, isnt it, Eugene [petting him]

BURGESS [abashed] Oh, poetic orror, is it? I beg your pordon, I'm shore [He turns to the fire again, deprecating his hasty conclusion]

CANDIDA What is it, Eugene? the scrubbing brush? [He shudders] Well, there! never mind [She sits down beside him] Wouldnt you like to present me with a nice new one, with an ivory back inlaid with mother-of-pearl?

MARCHBANKS [softly and musically, but sadly and longingly] No, not a scrubbing brush, but a boat a tiny shallop to sail away in, far from the world, where the marble floors are washed by the rain and dried by the sun, where the south wind dusts the beautiful green and purple carpets Or a chariot! to carry us up into the sky, where the lamps are stars, and dont need to be filled with paraffin oil every day

MORELL [harshly] And where there is nothing to do but to be idle, selfish, and useless

CANDIDA [jarred] Oh, James! how could you spoil it all?

MARCHBANKS [firing up] Yes, to be idle, selfish, and useless that is, to be beautiful and free and happy hasnt every man desired that with all his soul for the woman he loves? Thats my ideal whats yours, and that of all the dreadful people who live in these hideous rows of houses? Sermons and scrubbing brushes! With you to preach the sermon and your wife to scrub

CANDIDA [quickly] He cleans the boots, Eugene You will have to clean them tomorrow for saying that about him

MARCHBANKS Oh, dont talk about boots! Your feet should be beautiful on the mountains

CANDIDA My feet would not be beautiful on the Hackney Road without boots

BURGESS [seandalized] Come, Candy! dont be vulgar Mr Morehbanks aint accustomed to it Youre givin him the orrors again I mean the poetic ones

Morell is silent Apparently he is busy with his letters really he is puzzling with misgiving over his new and alarming experience that the surer he is of his moral thrusts, the more swiftly and effectively Eugene parries them To find himself beginning to fear a man whom he does not respect afflicts him bitterly

Miss Garnett comes in with a telegram

PROSERPINE [handing the telegram to Morell] Reply paid The boy's waiting [To Candida, coming back to her machine and sitting down] Maria is ready for you now in the kitchen, Mrs Morell [Candida rises] The onions have come MARCHBANKS [convulsively] Onions!

CANDIDA Yes, onions Not even Spanish ones nasty little red onions You shall help me to slice them Come along

She catches him by the wrist and runs out, pulling him after her Burgess rises in consternation, and stands aghast on the hearth-rug, staring after them

BURGESS Candy didnt oughter andle a hearl's nevvv like that It's goin too fur with it Lookee ere, James do e often git taken queer like that?

MORELL [shortly, writing a telegram] I dont know

BURGESS [sentimentally] He talks verry pretty I awlus had a turn for a bit of poetry Candy takes arter me that-a-way Huseter make me tell er fairy stories when she was ony a little biddy that igh [indicating a stature of two feet or thereabouts]

MORELL [preoccupied] Ah, indeed [He blots the telegram and goes out]

PROSERPINE Used you to make the fairy stories up out of your own head?

Burgess, not deigning to reply, strikes an attitude of the haughtiest disdain on the hearth-rug

PROSERPINE [calmly] I should never have supposed you had it in you By the way, I'd better warn you, since youve taken such a fancy to Mr Marchbanks He's mad

BURGESS Mad! What! Im too!

PROSERPINE Mad as a March hare He did frighten me, I can tell you, just before you came in that time Havent you noticed the queer things he says?

BURGESS So thats what the poetic orrors means Blame me if it didnt come into my ed once or twyst that he was a bit horff is chump! [He crosses the room to the door, lifting up his voice as he goes] Well, this is a pretty sort of asylum for a man to be in, with no one but you to take care of him!

PROSERPINE [as he passes her] Yes, what a dreadful thing it would be if anything happened to you!

BURGESS [loftily] Don't you address no remarks to me! Tell your employer that I've gone into the garden for a smoke.

PROSERPINE [mocking] Oh!

Before Burgess can retort, Morell comes back.

BURGESS [sentimentally] Goin' for a turn in the garden to smoke, James.

MORELL [brusquely] Oh, all right, all right [Burgess goes out pathetically in the character of a weary old man. Morell stands at the table, turning over his papers, and adding, across to Proserpine, half humorously, half absently] Well, Miss Prossy, why have you been calling my father-in-law names?

PROSERPINE [blushing fiery red, and looking quickly up at him, half scared, half reproachful] I— [She bursts into tears]

MORELL [with tender gaiety, leaning across the table towards her, and consoling her] Oh, come! come! come! Never mind, Prossy, he is a silly old fathead, isn't he?

With an explosive sob, she makes a dash at the door, and vanishes, banging it. Morell, shaking his head resignedly, sighs, and goes wearily to his chair, where he sits down and sets to work, looking old and careworn.

Candida comes in. She has finished her household work and taken off the apron. She at once notices his dejected appearance, and posts herself quietly at the visitors' chair, looking down at him attentively. She says nothing.

MORELL [looking up, but with his pen raised ready to resume his work] Well? Where is Eugene?

CANDIDA Washing his hands in the scullery under the tap. He will make an excellent cook if he can only get over his dread of Maria.

MORELL [shortly] Ha! No doubt [He begins writing again].

CANDIDA [going nearer, and putting her hand down softly on his to stop him as she says] Come here, dear. Let me look at you [He drops his pen and yields himself to her disposal. She makes him rise, and brings him a little away from the table, looking at him critically all the time]. Turn your face to the light [She places him facing the window]. My boy is not looking well. Has he been overworking?

MORELL Nothing more than usual.

CANDIDA He looks very pale and grey, and wrinkled and old [His melancholy deepens, and she attacks it with wilful gaiety]. Here [pulling him towards the easy chair] you've done enough writing for to-day. Leave Prossy to finish it. Come and talk to me.

MORELL But—

CANDIDA [insisting] Yes, I must be talked to [She makes him sit down, and seats herself on the carpet beside his knee]. Now [patting his hand] you're beginning to look better already. Why must you go out every night lecturing and talking? I hardly have one evening a week with you. Of course what you say is all very true, but it does no good. They don't mind what you say to them one little bit. They think they agree with you, but what's the use of their agreeing with you if they go and do just the opposite of what you tell them the moment your back is turned? Look at our congregation at St Dominic's! Why do they come to hear you talking about Christianity every Sunday? Why, just because they've been so full of business and money-making for six days that they want to forget all about it and have a rest on the seventh, so that they can go back fresh and make money harder than ever! You positively help them at it instead of hindering them.

MORELL [with energetic seriousness] You know very well, Candida, that I often blow them up soundly for that. And if there is nothing in their churchgoing but rest and diversion, why don't they try something more amusing? more self-indulgent? There must be some good in the fact that they prefer St Dominic's to worse places on Sundays.

CANDIDA Oh, the worse places aren't open, and even if they were, they'd be seen going to them. Besides, James dear, you preach so splendidly that it's as good as a play for them. Why do you think the women are so enthusiastic?

MORELL [shocked] Candida!

CANDIDA Oh, I know. You silly boy, you think it's your Socialism and your religion, but if it were that, they'd do what you tell them instead of only coming to look at you. They all have Prossy's complaint.

MORELL Prossy's complaint! What do you mean, Candida?

CANDIDA Yes, Prossy, and all the other secretaries you ever had. Why does Prossy condescend to wash up the things, and to peel potatoes and abase herself in all manner of ways for six shillings a week less than she used to get in a city office? She's in love with you, James that's the reason They're all in love with you And you are in love with preaching because you do it so beautifully And you think it's all enthusiasm for the kingdom of Heaven on earth, and so do they You dear silly!

MORELL Candida what dreadful! what soul-destroying cynicism! Are you jesting? Or—can it be?—are you jealous?

CANDIDA [with curious thoughtfulness] Yes, I feel a little jealous sometimes MORELL [incredulously] Of Prossy?

CANDIDA [laughing] No, no, no, no Not jealous of anybody Jealous for somebody else, who is not loved as he ought to be MORELL Me?

CANDIDA You! Why, you're spoiled with love and worship you get far more than is good for you No I mean Eugene MORELL [startled] Eugene!

CANDIDA It seems unfair that all the love should go to you, and none to him, although he needs it so much more than you do [A convulsive movement shakes him in spite of himself] What's the matter? Am I worrying you?

MORELL [hastily] Not at all [Looking at her with troubled intensity] You know that I have perfect confidence in you, Candida CANDIDA You vain thing! Are you so sure of your irresistible attractions?

MORELL Candida you are shocking me I never thought of my attractions I thought of your goodness, of your purity That is what I confide in CANDIDA What a nasty uncomfortable thing to say to me! Oh, you are a clergyman, James a thorough clergyman!

MORELL [turning away from her, heart-stricken] So Eugene says

CANDIDA [with lively interest, leaning over to him with her arms on his knee] Eugene's always right He's a wonderful boy I have grown fonder and fonder of him all the time I was away Do you know, James, that though he has not the least suspicion of it himself, he is ready to fall madly in love with me?

MORELL [grimly] Oh, he has no suspicion of it himself, hasn't he?

CANDIDA Not a bit [She takes her arms from his knee, and turns thoughtfully, sinking into a more restful attitude with her hands in her lap]

Some day he will know when he is grown up and experienced, like you And he will know that I must have known I wonder what he will think of me then

MORELL No evil, Candida I hope and trust, no evil

CANDIDA [dubiously] That will depend

MORELL [bewildered] Depend!

CANDIDA [looking at him] Yes it will depend on what happens to him [He looks vacantly at her] Don't you see? It will depend on how he comes to learn what love really is I mean on the sort of woman who will teach it to him

MORELL [quite at a loss] Yes No I don't know what you mean

CANDIDA [explaining] If he learns it from a good woman, then it will be all right he will forgive me

MORELL Forgive?

CANDIDA But suppose he learns it from a bad woman, as so many men do, especially poetic men, who imagine all women are angels! Suppose he only discovers the value of love when he has thrown it away and degraded himself in his ignorance! Will he forgive me then, do you think?

MORELL Forgive you for what?

CANDIDA [realizing how stupid he is, and a little disappointed, though quite tenderly so] Don't you understand? [He shakes his head She turns to him again, so as to explain with the fondest intimacy] I mean, will he forgive me for not teaching him myself? For abandoning him to the bad women for the sake of my goodness, of my purity, as you call it? Ah, James, how little you understand me, to talk of your confidence in my goodness and purity! I would give them both to poor Eugene as willingly as I would give my share to a beggar dying of cold, if there were nothing else to restrain me Put your trust in my love for you, James, for if that went, I should care very little for your sermons mere phrases that you cheat yourself and others with every day [She is about to rise]

MORELL His words!

CANDIDA [checking herself quickly in the act of getting up] Whose words?

MORELL Eugene's

CANDIDA [delighted] He is always right He understands you, he understands me, he understands Prossy, and you, darling, you understand nothing [She laughs, and kisses him to console him He recoils as if stabbed and springs up]

MORELL How can you bear to do that when—Oh, Candida [with anguish in his voice] I had rather you had plunged a grappling iron into my heart than given me that kiss

CANDIDA [amazed] My dear whats the matter?

MORELL [frantically waving her off] Dont touch me

CANDIDA James!!!

They are interrupted by the entrance of Marchbanks with Burgess, who stop near the door, staring

MARCHBANKS Is anything the matter?

MORELL [deadly white, putting an iron constraint on himself] Nothing but this that either you were right this morning, or Candida is mad

BURGESS [in loudest protest] What! Candy mad too! Oh, come! come! come! [He crosses the room to the fireplace, protesting as he goes, and knocks the ashes out of his pipe on the bars]

Morell sits down at his table desperately, leaning forward to hide his face, and interlacing his fingers rigidly to keep them steady

CANDIDA [to Morell, relieved and laughing] Oh, youre only shocked! Is that all? How conventional all you unconventional people are! [She sits gaily on the arm of the chair]

BURGESS Come be'ave yourself, Candy What'll Mr Morchbanks think of you?

CANDIDA This comes of James teaching me to think for myself, and never to hold back out of fear of what other people may think of me It works beautifully as long as I think the same things as he does But now! because I have just thought something different! look at him! Just look! [She points to Morell, greatly amused]

Eugene looks, and instantly presses his hand on his heart, as if some pain had shot through it He sits down on the sofa like a man witnessing a tragedy.

BURGESS [on the hearth-rug] Well, James, you certnly haint as himpressive lookin as usu'l

MORELL [with a laugh which is half a sob] I suppose not I beg all your pardons I was not conscous of making a fuss [Pulling himself together] Well, well, well, well, well! [He sets to work at his papers again with resolute cheerfulness]

CANDIDA [going to the sofa and sitting beside Marchbanks, still in a bantering humor] Well, Eugene why are you so sad? Did the onions make you cry?

MARCHBANKS [aside to her] It is your cruelty I hate cruelty It is a horrible thing to see one person make another suffer CANDIDA [petting him ironically] Poor boy! have I been cruel? Did I make it slice nasty little red onions?

MARCHBANKS [earnestly] Oh, stop, stop I dont mean myself You have made him suffer frightfully I feel his pain in my own heart I know that it is not your fault it is something that must happen, but dont make light of it I shudder when you torture him and laugh

CANDIDA [incredulously] I torture James! Nonsense, Eugene how you exaggerate! Silly! [She rises and goes to the table, a little troubled] Dont work any more, dear Come and talk to us

MORELL [affectionately but bitterly] Ah no I cant talk I can only preach

CANDIDA [caressing his hand] Well, come and preach

BURGESS [strongly remonstrating] Aw no, Candy 'Ang it all!

Levy Mill comes in, anxious and important

LEVY [hastening to shake hands with Candida] How do you do, Mrs Morell? So glad to see you back again CANDIDA Thank you, Levy You know Eugene, dont you?

LEVY Oh, yes How do you do, Marchbanks?

MARCHBANKS Quite well, thanks

LEVY [to Morell] Ive just come from the Guild of St Matthew They are in the greatest consternation about your telegram

CANDIDA What did you telegraph about, James?

LEVY [to Candida] He was to have spoken for them tonight Theyve taken the large hall in Mare Street and spent a lot of money on posters Morell's telegram was to say he couldnt come It came on them like a thunderbolt CANDIDA [surprised, and beginning to suspect something wrong] Given up an engagement to speak!

BURGESS Fust time in his life, I'll bet Ain it, Candy?

LEVY [to Morell] They decided to send an urgent telegram to you asking whether you could not change your mind Have you received it?

MORELL [with restrained impatience] Yes, yes

I got it

LEXY It was reply paid

MORELL Yes, I know I answered it I cant go

CANDIDA But why, James?

MORELL [almost fiercely] Because I dont choose These people forget that I am a man they think I am a talking machine to be turned on for their pleasure every evening of my life May I not have one night at home, with my wife, and my friends?

They are all amazed at this outburst, except Eugene His expression remains unchanged

CANDIDA Oh, James, you musnt mind what I said about that And if you dont go youll have an attack of bad conscience to-morrow

LEXY [intimidated, but urgent] I know, of course, that they make the most unreasonable demands on you But they have been telegraphing all over the place for another speaker, and they can get nobody but the President of the Agnostic League

MORELL [promptly] Well, an excellent man What better do they want?

LEXY But he always insists so powerfully on the divorce of Socialism from Christianity He will undo all the good we have been doing Of course you know best, but—[He shrugs his shoulders and wanders to the hearth beside Burgess]

CANDIDA [coaxingly] Oh, do go, James We'll all go

BURGESS [grumblingly] Look 'ere, Candy! I say! Let's stay at home by the fire, comfortable He wont need to be more'n a couple-of-hour away

CANDIDA Youll be just as comfortable at the meeting We'll all sit on the platform and be great people

EUGENE [terrified] Oh please dont let us go on the platform No everyone will stare at us I couldnt I'll sit at the back of the room

CANDIDA Dont be afraid Theyll be too busy looking at James to notice you MORELL Prossy's complaint, Candida! Eh?

CANDIDA [gaily] Yes Prossy's complaint

BURGESS [mystified] Prossy's complaint! What are you talkin about, James?

MORELL [not heeding him, rises, goes to the door, and holds it open, calling in a commanding tone] Miss Garnett

PROSERPINE [in the distance] Yes, Mr Morell Coming

They all nail, except Burgess, who turns stealthily to Levy

BURGESS Listen ere, Mr Mill Whats Prossy's complaint? Whats wrong with er?

LEXY [confidentially] Well, I dont exactly know, but she spoke very strangely to me this morning I'm afraid she's a little out of her mind sometimes BURGESS [overwhelmed] Why, it must be catchin'! Four in the same ouse!

PROSERPINE [appearing on the threshold] What is it, Mr Morell?

MORELL Telegraph to the Guild of St Matthew that I am coming

PROSERPINE [surprised] Dont they expect you?

MORELL [peremptorily] Do as I tell you

Proserpine frightened, sits down at her typewriter, and obeys Morell, now unaccountably resolute and forceful, goes across to Burgess Candida watches his movements with growing wonder and misgiving

MORELL Burgess you dont want to come

BURGESS Oh, dont put it like that, James It's ony that it aint Sunday, you know

MORELL I'm sorry I thought you might like to be introduced to the chairman He's on the Works Committee of the County Council, and has some influence in the matter of contracts [Burgess nakes up at once] Youll come?

BURGESS [with enthusiasm] Cawrse I'll come, James Aint it awlus a pleasure to er you!

MORELL [turning to Prossy] I shall want you to take some notes at the meeting, Miss Garnett, if you have no other engagement [She nods, afraid to speak] You are coming, Levy, I suppose?

LEXY Certainly

CANDIDA We're all coming, James

MORELL No you are not coming, and Eugene is not coming You will stay here and entertain him—to celebrate your return home [Eugene rises, breathless]

CANDIDA But James—

MORELL [authoritatively] I insist You do not want to come and he does not want to come [Candida is about to protest] Oh, dont concern yourselves I shall have plenty of people without you your chairs will be wanted by unconverted people who have never heard me before CANDIDA [troubled] Eugene wouldnt you like to come?

MORELL I should be afraid to let myself go before Eugene he is so critical of sermons [Looking at him] He knows I am afraid of him

he told me as much this morning Well, I shall shew him how much afraid I am by leaving him here in your custody, Candida

MARCHBANKS [to himself, with vivid feeling] Thats brave Thats beautiful

CANDIDA [with anxious misgiving] But—but— Is anything the matter, James? [Greatly troubled] I cant understand—

MORELL [taking her tenderly in his arms and kissing her on the forehead] Ah, I thought it was I who couldnt understand, dear

ACT III

Past ten in the evening The curtains are drawn, and the lamps lighted The typewriter is in its case the large table has been cleared and tidied everything indicates that the day's work is over

Candida and Marchbanks are sitting by the fire The reading lamp is on the mantelshelf above Marchbanks, who is in the small chair, reading aloud A little pile of manuscripts and a couple of volumes of poetry are on the carpet beside him Candida is in the easy chair The poker, a light brass one, is upright in her hand Leaning back and looking intently at the point of it, with her feet stretched towards the blaze, she is in a waking dream, miles away from her surroundings and completely oblivious of Eugene

MARCHBANKS [breaking off in his recitation] Every poet that ever lived has put that thought into a sonnet He must he cant help it [He looks to her for assent, and notices her absorption in the poker] Havnt you been listening? [No response] Mrs Morell!

CANDIDA [startling] Eh?

MARCHBANKS Havnt you been listening?

CANDIDA [with a guilty excess of politeness] Oh, yes It's very nice Go on, Eugene I'm longing to hear what happens to the angel

MARCHBANKS [letting the manuscript drop from his hand to the floor] I beg your pardon for boring you

CANDIDA But you are not boring me, I assure you Please go on Do, Eugene

MARCHBANKS I finished the poem about the angel quarter of an hour ago Ive read you several things since

CANDIDA [remorsefully] I'm so sorry, Eugene I think the poker must have hypnotized me [She puts it down]

MARCHBANKS It made me horribly uneasy

CANDIDA Why didnt you tell me? I'd have put it down at once

MARCHBANKS I was afraid of making you uneasy too It looked as if it were a weapon If I were a hero of old I should have laid my drawn sword between us If Morell had come in he would have thought you had taken up the poker because there was no sword between us

CANDIDA [wondering] What? [With a puzzled glance at him] I cant quite follow that Those sonnets of yours have perfectly addled me Why should there be a sword between us?

MARCHBANKS [evasively] Oh, never mind [He stoops to pick up the manuscript]

CANDIDA Put that down again, Eugene There are limits to my appetite for poetry even your poetry Youve been reading to me for more than two hours, ever since James went out I want to talk

MARCHBANKS [rising, scared] No I musnt talk [He looks round him in his lost way, and adds, suddenly] I think I'll go out and take a walk in the park [He makes for the door]

CANDIDA Nonsense it's closed long ago Come and sit down on the hearth-rug, and talk moonshine as you usually do I want to be amused Dont you want to?

MARCHBANKS [half in terror, half enraptured] Yes

CANDIDA Then come along [She moves her chair back a little to make room]

He hesitates, then timidly stretches himself on the hearth-rug, face upwards, and throws back his head across her knees, looking up at her

MARCHBANKS Oh, Ive been so miserable all the evening, because I was doing right Now I'm doing wrong, and I'm happy

CANDIDA [tenderly amused at him] Yes I'm sure you feel a great grown-up wicked deceiver Quite proud of yourself, arnt you?

MARCHBANKS [raising his head quickly and turning a little to look round at her] Take care I'm ever so much older than you, if you only knew [He turns quite over on his knees, with his hands clasped and his arms on her lap, and speaks with growing impulse, his blood beginning to stir] May I say some wicked things to you?

CANDIDA [without the least fear or coldness, and with perfect respect for his passion, but with a touch of her wisehearted maternal humor] No But you may say anything you really and truly feel Anything at all, no matter what it is I am not afraid, so long as it is your real self that speaks, and not a mere attitude a gallant attitude, or a wicked attitude, or even a poetic attitude I put you on your honor and truth Now say whatever you want to MARCHBANKS [the eager expression vanishing utterly from his lips and nostrils as his eyes light up with pathetic spirituality] Oh, now I cant say anything all the words I know belong to some attitude or other—all except one

CANDIDA What one is that?

MARCHBANKS [softly, losing himself in the music of the name] Candida, Candida, Candida, Candida, Candida I must say that now, because you have put me on my honor and truth, and I never think or feel Mrs Morell it is always Candida

CANDIDA Of course And what have you to say to Candida?

MARCHBANKS Nothing but to repeat your name a thousand times Dont you feel that every time is a prayer to you?

CANDIDA Doesnt it make you happy to be able to pray?

MARCHBANKS Yes, very happy

CANDIDA Well, that happiness is the answer to your prayer Do you want anything more?

MARCHBANKS No I have come into heaven, where want is unknown

Morell comes in He halts on the threshold, and takes in the scene at a glance

MORELL [grave and self-contained] I hope I dont disturb you

Candida starts up violently, but without the smallest embarrassment, laughing at herself Eugene, capsized by her sudden movement, recovers himself without rising, and sits on the rug hugging his ankles, also quite unembarrassed

CANDIDA Oh, James, how you startled me! I was so taken up with Eugene that I didnt hear your latchkey How did the meeting go off? Did you speak well?

MORELL I have never spoken better in my life

CANDIDA That was first rate! How much was the collection?

MORELL I forgot to ask

CANDIDA [to Eugene] He must have spoken splendidly, or he would never have forgotten that [To Morell] Where are all the others?

MORELL They left long before I could get away I thought I should never escape I believe they are having supper somewhere

CANDIDA [in her domestic business tone] Oh, in that case, Maria may go to bed I'll tell her [She goes out to the kitchen]

MORELL [looking sternly down at Marchbanks] Well?

MARCHBANKS [squatting grotesquely on the hearth-rug, and actually at ease with Morell even impishly humorous] Well?

MORELL Have you anything to tell me?

MARCHBANKS Only that I have been making a fool of myself here in private whilst you have been making a fool of yourself in public

MORELL Hardly in the same way, I think

MARCHBANKS [eagerly, scrambling up] The very, very very same way I have been playing the Good Man Just like you When you began your heroics about leaving me here with Candida—

MORELL [involuntarily] Candida!

MARCHBANKS Oh yes Ive got that far But dont be afraid Heroics are infectious I caught the disease from you I swore not to say a word in your absence that I would not have said a month ago in your presence

MORELL Did you keep your oath?

MARCHBANKS [suddenly perching himself on the back of the easy chair] It kept itself somehow until about ten minutes ago. Up to that moment I went on desperately reading to her—reading my own poems—anybody's poems—to stave off a conversation I was standing outside the gate of Heaven, and refusing to go in Oh, you cant think how heroic it was, and how uncomfortable! Then—

MORELL [steadily controlling his suspense] Then?

MARCHBANKS [prosaically slipping down into a quite ordinary attitude on the seat of the chair] Then she couldnt bear being read to any longer

MORELL And you approached the gate of Heaven at last?

MARCHBANKS Yes

MORELL Well? [Fiercely] Speak, man have you no feeling for me?

MARCHBANKS [softly and musically] Then she became an angel, and there was a flaming sword that turned every way, so that I couldnt go in, for I saw that that gate was really the gate of Hell

MORELL [triumphantly] She repulsed you!

MARCHBANKS [rising in wild scorn] No, you fool if she had done that I should never have seen that I was in Heaven already Repulsed me! You think that would have saved us' virtuous indignation! Oh, you are not worthy to live in the same world with her [He turns away contemptuously to the other side of the room]

MORELL [who has watched him quietly without] changing his place] Do you think you make yourself more worthy by reviling me, Eugene?

MARCHBANKS Here endeth the thousand and first lesson Morell I dont think much of your preaching after all I believe I could do it better myself. The man I want to meet is the man that Candida married MORELL The man that—? Do you mean me?

MARCHBANKS I dont mean the Reverend James Mavor Morell, moralist and windbag I mean the real man that the Reverend James must have hidden somewhere inside his black coat the man that Candida loved You cant make a woman like Candida love you by merely buttoning your collar at the back instead of in front

MORELL [boldly and steadily] When Candida promised to marry me, I was the same moralist and windbag you now see I wore my black coat, and my collar was buttoned behind instead of in front Do you think she would have loved me any the better for being insincere in my profession?

MARCHBANKS [on the sofa, hugging his ankles] Oh she forgave you, just as she forgives me for being a coward, and a weakling, and what you call a snivelling little whelp and all the rest of it [Dreamily] A woman like that has divine insight she loves our souls, and not our follies and vanities and illusions, nor our collars and coats, nor any other of the rags and tatters we are rolled up in [He reflects on this for an instant, then turns intently to question Morell] What I want to know is how you got past the flaming sword that stopped me

MORELL Perhaps because I was not interrupted at the end of ten minutes

MARCHBANKS [taken aback] What!

MORELL Man can climb to the highest summits but he cannot dwell there long MARCHBANKS [springing up] It's false there can he dwell for ever, and there only It's in the other moments that he can find no rest, no sense of the silent glory of life Where would you have me spend my moments, if not on the summits?

MORELL In the scullery, slicing onions and filling lamps

MARCHBANKS Or in the pulpit, scrubbing cheap earthenware souls?

MORELL Yes, that too It was there that I earned my golden moment and the right, in that moment, to ask her to love me I did not take the moment on credit; nor did I use it to steal another man's happiness

MARCHBANKS [rather disgustedly, trotting back towards the fireplace] I have no doubt you conducted the transaction as honestly as if you were buying a pound of cheese [He stops on the brink of the hearth-rug, and adds, thoughtfully, to himself, with his back turned to Morell] I could only go to her as a beggar MORELL [starting] A beggar dying of cold! asking for her shawl!

MARCHBANKS [turning surprised] Thank you for touching up my poetry Yes, if you like a beggar dying of cold, asking for her shawl

MORELL [excitedly] And she refused Shall I tell you why she refused? I can tell you, on her own authority It was because of—

MARCHBANKS She didnt refuse

MORELL Not!

MARCHBANKS She offered me all I chose to ask for her shawl, her wings, the wreath of stars on her head, the lilies in her hand, the crescent moon beneath her feet—

MORELL [seizing him] Out with the truth, man my wife is my wife I want no more of your poetic fripperies I know well that if I have lost her love and you have gained it, no law will bind her

MARCHBANKS [quaintly, without fear or resistance] Catch me by the shirt collar, Morell she will arrange it for me afterwards as she did this morning [With quiet rapture] I shall feel her hands touch me

MORELL You young imp, do you know how dangerous it is to say that to me? Or [with a sudden misgiving] has something made you brave?

MARCHBANKS I'm not afraid now I disliked you before that was why I shrank from your touch But I saw today—when she tortured you—that you love her Since then I have been your friend you may strangle me if you like MORELL [releasing him] Eugene if that is not a heartless lie—if you have a spark of human feeling left in you—will you tell me what has happened during my absence?

MARCHBANKS What happened! Why, the flaming sword [Morell stamps with impatience]—Well, in plain prose, I loved her so exquisitely that I wanted nothing more than the happiness of being in such love And before I had time to come down from the highest summits, you came in

MORELL [suffering deeply] So it is still unsettled Still the misery of doubt

MARCHBANKS Misery! I am the happiest of men I desire nothing now but her happiness [In a passion of sentiment] Oh, Morell, let us both give her up Why should she have to choose between a wretched little nervous disease like me, and a pig-headed parson like you? Let us go on a pilgrimage, you to the east and I to the west, in search of a worthy lover for her some beautiful archangel with purple wings—

MORELL Some fiddlestick! Oh, if she is mad enough to leave me for you, who will protect her? who will help her? who will work for her? who will be a father to her children? [He sits down distractedly on the sofa, with his elbows on his knees and his head propped on his clenched fists]

MARCHBANKS [snapping his fingers wildly] She does not ask those silly questions It is she who wants somebody to protect, to help, to work for somebody to give her children to protect, to help and to work for Some grown up man who has become as a little child again Oh, you fool, you fool, you triple fool! I am the man, Morell I am the man [He dances about excitedly, crying] You don't understand what a woman is Send for her, Morell send for her and let her choose between—[The door opens and Candida enters He stops as if petrified]

CANDIDA [amazed, on the threshold] What on earth are you at, Eugene?

MARCHBANKS [oddly] James and I are having a preaching match, and he is getting the worst of it

Candida looks quickly round at Morell Seeing that he is distressed, she hurries down to him, greatly vexed

CANDIDA You have been annoying him Now I won't have it, Eugene do you hear? [She puts her hand on Morell's shoulder, and quite forgets her nicely tact in her anger] My boy shall not be worried I will protect him

MORELL [rising proudly] Protect!

CANDIDA [not heeding him to Eugene] What have you been saying?

MARCHBANKS [appalled] Nothing I—

CANDIDA Eugene! Nothing?

MARCHBANKS [piteously] I mean—I—I'm very sorry I won't do it again indeed I won't I'll let him alone

MORELL [indignantly, with an aggressive movement towards Eugene] Let me alone! You young—

CANDIDA [stopping him] Sh!—no let me deal with him, James

MARCHBANKS Oh, you're not angry with me, are you?

CANDIDA [severely] Yes I am very angry I have a good mind to pack you out of the house

MORELL [taken aback by Candida's vigor, and by no means relishing the position of being rescued by her from another man] Gently, Candida, gently I am able to take care of myself

CANDIDA [petting him] Yes, dear of course you are But you mustn't be annoyed and made miserable

MARCHBANKS [almost in tears, turning to the door] I'll go

CANDIDA Oh, you needn't go I can't turn you out at this time of night [I'chemently] Shame on you! For shame!

MARCHBANKS [desperately] But what have I done?

CANDIDA I know what you have done as well as if I had been here all the time Oh, it was unworthy! You are like a child you cannot hold your tongue

MARCHBANKS I would die ten times over sooner than give you a moment's pain

CANDIDA [with infinite contempt for this puerility] Much good your dying would do me!

MORELL Candida, my dear this altercation is hardly quite seemly It is a matter between two men, and I am the right person to settle it CANDIDA Two men! Do you call that a man? [To Eugene] You bad boy!

MARCHBANKS [gathering a whimsically affectionate courage from the scolding] If I am to be scolded like a boy, I must make a boy's excuse He began it And he's bigger than I am CANDIDA [losing confidence a little as her concern for Morell's dignity takes the alarm] That can't be true [To Morell] You didn't begin it, James, did you?

MORELL [contemptuously] No

MARCHBANKS [indignant] Oh!

MORELL [to Eugene] You began it this morning [Candida, instantly connecting this with his mysterious allusion in the afternoon to something told him by Eugene in the morning looks at him with quick suspicion Morell proceeds, with the emphasis of offended superiority] But your other point is true I am certainly the bigger of the two, and, I hope, the stronger, Candida

THE COMPLETE PLAYS OF BERNARD SHAW

So you had better leave the matter in my hands
 CANDIDA [again soothing him] Yes, dear, but — [troubled] I dont understand about this morning

MORELL [gently snubbing her] You need not understand, my dear
 CANDIDA But James, I [the street bell rings]

— Oh bother! Here they all come [She goes out to let them in]

MARCHBANKS [running to Morell] Oh, Morell, isnt it dreadful? She's angry with us she hates me What shall I do?

MORELL [with quaint desperation, walking up and down the middle of the room] Eugene my head is spinning round I shall begin to laugh presently

MARCHBANKS [following him anxiously] No, no she'll think Ive thrown you into hysterics Dont laugh

Boisterous voices and laughter are heard approaching Lexy Mill, his eyes sparkling, and his bearing denoting unwonted elevation of spirit enters with Burgess, who is greasy and self-complacent, but has all his wits about him Miss Garnett, with her smartest hat and jacket on, follows them, but though her eyes are brighter than before, she is evidently a prey to misgiving She places herself with her back to her typewriting table, with one hand on it to steady herself, passing the other across her forehead as if she were a little tired and giddy Marchbanks relapses into shyness and edges away into the corner near the window, where Morell's books are

LEXY [exhilarated] Morell I must congratulate you [Grasping his hand] What a noble, splendid, inspired address you gave us! You surpassed yourself

BURGESS So you did, James It fair kep me awake to the lars' word Didnt it, Miss Gornett?

PROSERPINE [worriedly] Oh, I wasnt mind-ing you I was trying to make notes [She takes out her note-book, and looks at her stenography, which nearly makes her cry]

MORELL Did I go too fast, Pross?

PROSERPINE Much too fast You know I cant do more than ninety words a minute [She relieves her feelings by throwing her note-book angrily beside her machine, ready for use next morning]

MORELL [soothingly] Oh well, well, never mind, never mind, never mind Have you all had supper?

LEXY Mr Burgess has been kind enough to give us a really splendid supper at the Belgrave

BURGESS [with effusive magnanimity] Dont mention it, Mr Mill [Modestly] Youre arty welcome to my little treat

PROSERPINE We had champagne I never tasted it before I feel quite giddy

MORELL [surprised] A champagne supper! That was very handsome Was it my eloquence that produced all this extravagance?

LEXY [rhetorically] Your eloquence, and Mr Burgess's goodness of heart [With a fresh burst of exhilaration] And what a very fine fellow the chairman is, Morell! He came to supper with us

MORELL [with long drawn significance, looking at Burgess] O-o-o-h! the chairman Now I understand

Burgess covers with a deprecatory cough a lively satisfaction with his own diplomatic cunning Lexy folds his arms and leans against the head of the sofa in a high-spirited attitude after nearly losing his balance Candida comes in with glasses, lemons, and a jug of hot water on a tray

CANDIDA Who will have some lemonade? You know our rules total abstinence [She puts the tray on the table, and takes up the lemon squeezer, looking enquiringly round at them]

MORELL No use, dear Theyve all had champagne Pross has broken her pledge

CANDIDA [to Proserpine] You dont mean to say youve been drinking champagne!

PROSERPINE [stubbornly] Yes I do I'm only a beer teetotaller, not a champagne teetotaller I dont like beer Are there any letters for me to answer, Mr Morell?

MORELL No more to-night

PROSERPINE Very well Goodnight, everybody

LEXY [gallantly] Had I not better see you home, Miss Garnett?

PROSERPINE No thank you I shant trust myself with anybody tonight I wish I hadnt taken any of that stuff [She takes uncertain aim at the door, dashes at it, and barely escapes without disaster]

BURGESS [indignantly] Stuff indeed! That gurl dunno what champagne is! Pommery and Greeno at twelve and six a bottle She took two glasses amost straight horff

MORELL [anxious about her] Go and look after her, Lexy

LEXY [alarmed] But if she should really be — Suppose she began to sing in the street, or anything of that sort

MORELL Just so she may Thats why youd better see her safely home

CANDIDA Do, Lexy theres a good fellow [She shakes his hand and pushes him gently to the door]

LEXY It's evidently my duty to go I hope it may not be necessary Goodnight, Mrs Morell [To the rest] Goodnight [He goes Candida shuts the door]

BURGESS He was gushin with hextra piety hussell arter two sips People carnt drink like they huseter [Bustling across to the hearth] Well, James it's time to look up Mr Morebanks shall I ave the pleasure of your company for a bit o the way ome?

MARCHBANKS [affrightedly] Yes I'd better go [He hurries towards the door, but Candida places herself before it, barring his way]

CANDIDA [with quiet authority] You sit down Youre not going yet

MARCHBANKS [quailing] No I—I didnt mean to [He sits down abjectly on the sofa]

CANDIDA Mr Marchbanks will stay the night with us, papa

BURGESS Oh well, I'll say goodnight So long, James [He shakes hands with Morell, and goes over to Eugene] Make em give you a nightlight by your bed, Mr Morebanks itll comfort you if you wake up in the night with a touch of that complaint of yores Goodnight

MARCHBANKS Thank you I will Goodnight, Mr Burgess [They shake hands Burgess goes to the door]

CANDIDA [intercepting Morell, who is following Burgess] Stay here, dear I'll put on papa's coat for him [She goes out with Burgess]

MARCHBANKS [rising and stealing over to Morell] Morell theres going to be a terrible scene Arnt you afraid?

MORELL Not in the least

MARCHBANKS I never envied you your courage before [He puts his hand appealingly on Morell's forearm] Stand by me, wont you?

MORELL [casting him off resolutely] Erch for himself, Eugene She must choose between us now

Candida returns Eugene creeps back to the sofa like a guilty schoolboy

CANDIDA [between them, addressing Eugene] Are you sorry?

MARCHBANKS [earnestly] Yes Heartbroken

CANDIDA Well then, you are forgiven Now go off to bed like a good little boy I want to talk to James about you

MARCHBANKS [rising in great consternation] Oh, I cant do that, Morell I must be here I'll not go away Tell her

CANDIDA [her suspicions confirmed] Tell me what? [His eyes avoid hers furtively She turns and mutely transfers the question to Morell]

MORELL [braeing himself for the catastrophe] I have nothing to tell her, except [here his voice deepens to a measured and mournful tenderness] that she is my greatest treasure on earth—if she is really mine

CANDIDA [coldly, offended by his yielding to his orator's instinct and treating her as if she were the audience at the Guild of St Mathen] I am sure Eugene can say no less, if that is all

MARCHBANKS [discouraged] Morell she's laughing at us

MORELL [with a quiet touch of temper] There is nothing to laugh at Are you laughing at us, Candida?

CANDIDA [with quiet anger] Eugene is very quick-witted, James I hope I am going to laugh, but I am not sure that I am not going to be very angry [She goes to the fireplace, and stands there leaning with her arm on the mantelpiece, and her foot on the fender, whilst Eugene steals to Morell and plucks him by the sleeve]

MARCHBANKS [whispering] Stop, Morell Dont let us say anything

MORELL [pushing Eugene away without deigning to look at him] I hope you dont mean that as a threat, Candida CANDIDA [with emphatic warning] Take care, James Eugene I asked you to go Are you going?

MORELL [putting his foot down] He shall not go I wish him to remain

MARCHBANKS I'll go I'll do whatever you want [He turns to the door]

CANDIDA Stop! [He obeys] Didnt you hear James say he wished you to stay? James is master here Dont you know that?

MARCHBANKS [flushing with a young poet's rage against tyranny] By what right is he master?

CANDIDA [quietly] Tell him, James

MORELL [taken aback] My dear I dont know of any right that makes me master I assert no such right

CANDIDA [with infinite reproach] You dont know! Oh, James! James! [To Eugene, rushingly] I wonder do you understand, Eugene? [He shakes his head helplessly, not daring to look] at her] No you're too young Well, I give you leave to stay to stay and learn [She comes away from the hearth and places herself between them] Now, James! what's the matter? Come tell me

MARCHBANKS [whispering tremulously across to him] Don't

CANDIDA Come Out with it!

MORELL [slowly] I meant to prepare your mind carefully, Candida, so as to prevent misunderstanding.

CANDIDA Yes, dear I am sure you did But never mind I shan't misunderstand

MORELL Well—er— [he hesitates, unable to find the long explanation which he supposed to be available]

CANDIDA Well?

MORELL [blurted out baldly] Eugene declares that you are in love with him

MARCHBANKS [frantically] No, no, no, no, never I did not, Mrs Morell it's not true I said I loved you I said I understood you, and that he couldn't And it was not after what passed there before the fire that I spoke it was not, on my word It was this morning

CANDIDA [enlightened] This morning!

MARCHBANKS Yes [He looks at her, pleading for credence, and then adds simply] That was what was the matter with my collar

CANDIDA Your collar? [suddenly taking in his meaning she turns to Morell, shocked] Oh, James did you— [she stops]

MORELL [ashamed] You know, Candida, that I have a temper to struggle with And he said [shuddering] that you despised me in your heart

CANDIDA [turning quickly on Eugene] Did you say that?

MARCHBANKS [terrified] No

CANDIDA [almost fiercely] Then James has just told me a falsehood Is that what you mean?

MARCHBANKS No, no I—I— [desperately] it was David's wife And it wasn't at home it was when she saw him dancing before all the people

MORELL [taking the cue with a debater's adroitness] Dancing before all the people, Candida, and thinking he was moving their hearts by his mission when they were only suffering from—Prossy's complaint [She is about to protest he raises his hand to silence her] Don't try to look indignant, Candida—

CANDIDA Try!

MORELL [continuing] Eugene was right As you told me a few hours after, he is always right He said nothing that you did not say far better yourself He is the poet, who sees everything, and I am the poor parson, who understands nothing

CANDIDA [remorsefully] Do you mind what is said by a foolish boy, because I said something like it in jest?

MORELL That foolish boy can speak with the inspiration of a child and the cunning of a serpent He has claimed that you belong to him and not to me, and, rightly or wrongly, I have come to fear that it may be true I will not go about tortured with doubts and suspicions I will not live with you and keep a secret from you I will not suffer the intolerable degradation of jealousy We have agreed—he and I—that you shall choose between us now I await your decision

CANDIDA [slowly recoiling a step, her heart hardened by his rhetoric in spite of the sincere feeling behind it] Oh! I am to choose am I? I suppose it is quite settled that I must belong to one or the other

MORELL [firmly] Quite You must choose definitely

MARCHBANKS [anxiously] Morell you don't understand She means that she belongs to herself

CANDIDA [turning on him] I mean that, and a good deal more, Master Eugene, as you will both find out presently And pray, my lords and masters, what have you to offer for my choice? I am up for auction, it seems What do you bid, James?

MORELL [reproachfully] Cand— [He breaks down his eyes and throat fill with tears the orator becomes a wounded animal] I can't speak—

CANDIDA [impulsively going to him] Ah, dearest—

MARCHBANKS [in wild alarm] Stop it's not fair You mustn't shew her that you suffer, Morell I am on the rack too, but I am not crying

MORELL [rallying all his forces] Yes you are right It is not for pity that I am bidding [He disengages himself from Candida]

CANDIDA [retreating, chilled] I beg your pardon, James I did not mean to touch you I am waiting to hear your bid

MORELL [with proud humility] I have nothing to offer you but my strength for your defence, my honesty for your surety, my ability and industry for your livelihood and my authority and position for your dignity That is all

it becomes a man to offer to a woman

CANDIDA [quite quietly] And you, Eugene? What do you offer?

MARCHBANKS My weakness My desolation My heart's need

CANDIDA [impressed] That's a good bid, Eugene Now I know how to make my choice

She pauses and looks curiously from one to the other, as if weighing them Morell, whose lofty confidence has changed into heartbreaking dread at Eugene's bid, loses all power of concealing his anxiety Eugene, strung to the highest tension, does not move a muscle

MORELL [in a suffocated voice the appeal bursting from the depths of his anguish] Candida!

MARCHBANKS [aside, in a flash of contempt] Coward!

CANDIDA [significantly] I give myself to the weaker of the two

Eugene divines her meaning at once his face whitens like steel in a furnace

MORELL [bowing his head with the calm of collapse] I accept your sentence, Candida

CANDIDA Do you understand, Eugene?

MARCHBANKS Oh, I feel I'm lost He cannot bear the burden

MORELL [incredulously, raising his head and voice with comic abruptness] Do you mean me, Candida?

CANDIDA [smiling a little] Let us sit and talk comfortably over it like three friends [To Morell] Sit down, dear [Morell, quite lost, takes the chair from the fireside the children's chair] Bring me that chair, Eugene [She indicates the easy chair He fetches it silently, even with something like cold strength, and places it next Morell, a little behind him She sits down He takes the visitor's chair himself, and sits, inscrutable When they are all settled she begins, throwing a spell of quietness on them by her calm, sane, tender tone] You remember what you told me about yourself, Eugene how nobody has cared for you since your old nurse died how those clever fashionable sisters and successful brothers of yours were your mother's and father's pets how miserable you were at Eton how your father is trying to starve you into returning to Oxford how you have had to live without comfort or welcome or refuge always lonely, and nearly always disliked and misunderstood, poor boy!

MARCHBANKS [faithful to the nobility of his lot] I had my books I had Nature And at last I met you

CANDIDA Never mind that just at present Now I want you to look at this other boy here my boy! spoiled from his cradle We go once a fortnight to see his parents You should come with us, Eugene, to see the pictures of the hero of that household James as a baby! the most wonderful of all babies James holding his first school prize, won at the ripe age of eight! James as the captain of his eleven! James in his first frock coat! James under all sorts of glorious circumstances! You know how strong he is (I hope he didn't hurt you) how clever he is how happy [With deepening gravity] Ask James's mother and his three sisters what it cost to save James the trouble of doing anything but be strong and clever and happy Ask me what it costs to be James's mother and three sisters and wife and mother to his children all in one Ask Plossy and Maria how troublesome the house is even when we have no visitors to help us to slice the onions Ask the tradesmen who want to worry James and spoil his beautiful sermons who it is that puts them off When there is money to give, he gives it when there is money to refuse, I refuse it I build a castle of comfort and indulgence and love for him, and stand sentinel always to keep little vulgar rears out I make him master here, though he does not know it, and could not tell you a moment ago how it came to be so [With sweet irony] And when he thought I might go away with you, his only anxiety was—what should become of me! And to tempt me to stay he offered me [leaning forward to stroke his hair caressingly at each phrase] his strength for my defence! his industry for my livelihood! his dignity for my position! his—[relenting] ah, I am moving up your beautiful cadences and spoiling them, am I not, darling? [She lays her cheek fondly against his]

MORELL [quite overcome kneeling beside her chair and embracing her with boyish ingenuousness] It's all true, every word What I am you have made me with the labor of your hands and the love of your heart You are my wife, my mother, my sisters you are the sum of all loving care to me

CANDIDA [in his arms smiling, to Eugene] Am I your mother and sisters to you, Eugene

MARCHBANKS [rising with a fierce gesture of disgust] Ah, never Out, then, into the night with me!

CANDIDA [rising quietly] You are not going like that, Eugene?

MARCHBANKS [with the ring of a man's voice—no longer a boy's—in the nords] I know the hour when it strikes I am impatient to do what must be done

MORELL [who has also risen] Candida dont let him do anything rash

CANDIDA [confident, smiling at Eugene] Oh, there is no fear He has learnt to live without happiness

MARCHBANKS I no longer desire happiness life is nobler than that Parson James I give you my happiness with both hands I love you because you have filled the heart of the woman I loved Goodbye [He goes towards the door]

CANDIDA One last word [He stops, but without turning to her She goes to him] How old are you, Eugene?

MARCHBANKS As old as the world now This morning I was eighteen

CANDIDA Eighteen! Will you, for my sake, make a little poem out of the two sentences I am going to say to you? And will you promise to repeat it to yourself whenever you think of me?

MARCHBANKS [without moving] Say the sentences

CANDIDA When I am thirty, she will be forty-five When I am sixty, she will be seventy-five

MARCHBANKS [turning to her] In a hundred years, we shall be the same age But I have a better secret than that in my heart Let me go now The night outside grows impatient

CANDIDA Goodbye [She takes his face in her hands, and as he divines her intention and falls on his knees, she kisses his forehead Then he flies out into the night She turns to Morell, holding out her arms to him] Ah, James!

They embrace But they do not know the secret in the poet's heart

THE MAN OF DESTINY

BEING THE THIRD OF FOUR PLEASANT PLAYS

The twelfth of May, 1796, in north Italy, at Tavazzano, on the road from Lodi to Milan The afternoon sun is blazing serenely over the plains of Lombardy, treating the Alps with respect and the anthills with indulgence, neither disgusted by the basking of the swine in the villages nor hurt by its cool reception in the churches, but ruthlessly disdainful of two hordes of mischievous insects which are the French and Austrian armies Two days before, at Lodi, the Austrians tried to prevent the French from crossing the river by the narrow bridge there; but the French, commanded by a general aged 27, Napoleon Bonaparte, who does not respect the rules of war, rushed the fireswept bridge, supported by a tremendous cannonade in which the young general assisted with his own hands Cannonading is his technical speciality he has been trained in the artillery under the old regime, and made perfect in the military arts of shirking his duties, swindling the paymaster over travelling expenses, and dignifying war with the noise and smoke of cannon, as depicted in all military portraits He is, however, an original observer, and has perceived, for the first time since the invention of gunpowder, that a cannon ball, if it strikes a man, will kill him To a thorough grasp of this remarkable discovery he adds a highly evolved faculty for physical geography and for the calculation of times and distances He has prodigious powers of work, and a clear realistic knowledge of human nature in public affairs, having seen it exhaustively tested in that department during the French Revolution He is imaginative without illusions, and creative without religion, loyalty, patriotism or any of the common ideals Not that he is incapable of these ideals on the contrary, he has swallowed them all in his boyhood, and now, having a keen dramatic faculty, is extremely clever at playing upon them by the arts of the actor and stage manager Withal, he is no spoiled child Poverty, ill-luck, the shifts of impecunious shabby-gentility, repeated failure as a would-be author, humiliation as a rebuffed time server reproof and punishment as an incompetent and dishonest officer, an escape from dismissal from the service so narrow that if the emigration of the nobles had not raised the value of even the most rascally lieutenant to the famine price of a general he would have been swept contemptuously from the army these trials have ground his conceit out of him, and forced him to be self-sufficient and to understand that to such men as he is the world will give nothing that he cannot take from it by force In this the world is not free from cowardice and folly, for Napoleon, as a merciless cannonader of political rubbish, is making himself useful indeed, it is even now impossible to live in England without sometimes feeling how much that country lost in not being conquered by him as well as by Julius Cæsar

However, on this May afternoon in 1798, it is early days with him He has but recently been promoted general, partly by using his wife to seduce the Directory (then governing France), partly by the scarcity of officers caused by the emigration as aforesaid, partly by his faculty of knowing a country, with all its roads, rivers, hills and valleys, as he knows the palm of his hand, and largely by that new faith of his in the efficacy of firing cannons at people His army is, as to discipline, in a state which has so greatly shocked some modern writers before whom the following story has been enacted, that they, impressed with the later glory of "L'Empereur," have altogether refused to credit it But Napoleon is not L'Empereur yet his men call him Le Petit Caporal, as he is still in the stage of gaining influence over them by displays of pluck He is not in a position to force his will on them in orthodox military fashion by the eat o' nine tails The French Revolution, which has escaped suppression solely through the monarchy's habit of being at least four years in arrear with its soldiers in the matter of pay, has substituted for that habit, as far as possible, the habit of not paying at all, except in promises and patriotic flatteries which are not compatible with martial law of the Prussian type Napoleon has therefore approached the Alps in command of men without money, in rags, and consequently indisposed to stand much discipline, especially from upstart generals This circumstance, which would have embarrassed an idealist soldier, has been worth a thousand cannon to Napoleon He has said to his army "You have patriotism and courage, but you have no money, no clothes, and hardly anything to eat In Italy there are all these things, and glory as well, to be gained by a devoted army led by a general who regards loot as the natural right of the soldier I am such a general En avant, mes enfants!" The result has entirely justified him The army conquers Italy as the locusts conquered Cyprus They fight all day and march all night, covering impossible distances and appearing in incredible places, not because every soldier carries a field marshal's baton in his knapsack, but because he hopes to carry at least half a dozen silver forks there next day

It must be understood, by the way, that the French army does not make war on the Italian It is there to rescue them from the tyranny of their Austrian conquerors, and confer republican institutions on them, so that in incidentally looting them it merely makes free with the property of its friends, who ought to be grateful to it, and perhaps would be if ingratitude were not the proverbial failing of their country The Austrians, whom it fights, are a thoroughly respectable regular army, well disciplined, commanded by gentlemen versed in orthodox campaigning at the head of them Beauhieu, practising the classic art of war under orders from Vienna, and getting horribly beaten by Napoleon, who acts on his own responsibility in defiance of professional precedents or orders from Paris Even when the Austrians win a battle, all that is necessary is to wait until their routine obliges them to return to their quarters for afternoon tea, so to speak, and run it back again from them a course pursued later on with brilliant success at Marengo Or the whole, with his foot handicapped by Austrian statesmanship, classic generalship, and the exigencies of the aristocratic social structure of Viennese society, Napoleon finds it possible to be irresistible without working heroic miracles The world, however, likes miracles and heroes, and is quite incapable of conceiving the action of such forces as academic militarism or Viennese drangroomism Hence it has already begun to manufacture "L'Empereur," and thus to make it difficult for the romanticists of a hundred years later to credit the hitherto unrecorded little scene now in question at Tavazzano

The best quarters in Tavazzano are at a little inn, the first house reached by travellers passing through the place from Milan to Lodi It stands in a vineyard, and its principal room, a pleasant refuge from the summer heat, is open so widely at the back to this vineyard that it is almost a large veranda The bolder children much excited by the alarms and excursions of the past few days, and by an irruption of French troops at six o'clock, know that the French commander has quartered himself in this room, and are divided between a craving to peep in at the front windows, and a mortal dread of the sentinel, a young gentleman-soldier who, having no natural moustache, has had a most ferocious one painted on his face with boot blacking by his sergeant. As his heavy uniform, like all the uniforms of that day, is designed for parade without the least reference to his health or comfort, he perspires profusely in the sun, and his painted moustache has run in little streaks down his chin and round his neck, except where it has dried in stiff, japanned flakes and had its sweeping outline chipped off in grotesque little bays and headlands, making him unspeakably ridiculous in the eye of History a hundred years later, but monstrous and horrible to the contemporary north Italian infant, to whom nothing would seem more natural than that he should relieve the monotony of his guard by pitchforking a stray child up on his bayonet, and eating it uncooked. Nevertheless one girl of bad character, in whom an instinct of privilege with soldiers is already stirring, does peep in at the safest window for a moment before a glance and a clink from the sentinel sends her flying. Most of what she sees she has seen before: the vineyard at the back, with the old winepress and a cart among the vines, the door close on her right leading to the street entry, the landlord's best sideboard, now in full action for dinner, further back on the same side, the fireplace on the other side with a couch near it, another door, leading to the inner rooms, between it and the vineyard, and the table in the middle set out with a repast of Milanese risotto, cheese, grapes, bread, olives, and a big nickered flask of red wine.

The landlord, Giuseppe Grandi, she knows well. He is a swarthy vivacious shrewdly cheerful black-curbed bullet-headed grinning little innkeeper of 40. Naturally an excellent host, he is in the highest spirits this evening at his good fortune in having as his guest the French commander to protect him against the license of the troops. He actually sports a pair of gold earrings which would otherwise have been hidden carefully under the winepress with his little equipment of silver plate.

Napoleon, sitting facing her on the further side of the table, she sees for the first time. He is working hard, partly at his meal, which he has discovered how to dispatch in ten minutes by attacking all the courses simultaneously (this practice is the beginning of his downfall), and partly at a military map on which he from time to time marks the position of the forces by taking a grape-skin from his mouth and planting it on the map with his thumb like a wafer. There is no revolutionary untidiness about his dress or person, but his elbow has displaced most of the dishes and glasses, and his long hair trails into the risotto when he forgets it and leans more intently over the map.

GIUSEPPE Will your excellency—

NAPOLEON [intent on his map, but cramming himself mechanically with his left hand] Don't talk. I'm busy.

GIUSEPPE [with perfect goodhumor] Excellency, I obey.

NAPOLEON Some red ink.

GIUSEPPE Alas! excellency, there is none.

NAPOLEON [with Corsican facetiousness] Kill something and bring me its blood.

GIUSEPPE [grinning] There is nothing but your excellency's horse, the sentinel, the lady upstairs, and my wife.

NAPOLEON Kill your wife.

GIUSEPPE Willingly, your excellency, but unhappily I am not strong enough. She would kill me.

NAPOLEON That will do equally well.

GIUSEPPE Your excellency does me too much honor. [Stretching his hand towards the flask] Perhaps some wine will answer your excellency's purpose.

NAPOLEON [hastily protecting the flask, and becoming quite serious] Wine! No, that would be waste. You are all the same waste! waste! waste! [He marks the map with gravy, using his fork as a pen] Clear away. [He finishes his wine, pushes back his chair, and uses his napkin, stretching his legs and leaning back, but still frowning and thinking]

GIUSEPPE [clearing the table and removing the things to a tray on the sideboard] Every man to his trade, excellency. We innkeepers have plenty of cheap wine; we think nothing of spilling it. You great generals have plenty of cheap blood; you think nothing of spilling it. Is it not so, excellency?

NAPOLEON Blood costs nothing; wine costs money. [He rises and goes to the fireplace]

GIUSEPPE They say you are careful of everything except human life, excellency.

NAPOLEON Human life, my friend, is the only thing that takes care of itself. [He throws himself at his ease on the couch]

GIUSEPPE [admiring him] Ah, excellency, what fools we all are beside you! If I could only find out the secret of your success!

NAPOLEON You would make yourself

Emperor of Italy, eh?

GIUSEPPE Too troublesome, excellency I leave all that to you. Besides, what would become of my inn if I were Emperor? See how you enjoy looking on at me whilst I keep the inn for you and wait on you! Well, I shall enjoy looking on at you whilst you become Emperor of Europe, and govern the country for me. [As he chatters, he takes the cloth off deftly without removing the map, and finally takes the corners in his hands and the middle in his mouth, to fold it up]

NAPOLEON Emperor of Europe, eh? Why only Europe?

GIUSEPPE Why, indeed? Emperor of the world, excellency! Why not? [He folds and rolls up the cloth, emphasizing his phrases by the steps of the process] One man is like another [fold] one battle is like another [At the last fold, he slaps the cloth on the table and deftly rolls it up, adding, by way of peroration] Conquer one conquer all [He takes the cloth to the sideboard, and puts it in a drawer]

NAPOLEON And govern for all, fight for all, be everybody's servant under cover of being everybody's master. Giuseppe

GIUSEPPE [at the sideboard] Excellency? NAPOLEON I forbid you to talk to me about myself

GIUSEPPE [coming to the foot of the couch] Pardon Your excellency is so unlike other great men. It is the subject they like best.

NAPOLEON Well, talk to me about the subject they like next best, whatever that may be.

GIUSEPPE [unabashed] Willingly, your excellency. Has your excellency by any chance caught a glimpse of the lady upstairs?

NAPOLEON [sitting up promptly] How old is she?

GIUSEPPE The right age, excellency. NAPOLEON Do you mean seventeen or thirty?

GIUSEPPE Thirty, excellency.

NAPOLEON Goodlooking?

GIUSEPPE I cannot see with your excellency's eyes every man must judge that for himself. In my opinion, excellency, a fine figure of a lady. [Slyly] Shall I lay the table for her collation here?

NAPOLEON [brusquely, rising] No! My nothing here until the officer for whom I am waiting comes back. [He looks at his watch, and takes to talking to and fro between the fireplace and the vineyard]

GIUSEPPE [with conviction] Excellency believe me, he has been captured by the recursed Austrians. He dare not keep you waiting if he were at liberty.

NAPOLEON [turning at the edge of the shadow of the veranda] Giuseppe if that turns out to be true, it will put me into such a temper that nothing short of hanging you and your whole household, including the lady upstairs, will satisfy me.

GIUSEPPE We are all cheerfully at your excellency's disposal, except the lady. I cannot answer for her, but no lady could resist you, General.

NAPOLEON [sourly, resuming his march] Hm! You will never be hinged. There is no satisfaction in hanging a man who does not object to it.

GIUSEPPE [sympathetically] Not the least in the world, excellency is there? [Napoleon again looks at his watch, evidently growing anxious] Ah, one can see that you are a great man, General. You know how to wait. If it were a corporal now, or a sub-lieutenant, at the end of three minutes he would be swearing, fuming, threatening, pulling the house about our ears.

NAPOLEON Giuseppe your flatteries are insufferable. Go and talk outside. [He sits down again at the table, with his jaws in his hands, and his elbows propped on the map poring over it with a troubled expression]

GIUSEPPE Willingly, your excellency. You shall not be disturbed. [He takes up the tray and prepares to withdraw]

NAPOLEON The moment he comes back, send him to me.

GIUSEPPE Instantaneously, your excellency.

A LADY'S VOICE [calling from some distant part of the inn] Giuseppe! [The voice is very musical, and the two final notes make an ascending interval]

NAPOLEON [startled] Who's that?

GIUSEPPE The lady, excellency.

NAPOLEON The lady upstairs?

GIUSEPPE Yes, excellency. The strange lady.

NAPOLEON Strange? Where does she come from?

GIUSEPPE [with a shrug] Who knows? She arrived here just before your excellency in a hired carriage belonging to the Golden Eagle at Borghetto. By herself, excellency.

No servants A dressing bag and a trunk that is all The postillion says she left a horse at the Golden Eagle A charger, with military trappings

NAPOLEON A woman with a charger! French or Austrian?

GIUSEPPE French, excellency

NAPOLEON Her husband's charger, no doubt Killed at Lodi, poor fellow

THE LADY'S VOICE [the two final notes now making a peremptory descending interval] Giuseppe!

NAPOLEON [rising to listen] That's not the voice of a woman whose husband was killed yesterday.

GIUSEPPE Husbands are not always regretted, excellency [Calling] Coming, lady, coming [He makes for the inner door]

NAPOLEON [arresting him with a strong hand on his shoulder] Stop Let her come

VOICE Giuseppe! [impatiently]

GIUSEPPE Let me go, excellency It is my point of honor as an innkeeper to come when I am called I appeal to you as a soldier

A MAN'S VOICE [outside, at the inn door, shouting] Here, someone Holló! Landlord! Where are you? [Somebody raps vigorously with a whip handle on a bench in the passage]

NAPOLEON [suddenly becoming the commanding officer again and throwing Giuseppe off] My man at last [Pointing to the inner door] Go Attend to your business the lady is calling you [He goes to the fireplace and stands with his back to it with a determined military air]

GIUSEPPE [with bated breath, snatching up his tray] Certainly, excellency [He hurries out by the inner door]

THE MAN'S VOICE [impatiently] Are you all asleep here?

The other door is kicked rudely open A dusty sub-lieutenant bursts into the room He is a tall chuckle-headed young man of 24, with the complexion and style of a man of rank, and a self-assurance on that ground which the French Revolution has failed to shake in the smallest degree He has a thick silly lip, an eager credulous eye, an obstinate nose, and a loud confident voice A young man without fear, without reverence, without imagination, without sense, hopelessly insusceptible to the Napoleonic or any other idea, stupendously egotistical, eminently qualified to rush in where angels fear to tread, yet of a vigorous babbling vitality which bustles him into the thick of things He is just now boiling with vexation, attributable by a superficial observer to his

impatience at not being promptly attended to by the staff of the inn, but in which a more discerning eye can perceive a certain moral depth, indicating a more permanent and momentous grievance On seeing Napoleon, he is sufficiently taken aback to check himself and salute, but he does not betray by his manner any of that prophetic consciousness of Marengo and Austerlitz, Waterloo and St Helena, or the Napoleonic pictures of Delacroix and Meissonier, which later ages expect from him

NAPOLEON [natch in hand] Well, sir, you have come at last Your instructions were that I should arrive here at six, and find you waiting for me with my mail from Paris and with despatches It is now twenty minutes to eight You were sent on this service as a hard rider with the fastest horse in the camp You arrive a hundred minutes late, on foot. Where is your horse?

THE LIEUTENANT [moodily pulling off his gloves and dashing them with his cap and whip on the table] Ah! where indeed? That's just what I should like to know, General [With emotion] You don't know how fond I was of that horse

NAPOLEON [angrily sarcastic] Indeed! [With sudden misgiving] Where are the letters and despatches?

THE LIEUTENANT [importantly, rather pleased than otherwise at having some remarkable news] I don't know

NAPOLEON [unable to believe his ears] You don't know!

LIEUTENANT No more than you do, General Now I suppose I shall be court-martialled Well, I don't mind being court-martialled, but [with solemn determination] I tell you, General, if ever I catch that innocent looking youth, I'll spoil his beauty, the slimy little liar! I'll make a picture of him I'll—

NAPOLEON [advancing from the hearth to the table] What innocent looking youth? Pull yourself together, sir, will you, and give an account of yourself

LIEUTENANT [facing him at the opposite side of the table, leaning on it with his fists] Oh, I'm all right, General I'm perfectly ready to give an account of myself I shall make the court-martial thoroughly understand that the fault was not mine Advantage has been taken of the better side of my nature, and I'm not ashamed of it But with all respect to you as my commanding officer, General, I say again that if ever I set eyes on that son of Satan, I'll—

NAPOLEON [angrily] So you said before

LIEUTENANT [draning himself upright] I say it again Just wait until I catch him Just wait thats all [He folds his arms resolutely, and breathes hard, with compressed lips]

NAPOLEON I am waiting, sir For your explanation

LIEUTENANT [confidently] Youll change your tone, General, when you hear what has happened to me

NAPOLEON Nothing has happened to you, sir you are alive and not disabled Where are the papers entrusted to you?

LIEUTENANT Nothing happened to me! Nothing! He swore eternal brotherhood with me Was that nothing? He said my eyes reminded him of his sister's eyes Was that nothing? He cried—actually cried—over the story of my separation from Angelica Was that nothing? He paid for both bottles of wine, though he only ate bread and grapes himself Perhaps you call that nothing He gave me his pistols and his horse and his despatches—most important despatches—and let me go away with them [Triumphantly, seeing that he has reduced Napoleon to blank stupefaction] Was that nothing?

NAPOLEON [enfeebled by astonishment] What did he do that for?

LIEUTENANT [as if the reason were obvious] To shew his confidence in me, of course [Napoleon's jaw does not exactly drop, but its hinges become nerveless] And I was worthy of his confidence I brought them all back honorably But would you believe it? when I trusted him with my pistols, and my horse, and my despatches—

NAPOLEON What the devil did you do that for?

LIEUTENANT I'm telling you to shew my confidence in him And he betrayed it! abused it! never came back again! The thief! the swindler! the heartless treacherous little blackguard! You call that nothing, I suppose But look here, General [again resorting to the table with his fists for greater emphasis] you may put up with this outrage from the Austrians if you like, but speaking for myself personally, I tell you that if ever I catch—

NAPOLEON [turning on his heel in disgust and irritably resuming his march to and fro] Yes you have said that more than once already

LIEUTENANT [excitedly] More than once! I'll say it fifty times, and whats more, I'll do it Youll see, General I'll shew my confidence in him, so I will I'll—

NAPOLEON Yes, yes, sir no doubt you will What kind of man was he?

LIEUTENANT Well, I should think you ought to be able to tell from his conduct the kind of man he was NAPOLEON Psha! What was he like?

LIEUTENANT Like! He was like—well, you ought to have just seen the fellow that will give you a notion of what he was like He wont be like it five minutes after I catch him, for I tell you that if ever—

NAPOLEON [shouting furiously for the waiter] Giuseppe! [To the Lieutenant, out of all patience] Hold your tongue, sir, if you can

LIEUTENANT [plaintively] I warn you it's no use trying to put the blame on me How was I to know the sort of fellow he was? [He takes a chair from between the sideboard and the outer door, places it near the table, and sits down] If you only knew how hungry and tired I am, youd have more consideration

GIUSEPPE [returning] What is it, excellency?

NAPOLEON [struggling with his temper] Take this—this officer Feed him, and put him to bed, if necessary When he is in his right mind again, find out what has happened to him and bring me word [To the Lieutenant] Consider yourself under arrest, sir

LIEUTENANT [with sully stiffness] I was prepared for that It takes a gentleman to understand a gentleman [He throws his sword on the table]

GIUSEPPE [with sympathetic concern] Have you been attacked by the Austrians, lieutenant? Dear! dear! dear!

LIEUTENANT [contemptuously] Attacked! I could have broken his back between my finger and thumb I wish I had, now No it was by appealing to the better side of my nature thats what I cant get over He said he'd never met a man he liked so much as me He put his handkerchief round my neck because a gnat bit me, and my stock was chafing it Look! [He pulls a handkerchief from his stock Giuseppe takes it and examines it]

GIUSEPPE [to Napoleon] A lady's handkerchief, excellency [He smells it] Perfumed

NAPOLEON Eh? [He takes it and looks at it attentively] Hm! [He smells it] Hm! [He walks thoughtfully across the room looking at the handkerchief, which he finally sticks in the breast]

No servants A dressing bag and a trunk that is all The postillion says she left a horse at the Golden Eagle A charger, with military trappings

NAPOLEON A woman with a charger! French or Austrian?

GIUSEPPE French, excellency

NAPOLEON Her husband's charger, no doubt Killed at Lodi, poor fellow

VOICE Giuseppe! [impatiently]

GIUSEPPE Let me go, excellency It is my point of honor as an innkeeper to come when I am called I appeal to you as a soldier

A MAN'S VOICE [outside, at the inn door, shouting] Here, someone Holló! Landlord! Where are you? [Somebody raps vigorously with a whip handle on a bench in the passage]

NAPOLEON [suddenly becoming the commanding officer again and throwing Giuseppe off] My man at last [Pointing to the inner door] Go Attend to your business the lady is calling you [He goes to the fireplace and stands with his back to it with a determined military air]

GIUSEPPE [with bated breath, snatching up his tray] Certainly, excellency [He hurries out by the inner door]

The other door is kicked rudely open A dusty sub-lieutenant bursts into the room He is a tall chuckle-headed young man of 24, with the complexion and style of a man of rank, and a self-assurance on that ground which the French Revolution has failed to shake in the smallest degree He has a thick silly lip, an eager credulous eye, an obstinate nose, and a loud confident voice A young man without fear, without reverence, without imagination, without sense, hopelessly insusceptible to the Napoleonic or any other idea, stupendously egotistical, eminently qualified to rush in where angels fear to tread, yet of a vigorous babbling vitality which bustles him into the thick of things He is just now boiling with vexation, attributable by a superficial observer to his

impatience at not being promptly attended to by the staff of the inn, but in which a more discerning eye can perceive a certain moral depth, indicating a more permanent and momentous grievance On seeing Napoleon, he is sufficiently taken aback to check himself and salute, but he does not betray by his manner any of that prophetic consciousness of Marengo and Austerlitz, Waterloo and St Helena, or the Napoleonic pictures of Delaroché and Meissomer, which later ages expect from him

NAPOLEON [natch in hand] Well, sir, you have come at last Your instructions were that I should arrive here at six, and find you waiting for me with my mail from Paris and with despatches It is now twenty minutes to eight You were sent on this service as a hard rider with the fastest horse in the camp You arrive a hundred minutes late, on foot Where is your horse?

THE LIEUTENANT [moody pulling off his gloves and dashing them with his cap and whip on the table] Ah! where indeed? That's just what I should like to know, General [With emotion] You don't know how fond I was of that horse

NAPOLEON [angrily sarcastic] Indeed! [With sudden misgiving] Where are the letters and despatches?

THE LIEUTENANT [importantly, rather pleased than otherwise at having some remarkable news] I don't know

NAPOLEON [unable to believe his ears] You don't know!

LIEUTENANT No more than you do, General Now I suppose I shall be court-martialled Well, I don't mind being court-martialled, but [with solemn determination] I tell you, General, if ever I catch that innocent looking youth, I'll spoil his beauty, the slimy little liar! I'll make a picture of him I'll—

NAPOLEON [advancing from the hearth to the table] What innocent looking youth? Pull yourself together, sir, will you, and give an account of yourself

LIEUTENANT [facing him at the opposite side of the table, leaning on it with his fists] Oh, I'm all right, General I'm perfectly ready to give an account of myself I shall make the court-martial thoroughly understand that the fault was not mine Advantage has been taken of the better side of my nature, and I'm not ashamed of it But with all respect to you as my commanding officer, General, I say again that if ever I set eyes on that son of SATIN, I'll—

NAPOLÉON [angrily] So you said before
LIEUTENANT [draining himself upright] I say it again Just wait until I catch him Just wait that's all [He folds his arms resolutely, and breathes hard, with compressed lips]

NAPOLÉON I am waiting, sir For your explanation

LIEUTENANT [confidently] You'll change your tone, General, when you hear what has happened to me

NAPOLÉON Nothing has happened to you, sir you are alive and not disabled Where are the papers entrusted to you?

LIEUTENANT Nothing happened to me!
Nothing! He swore eternal brotherhood with me Was that nothing? He said my eyes reminded him of his sister's eyes Was that nothing? He cried—actually cried—over the story of my separation from Angelica Was that nothing? He paid for both bottles of wine, though he only ate bread and grapes himself Perhaps you call that nothing He gave me his pistols and his horse and his despatches—most important despatches—and let me go away with them [Triumphantly, seeing that he has reduced Napoleon to blank stupefaction] Was that nothing?

NAPOLÉON [enfeebled by astonishment] What did he do that for?

LIEUTENANT [as if the reason were obvious]
To shew his confidence in me, of course [Napoleon's jaw does not exactly drop, but its hinges become nerveless] And I was worthy of his confidence I brought them all back honorably But would you believe it? when I trusted him with my pistols, and my horse, and my despatches—

NAPOLÉON What the devil did you do that for?

LIEUTENANT I'm telling you to shew my confidence in him And he betrayed it! abused it! never came back again! The thief! the swindler! the heartless treacherous little blackguard! You call that nothing, I suppose But look here, General [again resorting to the table with his fists for greater emphasis] you may put up with this outrage from the Austrians if you like, but speaking for myself personally, I tell you that if ever I catch—

NAPOLÉON [turning on his heel in disgust and irritably resuming his march to and fro] Yes you have said that more than once already

LIEUTENANT [excitedly] More than once! I'll say it fifty times, and what's more, I'll do it You'll see, General I'll shew my confidence in him, so I will I'll—

NAPOLÉON Yes, yes, sir no doubt you will
What kind of man was he?

LIEUTENANT Well, I should think you ought to be able to tell from his conduct the kind of man he was

NAPOLÉON Psha! What was he like?

LIEUTENANT Like! He was like—well, you ought to have just seen the fellow that will give you a notion of what he was like He won't be like it five minutes after I catch him, for I tell you that if ever—

NAPOLÉON [shouting furiously for the in-keeper] Giuseppe! [To the Lieutenant, out of all patience] Hold your tongue, sir, if you can

LIEUTENANT [plaintively] I warn you it's no use trying to put the blame on me How was I to know the sort of fellow he was? [He takes a chair from between the sideboard and the outer door, places it near the table, and sits down] If you only knew how hungry and tired I am, you'd have more consideration

GIUSEPPE [returning] What is it, excellency?

NAPOLÉON [struggling with his temper] Take this—this officer Feed him, and put him to bed, if necessary When he is in his right mind again, find out what has happened to him and bring me word [To the Lieutenant] Consider yourself under arrest, sir

LIEUTENANT [with sully stiffness] I was prepared for that It takes a gentleman to understand a gentleman [He throws his sword on the table]

GIUSEPPE [with sympathetic concern] Have you been attacked by the Austrians, lieutenant? Dear! dear! dear!

LIEUTENANT [contemptuously] Attacked! I could have broken his back between my finger and thumb I wish I had, now No it was by appealing to the better side of my nature that's what I can't get over He said he'd never met a man he liked so much as me He put his handkerchief round my neck because a gnat bit me, and my stock was chafing it Look! [He pulls a handkerchief from his stock Giuseppe takes it and examines it]

GIUSEPPE [to Napoleon] A lady's handkerchief, excellency [He smells it] Perfumed

NAPOLÉON Eh? [He takes it and looks at it attentively] Hm! [He smells it] Ha! [He walks thoughtfully across the room, looking at the handkerchief, which he finally sticks in the breast]

of his coat]

LIEUTENANT Good enough for him, anyhow I noticed that he had a woman's hands when he touched my neck, with his coaxing fawning ways, the mean effeminate little hound [Lowering his voice with thrilling intensity] But mark my words, General If ever—

THE LADY'S VOICE [outside, as before] Giuseppe!

LIEUTENANT [petrified] What was that?

GIUSEPPE Only a lady upstairs, lieutenant, calling me

LIEUTENANT Lady!

VOICE Giuseppe, Giuseppe where are you?

LIEUTENANT [murderously] Give me that sword [He snatches up the sword and draws it]

GIUSEPPE [rushing forward and seizing his right arm] What are you thinking of, lieutenant? It's a lady dont you hear? It's a woman's voice

LIEUTENANT It's his voice, I tell you Let me go [He breaks away, and rushes to the edge of the veranda, where he posts himself, sword in hand, watching the door like a cat watching a mousehole]

It opens, and the Strange Lady steps in She is tall and extraordinarily graceful, with a delicately intelligent, apprehensive, questioning face perception in the brow, sensitiveness in the nostrils, character in the chin all keen, refined, and original She is very feminine, but by no means weak the lithe tender figure is hung on a strong frame the hands and feet, neck and shoulders, are useful vigorous members, of full size in proportion to her stature, which perceptibly exceeds that of Napoleon and the innkeeper, and leaves her at no disadvantage with the lieutenant Only, her elegance and radiant charm keep the secret of her size and strength She is not, judging by her dress, an admirer of the latest fashions of the Directory, or perhaps she uses up her old dresses for travelling At all events she wears no jacket with extravagant lappels, no Greco-Talhen sham chiton, nothing, indeed, that the Princesse de Lamballe might not have worn Her dress of flowered silk is long waisted, with a Watteau pleat behind, but with the paniers reduced to mere rudiments, as she is too tall for them It is cut low in the neck, where it is eked out by a creamy fichu She is fair, with golden brown hair and grey eyes

She enters with the self-possession of a woman accustomed to the privileges of rank and beauty The innkeeper, who has excellent natural manners is highly appreciative of her Napoleon is smitten self-conscious His color deepens he becomes stiffer and less at ease than before She is advancing in an infinitely well bred manner to pay her respects to him when the lieutenant pounces on her and seizes her right wrist As she recognizes him, she becomes deadly pale, There is no mistaking her expression a revelation of some fatal error, utterly unexpected, has suddenly appalled her in the midst of tranquillity, security, and victory The next moment a wave of angry color rushes up from beneath the creamy fichu and drowns her whole face One can see that she is blushing all over her body Even the lieutenant, ordinarily incapable of observation, can see a thing when it is painted red for him Interpreting the blush as the involuntary confession of black deceit confronted with its victim, he addresses her in a loud crow of retributive triumph

LIEUTENANT So Ive got you, my lad So youve disguised yourself, have you? [In a voice of thunder, releasing her wrist] Take off that skirt

GIUSEPPE [remonstrating] Oh, lieutenant!

LADY [affrighted, but highly indignant at his having dared to touch her] Gentlemen I appeal to you [To Napoleon] You, sir, are an officer a general You will protect me, will you not?

LIEUTENANT Never you mind him, General Leave me to deal with him

NAPOLEON With him! With whom, sir? Why do you treat this lady in such a fashion?

LIEUTENANT Lady! He's a man! the man I shewed my confidence in [Raising his sword] Here, you—

LADY [running behind Napoleon and in her agitation clasping to her breast the arm which he extends before her as a fortification] Oh, thank you, General Keep him away

NAPOLEON Nonsense, sir This is certainly a lady [she suddenly drops his arm and blushes again], and you are under arrest Put down your sword, sir, instantly

LIEUTENANT General I tell you he's an Austrian spy He passed himself off on me as one of General Masséna's staff this afternoon, and now he's passing himself off on you as a woman Am I to believe my own eyes or not?

LADY General it must be my brother He is on General Masséna's staff He is very like me

LIEUTENANT [his mind giving way] Do you mean to say that youre not your brother, but your sister? the sister who was so like me? who had my beautiful blue eyes? It's a lie your eyes are not like mine they're exactly like your own

NAPOLEON [with contained exasperation] Lieutenant will you obey my orders and leave the room, since you are convinced at last that this is no gentleman?

LIEUTENANT Gentleman! I should think not. No gentleman would have abused my confidence—

NAPOLEON [out of all patience] That will do, sir, do you hear? Will you leave the room? I order you to leave the room

LADY Oh pray let me go instead

NAPOLEON [dryly] Excuse me, madam. With all possible respect for your brother, I do not yet understand what an officer on General Massena's staff wants with my letters. I have some questions to put to you

GIUSEPPE [disrespectfully] Come, lieutenant [He opens the door]

LIEUTENANT I'm off General take warning by me be on your guard against the better side of your nature [To the lady] Madam my apologies I thought you were the same person, only of the opposite sex, and that naturally misled me

LADY [recovering her good humor] It was not your fault, was it? I'm so glad you're not angry with me any longer, lieutenant [She offers her hand]

LIEUTENANT [bending gallantly to kiss it] Oh, madam, not the least— [Checking himself and looking at it] You have your brother's hand And the same sort of ring!

LADY [sneetly] We are twins

LIEUTENANT That accounts for it [He kisses her hand] A thousand pardons I didn't mind about the despatches at all that's more the General's affair than mine it was the abuse of my confidence through the better side of my nature [Taking his cap, gloves and whip from the table and going] You'll excuse my leaving you, General, I hope. Very sorry, I'm sure [He talks himself out of the room Giuseppe follows him and shuts the door]

NAPOLEON [looking after them with concentrated irritation] Idiot!

The Strange Lady smiles sympathetically. He comes, frowning down the room between the table and the fireplace, all his awkwardness gone now that he is alone with her LADY How can I thank you, General, for your protection?

NAPOLEON [turning on her suddenly] My despatches come! [He puts out his hand for them]

LADY General! [She involuntarily puts her hands on her sleeve as if to protect something there]

NAPOLEON You tricked that blockhead out of them. You disguised yourself as a man. I want my despatches. They are there in the bosom of your dress, under your hands

LADY [quickly removing her hands] Oh, how unkindly you are speaking to me! [She takes her handkerchief from her sleeve] You frighten me [She touches her eyes as if to wipe away a tear]

NAPOLEON I see you don't know me, madam, or you would save yourself the trouble of pretending to cry

LADY [producing an effect of smiling through her tears] Yes, I do know you. You are the famous General Buonaparte [She gives the name a marked Italian pronunciation Bwan-na-parr-le]

NAPOLEON [angrily, with the French pronunciation] Bonaparte, Madam, Bonaparte. The papers, if you please

LADY But I assure you— [He snatches the handkerchief rudely] General! [indignantly]

NAPOLEON [taking the other handkerchief from his breast] You lent one of your handkerchiefs to my lieutenant when you robbed him [He looks at the two handkerchiefs] They match one another [He smells them] The same scent [He flings them down on the table] I am waiting for my despatches. I shall take them, if necessary, with as little ceremony as I took the handkerchief

LADY [in dignified reproof] General do you threaten women?

NAPOLEON [bluntly] Yes

LADY [disconcerted, trying to gain time] But I don't understand I—

NAPOLEON You understand perfectly. You came here because your Austrian employers calculated that I was six leagues away. I am always to be found where my enemies don't expect me. You have walked into the lion's den. Come! you are a brave woman. Be a sensible one. I have no time to waste. The papers [He advances a step ominously]

LADY [breaking down in the childish rage of impotence, and throwing herself in tears on the chair left beside the table by the lieutenant] I brave! How little you know! I have spent the day in an agony of fear. I have a pain here from the tightening of my heart at every suspicious look, every threatening movement Do you think everyone is as brave as you? Oh, why will not you brave people do the brave things? Why do you leave them to us, who have no courage at all? I'm not brave I shrink from violence danger makes me miserable

NAPOLEON [interested] Then why have you thrust yourself into danger?

LADY Because there is no other way I can trust nobody else And now it is all useless all because of you, who have no fear because you have no heart, no feeling, no— [She breaks off, and throws herself on her knees] Ah, General, let me go let me go without asking any questions You shall have your despatches and letters I swear it

NAPOLEON [holding out his hand] Yes I am waiting for them

She gasps, daunted by his ruthless promptitude into despair of moving him by cajolery She looks up perplexedly at him, racking her brains for some device to outwit him He meets her regard inflexibly

LADY [rising at last with a quiet little sigh] I will get them for you They are in my room [She turns to the door]

NAPOLEON I shall accompany you, madam

LADY [drawing herself up with a noble air of offended delicacy] I cannot permit you, General, to enter my chamber

NAPOLEON Then you shall stay here, madam, whilst I have your chamber searched for my papers

LADY [spitefully, openly giving up her plan] You may save yourself the trouble They are not there

NAPOLEON No I have already told you where they are [pointing to her breast]

LADY [with pretty piteousness] General I only want to keep one little private letter Only one Let me have it

NAPOLEON [cold and stern] Is that a reasonable demand, madam?

LADY [encouraged by his not refusing point-blank] No, but that is why you must grant it Are your own demands reasonable? thousands of lives for the sake of your victories, your ambitions, your destiny! And what I ask is such a little thing And I am only a weak woman, and you a brave man [She looks at him with her eyes full of tender pleading, and is about to kneel to him again]

NAPOLEON [brusquely] Get up, get up [He turns moodily away and takes a turn across the room, pausing for a moment to say, over his shoulder] You're talking nonsense, and you know it [She sits down submissively on the couch When he turns and sees her despair, he feels that his victory is complete, and that he may now indulge in a little play with his victim He comes back and sits beside her She looks alarmed and moves a little away from him, but a ray of rallying hope beams from her eye He begins like a man enjoying some secret joke] How do you know I am a brave man?

LADY [amazed] You! General Buonaparte [Italian pronunciation]

NAPOLEON Yes, I, General Bonaparte [emphasizing the French pronunciation]

LADY Oh, how can you ask such a question? you! who stood only two days ago at the bridge at Lodi, with the air full of death, fighting a duel with cannons across the river! [Shuddering] Oh, you do brave things

NAPOLEON So do you

LADY I! [With a sudden odd thought] Oh! Are you a coward?

NAPOLEON [laughing grimly and slapping his knees] That is the one question you must never ask a soldier The sergeant asks after the recruit's height, his age, his wind, his limb, but never after his courage

LADY [as if she had found it no laughing matter] Ah, you can laugh at fear Then you don't know what fear is NAPOLEON Tell me this Suppose you could have got that letter by coming to me over the bridge at Lodi the day before yesterday! Suppose there had been no other way, and that this was a sure way—if only you escaped the cannon! [She shudders and covers her eyes for a moment with her hands] Would you have been afraid?

LADY Oh, horribly afraid, agonizingly afraid [She presses her hands on her heart] It hurts only to imagine it NAPOLEON [inflexibly] Would you have come for the despatches?

LADY [overcome by the imagined horror] Don't ask me I must have come

NAPOLEON Why?

LADY Because I must Because there would have been no other way

NAPOLEON [with conviction] Because you would have wanted my letter enough to bear your fear [He rises suddenly, and deliberately poses for an oration] There is only one universal passion fear Of all the thousand qualities a man may have, the only one you will find as certainly in the youngest drummerboy in my army as in me, is fear. It is fear that makes men fight; it is indifference that makes them run away. Fear is the main-spring of war. Fear! I know fear well, better than you, better than any woman. I once saw a regiment of good Swiss soldiers massacred by a mob in Paris because I was afraid to interfere. I felt myself a coward to the tips of my toes as I looked on at it. Seven months ago I revenged my shame by pounding that mob to death with cannon balls. Well, what of that? Has fear ever held a man back from anything he really wanted—or a woman either? Never. Come with me, and I will shew you twenty thousand cowards who will risk death every day for the price of a glass of brandy. And do you think there are no women in the army, braver than the men, though their lives are worth more? Pshaw! I think nothing of your fear or your bravery. If you had had to come across to me at Lodi, you would not have been afraid once on the bridge, every other feeling would have gone down before the necessity—the necessity—for making your way to my side and getting what you wanted.

And now, suppose you had done all this! suppose you had come safely out with that letter in your hand, knowing that when the hour came, your fear had tightened, not your heart, but your grip of your own purpose! that it had ceased to be fear, and had become strength, penetration, vigilance, iron resolution! how would you answer then if you were asked whether you were a coward?

LADY [rising] Ah, you are a hero, a real hero.

NAPOLEON Pooh! there's no such thing as a real hero [He strolls about the room, making light of her enthusiasm, but by no means displeased with himself for having evoked it].

LADY Ah yes, there is. There is a difference between what you call my bravery and yours. You wanted to win the battle of Lodi for yourself and not for anyone else, didn't you?

NAPOLEON Of course [Suddenly recollecting himself]. Stop no [He pulls himself piously together, and says, like a man conducting a religious service]. I am only the servant of the French republic, following humbly in the footsteps of the heroes of classical antiquity. I win battles for humanity for my country, not for myself.

LADY [disappointed] Oh, then you are only a womanish hero after all [She sits down again, all her enthusiasm gone].

NAPOLEON [greatly astonished] Womanish!

LADY [listlessly] Yes, like me [With deep melancholy]. Do you think that if I wanted those despatches only for myself, I dare venture into a battle for them? No, if that were all, I should not have the courage to ask to see you at your hotel, even. My courage is mere slavishness; it is of no use to me for my own purposes. It is only through love, through pity, through the instinct to save and protect someone else, that I can do the things that terrify me.

NAPOLEON [contemptuously] Pshaw! [He turns slightly away from her].

LADY Aha! now you see that I'm not really brave [Relapsing into petulant listlessness]. But what right have you to despise me if you only win your battles for others? for your country! through patriotism! That is what I call womanish; it is so like a Frenchman!

NAPOLEON [furiously] I am no Frenchman.

LADY [innocently] I thought you said you won the battle of Lodi for your country, General Bu— shall I pronounce it in Italian or French?

NAPOLEON You are presuming on my patience, madam. I was born a French subject, but not in France.

LADY [affecting a marked access of interest in him] You were not born a subject at all, I think.

NAPOLEON [greatly pleased] Eh? Eh? You think not.

LADY I am sure of it.

NAPOLEON Well, well, perhaps not [The self-complacency of his assent catches his own ear. He stops short, reddening. Then, composing himself into a solemn attitude, modelled on the heroes of classical antiquity, he takes a high moral tone]. But we must not live for ourselves alone, little one. Never forget that we should always think of others, and work for others, and lead and govern them for their own good. Self-sacrifice is the foundation of all true nobility of character.

LADY [again relaxing her attitude with a sigh] Ah, it is easy to see that you have never tried it, General.

NAPOLEON [indignantly, forgetting all about Brutus and Scipio] What do you mean by that speech, madam?

LADY Havnt you noticed that people always exaggerate the value of the things they havnt got? The poor think they need nothing but riches to be quite happy and good. Everybody worships truth, purity, unselfishness, for the same reason because they have no experience of them. Oh, if they only knew!

NAPOLÉON [with angry decision] If they only knew! Pray do you know?

LADY Yes I had the misfortune to be born good [Glancing up at him for a moment] And it is a misfortune, I can tell you, General. I really am truthful and unselfish and all the rest of it, and it's nothing but cowardice, want of character, want of being really, strongly, positively oneself.

NAPOLÉON Ha? [turning to her quickly with a flash of strong interest]

LADY [earnestly, with rising enthusiasm] What is the secret of your power? Only that you believe in yourself. You can fight and conquer for yourself and for nobody else. You are not afraid of your own destiny. You teach us what we all might be if we had the will and courage, and that [suddenly sinking on her knees before him] is why we all begin to worship you [She kisses his hands].

NAPOLÉON [embarrassed] Tut! tut! Pray rise, madam.

LADY Do not refuse my homage: it is your right. You will be Emperor of France—

NAPOLÉON [hurriedly] Take care! Treason!

LADY [insisting] Yes, Emperor of France, then of Europe, perhaps of the world. I am only the first subject to swear allegiance [Again kissing his hand]. My Emperor!

NAPOLÉON [olercome, raising her] Pray! pray! No, no, this is folly. Come be calm, be calm [Petting her]. There! there! my girl.

LADY [struggling with happy tears] Yes, I know it is an impertinence in me to tell you what you must know far better than I do. But you are not angry with me, are you?

NAPOLÉON Angry! No, no, not a bit, not a bit. Come, you are a very clever and sensible and interesting woman [He pats her on the cheek]. Shall we be friends?

LADY [enraptured] Your friend! You will let me be your friend! Oh! [She offers him both her hands with a radiant smile]. You see I shew my confidence in you.

This incautious echo of the lieutenant undoes her. Napoleon starts, his eyes flash, he utters a yell of rage.

NAPOLÉON What!!!

LADY Whats the matter?

NAPOLÉON Shew your confidence in me! So that I may shew my confidence in you in return by letting you give me the slip with the despatches, eh? Ah, Dahla, Dahla, you have been trying your tricks on me, and I have been as gross a gull as my jackass of a lieutenant [Menacingly]. Come the despatches. Quick! I am not to be trifled with now.

LADY [flying round the couch] General—

NAPOLÉON Quick, I tell you [He passes swiftly up the middle of the room and intercepts her as she makes for the vineyard].

LADY [at bay, confronting him and giving way to her temper] You dare address me in that tone.

NAPOLÉON Dare!

LADY Yes, dare. Who are you that you should presume to speak to me in that coarse way. Oh, the vile, vulgar Corsican adventurer comes out in you very easily.

NAPOLÉON [beside himself] You she devil! [Savagely]. Once more, and only once, will you give me those papers or shall I tear them from you?—by force!

LADY Tear them from me by force!

As he glares at her like a tiger about to spring, she crosses her arms on her breast in the attitude of a martyr. The gesture and pose instantly awaken his theatrical instinct: he forgets his rage in the desire to shew her that in acting, too, she has met her match. He keeps her a moment in suspense, then suddenly clears up his countenance, puts his hands behind him with provoking coolness, looks at her up and down a couple of times, takes a pinch of snuff, wipes his fingers carefully and puts up his handkerchief, her heroic pose becoming more and more ridiculous all the time.

NAPOLÉON [at last] Well?

LADY [disconcerted, but with her arms still crossed devotedly] Well, what are you going to do?

NAPOLÉON Spoil your attitude.

LADY You brute! [Abandoning the attitude, she comes to the end of the couch, where she turns with her back to it, leaning against it and facing him with her hands behind her].

NAPOLÉON Ah, thats better. Now listen to me. I like you. Whats more, I value your respect.

LADY You value what you have not got, then.

NAPOLEON I shall have it presently Now attend to me Suppose I were to allow myself to be abashed by the respect due to your sex, your beauty, your heroism and all the rest of it! Suppose I, with nothing but such sentimental stuff to stand between these muscles of mine and those papers which you have about you, and which I want and mean to have! suppose I, with the prize within my grasp, were to falter and sneak away with my hands empty, or, what would be worse, cover up my weakness by playing the magnanimous hero, and sparing you the violence I dared not use! would you not despise me from the depths of your woman's soul? Would any woman be such a fool? Well, Bonaparte can rise to the situation and act like a woman when it is necessary Do you understand?

The lady, without speaking, stands upright, and takes a packet of papers from her bosom For a moment she has an intense impulse to dash them in his face But her good breeding cuts her off from any vulgar method of relief She hands them to him politely, only averting her head The moment he takes them, she hurries across to the other side of the room, sits down, and covers her face with her hands

NAPOLEON [gloating over the papers] Aha! That's right That's right [Before he opens them, he looks at her and says] Excuse me [He sees that she is hiding her face] Very angry with me, eh? [He unties the packet, the seal of which is already broken, and puts it on the table to examine its contents]

LADY [quietly, taking down her hands and shewing that she is not crying, but only thinking] No You were right But I am sorry for you NAPOLEON [pausing in the act of taking the uppermost paper from the packet] Sorry for me! Why?

LADY I am going to see you lose your honor

NAPOLEON Hm! Nothing worse than that? [He takes up the paper]

LADY And your happiness

NAPOLEON Happiness! Happiness is the most tedious thing in the world to me Should I be what I am if I cared for happiness? Anything else?

LADY Nothing

NAPOLEON Good

LADY Except that you will cut a very foolish figure in the eyes of France

NAPOLEON [quickly] What? [The hand unfolding the paper involuntarily stops The lady looks at him enigmatically, in tranquil silence He throws the letter down and breaks out into a torrent of scolding] What do you mean? Eh? Are you at your tricks again? Do you think I don't know what these papers contain? I'll tell you First, my information as to Beaulieu's retreat There are only two things he can do—leather-brained idiot that he is!—shut himself up in Mantua or violate the neutrality of Venice by taking Peschiera You are one of old Leatherbrain's spies he has discovered that he has been betrayed, and has sent you to intercept the information at all hazards As if that could save him from me, the old fool! The other papers are only my private letters from Paris, of which you know nothing

LADY [prompt and businesslike] General let us make a fair division Take the information your spies have sent you about the Austrian army, and give me the Paris correspondence That will content me

NAPOLEON [his breath taken away by the coolness of the proposal] A fair di— [he gasps] It seems to me, madam, that you have come to regard my letters as your own property, of which I am trying to rob you

LADY [earnestly] No on my honor I ask for no letter of yours not a word that has been written by you or to you That packet contains a stolen letter a letter written by a woman to a man a man not her husband a letter that means disgrace, infamy—

NAPOLEON A love letter?

LADY [bitter-sweetly] What else but a love letter could stir up so much hate?

NAPOLEON Why is it sent to me? To put the husband in my power, eh?

LADY No, no it can be of no use to you I swear that it will cost you nothing to give it to me It has been sent to you out of sheer malice solely to injure the woman who wrote it

NAPOLEON Then why not send it to her husband instead of to me?

LADY [completely taken aback] Oh! [Sinking back into the chair] I—I don't know [She breaks down]

NAPOLEON Aha! I thought so a little romance to get the papers back Per Bacco, I can't help admiring you I wish I could be like that It would save me a great deal of trouble

LADY [wringing her hands] Oh, how I wish I really had told you some lie! You would have believed me then The truth is the one thing nobody will believe NAPOLEON [with coarse familiarity, treating her as if she were a vivandiere] Capital! Capital! [He puts his hands behind him on the table, and lifts himself on to it, sitting with his arms akimbo and his legs wide apart] Come I am a true Corsican in my love for stories But I could tell them better than you if I set my mind to it Next time you are asked why a letter compromising a wife should not be sent to her husband, answer simply that the husband wouldnt read it Do you suppose, you goose, that a man wants to be compelled by public opinion to make a scene, to fight a duel, to break up his household, to injure his career by a scandal, when he can avoid it all by taking care not to know?

LADY [revolted] Suppose that packet contained a letter about your own wife?

NAPOLEON [offended, coming off the table] You are impertinent, madam

LADY [humbly] I beg your pardon Cæsar's wife is above suspicion

NAPOLEON [with a deliberate assumption of superiority] You have committed an indiscretion I pardon you In future, do not permit yourself to introduce real persons in your romances

LADY [politely ignoring a speech which is to her only a breach of good manners] General there really is a woman's letter there [Pointing to the packet] Give it to me

NAPOLEON [with brute conciseness] Why?

LADY She is an old friend we were at school together She has written to me imploring me to prevent the letter falling into your hands

NAPOLEON Why has it been sent to me?

LADY Because it compromises the director Barras

NAPOLEON [frowning, evidently startled] Barras! [Haughtily] Take care, madam The director Barras is my attached personal friend

LADY [nodding placidly] Yes You became friends through your wife

NAPOLEON Again! Have I not forbidden you to speak of my wife? [She keeps looking curiously at him, taking no account of the rebuke More and more irritated, he drops his haughty manner of which he is himself somewhat impatient, and says suspiciously, lowering his voice] Who is this woman with whom you sympathize so deeply?

LADY Oh, General! How could I tell you that?

NAPOLEON [ill humoredly, beginning to walk about again in angry perplexity] Ay, ay stand by one another You are all the same, you women

LADY [indignantly] We are not all the same, any more than you are Do you think that if I loved another man, I should pretend to go on loving my husband, or be afraid to tell him or all the world? But this woman is not made that way She governs men by cheating them, and they like it, and let her govern them [She turns her back to him in disdain]

NAPOLEON [not attending to her] Barras? Barras? [Very threateningly, his face darkening] Take care Take care do you hear? You may go too far LADY [innocently turning her face to him] Whats the matter?

NAPOLEON What are you hinting at? Who is this woman?

LADY [meeting his angry searching gaze with tranquil indifference as she sits looking up at him] A vain, silly, extravagant creature, with a very able and ambitious husband who knows her through and through knows that she has lied to him about her age her income, her social position, about everything that silly women lie about knows that she is incapable of fidelity to any principle or any person, and yet cannot help loving her—cannot help his man's instinct to make use of her for his own advancement with Barras

NAPOLEON [in a stealthy coldly furious whisper] This is your revenge, you she cat, for having had to give me the letters

LADY Nonsense! Or do you mean that you are that sort of man?

NAPOLEON [exasperated, clasps his hands behind him, his fingers twitching, and says, as he walks irritably away from her to the fireplace] This woman will drive me out of my senses [To her] Begone

LADY [seated immovably] Not without that letter

NAPOLEON Begone, I tell you. [Walking from the fireplace to the vineyard and back to the table] You shall have no letter I dont like you Youre a detestable woman, and as ugly as Satan I dont choose to be pestered by strange women Be off [He turns his back on her In quiet amusement, she leans her cheek on her hand and laughs at him He turns again, angrily rock- ing her] Ha! ha! ha! What are you laughing at?

LADY At you, General I have often seen persons of your sex getting into a pet and behaving like children, but I never saw a really great man do it before NAPOLÉON [brutally, flinging the words in her face] Psha! Flattery! Flattery! Coarse, impudent flattery!

LADY [springing up with a bright flush in her cheeks] Oh, you are too bad Keep your letters Read the story of your own dishonor in them, and much good may they do you Goodbye [She goes indignantly towards the inner door]

NAPOLÉON My own—! Stop Come back Come back, I order you [She proudly disregards his savagely peremptory tone and continues on her way to the door He rushes at her, seizes her by the arm, and drags her back] Now, what do you mean? Explain Explain, I tell you, or— [threatening her She looks at him with unflinching defiance] Rrrr! you obstinate devil, you [Throwing her arm away] Why cant you answer a civil question?

LADY [deeply offended by his violence] Why do you ask me? You have the explanation

NAPOLÉON Where?

LADY [pointing to the letters on the table] There You have only to read it

He snatches the packet up, hesitates, looks at her suspiciously, and throws it down again

NAPOLÉON You seem to have forgotten your solicitude for the honor of your old friend

LADY I do not think she runs any risk now She does not quite understand her husband

NAPOLÉON I am to read the letter, then? [He stretches out his hand as if to take up the packet again, with his eye on her]

LADY I do not see how you can very well avoid doing so now [He instantly withdraws his hand] Oh, dont be afraid You will find many interesting things in it

NAPOLÉON For instance?

LADY For instance, a duel with Barras, a domestic scenc, a broken household, a public scandal, a checked career, all sorts of things

NAPOLÉON Hm! [He looks at her, takes up the packet and looks at it, pursing his lips and balancing it in his hand, looks at her again, passes the packet into his left hand and puts it behind his back, raising his right to scratch the back of his head as he turns and goes up to the edge of the vineyard, where he stands for a moment looking out into the vines, deep in thought The Lady watches him in silence, somewhat slightly Suddenly he turns and comes back again, full of force and decision] I grant your request, madam Your courage and resolution deserve to succeed Take the letters for which you have fought so well, and remember henceforth that you found the vile vulgar Corsican adventurer as generous to the vanquished after the battle as he was resolute in the face of the enemy before it [He offers her the packet]

LADY [without taking it, looking hard at him] What are you at now, I wonder? [He dashes the packet furiously to the floor] Aha! Ive spoilt that attitude, I think [She makes him a pretty mocking curtsy]

NAPOLÉON [snatching it up again] Will you take the letters and begone [advancing and thrusting them upon her]

LADY [escaping round the table] No I dont want your letters

NAPOLÉON Ten minutes ago, nothing else would satisfy you

LADY [keeping the table carefully between them] Ten minutes ago you had not insulted me beyond all bearing

NAPOLÉON I— [swallowing his spleen] I apologize

LADY [coolly] Thanks [With forced politeness he offers her the packet across the table She retreats a step out of its reach and says] But dont you want to know whether the Austrians are at Mantua or Peschiera?

NAPOLÉON I have already told you that I can conquer my enemies without the aid of spies, madam

LADY And the letter? dont you want to read that?

NAPOLÉON You have said that it is not addressed to me I am not in the habit of reading other people's letters [He again offers the packet]

LADY In that case there can be no objection to your keeping it All I wanted was to prevent your reading it [Cheerfully] Good afternoon, General [She turns coolly towards the inner door]

NAPOLÉON [angrily flinging the packet on the couch] Heaven grant me patience! [He goes determinedly to the door, and places himself before it] Have you any sense of personal danger? Or are you one of those women who like to be beaten black and blue?

LADY Thank you, General I have no doubt the sensation is very voluptuous, but I had rather not I simply want to go home that's all I was wicked enough to steal your despatches, but you have got them back, and you have forgiven me, because [delicately reproducing his rhetorical cadence] you are as generous to the vanquished after the battle as you are resolute in the face of the enemy before it Wont you say goodbye to me? [She offers her hand sweetly]

NAPOLEON [repulsing the advance with a gesture of concentrated rage, and opening the door to call fiercely] Giuseppe! [Louder] Giuseppe! [He bangs the door to, and comes to the middle of the room The lady goes a little way into the vineyard to avoid him]

GIUSEPPE [appearing at the door] Excellency?

NAPOLEON Where is that fool?

GIUSEPPE He has had a good dinner, according to your instructions, excellency, and is now doing me the honor to gamble with me to pass the time

NAPOLEON Send him here Bring him here Come with him [Giuseppe, with unruffled readiness, hurries off Napoleon turns curtly to the lady, saying] I must trouble you to remain some moments longer, madam [He comes to the couch]

She comes from the vineyard along the opposite side of the room to the sideboard, and posts herself there, leaning against it, watching him He takes the packet from the couch and deliberately buttons it carefully into his breast pocket, looking at her meanwhile with an expression which suggests that she will soon find out the meaning of his proceedings, and will not like it Nothing more is said until the Lieutenant arrives followed by Giuseppe, who stands modestly in attendance at the table The Lieutenant, without cap, sword or gloves, and much improved in temper and spirits by his meal, chooses the lady's side of the room, and waits, much at his ease, for Napoleon to begin

NAPOLEON Lieutenant

LIEUTENANT [encouragingly] General

NAPOLEON I cannot persuade this lady to give me much information, but there can be no doubt that the man who tricked you out of your charge was, as she admitted to you, her brother

LIEUTENANT [triumphantly] What did I tell you, General! What did I tell you!

NAPOLEON You must find that man Your honor is at stake, and the fate of the campaign, the destiny of France, of Europe, of humanity, perhaps, may depend on the information those despatches contain

LIEUTENANT Yes, I suppose they really are rather serious [as if this had hardly occurred to him before]

NAPOLEON [energetically] They are so serious, sir, that if you do not recover them, you will be degraded in the presence of your regiment

LIEUTENANT Whew! The regiment wont like that, I can tell you

NAPOLEON Personally I am sorry for you I would willingly hush up the affair if it were possible But I shall be called to account for not acting on the despatches I shall have to prove to all the world that I never received them, no matter what the consequences may be to you I am sorry, but you see that I cannot help myself

LIEUTENANT [goodnatureedly] Oh, dont take it to heart, General it's really very good of you Never mind what happens to me I shall scrape through somehow, and we'll beat the Austrians for you, despatches or no despatches I hope you wont insist on my starting off on a wild goose chase after the fellow now I havnt a notion where to look for him

GIUSEPPE [deferentially] You forget, Lieutenant he has your horse

LIEUTENANT [starting] I forgot that [Resolutely] I'll go after him, General I'll find that horse if it's alive anywhere in Italy And I shant forget the despatches never fear Giuseppe go and saddle one of those mangy old post-horses of yours while I get my cap and sword and things Quick march Off with you [bustling him]

GIUSEPPE Instantly, Lieutenant, instantly [He disappears in the vineyard, where the light is now reddening with the sunset]

LIEUTENANT [looking about him on his way to the inner door] By the way, General, did I give you my sword or did I not? Oh, I remember now [Fretfully] It's all that nonsense about putting a man under arrest one never knows where to find— [he talks himself out of the room]

LADY [still at the sideboard] What does all this mean, General?

NAPOLEON He will not find your brother

LADY Of course not There's no such person

NAPOLEON The despatches will be irrecoverably lost

LADY Nonsense! They are inside your coat

NAPOLEON You will find it hard, I think, to prove that wild statement [The lady starts

He adds, with clinching emphasis] Those papers are lost

LADY [anxiously, advancing to the corner of the table] And that unfortunate young man's career will be sacrificed?

NAPOLEON His career! The fellow is not worth the gunpowder it would cost to have him shot [He turns contemptuously and goes to the hearth, where he stands with his back to her]

LADY [swiftly] You are very hard Men and women are nothing to you but things to be used, even if they are broken in the use

NAPOLEON [turning on her] Which of us has broken this fellow? I or you? Who tricked him out of the despatches? Did you think of his career then?

LADY [conscience-stricken] Oh, I never thought of that It was wicked of me, but I couldn't help it, could I? How else could I have got the papers? [Supplicating] General you will save him from disgrace

NAPOLEON [laughing sourly] Save him yourself, since you are so clever it was you who ruined him [With savage intensity] I hate a bad soldier

He goes out determinedly through the vineyard
She follows him a few steps with an appealing gesture, but is interrupted by the return of the Lieutenant, gloved and capped, with his sword on, ready for the road He is crossing to the outer door when she intercepts him

LADY Lieutenant

LIEUTENANT [importantly] You mustn't delay me, you know Duty, madam, duty

LADY [imploringly] Oh, sir, what are you going to do to my poor brother?

LIEUTENANT Are you very fond of him?

LADY I should die if anything happened to him You must spare him [The Lieutenant shakes his head gloomily] Yes, yes you must you shall he is not fit to die Listen to me
If I tell you where to find him—if I undertake to place him in your hands a prisoner, to be delivered up by you to General Bonaparte—will you promise me on your honor as an officer and a gentleman not to fight with him or treat him unkindly in any way?

LIEUTENANT But suppose he attacks me
He has my pistols

LADY He is too great a coward

LIEUTENANT I don't feel so sure about that He's capable of anything

LADY If he attacks you, or resists you in any way, I release you from your promise

LIEUTENANT My promise! I didn't mean to promise Look here you're as bad as he is you've taken an advantage of me through the better side of my nature What about my horse?

LADY It is part of the bargain that you are to have your horse and pistols back

LIEUTENANT Honor bright?

LADY Honor bright [She offers her hand]

LIEUTENANT [taking it and holding it] All right I'll be as gentle as a lamb with him His sister's a very pretty woman [He attempts to kiss her]

LADY [slipping away from him] Oh, Lieutenant! You forget your career is at stake—the destiny of Europe—of humanity

LIEUTENANT Oh, bother the destiny of humanity! [Making for her] Only a kiss

LADY [retreating round the table] Not until you have regained your honor as an officer Remember you have not captured my brother yet

LIEUTENANT [seductively] You'll tell me where he is, won't you?

LADY I have only to send him a certain signal, and he will be here in quarter of an hour

LIEUTENANT He's not far off, then

LADY No quite close Wait here for him when he gets my message he will come here at once and surrender himself to you You understand?

LIEUTENANT [intellectually overtaxed] Well, it's a little complicated, but I daresay it will be all right

LADY And now, whilst you're waiting, don't you think you had better make terms with the General?

LIEUTENANT Oh, look here this is getting frightfully complicated What terms?

LADY Make him promise that if you catch my brother he will consider that you have cleared your character as a soldier He will promise anything you ask on that condition

LIEUTENANT That's not a bad idea Thank you I think I'll try it

LADY Do And mind, above all things, don't let him see how clever you are

LIEUTENANT I understand He'd be jealous

LADY Don't tell him anything except that you are resolved to capture my brother or perish in the attempt He won't believe you
Then you will produce my brother—

LIEUTENANT [interrupting as he masters the plot] And have the laugh at him! I say what a jolly clever woman you are! [Shouting] Giuseppe!

LADY Sh! Not a word to Giuseppe about me [She puts her finger on her lips He does the same They look at one another warningly Then, with a ravishing smile, she changes the gesture into wafting him a kiss, and runs out through the inner door Electrified, he bursts into a volley of chuckles]

Giuseppe comes back by the outer door

GIUSEPPE The horse is ready, Lieutenant

LIEUTENANT I'm not going just yet Go and find the General and tell him I want to speak to him

GIUSEPPE [shaking his head] That will never do Lieutenant

LIEUTENANT Why not?

GIUSEPPE In this wicked world a general may send for a lieutenant, but a lieutenant must not send for a general

LIEUTENANT Oh you think he wouldn't like it Well, perhaps you're right one has to be awfully particular about that sort of thing now we're a republic

Napoleon reappears, advancing from the vineyard, buttoning the breast of his coat, pale and full of gnawing thoughts

GIUSEPPE [unconscious of Napoleon's approach] Quite true, Lieutenant, quite true You are all like innkeepers now in France you have to be polite to everybody

NAPOLEON [putting his hand on Giuseppe's shoulder] And that destroys the whole value of politeness, eh?

LIEUTENANT The very man I wanted! See here, General suppose I catch that fellow for you!

NAPOLEON [with ironical gravity] You will not catch him, my friend

LIEUTENANT Aha! you think so, but you'll see Just wait Only, if I do catch him and hand him over to you, will you cry quits? Will you drop all this about degrading me in the presence of my regiment? Not that I mind, you know, but still no regiment likes to have all the other regiments laughing at it

NAPOLEON [a cold ray of humor striking pallidly across his gloom] What shall we do with this officer, Giuseppe? Everything he says is wrong

GIUSEPPE [promptly] Make him a general excellency, and then everything he says will be right

LIEUTENANT [crowning] Haw-aw! [He throws himself ecstatically on the couch to enjoy the joke]

NAPOLEON [laughing and pinching Giuseppe's ear] You are thrown away in this inn, Giuseppe [He sits down and places Giuseppe before him like a schoolmaster with a pupil] Shall I take you away with me and make a man of you?

GIUSEPPE [shaking his head rapidly and repeatedly] No no no no no no no All my life long people have wanted to make a man of me When I was a boy, our good priest wanted to make a man of me by teaching me to read and write Then the organist at Melegnano wanted to make a man of me by teaching me to read music The recruiting sergeant would have made a man of me if I had been a few inches taller But it always meant making me work, and I am too lazy for that, thank Heaven! So I taught myself to cook and became an innkeeper, and now I keep servants to do the work, and have nothing to do myself except talk, which suits me perfectly NAPOLEON [looking at him thoughtfully] You are satisfied?

GIUSEPPE [with cheerful conviction] Quite, excellency

NAPOLEON And you have no devouring devil inside you who must be fed with action and victory gorged with them night and day who makes you pay, with the sweat of your brain and body weeks of Herculean toil for ten minutes of enjoyment who is at once your slave and your tyrant, your genius and your doom who brings you a crown in one hand and the oar of a galley slave in the other who shews you all the kingdoms of the earth and offers to make you their master on condition that you become their servant! have you nothing of that in you?

GIUSEPPE Nothing of it! Oh, I assure you, excellency, my devouring devil is far worse than that He offers me no crowns and kingdoms he expects to get everything for nothing sausages! omelettes! grapes! cheese! polenta! wine! three times a day, excellency nothing less will content him

LIEUTENANT Come drop it, Giuseppe you're making me feel hungry again

Giuseppe, with an apologetic shrug, retires from the conversation

NAPOLEON [turning to the Lieutenant with sardonic politeness] I hope I have not been making you feel ambitious

LIEUTENANT Not at all I don't fly so high Besides, I'm better as I am men like me are wanted in the army just now The fact is, the Revolution was all very well for civilians, but it wont work in the army You know what soldiers are, General they will have men of family for their officers A subaltern must be a gentleman, because he's so much in contact with the men But a general, or even a colonel, may be any sort of riff-raff if he understands his job well enough A lieutenant is a gentleman all the rest is chance Why, who do you suppose won the battle of Lodi? I'll tell you My horse did

NAPOLEON [rising] Your folly is carrying you too far, sir Take care

LIEUTENANT Not a bit of it You remember all that red-hot cannonade across the river the Austrians blazing away at you to keep you from crossing, and you blazing away at them to keep them from setting the bridge on fire? Did you notice where I was then?

NAPOLEON I am sorry I am afraid I was rather occupied at the moment

GIUSEPPE [with eager admiration] They say you jumped off your horse and worked the big guns with your own hands, General

LIEUTENANT That was a mistake an officer should never let himself down to the level of his men [Napoleon looks at him dangerously, and begins to walk tigerishly to and fro] But you might have been firing away at the Austrians still if we cavalry fellows hadn't found the ford and got across and turned old Beaulieu's flank for you You know you didn't dare give the order to charge the bridge until you saw us on the other side Consequently, I say that whoever found that ford won the battle of Lodi Well, who found it? I was the first man to cross, and I know It was my horse that found it [With conviction, as he rises from the couch] That horse is the true conqueror of the Austrians NAPOLEON [passionately] You idiot I'll have you shot for losing those despatches I'll have you blown from the mouth of a cannon nothing less could make any impression on you [Baying at him] Do you hear? Do you understand?

A French officer enters unobserved, carrying his sheathed sabre in his hand

LIEUTENANT [unabashed] If I don't capture him, General Remember the if

NAPOLEON If! Ass there is no such man

THE OFFICER [suddenly stepping between them and speaking in the unmistakable voice of the Strange Lady] Lieutenant I am your prisoner [She offers him her sabre]

Napoleon gazes at her for a moment thunder-struck, then seizes her by the wrist and drags her roughly to him, looking closely and fiercely at her to satisfy himself as to her identity, for it now begins to darken rapidly into night, the red glow over the vineyard giving way to clear starlight

NAPOLEON Pah! [He flings her hand away with an exclamation of disgust, and turns his back on them with his hand in his breast, his brow lowering, and his toes twitching]

LIEUTENANT [triumphantly, taking the sabre] No such man! eh, General? [To the Lady] I say where's my horse?

LADY Safe at Borghetto, waiting for you, Lieutenant

NAPOLEON [turning on them] Where are the despatches?

LADY You would never guess They are in the most unlikely place in the world Did you meet my sister here, any of you?

LIEUTENANT Yes Very nice woman She's wonderfully like you, but of course she's better-looking

LADY [mysteriously] Well, do you know that she is a witch?

GIUSEPPE [in terror, crossing himself] Oh, no, no, no It is not safe to jest about such things I cannot have it in my house, excellency

LIEUTENANT Yes, drop it You're my prisoner, you know Of course I don't believe in any such rubbish, but still it's not a proper subject for joking

LADY But this is very serious My sister has bewitched the General [Giuseppe and the lieutenant recoil from Napoleon] General open your coat you will find the despatches in the breast of it [She puts her hand quickly on his breast] Yes there they are I can feel them Eh? [She looks up into his face half coaxingly, half mockingly] Will you allow me, General? [She takes a button as if to unbutton his coat, and pauses for permission]

NAPOLEON [inscrutably] If you dare

LADY Thank you [She opens his coat and takes out the despatches] There! [To Giuseppe, shewing him the despatches] See!

GIUSEPPE [flying to the outer door]-No, in heaven's name! They're bewitched

LADY [turning to the lieutenant] Here, Lieutenant you are not afraid of them

LIEUTENANT [retreating] Keep off [Seizing the hilt of the sabre] Keep off, I tell you

LADY [to Napoleon] They belong to you, General Take them

GIUSEPPE Don't touch them, excellency Have nothing to do with them

LIEUTENANT Be careful, General be careful

GIUSEPPE Burn them And burn the witch too

LADY [to Napoleon] Shall I burn them?

NAPOLEON [thoughtfully] Yes, burn them Giuseppe go and fetch a light.

GIUSEPPE [trembling and stammering] Do you mean go alone? in the dark? with a witch in the house?

NAPOLEON Psha! You're a poltroon [To the lieutenant] Oblige me by going Lieutenant LIEUTENANT [remonstrating] Oh I say, General! No, look here, you know nobody can say I'm a coward after Lodi But to ask me to go into the dark by myself without a candle after such an awful conversation is a little too much How would you like to do it yourself?

NAPOLEON [irritably] You refuse to obey my order?

LIEUTENANT [resolutely] Yes I do It's not reasonable But I'll tell you what I'll do If Giuseppe goes, I'll go with him and protect him

NAPOLEON [to Giuseppe] There! will that satisfy you? Be off, both of you

GIUSEPPE [humbly, his lips trembling] W-willingly, your excellency [He goes reluctantly towards the inner door] Heaven protect me! [To the lieutenant] After you, Lieutenant

LIEUTENANT You'd better go first I don't know the way

GIUSEPPE You can't miss it Besides [imploringly, laying his hand on his sleeve] I am only a poor innkeeper you are a man of family

LIEUTENANT. There's something in that Here you needn't be in such a fright Take my arm [Giuseppe does so] That's the way [They go out, arm in arm]

It is now starry night The lady throws the packet on the table and seats herself at her ease on the couch, enjoying the sensation of freedom from petticoats

LADY Well General I've beaten you

NAPOLEON [talking about] You are guilty of indelicacy of unwomanliness Is that costume proper?

LADY It seems to me much the same as yours

NAPOLEON Psha! I blush for you

LADY [naïvely] Yes soldiers blush so easily [He growls and turns away She looks mischievously at him, balancing the despatches in her hand] Wouldn't you like to read these before they're burnt, General? You must be dying with curiosity Take a peep [She throws the packet on the table, and turns her face away from it] I won't look

NAPOLEON I have no curiosity whatever, madam But since you are evidently burning to read them, I give you leave to do so

LADY. Oh, I've read them already

NAPOLEON [startling] What!

LADY I read them the first thing after I rode away on that poor lieutenant's horse So you see I know what's in them, and you don't

NAPOLEON Excuse me I read them when I was out there in the vineyard ten minutes ago

LADY, Oh! [Jumping up] Oh, General I've not beaten you after all I do admire you so [Helaughs and pats her cheek] This time really and truly without shamming, I do you homage [kissing his hand]

NAPOLEON [quickly withdrawing it] Br! Don't do that No more witchcraft

LADY. I want to say something to you, only you would misunderstand it

NAPOLEON Need that stop you?

LADY Well, it is this I adore a man who is not afraid to be mean and selfish

NAPOLEON [indignantly] I am neither mean nor selfish

LADY Oh, you don't appreciate yourself Besides I don't really mean meanness and selfishness

NAPOLEON Thank you I thought perhaps you did

LADY Well, of course I do But what I mean is a certain strong simplicity about you

NAPOLEON That's better

LADY You didn't want to read the letters, but you were curious about what was in them So you went into the garden and read them when no one was looking and then came back and pretended you hadn't That's the meanest thing I ever knew any man do, but it exactly fulfilled your purpose, and so you weren't a bit afraid or ashamed to do it

NAPOLEON [abruptly] Where did you pick up all these vulgar scruples? this [with contemptuous emphasis] conscience of yours? I took you for a lady an aristocrat Was your grandfather a shopkeeper pray?

LADY No he was an Englishman

NAPOLEON That accounts for it The English are a nation of shopkeepers Now I understand why you've beaten me

LADY Oh, I haven't beaten you And I'm not English

NAPOLEON Yes you are English to the backbone Listen to me I will explain the English to you

LADY [eagerly] Do [With a lively air of anticipating an intellectual treat, she sits down on the couch and composes herself to listen to him Secure of his audience, he at once nerves himself for a performance He considers a little before he begins, so as to fix her attention by a moment of suspense His style is at first modelled on Talma's in Corneille's Cinna, but it is somewhat lost in the darkness, and Talma presently gives way to Napoleon, the voice coming through the gloom with startling intensity]

NAPOLEON There are three sorts of people in the world the low people, the middle people, and the high people The low people and the high people are alike in one thing they have no scruples, no morality The low are beneath morality, the high above it I am not afraid of either of them, for the low are unscrupulous without knowledge, so that they make an idol of me, whilst the high are unscrupulous without purpose, so that they go down before my will Look you I shall go over all the mobs and all the courts of Europe as a plough goes over a field It is the middle people who are dangerous they have both knowledge and purpose But they, too, have their weak point They are full of scruples chained hand and foot by their morality and respectability

LADY Then you will beat the English, for all shopkeepers are middle people

NAPOLEON No, because the English are a race apart No Englishman is too low to have scruples no Englishman is high enough to be free from their tyranny But every Englishman is born with a certain miraculous power that makes him master of the world When he wants a thing, he never tells himself that he wants it He waits patiently until there comes into his mind, no one knows how, a burning conviction that it is his moral and religious duty to conquer those who possess the thing he wants Then he becomes irresistible Like the aristocrat, he does what pleases him and grabs what he covets like the shopkeeper, he pursues his purpose with the industry and steadfastness that come from strong religious conviction and deep sense of moral responsibility He is never at a loss for an effective moral attitude As the great champion of freedom and national independence, he conquers and annexes half the world, and calls it Colonization When he wants a new market for his adulterated Manchester goods, he sends a missionary to teach the natives the Gospel of Peace The natives kill the missionary he flies to arms in defence of Christianity, fights for it, conquers for it, and takes the market as a reward from heaven In defence of his island shores, he puts a chaplain on board his ship, nails a flag with a cross on it to his top-gallant mast, and sails to the ends of the earth, sinking, burning, and destroying all who dispute the empire of the seas with him He boasts that a slave is free the moment his foot touches British soil, and he sells the children of his poor at six years of age to work under the lash in his factories for sixteen hours a day He makes two revolutions, and then declares war on our one in the name of law and order There is nothing so bad or so good that you will not find Englishmen doing it, but you will never find an Englishman in the wrong He does everything on principle He fights you on patriotic principles, he robs you on business principles, he enslaves you on imperial principles, he bullies you on manly principles, he supports his king on loyal principles and cuts off his king's head on republican principles His watchword is always Duty, and he never forgets that the nation which lets its duty get on the opposite side to its interest is lost He—

LADY W-w-w-w-w-wh! Do stop a moment I want to know how you make me out to be English at this rate

NAPOLEON [dropping his rhetorical style] It's plain enough You wanted some letters that belonged to me You have spent the morning in stealing them yes, stealing them, by highway robbery And you have spent the afternoon in putting me in the wrong about them in assuming that it was I who wanted to steal your letters in explaining that it all came about through my meanness and selfishness, and your goodness, your devotion, your self-sacrifice That's English

LADY Nonsense! I am sure I am not a bit English The English are a very stupid people NAPOLEON Yes, too stupid sometimes to know when they're beaten But I grant that your brains are not English You see, though your grandfather was an Englishman, your grandmother was—what? A Frenchwoman?

LADY Oh no An Irishwoman

NAPOLEON [quickly] Irish! [Thoughtfully] Yes I forgot the Irish An English army led by an Irish general that might be a match for a French army led by an Italian general [He pauses, and adds, half jestingly, half moodily] At all events, you have beaten me, and what beats a man first will beat him last [He goes meditatively into the moonlit vineyard and looks up]

She steals out after him She ventures to rest her hand on his shoulder, overcome by the beauty of the night and emboldened by its obscurity

LADY [softly] What are you looking at?

NAPOLEON [pointing up] My star

LADY You believe in that?

NAPOLEON I do

They look at it for a moment, she leaning a little on his shoulder

LADY Do you know that the English say that a man's star is not complete without a woman's garter?

NAPOLEON [scandalized abruptly shaking her off and coming back into the room] Pah! The hypocrites! If the French said that, how they would hold up their hands in pious horror! [He goes to the inner door and holds it open, shouting] Hallo! Giuseppe! Wheres that light, man? [He comes between the table and the side-board, and moves the second chair to the table, beside his own] We have still to burn the letter [He takes up the packet]

Giuseppe comes back, pale and still trembling, carrying in one hand a branched candlestick with a couple of candles alight, and a broad snuffers tray in the other

GIUSEPPE [piteously, as he places the light on the table] Excellency what were you looking up at just now? Out there! [He points across his shoulder to the vineyard, but is afraid to look round]

NAPOLEON [unfolding the packet] What is that to you?

GIUSEPPE Because the witch is gone vanished, and no one saw her go out

LADY [coming behind him from the vineyard] We were watching her riding up to the moon on your broomstick, Giuseppe You will never see her again

GIUSEPPE Gesu Maria! [He crosses himself and hurries out]

NAPOLEON [throwing down the letters in a heap on the table] Now! [He sits down at the table in the chair which he has just placed]

LADY Yes, but you know you have the letter in your pocket [He smiles, takes a letter from his pocket, and tosses it on top of the heap She holds it up and looks at him, saying] About Cæsar's wife

NAPOLEON Cæsar's wife is above suspicion Burn it

LADY [taking up the snuffers and holding the letter to the candle flame with it] I wonder would Cæsar's wife be above suspicion if she saw us here together!

NAPOLEON [echoing her, with his elbows on the table and his cheeks on his hands, looking at the letter] I wonder!

The Strange Lady puts the letter down alight on the snuffers tray, and sits down beside Napoleon, in the same attitude, elbows on table, cheeks on hands, watching it burn When it is burnt, they simultaneously turn their eyes and look at one another The curtain steals down and hides them

1897

BEING THE FOURTH OF FOUR PLEASANT PLAYS

ACT I

In a dentist's operating room on a fine August morning in 1896 It is the best sitting room of a furnished lodging in a terrace on the sea front at a watering place on the coast of Torbay in Devon The operating chair, with a gas pump and cylinder beside it, is half way between the centre of the room and one of the corners If you could look into the room through the window facing the chair, you would see the fireplace in the middle of the wall opposite you, with the door beside it to your left, a dental surgeon's diploma in a frame above the mantelshelf an easy chair on the hearth, and a neat stool and bench, with ice, tools, and a mortar and pestle, in the corner to the right. In the wall on your left is a broad window looking on the sea. Beneath it a writing-table with a blotter and a diary on it, and a chair. Also a sofa, farther along. A cabinet of instruments is handy to the operating chair. The furniture, carpet, and wallpaper are those of a mid-Victorian drawing room, formally bright and festive, not for everyday use.

Two persons just now occupy the room. One of them, a very pretty woman in miniature, her tiny figure dressed with the daintiest gaiety, is hardly eighteen yet. This darling little creature clearly does not belong to the room, or even to the country, for her complexion, though very delicate, has been burnt biscuit color by some warmer sun than England's. She has a glass of water in her hand, and a rapidly clearing cloud of Spartan endurance on her small firm set mouth and quaintly squared eyebrows.

The dentist, contemplating her with the self-satisfaction of a successful operator, is a young man of thirty or thereabouts. He does not give the impression of being much of a workman, the professional manner of the newly set-up dentist in search of patients is underlain by a thoughtless pleasure which betrays the young gentleman, still unsettled and in search of amusing adventures. He is not without gravity of demeanor, but the strained nostrils stamp it as the gravity of the humorist. His eyes are clear, alert, his forehead is an excellent one, and yet a little rash, room behind it, his nose and chin are cavalierly handsome. On the whole, an attractive noticeable beginner, of whose prospects a man of business might form a tolerably favorable estimate.

THE YOUNG LADY [handing him the glass] Thank you [In spite of the biscuit complexion she has not the slightest foreign accent].

THE DENTIST [putting it down on the ledge of his cabinet of instruments] That was my first tooth.

THE YOUNG LADY [aghast] Your first! Do you mean to say that you began practising on me?

THE DENTIST Every dentist has to begin with somebody.

THE YOUNG LADY Yes, somebody in a hospital, not people who pay.

THE DENTIST [laughing] Oh, the hospital doesn't count. I only meant my first tooth in private practice. Why didn't you let me give you gas?

THE YOUNG LADY Because you said it would be five shillings extra. THE DENTIST [shocked] Oh, don't say that. It makes me feel as if I had hurt you for the sake of five shillings.

THE YOUNG LADY [with cool insolence] Well, so you have [She gets up]. Why shouldn't you? It's your business to hurt people. [It amuses him to be treated in this fashion. He chuckles secretly as he proceeds to clean and replace his instruments. She shakes her dress into order. She inquisitively about her, and goes to the broad window.] You have a good view of the sea from your rooms! Are they expensive?

THE DENTIST Yes.

THE YOUNG LADY You don't own the whole house, do you?

THE DENTIST No.

THE YOUNG LADY I thought not. [Tilting the chair which stands at the writing-table and looking critically at it as she spins it round on one leg.] Your furniture isn't quite the latest thing, is it?

THE DENTIST It's my landlord's.

THE YOUNG LADY Does he own that tooth-ache chair? [pointing to the operating chair].

THE DENTIST No. I have that on the hire-purchase system.

THE YOUNG LADY [disparagingly] I thought so. [Looking about in search of further conclusions.] I suppose you haven't been here long?

THE DENTIST Six weeks. Is there anything else you would like to know?

THE YOUNG LADY [the hint quite lost on her] Any family?

THE DENTIST I am not married.

THE YOUNG LADY Of course not. Anybody can see that. I meant sisters and mother and that sort of thing.

THE DENTIST Not on the premises.

THE YOUNG LADY Hm! If you've been here six weeks, and mine was your first tooth, the practice can't be very large, can it?

THE DENTIST Not as yet. [He shuts the cabinet, having tidied up everything].

THE YOUNG LADY Well, good luck! [She takes out her purse.] Five shillings, you said it would be?

THE DENTIST Five shillings.

THE YOUNG LADY [producing a crown piece] Do you charge five shillings for everything?

THE DENTIST Yes.

THE YOUNG LADY Why?

THE DENTIST It's my system. I'm what's called a five shilling dentist.

THE YOUNG LADY How nice! Well, here!

[holding up the crown piece] a nice new five-shilling piece! your first fee! Make a hole in it with the thing you drill people's teeth with, and wear it on your watch-chain

THE DENTIST Thank you

THE PARLOR MAID [appearing at the door] The young lady's brother, sir

A handsome man in miniature, obviously the young lady's twin, comes in eagerly. He wears a suit of terra cotta cashmere, the elegantly cut frock coat lined in brown silk, and carries in his hand a brown tall hat and tan gloves to match. He has his sister's delicate biscuit complexion, and is built on the same small scale, but he is elastic and strong in muscle, decisive in movement, unexpectedly deep-toned and trenchant in speech, and with perfect manners and a finished personal style which might be envied by a man twice his age. Suavity and self-possession are points of honor with him, and though this, rightly considered, is only a mode of boyish self-consciousness, its effect is none the less staggering to his elders, and would be quite insufferable in a less prepossessing youth. He is promptitude itself, and has a question ready the moment he enters

THE YOUNG GENTLEMAN Am I in time?

THE YOUNG LADY No it's all over

THE YOUNG GENTLEMAN Did you howl?

THE YOUNG LADY Oh something awful. Mr Valentine this is my brother Phil. Phil this is Mr Valentine, our new dentist. [Valentine and Phil bow to one another. She proceeds, all in one breath.] He's only been here six weeks and he's a bachelor the house isn't his and the furniture is the landlord's but the professional plant is hired he got my tooth out beautifully at the first go and he and I are great friends

PHILIP Been asking a lot of questions?

THE YOUNG LADY [as if incapable of doing such a thing] Oh no

PHILIP Glad to hear it. [To Valentine] So good of you not to mind us, Mr Valentine. The fact is, we've never been in England before, and our mother tells us that the people here simply won't stand us. Come and lunch with us.

Valentine, bewildered by the leaps and bounds with which their acquaintanceship is proceeding, gasps, but has no time to reply, as the conversation of the twins is swift and continuous.

THE YOUNG LADY Oh, do, Mr Valentine

PHILIP At the Marine Hotel half past one

THE YOUNG LADY We shall be able to tell mamma that a respectable Englishman has promised to lunch with us

PHILIP Say no more, Mr Valentine you'll come

VALENTINE Say no more! I haven't said anything. May I ask whom I have the pleasure of entertaining? It's really quite impossible for me to lunch at the Marine Hotel with two perfect strangers

THE YOUNG LADY [slippantly] Ooooh! what bosh! One patient in six weeks! What difference does it make to you?

PHILIP [maturely] No, Dolly my knowledge of human nature confirms Mr Valentine's judgment. He is right. Let me introduce Miss Dorothy Clandon, commonly called Dolly. [Valentine bows to Dolly. She nods to him.] I'm Philip Clandon. We're from Madeira, but perfectly respectable, so far

VALENTINE Clandon! Are you related to—

DOLLY [unexpectedly crying out in despair] Yes we are.

VALENTINE [astonished] I beg your pardon?

DOLLY Oh, we are, we are. It's all over, Phil they know all about us in England. [To Valentine] Oh, you can't think how maddening it is to be related to a celebrated person, and never be valued anywhere for our own sakes

VALENTINE But excuse me the gentleman I was thinking of is not celebrated

DOLLY AND PHILIP [staring at him] Gentleman!

VALENTINE Yes I was going to ask whether you were by any chance a daughter of Mr Densmore Clandon of Newbury Hall

DOLLY [vacantly] No

PHILIP Well, come, Dolly. how do you know you're not?

DOLLY [cheered] Oh, I forgot. Of course. Perhaps I am

VALENTINE Don't you know?

PHILIP Not in the least

DOLLY It's a wise child—

PHILIP [cutting her short] Sh! [Valentine starts nervously, for the sound made by Phil, though but momentary, is like cutting a sheet of silk in two with a flash of lightning. It is the result of long practice in checking Dolly's indiscretions.] The fact is, Mr Valentine, we are the children of the celebrated Mrs Lanfrey Clandon, an authoress of great repute—in Madeira. No household is complete without her works. We came to England to get away from them. They are called the Twentieth Century Treatises

DOLLY Twentieth Century Cooking

PHILIP Twentieth Century Creeds

DOLLY Twentieth Century Clothing

PHILIP Twentieth Century Conduct

DOLLY Twentieth Century Children

PHILIP Twentieth Century Parents

DOLLY Cloth limp, half a dollar

PHILIP Or mounted on linen for hard family use, two dollars No family should be without them Read them, Mr Valentine they'll improve your mind

DOLLY But not till we've gone, please

PHILIP Quite so we prefer people with unimproved minds Our own minds have successfully resisted all our mother's efforts to improve them

VALENTINE [dubiously] Hm!

DOLLY [echoing him inquiringly] Hm? Phil he prefers people whose minds are improved

PHILIP In that case we shall have to introduce him to the other member of the family the Woman of the Twentieth Century our sister Glona!

DOLLY [dithyrambically] Nature's masterpiece!

PHILIP Learning's daughter!

DOLLY Madeira's pride!

PHILIP Beauty's paragon!

DOLLY [suddenly descending to prose] Bosh! No complexion

VALENTINE [desperately] May I have a word?

PHILIP [politely] Excuse us Go ahead

DOLLY [very nicely] So sorry

VALENTINE [attempting to take them paternally] I really must give a hint to you young people—

DOLLY [breaking out again] Oh come! I like that How old are you?

PHILIP Over thirty

DOLLY He's not

PHILIP [confidently] He is

DOLLY [emphatically] Twenty-seven

PHILIP [imperturbably] Thirty-three

DOLLY Stuff

PHILIP [to Valentine] I appeal to you, Mr Valentine

VALENTINE [remonstrating] Well, really—[resigning himself] Thirty-one

PHILIP [to Dolly] You were wrong

DOLLY So were you

PHILIP [suddenly conscientious] We're forgetting our manners, Dolly

DOLLY [remorseful] Yes, so we are

PHILIP [apologetic] We interrupted you, Mr Valentine

DOLLY You were going to improve our minds, I think

VALENTINE The fact is, your—

PHILIP [anticipating him] Our manners?

DOLLY Our appearance?

VALENTINE [ad misericordiam] Oh do let me speak

DOLLY The old story We talk too much

PHILIP We do Shut up, both [He seats himself on the arm of the operating chair]

DOLLY Mum! [She sits down in the writing-table chair, and closes her lips with the tips of her fingers]

VALENTINE Thank you [He brings the stool from the bench in the corner, places it between them, and sits down with a judicial air They attend to him with extreme gravity He addresses himself first to Dolly] Now may I ask, to begin with, have you ever been in an English seaside resort before? [She shakes her head slowly and solemnly He turns to Phil, who shakes his head quickly and expressively] I thought so Well, Mr Clandon, our acquaintance has been short, but it has been voluble, and I have gathered enough to convince me that you are neither of you capable of conceiving what life in an English seaside resort is Believe me, it's not a question of manners and appearance In those respects we enjoy a freedom unknown in Madeira [Dolly shakes her head vehemently] Oh yes, I assure you Lord de Cresci's sister bicycles in knickerbockers, and the rector's wife advocates dress reform and wears hygiene boots [Dolly furtively looks at her own shoe Valentine catches her in the act, and deftly adds] No, that's not the sort of boot I mean [Dolly's shoe vanishes] We don't bother much about dress and manners in England, because, as a nation, we don't dress well and we've no manners But—and now will you excuse my frankness? [They nod] Thank you Well, in a seaside resort there's one thing you must have before anybody can afford to be seen going about with you, and that's a father, alive or dead Am I to infer that you have omitted that indispensable part of your social equipment? [They confirm him by melancholy nods] Then I'm sorry to say that if you are going to stay here for any length of time, it will be impossible for me to accept your kind invitation to lunch [He rises with an air of finality, and replaces the stool by the bench]
PHILIP [rising with grave politeness] Come, Dolly [He gives her his arm]

DOLLY Good morning [They go together to the door with perfect dignity]

VALENTINE [overwhelmed with remorse] Oh stop! stop! [They halt and turn, arm in arm] You make me feel a perfect beast

DOLLY Thats your conscience not us

VALENTINE [energetically, throwing off all pretence of a professional manner] My conscience! My conscience has been my ruin Listen to me Twice before I have set up as a respectable medical practitioner in various parts of England On both occasions I acted conscientiously, and told my patients the brute truth instead of what they wanted to be told Result, ruin Now Ive set up as a dentist, a five shilling dentist, and Ive done with conscience for ever This is my last chance I spent my last sovereign on moving in, and I havnt paid a shilling of rent yet I'm eating and drinking on credit, my landlord is as rich as a Jew and as hard as nails, and Ive made five shillings in six weeks If I swerve by a hair's breadth from the straight line of the most rigid respectability, I'm done for Under such circumstances is it fair to ask me to lunch with you when you dont know your own father?

DOLLY After all, our grandfather is a canon of Lincoln Cathedral

VALENTINE [like a castanay mariner who sees a sail on the horizon] What! Have you a grandfather?

DOLLY Only one

VALENTINE My dear good young friends, why on earth didnt you tell me that before? A canon of Lincoln! That makes it all right, of course Just excuse me while I change my coat [He reaches the door in a bound and vanishes]

Dolly and Phil stare after him, and then at one another Missing their audience, they discard their style at once

PHILIP [throwing away Dolly's arm and coming ill-humoredly towards the operating chair] That wretched bankrupt ivory snatcher makes a compliment of allowing us to stand him a lunch probably the first square meal he has had for months [He gives the chair a kick as if it nere Valentine]

DOLLY It's too beastly I wont stand it any longer, Phil Here in England everybody asks whether you have a father the very first thing

PHILIP I wont stand it either Mamma must tell us who he was

DOLLY Or who he is He may be alive

PHILIP I hope not No man alive shall father me

DOLLY He might have a lot of money, though

PHILIP I doubt it My knowledge of human nature leads me to believe that if he had a lot of money he wouldnt have got rid of his affectionate family so easily Anyhow, let's look at the bright side of things Depend on it, he's dead

He goes to the hearth and stands with his back to the fireplace The parlormaid appears

THE PARLORMAID Two ladies for you, miss Your mother and sister, miss, I think

Mrs Clandon and Gloria come in Mrs Clandon is a veteran of the Old Guard of the Women's Rights movement which had for its Bible John Stuart Mill's treatise on The Subjection of Women She has never made herself ugly or ridiculous by affecting masculine waistcoats, collars, and watchchains, like some of her old comrades who had more aggressiveness than taste, and she is too militant an Agnostic to care to be mistaken for a Quaker She therefore dresses in as businesslike a way as she can without making a guy of herself, ruling out all attempt at sex attraction and imposing respect on frivolous mankind and fashionable womankind She belongs to the forefront of her own period (say 1860 80) in a jealously assertive attitude of character and intellect, and in being a woman of cultivated interests rather than passionately developed personal affections Her voice and ways are entirely kindly and humane, and she lends herself conscientiously to the occasional demonstrations of fondness by which her children mark their esteem for her, but displays of personal sentiment secretly embarrass her passion in her is humanitarian rather than human she feels strongly about social questions and principles, not about persons Only, one observes that this reasonableness and intense personal privacy, which leaves her relations with Gloria and Phil much as they might be between her and the children of any other woman, breaks down in the case of Dolly Though almost every word she addresses to her is necessarily in the nature of a remonstrance for some breach of decorum, the tenderness in her voice is unmistakable, and it is not surprising that years of such remonstrance have left Dolly hopelessly spoiled

Gloria, who is hardly past twenty, is a much more formidable person than her mother She is the incarnation of haughty highmindedness, raging with the impatience of a mettlesome dominating character paralyzed by the inexperience of her youth, and unwillingly disciplined by the constant danger of ridicule from her irreverent juniors Unlike her mother, she is all passion, and the conflict of her passion with her obstinate pride and intense fastidiousness results in a freezing coldness of manner In an ugly woman all this would be repulsive, but Gloria is attractive A dangerous girl, one would say, if the moral passions were not also marked, and even nobly marked, in a fine brow Her tailor-made skirt-and-jacket dress, of saffron brown cloth, seems conventional when her back is turned, but it displays in front a blouse of sea-green silk which scatters its conventionality with one stroke, and sets her apart as effectually as the twins from the ordinary run of fashionable seaside humanity

Mrs Clandon comes a little way into the room looking round to see who is present Gloria, who studiously avoids encouraging the twins by betraying any interest in them, wanders to the window and looks out to sea with her thoughts far away The parlormaid, instead of withdrawing, shuts the door and waits at it

MRS CLANDON Well, children? How is the toothache, Dolly?

DOLLY Cured, thank Heaven I've had it out [She sits down on the step of the operating chair]

Mrs Clandon takes the writing-table chair PHILIP [striking in gravely from the hearth] And the dentist a first rate professional man of the highest standing, is coming to lunch with us

MRS CLANDON [looking round apprehensively at the servant] Phil!

THE PARLORMAID Beg pardon, ma'am I'm waiting for Mr Valentine I have a message for him

DOLLY Who from?

MRS CLANDON [shocked] Dolly!

Dolly catches her lips suppressively with her finger tips

THE PARLORMAID Only the landlord, ma'am Valentine, in a blue serge suit, with a straw hat in his hand, comes back in high spirits, out of breath with the haste he has made Gloria turns from the window and studies him with chilling attention

PHILIP Let me introduce you, Mr Valentine My mother, Mrs Lanfrey Clandon [Mrs Clandon bows Valentine bows, self-possessed and quite equal to the occasion] My sister Gloria [Gloria bows with cold dignity and sits down on the sofa]

Valentine falls abjectly in love at first sight He fingers his hat nervously, and makes her a sneaking bow

MRS CLANDON I understand that we are to have the pleasure of seeing you at luncheon today, Mr Valentine

VALENTINE Thank you—er—if you don't mind—I mean if you will be so kind—[to the parlormaid, testily] What is it?

THE PARLORMAID The landlord, sir, wishes to speak to you before you go out

VALENTINE Oh, tell him I have four patients here [The Clandons look surprised, except Phil, who is imperturbable] If he wouldn't mind waiting just two minutes, I—I'll slip down and see him for a moment [Throwing himself confidentially on her sense of the position] Say I'm busy, but that I want to see him

THE PARLORMAID [reassuringly] Yes, sir [She goes]

MRS CLANDON [on the point of rising] We are detaining you, I am afraid

VALENTINE Not at all, not at all Your presence here will be the greatest help to me The fact is, I owe six weeks rent, and I've had no patients until today My interview with my landlord will be considerably smoothed by the apparent boom in my business

DOLLY [vexed] Oh, how tiresome of you to let it all out! And we've just been pretending that you were a respectable professional man in a first rate position

MRS CLANDON [horrified] Oh Dolly! Dolly! My dearest how can you be so rude? [To Valentine] Will you excuse these barbarian children of mine, Mr Valentine?

VALENTINE Don't mention it I'm used to them Would it be too much to ask you to wait five minutes while I get rid of my landlord downstairs?

DOLLY Don't be long We're hungry

MRS CLANDON [again remonstrating] Dolly, dear!

VALENTINE [to Dolly] All right [To Mrs Clandon] Thank you I shant be long [He steals a look at Gloria as he turns to go She is looking gravely at him He falls into confusion] I—er—er—yes—thank you [he sneezes at last in blundering himself out of the room, but the exhibition is a pitiful one]

PHILIP Did you observe? [Pointing to Gloria] Love at first sight Another scalp for your collection, Gloria Number fifteen

MRS CLANDON Sh—sh pray, Phil He may have heard you

PHILIP Not he [Bracing himself for a scene] And now look here, mamma [He takes the stool from the bench, and seats himself majestically in the middle of the room, copying Valentine's recent demonstration Dolly, feeling that her position on the step of the operating chair is unworthy the dignity of the occasion, rises, looking important and uncompromising She crosses to the window, and stands with her back to the end of the writing-table, her hands behind her and on the table Mrs Clandon looks at them, pondering what is coming Gloria becomes attentive Phil straightens his back, places his knuckles symmetrically on his knees, and opens his case] Dolly and I have been talking over things a good deal lately, and I don't think, judging from my knowledge of human nature—we don't think that you [speaking very pointedly, with the words detached] quite Appreciate The fact—

DOLLY [seating herself on the end of the table with a spring] That we've grown up

MRS CLANDON Indeed? In what way have I given you any reason to complain?

PHILIP Well, there are certain matters upon which we are beginning to feel that you might take us a little more into your confidence

MRS CLANDON [rising, with all the placidity of her age suddenly breaking up into a curious hard excitement, dignified but dogged, ladylike but implacable the manner of the Old Guard] Phil take care What have I always taught you? There are two sorts of family life, Phil, and your experience of human nature only extends, so far, to one of them [Rhetorically] The sort you know is based on mutual respect, on recognition of the right of every member of the household to independence and privacy [her emphasis on "privacy" is intense] in their personal concerns And because you have always enjoyed that, it seems such a matter of course to you that you don't value it But [with biting acrimony] there is another sort of family life a life in which husbands open their wives' letters, and call on them to account for every farthing of their expenditure and every moment of their time, in which women do the same to their children, in which no room is private and no hour sacred, in which duty, obedience, affection, home, morality and religion are detestable tyrannies, and life is a vulgar round of punishments and lies, coercion and rebellion, jealousy, suspicion, recrimination— Oh! I cannot describe it to you fortunately for you, you know nothing about it [She sits down, panting]

DOLLY [inaccessible to rhetoric] See Twentieth Century Parents chapter on Liberty, passim

MRS CLANDON [touching her shoulder affectionately, softened even by a gibe from her] My dear Dolly if you only knew how glad I am that it is nothing but a joke to you, though it is such bitter earnest to me [More resolutely, turning to Phil] Phil I never ask you questions about your private concerns You are not going to question me, are you?

PHILIP. I think it due to ourselves to say that the question we wanted to ask is as much our business as yours

DOLLY Besides, it can't be good to keep a lot of questions bottled up inside you You did it, mamma, but see how awfully it's broken out again in me

MRS CLANDON I see you want to ask your question Ask it

DOLLY AND PHILIP [beginning simultaneously] Who— [They stop]

PHILIP Now look here, Dolly am I going to conduct this business or are you?

DOLLY You

PHILIP Then hold your mouth [Dolly does so, literally] The question is a simple one When the ivory snatcher—

MRS CLANDON [remonstrating] Phil!

PHILIP Dentist is an ugly word The man of ivory and gold asked us whether we were the children of Mr Densmore Clandon of Newbury Hall In pursuance of the precepts in your treatise on Twentieth Century Conduct, and your repeated personal exhortations to us to curtail the number of unnecessary lies we tell, we replied truthfully that we didn't know

DOLLY Neither did we

PHILIP Sh! The result was that the gum architect made considerable difficulties about accepting our invitation to lunch, although I doubt if he has had anything but tea and bread and butter for a fortnight past Now my knowledge of human nature leads me to believe that we had a father, and that you probably know who he was

MRS CLANDON [her agitation returning] Stop, Phil Your father is nothing to you, nor to me [Vehemently] That is enough

The twins are silenced, but not satisfied

Their faces fall But Gloria, who has been following the altercation attentively, suddenly intervenes

GLORIA [advancing] Mother we have a right to know

MRS CLANDON [rising and facing her] Gloria! "We"! Who is "we"?

GLORIA [steadfastly] We three [Her tone is unmistakable she is pitting her strength against her mother's for the first time The twins instantly go over to the enemy]

MRS CLANDON [rounded] In your mouth "we" used to mean you and I, Gloria

PHILIP [rising decisively and putting away the stool] We're hurting you let's drop it We didn't think you'd mind I don't want to know

DOLLY [coming off the table] I'm sure I don't Oh, don't look like that, mamma [She looks angrily at Gloria and flings her arms round her mother's neck]

MRS CLANDON Thank you, my dear Thanks, Phil [She detaches Dolly gently and sits down again]

GLORIA [inexorably] We have a right to know, mother

MRS CLANDON [indignantly] Ah! You insist

GLORIA Do you intend that we shall never know?

DOLLY Oh Gloria, don't It's barbarous

GLORIA [with quiet scorn] What is the use of being weak? You see what has happened with this gentleman here, mother The same thing has happened to me

MRS CLANDON	} [all together]	What do you mean?
DOLLY		Oh, tell us!
PHILIP		What happened to you?

GLORIA Oh, nothing of any consequence [She turns away from them and strolls up to the easy chair at the fireplace, where she sits down, almost with her back to them As they wait expectantly, she adds, over her shoulder, with studied indifference] On board the steamer, the first officer did me the honor to propose to me

DOLLY No it was to me

MRS CLANDON The first officer! Are you serious, Gloria? What did you say to him? [Correcting herself] Excuse me I have no right to ask that

GLORIA The answer is pretty obvious A woman who does not know who her father was cannot accept such an offer

MRS CLANDON Surely you did not want to accept it!

GLORIA [turning a little and raising her voice] No, but suppose I had wanted to!

PHILIP Did that difficulty strike you, Dolly?

DOLLY No I accepted him

GLORIA } [all Accepted him!]

MRS CLANDON } crying out { Dolly!

PHILIP } together { Oh, I say!

DOLLY [naïvely] He did look such a fool!

MRS CLANDON But why did you do such a thing, Dolly?

DOLLY For fun, I suppose He had to measure my finger for a ring You'd have done the same thing yourself

MRS CLANDON No, Dolly, I would not As a matter of fact the first officer did propose to me, and I told him to keep that sort of thing for women who were young enough to be amused by it He appears to have acted on my advice [She rises and goes to the hearth] Gloria I am sorry you think me weak, but I cannot tell you what you want You are all too young

PHILIP This is rather a startling departure from Twentieth Century principles

DOLLY [quoting] "Answer all your children's questions, and answer them truthfully, as soon as they are old enough to ask them" See Twentieth Century Motherhood—

PHILIP Page one

DOLLY Chapter one

PHILIP Sentence one

MRS CLANDON My dears I do not mean that you are too young to know I mean that you are too young to be taken into my confidence You are very bright children, all of you, but you are still very inexperienced and consequently sometimes very unsympathetic There are experiences of mine that I cannot bear to speak of except to those who have gone through what I have gone through I hope you will never be qualified for such confidences

PHILIP Another grievance, Dolly!

DOLLY We're not sympathetic

GLORIA [leaning forward in her chair and looking earnestly up at her mother] Mother I did not mean to be unsympathetic

MRS CLANDON [affectionately] Of course not, dear I quite understand!

GLORIA [rising] But, mother—

MRS CLANDON [drawing back a little] Yes?

GLORIA [obstinately] It is nonsense to tell us that our father is nothing to us

MRS CLANDON [provoked to sudden resolution]

Do you remember your father?

GLORIA [meditatively, as if the recollection were a tender one] I am not quite sure I think so

MRS CLANDON [grimly] You are not sure?

GLORIA No

MRS CLANDON [with quiet force] Gloria if I had ever struck you [Gloria recoils Phil and Dolly are disagreeably shocked all three stare at her, revolted, as she continues mercilessly—struck you purposely, deliberately, with the intention of hurting you, with a whip bought for the purpose! would you remember that, do you think? [Gloria utters an exclamation of indignant repulsion] That would have been your last recollection of your father, Gloria, if I had not taken you away from him I have kept him out of your life keep him now out of mine by never mentioning him to me again

Gloria, with a shudder, covers her face with her hands until, hearing someone at the door, she recomposes herself Mrs Clandon sits down on the sofa Valentine returns

VALENTINE I hope I've not kept you waiting That landlord of mine is really an extraordinary old character

DOLLY [eagerly] Oh, tell us How long has he given you to pay?

MRS CLANDON [distracted by her child's manners] Dolly, Dolly, Dolly dear! You must not ask questions

DOLLY [demurely] So sorry You'll tell us, wont you, Mr Valentine?

VALENTINE He doesn't want his rent at all He's broken his tooth on a Brazil nut, and he wants me to look at it and to lunch with him afterwards

DOLLY Then have him up and pull his tooth out at once, and we'll bring him to lunch too Tell the maid to fetch him along [She runs to the bell and rings it vigorously Then, with a sudden doubt, she turns to Valentine and adds] I suppose he's respectable? really respectable?

VALENTINE Perfectly Not like me

DOLLY Honest Injun?

Mrs Clandon gasps faintly, but her powers of remonstrance are exhausted

VALENTINE Honest Injun!

DOLLY Then off with you and bring him up

VALENTINE [looking dubiously at Mrs Clandon] I dare say he'd be delighted if—er—?

MRS CLANDON [rising and looking at her watch]

I shall be happy to see your friend at lunch if you can persuade him to come, but I can't wait to see him now I have an appointment at the hotel at a quarter to one with an old friend whom I have not seen since I left England eighteen years ago Will you excuse me?

VALENTINE Certainly, Mrs Clandon

GLORIA Shall I come?

MRS CLANDON No, dear I want to be alone [She goes out, evidently still a good deal troubled] Valentine opens the door for her and follows her

PHILIP [significantly to Dolly] Hmhm!

DOLLY [significantly to Phil] Ahah!

The parlormaid answers the bell

DOLLY Shew the old gentleman up

THE PARLORMAID [puzzled] Madam?

DOLLY The old gentleman with the tooth-ache

PHILIP The landlord

THE PARLORMAID Mr Crampton, sir?

PHILIP Is his name Crampton?

DOLLY [to Phil] Sounds rheumatically, doesn't it?

PHILIP Chalkstones, probably

DOLLY Shew Mr Crampstones up

THE PARLORMAID [going out] Mr Crampton, miss

DOLLY [repeating it to herself like a lesson] Crampton, Crampton, Crampton, Crampton, Crampton [She sits down studiously at the writing-table] I must get that name right, or Heaven knows what I shall call him

GLORIA Phil can you believe such a horrible thing as that about our father? what mother said just now

PHILIP Oh, there are lots of people of that kind Old Chamico used to thrash his wife and daughters with a cart whip

DOLLY [contemptuously] Yes, a Portuguese!

PHILIP When you come to men who are brutes, there is much in common between the Portuguese and the English variety, Doll Trust my knowledge of human nature [He resumes his position on the hearth-rug with an elderly and responsible air]

GLORIA [with angered remorse] I don't think we shall ever play again at our old game of guessing what our father was to be like Dolly are you sorry for your father? the father with lots of money!

DOLLY Oh come! What about your father? the lonely old man with the tender aching heart! He's pretty well burst up, I think

PHILIP There can be no doubt that the governor is an exploded superstition [Valentine is heard talking to somebody outside the door] But hark! he comes

GLORIA [nervously] Who?

DOLLY Chalkstones

PHILIP Sh! Attention! [They put on their best manners Phil adds in a lower voice to Gloria] If he's good enough for the lunch, I'll nod to Dolly, and if she nods to you, invite him straight away

Valentine comes back with his landlord Mr Fergus Crampton is a man of about sixty, with an atrociously obstinate ill tempered grasping mouth, and a dogmatic voice There is no sign of straitened means or commercial diffidence about him he is well dressed, and would be classed at a guess as a prosperous master-manufacturer in a business inherited from an old family in the aristocracy of trade His navy blue coat is not of the usual fashionable pattern It is not exactly a pilot's coat, but it is cut that way, double breasted, and with stout buttons and broad lappels a coat for a shipyard rather than a counting house He has taken a fancy to Valentine, who cares nothing for his crossness of grain, and treats him with a disrespectful humanity for which he is secretly grateful

VALENTINE May I introduce? This is Mr Crampton Miss Dorothy Clandon, Mr Philip Clandon, Miss Clandon [Crampton stands nervously bowing They all bow] Sit down, Mr Crampton

DOLLY [pointing to the operating chair] That is the most comfortable chair, Mr Crampton

CRAMPTON Thank you, but wont this young lady— [indicating Gloria, who is close to the chair]?

GLORIA Thank you, Mr Crampton we are just going

VALENTINE [bustling him across to the chair with good-humored peremptoriness] Sit down, sit down You're tired

CRAMPTON Well, perhaps as I am considerably the oldest person present, I— [he finishes the sentence by sitting down a little rheumatically in the operating chair Meanwhile Phil, having studied him critically during his passage across the room, nods to Dolly, and Dolly nods to Gloria]

GLORIA Mr Crampton we understand that we are preventing Mr Valentine from lunching with you by taking him away ourselves My mother would be very glad indeed if you would come too

CRAMPTON [gratefully, after looking at her earnestly for a moment] Thank you I will come with pleasure

GLORIA

PHILIP

[politely murmuring]

{ Thank you very much—er—
So glad—er—
Delighted, I'm sure—er—

The conversation drops Gloria and Dolly look at one another, then at Valentine and Phil Valentine and Phil, unequal to the occasion, look away from them at one another, and are instantly so disconcerted by catching one another's eye, that they look back again and catch the eyes of Gloria and Dolly Thus, catching one another all round, they all look at nothing and are quite at a loss Crampton looks at them, waiting for them to begin The silence becomes unbearable

DOLLY [suddenly, to keep things going] How old are you, Mr Crampton?

GLORIA [hastily] I am afraid we must be going, Mr Valentine It is understood, then, that we meet at half past one [She makes for the door Phil goes with her Valentine retreats to the bell]

VALENTINE Half past one [He rings the bell] Many thanks [He follows Gloria and Phil to the door, and goes out with them]

DOLLY [who has meanwhile stolen across to Crampton] Make him give you gas It's five shillings extra, but it's worth it

CRAMPTON [amused] Very well [Looking more earnestly at her] So you want to know my age, do you? I'm fifty seven

DOLLY [with conviction] You look it

CRAMPTON [grimly] I dare say I do

DOLLY What are you looking at me so hard for? Anything wrong? [She feels whether her hat is right]

CRAMPTON You're like somebody

DOLLY Who?

CRAMPTON Well, you have a curious look of my mother

DOLLY [incredulously] Your mother!!! Quite sure you dont mean your daughter?

CRAMPTON [suddenly blackening with hate] Yes I'm quite sure I dont mean my daughter

DOLLY [sympathetically] Tooth bad?

CRAMPTON No, no nothing A twinge of memory, Miss Clandon, not of toothache

DOLLY Have it out "Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow" With gas, five shillings extra

CRAMPTON [indictively] No, not a sorrow An injury that was done me once thats all I dont forget injuries, and I dont want to forget them [His features settle into an implacable frown]

DOLLY [looking critically at him] I dont think we shall like you when you are brooding over your injuries

PHILIP [who has entered the room unobserved, and stolen behind her] My sister means well, Mr Crampton, but she is indiscreet Now Dolly outside! [He takes her towards the door]

DOLLY [in a perfectly audible undertone] He says he's only fifty seven and he thinks me the image of his mother and he hates his daughter and—[She is interrupted by the return of Valentine]

VALENTINE Miss Clandon has gone on

PHILIP Dont forget half past one

DOLLY Mind you leave Mr Crampton enough teeth to eat with [They go out]

Valentine comes to his cabinet, and opens it

CRAMPTON Thats a spoiled child, Mr Valentine Thats one of your modern products When I was her age, I had many a good hiding fresh in my memory to teach me manners

VALENTINE [taking up his dental mirror and probe] What did you think of her sister?

CRAMPTON You liked her better, eh?

VALENTINE [rhapsodically] She struck me as being—[He checks himself, and adds, prosaically] However, thats not business [He assumes his professional tone] Open, please [Crampton opens his mouth Valentine puts the mirror in, and examines his teeth] Hm! Youve smashed that one What a pity to spoil such a splendid set of teeth! Why do you crack nuts with them? [He withdraws the mirror, and comes forward to converse with his patient]

CRAMPTON Ive always cracked nuts with them what else are they for? [Dogmatically] The proper way to keep teeth good is to give them plenty of use on bones and nuts, and wash them every day with soap plain yellow soap

VALENTINE Soap! Why soap?

CRAMPTON I began using it as a boy because I was made to, and Ive used it ever since And Ive never had toothache in my life

VALENTINE Dont you find it rather nasty?

CRAMPTON I found that most things that were good for me were nasty But I was taught to put up with them, and made to put up with them Im used to it now in fact I like the taste when the soap is really good

VALENTINE [making a wry face in spite of himself] You seem to have been very carefully educated, Mr Crampton

CRAMPTON [grimly] I wasnt spoiled, at all events

VALENTINE [smiling a little to himself] Are you quite sure?

CRAMPTON [crustily] What d'y' mean?

VALENTINE Well, your teeth are good, I admit But Ive seen just as good in very self-indulgent mouths [He goes to the cabinet and changes the probe for another one]

CRAMPTON It's not the effect on the teeth it's the effect on the character

VALENTINE [placably] Oh, the character! I see [He recommences operations] A little wider, please Hm! Why do you bite so hard? youve broken the tooth worse than you broke the Brazil nut It will have to come out it's past saving [He withdraws the probe and again comes to the side of the chair to converse] Dont be alarmed you shant feel anything Ill give you gas

CRAMPTON Rubbish, man I want none of your gas Out with it! People were taught to bear necessary pain in my day

VALENTINE Oh, if you like being hurt, all right Ill hurt you as much as you like, without any extra charge for the beneficial effect on your character

CRAMPTON [rising and glaring at him] Young man you owe me six weeks rent

VALENTINE I do

CRAMPTON Can you pay me?

VALENTINE No

CRAMPTON [satisfied with his advantage] I thought not [He sits down again] How soon d'y' think youll be able to pay me if you have no better manners than to make game of your patients?

VALENTINE My good sir my patients havnt all formed their characters on kitchen soap

CRAMPTON [suddenly gripping him by the arm as he turns away again to the cabinet] So much the worse for them! I tell you you dont understand my character If I could spare all my teeth, Id make you pull them out one after another to shew you what a properly hardened man can go through with when he's made up his mind to it [He nods at Valentine to emphasize this declaration, and releases him]

VALENTINE [his careless pleasantry quite unruffled] And you want to be more hardened, do you?

CRAMPTON Yes

VALENTINE [strolling away to the bell] Well, you're quite hard enough for me already—as a landlord [Crampton receives this with a gronl of grim humor Valentine rings the bell, and remarks in a cheerful casual way, whilst waiting for it to be answered] Why did you never get married, Mr Crampton? A wife and children would have taken some of the hardness out of you CRAMPTON [with unexpected ferocity] What the devil is that to you?

The parlormaid appears at the door

VALENTINE [politely] Some warm water, please [She retires, and Valentine comes back to the cabinet, not at all put out by Crampton's rudeness, and carries on the conversation whilst he selects a forceps and places it ready to his hand with a gag and a tumbler] You were asking me what the devil that was to me. Well, I have an idea of getting married myself

CRAMPTON [with grumbling irony] Naturally, sir, naturally. When a young man has come to his last farthing, and is within twenty-four hours of having his furniture distrained upon by his landlord, he marries. I've noticed that before. Well, marry, and be miserable

VALENTINE Oh come! what do you know about it?

CRAMPTON I'm not a bachelor

VALENTINE Then there is a Mrs Crampton?

CRAMPTON [wincing with a pang of resentment] Yes damn her!

VALENTINE [unperturbed] Hm! A father, too, perhaps, as well as a husband, Mr Crampton?

CRAMPTON Three children

VALENTINE [politely] Damn them? eh?

CRAMPTON [jealously] No, sir the children are as much mine as hers

The parlormaid brings in a jug of hot water

VALENTINE Thank you [She gives him the jug and goes out He brings it to the cabinet, continuing in the same idle strain] I really should like to know your family, Mr Crampton [He pours some hot water into the tumbler]

CRAMPTON Sorry I can't introduce you, sir. I'm happy to say that I don't know where they are, and don't care, so long as they keep out of my way [Valentine, with a hunch of his eyebrows and shoulders, drops the forceps with a clink into the hot water] You needn't warm that thing to use on me. I'm not afraid of the cold steel [Valentine stoops to arrange the gas pump and cylinder beside the chair] What's that heavy thing?

VALENTINE Oh, never mind. Something to put my foot on, to get the necessary purchase for a good pull [Crampton looks alarmed in spite of himself Valentine stands upright and places the glass with the forceps ready to his hand, chatting on with provoking indifference] And so you advise me not to get married, Mr Crampton? [He puts his foot on the lever by which the chair is raised and lowered]

CRAMPTON [irritably] I advise you to get my tooth out and have done reminding me of my wife. Come along, man [He grips the arms of the chair and braces himself]

VALENTINE What do you bet that I don't get that tooth out without your feeling it?

CRAMPTON Your six weeks' rent, young man. Don't you gammon me.

VALENTINE [jumping at the bet and sending him aloft vigorously] Done! Are you ready?

Crampton, who has lost his grip of the chair in his alarm at its sudden ascent, folds his arms, sits stiffly upright, and prepares for the worst. Valentine suddenly lets down the back of the chair to an obtuse angle.

CRAMPTON [clutching at the arms of the chair as he falls back] P! take care, man! I'm quite helpless in this po—

VALENTINE [defily stopping him with the gag, and snatching up the mouthpiece of the gas machine] You'll be more helpless presently.

He presses the mouthpiece over Crampton's mouth and nose, leaning over his chest so as to hold his head and shoulders well down on the chair. Crampton makes an inarticulate sound in the mouthpiece and tries to lay hands on Valentine, whom he supposes to be in front of him. After a moment his arms wave aimlessly, then subside and drop. He is quite insensible. Valentine throws aside the mouthpiece quickly, picks the forceps adroitly from the glass, and—

ACT II

On the terrace at the Marine Hotel. It is a square flagged platform, glaring in the sun, and fenced on the seaward edge by a parapet. The head waiter, busy laying napkins on a luncheon table with his back to the sea, has the hotel on his right, and on his left, in the corner nearest the sea, a flight of steps leading down to the beach. When he looks down the terrace in front of him he sees, a little to his left, a middle aged gentleman sitting on a chair of iron laths at a little iron table with a bowl of lump sugar on it, reading an ultra-Conservative newspaper, with his umbrella up to defend him from the sun, which, in August and at less than an hour after noon, is toasting his protended insteps. At the hotel side of the terrace, there is a garden seat of the ordinary esplanade pattern. Access to the hotel for visitors is by an entrance in the middle of its façade. Nearer the parapet there lurks a way to the kitchen, masked by a little trellis porch. The table at which the waiter is occupied is a long one, set across the terrace with covers and chairs for five, two at each side and one at the end next the hotel. Against the parapet another table is prepared as a buffet to serve from.

The waiter is a remarkable person in his way. A silky old man, white haired and delicate looking, but so cheerful and contented that in his encouraging presence ambition stands rebuked as vulgarity, and imagination as treason to the abounding sufficiency and interest of the actual. He has a certain expression peculiar to men who are pre-eminent in their callings, and who, whilst aware of the vanity of success, are untouched by envy.

The gentleman at the iron table is not dressed for the seaside. He wears his London frock coat and gloves, and his tall silk hat is on the table beside the sugarbowl. The excellent condition and quality of these garments and the gold-rimmed folding spectacles through which he is reading, testify to his respectability. He is about fifty, clean-shaven and close-cropped, with the corners of his mouth turned down purposely, as if he suspected them of wanting to turn up, and was determined not to let them have their way. He keeps his brow resolutely wide open, as if, again, he had resolved in his youth to be truthful, magnanimous, and incorruptible, but had never succeeded in making that habit of mind automatic and unconscious. Still, he is by no means to be laughed at. There is no sign of stupidity or infirmity of will about him. On the contrary, he would pass anywhere at sight as a man of more than average professional capacity and responsibility. Just at present he is enjoying the weather and the sea too much to be out of patience, but he has exhausted all the news in his paper, and is at present reduced to the advertisements, which are not sufficiently succulent to induce him to persevere with them.

THE GENTLEMAN [yawning and giving up the paper as a bad job] Waiter!

WAITER Sir? [coming to him]

THE GENTLEMAN Are you quite sure Mrs Clandon is coming back before lunch?

WAITER Quite sure, sir. She expects you at a quarter to one, sir. [The gentleman, soothed at once by the waiter's voice, looks at him with a lazy smile. It is a quiet voice, with a gentle melody in it that gives sympathetic interest to his most commonplace remark, and he speaks with the sweetest propriety, neither dropping his catches nor misplacing them, nor committing any other vulgarism. He looks at his watch as he continues.] Not that yet, sir, is it? 12.43, sir. Only two minutes more to wait, sir. Nice morning, sir!

THE GENTLEMAN Yes very fresh after London.

WAITER Yes, sir. So all our visitors say, sir. Very nice family, Mrs Clandon's, sir.

THE GENTLEMAN You like them, do you?

WAITER Yes, sir. They have a free way with them that is very taking, sir, very taking indeed especially the young lady and gentleman.

THE GENTLEMAN Miss Dorothea and Mr Philip, I suppose.

WAITER Yes, sir. The young lady, in giving an order, or the like of that, will say, "Remember, William we came to this hotel on your account, having heard what a perfect waiter you are." The young gentleman will tell me that I remind him strongly of his father [the gentleman starts at this] and that he expects me to act by him as such [With a soothing sunny cadence] Oh, very pleasant, sir, very affable and pleasant indeed!

THE GENTLEMAN You like his father! [He laughs at the notion]

WAITER Oh sir, we must not take what they say too seriously. Of course, sir, if it were true, the young lady would have seen the resemblance too, sir.

THE GENTLEMAN Did she?

WAITER No, sir. She thought me like the bust of Shakespear in Stratford Church, sir. That is why she calls me William, sir. My real name is Walter, sir. [He turns to go back to the table, and sees Mrs Clandon coming up to the terrace from the beach by the steps.] Here is Mrs Clandon, sir. [To Mrs Clandon in an unobtrusively confidential tone] Gentleman for you, ma'am.

MRS CLANDON We shall have two more gentlemen at lunch, William.

WAITER Right, ma'am. Thank you, ma'am.

[He nithdrans into the hotel]

Mrs Clandon comes fornard looking for her visitor, but passes over the gentleman without any sign of recognition

THE GENTLEMAN [peering at her quaintly from under the umbrella] Dont you know me?

MRS CLANDON [incredulously, looking hard at him] Are you Finch M'Comas?

M'COMAS Cant you guess? [He shuts the umbrella, puts it aside, and jocularly plants himself nith his hands on his hips to be inspected]

MRS CLANDON I believe you are [She gnes him her hand. The shake that ensues is that of old friends after a long separation] Wheres your beard?

M'COMAS [humorously solemn] Would you employ a solicitor with a beard?

MRS CLANDON [pointing to the silk hat on the table] Is that your hat?

M'COMAS Would you employ a solicitor with a sombrero?

MRS CLANDON I have thought of you all these eighteen years with the beard and the sombrero [She sits down on the garden seat. M'Comas takes his chair again] Do you go to the meetings of the Dralectical Society still?

M'COMAS [gravely] I do not frequent meetings now

MRS CLANDON Finch I see what has happened. You have become respectable M'COMAS Havnt you?

MRS CLANDON Not a bit

M'COMAS You hold to our old opinions still?

MRS CLANDON As firmly as ever

M'COMAS Bless me! And you are still ready to make speeches in public, in spite of your sex [Mrs Clandon nods], to insist on a married woman's right to her own separate property [she nods again], to clampion Darwin's view of the origin of species and John Stuart Mill's Essay on Liberty [nod], to read Huxley, Tyndall, and George Ehot [three nods], and to demand University degrees, the opening of the professions, and the parliamentary franchise for women as well as men?

MRS CLANDON [resolutely] Yes I have not gone back one inch, and I have educated Gloria to take up my work when I must leave it. That is what has brought me back to England. I felt I had no right to bury her alive in Madeira my St Helena, Finch I suppose she will be howled at as I was, but she is prepared for that M'COMAS Howled at! My dear good lady there is nothing in any of those views nowadays to prevent her marrying an archbishop. You reproached me just now for having become respectable. You were wrong. I hold to our old opinions as strongly as ever. I dont go to church, and I dont pretend I do. I call myself what I am a Philosophic Radical standing for liberty and the rights of the individual, as I learnt to do from my master Herbert Spencer. Am I howled at? No. I'm indulged as an old fogey. I'm out of everything, because Ive refused to bow the knee to Socialism.

MRS CLANDON [shocked] Socialism!

M'COMAS Yes Socialism. Thats what Miss Gloria will be up to her ears in before the end of the month if you let her loose here.

MRS CLANDON [emphatically] But I can prove to her that Socialism is a fallacy.

M'COMAS [touchingly] It is by proving that, Mrs Clandon, that I have lost all my young disciples. Be careful what you do. let her go her own way [With some bitterness]. We're old fashioned. the world thinks it has left us behind. There is only one place in all England where your opinions would still pass as advanced.

MRS CLANDON [scornfully unconvinced] The Church, perhaps?

M'COMAS No the theatre. And now to business! Why have you made me come down here?

MRS CLANDON Well, partly because I wanted to see you—

M'COMAS [with good-humored irony] Thanks.

MRS CLANDON —and partly because I want you to explain everything to the children. They know nothing, and now that we have come back to England it is impossible to leave them in ignorance any longer [Agitated]. Finch I cannot bring myself to tell them I—

She is interrupted by the twins and Gloria. Dolly comes tearing up the steps, racing Phil, who combines terrific speed with an unhurried propriety of bearing which, however, costs him the race, as Dolly reaches her mother first and almost upsets the garden seat by the precipitancy of her embrace.

DOLLY [breathless] It's all right, mamma. The dentist is coming, and he's bringing his old man.

MRS CLANDON Dolly, dear dont you see Mr M'Comas? [M'Comas rises, smiling]

DOLLY [her face falling with the most disparagingly obvious disappointment] This! Where are the flowing locks?

PHILIP [seconding her warmly] Where the beard? the cloak? the poetic exterior?

DOLLY Oh, Mr M'Comas, you've gone and spoiled yourself Why didn't you wait till we'd seen you?

M'COMAS [taken aback, but rallying his humor to meet the emergency] Because eighteen years is too long for a solicitor to go without having his hair cut

GLORIA [at the other side of M'Comas] How do you do, Mr M'Comas? [He turns, and she takes his hand and presses it, with a frank straight look into his eyes] We are glad to meet you at last M'COMAS Miss Gloria, I presume? [Gloria smiles assent, releases his hand after a final pressure, and retires behind the garden seat, leaning over the back beside Mrs Clandon] And this young gentleman?

PHILIP I was christened in a comparatively prosaic mood My name is—

DOLLY [completing his sentence for him declamatorily] "Norval On the Grampian hills"—

PHILIP [declaiming gravely] "My father feeds his flock, a frugal swan"—

MRS CLANDON [remonstrating] Dear, dear children don't be silly Everything is so new to them here, Finch, that they are in the wildest spirits They think every Englishman they meet is a joke

DOLLY Well, so he is it's not our fault

PHILIP My knowledge of human nature is fairly extensive, Mr M'Comas, but I find it impossible to take the inhabitants of this island seriously

M'COMAS I presume, sir, you are Master Philip [offering his hand]

PHILIP [taking M'Comas's hand and looking solemnly at him] I was Master Philip was so for many years, just as you were once Master Finch [He gives the hand a single shake and drops it, then turns away, exclaiming meditatively] How strange it is to look back on our boyhood!

DOLLY [to Mrs Clandon] Has Finch had a drink?

MRS CLANDON [remonstrating] Dearest Mr M'Comas will lunch with us

DOLLY Have you ordered for seven? Don't forget the old gentleman

MRS CLANDON I have not forgotten him, dear What is his name?

DOLLY Chalkstones He'll be here at half past one [To M'Comas] Are we like what you expected?

MRS CLANDON [earnestly, even a little peremptorily] Dolly Mr M'Comas has something more serious than that to tell you Children I have asked my old friend to answer the question you asked this morning He is your father's friend as well as mine, and he will tell you the story of my married life more fairly than I could Gloria are you satisfied?

GLORIA [gravely attentive] Mr M'Comas is very kind

M'COMAS [nervously] Not at all, my dear young lady not at all At the same time, this is rather sudden I was hardly prepared—er—

DOLLY [suspiciously] Oh, we don't want anything prepared

PHILIP [exhorting him] Tell us the truth

DOLLY [emphatically] Bald headed

M'COMAS [nettled] I hope you intend to take what I have to say seriously

PHILIP [with profound gravity] I hope it will deserve it, Mr M'Comas My knowledge of human nature teaches me not to expect too much

MRS CLANDON [remonstrating] Phil—

PHILIP Yes, mother all right I beg your pardon, Mr M'Comas don't mind us

DOLLY [in conciliation] We mean well

PHILIP Shut up, both

Dolly holds her lips M'Comas takes a chair from the luncheon table, places it between the little table and the garden seat, with Dolly on his right and Phil on his left, and settles himself in it with the air of a man about to begin a long communication The Clandons watch him expectantly

M'COMAS Ahem! Your father—

DOLLY How old is he?

PHILIP Sh!

MRS CLANDON [softly] Dear Dolly don't let us interrupt Mr M'Comas

M'COMAS [emphatically] Thank you, Mrs Clandon Thank you [To Dolly] Your father is fifty-seven DOLLY [with a bound, startled and excited] Fifty-seven! Where does he live?

MRS CLANDON [remonstrating] Dolly! Dolly!

M'COMAS [stopping her] Let me answer that, Mrs Clandon The answer will surprise you considerably He lives in this town

Mrs Clandon rises, intensely angry, but sits down again, speechless Gloria watching her perplexedly

DOLLY [with conviction] I knew it Phil Chalkstones is our father!

M'COMAS Chalkstones!

DOLLY Oh, Crampstones, or whatever it is He said I was like his mother I knew he must mean his daughter

PHILIP [very seriously] Mr M'Comas I desire to consider your feelings in every possible way, but I warn you that if you stretch the long arm of coincidence to the length of telling me that Mr Crampton of this town is my father, I shall decline to entertain the information for a moment

M'COMAS And pray why?

PHILIP Because I have seen the gentleman, and he is entirely unfit to be my father, or Dolly's father, or Gloria's father, or my mother's husband

M'COMAS Oh, indeed! Well, sir, let me tell you that whether you like it or not, he is your father, and your sisters' father, and Mrs Clandon's husband Now! What have you to say to that?

DOLLY [whimpering] You needn't be so cross Crampton isn't your father

PHILIP Mr M'Comas your conduct is heartless Here you find a family enjoying the unspeakable peace and freedom of being orphans We have never seen the face of a relative never known a claim except the claim of freely chosen friendship And now you wish to thrust into the most intimate relationship with us a man whom we don't know—

DOLLY [vehemently] An awful old man! [Reproachfully] And you began as if you had quite a nice father for us!

M'COMAS [angrily] How do you know that he is not nice? And what right have you to choose your own father? [Raising his voice] Let me tell you, Miss Clandon, that you are too young to—

DOLLY [interrupting him suddenly and eagerly] Stop I forgot! Has he any money?

M'COMAS He has a great deal of money

DOLLY [delighted] Oh, what did I always say, Phil?

PHILIP Dolly we have perhaps been condemning the old man too hastily Proceed, Mr M'Comas

M'COMAS I shall not proceed, sir I am too hurt, too shocked, to proceed

MRS CLANDON [struggling with her temper] Finch do you realize what is happening? Do you understand that my children have invited that man to lunch, and that he will be here in a few moments?

M'COMAS [completely upset] What! Do you mean? am I to understand? is it—

PHILIP [impressively] Steady, Finch Think it out slowly and carefully He's coming coming to lunch

GLORIA Which of us is to tell him the truth? Have you thought of that?

MRS CLANDON Finch you must tell him

DOLLY Oh, Finch is no good at telling things Look at the mess he has made of telling us

M'COMAS I have not been allowed to speak I protest against this

DOLLY [taking his arm coaxingly] Dear Finch don't be cross

MRS CLANDON Gloria let us go in He may arrive at any moment

GLORIA [proudly] Do not stir, mother I shall not stir We must not run away

MRS CLANDON My dear we cannot sit down to lunch just as we are We shall come back again We must have no bravado [Gloria ninces, and goes into the hotel without a word] Come, Dolly [As she goes to the hotel door, the waiter comes out with a tray of plates, etc for two additional covers]

WAITER Gentlemen come yet, maam?

MRS CLANDON Two more to come still, thank you They will be here immediately [She goes into the hotel]

The waiter takes his tray to the service table

PHILIP I have an idea Mr M'Comas this communication should be made, should it not, by a man of infinite tact?

M'COMAS It will require tact, certainly

PHILIP Good! Dolly whose tact were you noticing only this morning?

DOLLY [seizing the idea with rapture] Oh yes, I declare!

PHILIP The very man! [Calling] William!

WAITER Coming, sir

M'COMAS [horrified] The waiter! Stop! stop! I will not permit this I—

WAITER [presenting himself between Phil and M'Comas] Yes, sir

M'Comas's complexion fades into stone grey all movement and expression desert his eyes He sits down stupefied

PHILIP William you remember my request to you to regard me as your son?

WAITER [with respectful indulgence] Yes, sir Anything you please, sir

PHILIP William at the very outset of your career as my father, a rival has appeared on the scene

WAITER Your real father, sir? Well, that was to be expected, sooner or later, sir, wasn't it? [Turning with a happy smile to M'Comas] Is it you, sir?

M'COMAS [renewed by indignation] Certainly not My children know how to behave themselves

PHILIP No, William this gentleman was very nearly my father he wooed my mother, but wooed her in vain

M'COMAS [outraged] Well, of all the—

PHILIP Sh! Consequently, he is only our solicitor Do you know one Crampton, of this town?

WAITER Cock-eyed Crampton, sir, of the Crooked Billet, is it?

PHILIP I don't know Finch does he keep a public house?

M'COMAS [rising, scandalized] No, no, no Your father, sir, is a well known yacht builder, an eminent man here

WAITER [impressed] Oh! Beg pardon, sir, I'm sure A son of Mr Crampton's! Dear me!

PHILIP Mr Crampton is coming to lunch with us

WAITER [puzzled] Yes, sir [Diplomatically] Don't usually lunch with his family, perhaps, sir?

PHILIP [impressively] William he does not know that we are his family He has not seen us for eighteen years He won't know us [To emphasize the communication, Phil seats himself on the iron table with a spring, and looks at the waiter with his lips compressed and his legs swinging]

DOLLY We want you to break the news to him, William

WAITER But I should think he'd guess when he sees your mother, miss

Phil's legs become motionless He contemplates the waiter rapidly

DOLLY [dazzled] I never thought of that

PHILIP Nor I [Coming off the table and turning reproachfully on M'Comas] Nor you!

DOLLY And you a solicitor!

PHILIP Finch your professional incompetence is appalling William your sagacity put us all to shame

DOLLY You really are like Shakespear, William

WAITER Not at all, sir Don't mention it, miss Most happy, I'm sure, sir [He goes back modestly to the luncheon table and lays the two additional covers, one at the end next the steps, and the other so as to make a third on the side furthest from the balustrade]

PHILIP [abruptly seizing M'Comas's arm and leading him towards the hotel] Finch come and wash your hands

M'COMAS I am thoroughly vexed and hurt, Mr Clandon—

PHILIP [interrupting him] You will get used to us Come, Dolly [M'Comas shakes him off and marches into the hotel Phil follows with unruffled composure]

DOLLY [turning for a moment on the steps as she follows them] Keep your wits about you, William There will be fireworks

WAITER Right, miss You may depend on me, miss [She goes into the hotel]

Valentine comes lightly up the steps from the beach, followed doggedly by Crampton Valentine carries a walking stick Crampton, either because he is old and chilly, or with some idea of extenuating the unfashionableness of his reefer jacket, wears a light overcoat He stops at the chair left by M'Comas in the middle of the terrace, and steadies himself for a moment by placing his hand on the back of it

CRAMPTON Those steps make me giddy [He passes his hand over his forehead] I have not got over that infernal gas yet

He goes to the iron chair, so that he can lean his elbows on the little table to prop his head as he sits He soon recovers, and begins to unbutton his overcoat Meanwhile Valentine interviews the waiter

VALENTINE Waiter!

WAITER [coming forward between them] Yes, sir

VALENTINE Mrs Lanfrey Clandon

WAITER [with a sweet smile of welcome] Yes, sir We're expecting you, sir That is your table, sir Mrs Clandon will be down presently, sir The young lady and gentleman were just talking about your friend, sir

VALENTINE Indeed!

WAITER [smoothly melodious] Yes, sir Great flow of spirits, sir A vein of pleasantry, as you might say, sir [Quickly, to Crampton, who has risen to get the overcoat off] Beg pardon, sir, but if you'll allow me [helping him to get the overcoat off, and taking it from him] Thank you, sir [Crampton sits down again, and the waiter resumes the broken melody] The young gentleman's latest is that you're his father, sir

CRAMPTON What!

WAITER Only his joke, sir, his favorite joke

Yesterday, I was to be his father Today, as soon as he knew you were coming, sir, he tried to put it up on me that you were his father his long lost father! Not seen you for eighteen years, he said

CRAMPTON [startled] Eighteen years!

WAITER Yes, sir [With gentle archness] But I was up to his tricks, sir I saw the idea coming into his head as he stood there, thinking what new joke he'd have with me Yes, sir that's the sort he is very pleasant, very off-hand and affable indeed, sir [Again changing his tempo to say to Valentine, who is putting his stick down against the corner of the garden seat] If you'll allow me, sir? [He takes Valentine's stick] Thank you, sir [Valentine strolls up to the luncheon table and looks at the menu The waiter turns to Crampton and continues his lay] Even the solicitor took up the joke, although he was in a manner of speaking in my confidence about the young gentleman, sir Yes, sir, I assure you, sir You would never imagine what respectable professional gentlemen from London will do on an outing, when the sea air takes them, sir

CRAMPTON Oh, there's a solicitor with them, is there?

WAITER The family solicitor, sir yes, sir Name of M'Comas, sir [He goes towards the hotel entrance with the coat and stick, happily unconscious of the bomblike effect the name has produced on Crampton]

CRAMPTON [rising in angry alarm] M'Comas! [Calling to Valentine] Valentine! [Again, fiercely] Valentine! [Valentine turns] This is a plant, a conspiracy This is my family! my children! my infernal wife

VALENTINE [coolly] Oh indeed! Interesting meeting! [He resumes his study of the menu]

CRAMPTON Meeting! Not for me Let me out of this [Calling across to the waiter] Give me that coat

WAITER Yes, sir [He comes back, puts Valentine's stick carefully down against the luncheon table, and delicately shakes the coat out and holds it for Crampton to put on] I seem to have done the young gentleman an injustice, sir, haven't I, sir?

CRAMPTON Rrrh! [He stops on the point of putting his arms into the sleeves, and turns on Valentine with sudden suspicion] Valentine you are in this You made this plot You—

VALENTINE [decisively] Bosh! [He throws the menu down and goes round the table to look out unconcernedly over the parapet]

CRAMPTON [angrily] What d'ye—

M'Comas, followed by Phil and Dolly, comes out, but recoils on seeing Crampton

WAITER [softly interrupting Crampton] Steady, sir Here they come, sir [He takes up Valentine's stick and makes for the hotel, throwing the coat across his arm]

M'Comas turns the corners of his mouth resolutely down and crosses to Crampton, who draws back and glares, with his hands behind him M'Comas, with his brow opener than ever, confronts him in the majesty of a spotless conscience

WAITER [aside, as he passes Phil on his way out] I've broke it to him, sir

PHILIP Invaluable William! [He passes on to the table]

DOLLY [aside to the waiter] How did he take it?

WAITER [aside to her] Startled at first, miss, but resigned very resigned indeed, miss [He takes the stick and coat into the hotel]

M'COMAS [having stared Crampton out of countenance] So here you are, Mr Crampton

CRAMPTON Yes, here caught in a trap a mean trap Are those my children?

PHILIP [with deadly politeness] Is this our father, Mr M'Comas?

M'COMAS [stoutly] He is

DOLLY [conventionally] Pleased to meet you again [She wanders idly round the table, exchanging a grimace with Valentine on the way]

PHILIP Allow me to discharge my first duty as host by ordering your wine [He takes the wine list from the table His polite attention, and Dolly's unconcerned indifference, leave Crampton on the footing of a casual acquaintance picked up that morning at the dentist's The consciousness of it goes through the father with so keen a pang that he trembles all over, his brow becomes wet, and he stares dumbly at his son, who, just sensible enough of his own callousness to intensely enjoy the humor and adroitness of it, proceeds pleasantly] Fetch some crusted old port for you, as a respectable family solicitor, eh?

M'COMAS [firmly] Apollinaris only Nothing heating [He walks away to the side of the terrace, like a man putting temptation behind him]

PHILIP Valentine—?

VALENTINE Would Lager be considered vulgar?

PHILIP Probably We'll order some [Turning to Crampton with cheerful politeness] And now, Mr Crampton, what can we do for you?

CRAMPTON What d'ye mean, boy?

PHILIP Boy! [Very solemnly] Whose fault is it that I am a boy?

Crampton snatches the wine list rudely from him and irresolutely pretends to read it Philip abandons it to him with perfect politeness

DOLLY [looking over Crampton's right shoulder] The whisky's on the last page but one

CRAMPTON Let me alone, child

DOLLY Child! No, no you may call me Dolly if you like, but you mustn't call me child [She slips her arm through Phil's, and the two stand looking at Crampton as if he were some eccentric stranger]

CRAMPTON [mopping his brow in rage and agony, and yet relieved even by their playing with him] M'Comas we are—ha!—going to have a pleasant meal

M'COMAS [resolutely cheerful] There is no reason why it should not be pleasant

PHILIP Finch's face is a feast in itself

Mrs Clandon and Gloria come from the hotel Mrs Clandon advances with courageous self-possession and marked dignity of manner She stops at the foot of the steps to address Valentine, who is in her path Gloria also stops, looking at Crampton with a certain repulsion

MRS CLANDON Glad to see you again, Mr Valentine [He smiles She passes on and confronts Crampton, intending to address him with complete composure, but his aspect shakes her She stops suddenly and says anxiously, with a touch of remorse] Fergus you are greatly changed

CRAMPTON [grimly] I daresay A man does change in eighteen years

MRS CLANDON [troubled] I—I did not mean that I hope your health is good

CRAMPTON Thank you No it's not my health It's my happiness that's the change you meant, I think [Breaking out suddenly] Look at her, M'Comas! Look at her, and [with a half laugh, half sob] look at me?

PHILIP Sh! [Pointing to the hotel entrance, where the waiter has just appeared] Order before William!

DOLLY [touching Crampton's arm warningly] Ahem!

The waiter goes to the service table and beckons to the kitchen entrance, whence issue a young waiter with soup plates, and a cook, in white apron and cap, with the soup tureen The young waiter remains and serves the cook goes out, and reappears from time to time bringing in the courses He carves, but does not serve The waiter comes to the end of the luncheon table next the steps

MRS CLANDON [as they assemble at the table] I think you have all met one another already today Oh no excuse me [Introducing] Mr Valentine Mr M'Comas [She goes to the end of the table nearest the hotel] Fergus will you take the head of the table, please CRAMPTON Ha! [Bitterly] The head of the table!

WAITER [holding the chair for him with in-offensive encouragement] This end, sir [Crampton submits, and takes his seat] Thank you, sir

MRS CLANDON Mr Valentine will you take that side [indicating the side next the parapet] with Gloria? [Valentine and Gloria take their places, Gloria next Crampton and Valentine next Mrs Clandon] Finch I must put you on this side, between Dolly and Phil You must protect yourself as best you can

The three take the remaining side of the table, Dolly next her mother, Phil next his father Soup is served

WAITER [to Crampton] Thick or clear, sir?

CRAMPTON [to Mrs Clandon] Does nobody ask a blessing in this household?

PHILIP [interposing smartly] Let us first settle what we are about to receive William!

WAITER Yes, sir [He glides swiftly round the table to Phil's left elbow On his way he whispers to the young waiter] Thick

PHILIP Two small Lagers for the children as usual, William, and one large for this gentleman [indicating Valentine] Large Apollinaris for Mr M'Comas

WAITER Yes, sir

DOLLY Have a six of Irish in it, Finch?

M'COMAS [scandalized] No No, thank you

PHILIP Number 413 for my mother and Miss Gloria as before, and— [turning inquiringly to Crampton] Eh?

CRAMPTON [scowling and about to reply offensively] I—

WAITER [striking in mellifluously] All right, sir We know what Mr Crampton likes here, sir [He goes into the hotel]

PHILIP [looking gravely at his father] You frequent bars Bad habit!

The cook, followed by a waiter with hot plates, brings in the fish from the kitchen to the service table, and begins slicing it

CRAMPTON You have learnt your lesson from your mother, I see

MRS CLANDON Phil will you please remember that your jokes are apt to irritate people who are not accustomed to us, and that your father is our guest today

CRAMPTON [bitterly] Yes a guest at the head of my own table [The soup plates are removed]

DOLLY [sympathetically] It's embarrassing, isn't it? It's just as bad for us, you know

PHILIP Sh! Dolly we are both wanting in tact [To Crampton] We mean well, Mr Crampton, but we are not yet strong in the filial line [The waiter returns from the hotel with the drinks] William come and restore good feeling

WAITER [cheerfully] Yes, sir Certainly, sir Small Lager for you, sir [To Crampton] Seltzer and Irish, sir [To M'Comas] Apollinaris, sir [To Dolly] Small Lager, miss [To Mrs Clandon, pouring out nine] 413, madam [To Valentine] Large Lager for you, sir [To Gloria] 413, miss

DOLLY [drinking] To the family!

PHILIP [drinking] Hearth and Home!

Fish is served

M'COMAS We are getting on very nicely after all

DOLLY [critically] After all! After all what, Finch?

CRAMPTON [sarcastically] He means that you are getting on very nicely in spite of the presence of your father Do I take your point rightly, Mr M'Comas?

M'COMAS [disconcerted] No, no I only said "after all" to round off the sentence I—er—er—er—

WAITER [tactfully] Turbot, sir?

M'COMAS [intensely grateful for the interruption] Thank you, waiter thank you

WAITER [sotto voce] Dont mention it, sir [He returns to the service table]

CRAMPTON [to Phil] Have you thought of choosing a profession yet?

PHILIP I am keeping my mind open on that subject William!

WAITER Yes, sir

PHILIP How long do you think it would take me to learn to be a really smart waiter?

WAITER Cant be learnt, sir It's in the character, sir [Confidentially to Valentine, who is looking about for something] Bread for the lady, sir? yes, sir [He serves bread to Gloria, and resumes, at his former pitch] Very few are born to it, sir PHILIP You dont happen to have such a thing as a son, yourself, have you?

WAITER Yes, sir oh yes, sir [To Gloria, again dropping his voice] A little more fish, miss? you wont care for the joint in the middle of the day

GLORIA No, thank you

The fish plates are removed, and the next course served

DOLLY Is your son a waiter too, William?

WAITER [serving Gloria with fowl] Oh no, miss he's too impetuous He's at the Bar

M'COMAS [patronizingly] A potman, eh?

WAITER [with a touch of melancholy, as if recalling a disappointment softened by time] No, sir the other bar Your profession, sir A Q C, sir

M'COMAS [embarrassed] I'm sure I beg your pardon

WAITER Not at all, sir Very natural mistake, I'm sure, sir Ive often wished he was a potman, sir Would have been off my hands ever so much sooner, sir [Aside to Valentine, who is again in difficulties] Salt at your elbow, sir [Resuming] Yes, sir had to support him until he was thirty-seven, sir But doing well now, sir very satisfactory indeed, sir Nothing less than fifty guineas, sir M'COMAS Democracy, Crampton! Modern democracy!

WAITER [calmly] No, sir, not democracy only education, sir Scholarships, sir Cambridge Local, sir Sidney Sussex College, sir [Dolly plucks his sleeve and whispers as he bends down] Stone ginger, miss? Right, miss [To M'Comas] Very good thing for him, sir he never had any turn for real work, sir [He goes into the hotel, leaving the company somewhat overwhelmed by his son's eminence]

VALENTINE Which of us dare give that man an order again!

DOLLY I hope he wont mind my sending him for ginger-beer

CRAMPTON [doggedly] While he's a waiter it's his business to wait If you had treated him as a waiter ought to be treated, he'd have held his tongue

DOLLY What a loss that would have been! Perhaps he'll give us an introduction to his son and get us into London society

The waiter reappears with the ginger-beer

CRAMPTON [growing contemptuously] London society! London society!! Youre not fit for any society, child

DOLLY [losing her temper] Now look here, Mr Crampton If you think—

WAITER [softly, at her elbow] Stone ginger, miss

DOLLY [taken aback, recovers her good humor after a long breath, and says sweetly] Thank you, dear William You were just in time

[She drinks]

M'COMAS If I may be allowed to change the subject, Miss Clandon, what is the established religion in Madeira?

GLORIA I suppose the Portuguese religion I never inquired

DOLLY The servants come in Lent and kneel down before you and confess all the things they've done, and you have to pretend to forgive them. Do they do that in England, William?

WAITER Not usually, miss. They may in some parts, but it has not come under my notice, miss. [Catching Mrs Clandon's eye as the young waiter offers her the salad bowl] You like it without dressing, ma'am, yes, ma'am, I have some for you. [To his young colleague, motioning him to serve Gloria] This side, Jo. [He takes a special portion of salad from the service table and puts it beside Mrs Clandon's plate. In doing so he observes that Dolly is making a wry face] Only a bit of watercress, miss, got in by mistake. [He takes her salad away] Thank you, miss. [To the young waiter, admonishing him to serve Dolly afresh] Jo. [Resuming] Mostly members of the Church of England, miss.

DOLLY Members of the Church of England? What's the subscription?

CRAMPTON [rising violently amid general consternation] You see how my children have been brought up, M'Comas. You see it, you hear it. I call all of you to witness— [He becomes inarticulate, and is about to strike his fist recklessly on the table when the waiter considerably takes away his plate]

MRS CLANDON [firmly] Sit down, Fergus. There is no occasion at all for this outburst. You must remember that Dolly is just like a foreigner here. Pray sit down.

CRAMPTON [subsiding unwillingly] I doubt whether I ought to sit here and countenance all this. I doubt it.

WAITER Cheese, sir? or would you like a cold sweet?

CRAMPTON [taken aback] What? Oh! Cheese, cheese.

DOLLY Bring a box of cigarets, William.

WAITER All ready, miss. [He takes a box of cigarets from the service table and places them before Dolly, who selects one and prepares to smoke. He then returns to his table for the matches]

CRAMPTON [staring aghast at Dolly] Does she smoke?

DOLLY [out of patience] Really, Mr Crampton, I'm afraid I'm spoiling your lunch. I'll go and have my cigaret on the beach. [She leaves the table with petulant suddenness and goes to the steps. The waiter strikes a match and adroitly lights her cigaret] Thank you, dear William. [She vanishes down the steps]

CRAMPTON [furiously] Margaret, call that girl back. Call her back, I say.

M'COMAS [trying to make peace] Come, Crampton, never mind. She's her father's daughter, that's all.

MRS CLANDON [with deep resentment] I hope not, Finch. [She rises. They all rise a little] Mr Valentine, will you excuse me? I am afraid Dolly is hurt and put out by what has passed. I must go to her.

CRAMPTON To take her part against me, you mean.

MRS CLANDON [ignoring him] Gloria, will you take my place whilst I am away, dear. [She crosses to the steps and goes down to the beach]

Crampton's expression is one of bitter hatred. The rest watch her in embarrassed silence, feeling the incident to be a very painful one. The waiter discreetly shepherds his assistant along with him into the hotel by the kitchen entrance, leaving the luncheon party to themselves.

CRAMPTON [throwing himself back in his chair] There's a mother for you, M'Comas! There's a mother for you!

GLORIA [steadfastly] Yes, a good mother.

CRAMPTON And a bad father? That's what you mean, eh?

VALENTINE [rising indignantly and addressing Gloria] Miss Clandon, I—

CRAMPTON [turning on him] That girl's name is Crampton, Mr Valentine, not Clandon. Do you wish to join them in insulting me?

VALENTINE [ignoring him] I'm overwhelmed, Miss Clandon. It's all my fault. I brought him here. I'm responsible for him. And I'm ashamed of him.

CRAMPTON What d'y' mean?

GLORIA [rising coldly] No harm has been done, Mr Valentine. We have all been a little childish, I am afraid. Our party has been a failure. Let us break it up and have done with it. [She puts her chair aside and turns to the steps, adding, with slighting composure, as she passes Crampton] Goodbye, father.

She descends the steps with cold disgusted indifference. They all look after her, and so do not notice the return of the waiter from the hotel, laden with Crampton's coat, Valentine's stick, a couple of shawls and parasols, and some camp stools, which he deposits on the bench

CRAMPTON [to himself, staring after Gloria with a ghastly expression] Father! Father! [He strikes his fist violently on the table] Now—

WAITER [offering the coat] This is yours, sir, I think, sir [Crampton glares at him, then snatches it rudely and comes down the terrace towards the garden seat, struggling with the coat in his angry efforts to put it on. M^r Comas rises and goes to his assistance then takes his hat and umbrella from the little iron table, and turns towards the steps. Meanwhile the waiter, after thanking Crampton with unruffled sweetness for taking the coat, picks up the other articles and offers the parasols to Phil] The ladies' sunshades, sir. Nasty glare off the sea today, sir very trying to the complexion, sir. I shall carry down the camp stools myself, sir.

PHILIP You are old, Father William, but you are the most thoughtful of men. No keep the sunshades and give me the camp stools [taking them].

WAITER [with flattering gratitude] Thank you, sir.

PHILIP I'll share with me [giving him a couple]. Come along [They go down the steps together].

VALENTINE [to the waiter] Leave me something to bring down. One of these [offering to take a sunshade].

WAITER [discreetly] That's the younger lady's, sir [Valentine lets it go]. Thank you, sir. If you'll allow me, sir, I think you had better take this [He puts down his burden on Crampton's chair, and produces from the tail pocket of his dress coat a book with a lady's handkerchief between the leaves to mark the page]. The elder young lady is reading it at present [Valentine takes it eagerly]. Thank you, sir. The Subjection of Women, sir, you see [He takes up the burden again]. Heavier reading than you and I would care for at the seaside, sir [He goes down the steps].

VALENTINE [coming rather excitedly to Crampton] Now look here, Crampton are you at all ashamed of yourself?

CRAMPTON [pugnaciously] Ashamed of myself! What for?

VALENTINE For behaving like a beast. What will your daughter think of me for having brought you here?

CRAMPTON I was not thinking of what my daughter was thinking of you.

VALENTINE No, you were thinking of yourself. You're a perfect egomaniac.

CRAMPTON [heartrent] She told you what I am a father a father robbed of his children. What are the hearts of this generation like? Am I to come here after all these years? to see what my children are for the first time! to hear their voices! and carry it all off like a fashionable visitor, drop in to lunch, be Mr Crampton? Mister Crampton! What right have they to talk to me like that? I'm their father do they deny that? I'm a man, with the feelings of our common humanity have I no rights, no claims? In all these years who have I had round me? Servants, clerks, business acquaintances. I've had respect from them, awe, kindness. Would one of them have spoken to me as that girl spoke? Would one of them have laughed at me as that boy was laughing at me all the time? [Frankly] My own children! Mister Crampton! My—

VALENTINE Come, come! they're only children. She called you father.

CRAMPTON Yes "goodbye, father." Good-bye! Oh yes she got at my feelings with a stab!

VALENTINE [taking this in very bad part] Now look here, Crampton you just let her alone she's treated you very well. I had a much worse time of it at lunch than you.

CRAMPTON You!

VALENTINE [with growing impetuosity] Yes I sat next her, and I never said a single thing to her the whole time. Couldn't think of a blessed word. And not a word did she say to me.

CRAMPTON Well?

VALENTINE Well? Well??? [Tackling him very seriously, and talking faster and faster] Crampton do you know what's been the matter with me today? You don't suppose, do you, that I'm in the habit of playing such tricks on my patients as I played on you?

CRAMPTON I hope not.

VALENTINE The explanation is that I'm stark mad, or rather that I've never been in my real senses before. I'm capable of anything. I've grown up at last. I'm a Man, and it's your daughter that's made a man of me.

CRAMPTON [incredulously] Are you in love with my daughter?

VALENTINE [his words now coming in a perfect torrent] Love! Nonsense. It's something far above and beyond that. It's life, it's faith, it's strength, certainty, paradise—

CRAMPTON [interrupting him with acrid contempt] Rubbish man! What have you to keep a wife on? You cant marry her.

VALENTINE Who wants to marry her? I'll kiss her hands, I'll kneel at her feet, I'll live for her, I'll die for her, and that'll be enough for me. Look at her book! See! [He kisses the handkerchief] If you offered me all your money for this excuse for going down to the beach and speaking to her again, I'd only laugh at you [He rushes buoyantly off to the steps, where he bounces right into the arms of the waiter, who is coming up from the beach. The two save themselves from falling by clutching one another tightly round the waist and whirling one another round]

WAITER [delicately] Steady, sir, steady!

VALENTINE [shocked at his own violence] I beg your pardon.

WAITER. Not at all, sir, not at all. Very natural sir, I'm sure sir. at your age. The lady has sent me for her book, sir. Might I take the liberty of asking you to let her have it at once, sir.

VALENTINE With pleasure. And if you will allow me to present you with a professional man's earnings for six weeks— [offering him Dolly's crown piece]

WAITER [as if the sum were beyond his utmost expectations] Thank you, sir much obliged. [Valentine dashes down the steps] Very high-spirited young gentleman, sir very manly and straight set up.

CRAMPTON [in grumbling disparagement] And making his fortune in a hurry, no doubt. I know what his six weeks' earnings come to. [He crosses the terrace to the iron table, and sits down]

WAITER [philosophically] Well, sir, you never can tell. That's a principle in life with me, sir, if you'll excuse my having such a thing, sir. [Delicately sinking the philosopher in the waiter for a moment] Perhaps you havnt noticed that you hadnt touched that seltzer and Irish, sir, when the party broke up. [He takes the tumbler from the luncheon table and sets it before Crampton] Yes sir, you never can tell. There was my son, sir! who ever thought that he would rise to wear a silk gown, sir? And yet, today, sir, nothing less than fifty guineas. What a lesson, sir!

CRAMPTON Well, I hope he is grateful to you and recognizes what he owes you, as a son should.

WAITER We get on together very well, very well indeed, sir, considering the difference in our stations. [Crampton is about to take a drink] A small lump of sugar, sir, will take the flatness out of the seltzer without noticeably sweetening the drink sir. Allow me sir. [He drops a lump of sugar into the tumbler] But as I say to him wheres the difference after all? If I must put on a dress coat to shew what I am, sir, he must put on a wig and gown to shew what he is. If my income is mostly tips and theres a pretence that I dont get them, why, his income is mostly fees sir and I understand theres a pretence that he dont get them! If he likes society, and his profession brings him into contact with all ranks, so does mine too, sir. If it's a little against a barrister to have a waiter for his father, sir, it's a little against a waiter to have a barrister for a son many people consider it a great liberty, sir, I assure you, sir. Can I get you anything else, sir?

CRAMPTON No, thank you. [With bitter humility] I suppose theres no objection to my sitting here for a while. I cant disturb the party on the beach here.

WAITER [with emotion] Very kind of you, sir, to put it as if it was not a compliment and an honor to us, Mr Crampton very kind indeed. The more you are at home here, sir, the better for us.

CRAMPTON [in poignant irony] Home!

WAITER [reflectively] Well, yes sir thats a way of looking at it too sir. I have always said that the great advantage of a hotel is that it's a refuge from home life, sir.

CRAMPTON I missed that advantage today, I think.

WAITER You did, sir. you did. Dear me! It's the unexpected that always happens, isnt it? [Shaking his head] You never can tell, sir you never can tell. [He goes into the hotel]

CRAMPTON [his eyes shining hardly as he props his drawn miserable face on his hands] Home! Home! [Hearing someone approaching he hastily sits bolt upright. It is Gloria, who has come up the steps alone, with her sunshade and her book in her hands. He looks defiantly at her, with the brutal obstinacy of his mouth and the mistrustfulness of his eyes contradicting each other pathetically. She comes to the corner of the garden seat and stands with her back to it, leaning against the end of it, and looking down at him as if wondering at his realness too curious about him to be cold but supremely indifferent to their kinship. He greets her with a growl] Well!

GLORIA I want to speak to you for a moment

CRAMPTON [looking steadily at her] Indeed? Thats surprising You meet your father after eighteen years, and you actually want to speak to him for a moment! Thats touching isnt it?

GLORIA All that is what seems to me so nonsensical, so uncalled for What do you expect us to feel for you? to do for you? What is it you want? Why are you less civil to us than other people are? You are evidently not very fond of us why should you be? But surely we can meet without quarrelling CRAMPTON [a dreadful grey shade passing over his face] Do you realize that I am your father?

GLORIA Perfectly

CRAMPTON Do you know what is due to me as your father?

GLORIA For instance—?

CRAMPTON [rising as if to combat a monster] For instance! For instance!! For instance, duty, affection, respect, obedience—

GLORIA [quitting her careless leaning attitude and confronting him promptly and proudly] I obey nothing but my sense of what is right I respect nothing that is not noble That is my duty [She adds, less firmly] As to affection, it is not within my control I am not sure that I quite know what affection means [She turns away with an evident distaste for that part of the subject, and goes to the luncheon table for a comfortable chair, putting down her book and sunshade]

CRAMPTON [following her with his eyes] Do you really mean what you are saying?

GLORIA [turning on him quickly and severely] Excuse me that is an uncivil question I am speaking seriously to you, and I expect you to take me seriously [She takes one of the luncheon chairs, turns it away from the table, and sits down a little wearily, saying] Can you not discuss this matter coolly and rationally?

CRAMPTON Coolly and rationally! No I cant Do you understand that? I cant

GLORIA [emphatically] No That I cannot understand I have no sympathy with—

CRAMPTON [shrinking nervously] Stop! Dont say anything more yet you dont know what youre doing Do you want to drive me mad? [She frowns, finding such petulance intolerable] He adds hastily No I'm not angry indeed I'm not Wait, wait give me a little time to think [He stands for a moment, screwing and clenching his brows and hands in his perplexity, then takes the end chair from the luncheon table and sits down beside her, saying, with a touching effort to be gentle and patient] Now I think I have it At least I'll try

GLORIA [firmly] You see! Everything comes right if we only think it resolutely out CRAMPTON [in sudden dread] No dont think I want you to feel thats the only thing that can help us Listen! Do you—but first—I forgot Whats your name? I mean your pet name They cant very well call you Sophronia

GLORIA [with astonished disgust] Sophronia! My name is Gloria I am always called by it

CRAMPTON [his temper rising again] Your name is Sophronia, girl you were called after your aunt Sophronia, my sister she gave you your first Bible with your name written in it

GLORIA Then my mother gave me a new name

CRAMPTON [angrily] She had no right to do it I will not allow this

GLORIA You had no right to give me your sister's name I dont know her

CRAMPTON Youre talking nonsense There are bounds to what I will put up with I will not have it Do you hear that?

GLORIA [rising warningly] Are you resolved to quarrel?

CRAMPTON [terrified, pleading] No, no sit down Sit down, wont you? [She looks at him, keeping him in suspense] He forces himself to utter the obnoxious name Gloria [She marks her satisfaction with a slight tightening of the lips, and sits down] There! You see I only want to shew you that I am your father, my—my dear child [The endearment is so plaintively inept that she smiles in spite of herself, and resigns herself to indulge him a little] Listen now What I want to ask you is this Dont you remember me at all? You were only a tiny child when you were taken away from me, but you took plenty of notice of things Cant you remember someone whom you loved, or [shyly] at least liked in a childish way? Come! someone who let you stay in his study and look at his toy boats, as you thought them? [He looks anxiously into her face for some response, and continues less hopefully and more urgently] Someone who let you do as you liked there, and never said a word to you except to tell you that you must sit still and not speak? Someone who was something that no one else was to you—who was your father?

GLORIA [unmoved] If you describe things to me, no doubt I shall presently imagine that I remember them. But I really remember nothing.

CRAMPTON [wistfully] Has your mother never told you anything about me?

GLORIA She has never mentioned your name to me [He groans involuntarily. She looks at him rather contemptuously, and continues]. Except once, and then she did remind me of something I had forgotten.

CRAMPTON [looking up hopefully] What was that?

GLORIA [mercilessly] The whip you bought to beat me with.

CRAMPTON [gnashing his teeth] Oh! To bring that up against me! To turn you from me! When you need never have known [Under a grinding, agonized breath]. Curse her!

GLORIA [springing up] You wretch! [With intense emphasis]. You wretch! You dare curse my mother!

CRAMPTON Stop, or you'll be sorry afterwards. I'm your father.

GLORIA How I hate the name! How I love the name of mother! You had better go.

CRAMPTON I—I'm choking. You want to kill me. Some—I—[His voice stifles. He is almost in a fit].

GLORIA [going up to the balustrade with cool quick resourcefulness, and calling over it to the beach]. Mr Valentine!

VALENTINE [answering from below] Yes.

GLORIA Come here for a moment, please. Mr Crampton wants you [She returns to the table and pours out a glass of water].

CRAMPTON [recovering his speech] No, let me alone. I don't want him. I'm all right, I tell you. I need neither his help nor yours [He rises and pulls himself together]. As you say, I had better go [He puts on his hat]. Is that your last word?

GLORIA I hope so.

He looks stubbornly at her for a moment, nods grimly, as if he agreed to that, and goes into the hotel. She looks at him with equal steadiness until he disappears, when, with a gesture of relief, she turns to Valentine, who comes running up the steps.

VALENTINE [panting] Whats the matter? [Looking round]. Wheres Crampton?

GLORIA Gone [Valentine's face lights up with sudden joy, dread, and mischief as he realizes that he is alone with Gloria. She continues indifferently]. I thought he was ill, but he recovered himself. He wouldn't wait for you. I am sorry [She goes for her book and parasol].

VALENTINE So much the better. He gets on my nerves after a while [Pretending to forget himself]. How could that man have so beautiful a daughter!

GLORIA [taken aback for a moment, then answering him with polite but intentional contempt]. That seems to be an attempt at what is called a pretty speech. Let me say at once, Mr Valentine, that pretty speeches make very sickly conversation. Pray let us be friends, if we are to be friends, in a sensible and wholesome way. I have no intention of getting married, and unless you are content to accept that state of things, we had much better not cultivate each other's acquaintance.

VALENTINE [cautiously] I see. May I ask just this one question? Is your objection an objection to marriage as an institution, or merely an objection to marrying me personally?

GLORIA I do not know you well enough, Mr Valentine, to have any opinion on the subject of your personal merits [She turns away from him with infinite indifference, and sits down with her book on the garden seat]. I do not think the conditions of marriage at present are such as any self-respecting woman can accept.

VALENTINE [instantly changing his tone for one of cordial sincerity, as if he frankly accepted her terms and was delighted and reassured by her principles]. Oh, then that's a point of sympathy between us already. I quite agree with you. The conditions are most unfair [He takes off his hat and throws it gaily on the iron table]. No, what I want is to get rid of all that nonsense [He sits down beside her, so naturally that she does not think of objecting, and proceeds, with enthusiasm]. Don't you think it a horrible thing that a man and a woman can hardly know one another without being supposed to have designs of that kind? As if there were no other interests! no other subjects of conversation! As if women were capable of nothing better!

GLORIA [interested] Ah, now you are beginning to talk humanly and sensibly, Mr Valentine.

VALENTINE [with a gleam in his eye at the success of his hunter's gale]. Of course! two intelligent people like us! Isn't it pleasant, in this stupid convention-ridden world, to meet with someone on the same plane? someone with an unprejudiced enlightened mind?

GLORIA [earnestly] I hope to meet many such people in England

VALENTINE [dubiously] Hm! There are a good many people here nearly forty millions. They're not all consumptive members of the highly educated classes like the people in Madeira

GLORIA [now full of her subject] Oh, everybody is stupid and prejudiced in Madeira weak sentimental creatures I hate weakness, and I hate sentiment

VALENTINE That's what makes you so inspiring

GLORIA [with a slight laugh] Am I inspiring?

VALENTINE Yes Strength's infectious

GLORIA Weakness is, I know

VALENTINE [with conviction] You're strong. Do you know that you changed the world for me this morning? I was in the dumps, thinking of my unpaid rent, frightened about the future. When you came in, I was dazzled [Her brow clouds a little. He goes on quickly] That was silly, of course, but really and truly something happened to me. Explain it how you will, my blood got—[he hesitates, trying to think of a sufficiently unpassioned word—oxygenated my muscles braced, my mind cleared, my courage rose. That's odd, isn't it? considering that I am not at all a sentimental man

GLORIA [uneasily, rising] Let us go back to the beach

VALENTINE [darkly looking up at her] What! you feel it too?

GLORIA Feel what?

VALENTINE Dread

GLORIA Dread!

VALENTINE As if something were going to happen. It came over me suddenly just before you proposed that we should run away to the others

GLORIA [amazed] That's strange very strange! I had the same presentiment

VALENTINE [solemnly] How extraordinary! [Rising] Well, shall we run away?

GLORIA Run away! Oh no that would be childish [She sits down again. He resumes his seat beside her, and watches her with a gravely sympathetic air. She is thoughtful and a little troubled as she adds] I wonder what is the scientific explanation of those fancies that cross us occasionally!

VALENTINE Ah, I wonder! It's a curiously helpless sensation isn't it?

GLORIA [rebellng against the word] Helpless?

VALENTINE Yes, helpless. As if Nature, after letting us belong to ourselves and do what we judged right and reasonable for all these years, were suddenly lifting her great hand to take us—her two little children—by the scruffs of our little necks, and use us, in spite of ourselves, for her own purposes, in her own way

GLORIA Isn't that rather fanciful?

VALENTINE [with a new and startling transition to a tone of utter recklessness] I don't know. I don't care [Bursting out reproachfully] Oh, Miss Clandon, Miss Clandon how could you?

GLORIA What have I done?

VALENTINE Thrown this enchantment on me. I'm honestly trying to be sensible and scientific and everything that you wish me to be. But—but—oh, don't you see what you have set to work in my imagination?

GLORIA I hope you are not going to be so foolish—so vulgar—as to say love

VALENTINE No, no, no, no, no. Not love we know better than that. Let's call it chemistry. You can't deny that there is such a thing as chemical action, chemical affinity, chemical combination the most irresistible of all natural forces. Well, you're attracting me irresistibly. Chemically

GLORIA [contemptuously] Nonsense!

VALENTINE Of course it's nonsense, you stupid girl [Gloria recoils in outraged surprise] Yes, stupid girl that's a scientific fact, anyhow. You're a prig a feminine prig that's what you are [Rising] Now I suppose you've done with me for ever [He goes to the iron table and takes up his hat]

GLORIA [with elaborate calm, sitting up like a High-schoolmistress posing to be photographed] That shows how very little you understand my real character. I am not in the least offended [He pauses and puts his hat down again] I am always willing to be told my own defects, Mr Valentine, by my friends, even when they are as absurdly mistaken about me as you are. I have many faults—very serious faults—of character and temper, but if there is one thing that I am not, it is what you call a prig [She closes her lips trimly and looks steadily and challengingly at him as she sits more collectedly than ever]

VALENTINE [returning to the end of the garden seat to confront her more emphatically] Oh yes, you are My reason tells me so my knowledge tells me so my experience tells me so

GLORIA Excuse my reminding you that your reason and your knowledge and your experience are not infallible At least I hope not

VALENTINE I must believe them Unless you wish me to believe my eyes, my heart, my instincts, my imagination, which are all telling me the most monstrous lies about you

GLORIA [the collectedness beginning to relax] Lies!

VALENTINE [obstinately] Yes, lies [He sits down again beside her] Do you expect me to believe that you are the most beautiful woman in the world?

GLORIA That is ridiculous, and rather personal

VALENTINE Of course it's ridiculous Well, that's what my eyes tell me [Gloria makes a movement of contemptuous protest] No I'm not flattering I tell you I don't believe it [She is ashamed to find that this does not quite please her either] Do you think that if you were to turn away in disgust from my weakness, I should sit down here and cry like a child?

GLORIA [beginning to feel that she must speak shortly and pointedly to keep her voice steady] Why should you, pray?

VALENTINE Of course not I'm not such an idiot And yet my heart tells me I should my fool of a heart But I'll argue with my heart and bring it to reason If I loved you a thousand times, I'll force myself to look the truth steadily in the face After all, it's easy to be sensible the facts are the facts What's this place? it's not heaven it's the Marine Hotel What's the time? it's not eternity it's about half past one in the afternoon What am I? a dentist a five shilling dentist!

GLORIA And I am a feminine prig

VALENTINE [passionately] No, no I can't face that I must have one illusion left the illusion about you I love you [He turns towards her as if the impulse to touch her were ungovernable she rises and stands on her guard wrathfully He springs up impatiently and retreats a step] Oh, what a fool I am! an idiot! You don't understand I might as well talk to the stones on the beach [He turns away, discouraged]

GLORIA [reassured by his withdrawal, and a little remorseful] I am sorry I do not mean to be unsympathetic, Mr Valentine but what can I say?

VALENTINE [returning to her with all his recklessness of manner replaced by an engaging and chivalrous respect] You can say nothing, Miss Clandon I beg your pardon it was my own fault, or rather my own bad luck You see, it all depended on your naturally liking me [She is about to speak he stops her deprecatingly] Oh, I know you mustn't tell me whether you like me or not, but—

GLORIA [her principles up in arms at once] Must not! Why not? I am a free woman why should I not tell you?

VALENTINE [pleading in terror, and retreating] Don't I'm afraid to hear

GLORIA [no longer scornful] You need not be afraid I think you are sentimental, and a little foolish, but I like you

VALENTINE [dropping into the nearest chair as if crushed] Then it's all over [He becomes the picture of despair]

GLORIA [puzzled, approaching him] But why?

VALENTINE Because liking is not enough Now that I think down into it seriously, I don't know whether I like you or not

GLORIA [looking down at him with wondering concern] I'm sorry

VALENTINE [in an agony of restrained passion] Oh, don't pity me Your voice is tearing my heart to pieces Let me alone, Gloria You go down into the very depths of me, troubling and stirring me I can't struggle with it I can't tell you—

GLORIA [breaking down suddenly] Oh, stop telling me what you feel I can't bear it

VALENTINE [springing up triumphantly, the agonized voice now solid, ringing, and jubilant] Ah, it's come at last my moment of courage [He seizes her hands she looks at him in terror] Our moment of courage! [He draws her to him, kisses her with impetuous strength, and laughs boyishly] Now you've done it, Gloria It's all over we're in love with one another [She can only gasp at him] But what a dragon you were! And how hideously afraid I was!

PHILIP'S VOICE [calling from the beach] Valentine!

DOLLY'S VOICE Mr Valentine!

VALENTINE Goodbye Forgive me [He rapidly kisses her hands, and runs away to the steps, where he meets Mrs Clandon ascending]

Gloria, quite lost, can only stare after him

MRS CLANDON The children want you, Mr Valentine [She looks anxiously round] Is he gone?

VALENTINE [puzzled] He? [Recollecting] Oh, Crampton Gone this long time, Mrs Clandon [He runs off buoyantly down the steps]

GLORIA [sinking upon the bench] Mother!

MRS CLANDON [hurrying to her in alarm] What is it, dear?

GLORIA [with heartfelt appealing reproach] Why didnt you educate me properly?

MRS CLANDON [amazed] My child I did my best

GLORIA Oh, you taught me nothing nothing

MRS CLANDON What is the matter with you?

GLORIA [with the most intense expression] Only shame! shame!! shame!!! [Blushing unendurably, she covers her face with her hands and turns away from her mother]

ACT III

The Clандons' sitting room in the hotel An expensive apartment on the ground floor, with a French window leading to the gardens In the centre of the room is a substantial table, surrounded by chairs, and draped with a maroon cloth on which opulently bound hotel and railway guides are displayed A visitor entering through the window and coming down to this central table would have the fireplace on his left, and a writing table against the wall on his right, next the door, which is further down He would, if his taste lay that way, admire the wall decoration of Lincrusta Walton in plum color and bronze lacquer, with dado and cornice, the ormolu consoles in the corners, the vases on pillar pedestals of veined marble with bases of polished black wood, one on each side of the window, the ornamental cabinet next the vase on the side nearest the fireplace, its centre compartment closed by an inlaid door, and its corners rounded off with curved panes of glass protecting shelves of cheap blue and white pottery, the bamboo tea table, with folding shelves, in the corresponding space on the other side of the window, the photographures after Burton and Stacy Marks, the saddlebag ottoman in line with the door but on the other side of the room, the two comfortable seats of the same pattern on the hearth-rug, and finally, on turning round and looking up, the massive brass pole above the window, sustaining a pair of maroon rep curtains with decorated borders of staid green Altogether, a room well arranged to flatter the middle-class occupant's sense of gentility, and reconcile him to a charge of a pound a day for its use

Mrs Clandon sits at the writing table, correcting proofs Gloria is standing at the window, looking out in a tormented revery

The clock on the mantelpiece strikes five with a sickly clunk, the bell being unable to bear up against the black marble cenotaph in which it is immured,

MRS CLANDON Five! I dont think we need wait any longer for the children They are sure to get tea somewhere

GLORIA [nearly] Shall I ring?

MRS CLANDON Do, my dear [Gloria goes to the hearth and rings] I have finished these proofs at last, thank goodness!

GLORIA [strolling listlessly across the room and coming behind her mother's chair] What proofs?

MRS CLANDON The new edition of Twentieth Century Women

GLORIA [with a bitter smile] Theres a chapter missing

MRS CLANDON [beginning to hunt among her proofs] Is there? Surely not

GLORIA I mean an unwritten one Perhaps I shall write it for you—when I know the end of it [She goes back to the window]

MRS CLANDON Gloria! More enigmas!

GLORIA Oh no The same enigma

MRS CLANDON [puzzled and rather troubled, after watching her for a moment] My dear?

GLORIA [returning] Yes

MRS CLANDON You know I never ask questions

GLORIA [kneeling beside her chair] I know I know [She suddenly throws her arm about her mother and embraces her almost passionately]

MRS CLANDON [gently, smiling but embarrassed] My dear you are getting quite sentimental

GLORIA [recoiling] Ah no, no Oh, dont say that Oh! [She rises and turns away with a gesture as if tearing herself]

MRS CLANDON [mildly] My dear what is the matter? What—

The waiter enters with the tea-tray

WAITER [balmily] Was this what you rang for, maam?

MRS CLANDON Thank you, yes [She turns her chair away from the writing table, and sits down again Gloria crosses to the hearth and sits crouching there with her face averted]

WAITER [placing the tray temporarily on the centre table] I thought so, maam Curious how the nerves seem to give out in the afternoon without a cup of tea [He fetches the tea table and places it in front of Mrs Clandon, conversing meanwhile] The young lady and gentleman have just come back, maam they have been out in a boat, maam Very pleasant on a fine afternoon like this very pleasant and invigorating indeed [He takes the tray from the centre table and puts it on the tea table] Mr M'Comas will not come to tea, maam he has gone to call upon Mr Crampton [He takes a couple of chairs and sets one at each end of the tea table]

GLORIA [looking round with an impulse of terror] And the other gentleman?

WAITER [reassuringly, as he unconsciously drops for a moment into the measure of "I've been roaming," which he sang when a boy] Oh, he's coming, miss he's coming He has been rowing the boat, miss, and has just run down the road to the chemist's for something to put on the blisters But he will be here directly, miss directly [Gloria, in ungovernable apprehension, rises and hurries towards the door]

MRS CLANDON [half rising] Glo—

Gloria goes out Mrs Clandon looks perplexedly at the waiter, whose composure is unruffled

WAITER [cheerfully] Anything more, maam?

MRS CLANDON Nothing, thank you

WAITER Thank you, maam [As he withdraws. Phil and Dolly, in the highest spirits, come tearing in He holds the door open for them then goes out and closes it]

DOLLY [ravenously] Oh, give me some tea [Mrs Clandon pours out a cup for her] We've been out in a boat Valentine will be here presently PHILIP He is unaccustomed to navigation Wheres Gloria?

MRS CLANDON [anxiously, as she pours out his tea] Phil there is something the matter with Gloria Has anything happened? [Phil and Dolly look at one another and stifle a laugh] What is it?

PHILIP [sitting down on her left] Romeo—

DOLLY [sitting down on her right]—and Juliet

PHILIP [taking his cup of tea from Mrs Clandon] Yes, my dear mother the old, old story Dolly dont take all the milk [he deftly takes the jug from her] Yes in the spring—

DOLLY —a young man's fancy—

PHILIP —lightly turns to—thank you [to Mrs Clandon, who has passed the biscuits]—thoughts of love It also occurs in the autumn The young man in this case is—

DOLLY Valentine

PHILIP And his fancy has turned to Gloria to the extent of—

DOLLY —kissing her—

PHILIP —on the terrace—

DOLLY [correcting him] —on the lips, before everybody

MRS CLANDON [incredulously] Phil! Dolly! Are you joking? [They shake their heads] Did she allow it?

PHILIP We waited to see him struck to earth by the lightning of her scorn, but—

DOLLY —but he wasn't

PHILIP She appeared to like it

DOLLY As far as we could judge [Stopping Phil, who is about to pour out another cup] No you've sworn off two cups

MRS CLANDON [much troubled] Children you must not be here when Mr Valentine comes I must speak very seriously to him about this

PHILIP To ask him his intentions? What a violation of Twentieth Century principles!

DOLLY Quite right, mamma bring him to book Make the most of the nineteenth century while it lasts

PHILIP Sh! Here he is VALENTINE [entering] Very sorry to be late, Mrs Clandon [She takes up the tea-pot] No, thank you I never take any No doubt Miss Dolly and Phil have explained what happened to me

PHILIP [momentously, rising] Yes, Valentine we have explained

DOLLY [significantly, also rising] We have explained very thoroughly

PHILIP It was our duty [Very seriously] Come, Dolly [He offers Dolly his arm, which she takes They look sadly at him, and go out gravely arm in arm, leaving Valentine staring]

MRS CLANDON [rising and leaving the tea table] Will you sit down Mr Valentine? I want to speak to you a little, if you will allow me [Valentine goes slowly to the ottoman, his conscience presaging a bad quarter of an hour Mrs Clandon takes Phil's chair, and seats herself with gentle dignity Valentine sits down] I must begin by throwing myself somewhat on your consideration I am going to speak of a subject of which I know very little perhaps nothing I mean love

VALENTINE Love!

MRS CLANDON Yes, love Oh, you need not look so alarmed as that, Mr Valentine I am not in love with you

VALENTINE [overwhelmed] Oh, really, Mrs—

[Recovering himself] I should be only too proud if you were

MRS CLANDON Thank you, Mr Valentine But I am too old to begin

VALENTINE Begin! Have you never—?

MRS CLANDON Never My ease is a very common one, Mr Valentine I married before I was old enough to know what I was doing As you have seen for yourself, the result was a bitter disappointment for both my husband and myself So you see, though I am a married woman, I have never been in love, I have never had a love affair, and, to be quite frank with you, Mr Valentine, what I have seen of the love affairs of other people has not led me to regret that deficiency in my experience [Valentine, looking very glum, glances sceptically at her, and says nothing Her color rises a little, and she adds, with restrained anger] You do not believe me?

VALENTINE [confused at having his thoughts read] Oh, why not? Why not?

MRS CLANDON Let me tell you, Mr Valentine, that a life devoted to the Cause of Humanity has enthusiasms and passions to offer which far transcend the selfish personal infatuations and sentimentalities of romance Those are not your enthusiasms and passions, I take it? [Valentine, quite aware that she despises him for it, answers in the negative with a melancholy shake of his head] I thought not Well, I am equally at a disadvantage in discussing those so-called affairs of the heart in which you appear to be an expert

VALENTINE [restlessly] What are you driving at, Mrs Clandon?

MRS CLANDON I think you know

VALENTINE Gloria?

MRS CLANDON Yes Gloria

VALENTINE [surrendering] Well, yes I'm in love with Gloria [Interposing as she is about to speak] I know what you're going to say I've no money

MRS CLANDON I care very little about money, Mr Valentine

VALENTINE Then you're very different to all the other mothers who have interviewed me

MRS CLANDON Ah, now we are coming to it, Mr Valentine You are an old hand at this [He opens his mouth to protest she cuts him short with some indignation] Oh, do you think, little as I understand these matters, that I have not common sense enough to know that a man who could make as much way in one interview with such a woman as my daughter can hardly be a novice?

VALENTINE I assure you—

MRS CLANDON [stopping him] I am not blaming you, Mr Valentine It is Gloria's business to take care of herself, and you have a right to amuse yourself as you please But—

VALENTINE [protesting] Amuse myself! Oh, Mrs Clandon!

MRS CLANDON [relentlessly] On your honor, Mr Valentine, are you in earnest?

VALENTINE [desperately] On my honor I am in earnest [She looks searchingly at him His sense of humor gets the better of him, and he adds quaintly] Only, I always have been in earnest, and yet—! Well, here I am, you see

MRS CLANDON This is just what I suspected [Severely] Mr Valentine you are one of those men who play with women's affections

VALENTINE Well, why not, if the Cause of Humanity is the only thing worth being serious about? However, I understand [Rising and taking his hat with formal politeness] You wish me to discontinue my visits

MRS CLANDON No I am sensible enough to be well aware that Gloria's best chance of escape from you now is to become better acquainted with you VALENTINE [unaffectedly alarmed] Oh, don't say that, Mrs Clandon You don't think that, do you?

MRS CLANDON I have great faith, Mr Valentine, in the sound training Gloria's mind has had since she was a child

VALENTINE [amazingly relieved] O-oh! Oh, that's all right [He sits down again and throws his hat slipshodly aside with the air of a man who has no longer anything to fear]

MRS CLANDON [indignant at his assurance] What do you mean?

VALENTINE [turning confidentially to her] Come! shall I teach you something, Mrs Clandon?

MRS CLANDON [stiffly] I am always willing to learn

VALENTINE Have you ever studied the subject of gunnery? artillery? cannons and war-ships and so on?

MRS CLANDON Has gunnery anything to do with Gloria?

VALENTINE A great deal By way of illustration During this whole century, my dear Mrs Clandon, the progress of artillery has been a duel between the maker of cannons and the maker of armor plates to keep the cannon balls out You build a ship proof against the best gun known somebody makes a better gun and sinks your ship You build a heavier ship, proof against that gun somebody makes a heavier gun and sinks you again And so on Well, the duel of sex is just like that

MRS CLANDON The duel of sex!

VALENTINE Yes you've heard of the duel of sex, haven't you? Oh, I forgot you've been in Madeira the expression has come up since your time Need I explain it?

MRS CLANDON [contemptuously] No

VALENTINE Of course not Now what happens in the duel of sex? The old fashioned daughter received an old fashioned education to protect her against the wiles of man Well, you know the result the old fashioned man got round her The old fashioned mother resolved to protect her daughter more effectually—to find some armor too strong for the old fashioned man So she gave her daughter a scientific education your plan That was a corker for the old fashioned man he thought it unfair, and tried to howl it down as unwomanly and all the rest of it But that didn't do him any good So he had to give up his old fashioned plan of attack you know going down on his knees and swearing to love, honor, and obey and so on

MRS CLANDON Excuse me that was what the woman swore

VALENTINE Was it? Ah, perhaps you're right Yes of course it was Well, what did the man do? Just what the artillery man does went one better than the woman educated himself scientifically and beat her at that game just as he had beaten her at the old game I learnt how to circumvent the Women's Rights woman before I was twenty-three it's all been found out long ago You see, my methods are thoroughly modern

MRS CLANDON [with quiet disgust] No doubt

VALENTINE But for that very reason there's one sort of girl against whom they are of no use

MRS CLANDON Pray which sort?

VALENTINE The thoroughly old fashioned girl If you had brought up Gloria in the old way, it would have taken me eighteen months to get to the point I got to this afternoon in eighteen minutes Yes, Mrs Clandon the Higher Education of Women delivered Gloria into my hands, and it was you who taught her to believe in the Higher Education of Women

MRS CLANDON [rising] Mr Valentine You are very clever

VALENTINE [rising also] Oh, Mrs Clandon!

MRS CLANDON And you have taught me—nothing Goodbye

VALENTINE [horrified] Goodbye! Oh, mayn't I see her before I go?

MRS CLANDON I am afraid she will not return until you have gone, Mr Valentine She left the room expressly to avoid you

VALENTINE [thoughtfully] That's a good sign Goodbye [He bows and makes for the door, apparently well satisfied]

MRS CLANDON [alarmed] Why do you think it a good sign?

VALENTINE [turning near the door] Because I am mortally afraid of her, and it looks as if she were mortally afraid of me

He turns to go and finds himself face to face with Gloria, who has just entered She looks steadfastly at him He stares helplessly at her, then round at Mrs Clandon, then at Gloria again, completely at a loss

GLORIA [white, and controlling herself with difficulty] Mother is what Dolly told me true?

MRS CLANDON What did she tell you, dear?

GLORIA That you have been speaking about me to this gentleman?

VALENTINE [murmuring] This gentleman! Oh!

MRS CLANDON [sharply] Mr Valentine can you hold your tongue for a moment?

He looks piteously at them, then, with a despairing shrug, goes back to the ottoman and throws his hat on it

GLORIA [confronting her mother, with deep reproach] Mother what right had you to do it?

MRS CLANDON I don't think I have said anything I have no right to say, Gloria

VALENTINE [confirming her officiously] Nothing Nothing whatever [The two women look at him crushingly] I beg your pardon [He sits down ignominiously on the ottoman]

GLORIA I cannot believe that anyone has any right even to think about things that concern me only [She turns away from them to conceal a painful struggle with her emotion]

MRS CLANDON My dear if I have wounded your pride—

GLORIA [turning on them for a moment] My pride! My pride! Oh, it's gone I have learnt now that I have no strength to be proud of [Turning away again] But if a woman cannot protect herself, no one can protect her No one has any right to try not even her mother I know I have lost your confidence, just as I have lost this man's respect— [She stops to regain command of her voice]

VALENTINE This man! Oh!

MRS CLANDON Pray be silent, sir

GLORIA [continuing]—but I have at least the right to be left alone in my disgrace I am one of those weak creatures born to be mastered by the first man whose eye is caught by them, and I must fulfil my destiny, I suppose At least spare me the humiliation of trying to save me [She sits down with her handkerchief to her eyes, at the further end of the table]

VALENTINE [jumping up] Look here—

MRS CLANDON [severely] Mr Va—

VALENTINE [recklessly] No I will speak I've been silent for nearly thirty seconds [He goes resolutely to Gloria] Miss Clandon—

GLORIA [bitterly] Oh, not Miss Clandon you have found it quite safe to call me Gloria

VALENTINE No I won't you'll throw it in my teeth afterwards and accuse me of disrespect I say it's a heartbreaking falsehood that I don't respect you It's true that I didn't respect your old pride why should I? it was nothing but cowardice I didn't respect your intellect I've a better one myself it's a masculine speciality But when the depths stirred! when my moment came! when you made me brave! ah, then! then! then!!!

GLORIA Then you respected me, I suppose

VALENTINE No I didn't I adored you [She rises quickly and turns her back on him] And you can never take that moment away from me So now I don't care what happens [He comes back to the ottoman, addressing a cheerful

...rticular] I'm perfectly nonsense I can't help it [To Mrs Clandon] I love Gloria, and there's an end of it

MRS CLANDON [emphatically] Mr Valentine you are a most dangerous man Gloria come here [Gloria, wondering a little at the command, obeys, and stands, with drooping head, on her mother's right hand, Valentine being on the opposite side Mrs Clandon then begins, with intense scorn] Ask this man whom you have inspired and made brave, how many women have inspired him before [Gloria looks up suddenly with a flash of jealous anger and amazement], how many times he has laid the trap in which he has caught you, how often he has baited it with the same speeches, how much practice it has taken to make him perfect in his chosen part in life as the Duellist of Sex

VALENTINE This isn't fair You're abusing my confidence, Mrs Clandon

MRS CLANDON Ask him, Gloria

GLORIA [in a flush of rage, going over to him with her fists clenched] Is that true?

VALENTINE Don't be angry—

GLORIA [interrupting him implacably] Is it true? Did you ever say that before? Did you ever feel that before? for another woman?

VALENTINE [bluntly] Yes

Gloria raises her clenched hands

MRS CLANDON [horrified, catching her uplifted arm] Gloria! My dear! You're forgetting yourself

Gloria, with a deep expiration, slowly relaxes her threatening attitude

VALENTINE Remember a man's power of love and admiration is like any other of his powers he has to throw it away many times before he learns what is really worthy of it

MRS CLANDON Another of the old speeches, Gloria Take care

VALENTINE [remonstrating] Oh!

GLORIA [to Mrs Clandon, with contemptuous self-possession] Do you think I need to be warned now? [To Valentine] You have tried to make me love you

VALENTINE I have

GLORIA Well, you have succeeded in making me hate you passionately

VALENTINE [philosophically] It's surprising how little difference there is between the two [Gloria turns indignantly away from him He continues, to Mrs Clandon] I know men whose wives love them, and they go on exactly like that

MRS CLANDON Excuse me, Mr Valentine, but had you not better go?

GLORIA You need not send him away on my account, mother He is nothing to me now, and he will amuse Dolly and Phil [She sits down with slighting indifference, at the end of the table nearest the window]

VALENTINE [gaily] Of course that's the sensible way of looking at it Come, Mrs Clandon! you can't quarrel with a mere butterfly like me!

MRS CLANDON I very greatly mistrust you, Mr Valentine But I do not like to think that your unfortunate levity of disposition is mere shamelessness and worthlessness,—

GLORIA [to herself, but aloud] It is shameless, and it is worthless

MRS CLANDON [continuing] —so perhaps we had better send for Phil and Dolly, and allow you to end your visit in the ordinary way

VALENTINE [as if she had paid him the highest compliment], You overwhelm me Mrs Clandon Thank you

The waiter returns

WAITER Mr M'Comas, maam

MRS CLANDON Oh, certainly Bring him in

WAITER He wishes to see you in the reception-room, maam

MRS CLANDON Why not here?

WAITER Well, if you will excuse my mentioning it, maam, I think Mr M'Comas feels that he would get fairer play if he could speak to you away from the younger members of your family, maam

MRS CLANDON Tell him they are not here

WAITER They are within sight of the door, maam, and very watchful, for some reason or other

MRS CLANDON [going] Oh, very well I'll go to him

WAITER [holding the door open for her] Thank you, maam She goes out He comes back into the room, and meets the eye of Valentine, who wants him to go All right, sir Only the tea-things, sir [Taking the tray] Excuse me, sir Thank you, sir [He goes out]

VALENTINE [to Gloria] Look here You'll forgive me, sooner or later Forgive me now

GLORIA [rising to level the declaration more intensely at him] Never! While grass grows or water runs, never! never!! never!!!

VALENTINE [unabashed] Well I don't care I can't be unhappy about anything I shall never be unhappy again, never, never, never, while grass grows or water runs The thought of you will always make me wild with joy [Some quick taunt is on her lips he interposes smilingly] No I never said that before that's new

GLORIA It will not be new when you say it to the next woman

VALENTINE Oh don't, Gloria, don't [He kneels at her feet]

GLORIA Get up! Get up! How dare you?

Phil and Dolly, racing, as usual, for first place, burst into the room They check themselves on seeing what is passing Valentine springs up

PHILIP [discreetly] I beg your pardon Come, Dolly [He offers her his arm and turns to go]

GLORIA [annoyed] Mother will be back in a moment, Phil [Severely] Please wait here for her [She turns away to the window, where she stands looking out with her back to them]

PHILIP [significantly] Oh, indeed Hmhm!

DOLLY Ahah!

PHILIP You seem in excellent spirits, Valentine

VALENTINE I am [He comes between them] Now look here You both know what's going on don't you?

Gloria turns quickly, as if anticipating some fresh outrage

DOLLY Perfectly

VALENTINE Well, it's all over I've been refused Scorned I'm here on sufferance only You understand? it's all over Your sister is in no sense entertaining my addresses, or condescending to interest herself in me in any way [Gloria, satisfied, turns back contemptuously to the window] Is that clear?

DOLLY Serve you right You were in too great a hurry

PHILIP [patting him on the shoulder] Never mind you'd never have been able to call your soul your own if she'd married you You can now begin a new chapter in your life

DOLLY Chapter seventeen or thereabouts, I should imagine

VALENTINE [much put out by this pleasantry] No don't say things like that That's just the sort of thoughtless remark that makes a lot of mischief

DOLLY Oh, indeed? Hmhm!

PHILIP Ahah! [He goes to the hearth and plants himself there in his best head-of-the-family attitude]

M'Comas, looking very serious, comes in quickly with Mrs Clandon, whose first anxiety is about Gloria She looks round to see where she is, and is going to join her at the window when Gloria comes down to meet her with a marked air of trust and affection Finally Mrs Clandon takes her former seat, and Gloria posts herself behind it M'Comas, on his way to the ottoman, is hailed by Dolly

DOLLY What cheer, Finch?

M'COMAS [sternly] Very serious news from your father, Miss Clandon Very serious news indeed [He passes impressively to the ottoman, and sits down]

Dolly, duly impressed follows and sits beside him on his right

VALENTINE Perhaps I had better go

M'COMAS By no means, Mr Valentine You are deeply concerned in this [Valentine takes a chair from the table and sits astride of it, leaning over the back, near the ottoman] Miss Clandon your husband demands the custody of his two younger children, who are not of age

MRS CLANDON [in quick alarm] To take Dolly from me?

DOLLY [touched] But how nice of him! He likes us, mamma

M'COMAS I am sorry to have to disabuse you of any such illusion, Miss Dorothea

DOLLY [cooing ecstatically] Dorothee-ee-ee-a [Nestling against his shoulder, quite overcome] Oh, Finch!

M'COMAS [nervously, shrinking away] No, no, no, no!

MRS CLANDON The deed of separation gives me the custody of the children

M'COMAS It also contains a covenant that you are not to approach or molest him in any way

MRS CLANDON Well have I done so?

M'COMAS Whether the behavior of your younger children amounts to legal molestation is a question on which it may be necessary to take counsel's opinion. At all events, Mr Crampton not only claims to have been molested, but he believes that he was brought here by a plot in which Mr Valentine acted as your agent

VALENTINE Whats that? Eh?

M'COMAS He alleges that you drugged him, Mr Valentine

VALENTINE So I did

M'COMAS But what did you do that for?

DOLLY Five shillings extra

M'COMAS [to Dolly, short-tempered] I must really ask you, Miss Clandon, not to interrupt this very serious conversation with irrelevant interjections [Vehemently] I insist on having earnest matters earnestly and reverently discussed [This outburst produces an apologetic silence, and puts M'Comas himself out of countenance. He coughs, and starts afresh, addressing himself to Gloria] Miss Clandon it is my duty to tell you that your father has also persuaded himself that Mr Valentine wishes to marry you—

VALENTINE [interposing adroitly] I do

M'COMAS [huffily] In that case, sir, you must not be surprised to find yourself regarded by the young lady's father as a fortune hunter

VALENTINE So I am. Do you expect my wife to live on what I earn? tenpence a week!

M'COMAS [revolted] I have nothing more to say, sir. I shall return and tell Mr Crampton that this family is no place for a father [He makes for the door]

MRS CLANDON [With quiet authority] Finch! [He halts] If Mr Valentine cannot be serious, you can sit down [M'Comas, after a brief struggle between his dignity and his friendship, succumbs, seating himself this time midway between Dolly and Mrs Clandon] You know that all this is a made up case—that Feigus does not believe in it any more than you do. Now give me your real advice, your sincere, friendly advice. You know I have always trusted your judgment. I promise you the children will be quiet

M'COMAS [resigning himself] Well, well! What I want to say is this. In the old arrangement with your husband, Miss Clandon, you had him at a terrible disadvantage

MRS CLANDON How so, pray?

M'COMAS Well, you were an advanced woman, accustomed to defy public opinion, and with no regard for what the world might say of you

MRS CLANDON [proud of it] Yes, that is true

Gloria, behind the chair, stoops and kisses her mother's hair, a demonstration which disconcerts her extremely

M'COMAS On the other hand, Mrs Clandon, your husband had a great horror of anything getting into the papers. There was his business to be considered, as well as the prejudices of an old-fashioned family

MRS CLANDON Not to mention his own prejudices

M'COMAS Now no doubt he behaved badly, Mrs Clandon

MRS CLANDON [scornfully] No doubt

M'COMAS But was it altogether his fault?

MRS CLANDON Was it mine?

M'COMAS [hastily] No. Of course not

GLORIA [observing him attentively] You do not mean that, Mr M'Comas

M'COMAS My dear young lady, you pick me up very sharply. But let me just put this to you. When a man makes an unsuitable marriage (nobody's fault, you know, but purely accidental incompatibility of tastes), when he is deprived by that misfortune of the domestic sympathy which, I take it, is what a man marries for, when, in short, his wife is rather worse than no wife at all (though no fault of her own, of course), is it to be wondered at if he makes matters worse at first by blaming her, and even, in his desperation, by occasionally drinking himself into a violent condition or seeking sympathy elsewhere?

MRS CLANDON I did not blame him I simply rescued myself and the children from him

M'COMAS Yes, but you made hard terms, Mrs Clandon You had him at your mercy you brought him to his knees when you threatened to make the matter public by applying to the Courts for a judicial separation Suppose he had had that power over you, and used it to take your children away from you and bring them up in ignorance of your very name, how would you feel? what would you do? Well, wont you make some allowance for his feelings? in common humanity

MRS CLANDON I never discovered his feelings I discovered his temper, and his—[she shivers] the rest of his common humanity

M'COMAS [wistfully] Women can be very hard, Mrs Clandon

VALENTINE Thats true

GLORIA [angrily] Be silent [He subsides]

M'COMAS [rallying all his forces] Let me make one last appeal Mrs Clandon believe me there are men who have a good deal of feeling, and kind feeling too, which they are not able to express What you miss in Crampton is that mere veneer of civilization, the art of shewing worthless attentions and paying insincere compliments in a kindly charming way If you lived in London, where the whole system is one of false good-fellowship, and you may know a man for twenty years without finding out that he hates you like poison, you would soon have your eyes opened There we do unkind things in a kind way we say bitter things in a sweet voice we always give our friends chloroform when we tear them to pieces But think of the other side of it! Think of the people who do kind things in an unkind way! people whose touch hurts, whose voices jar, whose tempers play them false, who wound and worry the people they love in the very act of trying to conciliate them, and who yet need affection as much as the rest of us Crampton has an abominable temper, I admit He has no manners, no tact, no grace He'll never be able to gain anyone's affection unless they will take his desire for it on trust Is he to have none? not even pity? from his own flesh and blood?

DOLLY [quite melted] Oh how beautiful, Finch! How nice of you!

PHILIP [with conviction] Finch this is eloquence positive eloquence

DOLLY Oh mamma, let us give him another chance Let us have him to dinner

MRS CLANDON [unmoved] No, Dolly I hardly got any lunch My dear Finch there is not the least use in talking to me about Fergus You have never been married to him I have

M'COMAS [to Gloria] Miss Clandon I have hitherto refrained from appealing to you, because, if what Mr Crampton told me be true, you have been more merciless even than your mother

GLORIA [defiantly] You appeal from her strength to my weakness!

M'COMAS Not your weakness, Miss Clandon I appeal from her intellect to your heart

GLORIA I have learnt to mistrust my heart. [With an angry glance at Valentine] I would tear my heart out and throw it away if I could My answer to you is my mother's answer

M'COMAS [defeated] Well, I am sorry Very sorry. I have done my best [He rises and prepares to go, deeply dissatisfied]

MRS CLANDON But what did you expect, Finch? What do you want us to do?

M'COMAS The first step for both you and Crampton is to obtain counsel's opinion as to whether he is bound by the deed of separation or not Now why not obtain this opinion at once, and have a friendly meeting [her face hardens] or shall we say a neutral meeting? to settle the difficulty? Here? In this hotel? To-night? What do you say?

MRS CLANDON But where is the counsel's opinion to come from?

M'COMAS It has dropped down on us out of the clouds On my way back here from Crampton's I met a most eminent Q C a man whom I briefed in the case that made his name for him He has come down here from Saturday to Monday for the sea air, and to visit a relative of his who lives here He has been good enough to say that if I can arrange a meeting of the parties he will come and help us with his opinion Now do let us seize this chance of a quiet friendly family adjustment Let me bring my friend here and try to persuade Crampton to come too Come consent

MRS CLANDON [rather ominously, after a moment's consideration] Finch I dont want counsel's opinion, because I intend to be guided by my own opinion I dont want to meet Fergus again, because I dont like him, and dont believe the meeting will do any good. However [rising], you have persuaded the children that he is not quite hopeless. Do as you please.

M'COMAS [taking her hand and shaking it] Thank you, Mrs Clandon. Will nine o'clock suit you?

MRS CLANDON Perfectly. Phil will you ring, please [Phil rings the bell]. But if I am to be accused of conspiring with Mr Valentine, I think he had better be present.

VALENTINE [rising] I quite agree with you. I think it's most important.

M'COMAS There can be no objection to that, I think. I have the greatest hopes of a happy settlement. Goodbye for the present. [He goes out, meeting the waiter, who holds the door open for him]

MRS CLANDON We expect some visitors at nine, William. Can we have dinner at seven instead of half past?

WAITER [at the door] Seven, maam? Certainly, maam. It will be a convenience to us this busy evening, maam. There will be the band and the arranging of the fairy lights and one thing or another, maam.

DOLLY Fairy lights!

PHILIP A band! William, what mean you?

WAITER The fancy ball, miss.

DOLLY AND PHILIP [simultaneously rushing to him] Fancy ball!"

WAITER Oh yes, sir. Given by the regatta committee for the benefit of the Life-boat, sir. [To Mrs Clandon] We often have them, maam. Chinese lanterns in the garden, maam, very bright and pleasant, very gay and innocent indeed. [To Phil] Tickets downstairs at the office, sir, five shillings ladies half price if accompanied by a gentleman.

PHILIP [seizing his arm to drag him off] To the office, William!

DOLLY [breathlessly, seizing his other arm] Quick, before they're all sold. [They rush him out of the room between them]

MRS CLANDON [following them] But they mustn't go off dancing this evening. They must be here to meet— [She disappears]

Gloria stares coolly at Valentine, and then deliberately looks at her watch.

VALENTINE I understand. I've stayed too long. I'm going.

GLORIA [with disdainful punctiliousness] I owe you some apology, Mr Valentine. I am conscious of having spoken to you somewhat sharply. Perhaps rudely.

VALENTINE Not at all.

GLORIA My only excuse is that it is very difficult to give consideration and respect when there is no dignity of character on the other side to command it.

VALENTINE How is a man to look dignified when he's infatuated?

GLORIA [angrily] Don't say those things to me. I forbid you. They are insults.

VALENTINE No, they're only follies. I can't help them.

GLORIA If you were really in love, it would not make you foolish. It would give you dignity! earnestness! even beauty.

VALENTINE Do you really think it would make me beautiful? [She turns her back on him with the coldest contempt] Ah, you see, you're not in earnest. Love can't give any man new gifts. It can only heighten the gifts he was born with.

GLORIA [sweeping round at him again] What gifts were you born with, pray?

VALENTINE Lightness of heart.

GLORIA And lightness of head, and lightness of faith, and lightness of everything that makes a man.

VALENTINE Yes, the whole world is like a feather dancing in the light now, and Gloria is the sun. [She rears her head haughtily] Beg pardon, I'm off. Back at nine. Goodbye. [He runs off gaily, leaving her standing in the middle of the room staring after him]

GLORIA [at the top of her voice, suddenly furious with him for leaving her] Idiot!

ACT IV

The same room. Nine o'clock. Nobody present. The lamps are lighted, but the curtains are not drawn. The window stands wide open, and strings of Chinese lanterns are glowing among the trees outside, with the starry sky beyond. The band is playing dance-music in the garden, drowning the sound of the sea.

The waiter enters, shewing in Crampton and M'Comas. Crampton looks cowed and anxious. He sits down wearily and timidly on the ottoman.

WAITER The ladies have gone for a turn through the grounds to see the fancy dresses, sir. If you will be so good as to take seats, gentlemen, I shall tell them. [He is about to go into the garden through the window when M'Comas stops him]

M'COMAS Stop a bit. If another gentleman comes shew him in without any delay we are expecting him

WAITER Right, sir What name, sir?

M'COMAS Boon Mr Boon He is a stranger to Mrs Clandon, so he may give you a card If so, the name is spelt B O H U N You will not forget

WAITER [smiling] You may depend on me for that, sir My own name is Boon, sir, though I am best known down here as Balmy Walters, sir By rights I should spell it with the aitch you, sir, but I think it best not to take that liberty, sir There is Norman blood in it, sir, and Norman blood is not a recommendation to a waiter

M'COMAS Well, well "True hearts are more than coronets, and simple faith than Norman blood"

WAITER That depends a good deal on one's station in life, sir If you were a waiter, sir, you'd find that simple faith would leave you just as short as Norman blood I find it best to spell myself B double-O N, and to keep my wits pretty sharp about me But I'm taking up your time, sir You'll excuse me, sir your own fault for being so affable, sir I'll tell the ladies you're here, sir [He goes out into the garden through the window]

M'COMAS Crampton I can depend on you, cant I?

CRAMPTON Yes, yes I'll be quiet I'll be patient I'll do my best

M'COMAS Remember I've not given you away I've told them it was all their fault

CRAMPTON You told me that it was all my fault

M'COMAS I told you the truth

CRAMPTON [plaintively] If they will only be fair to me!

M'COMAS My dear Crampton, they wont be fair to you it's not to be expected from them at their age If you're going to make impossible conditions of this kind, we may as well go back home at once

CRAMPTON But surely I have a right—

M'COMAS [intolerantly] You wont get your rights Now, once for all, Crampton, did your promise of good behavior only mean that you wont complain if theres nothing to complain of? Because, if so— [He moves as if to go]

CRAMPTON [miserably] No, no let me alone, cant you? I've been bullied enough I've been tormented enough I tell you I'll do my best But if that girl begins to talk to me like that and to look at me like— [He breaks off and buries his head in his hands]

M'COMAS [relenting] There, there it'll be all right, if you will only bear and forbear Come pull yourself together theres someone coming [Crampton, too dejected to care much, hardly changes his attitude Gloria enters from the garden, M'Comas goes to meet her at the window, so that he can speak to her without being heard by Crampton] There he is, Miss Clandon Be kind to him I'll leave you with him for a moment [He goes into the garden]

Gloria comes in and strolls coolly down the middle of the room

CRAMPTON [looking round in alarm] Wheres M'Comas?

GLORIA [listlessly, but not unsympathetically] Gone out To leave us together Delicacy on his part, I suppose [She stops beside him and looks quaintly down at him] Well, father?

CRAMPTON [submissively] Well, daughter?

They look at one another with a melancholy sense of humor, though humor is not their strong point

GLORIA Shake hands [They shake hands]

CRAMPTON [holding her hand] My dear I'm afraid I spoke very improperly of your mother this afternoon

GLORIA Oh, dont apologize I was very high and mighty myself, but I've come down since oh, yes I've been brought down [She sits down on the floor beside his chair]

CRAMPTON What has happened to you, my child?

GLORIA Oh, never mind I was playing the part of my mother's daughter then, but I'm not I'm my father's daughter [Looking at him forlornly] Thats a come down, isnt it?

CRAMPTON [angry] What! [Her expression does not alter He surrenders] Well, yes, my dear I suppose it is, I suppose it is I'm afraid I'm sometimes a little irritable, but I know whats right and reasonable all the time, even when I dont act on it Can you believe that?

GLORIA Believe it! Why, thats myself myself all over I know whats right and dignified and strong and noble, just as well as she does, but oh, the things I do! the things I do! the things I let other people do!

CRAMPTON [a little grudgingly in spite of himself] As well as she does? You mean your mother?

GLORIA [quickly] Yes, mother [She turns to him on her knees and seizes his hands] Now listen No treason to her no word, no thought against her She is our superior yours and mine high heavens above us Is that agreed?

CRAMPTON Yes, yes Just as you please, my dear

GLORIA [not satisfied, letting go his hands and drawing back from him] You dont like her?

CRAMPTON My child you havnt been married to her I have [She raises herself slowly to her feet, looking at him with growing coldness] She did me a great wrong in marrying me without really caring for me But after that, the wrong was all on my side, I dare say [He offers her his hand again]

GLORIA [taking it firmly and warningly] Take care Thats my dangerous subject My feelings—my miserable cowardly womanly feelings—may be on your side, but my conscience is on hers

CRAMPTON I'm very well content with that division, my dear Thank you

Valentine arrives Gloria immediately becomes deliberately haughty

VALENTINE Excuse me, but it's impossible to find a servant to announce one even the never failing William seems to be at the ball I should have gone myself, only I havnt five shillings to buy a ticket How are you getting on, Crampton? Better, eh?

CRAMPTON I am myself again, Mr Valentine, no thanks to you VALENTINE Look at this ungrateful parent of yours, Miss Clandon! I saved him from an excruciating pang, and he reviles me!

GLORIA [coldly] I am sorry my mother is not here to receive you, Mr Valentine It is not quite nine o'clock, and the gentleman of whom Mr M'Comas spoke, the lawyer, has not yet come

VALENTINE Oh yes he has Ive met him and talked to him [With gay malice] Youll like him, Miss Clandon he's the very incarnation of intellect You can hear his mind working GLORIA [glancing at her watch] Where is he?

[He enters with a false nose and goes to the fancy ball]

CRAMPTON [crustily, looking at his watch] It seems that everybody has gone to this fancy ball instead of keeping to our appointment here

VALENTINE Oh, he'll come all right enough that was half an hour ago I didnt like to borrow five shillings from him and go in with him, so I joined the mob and looked through the railings until Miss Clandon disappeared into the hotel through the window

GLORIA So it has come to this, that you follow me about in public to stare at me

VALENTINE Yes somebody ought to chain me up

Gloria turns her back on him and goes to the fireplace He takes the snub very philosophically, and goes to the opposite side of the room The waiter appears at the window, ushering in Mrs Clandon and M'Comas

MRS CLANDON I am so sorry to have kept you all waiting

A grotesquely majestic stranger, in a domino and false nose with goggles, appears at the window

WAITER [to the stranger] Beg pardon, sir, but this is a private apartment, sir If you will allow me, sir, I will shew you the American bar and supper rooms, sir This way, sir

He goes into the garden, leading the way under the impression that the stranger is following him The majestic one, however, comes straight into the room to the end of the table, where, with impressive deliberation, he takes off the false nose and then the domino, rolling up the nose in the domino and throwing the bundle on the table like a champion throwing down his glove He is now seen to be a tall stout man between forty and fifty, clean shaven, with a midnight oil pallor emphasized by stiff black hair, cropped short and oiled, an awfully Victorian horsehair upper lip, and spiritually a coarsened man in cunning and logic a ruthlessly sharpened one His bearing as he enters is sufficiently imposing and disquieting, but when he speaks, his powerful menacing voice, impressively articulated speech, strong inexorable manner, and a terrifying power of intensely critical listening, raise the impression produced by him to absolute tremendousness

THE STRANGER My name is Bohun [General awe] Have I the honor of addressing Mrs Clandon? [Mrs Clandon bows Bohun bows] Miss Clandon? [Gloria bows Bohun bows] Mr Clandon?

CRAMPTON [insisting on his rightful name as angrily as he dares] My name is Crampton, sir BOHUN Oh, indeed [Passing him over without further notice and turning to Valentine] Are you Mr Clandon?

VALENTINE [making it a point of honor not to be impressed by him] Do I look like it? My name is Valentine I did the drugging BOHUN Ah, quite so Then Mr Clandon has not yet arrived?

WAITER [entering anxiously through the win-

don] Beg pardon, maam, but can you tell me what became of that— [He recognizes Bohun, and loses all his self-possession Bohun waits rigidly for him to pull himself together] Beg pardon, sir, I'm sure, sir [Brokenly] Was— was it you, sir?

BOHUN [remorselessly] It was I

WAITER [Unable to restrain his tears] You in a false nose, Walter! [He clings to a chair to support himself] I beg your pardon, maam A little giddiness—

BOHUN [commandingly] You will excuse him, Mrs Clandon, when I inform you that he is my father

WAITER [heartbroken] Oh no, no, Walter A waiter for your father on top of a false nose! What will they think of you?

MRS CLANDON I am delighted to hear it, Mr Bohun Your father has been an excellent friend to us since we came here

Bohun bows gravely

WAITER [shaking his head] Oh no, maam It's very kind of you very ladylike and affable indeed, maam, but I should feel at a great disadvantage off my own proper footing Nevermind my being the gentleman's father, maam it is only the accident of birth after all, maam You'll excuse me, I'm sure, having interrupted your business [He begins to make his way along the table, supporting himself from chair to chair, with his eye on the door]

BOHUN One moment [The waiter stops, with a sinking heart] My father was a witness of what passed today, was he not, Mrs Clandon?

MRS CLANDON Yes, most of it, I think

BOHUN In that case we shall want him

WAITER [pleading] I hope it may not be necessary, sir Busy evening for me, sir, with that ball very busy evening indeed, sir

BOHUN [inexorably] We shall want you

MRS CLANDON [politely] Sit down, wont you?

WAITER [earnestly] Oh, if you please, maam, I really must draw the line at sitting down I couldnt let myself be seen doing such a thing, maam thank you, I am sure, all the same [He looks round from face to face wretchedly, with an expression that would melt a heart of stone]

GLORIA Dont let us waste time William only wants to go on taking care of us I should like a cup of coffee

WAITER [brightening perceptibly] Coffee, miss? [He gives a little gasp of hope] Certainly, miss Thank you, miss very timely miss, very thoughtful and considerate indeed [To Mrs Clandon, timidly but expectantly] Anything for you, maam?

MRS CLANDON Er—oh yes it's so hot, I think we might have a jug of claret cup

WAITER [beaming] Claret cup, maam! Certainly, maam

GLORIA Oh well, I'll have claret cup instead of coffee Put some cucumber in it

WAITER [delighted] Cucumber, miss! yes miss [To Bohun] Anything special for you, sir? You dont like cucumber, sir

BOHUN If Mrs Clandon will allow me syphon Scotch

WAITER Right, sir [To Crampton] Irish for you, sir, I think, sir? [Crampton assents with a grunt The waiter looks inquiringly at Valentine]

VALENTINE I like cucumber

WAITER Right, sir [Summing up] Claret cup, syphon, one Scotch and one Irish?

MRS CLANDON I think thats right

WAITER [himself again] Right, maam Directly, maam Thank you [He ambles off through the window, having sounded the whole gamut of human happiness, from despair to ecstasy, in fifty seconds]

M'COMAS We can begin now, I suppose

BOHUN We had better wait until Mrs Clandon's husband arrives

CRAMPTON What d'y' mean? I'm her husband

BOHUN [instantly pouncing on the inconsistency between this and his previous statement] You said just now that your name was Crampton

CRAMPTON So it is

MRS CLANDON	} [all four speaking simultaneously]	I—
GLORIA		My—
M'COMAS		Mrs—
VALENTINE		You—

BOHUN [drowning them in two thunderous words] One moment [Dead silence] Pray allow me Sit down, everybody [They obey humbly Gloria takes the saddle-bag chair on the hearth Valentine slips round to her side of the room and sits on the ottoman facing the window, so that he can look at her Crampton sits on the ottoman with his back to Valentine's Mrs Clandon, who has all along kept at the opposite side of the room in order to avoid Crampton as much as possible, sits near the door, with M'Comas beside her on her left Bohun places himself magisterially in the centre of the group, near the corner of the table on Mrs Clandon's side When they are settled, he fixes Crampton with his eye, and begins] In this family, it appears, the husband's name is Crampton the wife's, Clandon. Thus we have on the very threshold of the case an element of confusion.

VALENTINE [getting up and speaking across to him with one knee on the ottoman] But it's perfectly simple—

BOHUN [annihilating him with a vocal thunder-bolt] It is Miss Clandon has adopted another name. That is the obvious explanation which you feared I could not find out for myself. You mistrust my intelligence, Mr Valentine—[stopping him as he is about to protest] no I don't want you to answer that. I want you to think over it when you feel your next impulse to interrupt me.

VALENTINE [dazed] This is simply breaking a butterfly on a wheel. What does it matter? [He sits down again]

BOHUN I will tell you what it matters, sir. It matters that if this family difference is to be smoothed over as we all hope it may be, Mrs Clandon, as a matter of social convenience and decency, will have to resume her husband's name [Mrs Clandon assumes an expression of the most determined obstinacy] or else Mr Crampton will have to call himself Mr Clandon [Crampton looks indomitably resolved to do nothing of the sort] No doubt you think that an easy matter, Mr Valentine [He looks pointedly at Mrs Clandon, then at Crampton] I differ from you [He throws himself back in his chair, frowning heavily]

M'COMAS [timidly] I think, Bohun, we had perhaps better dispose of the important questions first.

BOHUN M'Comas there will be no difficulty about the important questions. There never is. It is the trifles that will wreck you at the harbor mouth [M'Comas looks as if he considered this a paradox] You don't agree with me, eh?

M'COMAS [flatteringly] If I did—

BOHUN [interrupting him] If you did, you would be me, instead of being what you are.

M'COMAS [fawning on him] Of course, Bohun, your speciality—

BOHUN [again interrupting him] My speciality is being right when other people are wrong. If you agreed with me I should be no use here [He nods at him to drive the point home, then turns suddenly and forcibly on Crampton] Now you, Mr Crampton, what point in this business have you most at heart?

CRAMPTON [beginning slowly] I wish to put all considerations of self aside in this matter—

BOHUN [cutting him short] So do we all, Mr Crampton [To Mrs Clandon] You wish to put self aside, Mrs Clandon?

MRS CLANDON Yes I am not consulting my own feelings in being here.

BOHUN So do you, Miss Clandon?

GLORIA Yes.

BOHUN I thought so. We all do.

VALENTINE Except me. My aims are selfish.

BOHUN That's because you think an affectation of sincerity will produce a better effect on Miss Clandon than an affectation of disinterestedness [Valentine, utterly dismantled and destroyed by this just remark, takes refuge in a feeble speechless smile. Bohun, satisfied at having now effectually crushed all rebellion, again throns himself back in his chair, with an air of being prepared to listen tolerantly to their grievances] Now, Mr Crampton, go on. It's understood that self is put aside. Human nature always begins by saying that.

CRAMPTON But I mean it, sir.

BOHUN Quite so. Now for your point.

CRAMPTON Every reasonable person will admit that it's an unselfish one. It's about the children.

BOHUN Well? What about the children?

CRAMPTON [with emotion] They have—

BOHUN [pouncing forward again] Stop. You're going to tell me about your feelings, Mr Crampton. Don't I sympathize with them, but they're not my business. Tell us exactly what you want, that's what we have to get at.

CRAMPTON [uneasily] It's a very difficult question to answer, Mr Bohun.

BOHUN Come I'll help you out. What do you object to in the present circumstances of the children?

CRAMPTON I object to the way they have been brought up.

Mrs Clandon's brow contracts ominously.

BOHUN How do you propose to alter that now?

CRAMPTON I think they ought to dress more quietly.

VALENTINE Nonsense.

BOHUN [instantly flinging himself back in his chair, outraged by the interruption] When you are done, Mr Valentine, when you are quite done.

VALENTINE What's wrong with Miss Clandon's dress?

CRAMPTON [hotly to Valentine] My opinion is as good as yours.

GLORIA [warningly] Father!

CRAMPTON [subsiding piteously] I didnt mean you, my dear [Pleading earnestly to Bohun] But the two younger ones! you have not seen them, Mr Bohun; and indeed I think you would agree with me that there is something very noticeable, something almost gay and frivolous in their style of dressing.

MRS CLANDON [impatiently] Do you suppose I choose their clothes for them? Really, this is childish.

CRAMPTON [furious, rising] Childish! Mrs Clandon rises indignantly.

M'COMAS	[all rising and speaking together]	Crampton, you
VALENTINE		promised—
		Ridiculous. They
GLORIA		dress charmingly.
		Pray let us behave reasonably

Tumult Suddenly they hear a warning chime of glasses in the room behind them. They turn guiltily and find that the waiter has just come back from the bar in the garden, and is jingling his tray as he comes softly to the table with it
Dead silence

WAITER [to Crampton, setting a tumbler apart on the table] Irish for you, sir [Crampton sits down a little shamefacedly The waiter sets another tumbler and a syphon apart, saying to Bohun] Scotch and syphon for you, sir [Bohun waves his hand impatiently The waiter places a large glass jug and three tumblers in the middle] And claret cup [All subside into their seats Peace reigns]

MRS CLANDON. I am afraid we interrupted you, Mr Bohun

BOHUN [calmly] You did [To the waiter, who is going out] Just wait a bit

WAITER. Yes, sir. Certainly, sir [He takes his stand behind Bohun's chair]

MRS CLANDON [to the waiter] You dont mind our detaining you, I hope Mr Bohun wishes it

WAITER [now quite at his ease] Oh no, maam, not at all, maam It is a pleasure to me to watch the working of his trained and powerful mind very stimulating, very entertaining and instructive indeed, maam

BOHUN [resuming command of the proceedings] Now, Mr Crampton we are waiting for you Do you give up your objection to the dressing or do you stick to it?

CRAMPTON [pleading] Mr Bohun consider my position for a moment. I havnt got myself alone to consider theres my sister Sophronia and my brother-in-law and all their circle. They have a great horror of anything that is at all—at all—well—

BOHUN Out with it Fast? Loud? Gay?

CRAMPTON Not in any unprincipled sense, of course; but—but— [blurtng it out desperately] those two children would shock them Theyre not fit to mix with their own people Thats what I complain of MRS CLANDON [with suppressed anger] Mr Valentine do you think there is anything fast or loud about Phil and Dolly?

VALENTINE Certainly not. It's utter bosh Nothing can be in better taste

CRAMPTON Oh yes of course you say so

MRS CLANDON Wilham you see a great deal of good English society Are my children overdressed?

WAITER [reassuringly] Oh dear no, maam [Persuasively] Oh no, sir, not at all A little pretty and tasty no doubt, but very choice and classy, very genteel and high toned indeed Might be the son and daughter of a Dean, sir, I assure you, sir You have only to look at them, sir, to—

At this moment a harlequin and columbine, waltzing to the band in the garden, whirl one another into the room The harlequin's dress is made of lozenges, an inch square, of turquoise blue silk and gold alternately His bat is gilt and his mask turned up The columbine's petticoats are the epitome of a harvest field, golden orange and poppy crimson, with a tiny velvet jacket for the poppy stamens They pass, an exquisite and dazzling apparition, between M'Comas and Bohun, and then back in a circle to the end of the table, where, as the final chord of the waltz is struck, they make a tableau in the middle of the company, the harlequin down on his left knee, and the columbine standing on his right knee, with her arms curved over her head Unlike their dancing, which is charmingly graceful, their attitudinizing is hardly a success, and threatens to end in a catastrophe

THE COLUMBINE [screaming] Lift me down, somebody I'm going to fall Papa lift me down

CRAMPTON [anxiously running to her and taking her hands] My child!

DOLLY [jumping down, with his help] Thanks so nice of you [Phil sits on the edge of the table and pours out some claret cup Crampton returns to the ottoman in great perplexity] Oh, what fun! Oh dear! [She seats herself with a vault on the front edge of the table, panting] Oh, claret cup! [She drinks]

BOHUN [in ponderful tones] This is the younger lady, is it?

DOLLY [slipping down off the table in alarm at his formidable voice and manner] Yes, sir Please, who are you?

MRS CLANDON This is Mr Bohun, Dolly, who has very kindly come to help us this evening

DOLLY Oh, then he comes as a boon and a blessing—

PHILIP Sh!

CRAMPTON Mr Bohun—M'Comas I appeal to you Is this right? Would you blame my sister's family for objecting to it?

DOLLY [flushing ominously] Have you begun again?

CRAMPTON [propitiating her] No, no It's perhaps natural at your age

DOLLY [obstinately] Never mind my age Is it pretty?

CRAMPTON Yes, dear, yes [He sits down in token of submission]

DOLLY [insistently] Do you like it?

CRAMPTON My child how can you expect me to like it or to approve of it?

DOLLY [determined not to let him off] How can you think it pretty and not like it?

M'COMAS [rising, scandalized] Really I must say—

Bohun, who has listened to Dolly with the highest approval, is down on him instantly

BOHUN No dont interrupt, M'Comas The young lady's method is right [To Dolly, with tremendous emphasis] Press your questions, Miss Clandon press your questions

DOLLY [turning to Bohun] Oh dear, you are a regular overwheeler! Do you always go on like this?

BOHUN [rising] Yes Dont you try to put me out of countenance, young lady youre too young to do it [He takes M'Comas's chair from beside Mrs Clandon's, and sets it beside his own]

Sit down [Dolly, fascinated, obeys, and Bohun sits down again M'Comas, robbed of his seat, takes a chair on the other side, between the table and the ottoman] Now, Mr Crampton, the facts are before you both of them You think youd like to have your two youngest children to live with you Well, you wouldnt— [Crampton tries to protest, but Bohun will not have it on any terms] no you wouldnt you think you would, but I know better than you Youd want this young lady here to give up dressing like a stage columbine in the evening and like a fashionable columbine in the morning Well, she wont never She thinks she will, but—

DOLLY [interrupting him] No I dont [Resolutely] I'll never give up dressing prettily Never As Gloria said to that man in Madeira, never, never, never! while grass grows or water runs VALENTINE [rising in the wildest agitation] What! What! [Beginning to speak very fast] When did she say that? Who did she say that to?

BOHUN [throwing himself back with massive pitying remonstrance] Mr Valentine—

VALENTINE [pepperily] Dont you interrupt me, sir this is something really serious I insist on knowing who Miss Clandon said that to DOLLY Perhaps Phil remembers Which was it, Phil? number three or number five?

VALENTINE Number five!!!

PHILIP Courage, Valentine! It wasnt number five it was only a tame naval lieutenant who was always on hand the most patient and harmless of mortals

GLORIA [coldly] What are we discussing now, pray?

VALENTINE [very red] Excuse me I am sorry I interrupted I shall intrude no further, Mrs Clandon [He bows to Mrs Clandon and marches away into the garden, boiling with suppressed rage]

DOLLY Hmhm!

PHILIP Ahah!

GLORIA Please go on, Mr Bohun

DOLLY [striking in as Bohun, frowning formidably, collects himself for a fresh grapple with the case] Youre going to bully us, Mr Bohun

BOHUN I—

DOLLY [interrupting him] Oh yes you are you think youre not, but you are I know by your eyebrows

BOHUN [capitulating] Mrs Clandon these are clever children clear headed well brought up children I make that admission deliberately Can you, in return, point out to me any way of inducing them to hold their tongues?

MRS CLANDON Dolly, dearest—!

PHILIP Our old failing, Dolly Silence!

Dolly holds her mouth

MRS CLANDON Now, Mr Bohun, before they begin again—

WAITER [softly] Be quick, sir be quick

DOLLY [beaming at him] Dear William!

PHILIP Sh!

BOHUN [unexpectedly beginning by hurling a question straight at Dolly] Have you any intention of getting married?

DOLLY I! Well, Finch calls me by my Christian name

M'COMAS [starting violently] I will not have this Mr Bohun I use the young lady's Christian name naturally as an old friend of her mother's DOLLY Yes, you call me Dolly as an old friend of my mother's But what about Dorothee-ee-a?

M'Comas rises indignantly

CRAMPTON [anxiously, rising to restrain him] Keep your temper, M'Comas Dont let us quarrel Be patient.

M'COMAS I will not be patient You are shewing the most wretched weakness of character, Crampton I say this is monstrous

DOLLY Mr Bohun please bully Finch for us

BOHUN I will M'Comas youre making yourself ridiculous Sit down

M'COMAS I—

BOHUN [naving him down imperiously] No sit down, sit down

M'Comas sits down sulkily, and Crampton, much relieved, follows his example

DOLLY [to Bohun, meekly] Thank you

BOHUN Now listen to me, all of you I give no opinion M'Comas, as to how far you may or may not have committed yourself in the direction indicated by this young lady [M'Comas is about to protest] No dont interrupt me if she doesnt marry you she will marry somebody else That is the solution of the difficulty as to her not bearing her father's name The other lady intends to get married

GLORIA [flushing] Mr Bohun!

BOHUN Oh yes you do you dont know it, but you do

GLORIA [rising] Stop I warn you, Mr Bohun, not to answer for my intentions

BOHUN [rising] It's no use, Miss Clandon you cant put me down I tell you your name will soon be neither Clandon nor Crampton, and I could tell you what it will be if I chose [He goes to the table and takes up his domino] They all rise, and Phil goes to the window Bohun, with a gesture, summons the waiter to help him to robe] Mr Crampton your notion of going to law is all nonsense your children will be of age before you can get the point decided [Allowing the waiter to put the domino on his shoulders] You can do nothing but make a friendly arrangement If you want your family more than they want you, youll get the worst of the arrangement if they want you more than you want them youll get the better of it [He shakes the domino into becoming folds and takes up the false nose] Dolly gazes admiringly at him] The strength of their position lies in their being very agreeable people personally The strength of your position lies in your income [He claps on the false nose and is again grotesquely transfigured]

DOLLY [running to him] Oh, now you look quite like a human being Maynt I have just one dance with you? Can you dance?

Phil, resuming his part of harlequin, naves his bat as if casting a spell on them

BOHUN [thunderously] Yes you think I cant, but I can Allow me [He seizes her and dances off with her through the window in a most powerful manner, but with studied propriety and grace]

PHILIP "On with the dance let joy be unconfined" William

WAITER Yes, sir

PHILIP Can you procure a couple of dominos and false noses for my father and Mr M'Comas?

M'COMAS Most certainly not I protest—

CRAMPTON Yes, yes What harm will it do, just for once, M'Comas? Dont let us be spoilsports

M'COMAS Crampton you are not the man I took you for [Pointedly] Bullies are always cowards [He goes disgustedly towards the window]

CRAMPTON [following him] Well, never mind We must indulge them a little Can you get us something to wear, waiter?

WAITER Certainly, sir [He precedes them to the window, and stands aside there to let them pass out before him] This way, sir Dominos and noses, sir?

M'COMAS [angrily, on his way out] I shall wear my own nose

WAITER [suavely] Oh dear yes, sir the false one will fit over it quite easily, sir. plenty of room, sir, plenty of room [He goes out after M'Comas]

CRAMPTON [turning at the window to Phil with an attempt at genial fatherliness] Come along, my boy Come along [He goes]

PHILIP [cheerily, following him] Coming, dad, coming [On the window threshold he stops, looks after Crampton, then turns fantastically with his bat bent into a halo round his head, and says with lowered voice to Mrs Clandon and Gloria] Did you feel the pathos of that? [He vanishes]

MRS CLANDON [left alone with Gloria] Why did Mr Valentine go away so suddenly, I wonder?

GLORIA [petulantly] I dont know Yes, I do know Let us go and see the dancing

They go towards the window, and are met by Valentine, who comes in from the garden walking quickly, with his face set and sulky

VALENTINE [stiffly] Excuse me I thought the party had quite broken up

GLORIA [nagging] Then why did you come back?

VALENTINE I came back because I am penniless I cant get out that way without a five-shilling ticket

MRS CLANDON Has anything annoyed you, Mr Valentine?

GLORIA Never mind him, mother This is a fresh insult to me that is all

MRS CLANDON [hardly able to realize that Gloria is deliberately provoking an altercation] Gloria!

VALENTINE Mrs Clandon have I said anything insulting? Have I done anything insulting?

GLORIA You have implied that my past has been like yours That is the worst of insults

VALENTINE I imply nothing of the sort I declare that my past has been blameless in comparison with yours

MRS CLANDON [most indignantly] Mr Valentine!

VALENTINE Well, what am I to think when I learn that Miss Clandon has made exactly the same speeches to other men that she has made to me? Five former lovers, with a tame naval lieutenant thrown in! Oh, it's too bad

MRS CLANDON But you surely do not believe that these affairs—mere jokes of the children's—were serious, Mr Valentine?

VALENTINE Not to you Not to her, perhaps But I know what the men felt [With ludicrously genuine earnestness] Have you ever thought of the wrecked lives, the unhappy marriages contracted in the recklessness of despair, the suicides, the—the—the—

GLORIA [interrupting him contemptuously] Mother this man is a sentimental idiot [She sweeps away to the fireplace]

MRS CLANDON [shocked] Oh, my dearest

Gloria, Mr Valentine will think that rude
VALENTINE I am not a sentimental idiot I am cured of sentiment for ever [He turns away in dudgeon]

MRS CLANDON Mr Valentine you must excuse us all Women have to unlearn the false good manners of their slavery before they acquire the genuine good manners of their freedom Dont think Gloria vulgar [Gloria turns, astonished] she is not really so

GLORIA Mother! You apologize for me to him!

MRS CLANDON My dear you have some of the faults of youth as well as its qualities, and Mr Valentine seems rather too old fashioned in his ideas about his own sex to like being called an idiot And now had we not better go and see what Dolly is doing? [She goes towards the window]

GLORIA Do you go, mother I wish to speak to Mr Valentine alone

MRS CLANDON [startled into a remonstrance] My dear! [Recollecting herself] I beg your pardon, Gloria Certainly, if you wish [She goes out]

VALENTINE Oh, if your mother were only a widow! She's worth six of you

GLORIA That is the first thing I have heard you say that does you honor

VALENTINE Stuff! Come say what you want to say and let me go

GLORIA I have only this to say You diaggged me down to your level for a moment this afternoon Do you think, if that had ever happened before, that I should not have been on my guard? that I should not have known what was coming, and known my own miserable weakness?

VALENTINE [scolding at her passionately] Dont talk of it in that way What do I care for anything in you but your weakness, as you call it? You thought yourself very safe, didnt you, behind your advanced ideas? I amused myself by upsetting them pretty easily

GLORIA [insolently, feeling that now she can do as she likes with him] Indeed!

VALENTINE But why did I do it? Because I was being tempted to awaken your heart to stir the depths in you Why was I tempted? Because Nature was in deadly earnest with me when I was in jest with her When the great moment came, who was awakened? who was stirred? in whom did the depths break up? In myself—myself I was transported you were only offended—shocked

You are just an ordinary young lady, too ordinary to allow tame lieutenants to go as far as I went. That's all. I shall not trouble you with conventional apologies. Goodbye [He makes resolutely for the door].

GLORIA Stop [He hesitates]. Oh, will you understand, if I tell you the truth, that I am not making advances to you?

VALENTINE Pooh! I know what you're going to say. You think you're not ordinary. That I was right that you really have those depths in your nature. It flatters you to believe it [She recoils]. Well, I grant that you are not ordinary in some ways. You are a clever girl [Gloria stifles an exclamation of rage, and takes a threatening step towards him], but you've not been awakened yet. You didn't care. You don't care. It was my tragedy, not yours. Goodbye [He turns to the door. She watches him, appalled to see him slipping from her grasp. As he turns the handle, he pauses, then turns again to her, offering his hand]. Let us part kindly.

GLORIA [enormously relieved, and immediately turning her back on him deliberately]. Goodbye. I trust you will soon recover from the wound.

VALENTINE [brightening up as it flashes on him that he is master of the situation after all]. I shall recover. Such wounds heal more than they harm. After all, I still have my own Gloria.

GLORIA [facing him quickly]. What do you mean?

VALENTINE The Gloria of my imagination.

GLORIA [proudly]. Keep your own Gloria. The Gloria of your imagination [Her emotion begins to break through her pride]. The real Gloria—the Gloria who was shocked, offended, horrified—oh yes, quite truly—who was driven almost mad with shame by the feeling that all her power over herself had broken down at her first real encounter with—with— [The color rushes over her face again. She covers it with her left hand, and puts her right on his left arm to support herself].

VALENTINE Take care. I'm losing my senses again [Summoning all her courage, she takes away her hand from her face and puts it on his right shoulder, turning him towards her and looking him straight in the eyes. He begins to protest agitatedly]. Gloria, be sensible. It's no use. I haven't a penny in the world.

GLORIA Can't you earn one? Other people do.

VALENTINE [half delighted, half frightened].

I never could you'd be unhappy. My dearest love, I should be the merest fortune-hunting adventurer if— [Her grip of his arms tightens, and she kisses him]. Oh Lord! [Breathless]. Oh, I— [he gasps]. I don't know anything about women. Twelve years' experience is not enough [In a gust of jealousy she throws him away from her, and he reels back into a chair like a leaf before the wind].

Dolly dances in, waltzing with the waiter, followed by Mrs. Clandon and Finch, also waltzing, and Phil pirouetting by himself.

DOLLY [sinking on the chair at the writing-table]. Oh, I'm out of breath. How beautifully you waltz, William!

MRS CLANDON [sinking on the saddle-bag seat on the hearth]. Oh, how could you make me do such a silly thing, Finch! I haven't danced since the soiree at South Place twenty years ago.

GLORIA [peremptorily to Valentine]. Get up [Valentine gets up abjectly]. Now let us have no false delicacy. Tell my mother that we have agreed to marry one another.

A silence of stupefaction ensues. Valentine, dumb with panic, looks at them with an obvious impulse to run away.

DOLLY [breaking the silence]. Number Six!

PHILIP Sh!

DOLLY [tumultuously]. Oh, my feelings! I want to kiss somebody, and we bar it in the family. Where's Finch?

M'COMAS No, positively.

Crampton appears at the window.

DOLLY [running to Crampton]. Oh, you're just in time [She kisses him]. Now [leading him forward]. Bless them.

GLORIA No. I will have no such thing, even in jest. When I need a blessing, I shall ask my mother's.

CRAMPTON [to Gloria, with deep disappointment]. Am I to understand that you have engaged yourself to this young gentleman?

GLORIA [resolutely]. Yes. Do you intend to be our friend or—

DOLLY —or our father?

CRAMPTON I should like to be both, my child. But surely—! Mr. Valentine, I appeal to your sense of honor.

VALENTINE You're quite right. It's perfect madness. If we go out to dance together, I shall have to borrow five shillings from her for a ticket. Gloria, don't be rash. You're throwing yourself away. I'd much better clear straight out of this, and never see any of you again I shant commit suicide I shant even be unhappy Itll be a relief to me I—I'm frightened, I'm positively frightened, and that's the plain truth

GLORIA [determinedly] You shall not go

VALENTINE [quailing] No, dearest of course not But—oh, will somebody only talk sense for a moment and bring us all to reason! I cant Where's Bohun? Bohun's the man Phil go and summon Bohun

PHILIP From the vasty deep I go [He makes his bat quiver in the air and darts away through the window]

WATER [harmoniously to Valentine] If you will excuse my putting in a word, sir, do not let a matter of five shillings stand between you and your happiness, sir We shall be only too pleased to put the ticket down to you, and you can settle at your convenience Very glad to meet you in any way, very happy and pleased indeed, sir

PHILIP [reappearing] He comes [He waves his bat over the window]

Bohun comes in, taking off his false nose and throwing it on the table in passing as he comes between Gloria and Valentine

VALENTINE The point is, Mr Bohun—

M'COMAS [interrupting from the hearthrug] Excuse me, sir the point must be put to him by a solicitor The question is one of an engagement between these two young people The lady has some property, and [looking at Crampton] will probably have a good deal more

CRAMPTON Possibly I hope so

VALENTINE And the gentleman hasnt a rap

BOHUN [nailing Valentine to the point instantly] Then insist on a settlement That shocks your delicacy most sensible precautions do But you ask my advice, and I give it to you Have a settlement

GLORIA [proudly] He shall have a settlement

VALENTINE My good sir, I dont want advice for myself Give her some advice

BOHUN She wont take it When youre married, she wont take yours either— [turning suddenly on Gloria] oh no you wont you think you will, but you wont He'll set to work and earn his living— [turning suddenly on Valentine] oh yes you will you think you wont, but you will She'll make you CRAMPTON [only half persuaded] Then, Mr Bohun, you dont think this match an unwise one?

BOHUN Yes I do all matches are unwise It's unwise to be born, it's unwise to be married, it's unwise to live, and it's wise to die

WATER [insinuating himself between Crampton and Valentine] Then, if I may respectfully put a word in, sir, so much the worse for wisdom!

PHILIP Allow me to remark that if Gloria has made up her mind—

DOLLY The matter's settled, and Valentine's done for And we're missing all the dances

VALENTINE [to Gloria, gallantly making the best of it] May I have a dance—

BOHUN [interposing in his grandest diapason] Excuse me I claim that privilege as counsel's fee May I have the honor? thank you [He dances away with Gloria, and disappears among the lanterns, leaving Valentine gasping]

VALENTINE [recovering his breath] Dolly may I— [offering himself as her partner]?

DOLLY Nonsense! [eluding him and running round the table to the fireplace] Finch my Finch! [She pounces on M'Comas and makes him dance]

M'COMAS [protesting] Pray restrain—really— [He is borne off dancing through the window]

VALENTINE [making a last effort] Mrs Clandon may I—

PHILIP [forestalling him] Come, mother [He seizes his mother and whirls her away]

MRS CLANDON [remonstrating] Phil, Phil— [She shares M'Comas's fate]

CRAMPTON [following them with senile glee] Ho! ho! He! he! he! [He goes into the garden chuckling]

VALENTINE [collapsing on the ottoman and staring at the water] I might as well be a married man already

WATER [contemplating the defeated Duelist of Sex with ineffable benignity] Cheer up, sir, cheer up Every man is frightened of marriage when it comes to the point, but it often turns out very comfortable, very enjoyable and happy indeed, sir—from time to time I never was master in my own house, sir my wife was like your young lady she was of a commanding and masterful disposition, which my son has inherited But if I had my life to live twice over, I'd do it again I'd do it again, I assure you You never can tell, sir you never can tell

THE DEVIL'S DISCIPLE

A MELODRAMA (1897)

BEING THE FIRST OF THREE PLAYS FOR PURITANS

ACT I

At the most wretched hour between a black night and a wintry morning in the year 1777, Mrs Dudgeon, of New Hampshire, is sitting up in the kitchen and general dwelling room of her farmhouse on the outskirts of the town of Websterbridge. She is not a prepossessing woman. No woman looks her best after sitting up all night, and Mrs Dudgeon's face, even at its best, is grimly trenched by the channels into which the barren forms and observances of a dead Puritanism can pen a bitter temper and a fierce pride. She is an elderly matron who has worked hard and got nothing by it except dominion and detestation in her sordid home, and an unquestioned reputation for piety and respectability among her neighbors, to whom drink and debauchery are still so much more tempting than religion and rectitude, that they conceive goodness simply as self-denial. This conception is easily extended to others-denial, and finally generalized as covering anything disagreeable. So Mrs Dudgeon, being exceedingly disagreeable, is held to be exceedingly good. Short of flat felony, she enjoys complete license except for amiable weaknesses of any sort, and is consequently, without knowing it, the most licentious woman in the parish on the strength of never having broken the seventh commandment or missed a Sunday at the Presbyterian church.

The year 1777 is the one in which the passions roused by the breaking-off of the American colonies from England, more by their own weight than their own will, boiled up to shooting point, the shooting being idealized to the English mind as suppression of rebellion and maintenance of British dominion, and to the American as defence of liberty, resistance to tyranny, and self-sacrifice on the altar of the Rights of Man. Into the merits of these idealizations it is not here necessary to inquire: suffice it to say, without prejudice, that they have convinced both Americans and English that the most highminded course for them to pursue is to kill as many of one another as possible, and that military operations to that end are in full swing, morally supported by confident requests from the clergy of both sides for the blessing of God on their arms.

Under such circumstances many other women

besides this disagreeable Mrs Dudgeon find themselves sitting up all night waiting for news. Like her, too, they fall asleep towards morning at the risk of nodding themselves into the kitchen fire. Mrs Dudgeon sleeps with a shawl over her head, and her feet on a broad fender of iron laths, the step of the domestic altar of the fireplace, with its huge hobs and boiler, and its hinged arm above the smoky mantelshelf for roasting. The plain kitchen table is opposite the fire, at her elbow, with a candle on it in a tin sconce. Her chair, like all the others in the room, is uncushioned and unpainted, but as it has a round railed back and a seat conventionally moulded to the sitter's curves, it is comparatively a chair of state. The room has three doors, one on the same side as the fireplace, near the corner, leading to the best bedroom, one, at the opposite end of the opposite wall, leading to the scullery and washhouse, and the housedoor, with its latch, heavy lock, and clumsy wooden bar, in the front wall, between the window in its middle and the corner next the bedroom door. Between the door and the window a rack of pegs suggests to the deductive observer that the men of the house are all away, as there are no hats or coats on them. On the other side of the window the clock hangs on a nail, with its white wooden dial, black iron weights, and brass pendulum. Between the clock and the corner, a big cupboard, locked, stands on a dwarf dresser full of common crockery.

On the side opposite the fireplace, between the door and the corner, a shamelessly ugly black horsehair sofa stands against the wall. An inspection of its stridulous surface shews that Mrs Dudgeon is not alone. A girl of sixteen or seventeen has fallen asleep on it. She is a wild, timid looking creature with black hair and tanned skin. Her frock, a scanty garment, is rent, weather-stained, berry-stained, and by no means scrupulously clean. It hangs on her with a freedom which, taken with her brown legs and bare feet, suggests no great stock of underclothing.

Suddenly there comes a tapping at the door, not loud enough to wake the sleepers. Then knocking, which disturbs Mrs Dudgeon a little. Finally the latch is tried, whereupon she springs up at once

MRS DUDGEON [threateningly] Well, why dont you open the door? [She sees that the girl is asleep, and immediately raises a clamor of heartfelt vexation] Well, dear, dear me! Now this is— [shaking her] wake up, wake up do you hear?

THE GIRL [sitting up] What is it?

MRS DUDGEON Wake up, and be ashamed of yourself, you unfeeling sinful girl, falling asleep like that, and your father hardly cold in his grave

THE GIRL [half asleep still] I didnt mean to I dropped off—

MRS DUDGEON [cutting her short] Oh yes, you've plenty of excuses, I daresay Dropped off! [Fiercely, as the knocking recommences] Why dont you get up and let your uncle in? After me waiting up all night for him! [She pushes her rudely off the sofa] There I'll open the door much good you are to wait up Go and mend that fire a bit

The girl, coned and wretched, goes to the fire and puts a log on Mrs Dudgeon unbars the door and opens it, letting into the stuffy kitchen a little of the freshness and a great deal of the chill of the dawn, also her second son Christy, a fatish, stupid, fair-haired, roundfaced man of about 22, muffled in a plaid shawl and grey overcoat He hurries, shivering, to the fire, leaving Mrs Dudgeon to shut the door

CHRISTY [at the fire] F—f—f! but it is cold [Seeing the girl, and staring lumpishly at her] Why, who are you?

THE GIRL [shyly] Essie

MRS DUDGEON Oh, you may well ask [To Essie] Go to your room, child, and lie down, since you havnt feeling enough to keep you awake Your history isnt fit for your own ears to hear

ESSIE I—

MRS DUDGEON [peremptorily] Dont answer me, Miss, but shew your obedience by doing what I tell you [Essie, almost in tears, crosses the room to the door near the sofa] And dont forget your prayers [Essie goes out] She'd have gone to bed last night just as if nothing had happened if I'd let her

CHRISTY [phlegmatically] Well, she cant be expected to feel Uncle Peter's death like one of the family

MRS DUDGEON What are you talking about, child? Isnt she his daughter—the punishment of his wickedness and shame? [She assaults her chair by sitting down]

CHRISTY [staring] Uncle Peter's daughter!

MRS DUDGEON Why else should she be here? D'ye think Ive not had enough trouble and care put upon me bringing up my own girls, let alone you and your good-for-nothing brother, without having your uncle's bastards—

CHRISTY [interrupting her with an apprehensive glance at the door by which Essie went out] Sh! She may hear you

MRS DUDGEON [raising her voice] Let her hear me People who fear God dont fear to give the devil's work its right name [Christy, soullessly indifferent to the strife of Good and Evil, stares at the fire, warming himself] Well, how long are you going to stare there like a stuck pig? What news have you for me?

CHRISTY [taking off his hat and shawl and going to the rack to hang them up] The minister is to break the news to you He'll be here presently

MRS DUDGEON Break what news?

CHRISTY [standing on tiptoe, from boyish habit, to hang his hat up, though he is quite tall enough to reach the peg, and speaking with callous placidity, considering the nature of the announcement] Father's dead too

MRS DUDGEON [stupent] Your father!

CHRISTY [sulkily, coming back to the fire and warming himself again, attending much more to the fire than to his mother] Well, it's not my fault When we got to Newinstown we found him ill in bed He didnt know us at first The minister sat up with him and sent me away He died in the night

MRS DUDGEON [bursting into dry angry tears] Well, I do think this is hard on me—very hard on me His brother, that was a disgrace to us all his life, gets hanged on the public gallows as a rebel, and your father, instead of staying at home where his duty was, with his own family, goes after him and dies, leaving everything on my shoulders After sending this girl to me to take care of, too! [She plucks her shawl vexedly over her ears] It's sinful, so it is downright sinful

CHRISTY [with a slow, bovine cheerfulness, after a pause] I think it's going to be a fine morning, after all

MRS DUDGEON [railing at him] A fine morning! And your father newly dead! Wheres your feelings, child?

CHRISTY [obstinately] Well, I didnt mean any harm I suppose a man may make a remark about the weather even if his father's dead MRS DUDGEON [bitterly] A nice comfort my children are to me! One son a fool, and the other a lost sinner that's left his home to live with smugglers and gypsies and villains, the scum of the earth!

Someone knocks

CHRISTY [without moving] That's the minister

MRS DUDGEON [sharply] Well, arnt you going to let Mr Anderson in?

Christy goes sheepishly to the door. Mrs Dudgeon buries her face in her hands, as it is her duty as a widow to be overcome with grief. Christy opens the door, and admits the minister, Anthony Anderson, a shrewd, genial, ready Presbyterian divine of about 50, with something of the authority of his profession in his bearing. But it is an altogether secular authority, sweetened by a conciliatory, sensible manner not at all suggestive of a quite thoroughgoing other-worldliness. He is a strong, healthy man too, with a thick sanguine neck, and his keen, cheerful mouth cuts into somewhat fleshy corners. No doubt an excellent parson, but still a man capable of making the most of this world, and perhaps a little apologetically conscious of getting on better with it than a sound Presbyterian ought.

ANDERSON [to Christy, at the door, looking at Mrs Dudgeon whilst he takes off his cloak] Have you told her?

CHRISTY She made me [He shuts the door, yawns, and loafs across to the sofa, where he sits down and presently drops off to sleep]

Anderson looks compassionately at Mrs Dudgeon. Then he hangs his cloak and hat on the rack. Mrs Dudgeon dries her eyes and looks up at him.

ANDERSON Sister the Lord has laid his hand very heavily upon you

MRS DUDGEON [with intensely recalcitrant resignation] It's His will, I suppose, and I must bow to it. But I do think it hard. What call had Timothy to go to Springtown, and remind everybody that he belonged to a man that was being hanged?—and [spitefully] that deserved it, if ever a man did.

ANDERSON [gently] They were brothers, Miss Dudgeon

MRS DUDGEON Timothy never acknowledged him as his brother after we were married. He had too much respect for me to insult me with such a brother. Would such a selfish wretch as Peter have come thirty miles to see Timothy hanged, do you think? Not thirty yards, not he. However, I must bear my cross as best I may. least said is soonest mended

ANDERSON [very grave, coming down to the fire to stand with his back to it] Your eldest son was present at the execution, Mrs Dudgeon.

MRS DUDGEON [disagreeably surprised] Richard?

ANDERSON [nodding] Yes

MRS DUDGEON [vindictively] Let it be a warning to him. He may end that way himself, the wicked, dissolute, godless— [she suddenly stops, her voice fails, and she asks, with evident dread] Did Timothy see him?

ANDERSON Yes

MRS DUDGEON [holding her breath] Well?

ANDERSON He only saw him in the crowd. They did not speak. [Mrs Dudgeon, greatly relieved, exhales the pent up breath and sits at her ease again] Your husband was greatly touched and impressed by his brother's awful death. [Mrs Dudgeon sneers. Anderson breaks off to demand with some indignation] Well, wasn't it only natural, Mrs Dudgeon? He softened towards his prodigal son in that moment. He sent for him to come to see him.

MRS DUDGEON [her alarm renewed] Sent for Richard!

ANDERSON Yes, but Richard would not come. He sent his father a message, but I'm sorry to say it was a wicked message—an awful message.

MRS DUDGEON What was it?

ANDERSON That he would stand by his wicked uncle and stand against his good parents, in this world and the next.

MRS DUDGEON [implacably] He will be punished for it. He will be punished for it—in both worlds.

ANDERSON That is not in our hands, Mrs Dudgeon.

MRS DUDGEON Did I say it was, Mr Anderson? We are told that the wicked shall be punished. Why should we do our duty and keep God's law if there is to be no difference made between us and those who follow their own likings and dislikings, and make a jest of us and of their Maker's word?

ANDERSON Well, Richard's earthly father has been merciful to him, and his heavenly judge is the father of us all.

MRS DUDGEON [forgetting herself] Richard's earthly father was a softheaded—

ANDERSON [shocked] Oh!

MRS DUDGEON [with a touch of shame] Well, I am Richard's mother. If I am against him who has any right to be for him? [Trying to conciliate him] Wont you sit down, Mr Anderson? I should have asked you before, but I'm so troubled ANDERSON Thank you [He takes a chair from beside the fireplace, and turns it so that he can sit comfortably at the fire. When he is seated he adds, in the tone of a man who knows that he is opening a difficult subject] Has Christy told you about the new will?

MRS DUDGEON [all her fears returning] The new will! Did Timothy—? [She breaks off, gasping, unable to complete the question]

ANDERSON Yes In his last hours he changed his mind

MRS DUDGEON [white with intense rage] And you let him rob me?

ANDERSON I had no power to prevent him giving what was his to his own son

MRS DUDGEON He had nothing of his own His money was the money I brought him as my marriage portion It was for me to deal with my own money, and my own son He dare not have done it if I had been with him, and well he knew it That was why he stole away like a thief to take advantage of the law to rob me by making a new will behind my back The more shame on you, Mr Anderson,—you, a minister of the gospel—to act as his accomplice in such a crime

ANDERSON [rising] I will take no offence at what you say in the first bitterness of your grief

MRS DUDGEON [rising]

ANDERSON Well, if you can find it in your heart to think that the better word

MRS DUDGEON My heart! My heart! And since when, pray, have you begun to hold up our hearts as trustworthy guides for us?

ANDERSON [rather guiltily] I—er—

MRS DUDGEON [vehemently] Don't lie, Mr Anderson We are told that the heart of man is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked My heart belonged, not to Timothy, but to that poor wretched brother of his that has just ended his days with a rope round his neck—aye, to Peter Dudgeon You know it old Eli Hawkins, the man to whose pulpit you succeeded, though you are not worthy to loose his shoe latchet, told it you when he gave over our souls into your charge He warned me and strengthened me against my heart, and made me marry a Godfearing man—as he thought What else but that discipline has made me the woman I am? And you, you, who followed your heart in your marriage, you talk to me of what I find in my heart Go home to your pretty wife, man, and leave me to my prayers [She turns from him and leans with her elbows on the table, brooding over her wrongs and taking no further notice of him]

ANDERSON [willing enough to escape] The Lord forbid that I should come between you and the source of all comfort! [He goes to the rack for his coat and hat]

MRS DUDGEON [without looking at him] The Lord will know what to forbid and what to allow without your help

ANDERSON And whom to forgive, I hope—Eli Hawkins and myself, if we have ever set up our preaching against His law [He fastens his cloak, and is now ready to go] Just one word—on necessary business, Mrs Dudgeon There is the reading of the will to be gone through, and Richard has a right to be present He is in the town, but he has the grace to say that he does not want to force himself in here

MRS DUDGEON He shall come here Does he expect us to leave his father's house for his convenience? Let them all come, and come quickly, and go quickly They shall not make the will an excuse to shirk half their day's work I shall be ready, never fear

ANDERSON [coming back a step or two] Mrs Dudgeon I used to have some little influence with you When did I lose it?

MRS DUDGEON [still without turning to him] When you married for love Now you're answered

ANDERSON Yes I am answered [He goes out, musing]

MRS DUDGEON [to herself, thinking of her husband] Thief! Thief! [She shakes herself angrily out of her chair, throws back the shawl from her head, and sets to work to prepare the room for the reading of the will, beginning by replacing Anderson's chair against the wall, and pushing back her own to the window. Then she calls, in her hard, driving, wrathful way] Christy [No answer he is fast asleep] Christy [She shakes him roughly] Get up out of that, and be ashamed of yourself—sleeping, and your father dead! [She returns to the table, puts the candle on the mantelshef, and takes from the table drawer a red table cloth which she spreads]

CHRISTY [rising reluctantly] Well, do you suppose we are never going to sleep until we are out of mourning?

MRS DUDGEON I want none of your sulks Here help me to set this table [They place the table in the middle of the room, with Christy's end towards the fireplace and Mrs Dudgeon's towards the sofa Christy drops the table as soon as possible, and goes to the fire, leaving his mother to make the final adjustments of its position] We shall have the minister back here with the lawyer and all the family to read the will before you have done toasting yourself Go and wake that girl, and then light the stove in the shed you cant have your breakfast here And mind you wash yourself, and make yourself fit to receive the company [She punctuates these orders by going to the cupboard, unlocking it, and producing a decanter of wine, which has no doubt stood there untouched since the last state occasion in the family, and some glasses, which she sets on the table Also two green ware plates, on one of which she puts a barnbrack with a knife beside it On the other she shakes some biscuits out of a tin, putting back one or two, and counting the rest] Now mind there are ten biscuits there let there be ten there when I come back after dressing myself And keep your fingers off the raisins in that cake. And tell Essie the same I suppose I can trust you to bring in the case of stuffed birds without breaking the glass? [She replaces the tin in the cupboard, which she locks, pocketing the key carefully]

CHRISTY [lingering at the fire] Youd better put the inkstand instead, for the lawyer

MRS DUDGEON Thats no answer to make to me, sir Go and do as youre told [Christy turns sullenly to obey] Stop take down that shutter before you go, and let the daylight in you cant expect me to do all the heavy work of the house with a great lout like you idling about

Christy takes the window bar out of its clamps, and puts it aside, then opens the shutter, shewing the grey morning Mrs Dudgeon takes the sconce from the mantelshelf, blows out the candle, extinguishes the snuff by pinching it with her fingers, first licking them for the purpose, and replaces the sconce on the shelf

CHRISTY [looking through the window] Heres the minister's wife

MRS DUDGEON [displeased] What! Is she coming here?

CHRISTY Yes

MRS DUDGEON What does she want troubling me at this hour, before I am properly dressed to receive people?

CHRISTY Youd better ask her

MRS DUDGEON [threateningly] Youd better keep a civil tongue in your head [He goes sulkily towards the door She comes after him, plying him with instructions] Tell that girl to come to me as soon as she's had her breakfast. And tell her to make herself fit to be seen before the people [Christy goes out and slams the door in her face] Nice manners, that! [Someone knocks at the house door she turns and cries inhospitably] Come in [Judith Anderson, the minister's wife, comes in Judith is more than twenty years younger than her husband, though she will never be as young as he in vitality She is pretty and proper and ladylike, and has been admired and petted into an opinion of herself sufficiently favorable to give her a self-assurance which serves her instead of strength She has a pretty taste in dress, and in her face the pretty lines of a sentimental character formed by dreams Even her little self-complacency is pretty, like a child's vanity Rather a pathetic creature to any sympathetic observer who knows how rough a place the world is One feels, on the whole, that Anderson might have chosen norse, and that she, needing protection, could not have chosen better] Oh, it's you, is it, Mrs Anderson?

JUDITH [very politely—almost patronizingly] Yes Can I do anything for you, Mrs Dudgeon? Can I help to get the place ready before they come to read the will?

MRS DUDGEON [stiffly] Thank you, Mrs Anderson, my house is always ready for anyone to come into

MRS ANDERSON [with complacent amiability] Yes, indeed it is Perhaps you had rather I did not intrude on you just now

MRS DUDGEON Oh, one more or less will make no difference this morning, Mrs Anderson Now that youre here, youd better stay If you wouldnt mind shutting the door! [Judith smiles, implying "How stupid of me!" and shuts it with an exasperating air of doing something pretty and becoming] Thats better I must go and tidy myself a bit I suppose you dont mind stopping here to receive anyone that comes until I'm ready

JUDITH [graciously giving her leave] Oh yes, certainly Leave that to me, Mrs Dudgeon, and take your time [She hangs her cloak and bonnet on the rack]

MRS DUDGEON [half sneering] I thought that would be more in your way than getting the house ready [Essie comes back] Oh, here you are! [Severely] Come here let me see you [Essie timidly goes to her Mrs Dudgeon takes her roughly by the arm and pulls her round to inspect the results of her attempt to clean and tidy herself—results which shew little practice and less conviction] Mm! That's what you call doing your hair properly, I suppose. It's easy to see what you are, and how you were brought up [She throws her arm away, and goes on, peremptorily] Now you listen to me and do as you're told. You sit down there in the corner by the fire, and when the company comes don't dare to speak until you're spoken to [Essie creeps away to the fireplace] Your father's people had better see you and know you're there, they're as much bound to keep you from starvation as I am. At any rate they might help. But let me have no chattering and making free with them, as if you were their equal. Do you hear?

ESSIE Yes

MRS DUDGEON Well, then go and do as you're told [Essie sits down miserably on the corner of the fender furthest from the door] Never mind her, Mrs Anderson, you know who she is and what she is. If she gives you any trouble, just tell me, and I'll settle accounts with her [Mrs Dudgeon goes into the bedroom, shutting the door sharply behind her as if even it had to be made do its duty with a ruthless hand]

JUDITH [patronizing Essie, and arranging the cake and wine on the table more becomingly] You must not mind if your aunt is strict with you. She is a very good woman, and desires your good too.

ESSIE [in listless misery] Yes

JUDITH [annoyed with Essie for her failure to be consoled and edified, and to appreciate the kindly condescension of the remark] You are not going to be sullen, I hope, Essie.

ESSIE No

JUDITH That's a good girl! [She places a couple of chairs at the table with their backs to the window, with a pleasant sense of being a more thoughtful housekeeper than Mrs Dudgeon] Do you know any of your father's relatives?

ESSIE No. They wouldn't have anything to do with him. They were too religious. Father used to talk about Dick Dudgeon, but I never saw him.

JUDITH [ostentatiously shocked] Dick Dudgeon! Essie, do you wish to be a really respectable and grateful girl, and to make a place for yourself here by steady good conduct?

ESSIE [very half-heartedly] Yes

JUDITH Then you must never mention the name of Richard Dudgeon—never, even think about him. He is a bad man.

ESSIE What has he done?

JUDITH You must not ask questions about him, Essie. You are too young to know what it is to be a bad man. But he is a smuggler, and he lives with gypsies, and he has no love for his mother and his family, and he wrestles and plays games on Sunday instead of going to church. Never let him into your presence, if you can help it, Essie, and try to keep yourself and all womanhood unspotted by contact with such men.

ESSIE Yes

JUDITH [again displeased] I am afraid you say Yes and No without thinking very deeply.

ESSIE Yes. At least I mean—

JUDITH [severely] What do you mean?

ESSIE [almost crying] Only—my father was a smuggler, and— [Someone knocks]

JUDITH They are beginning to come. Now remember your aunt's directions, Essie, and be a good girl. [Christy comes back with the stand of stuffed birds under a glass case, and an inkstand, which he places on the table] Good morning, Mr Dudgeon. Will you open the door, please. The people have come.

CHRISTY Good morning. [He opens the house door]

The morning is now fairly bright and warm, and Anderson, who is the first to enter, has left his cloak at home. He is accompanied by Lawyer Hawkins, a brisk, middle-aged man in brown riding gaiters and yellow breeches, looking as much square as solicitor. He and Anderson are allowed precedence as representing the learned professions. After them comes the family, headed by the senior uncle, William Dudgeon, a large, shapeless man, bottle-nosed and evidently no ascetic at table. His clothes are not the clothes, nor his anxious wife the wife, of a prosperous man. The junior uncle, Titus Dudgeon, is a wiry little terrier of a man, with an immense and visibly purse-proud wife, both free from the cares of the William household.

Hawkins at once goes briskly to the table and takes the chair nearest the sofa, Christy having left the inkstand there. He puts his hat on the floor beside him, and produces the will. Uncle William comes to the fire and stands on the hearth warming his coat tails, leaving Mrs William derelict near the door Uncle Titus, who is the lady's man of the family, rescues her by giving her his disengaged arm and bringing her to the sofa, where he sits down warmly between his own lady and his brother's Anderson hangs up his hat and waits for a word with Judith

JUDITH She will be here in a moment Ask them to wait [She taps at the bedroom door Receiving an answer from within, she opens it and passes through]

ANDERSON [taking his place at the table at the opposite end to Hawkins] Our poor afflicted sister will be with us in a moment Are we all here?

CHRISTY [at the house door, which he has just shut] All except Dick

The callousness with which Christy names the reprobate jars on the moral sense of the family Uncle William shakes his head slowly and repeatedly Mrs Titus catches her breath convulsively through her nose Her husband speaks

UNCLE TITUS Well, I hope he will have the grace not to come I hope so

The Dudgeons all murmur assent, except Christy, who goes to the window and posts himself there, looking out Hawkins smiles secretly as if he knew something that would change their tune if they knew it Anderson is uneasy the love of solemn family councils, especially funeral ones, is not in his nature Judith appears at the bedroom door

JUDITH [with gentle impressiveness] Friends, Mrs Dudgeon [She takes the chair from beside the fireplace, and places it for Mrs Dudgeon, who comes from the bedroom in black, with a clean handkerchief to her eyes All rise, except Essie Mrs Titus and Mrs William produce equally clean handkerchiefs and weep It is an affecting moment]

UNCLE WILLIAM Would it comfort you, sister, if we were to offer up a prayer?

UNCLE TITUS Or sing a hymn?

ANDERSON [rather hastily] I have been with our sister this morning already, friends In our hearts we ask a blessing

ALL [except Essie] Amen

They all sit down, except Judith, who stands behind Mrs Dudgeon's chair

JUDITH [to Essie] Essie did you say Amen?

ESSIE [scaredly] No

JUDITH Then say it, like a good girl

ESSIE Amen

UNCLE WILLIAM [encouragingly] That's right that's right We know who you are, but we are willing to be kind to you if you are a good girl and deserve it We are all equal before the Throne

This republican sentiment does not please the women, who are convinced that the Throne is precisely the place where their superiority, often questioned in this world, will be recognized and rewarded

CHRISTY [at the window] Heres Dick

Anderson and Hawkins look round sociably Essie, with a gleam of interest breaking through her misery, looks up Christy grins and gapes expectantly at the door The rest are petrified with the intensity of their sense of Virtue menaced with outrage by the approach of flaunting Vice The reprobate appears in the doornay, graced beyond his alleged merits by the morning sunlight He is certainly the best looking member of the family, but his expression is reckless and sardonic, his manner defiant and satirical, his dress picturesquely careless Only, his forehead and mouth betray an extraordinary steadfastness, and his eyes are the eyes of a fanatic

RICHARD [on the threshold, taking off his hat] Ladies and gentlemen your servant, your very humble servant [With this comprehensive insult, he throws his hat to Christy with a suddenness that makes him jump like a negligent ricket keeper, and comes into the middle of the room, where he turns and deliberately surveys the company] How happy you all look! how glad to see me! [He turns towards Mrs Dudgeon's chair, and his lip rolls up horribly from his dog tooth as he meets her look of undisguised hatred] Well, mother keeping up appearances as usual? that's right, that's right [Judith pointedly moves away from his neighborhood to the other side of the kitchen, holding her skirt instinctively as if to save it from contamination Uncle Titus promptly marks his approval of her action by rising from the sofa, and placing a chair for her to sit down upon] What! Uncle William! I havnt seen you since you gave up drinking [Poor Uncle William, shamed, would protest, but Richard claps him heartily on his shoulder, adding] you have given it up, havnt you? [releasing him with a playful push] of course you have quite right too you overdid it [He turns away from Uncle William and makes for the sofa] And now, where is that upright horsedealer Uncle Titus? Uncle Titus come forth [He comes upon him holding the chair as Judith sits down] As usual, looking after the ladies!

UNCLE TITUS [indignantly] Be ashamed of yourself, sir—

RICHARD [interrupting him and shaking his hand in spite of him] I am I am, but I am proud of my uncle—proud of all my relatives—[again surveying them] who could look at them and not be proud and joyful? [Uncle Titus, overborne, resumes his seat on the sofa] Ah, Mr Anderson, still at the good work, still shepherding them. Keep them up to the mark, minister, keep them up to the mark. Come! [with a spring he seats himself on the table and takes up the decanter] clink a glass with me, Pastor, for the sake of old times

ANDERSON You know, I think, Mr Dudgeon, that I do not drink before dinner

RICHARD You will, some day, Pastor. Uncle William used to drink before breakfast. Come it will give your sermons unction. [He smells the wine and makes a wry face] But do not begin on my mother's company sherry. I stole some when I was six years old, and I have been a temperate man ever since. [He puts the decanter down and changes the subject] So I hear you are married, Pastor, and that your wife has a most ungodly allowance of good looks

ANDERSON [quietly indicating Judith] Sir you are in the presence of my wife. [Judith rises and stands with stony propriety]

RICHARD [quickly slipping down from the table with instinctive good manners] Your servant, madam no offence. [He looks at her earnestly] You deserve your reputation, but I'm sorry to see by your expression that you're a good woman. [She looks shocked, and sits down amid a murmur of indignant sympathy from his relatives] Anderson, sensible enough to know that these demonstrations can only gratify and encourage a man who is deliberately trying to provoke them, remains perfectly unmoved. All the same, Pastor, I respect you more than I did before. By the way, did I hear, or did I not, that our late lamented Uncle Peter, though unmarried, was a father?

UNCLE TITUS He had only one irregular child, sir

RICHARD Only one! He thinks one a mere trifle! I blush for you, Uncle Titus

ANDERSON Mr Dudgeon you are in the presence of your mother and her grief

RICHARD It touches me profoundly, Pastor. By the way, what has become of the irregular child?

ANDERSON [pointing to Essie] There, sir, listening to you

RICHARD [shocked into sincerity] What! Why the devil didn't you tell me that before? Children suffer enough in this house without—[He hurries remorsefully to Essie] Come, little cousin! never mind me it was not meant to hurt you. [She looks up gratefully at him. Her tearstained face affects him violently, and he bursts out, in a transport of wrath] Who has been making her cry? Who has been ill-treating her? By God—

MRS DUDGEON [rising and confronting him] Silence your blasphemous tongue. I will bear no more of this. Leave my house

RICHARD How do you know it's your house until the will is read? [They look at one another sinks, checkmated, into her chair] Richard goes boldly up past Anderson to the window, where he takes the railed chair in his hand. Ladies and gentlemen as the eldest son of my late father, and the unworthy head of this household, I bid you welcome. By your leave, Minister Anderson by your leave, Lawyer Hawkins. The head of the table for the head of the family. [He places the chair at the head between the minister and the attorney, sits down a presidential air] We meet on a melancholy occasion a father dead! an uncle actually hanged, and probably damned. [He shakes his head deplorably] The relatives freeze with horror. That's right pull your longest faces. [his voice suddenly sweetens gravely as his glance lights on Essie] provided only there is hope in the eyes of the child. [Briskly] Now then, Lawyer Hawkins business, business. Get on with the will, man

TITUS Do not let yourself be ordered or hurried, Mr Hawkins

HAWKINS [very politely and willingly] Mr Dudgeon means no offence, I feel sure. I will not keep you one second, Mr Dudgeon. Just while I get my glasses—[he fumbles for them] The Dudgeons look at one another with mis-giving

RICHARD Aha! They notice your civility, Mr Hawkins. They are prepared for the worst. A glass of wine to clear your voice before you begin. [He pours out one for him and hands it, then pours one for himself]

HAWKINS Thank you, Mr Dudgeon. Your good health, sir

RICHARD Yours, sir. [With the glass half n ay]

to his lips he checks himself giving a dubious glance at the nine, and adds with quaint intensity] Will anyone oblige me with a glass of water?

Essie, who has been hanging on his every word and movement rises stealthily and slips out behind Mrs Dudgeon through the bedroom door, returning presently with a jug and going out of the house as quietly as possible

HAWKINS The will is not exactly in proper legal phraseology

RICHARD No my father died without the consolations of the law

HAWKINS. Good again, Mr Dudgeon, good again [Preparing to read] Are you ready, sir?

RICHARD Ready, ay ready For what we are about to receive may the Lord make us truly thankful Go ahead

HAWKINS [reading] "This is the last will and testament of me Timothy Dudgeon on my deathbed at Nevinstown on the road from Springtown to Websterbridge on this twenty-fourth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy seven I hereby revoke all former wills made by me and declare that I am of sound mind and know well what I am doing and that this is my real will according to my own wish and affections "

RICHARD [glancing at his mother] Aha!

HAWKINS [shaking his head] Bad phraseology, sir, wrong phraseology "I give and bequeath a hundred pounds to my younger son Christopher Dudgeon, fifty pounds to be paid to him on the day of his marriage to Sarah Wilkins if she will have him and ten pounds on the birth of each of his children up to the number of five."

RICHARD How if she wont have him?

CHRISTY She will if I have fifty pounds

RICHARD Good, my brother. Proceed

HAWKINS "I give and bequeath to my wife Annie Dudgeon, born Annie Primrose"—you see he did not know the law, Mr Dudgeon your mother was not born Annie she was christened so—"an annuity of fifty-two pounds a year for life [Mrs Dudgeon, with all eyes on her, holds herself convulsively rigid] to be paid out of the interest on her own money"—there's a way to put it, Mr Dudgeon! Her own money!

MRS DUDGEON A very good way to put God's truth It was every penny my own Fifty-two pounds a year!

HAWKINS "And I recommend her for her goodness and piety to the forgiving care of her children, having stood between them and her as far as I could to the best of my ability "

MRS DUDGEON And this is my reward! [Raging inwardly] You know what I think, Mr Anderson you know the word I gave to it.

ANDERSON It cannot be helped, Mrs Dudgeon We must take what comes to us [To Hawkins] Go on sir

HAWKINS "I give and bequeath my house at Websterbridge with the land belonging to it and all the rest of my property soever to my eldest son and heir, Richard Dudgeon "

RICHARD Oho! The fatted calf, Minister, the fatted calf

HAWKINS "On these conditions—"

RICHARD The devil! Are there conditions?

HAWKINS "To wit first, that he shall not let my brother Peter's natural child starve or be driven by want to an evil life "

RICHARD [emphatically, striking his fist on the table] Agreed.

Mrs Dudgeon, turning to look malignantly at Essie misses her and looks quickly round to see where she has moved to, then, seeing that she has left the room without leave, closes her lips vengefully

HAWKINS "Second that he shall be a good friend to my old horse Jim"—[again shaking his head] he should have written James, sir

RICHARD James shall live in clover Go on

HAWKINS —"and keep my deaf farm labourer Prodger Feston in his service "

RICHARD Prodger Feston shall get drunk every Saturday

HAWKINS "Third that he make Christy a present on his marriage out of the ornaments in the best room "

RICHARD [holding up the stuffed birds] Here you are, Christy

CHRISTY [disappointed] I'd rather have the china peacocks

RICHARD You shall have both [Christy is greatly pleased] Go on

HAWKINS "Fourthly and lastly, that he try to live at peace with his mother as far as she will consent to it "

RICHARD [dubiously] Hm! Anything more, Mr Hawkins?

HAWKINS [solemnly] "Finally I give and bequeath my soul into my Maker's hands, humbly asking forgiveness for all my sins and mistakes and hoping that He will so guide my son that it may not be said that I have done wrong in trusting to him rather than to others in the perplexity of my last hour in this strange place "

ANDERSON Amen

THE UNCLÉS AND AUNTS Amen

RICHARD My mother does not say Amen

MRS DUDGEON [rising, unable to give up her property without a struggle] Mr Hawkins is that a proper will? Remember, I have his rightful, legal will, drawn up by yourself, leaving all to me

HAWKINS This is a very wrongly and irregularly worded will, Mrs Dudgeon, though [turning politely to Richard] it contains in my judgment an excellent disposal of his property

ANDERSON [interposing before Mrs Dudgeon can retort] That is not what you are asked, Mr Hawkins Is it a legal will?

HAWKINS The courts will sustain it against the other

ANDERSON But why, if the other is more lawfully worded?

HAWKINS Because, sir, the courts will sustain the claim of a man—and that man the eldest son—against any woman, if they can I warned you, Mrs Dudgeon, when you got me to draw that other will, that it was not a wise will, and that though you might make him sign it, he would never be easy until he revoked it But you wouldn't take advice, and now Mr Richard is cock of the walk [He takes his hat from the floor, rises, and begins pocketing his papers and spectacles]

This is the signal for the breaking-up of the party Anderson takes his hat from the rack and joins Uncle William at the fire Titus fetches Judith her things from the rack The three on the sofa rise and chat with Hawkins Mrs Dudgeon, now an intruder in her own house, stands inert, crushed by the weight of the law on women, accepting it, as she has been trained to accept all monstrous calamities, as proofs of the greatness of the power that inflicts them, and of her own wormlike insignificance For at this time, remember, Mary Wollstonecraft is as yet only a girl of eighteen, and her Vindication of the Rights of Women is still fourteen years off Mrs Dudgeon is rescued from her apathy by Essie, who comes back with the jug full of water She is taking it to Richard when Mrs Dudgeon stops her

MRS DUDGEON [threatening her] Where have you been? [Essie, appalled, tries to answer, but cannot] How dare you go out by yourself after the orders I gave you?

ESSIE He asked for a drink—[she stops, her tongue cleaving to her palate with terror]

JUDITH [with gentler severity] Who asked for a drink? [Essie, speechless, points to Richard]

RICHARD What! I!

JUDITH [shocked] Oh Essie, Essie!

RICHARD I believe I did [He takes a glass and holds it to Essie to be filled Her hand shakes] What! afraid of me?

ESSIE [quickly] No I—[She pours out the water]

RICHARD [tasting it] Ah, you've been up the street to the market gate spring to get that [He takes a draught] Delicious! Thank you [Unfortunately at this moment he chances to catch sight of Judith's face, which expresses the most prudish disapproval of his evident attraction for Essie, who is devouring him with her grateful eyes His mocking expression returns instantly He puts down the glass, deliberately winds his arm round Essie's shoulders, and brings her into the middle of the company Mrs Dudgeon being in Essie's way as they come past the table, he says] By your leave, mother [and compels her to make way for them] What do they call you? Bessie?

ESSIE Essie

RICHARD Essie, to be sure Are you a good girl, Essie?

ESSIE [greatly disappointed that he, of all people, should begin at her in this way] Yes [She looks doubtfully at Judith] I think so I mean I—I hope so

RICHARD Essie did you ever hear of a person called the devil?

ANDERSON [revolled] Shame on you, sir, with a mere child—

RICHARD By your leave, Minister I do not interfere with your sermons do not you interrupt mine [To Essie] Do you know what they call me, Essie?

ESSIE Dick

RICHARD [amused patting her on the shoulder] Yes, Dick, but something else too They call me the Devil's Disciple

ESSIE Why do you let them?

RICHARD [seriously] Because it's true I was brought up in the other service, but I knew from the first that the Devil was my natural master and captain and friend I saw that he was in the right, and that the world cringed to his conqueror only through fear I prayed secretly to him, and he comforted me, and saved me from having my spirit broken in this house of children's tears I promised him my soul, and swore an oath that I would stand up for him in this world and stand by him in the next [Solemnly] That promise and that oath made a man of me From this day this house is his home. and no child shall cry in it this hearth is his altar and no soul shall ever cower over it in the dark evenings and be afraid Now [turning forcibly on the rest] which of you good men will take this child and rescue her from the house of the devil?

JUDITH [coming to Essie and throwing a protecting arm about her] I will You should be burnt alive

ESSIE But I dont want to [She shrinks back, leaving Richard and Judith face to face]

RICHARD [to Judith] Actually doesnt want to, most virtuous lady!

UNCLE TITUS Have a care, Richard Dudgeon The law—

RICHARD [turning threateningly on him] Have a care, you In an hour from this there will be no law here but martial law I passed the soldiers within six miles on my way here before noon Major Swindon's gallows for rebels will be up in the market place

ANDERSON [calmly] What have we to fear from that sir?

RICHARD More than you think. He hanged the wrong man at Springtown he thought Uncle Peter was respectable. because the Dudgeons had a good name But his next example will be the best man in the town to whom he can bring home a rebellious word Well, we're all rebels, and you know it

ALL THE MEN [except Anderson] No, no no!

RICHARD Yes you are You havnt damned King George up hill and down dale as I have, but youve prayed for his defeat. and you Anthony Anderson have conducted the service and sold your family bible to buy a pair of pistols They maynt hang me perhaps because the moral effect of the Devil's Disciple dancing on nothing wouldnt help them But a minister! [Judith, dismayed clings to Anderson] or a lawyer! [Hawkins smiles like a man able to take care of himself] or an upright horsedealer! [Uncle Titus snarls at him in rage and terror] or a reformed drunkard! [Uncle William, utterly unnerved, moans and robbles with fear] eh? Would that shew that King George meant business—ha?

ANDERSON [perfectly self-possessed] Come, my dear he is only trying to frighten you There is no danger [He takes her out of the house The rest crowd to the door to follow him except Essie, who remains near Richard]

RICHARD [boisterously derisive] Now then how many of you will stay with me run up the American flag on the devil's house, and make a fight for freedom? [They scramble out Christy among them, hustling one another in their haste] Ha ha! Long live the devil! [To Mrs Dudgeon, who is following them] What, mother! Are you off too?

MRS DUDGEON [deadly pale, with her hand on her heart as if she had received a deathblow] My curse on you! My dying curse! [She goes out]

RICHARD [calling after her] It will bring me luck Ha ha ha!

ESSIE [anxiously] Maynt I stay?

RICHARD [turning to her] What! Have they forgotten to save your soul in their anxiety about their own bodies? Oh yes you may stay [He turns excitedly away again and shakes his fist after them His left fist, also clenched hangs down Essie seizes it and kisses it her tears falling on it He starts and looks at it] Tears! The devil's baptism! [She falls on her knees sobbing He stoops goodnaturedly to raise her, saying] Oh yes, you may cry that way, Essie, if you like

ACT II

Minister Anderson's house is in the main street of Websterbridge not far from the town hall To the eye of the eighteenth century New Englander it is much grander than the plain farmhouse of the Dudgeons, but it is so plain itself that a modern house agent would let both at about the same rent The chief dwelling room has the same sort of kitchen fireplace, with boiler, toaster hanging on the bars movable iron griddle socketed to the hob hook above for roasting, and broad fender, on which stand a kettle and a plate of buttered toast The door, between the fireplace and the corner, has neither panels, fingerplates nor handles it is made of plain boards, and fastens with a latch The table is a kitchen table, with a treacle colored cover of American cloth, chapped at the corners by draping The tea service on it consists of two thick cups and saucers of the plainest ware with milk jug and bowl to match, each large enough to contain nearly a quart, on a black japanned tray, and, in the middle of the table, a wooden trencher with a big loaf upon it, and a square half pound block of butter in a crock The big oak press facing the fire from the opposite side of the room, is for use and storage, not for ornament, and the minister's house coat hangs on a peg from its door shewing that he is out, for when he is in it is his best coat that hangs there His big riding boots stand beside the press, evidently in their usual place, and rather proud of themselves. In fact, the evolution of the minister's kitchen, dining room and drawing room into three separate apartments has not yet taken place, and so, from the point of view of our pampered period, he is no better off than the Dudgeons.

But there is a difference, for all that. To begin with, Mrs Anderson is a pleasanter person to live than Mrs Dudgeon. To which Mrs Dudgeon would at once reply, with reason, that Mrs Anderson has no children to look after, no poultry, pigs nor cattle, a steady and sufficient income not directly dependent on harvests and prices at fairs, an affectionate husband who is a tower of strength to her in short, that life is as easy at the minister's house as it is hard at the farm. This is true, but to explain a fact is not to alter it, and however little credit Mrs Anderson may deserve for making her home happier, she has certainly succeeded in doing it. The outward and visible signs of her superior social pretensions are, a drugget on the floor, a plaster ceiling between the timbers, and chairs which, though not upholstered, are stained and polished. The fine arts are represented by a mezzotint portrait of some Presbyterian divine, a copperplate of Raphael's St Paul preaching at Athens, a rococo presentation clock on the mantelshelf, flanked by a couple of miniatures, a pair of crockery dogs with baskets in their mouths, and, at the corners, two large cornie shells. A pretty feature of the room is the low wide latticed window, nearly its whole width, with little red curtains running on a rod half way up it to serve as a blind. There is no sofa, but one of the seats, standing near the press, has a railed back and is long enough to accommodate two people easily. On the whole, it is rather the sort of room that the nineteenth century has ended in struggling to get back to under the leadership of Mr Philip Webb and his disciples in domestic architecture, though no genteel clergyman would have tolerated it fifty years ago.

The evening has closed in, and the room is dark except for the cosy firelight and the dim oil lamps seen through the window in the wet street, where there is a quiet, steady, warm, windless downpour of rain. As the town clock strikes the quarter, Judith comes in with a couple of candles in earthenware candlesticks, and sets them on the table. Her self-conscious airs of the morning are gone. She is anxious and frightened. She goes to the window and peers into the street. The first thing she sees there is her husband, hurrying home through the rain. She gives a little gasp of relief, not very far removed from a sob, and turns to the door. Anderson comes in, wrapped in a very wet cloak.

JUDITH [running to him] Oh, here you are at last, at last! [She attempts to embrace him]

ANDERSON [keeping her off] Take care, my love. I'm wet. Wait till I get my cloak off. [He places a chair with its back to the fire, hangs his cloak on it to dry, shakes the rain from his hat and puts it on the fender, and at last turns with his hands outstretched to Judith] Now! [She flies into his arms] I am not late, am I? The town clock struck the quarter as I came in at the front door. And the town clock is always fast.

JUDITH I'm sure it's slow this evening. I'm so glad you're back.

ANDERSON [taking her more closely in his arms] ANXIOUS, my dear?

JUDITH A little.

ANDERSON Why, you've been crying over now. [A bugle call is heard in the distance. She starts in terror and retreats to the long seat, listening.] What's that?

ANDERSON [following her tenderly to the seat and making her sit down with him] Only King George, my dear. He's returning to barracks, or having his roll called, or getting ready for tea, or booting or saddling or something. Soldiers don't ring the bell or call over the banisters when they want anything. They send a boy out with a bugle to disturb the whole town.

JUDITH Do you think there is really any danger?

ANDERSON Not the least in the world. You say that to comfort me, not because you believe it.

ANDERSON My dear, in this world there is always danger for those who are afraid of it. There's a danger that the house will catch fire in the night, but we shan't sleep any the less soundly for that.

JUDITH Yes, I know what you always say, and you're quite right. Oh, quite right. I know it. But—I suppose I'm not brave that all. My heart shrinks every time I think of the soldiers.

ANDERSON Never mind that, dear. Bravery is none the worse for costing a little pain.

JUDITH Yes, I suppose so. [Embracing him again] Oh how brave you are, my dear! [With tears in her eyes] Well, I'll be brave too. You shan't be ashamed of your wife.

ANDERSON That's right Now you make me happy. Well, well! [He rises and goes cheerily to the fire to dry his shoes] I called on Richard Dudgeon on my way back, but he wasn't in JUDITH [rising in consternation] You called on that man!

ANDERSON [reassuring her] Oh, nothing happened, dearie He was out

JUDITH [almost in tears, as if the visit were a personal humiliation to her] But why did you go there?

ANDERSON [gravely] Well, it is all the talk that Major Swindon is going to do what he did in Springtown—make an example of some notorious rebel, as he calls us He pounced on Peter Dudgeon as the worst character there, and it is the general belief that he will pounce on Richard as the worst here

JUDITH But Richard said—

ANDERSON [goodhumoredly cutting her short] Pooh! Richard said! He said what he thought would frighten you and frighten me, my dear He said what perhaps (God forgive him!) he would like to believe It's a terrible thing to think of what death must mean for a man like that I felt that I must warn him I left a message for him

JUDITH [querulously] What message?

ANDERSON Only that I should be glad to see him for a moment on a matter of importance to himself, and that if he would look in here when he was passing he would be welcome JUDITH [aghast] You asked that man to come here!

ANDERSON I did

JUDITH [sinking on the seat and clasping her hands] I hope he won't come! Oh, I pray that he may not come!

ANDERSON Why? Don't you want him to be warned?

JUDITH He must know his danger Oh, Tony, is it wrong to hate a blasphemer and a villain? I do hate him I can't get him out of my mind I know he will bring harm with him He insulted you he insulted me he insulted his mother

ANDERSON [quaintly] Well, dear, let's forgive him, and then it won't matter

JUDITH Oh, I know it's wrong to hate anybody, but—

ANDERSON [going over to her with humorous tenderness] Come, dear, you're not so wicked as you think The worst sin towards our fellow creatures is not to hate them, but to be indifferent to them, that's the essence of inhumanity After all, my dear, if you watch people carefully, you'll be surprised to find how like hate is to love [She starts, strangely touched—even appalled He is amused at her] Yes I'm quite in earnest Think of how some of our married friends worry one another, tax one another, are jealous of one another, can't bear to let one another out of sight for a day, are more like jailers and slave-owners than lovers Think of those very same people with their enemies, scrupulous, lofty, self-respecting, determined to be independent of one another, careful of how they speak of one another—pooh! haven't you often thought that if they only knew it, they were better friends to their enemies than to their own husbands and wives? Come depend on it, my dear, you are really fonder of Richard than you are of me, if you only knew it Eh!

JUDITH Oh, don't say that don't say that, Tony, even in jest You don't know what a horrible feeling it gives me

ANDERSON [laughing] Well, well never mind, pet He's a bad man, and you hate him as he deserves And you're going to make the tea, aren't you?

JUDITH [remorsefully] Oh yes, I forgot I've been keeping you waiting all this time [She goes to the fire and puts on the kettle]

ANDERSON [going to the press and taking his coat off] Have you stitched up the shoulder of my old coat?

JUDITH Yes, dear [She goes to the table, and sets about putting the tea into the teapot from the caddy]

ANDERSON [as he changes his coat for the older one hanging on the press, and replaces it by the one he has just taken off] Did anyone call when I was out?

JUDITH No, only— [Someone knocks at the door With a start which betrays her intense nervousness, she retreats to the further end of the table with the tea caddy and spoon in her hands exclaiming] Who's that?

ANDERSON [going to her and patting her encouragingly on the shoulder] All right, pet, all right He won't cat you, whoever he is [She tries to smile, and nearly makes herself cry He goes to the door and opens it Richard is there, without overcoat or cloak] You might have raised the latch and come in, Mr Dudgeon Nobody stands on much ceremony with us [Hospitably] Come in [Richard comes in care- lessly and stands at the table, looking round the room with a slight pucker of his nose at the mezzotinted divine on the wall Judith keeps her eyes on the tea caddy] Is it still raining? [He shuts the door]

RICHARD Raining like the very [his eye catches Judith's as she looks quickly and haughtily up]—I beg your pardon, but [shewing that his coat is wet] you see—!

ANDERSON Take it off, sir, and let it hang before the fire a while my wife will excuse your shirtsleeves Judith put in another spoonful of tea for Mr Dudgeon

RICHARD [eyeing him cynically] The magic of property, Pastor! Are even you civil to me now that I have succeeded to my father's estate?

Judith throws down the spoon indignantly

ANDERSON [quite unruffled, and helping Richard off with his coat] I think, sir, that since you accept my hospitality, you cannot have so bad an opinion of it Sit down [With the coat in his hand, he points to the railed seat Richard, in his shirtsleeves, looks at him half quarrelsome for a moment, then, with a nod, acknowledges that the minister has got the better of him, and sits down on the seat Anderson pushes his cloak into a heap on the seat of the chair at the fire, and hangs Richard's coat on the back in its place]

RICHARD I come, sir, on your own invitation You left word you had something important to tell me

ANDERSON I have a warning which it is my duty to give you

RICHARD [quickly rising] You want to preach to me Excuse me I prefer a walk in the rain [he makes for his coat]

ANDERSON [stopping him] Don't be alarmed, sir I am no great preacher You are quite safe [Richard smiles in spite of himself His glance softens he even makes a gesture of excuse Anderson, seeing that he has tamed him, now addresses him earnestly] Mr Dudgeon you are in danger in this town

RICHARD What danger?

ANDERSON Your uncle's danger Major Swindon's gallows

RICHARD It is you who are in danger I warned you—

ANDERSON [looking at him goodhumoredly but with a slight frown] Yes, Mr Dudgeon, but they do not think so in the town And even if I were in danger, I have duties here which I must not forsake But you are a free man Why should you run any risk?

RICHARD Do you think I should be any great loss, Minister?

ANDERSON I think that a man's life is worth saving, whoever it belongs to [Richard makes him an ironical bow Anderson returns the bow humorously] Come you'll have a cup of tea, to prevent you catching cold?

RICHARD I observe that Mrs Anderson is not quite so pressing as you are, Pastor!

JUDITH [almost stifled with resentment, which she has been expecting her husband to share and express for her at every insult of Richard's] You are welcome for my husband's sake [She brings the teapot to the fireplace and sets it on the hob]

RICHARD I know I am not welcome for my own, madam [He rises] But I think I will not break bread here, Minister

ANDERSON [cheerily] Give me a good reason for that

RICHARD Because there is something in you that I respect, and that makes me desire to have you for my enemy

ANDERSON That's well said On those terms, sir, I will accept your enmity on any man's Judith Mr Dudgeon will stay to tea Sit down it will take a few minutes to draw by the fire [Richard glances at him with a troubled face, then sits down with his head bent, to hide a convulsive swelling of his throat] I was just saying to my wife, Mr Dudgeon, that enmity—[She grasps his hand and looks imploringly at him, doing both with an intensity that checks him at once] Well, well, I mustn't tell you, I see, but it was nothing that need leave us worse friend—enemies, I mean Judith is a great enemy of yours

RICHARD If all my enemies were like Mrs Anderson, I should be the best Christian in America

ANDERSON [gratified, patting her hand] You hear that, Judith? Mr Dudgeon knows how to turn a compliment

The latch is lifted from without

JUDITH [startling] Who is that?

Christy comes in

CHRISTY [stopping and staring at Richard] Oh, are you here?

RICHARD Yes Begone, you fool Mrs Anderson doesn't want the whole family to tea at once

CHRISTY [coming further in] Mother's very ill

RICHARD Well, does she want to see me?

CHRISTY No

RICHARD I thought not

CHRISTY She wants to see the minister—at once

JUDITH [to Anderson] Oh, not before you've had some tea

ANDERSON I shall enjoy it more when I come back, dear [He is about to take up his cloak]

CHRISTY The rain's over

ANDERSON [dropping the cloak and picking up his hat from the fender] Where is your mother, Christy?

CHRISTY At Uncle Titus's

ANDERSON Have you fetched the doctor?

CHRISTY No she didn't tell me to

ANDERSON Go on there at once I'll overtake you on his doorstep [Christy turns to go] Wait a moment Your brother must be anxious to know the particulars

RICHARD Psha! not I he doesn't know, and I don't care [Violently] Be off, you oaf [Christy runs out Richard adds, a little shamefacedly] We shall know soon enough

ANDERSON Well, perhaps you will let me bring you the news myself Judith will you give Mr Dudgeon his tea, and keep him here until I return

JUDITH [white and trembling] Must I—

ANDERSON [taking her hands and interrupting her to cover her agitation] My dear I can depend on you?

JUDITH [with a piteous effort to be worthy of his trust] Yes

ANDERSON [pressing her hand against his cheek] You will not mind two old people like us Mr Dudgeon [Going] I shall not say good evening you will be here when I come back [He goes out]

They watch him pass the window, and then look at each other dumbly, quite disconcerted Richard, noting the quiver of her lips, is the first to pull himself together

RICHARD Mrs Anderson I am perfectly aware of the nature of your sentiments towards me I shall not intrude on you Good evening [Again he starts for the fireplace to get his coat]

JUDITH [getting between him and the coat] No, no Don't go please don't go

RICHARD [roughly] Why? You don't want me here

JUDITH Yes, I— [Wringing her hands in despair] Oh, if I tell you the truth, you will use it to torment me

RICHARD [indignantly] Torment! What right have you to say that? Do you expect me to stay after that?

JUDITH I want you to stay, but [suddenly raging at him like an angry child] it is not because I like you

RICHARD Indeed!

JUDITH Yes I had rather you did go than mistake me about that I hate and dread you, and my husband knows it If you are not here when he comes back, he will believe that I disobeyed him and drove you away

RICHARD [ironically] Whereas, of course, you have really been so kind and hospitable and charming to me that I only want to go away out of mere contrariness, eh?

Judith, unable to bear it, sinks on the chair and bursts into tears

RICHARD Stop, stop, stop, I tell you Don't do that [Putting his hand to his breast as if to a wound] He wrung my heart by being a man Need you tear it by being a woman? Has he not raised you above my insults, like himself? [She stops crying, and recovers herself somewhat, looking at him with a scared curiosity] There that's right [Sympathetically] You're better now, aren't you? [He puts his hand encouragingly on her shoulder She instantly rises haughtily, and stares at him defiantly He at once drops into his usual sardonic tone] Ah, that's better You are yourself again so is Richard. Well, shall we go to tea like a quiet respectable couple, and wait for your husband's return?

JUDITH [rather ashamed of herself] If you please I—I am sorry to have been so foolish [She stoops to take up the plate of toast from the fender]

RICHARD I am sorry, for your sake, that I am—what I am Allow me [He takes the plate from her and goes with it to the table]

JUDITH [following with the teapot] Will you sit down? [He sits down at the end of the table nearest the press There is a plate and knife laid there The other plate is laid near it but Judith stays at the opposite end of the table, next the fire, and takes her place there, drawing the tray towards her] Do you take sugar?

RICHARD No but plenty of milk Let me give you some toast [He puts some on the second plate, and hands it to her, with the knife The action shews quickly how well he knows that she has avoided her usual place so as to be as far from him as possible]

JUDITH [consciously] Thanks [She gives him his tea] Won't you help yourself?

RICHARD Thanks [He puts a piece of toast on his own plate, and she pours out tea for herself]
JUDITH [observing that he tastes nothing]
Dont you like it? You are not eating anything

RICHARD Neither are you
JUDITH [nervously] I never care much for my tea Please dont mind me

RICHARD [looking dreamily round] I am thinking It is all so strange to me I can see the beauty and peace of this home I think I have never been more at rest in my life than at this moment, and yet I know quite well I could never live here It's not in my nature, I suppose, to be domesticated But it's very beautiful it's almost holy [He muses a moment, and then laughs softly]

JUDITH [quickly] Why do you laugh?
RICHARD I was thinking that if any stranger came in here now, he would take us for man and wife

JUDITH [taking offence] You mean, I suppose, that you are more my age than he is

RICHARD [staring at this unexpected turn] I never thought of such a thing [Sardoniac again]
I see there is another side to domestic joy

JUDITH [angrily] I would rather have a husband whom everybody respects than—

RICHARD Than the devil's disciple You are right, but I daresay your love helps him to be a good man, just as your hate helps me to be a bad one

JUDITH My husband has been very good to you He has forgiven you for insulting him, and is trying to save you Can you not forgive him for being so much better than you are? How dare you belittle him by putting yourself in his place?

RICHARD Did I?

JUDITH Yes, you did You said that if anybody came in they would take us for man and— [She stops, terrorstricken, as a squad of soldiers tramps past the window] The English soldiers! Oh, what do they—

RICHARD [listening] Sh!

A VOICE [outside] Halt! Four outside two in with me

Judith half rises, listening and looking with dilated eyes at Richard, who takes up his cup prosaically, and is drinking his tea when the latch goes up with a sharp click, and an English sergeant walks into the room with two privates, who post themselves at the door He comes promptly to the table between them

THE SERGEANT Sorry to disturb you, mum Duty! Anthony Anderson I arrest you in King George's name as a rebel

JUDITH [pointing at Richard] But that is not— [He looks up quickly at her, with a face of iron] She stops her mouth hastily with the hand she has raised to indicate him, and stands staring affrightedly

THE SERGEANT Come, parson put your coat on and come along

RICHARD Yes I'll come [He rises and takes a step towards his own coat, then recollects himself, and, with his back to the sergeant, moves his gaze slowly round the room without turning his head until he sees Anderson's black coat hanging up on the press] He goes composedly to it, takes it down, and puts it on The idea of himself as a parson tickles him he looks down at the black sleeve on his arm, and then smiles slyly at Judith, whose white face shews him that what she is painfully struggling to grasp is not the humor of the situation but its horror He turns to the sergeant, who is approaching him with a pair of handcuffs hidden behind him, and says lightly Did you ever arrest a man of my cloth before, Sergeant?

THE SERGEANT [instinctively respectful, half to the black coat, half to Richard's good breeding] Well, no sir At least, only an army chaplain [Shewing the handcuffs] I'm sorry sir, but duty—

RICHARD Just so, Sergeant Well, I'm not ashamed of them thank you kindly for the apology [He holds out his hands]

SERGEANT [not availing himself of the offer] One gentleman to another, sir Wouldnt you like to say a word to your missis, sir, before you go?

RICHARD [smiling] Oh, we shall meet again before—eh? [meaning "before you hang me"]

SERGEANT [loudly, with ostentatious cheerfulness] Oh, of course, of course No call for the lady to distress herself Still— [in a lower voice, intended for Richard alone] your last chance, sir

They look at one another significantly for a moment Then Richard exhales a deep breath and turns towards Judith

RICHARD [very distinctly] My love [She looks at him, pitifully pale, and tries to answer, but cannot—tries also to come to him, but cannot trust herself to stand without the support of the table] This gallant gentleman is good enough to allow us a moment of leave-taking [The sergeant retires delicately and joins his men near] the door] He is trying to spare you the truth, but you had better know it. Are you listening to me? [She signifies assent] Do you understand that I am going to my death? [She signifies that she understands] Remember, you must find our friend who was with us just now. Do you understand? [She signifies yes] See that you get him safely out of harm's way. Don't for your life let him know of my danger, but if he finds it out, tell him that he cannot save me. They would hang him, and they would not spare me. And tell him that I am steadfast in my religion as he is in his, and that he may depend on me to the death. [He turns to go, and meets the eye of the sergeant, who looks a little suspicious. He considers a moment, and then, turning roguishly to Judith with something of a smile breaking through his earnestness, says] And now, my dear, I am afraid the sergeant will not believe that you love me like a wife unless you give one kiss before I go.

He approaches her and holds out his arms. She quits the table and almost falls into them.

JUDITH [the words choking her] I ought to— it's murder—

RICHARD No, only a kiss [softly to her] for his sake.

JUDITH I can't. You must—

RICHARD [folding her in his arms with an impulse of compassion for her distress] My poor girl!

Judith, with a sudden effort, throns her arms round him, kisses him, and swoons away, dropping from his arms to the ground as if the kiss had killed her.

RICHARD [going quickly to the sergeant] Now, Sergeant, quick, before she comes to. The handcuffs. [He puts out his hands]

SERGEANT [pocketing them] Never mind, sir. I'll trust you. You're a game one. You ought to a bin a soldier, sir. Between them two, please. [The soldiers place themselves one before Richard and one behind him. The sergeant opens the door]

RICHARD [taking a last look round him] Good-bye, wife, goodbye, home. Muffle the drums, and quick march!

*The sergeant signs to the leading soldier to march. They file out quickly. * * * * **
When Anderson returns from Mrs Dudgeon's he is astonished to find the room apparently empty and almost in darkness except for the glow from the fire, for one of the candles has burnt out, and the other is at its last flicker.

ANDERSON Why, what on earth—? [Calling] Judith, Judith! [He listens. There is no answer] Hm! [He goes to the cupboard, takes a candle from the drawer, lights it at the flicker of the expiring one on the table, and looks nonchalantly at the untasted meal by its light. Then he sticks it in the candlestick, takes off his hat, and scratches his head, much puzzled. This action causes him to look at the floor for the first time, and there he sees Judith lying motionless with her eyes closed. He runs to her and stoops beside her, lifting her head] Judith.

JUDITH [naking, for her swoon has passed into the sleep of exhaustion after suffering] Yes. Did you call? What's the matter?

ANDERSON I've just come in and found you lying here with the candles burnt out and the tea poured out and cold. What has happened?

JUDITH [still astray] I don't know. Have I been asleep? I suppose— [She stops blankly] I don't know.

ANDERSON [groaning] Heaven forgive me, I left you alone with that scoundrel. [Judith remembers. With an agonized cry, she clutches his shoulders and drags herself to her feet as he rises with her. He clasps her tenderly in his arms] My poor pet!

JUDITH [frantically clinging to him] What shall I do? Oh my God, what shall I do?

ANDERSON Never mind, never mind, my dearest dear. It was my fault. Come, you're safe now, and you're not hurt, are you? [He takes his arms from her to see whether she can stand] There, that's right, that's right. If only you are not hurt, nothing else matters.

JUDITH No, no, no. I'm not hurt.

ANDERSON Thank Heaven for that! Come now. [Leading her to the railed seat and making her sit down beside him] Sit down and rest. You can tell me about it tomorrow. Or [misunderstanding her distress] you shall not tell me at all if it worries you. There, there! [Cheerfully] I'll make you some fresh tea that will set you up again. [He goes to the table, and empties the teapot into the slop bowl]

JUDITH [in a strained tone] Tony.

ANDERSON Yes, dear?

JUDITH Do you think we are only in a dream now?

ANDERSON [glancing round at her for a moment with a pang of anxiety, though he goes on steadily and cheerfully putting fresh tea into the pot] Perhaps so, pet. But you may as well dream a cup of tea when you're about it.

JUDITH Oh stop, stop You dont know—
[Distracted, she buries her face in her knotted hands]

ANDERSON [breaking down and coming to her]
My dear, what is it? I cant bear it any longer you must tell me It was all my fault I was mad to trust him

JUDITH No dont say that You mustnt say that He—oh no, no I cant Tony dont speak to me Take my hands—both my hands [He takes them, nondering] Make me think of you, not of him Theres danger, frightful danger, but it is your danger, and I cant keep thinking of it I cant, I cant my mind goes back to his danger He must be saved—no you must be saved you, you, you [She springs up as if to do something or go somewhere, exclaiming] Oh, Heaven help me!

ANDERSON [keeping his seat and holding her hands with resolute composure] Calmly, calmly, my pet Youre quite distracted

JUDITH I may well be I dont know what to do I dont know what to do [Tearing her hands away] I must save him [Anderson rises in alarm as she runs wildly to the door It is opened in her face by Essie, who hurries in full of anxiety The surprise is so disagreeable to Judith that it brings her to her senses Her tone is sharp and angry as she demands] What do you want?

ESSIE I was to come to you

ANDERSON Who told you to?

ESSIE [staring at him, as if his presence astonished her] Are you here?

JUDITH Of course Dont be foolish, child

ANDERSON Gently, dearest youll frighten her [Going between them] Come here, Essie
[She comes to him] Who sent you?

ESSIE Dick He sent me word by a soldier
I was to come here at once and do whatever
Mrs Anderson told me

ANDERSON [enlightened] A soldier! Ah, I see it all now! They have arrested Richard [Judith makes a gesture of despair]

ESSIE No I asked the soldier Dick's safe
But the soldier said you had been taken

ANDERSON I! [Bewildered, he turns to Judith for an explanation]

JUDITH [coaxingly] All right, dear I understand [To Essie] Thank you, Essie, for coming, but I dont need you now You may go home

ESSIE [suspicious] Are you sure Dick has not been touched? Perhaps he told the soldier to say it was the minister [Anxiously] Mrs

Anderson do you think it can have been that?

ANDERSON Tell her the truth if it is so,
Judith She will learn it from the first neighbor she meets in the street [Judith turns away and covers her eyes with her hands]

ESSIE [naïvely] But what will they do to him? Oh, what will they do to him? Will they hang him? [Judith shudders convulsively, and throws herself into the chair in which Richard sat at the tea table]

ANDERSON [patting Essie's shoulder and trying to comfort her] I hope not I hope not Perhaps if youre very quiet and patient, we may be able to help him in some way

ESSIE Yes—help him—yes, yes, yes I'll be good

ANDERSON I must go to him at once, Judith JUDITH [springing up] Oh no You must go away—far away, to some place of safety

ANDERSON Pooh!

JUDITH [passionately] Do you want to kill me? Do you think I can bear to live for days and days with every knock at the door—every footstep—giving me a spasm of terror?
to lie awake for nights and nights in an agony of dread, listening for them to come and arrest you?

ANDERSON Do you think it would be better to know that I had run away from my post at the first sign of danger?

JUDITH [bitterly] Oh, you wont go I know it Youll stay, and I shall go mad

ANDERSON My dear, your duty—

JUDITH [fiercely] What do I care about my duty?

ANDERSON [shocked] Judith!

JUDITH I am doing my duty I am clinging to my duty My duty is to get you away, to save you, to leave him to his fate [Essie utters a cry of distress and sinks on the chair at the fire, sobbing silently] My instinct is the same as hers—to save him above all things, though it would be so much better for him to die! so much greater! But I know you will take your own way as he took it I have no power [She sits down sullenly on the railed seat] I'm only a woman I can do nothing but sit here and suffer Only, tell him I tried to save you—that I did my best to save you

ANDERSON My dear, I am afraid he will be thinking more of his own danger than of mine

JUDITH Stop, or I shall hate you

ANDERSON [remonstrating] Come, come,

THE COMPLETE PLAYS OF BERNARD SHAW

come! How am I to leave you if you talk like this? You are quite out of your senses [He turns to Essie] Essie

ESSIE [eagerly rising and drying her eyes] Yes?

ANDERSON Just wait outside a moment, like a good girl Mrs Anderson is not well [Essie looks doubtful] Never fear I'll come to you presently, and I'll go to Dick ESSIE You are sure you will go to him? [Whispering] You wont let her prevent you?

ANDERSON [smiling] No, no it's all right All right [She goes] Thats a good girl [He closes the door, and returns to Judith]

JUDITH [seated—rigid] You are going to your death

ANDERSON [quaintly] Then I shall go in my best coat, dear [He turns to the press, beginning to take off his coat] Where—? [He stares at the empty nail for a moment, then looks quickly round to the fire, strides across to it, and lifts Richard's coat] Why, my dear, it seems that he has gone in my best coat

JUDITH [still motionless] Yes

ANDERSON Did the soldiers make a mistake?

JUDITH Yes they made a mistake

ANDERSON He might have told them Poor fellow, he was too upset, I suppose

JUDITH Yes he might have told them So might I

ANDERSON Well, it's all very puzzling—almost funny It's curious how these little things strike us even in the most—[He breaks off and begins putting on Richard's coat] I'd better take him his own coat I know what he'll say—[imitating Richard's sardonic manner] "Anxious about my soul, Pastor, and also about your best coat" Eh?

JUDITH Yes, that is just what he will say to you [Vacantly] It doesnt matter I shall never see either of you again

ANDERSON [rallying her] Oh pooh, pooh, pooh! [He sits down beside her] Is this how you keep your promise that I shant be ashamed of my brave wife?

JUDITH No this is how I break it I cannot keep my promises to him why should I keep my promises to you?

ANDERSON Dont speak so strangely, my love It sounds insincere to me [She looks unutterable reproach at him] Yes, dear, nonsense is always insincere, and my dearest is talking nonsense Just nonsense [Her face darkens into dumb obstinacy She stares straight before her, and does not look at him again, absorbed in Richard's fate He scans her face, sees that his rallying has produced no effect, and gives it up, making no further effort to conceal his anxiety] I wish I knew what has frightened you so Was there a struggle? Did he fight?

JUDITH No He smiled

ANDERSON Did he realize his danger, do you think?

JUDITH He realized yours

ANDERSON Mine!

JUDITH [monotonously] He said "See that you get him safely out of harm's way" I promised I cant keep my promise He said, "Dont for your life let him know of my danger" Ive told you of it He said that if you found it out, you could not save him—that they will hang him and not spare you

ANDERSON [rising in generous indignation] And you think that I will let a man with that much good in him die like a dog, when a few words might make him die like a Christian I'm ashamed of you, Judith

JUDITH He will be steadfast in his religion as you are in yours, and you may depend on him to the death He said so

ANDERSON God forgive him! What else did he say?

JUDITH He said goodbye

ANDERSON [fidgeting nervously to and fro in great concern] Poor fellow, poor fellow! You said goodbye to him in all kindness and charity, Judith, I hope

JUDITH I kissed him

ANDERSON What! Judith!

JUDITH Are you angry?

ANDERSON No, no You were right you were right Poor fellow, poor fellow! [Greatly distressed] To be hanged like that at his age! And then did they take him away?

JUDITH [nearly] Then you were here thats the next thing I remember I suppose I fainted Now bid me goodbye, Tony Perhaps I shall faint again I wish I could die

ANDERSON No, no, my dear you must pull yourself together and be sensible I am in no danger—not the least in the world

JUDITH [solemnly] You are going to your death, Tony—your sure death, if God will let innocent men be murdered They will not let you see him they will arrest you the moment you give your name It was for you the soldiers came

ANDERSON [thunderstruck] For me!!! [His fists clench, his neck thickens, his face reddens, the fleshy purses under his eyes become injected with hot blood, the man of peace vanishes, transformed into a choleric and formidable man of war. Still, she does not come out of her absorption to look at him: her eyes are steadfast with a mechanical reflection of Richard's steadfastness]

JUDITH He took your place: he is dying to save you. That is why he went in your coat. That is why I kissed him.

ANDERSON [exploding] Blood an' owns! [His voice is rough and dominant, his gesture full of brute energy] Here! Essie, Essie!

ESSIE [running in] Yes.

ANDERSON [impetuously] Off with you as hard as you can run, to the inn. Tell them to saddle the fastest and strongest horse they have [Judith rises breathless, and stares at him incredulously].—the chestnut mare, if she's fresh—without a moment's delay. Go into the stable yard and tell the black man there that I'll give him a silver dollar if the horse is waiting for me when I come, and that I am close on your heels. Away with you [His energy sends Essie flying from the room. He pounces on his riding boots, rushes with them to the chair at the fire, and begins pulling them on].

JUDITH [unable to believe such a thing of him] You are not going to him!

ANDERSON [busy with the boots] Going to him! What good would that do? [Groaning to himself as he gets the first boot on with a wrench] I'll go to them, so I will [To Judith peremptorily] Get me the pistols. I want them. And money, money. I want money—all the money in the house [He stoops over the other boot, grumbling]. A great satisfaction it would be to him to have my company on the gallows [He pulls on the boot].

JUDITH You are deserting him, then?

ANDERSON Hold your tongue, woman, and get me the pistols [She goes to the press and takes from it a leather belt with two pistols, a powder horn, and a bag of bullets attached to it. She throws it on the table. Then she unlocks a drawer in the press and takes out a purse. Anderson grabs the belt and buckles it on, saying]. If they took him for me in my coat, perhaps they'll take me for him in his [Hitching the belt into its place]. Do I look like him?

JUDITH [turning with the purse in her hand] Horribly unlike him.

ANDERSON [snatching the purse from her and emptying it on the table] Hm! We shall see.

JUDITH [sitting down helplessly] Is it of any use to pray, do you think, Tony?

ANDERSON [counting the money] Pray! Can we pray Swindon's rope off Richard's neck?

JUDITH God may soften Major Swindon's heart.

ANDERSON [contemptuously — pocketing a handful of money] Let him, then. I am not God, and I must go to work another way [Judith gasps at the blasphemy. He thrums the purse on the table]. Keep that. I've taken 25 dollars.

JUDITH Have you forgotten even that you are a minister?

ANDERSON Minister be—faugh! My hat wheres my hat? [He snatches up hat and cloak, and puts both on in hot haste]. Now listen, you. If you can get a word with him by pretending you're his wife, tell him to hold his tongue until morning: that will give me all the start I need.

JUDITH [solemnly] You may depend on him to the death.

ANDERSON You're a fool, a fool, Judith [For a moment checking the torrent of his haste, and speaking with something of his old quiet and impressive conviction]. You don't know the man you're married to [Essie returns. He swoops at her at once]. Well, is the horse ready?

ESSIE [breathless] It will be ready when you come.

ANDERSON Good [He makes for the door].

JUDITH [rising and stretching out her arms after him involuntarily] Won't you say good-bye?

ANDERSON And waste another half minute! Psha! [He rushes out like an avalanche].

ESSIE [hurrying to Judith] He has gone to save Richard, hasn't he?

JUDITH To save Richard! No. Richard has saved him. He has gone to save himself. Richard must die.

Essie screams with terror and falls on her knees, hiding her face. Judith, without heeding her, looks rigidly straight in front of her, at the vision of Richard, dying.

ACT III

Early next morning the sergeant, at the British headquarters in the Town Hall, unlocks the door of a little empty panelled waiting room, and invites Judith to enter. She has had a bad night, probably a rather delirious one, for even in the reality of the raw morning, her fixed gaze comes back at moments when her attention is not strongly held.

The sergeant considers that her feelings do her credit, and is sympathetic in an encouraging military way Being a fine figure of a man, vain of his uniform and of his rank, he feels specially qualified, in a respectful way, to console her

SERGEANT You can have a quiet word with him here, mum

JUDITH Shall I have long to wait?

SERGEANT No, mum, not a minute We kept him in the Bridewell for the night, and he's just been brought over here for the court martial Don't fret, mum he slept like a child, and has made a rare good breakfast

JUDITH [incredulously] He is in good spirits!

SERGEANT Tip top, mum The chaplain looked in to see him last night, and he won seventeen shillings off him at spoil five He spent it among us like the gentleman he is Duty's duty, mum, of course, but you're among friends here [The tramp of a couple of soldiers is heard approaching] There I think he's coming [Richard comes in, without a sign of care or captivity in his bearing The sergeant nods to the two soldiers, and shews them the key of the room in his hand They withdraw] Your good lady, sir

RICHARD [going to her] What! My wife My adored one [He takes her hand and kisses it with a perverse, raffish gallantry] How long do you allow a brokenhearted husband for leave-taking, Sergeant?

SERGEANT As long as we can, sir We shall not disturb you till the court sits

RICHARD But it has struck the hour

SERGEANT So it has, sir, but there's a delay General Burgoyne's just arrived—Gentlemanly Johnny we call him, sir—and he won't have done finding fault with everything this side of half past. I know him, sir I served with him in Portugal You may count on twenty minutes, sir, and by your leave I won't waste any more of them [He goes out, locking the door Richard immediately drops his raffish manner and turns to Judith with considerate sincerity]

RICHARD Mrs Anderson this visit is very kind of you And how are you after last night? I had to leave you before you recovered, but I sent word to Essie to go and look after you Did she understand the message?

JUDITH [breathless and urgent] Oh, don't think of me I haven't come here to talk about myself Are they going to—to— [meaning "to hang you"]

RICHARD [humorously] At noon, punctually

At least, that was when they disposed of Uncle Peter [She shudders] Is your husband safe? Is he on the wing?

JUDITH He is no longer my husband

RICHARD [opening his eyes wide] Eh?

JUDITH I disobeyed you I told him everything I expected him to come here and save you I wanted him to come here and save you He ran away instead

RICHARD Well, that's what I meant him to do What good would his staying have done? They'd only have hanged us both JUDITH [with reproachful earnestness] Richard Dudgeon on your honor, what would you have done in his place?

RICHARD Exactly what he has done, of course

JUDITH Oh, why will you not be simple with me—honest and straightforward? If you are so selfish as that, why did you let them take you last night?

RICHARD [gaily] Upon my life, Mrs Anderson, I don't know. I've been asking myself that question ever since, and I can find no manner of reason for acting as I did

JUDITH You know you did it for his sake, believing he was a more worthy man than yourself

RICHARD [laughing] Oho! No that's a very pretty reason, I must say, but I'm not so modest as that No it wasn't for his sake

JUDITH [after a pause, during which she looks shamefacedly at him, blushing painfully] Was it for my sake?

RICHARD [gallantly] Well, you had a hand in it It must have been a little for your sake You let them take me, at all events

JUDITH Oh, do you think I have not been telling myself that all night? Your death will be at my door [Impulsively, she gives him her hand, and adds, with intense earnestness] If I could save you as you saved him, I would do it, no matter how cruel the death was

RICHARD [holding her hand and smiling, but keeping her almost at arms length] I am very sure I shouldn't let you

JUDITH Don't you see that I can save you?

RICHARD How? By changing clothes with me, eh?

JUDITH [disengaging her hand to touch his lips with it] Don't [meaning "Don't jest"] No by telling the Court who you really are

RICHARD [frowning] No use they wouldn't spare me, and it would spoil half his chance of escaping They are determined to cow us by making an example of somebody on that gallows today Well, let us cow them by showing that we can stand by one another to the death That is the only force that can send Burgoyne back across the Atlantic and make America a nation

JUDITH [impatently] Oh, what does all that matter?

RICHARD [laughing] True what does it matter? what does anything matter? You see, men have these strange notions, Mrs Anderson, and women see the folly of them

JUDITH Women have to lose those they love through them

RICHARD They can easily get fresh lovers

JUDITH [revolted] Oh! [Vehemently] Do you realize that you are going to kill yourself?

RICHARD The only man I have any right to kill, Mrs Anderson Dont be concerned no woman will lose her lover through my death [Smiling] Bless you, nobody cares for me Have you heard that my mother is dead?

JUDITH Dead!

RICHARD Of heart disease—in the night Her last word to me was her curse I dont think I could have borne her blessing My other relatives will not grieve much on my account Essie will cry for a day or two, but I have provided for her I made my own will last night

JUDITH [stony, after a moment's silence] And I!

RICHARD [surprised] You?

JUDITH Yes, I Am I not to care at all?

RICHARD [gaily and bluntly] Not a scrap Oh, you expressed your feelings towards me very frankly yesterday What happened may have softened you for the moment, but believe me, Mrs Anderson, you dont like a bone in my skin or a hair on my head I shall be as good a riddance at 12 today as I should have been at 12 yesterday

JUDITH [her voice trembling] What can I do to shew you that you are mistaken?

RICHARD Dont trouble I'll give you credit for liking me a little better than you did All I say is that my death will not break your heart

JUDITH [almost in a whisper] How do you know? [She puts her hands on his shoulders and looks intently at him]

RICHARD [amazed—divining the truth] Mrs Anderson! [The bell of the town clock strikes the quarter He collects himself, and removes her hands, saying rather coldly] Excuse me they will be here for me presently It is too late JUDITH It is not too late Call me as witness they will never kill you when they know how heroically you have acted

RICHARD [with some scorn] Indeed! But if I dont go through with it, where will the heroism be? I shall simply have tricked them, and theyll hang me for that like a dog Serve me right too!

JUDITH [mildly] Oh, I believe you want to die

RICHARD [obstinately] No I dont

JUDITH Then why not try to save yourself? I implore you—listen You said just now that you saved him for my sake—yes [clutching him as he recoils with a gesture of denial] a little for my sake Well, save yourself for my sake And I will go with you to the end of the world

RICHARD [taking her by the wrists and holding her a little way from him, looking steadily at her] Judith

JUDITH [breathless—delighted at the name] Yes

RICHARD If I said—to please you—that I did what I did ever so little for your sake, I lied as men always lie to women You know how much I have lived with worthless men—aye, and worthless women too Well, they could all rise to some sort of goodness and kindness when they were in love [the word love comes from him with true Puritan scorn] That has taught me to set very little store by the goodness that only comes out red hot What I did last night, I did in cold blood, caring not half so much for your husband, or [ruthlessly] for you [she droops, stricken] as I do for myself I had no motive and no interest all I can tell you is that when it came to the point whether I would take my neck out of the noose and put another man's into it, I could not do it I dont know why not I see myself as a fool for my pains, but I could not and I cannot I have been brought up standing by the law of my own nature, and I may not go against it, gallows or no gallows [She has slowly raised her head and is now looking full at him] I should have done the same for any other man in the town, or any other man's wife [Releasing her] Do you understand that?

JUDITH Yes you mean that you do not love me

RICHARD [revolted—with fierce contempt] Is that all it means to you?

JUDITH What more—what worse—can it mean to me? [The sergeant knocks The blond on the door jars on her heart] Oh, one moment more [She throws herself on her knees] I pray to you—

RICHARD Hush! [Calling] Come in [The sergeant unlocks the door and opens it The guard is with him]

SERGEANT [coming in] Time's up, sir

RICHARD Quite ready, Sergeant Now, my dear [He attempts to raise her]

JUDITH [clinging to him] Only one thing more—I entreat I implore you Let me be present in the court I have seen Major Swindon he said I should be allowed if you asked it You will ask it. It is my last request I shall never ask you anything again [She clasps his knee] I beg and pray it of you

RICHARD If I do, will you be silent?

JUDITH Yes

RICHARD You will keep faith?

JUDITH I will keep— [She breaks down, sobbing]

RICHARD [taking her arm to lift her] Just—her other arm Sergeant

They go out, she sobbing convulsively, supported by the two men

Meanwhile the Council Chamber is ready for the court martial It is a large, lofty room, with a chair of state in the middle under a tall canopy with a gilt crown, and maroon curtains with the royal monogram G R In front of the chair is a table, also draped in maroon, with a bell a heavy inkstand and writing materials on it Several chairs are set at the table The door is at the right hand of the occupant of the chair of state when it has an occupant at present it is empty Major Swindon, a pale sandy-haired, very conscientious looking man of about 45, sits at the end of the table with his back to the door writing He is alone until the sergeant announces the General in a subdued manner which suggests that Gentlemen Johnny has been making his presence felt rather heavily

SERGEANT The General sir

Swindon rises hastily The general comes in the sergeant goes out General Burgoyne is 55, and very well preserved He is a man of fashion, gallant enough to have made a distinguished marriage by an elopement, witty enough to write successful comedies, aristocratically-connected enough to have had opportunities of high military distinction His eyes large brilliant, apprehensive, and intelligent, are his most remarkable feature without them his fine nose and small mouth would suggest rather more fastidiousness and less force than go to the making of a first rate general Just now the eyes are angry and tragic, and the mouth and nostrils tense

BURGOYNE Major Swindon, I presume

SWINDON Yes General Burgoyne, if I mistake not [They bow to one another ceremoniously] I am glad to have the support of your presence this morning It is not particularly lively business, hanging this poor devil of a minister

BURGOYNE [throning himself into Swindon's chair] No, sir, it is not It is making too much of the fellow to execute him what more could you have done if he had been a member of the Church of England? Martyrdom, sir, is what these people like it is the only way in which a man can become famous without ability However, you have committed us to hanging him, and the sooner he is hanged the better

SWINDON We have arranged it for 12 o'clock Nothing remains to be done except to try him

BURGOYNE [looking at him with suppressed anger] Nothing—except to save your own necks, perhaps Have you heard the news from Springtown?

SWINDON Nothing special The latest reports are satisfactory

BURGOYNE [rising in amazement] Satisfactory, sir! Satisfactory! [He stares at him for a moment, and then adds, with grim intensity] I am glad you take that view of them

SWINDON [puzzled] Do I understand that in your opinion—

BURGOYNE I do not express my opinion I never stoop to that habit of profane language which unfortunately coarsens our profession If I did, sir, perhaps I should be able to express my opinion of the news from Springtown—the news which you [severely] have apparently not heard How soon do you get news from your supporters here?—in the course of a month, eh?

SWINDON [turning sulky] I suppose the reports have been taken to you sir, instead of to me Is there anything serious?

BURGOYNE [taking a report from his pocket and holding it up] Springtown's in the hands of the rebels [He throws the report on the table]

SWINDON [aghast] Since yesterday!

BURGOYNE Since two o'clock this morning

Perhaps we shall be in their hands before two o'clock tomorrow morning. Have you thought of that?

SWINDON [confidently] As to that, General, the British soldier will give a good account of himself.

BURGOYNE [bitterly] And therefore, I suppose, sir, the British officer need not know his business: the British soldier will get him out of all his blunders with the bayonet. In future, sir, I must ask you to be a little less generous with the blood of your men, and a little more generous with your own brains.

SWINDON I am sorry I cannot pretend to your intellectual eminence, sir. I can only do my best, and rely on the devotion of my countrymen.

BURGOYNE [suddenly becoming suavely sarcastic] May I ask are you writing a melodrama, Major Swindon?

SWINDON [flushing] No, sir.

BURGOYNE What a pity! What a pity! [Dropping his sarcastic tone and facing him suddenly and seriously] Do you at all realize, sir, that we have nothing standing between us and destruction but our own bluff and the sheepishness of these colonists? They are men of the same English stock as ourselves: six to one of us [repeating it emphatically] six to one, sir, and nearly half our troops are Hessians, Brunswickers, German dragoons, and Indians with scalping knives. These are the countrymen on whose devotion you rely! Suppose the colonists find a leader! Suppose the news from Springtown should turn out to mean that they have already found a leader! What shall we do then? Eh?

SWINDON [sullenly] Our duty, sir, I presume.

BURGOYNE [again sarcastic—giving him up as a fool] Quite so, quite so. Thank you, Major Swindon, thank you. Now you've settled the question, sir—thrown a flood of light on the situation. What a comfort to me to feel that I have at my side so devoted and able an officer to support me in this emergency! I think, sir, it will probably relieve both our feelings if we proceed to hang this dissenter without further delay [he strikes the bell] especially as I am debarred by my principles from the customary military vent for my feelings [The sergeant appears] Bring your man in.

SERGEANT Yes, sir.

BURGOYNE And mention to any officer you may meet that the court cannot wait any longer for him.

SWINDON [keeping his temper with difficulty] The staff is perfectly ready, sir. They have been waiting your convenience for fully half an hour. Perfectly ready, sir.

BURGOYNE [blandly] So am I. [Several officers come in and take their seats. One of them sits at the end of the table furthest from the door, and acts throughout as clerk of the court, making notes of the proceedings. The uniforms are those of the 9th, 20th, 21st, 24th, 47th, 53rd, and 62nd British Infantry. One officer is a Major General of the Royal Artillery. There are also German officers of the Hessian Rifles, and of German dragoon and Brunswicker regiments.] Oh, good morning, gentlemen. Sorry to disturb you, I am sure. Very good of you to spare us a few moments.

SWINDON Will you preside, sir?

BURGOYNE [becoming additionally polished, lofty, sarcastic, and urbane now that he is in public] No, sir. I feel my own deficiencies too keenly to presume so far. If you will kindly allow me, I will sit at the feet of Gamahel. [He takes the chair at the end of the table next the door, and motions Swindon to the chair of state, waiting for him to be seated before sitting down himself.]

SWINDON [greatly annoyed] As you please, sir. I am only trying to do my duty under excessively trying circumstances. [He takes his place in the chair of state.]

Burgoynes, relaxing his studied demeanor for the moment, sits down and begins to read the report with knitted brows and careworn looks, reflecting on his desperate situation and Swindon's uselessness. Richard is brought in. Judith walks beside him. Two soldiers precede and two follow him, with the sergeant in command. They cross the room to the wall opposite the door, but when Richard has just passed before the chair of state the sergeant stops him with a touch on the arm, and posts himself behind him, at his elbow. Judith stands timidly at the wall. The four soldiers place themselves in a squad near her.

BURGOYNE [looking up and seeing Judith] Who is that woman?

SERGEANT Prisoner's wife, sir.

SWINDON [nervously] She begged me to allow her to be present, and I thought—

BURGOYNE [completing the sentence for him ironically] You thought it would be a pleasure for her. Quite so, quite so. [Blandly] Give the lady a chair, and make her thoroughly comfortable.

The sergeant fetches a chair and places it near Richard

JUDITH Thank you, sir [She sits down after an unrestricted curtsy to Burgoyne which he acknowledges by a dignified bend of his head]

SWINDON [to Richard sharply] Your name, sir?

RICHARD [affable, but obstinate] Come you dont mean to say that youve brought me here without knowing who I am?

SWINDON As a matter of form, sir, give your name.

RICHARD As a matter of form then, my name is Anthony Anderson, Presbyterian minister in this town

BURGOYNE [interested] Indeed! Pray, Mr Anderson, what do you gentlemen believe?

RICHARD I shall be happy to explain if time is allowed me I cannot undertake to complete your conversion in less than a fortnight.

SWINDON [snubbing him] We are not here to discuss your views

BURGOYNE [with an elaborate bow to the unfortunate Swindon] I stand rebuked

SWINDON [embarrassed] Oh, not you, I as—

BURGOYNE Dont mention it [To Richard very politely] Any political views, Mr Anderson?

RICHARD I understand that that is just what we are here to find out.

SWINDON [severely] Do you mean to deny that you are a rebel?

RICHARD I am an American, sir

SWINDON What do you expect me to think of that speech, Mr Anderson?

RICHARD I never expect a soldier to think, sir

Burgoyne is boundlessly delighted by this retort which almost reconciles him to the loss of America

SWINDON [whitering with anger] I advise you not to be insolent, prisoner

RICHARD You cant help yourself, General When you make up your mind to hang a man you put yourself at a disadvantage with him Why should I be civil to you? I may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb

SWINDON You have no right to assume that the court has made up its mind without a fair trial. And you will please not address me as General I am Major Swindon

RICHARD A thousand pardons I thought I had the honor of addressing Gentlemanly Johnny

Sensation among the officers The sergeant has a narrow escape from a guffaw

BURGOYNE [with extreme suavity] I believe I am Gentlemanly Johnny sir, at your service My more intimate friends call me General Burgoyne [Richard bows with perfect politeness] You will understand, sir, I hope since you seem to be a gentleman and a man of some spirit in spite of your calling, that if we should have the misfortune to hang you, we shall do so as a mere matter of political necessity and military duty, without any personal ill-feeling

RICHARD Oh, quite so That makes all the difference in the world, of course

They all smile in spite of themselves, and some of the younger officers burst out laughing

JUDITH [her dread and horror deepening at every one of these jests and compliments] How can you?

RICHARD You promised to be silent

BURGOYNE [to Judith with studied courtesy] Believe me, Madam, your husband is placing us under the greatest obligation by taking this very disagreeable business so thoroughly in the spirit of a gentleman Sergeant give Mr Anderson a chair [The sergeant does so Richard sits down] Now, Major Swindon we are waiting for you.

SWINDON You are aware I presume Mr Anderson, of your obligations as a subject of His Majesty King George the Third

RICHARD I am aware, sir, that His Majesty King George the Third is about to hang me because I object to Lord North's robbing me

SWINDON That is a treasonable speech, sir

RICHARD [briefly] Yes I meant it to be

BURGOYNE [strongly deprecating this line of deference, but still polite] Dont you think, Mr Anderson, that this is rather—if you will excuse the word—a vulgar line to take? Why should you cry out robbery because of a stamp duty and a tea duty and so forth? After all, it is the essence of your position as a gentleman that you pay with a good grace

RICHARD It is not the money, General But to be swindled by a pig-headed lunatic like King George—

SWINDON [scandalized] Chut, sir—silence!

SERGEANT [in stentorian tones greatly shocked] Silence!

BURGOYNE [unruffled] Ah, that is another point of view My position does not allow of my going into that, except in private. But [shrugging his shoulders] of course, Mr Anderson, if you are determined to be hanged [Judith flinches] there's nothing more to be said. An unusual taste! however [with a final shrug].—

SWINDON [To Burgoyne] Shall we call witnesses?

RICHARD What need is there of witnesses? If the townspeople here had listened to me, you would have found the streets barricaded, the houses loopholed, and the people in arms to hold the town against you to the last man. But you arrived, unfortunately, before we had got out of the talking stage, and then it was too late.

SWINDON [severely] Well, sir, we shall teach you and your townspeople a lesson they will not forget. Have you anything more to say?

RICHARD I think you might have the decency to treat me as a prisoner of war, and shoot me like a man instead of hanging me like a dog.

BURGOYNE [sympathetically] Now there, Mr Anderson, you talk like a civilian, if you will excuse my saying so. Have you any idea of the average marksmanship of the army of His Majesty King George the Third? If we make you up a firing party, what will happen? Half of them will miss you, the rest will make a mess of the business and leave you to the provo-marshal's pistol. Whereas we can hang you in a perfectly workmanlike and agreeable way [Kindly] Let me persuade you to be hanged, Mr Anderson?

JUDITH [sick with horror] My God!

RICHARD [To Judith] Your promise! [To Burgoyne] Thank you, General, that view of the case did not occur to me before. To oblige you, I withdraw my objection to the rope. Hang me, by all means.

BURGOYNE [smoothly] Will 12 o'clock suit you, Mr Anderson?

RICHARD I shall be at your disposal then, General.

BURGOYNE [rising] Nothing more to be said, gentlemen [They all rise].

JUDITH [rushing to the table] Oh, you are not going to murder a man like that, without a proper trial—without thinking of what you are doing—without—[she cannot find words].

RICHARD Is this how you keep your promise?

JUDITH If I am not to speak, you must defend yourself, save yourself, tell them the truth.

RICHARD [worriedly] I have told them truth enough to hang me ten times over. If you say another word you will risk other lives, but you will not save mine.

BURGOYNE My good lady, our only desire is to save unpleasantness. What satisfaction would it give you to have a solemn fuss made, with my friend Swindon in a black cap and so forth? I am sure we are greatly indebted to the admirable tact and gentlemanly feeling shewn by your husband.

JUDITH [throwing the words in his face] Oh, you are mad. Is it nothing to you what wicked thing you do if only you do it like a gentleman? Is it nothing to you whether you are a murderer or not, if only you murder in a red coat? [Desperately] You shall not hang him that man is not my husband.

The officers look at one another, and whisper some of the Germans asking their neighbors to explain what the woman had said. Burgoyne, who has been visibly shaken by Judith's reproach, recovers himself promptly at this new development. Richard meanwhile raises his voice above the buzz.

RICHARD I appeal to you, gentlemen, to put an end to this. She will not believe that she cannot save me. Break up the court.

BURGOYNE [in a voice so quiet and firm that it restores silence at once] One moment, Mr Anderson. One moment, gentlemen [He resumes his seat. Swindon and the officers follow his example]. Let me understand you clearly, madam. Do you mean that this gentleman is not your husband, or merely—I wish to put this with all delicacy—that you are not his wife?

JUDITH I don't know what you mean, I say that he is not my husband—that my husband has escaped. This man took his place to save him. Ask anyone in the town—send out into the street for the first person you find there, and bring him in as a witness. He will tell you that the prisoner is not Anthony Anderson.

BURGOYNE [quietly, as before] Sergeant

SERGEANT Yes, sir.

BURGOYNE Go out into the street and bring in the first townsman you see there.

SERGEANT [making for the door] Yes, sir.

BURGOYNE [as the sergeant passes] The first clean, sober townsman you see.

SERGEANT Yes, sir [He goes out].

BURGOYNE Sit down, Mr Anderson—if I may call you so for the present [Richard sits].

The sergeant fetches a chair and places it near Richard

JUDITH Thank you, sir [She sits down after an awestricken curtsy to Burgoyne, which he acknowledges by a dignified bend of his head]

SWINDON [to Richard, sharply] Your name, sir?

down] Sit down, madam, whilst we wait
Give the lady a newspaper

RICHARD [indignantly] Shame!

BURGOYNE [keenly, with a half smile] If you are not her husband, sir the case is not a serious one—for her [Richard bites his lip, silenced]

JUDITH [to Richard as she returns to her seat] I couldn't help it [He shakes his head She sits down]

BURGOYNE You will understand of course, Mr Anderson, that you must not build on this little incident We are bound to make an example of somebody

RICHARD I quite understand I suppose there's no use in my explaining

BURGOYNE I think we should prefer independent testimony, if you don't mind

The sergeant, with a packet of papers in his hand, returns conducting Christy, who is much scared

SERGEANT [giving Burgoyne the packet] Dispatches, sir Delivered by a corporal of the 33rd Dead beat with hard riding, sir

Burgoyne opens the dispatches, and presently becomes absorbed in them They are so serious as to take his attention completely from the court martial

THE SERGEANT [to Christy] Now then Attention and take your hat off [He posts himself in charge of Christy who stands on Burgoyne's side of the court]

RICHARD [in his usual bullying tone to Christy] Don't be frightened, you fool, you're only wanted as a witness They're not going to hang you

SWINDON What's your name?

CHRISTY. Christy

RICHARD [impatiently] Christopher Dudgeon, you blatant idiot Give your full name

SWINDON Be silent, prisoner You must not prompt the witness

RICHARD Very well But I warn you you'll get nothing out of him unless you shake it out of him He has been too well brought up by a pious mother to have any sense or manhood left in him

BURGOYNE [springing up and speaking to the sergeant in a startling voice] Where is the man who brought these?

SERGEANT In the guard-room, sir

Burgoyne goes out with a haste that sets the officers exchanging looks

SWINDON [to Christy] Do you know Anthony Anderson, the Presbyterian minister?

CHRISTY Of course I do [implying that Swindon must be an ass not to know it]

SWINDON Is he here?

CHRISTY [staring round] I don't know

SWINDON Do you see him?

CHRISTY No

SWINDON You seem to know the prisoner?

CHRISTY Do you mean Dick?

SWINDON Which is Dick?

CHRISTY [pointing to Richard] Him

SWINDON What is his name?

CHRISTY Dick

RICHARD Answer properly, you jumping jackass What do they know about Dick?

CHRISTY Well, you are Dick, ain't you? What am I to say?

SWINDON Address me, sir, and do you, prisoner, be silent Tell us who the prisoner is

CHRISTY. He's my brother Dick—Richard—Richard Dudgeon

SWINDON Your brother!

CHRISTY Yes

SWINDON You are sure he is not Anderson

CHRISTY Who?

RICHARD [exasperatedly] Me, me, me, you—

SWINDON Silence, sir

SERGEANT [shouting] Silence

RICHARD [impatiently] Yah! [To Christy] He wants to know am I Minister Anderson Tell him, and stop grinning like a zany

CHRISTY [grinning more than ever] You Pastor Anderson! [To Swindon] Why, Mr Anderson's a minister—a very good man, and Dick's a bad character the respectable people won't speak to him He's the bad brother I'm the good one [The officers laugh outright The soldiers grin]

SWINDON Who arrested this man?

SERGEANT I did, sir, I found him in the minister's house, sitting at tea with the lady with his coat off, quite at home If he isn't married to her, he ought to be

SWINDON Did he answer to the minister's name?

SERGEANT Yes, sir, but not to a minister's nature You ask the chaplain, sir.

SWINDON [to Richard, threateningly] So, sir, you have attempted to cheat us And your name is Richard Dudgeon?

RICHARD You've found it out at last, have you?

SWINDON Dudgeon is a name well known to us, eh?

RICHARD Yes Peter Dudgeon, whom you murdered, was my uncle

SWINDON Hm! [He compresses his lips, and looks at Richard with vindictive gravity]
CHRISTY Are they going to hang you, Dick?

RICHARD Yes, Get out they've done with you
CHRISTY And I may keep the china peacocks?

RICHARD [jumping up] Get out Get out, you blithering baboon, you [Christy flies, panicstricken]

SWINDON [rising—all rise] Since you have taken the minister's place, Richard Dudgeon, you shall go through with it The execution will take place at 12 o'clock as arranged, and unless Anderson surrenders before then, you shall take his place on the gallons Sergeant take your man out

JUDITH [distracted] No, no—
SWINDON [fiercely, dreading a renewal of her entreaties] Take that woman away

RICHARD [springing across the table with a tiger-like bound, and seizing Swindon by the throat] You infernal scoundrel—
The sergeant rushes to the rescue from one side, the soldiers from the other They seize Richard and drag him back to his place Swindon, who has been thrown supine on the table, rises, arranging his stock He is about to speak, when he is anticipated by Burgoyne, who has just appeared at the door with two papers in his hand a white letter and a blue dispatch

BURGOYNE [advancing to the table, elaborately cool] What is this? Whats happening? Mr Anderson I'm astonished at you

RICHARD I am sorry I disturbed you, General I merely wanted to strangle your understrapper there [Breaking out violently] Why do you raise the devil in me by bullying the woman like that? You oatmeal faced dog, I'd twist your cursed head off with the greatest satisfaction [He puts out his hands to the sergeant] Here handcuff me, will you or I'll not undertake to keep my fingers off him

The sergeant takes out a pair of handcuffs and looks to Burgoyne for instructions
BURGOYNE Have you addressed profane language to the lady, Major Swindon?

SWINDON [very angry] No, sir, certainly not That question should not have been put to me I ordered the woman to be removed, as she was disorderly, and the fellow sprang at me Put away those handcuffs I am perfectly able to take care of myself

RICHARD Now you talk like a man, I have no quarrel with you
BURGOYNE Mr Anderson—

SWINDON His name is Dudgeon, sir, Richard Dudgeon He is an impostor
BURGOYNE [brusquely] Nonsense, sir you hanged Dudgeon at Springtown

RICHARD It was my uncle, General
BURGOYNE Oh, your uncle [To Swindon, handsomely] I beg your pardon, Major Swindon [Swindon acknowledges the apology stiffly] Burgoyne turns to Richard We are somewhat unfortunate in our relations with your family Well, Mr Dudgeon, what I wanted to ask you is this Who is [reading the name from the letter] William Maindeck Parshotter?

RICHARD He is the Mayor of Springtown
BURGOYNE Is William—Maindeck and so on—a man of his word?

RICHARD Is he selling you anything?
BURGOYNE No
RICHARD Then you may depend on him
BURGOYNE Thank you, Mr—m Dudgeon By the way, since you are not Mr Anderson, do we still—eh, Major Swindon? [meaning "do we still hang him?"]

RICHARD The arrangements are unaltered, General
BURGOYNE Ah, indeed I am sorry Good morning, Mr Dudgeon Good morning, madam

RICHARD [interrupting Judith almost fiercely as she is about to make some wild appeal, and taking her arm resolutely] Not one word more

She looks imploringly at him but is overborne by his determination They are marched out by the four soldiers the sergeant, very sulky, walking between Swindon and Richard, whom he watches as if he were a dangerous animal

BURGOYNE Gentlemen we need not detain you Major Swindon a word with you [The officers go out Burgoyne waits with unruffled serenity until the last of them disappears Then he becomes very grave, and addresses Swindon for the first time without his title] Swindon do you know what this is [showing him the letter]?

SWINDON What?
BURGOYNE A demand for a safe-conduct for an officer of their militia to come here and arrange terms with us

SWINDON Oh, they are giving in BURGOYNE They add that they are sending the man who raised Springtown last night and drove us out so that we may know that we are dealing with an officer of importance SWINDON Pooh!

BURGOYNE He will be fully empowered to arrange the terms of—guess what

SWINDON Their surrender I hope.

BURGOYNE No our evacuation of the town They offer us just six hours to clear out SWINDON What monstrous impudence!

BURGOYNE What shall we do, eh?

SWINDON March on Springtown and strike a decisive blow at once

BURGOYNE [quietly] Hm! [Turning to the door] Come to the adjutant's office

SWINDON What for?

BURGOYNE To write out that safe-conduct [He puts his hand to the door knob to open it]

SWINDON [who has not budged] General Burgoyne

BURGOYNE [returning] Sir?

SWINDON It is my duty to tell you, sir that I do not consider the threats of a mob of rebellious tradesmen a sufficient reason for our giving way

BURGOYNE [imperturbable] Suppose I resign my command to you what will you do?

SWINDON I will undertake to do what we have marched south from Quebec to do and what General Howe has marched north from New York to do effect a junction at Albany and wipe out the rebel army with our united forces

BURGOYNE [enigmatically] And will you wipe out our enemies in London too?

SWINDON. In London! What enemies?

BURGOYNE [forcibly] Jobbery and snobbery incompetence and Red Tape [He holds up the dispatch and adds, with despair in his face and voice] I have just learnt, sir, that General Howe is still in New York.

SWINDON [thunderstruck] Good God! He has disobeyed orders!

BURGOYNE [with sardonic calm] He has received no orders, sir. Some gentleman in London forgot to dispatch them he was leaving town for his holiday I believe To avoid upsetting his arrangements, England will lose her American colonies; and in a few days you and I will be at Saratoga with 5 000 men to face 18,000 rebels in an impregnable position

SWINDON [appalled] Impossible?

BURGOYNE [coldly] I beg your pardon?

SWINDON I can't believe it! What will History say?

BURGOYNE History, sir, will tell lies, as usual Come we must send the safe-conduct. [He goes out]

SWINDON [following distractedly] My God, my God! We shall be wiped out

As noon approaches there is excitement in the market place The gallows which hangs there permanently for the terror of evildoers, with such minor advertisers and examples of crime as the pillory, the whipping post and the stocks has a new rope attached, with the noose hitched up to one of the uprights, out of reach of the boys Its ladder, too, has been brought out and placed in position by the town beadle, who stands by to guard it from unauthorized climbing The Websterbridge townsfolk are present in force, and in high spirits, for the news has spread that it is the devil's disciple and not the minister that King George and his terrible general are about to hang consequently the execution can be enjoyed without any misgiving as to its righteousness or to the cowardice of allowing it to take place without a struggle There is even some fear of a disappointment as midday approaches and the arrival of the beadle with the ladder remains the only sign of preparation But at last reassuring shouts of Here they come Here they are, are heard, and a company of soldiers with fixed bayonets, half British infantry half Hessians, tramp quickly into the middle of the market place, driving the crowd to the sides

THE SERGEANT Halt Front. Dress [The soldiers change their column into a square enclosing the gallows, their petty officers energetically led by the sergeant, hustling the persons who find themselves inside the square out at the corners] Now then! Out of it with you out of it. Some o you'll get strung up yourselves presently Form that square there, will you, you damned Hoosians No use talkin German to them. talk to their toes with the butt ends of your muskets they'll understand that. Get out of it, will you [He comes upon Judith, standing near the gallows] Now then you've no call here

JUDITH May I not stay? What harm am I doing?

SERGEANT I want none of your argufying You ought to be ashamed of yourself, running to see a man hanged that's not your husband And he's no better than yourself I told my major he was a gentleman, and then he goes and tries to strangle him and calls his blessed Majesty a lunatic. So out of it with you, double quick

JUDITH Will you take these two silver dollars and let me stay?

The sergeant, without an instant's hesitation, looks quickly and furtively round as he shoots the money dexterously into his pocket. Then he raises his voice in virtuous indignation

THE SERGEANT Me take money in the execution of my duty! Certainly not. Now I'll tell you what I'll do, to teach you to corrupt the King's officer. I'll put you under arrest until the execution's over. You just stand there, and don't let me see you as much as move from that spot until you're let. [With a swift wink at her he points to the corner of the square behind the gallows on his right, and turns noisily away, shouting] Now then, dress up and keep 'em back, will you.

Cries of Hush and Silence are heard among the townsfolk, and the sound of a military band, playing the Dead March from Saul, is heard. The crowd becomes quiet at once, and the sergeant and petty officers, hurrying to the back of the square, with a few whispered orders and some stealthy hustling cause it to open and admit the funeral procession, which is protected from the crowd by a double file of soldiers. First come Burgoyne and Swindon, who, on entering the square, glance with distaste at the gallows, and avoid passing under it by wheeling a little to the right and stationing themselves on that side. Then Mr Brudenell, the chaplain, in his surplice, with his prayer book open in his hand, walking beside Richard, who is moody and disorderly. He walks doggedly through the gallows framework, and posts himself a little in front of it. Behind him comes the executioner, a stalwart soldier in his shirtsleeves. Following him, two soldiers haul a light military naggon. Finally comes the band, which posts itself at the back of the square, and finishes the Dead March. Judith, watching Richard painfully, steals down to the gallows, and stands leaning against its right post. During the conversation which follows, the two soldiers place the cart under the gallows, and stand by the shafts, which point backwards. The executioner takes a set of steps from the cart and places it ready for the prisoner to mount. Then he climbs the tall ladder which stands against the gallows, and cuts the string by which the rope is hitched up, so that the noose drops dangling over the cart, into which he steps as he descends.

RICHARD [with suppressed impatience, to Brudenell] Look here, sir, this is no place for a man of your profession. Hadn't you better go away?

SWINDON I appeal to you, prisoner, if you have any sense of decency left, to listen to the ministrations of the chaplain, and pay due heed to the solemnity of the occasion.

THE CHAPLAIN [gently reproving Richard] Try to control yourself, and submit to the divine will. [He lifts his book to proceed with the service]

RICHARD Answer for your own will, sir, and those of your accomplices here [indicating Burgoyne and Swindon]. I see little divinity about them or you. You talk to me of Christianity when you are in the act of hanging your enemies. Was there ever such blasphemous nonsense! [To Swindon, more rudely] You've got up the solemnity of the occasion, as you call it, to impress the people with your own dignity—Handel's music and a clergyman to make murder look like piety! Do you suppose I am going to help you? You've asked me to choose the rope because you don't know your own trade well enough to shoot me properly. Well, hang away and have done with it.

SWINDON [to the chaplain] Can you do nothing with him, Mr Brudenell?

CHAPLAIN I will try, sir. [Beginning to read] Man that is born of woman hath—

RICHARD [fixing his eyes on him] "Thou shalt not kill."

The book drops in Brudenell's hands.

CHAPLAIN [confessing his embarrassment] What am I to say, Mr Dudgeon?

RICHARD Let me alone, man, can't you?

BURGOYNE [with extreme urbanity] I think, Mr Brudenell, that as the usual professional observations seem to strike Mr Dudgeon as incongruous under the circumstances, you had better omit them until—er—until Mr Dudgeon can no longer be inconvenienced by them. [Brudenell, with a shrug, shuts his book and retires behind the gallows] You seem in a hurry, Mr Dudgeon.

RICHARD [with the horror of death upon him] Do you think this is a pleasant sort of thing to be kept waiting for? You've made up your mind to commit murder well, do it and have done with it.

BURGOYNE Mr Dudgeon, we are only doing this—

RICHARD Because you're paid to do it.

SWINDON You insolent—[he snatches his rage]

BURGOYNE [with much charm of manner] Ah,

I am really sorry that you should think that, Mr Dudgeon. If you knew what my commission cost me, and what my pay is, you would think better of me. I should be glad to part from you on friendly terms.

RICHARD Hark ye, General Burgoyne. If you think that I like being hanged, you're mistaken. I don't like it, and I don't mean to pretend that I do. And if you think I'm obliged to you for hanging me in a gentlemanly way, you're wrong there too. I take the whole business in devilish bad part, and the only satisfaction I have in it is that you'll feel a good deal meaner than I'll look when it's over. [He turns away, and is striding to the cart when Judith advances and interposes with her arms stretched out to him. Richard, feeling that a very little will upset his self-possession, shrinks from her, crying.] What are you doing here? This is no place for you. [She makes a gesture as if to touch him. He recoils impatiently.] No, go away, go away, you'll unnerve me. Take her away, will you?

JUDITH Wont you bid me goodbye?

RICHARD [allowing her to take his hand] Oh goodbye, goodbye. Now go—go—quickly. [She clings to his hand—will not be put off with so cold a last farewell—at last, as he tries to disengage himself, throws herself on his breast in agony.]

SWINDON [angrily to the sergeant, who, alarmed at Judith's movement, has come from the back of the square to pull her back, and stopped irresolutely on finding that he is too late] How is this? Why is she inside the lines?

SERGEANT [guiltily] I dunno, sir. She's that artful—cant keep her away.

BURGOYNE You were bribed.

SERGEANT [protesting] No, sir—

SWINDON [severely] Fall back. [He obeys.]

RICHARD [imploringly to those around him, and finally to Burgoyne, as the least stolid of them] Take her away. Do you think I want a woman near me now?

BURGOYNE [going to Judith and taking her hand] Here, madam. you had better keep inside the lines, but stand here behind us, and don't look.

Richard, with a great sobbing sigh of relief as she releases him and turns to Burgoyne, flies for refuge to the cart and mounts into it. The executioner takes off his coat and pinions him.

JUDITH [resisting Burgoyne quietly and drawing her hand away] No. I must stay. I won't look. [She goes to the right of the gallows. She tries to look at Richard, but turns away with a frightful shudder, and falls on her knees in prayer. Brudenell comes towards her from the back of the square.]

BURGOYNE [nodding approvingly as she kneels] Ah, quite so. Do not disturb her, Mr Brudenell. That will do very nicely. [Brudenell nods also, and withdraws a little, watching her sympathetically. Burgoyne resumes his former position, and takes out a handsome gold chronometer.] Now then, are those preparations made? We must not detain Mr Dudgeon.

By this time Richard's hands are bound behind him, and the noose is round his neck. The two soldiers take the shafts of the raggon, ready to pull it away. The executioner standing in the cart behind Richard, makes a sign to the sergeant.

SERGEANT [to Burgoyne] Ready, sir.

BURGOYNE Have you anything more to say, Mr Dudgeon? It wants two minutes of twelve still.

RICHARD [in the strong voice of a man who has conquered the bitterness of death] Your watch is two minutes slow by the town clock, which I can see from here, General. [The town clock strikes the first stroke of twelve. Involuntarily the people flinch at the sound, and a subdued groan breaks from them.] Amen! my life for the world's future!

ANDERSON [shouting as he rushes into the market place] Amen, and stop the execution. [He bursts through the line of soldiers opposite Burgoyne, and rushes, panting, to the gallows.] I am Anthony Anderson, the man you want.

The crowd, intensely excited, listens with all its ears. Judith half rising, stares at him, then lifts her hands like one whose dearest prayer has been granted.

SWINDON Indeed. Then you are just in time to take your place on the gallows. Arrest him.

At a sign from the sergeant, two soldiers come forward to seize Anderson.

ANDERSON [thrusting a paper under Swindon's nose] There's my safe-conduct, sir.

SWINDON [taken aback] Safe-conduct! Are you—!

ANDERSON [emphatically] I am. [The two soldiers take him by the elbows.] Tell these men to take their hands off me.

SWINDON [to the men] Let him go.

SERGEANT Fall back.

The two men return to their places. The townsfolk raise a cheer, and begin to exchange exultant looks, with a presentiment of triumph as they see their Pastor speaking with their enemies in the gale

ANDERSON [exhaling a deep breath of relief, and dabbing his perspiring brow with his handkerchief] Thank God, I was in time!

BURGOYNE [calm as ever, and still natch in hand] Ample time, sir Plenty of time I should never dream of hanging any gentleman by an American clock [He puts up his natch]

ANDERSON Yes we are some minutes ahead of you already, General Now tell them to take the rope from the neck of that American citizen

BURGOYNE [to the executioner in the cart—very politely] Kindly undo Mr Dudgeon

The executioner takes the rope from Richard's neck, unties his hands, and helps him on with his coat

JUDITH [stealing timidly to Anderson] Tony

ANDERSON [putting his arm round her shoulders and bantering her affectionately] Well, what do you think of your husband now, eh?—eh?—eh??

JUDITH I am ashamed— [she hides her face against his breast]

BURGOYNE [to Swindon] You look disappointed, Major Swindon

SWINDON You look defeated, General Burgoyne

BURGOYNE I am, sir, and I am humane enough to be glad of it [Richard jumps down from the cart, Brudenell offering his hand to help him, and runs to Anderson, whose left hand he shakes heartily, the right being occupied by Judith] By the way, Mr Anderson, I do not quite understand The safe-conduct was for a commander of the militia I understand you are a— [He looks as pointedly as his good manners permit at the riding boots, the pistols, and Richard's coat, and adds]—a clergyman

ANDERSON [between Judith and Richard] Sir it is in the hour of trial that a man finds his true profession This foolish young man [placing his hand on Richard's shoulder] boasted himself the Devil's Disciple, but when the hour of trial came to him, he found that it was his destiny to suffer and be faithful to the death I thought myself a decent minister of the gospel of peace, but when the hour of trial came to me, I found that it was my destiny to be a man of action, and that my place was amid the thunder of the captains and the shouting So I am starting life at fifty as Captain Anthony Anderson of the

Springtown militia, and the Devil's Disciple here will start presently as the Reverend Richard Dudgeon, and wag his paw in my old pulpit, and give good advice to this silly sentimental little wife of mine [putting his other hand on her shoulder She steals a glance at Richard to see how the prospect pleases him] Your mother told me, Richard, that I should never have chosen Judith if I'd been born for the ministry I am afraid she was right, so, by your leave, you may keep my coat and I'll keep yours

RICHARD Minister—I should say Captain I have behaved like a fool

JUDITH Like a hero

RICHARD Much the same thing, perhaps [With some bitterness towards himself] But no if I had been any good, I should have done for you what you did for me, instead of making a vain sacrifice

ANDERSON Not vain, my boy It takes all sorts to make a world—saints as well as soldiers [Turning to Burgoyne] And now, General, time presses, and America is in a hurry Have you realized that though you may occupy towns and win battles, you cannot conquer a nation?

BURGOYNE My good sir, without a Conquest you cannot have an aristocracy Come and settle the matter at my quarters

ANDERSON At your service, sir [To Richard] See Judith home for me, will you, my boy [He hands her over to him] Now, General [He goes busily up the market place towards the Tonn Hall, leaving Judith and Richard together Burgoyne follows him a step or two, then checks himself and turns to Richard]

BURGOYNE Oh, by the way, Mr Dudgeon, I shall be glad to see you at lunch at half-past one [He pauses a moment and adds, with politely veiled slyness] Bring Mrs Anderson, if she will be so good [To Swindon, who is fuming] Take it quietly, Major Swindon your friend the British soldier can stand up to anything except the British War Office [He follows Anderson]

SERGEANT [to Swindon] What orders, sir?

SWINDON [saragely] Orders! What use are orders now! There's no army Back to quarters, and be d— [He turns on his heel and goes]

SERGEANT [pugnacious and patriotic, repudiating the idea of defeat] Tention Now then cock up your chins, and shew em you dont care a damn for em Slope arms! Yours!

Wheel! Quick march!

The drums mark time with a tremendous bang, the band strikes up British Grenadiers, and the Sergeant, Brudenell and the English troops march off defiantly to their quarters. The townsfolk press in behind, and follow them up the market, jeering at them, and the town band, a very primitive affair, brings up the rear, playing Yankee Doodle. Essie, who comes in with them, runs to Richard.

ESSIE Oh, Dick!

RICHARD [good-humoredly, but wilfully] Now, now come, come! I don't mind being hanged, but I will not be cried over.

ESSIE No, I promise I'll be good [She tries to restrain her tears, but cannot] I—I want to see where the soldiers are going to [She goes a little way up the market, pretending to look after the crowd]

JUDITH Promise me you will never tell him.

RICHARD Don't be afraid

They shake hands on it

ESSIE [calling to them] They're coming back. They want you.

Jubilation in the market. The townsfolk surge back again in wild enthusiasm with their band, and hoist Richard on their shoulders, cheering him.

CÆSAR AND CLEOPATRA

A HISTORY (1898)

BEING THE SECOND OF THREE PLAYS FOR PURITANS

PROLOGUE

In the doorway of the temple of Ra in Memphis. Deep gloom. An august personage with a hawk's head is mysteriously visible by his own light in the darkness within the temple. He surveys the modern audience with great contempt, and finally speaks the following words to them.

Peace! Be silent and hearken unto me, ye quaint little islanders. Give ear ye men with white paper on your breasts and nothing written thereon (to signify the innocency of your minds). Hear me, ye women who adorn yourselves alluringly and conceal your thoughts from your men, leading them to believe that ye deem them wondrous strong and masterful whilst in truth ye hold them in your hearts as children without judgment. Look upon my hawk's head, and know that I am Ra, who was once in Egypt a mighty god. Ye cannot kneel nor prostrate yourselves, for ye are packed in rows without freedom to move, obstructing one another's vision; neither do any of ye regard it as seemly to do ought until ye see all the rest do so too, wherefore it commonly happens that in great emergencies ye do nothing though each telleth his fellow that something must be done. I ask you not for worship, but for silence. Let not your men speak nor your women cough, for I am come to draw you back two thousand years over the graves of sixty generations. Ye poor posterity, think not that ye are the first. Other fools before ye have seen the sun rise and set, and the moon change her shape and her hour. As they were so ye are, and yet not so great, for the pyramids my people built stand to this day, whilst the dustheaps on which ye slave, and which ye call empires, scatter in the wind even as ye pile your dead sons' bodies on them to make yet more dust.

Hearken to me then, oh ye compulsorily educated ones. Know that even as there is an old England and a new, and ye stand perplexed between the twain, so in the days when I was worshipped was there an old Rome and a new, and men standing perplexed between them. And the old Rome was poor and little, and greedy and fierce, and evil in many ways, but because its mind was little and its work was simple, it knew its own mind and did its own work, and the gods pitied it and helped it and strengthened it and shielded it, for the gods are patient with littleness. Then the old Rome, like the beggar on horseback, presumed on the favor of the gods and said, "Lo! there is neither riches nor greatness in our littleness; the road to riches and greatness is through robbery of the poor and slaughter of the weak." So they robbed their own poor until they became great masters of that art, and knew by what laws it could be made to appear seemly and honest. And when they had squeezed their own poor dry, they robbed the poor of other lands, and added those lands to Rome until there came a new Rome, rich and huge. And I, Ra, laughed, for the minds of the Romans remained the same size whilst their dominion spread over the earth.

Now mark me, that ye may understand what ye are presently to see. Whilst the Romans still stood between the old Rome and the new, there arose among them a mighty soldier, Pompey the Great. And the way of the soldier is the way of death, but the way of the gods is the way of life, and so it comes that a god at the end of his way is wise and a soldier at the end of his way is a fool. So Pompey held by the old Rome, in which only soldiers could become great, but the gods turned to the new Rome, in which any man with wit enough could become what he would. And Pompey's friend Julius Cæsar was on the side of the gods, for he saw that Rome had passed beyond the control of the little old Romans. This Cæsar was a great talker and a politician; he bought men with words and with gold, even as ye are bought. And when they would not be satisfied with words and gold, and demanded also the glories of war, Cæsar in his middle age turned his hand to that trade, and they that were against him when he sought their welfare, bowed down before him when he became a slayer and a conqueror, for such is the nature of you mortals. And as for Pompey, the gods grew tired of his triumphs and his airs of being himself a god, for he talked of law and duty and other matters that concerned not a mere human worm. And the gods smiled on Cæsar, for he lived the life they had given him boldly, and was not forever rebuking us for our indecent ways of creation, and hiding our handiwork as a shameful thing. Ye know well what I mean, for this is one of your own sins.

And thus it fell out between the old Rome and the new, that Cæsar said, "Unless I break the law of old Rome, I cannot take my share in ruling her, and the gift of ruling that the gods gave me will perish without fruit." But Pompey said, "The law is above all, and if thou break it thou shalt die." Then said Cæsar, "I will break it; kill me who can."

And he broke it. And Pompey went for him, as ye say, with a great army to slay him and uphold the old Rome. So Cæsar fled across the Adriatic sea, for the high gods had a lesson to teach him, which lesson they shall also teach you in due time if ye continue to forget them and to worship that cad among gods, Mammon. Therefore before they raised Cæsar to be master of the world, they were minded to throw him down into the dust, even beneath the feet of Pompey, and blacken his face before the nations. And Pompey they raised higher than ever, he and his laws and his high mind that aped the gods, so that his fall might be the more terrible. And Pompey followed Cæsar, and overcame him with all the majesty of old Rome, and stood over him and over the whole world even as ye stand over it with your fleet that covers thirty miles of the sea. And when Cæsar was brought down to utter nothingness, he made a last stand to die honorably, and did not despair, for he said, "Against me there is Pompey, and the old Rome, and the law and the legions—all against me, but high above these are the gods, and Pompey is a fool." And the gods laughed and approved, and on the field of Pharsalia the impossible came to pass, the blood and iron ye pin your faith on fell before the spirit of man, for the spirit of man is the will of the gods, and Pompey's power crumbled in his hand, even as the power of imperial Spain crumbled when it was set against your fathers in the days when England was little, and knew her own mind, and had a mind to know instead of a circulation of newspapers. Wherefore look to it, lest some little people whom ye would enslave rise up and become in the hand of God the scourge of your boastings and your injustices and your lusts and stupidities.

And now, would ye know the end of Pompey, or will ye sleep while a god speaks? Heed my words well, for Pompey went where ye have gone, even to Egypt, where there was a Roman occupation even as there is but now a British one. And Cæsar pursued Pompey to Egypt, a Roman fleeing, and a Roman pursuing, dog eating dog. And the Egyptians said, "Lo these Romans which have lent money to our kings and levied a distraint upon us with their arms, call for ever upon us to be loyal to them by betraying our own country to them. But now behold two Romes! Pompey's Rome and Cæsar's Rome! To which of the twain shall we pretend to be loyal?" So they turned in their perplexity to a soldier that had once served Pompey, and that knew the ways of Rome and was full of her lusts. And they said to him, "Lo in thy country dog eats dog, and both dogs are coming to eat us: what counsel hast thou to give us?" And this soldier, whose name was Lucius Septimius, and whom ye shall presently see before ye, replied, "Ye shall diligently consider which is the bigger dog of the two, and ye shall kill the other dog for his sake and thereby earn his favor." And the Egyptians said, "Thy counsel is expedient, but if we kill a man outside the law we set ourselves in the place of the gods, and this we dare not do. But thou, being a Roman, art accustomed to this kind of killing, for thou hast imperial instincts. Wilt thou therefore kill the lesser dog for us?" And he said, "I will, for I have made my home in Egypt, and I desire consideration and influence among you." And they said, "We knew well thou wouldst not do it for nothing: thou shalt have thy reward." Now when Pompey came, he came alone in a little galley, putting his trust in the law and the constitution. And it was plain to the people of Egypt that Pompey was now but a very small dog. So when he set his foot on the shore he was greeted by his old comrade Lucius Septimius, who welcomed him with one hand and with the other smote off his head, and kept it as it were a pickled cabbage to make a present to Cæsar. And mankind shuddered, but the gods laughed, for Septimius was but a knife that Pompey had sharpened, and when it turned against his own throat they said that Pompey had better have made Septimius a ploughman than so brave and readyhanded a slayer. Therefore again I bid you beware, ye who would all be Pompeys if ye dared, for war is a wolf that may come to your own door.

Are ye impatient with me? Do ye crave for a story of an unchaste woman? Hath the name of Cleopatra tempted ye hither? Ye foolish ones, Cleopatra is as yet but a child that is whipped by her nurse. And what I am about to shew you for the good of your souls is how Cæsar, seeking Pompey in Egypt, found Cleopatra, and how he received that present of a pickled cabbage that was once the head of Pompey, and what things happened between the old Cæsar and the child queen before he left Egypt and battled his way back to Rome to be slain there as Pompey was slain, by men in whom the spirit of Pompey still lived. All this ye shall see, and ye shall marvel, after your ignorant manner, that men twenty centuries ago were already just such as you, and spoke and lived as ye speak and live, no worse and no better, no wiser and no sillier. And the two thousand years that have past are to me, the god Ra, but a moment, nor is this day any other than the day in which Cæsar set foot in the land of my people. And now I leave you, for ye are a dull folk, and instruction is wasted on you, and I had not spoken so much but that it is in the nature of a god to struggle for ever with the dust and the darkness, and to drag from them, by the force of his longing for the divine, more life and more light. Settle ye therefore in your seats and keep silent, for ye are about to hear a man speak, and a great man he was, as ye count greatness. And fear not that I shall speak to you again: the rest of the story must ye learn from them that lived it. Farewell, and do not presume to applaud me. [The temple vanishes in utter darkness]

AN ALTERNATIVE TO THE PROLOGUE

An October night on the Syrian border of Egypt towards the end of the XXXIII Dynasty, in the year 706 by Roman computation, afterwards reckoned by Christian computation as 48 B.C. A great radiance of silver fire, the dawn of a moonlit night, is rising in the east. The stars and the cloudless sky are our own contemporaries, nineteen and a half centuries younger than we know them, but you would not guess that from their appearance. Below them are two notable drawbacks of civilization: a palace, and soldiers. The palace, an old, low, Syrian building of whitened mud, is not so ugly as Buckingham Palace, and the officers in the courtyard are more highly civilized than modern English officers: for example, they do not dig up the corpses of their dead enemies and mutilate them, as we dug up Cromwell and the Mahdi. They are in two groups: one intent on the gambling of their captain Belzanor, a warrior of fifty, who, with his spear on the ground beside his knee, is stooping to throw dice with a sly-looking young Persian recruit, the other gathered about a guardsman who has just finished telling a naughty story (still current in English barracks) at which they are laughing uproariously. They are about a dozen in number, all highly aristocratic young Egyptian guardsmen, handsomely equipped with weapons and armor, very un-English in point of not being ashamed of and uncomfortable in their professional dress, on the contrary, rather ostentatiously and arrogantly warlike, as valuing themselves on their military caste.

Belzanor is a typical veteran, tough and wilful, prompt, capable and crafty where brute force will serve, helpless and boyish when it will not; an effective sergeant, an incompetent general, a deplorable dictator. Would, if influentially connected, be employed in the two last capacities by a modern European State on the strength of his success in the first. Is rather to be pitied just now in view of the fact that Julius Cæsar is invading his country. Not knowing this, is intent on his game with the Persian, whom, as a foreigner, he considers quite capable of cheating him.

His subalterns are mostly handsome young fellows whose interests in the game and the story symbolize with tolerable completeness the main interests in life of which they are conscious. Their spears are leaning against the walls, or lying on the ground ready to their hands. The corner of the courtyard forms a triangle of which one side is the front of the palace, with a doorway, the other a wall with a gateway. The storytellers are on the palace side, the gamblers, on the gateway side. Close to the gateway, against the wall, is a stone block high enough to enable a Nubian sentinel, standing on it, to look over the wall. The yard is lighted by a torch stuck in the wall. As the laughter from the group round the storyteller dies away, the kneeling Persian, winning the throw, snatches up the stake from the ground.

BELZANOR By Apis, Persian, thy gods are good to thee.

THE PERSIAN Try yet again, O captain Double or quits!

BELZANOR No more. I am not in the vein.

THE SENTINEL [poising his javelin as he peers over the wall] Stand. Who goes there?

They all start, listening. A strange voice replies from without.

VOICE The bearer of evil tidings.

BELZANOR [calling to the sentry] Pass him.

THE SENTINEL [grounding his javelin] Draw near, O bearer of evil tidings.

BELZANOR [pocketing the dice and picking up his spear] Let us receive this man with honor. He bears evil tidings.

The guardsmen seize their spears and gather about the gate, leaving a way through for the new comer.

PERSIAN [rising from his knee] Are evil tidings, then, so honorable?

BELZANOR O barbarous Persian, hear my instruction. In Egypt the bearer of good tidings is sacrificed to the gods as a thank offering, but no god will accept the blood of the messenger of evil. When we have good tidings, we are careful to send them in the mouth of the cheapest slave we can find. Evil tidings are borne by young noblemen who desire to bring themselves into notice [They join the rest at the gate].

THE SENTINEL Pass, O young captain, and bow the head in the House of the Queen.

VOICE Go anoint thy javelin with fat of swine, O Blackamoor, for before morning the Romans will make thee eat it to the very butt.

The owner of the voice, a fair-haired dandy, dressed in a different fashion from that affected by the guardsmen, but no less extravagantly, comes through the gateway laughing. He is somewhat battlestained, and his left forearm, bandaged, comes through a torn sleeve. In his right hand he carries a Roman sword in its sheath. He swaggers down the courtyard, the Persian on his right, Belzanor on his left, and the guardsmen crowding down behind him.

BELZANOR Who art thou that laughest in the House of Cleopatra the Queen, and in the teeth of Belzanor, the captain of her guard?

THE NEW COMER I am Bel Affris, descended from the gods.

BELZANOR [ceremoniously] Hail, cousin!

ALL [except the Persian] Hail, cousin!

PERSIAN All the Queen's guards are descended from the gods, O stranger, save myself. I am Persian, and descended from many kings.

BEL AFFRIS [to the guardsmen] Hail, cousins! [To the Persian, condescendingly] Hail, mortal!

BELZANOR You have been in battle, Bel Affris, and you are a soldier among soldiers. You will not let the Queen's women have the first of your tidings.

BEL AFFRIS I have no tidings, except that we shall have our throats cut presently, women, soldiers, and all.

PERSIAN [to Belzanor] I told you so.

THE SENTINEL [who has been listening] Woe, alas!

BEL AFFRIS [calling to him] Peace, peace, poor Ethiop destiny is with the gods who painted thee black [To Belzanor] What has this mortal [indicating the Persian] told you?

BELZANOR He says that the Roman Julius Cæsar, who has landed on our shores with a handful of followers, will make himself master of Egypt He is afraid of the Roman soldiers [The guardsmen laugh with boisterous scorn] Peasants, brought up to scare crows and follow the plough! Sons of smiths and millers and tanners! And we nobles, consecrated to arms, descended from the gods!

PERSIAN Belzanor, the gods are not always good to their poor relations

BELZANOR [holly, to the Persian] Man to man, are we worse than the slaves of Cæsar?

BEL AFFRIS [stepping between them] Listen, cousin Man to man, we Egyptians are as gods above the Romans

THE GUARDSMEN [exultantly] Aha!

BEL AFFRIS But this Cæsar does not pit man against man he throws a legion at you where you are weakest as he throws a stone from a catapult, and that legion is as a man with one head, a thousand arms, and no religion I have fought against them, and I know

BELZANOR [derisively] Were you frightened, cousin?

The guardsmen roar with laughter, their eyes sparkling at the wit of their captain

BEL AFFRIS No, cousin, but I was beaten They were frightened (perhaps), but they scattered us like chaff

The guardsmen, much damped, utter a groan of contemptuous disgust

BELZANOR Could you not die?

BEL AFFRIS No that was too easy to be worthy of a descendant of the gods Besides, there was no time all was over in a moment The attack came just where we least expected it

BELZANOR That shews that the Romans are cowards

BEL AFFRIS They care nothing about cowardice, these Romans they fight to win The pride and honor of war are nothing to them

PERSIAN Tell us the tale of the battle What befell?

THE GUARDSMEN [gathering eagerly round Bel Affris] Ay the tale of the battle

BEL AFFRIS Know then, that I am a novice in the guard of the temple of Ra in Memphis, serving neither Cleopatra nor her brother Ptolemy, but only the high gods We went a journey to inquire of Ptolemy why he had driven Cleopatra into Syria, and how we of Egypt should deal with the Roman Pompey, newly come to our shores after his defeat by Cæsar at Pharsalia What, think ye, did we learn? Even that Cæsar is coming also in hot pursuit of his foe, and that Ptolemy has slain Pompey, whose severed head he holds in readiness to present to the conqueror [Sensation among the guardsmen] Nay, more we found that Cæsar is already come, for we had not made half a day's journey on our way back when we came upon a city rabble flying from his legions, whose landing they had gone out to withstand BELZANOR And ye, the temple guard! did ye not withstand these legions?

BEL AFFRIS What man could, that we did But there came the sound of a trumpet whose voice was as the cursing of a black mountain Then saw we a moving wall of shields coming towards us You know how the heart burns when you charge a fortified wall, but how if the fortified wall were to charge you?

THE PERSIAN [exulting in having told them so] Did I not say it?

BEL AFFRIS When the wall came nigh, it changed into a line of men—common fellows enough, with helmets, leather tunics, and breastplates Every man of them flung his javelin the one that came my way drove through my shield as through a papyrus—lo there! [he points to the bandage on his left arm] and would have gone through my neck had I not stooped They were charging at the double then, and were upon us with short swords almost as soon as their javelins When a man is close to you with such a sword, you can do nothing with our weapons they are all too long

THE PERSIAN What did you do?

BEL AFFRIS Doubled my fist and smote my Roman on the sharpness of his jaw He was but mortal after all he lay down in a stupor, and I took his sword and laid it on [Drawing the sword] Lo! a Roman sword with Roman blood on it!

THE GUARDSMEN [approvingly] Good! [They take the sword and hand it round, examining it curiously]

THE PERSIAN And your men?

BEL AFFRIS Fled Scattered like sheep

BELZANOR [furiously] The cowardly slaves! Leaving the descendants of the gods to be butchered!

BEL AFFRIS [with acid coolness] The descendants of the gods did not stay to be butchered, cousin. The battle was not to the strong, but the race was to the swift. The Romans, who have no chariots, sent a cloud of horsemen in pursuit, and slew multitudes. Then our high priest's captain rallied a dozen descendants of the gods and exhorted us to die fighting. I said to myself surely it is safer to stand than to lose my breath and be stabbed in the back, so I joined our captain and stood. Then the Romans treated us with respect, for no man attacks a lion when the field is full of sheep, except for the pride and honor of war, of which these Romans know nothing. So we escaped with our lives, and I am come to warn you that you must open your gates to Cæsar, for his advance guard is scarce an hour behind me, and not an Egyptian warrior is left standing between you and his legions.

THE SENTINEL Woe, alas! [He throws down his javelin and flies into the palace]

BELZANOR Nail him to the door, quick! [The guardsmen rush for him with their spears, but he is too quick for them] Now this news will run through the palace like fire through stubble.

BEL AFFRIS What shall we do to save the women from the Romans?

BELZANOR Why not kill them?

PERSIAN Because we should have to pay blood money for some of them. Better let the Romans kill them: it is cheaper.

BELZANOR [awestruck at his brain power] O subtle one! O serpent!

BEL AFFRIS But your Queen?

BELZANOR True we must carry off Cleopatra.

BEL AFFRIS Will ye not await her command?

BELZANOR Command! a girl of sixteen! Not we. At Memphis ye deem her a Queen; here we know better. I will take her on the crupper of my horse. When we soldiers have carried her out of Cæsar's reach, then the priests and the nurses and the rest of them can pretend she is a queen again, and put their commands into her mouth.

PERSIAN Listen to me, Belzanor.

BELZANOR Speak, O subtle beyond thy years.

THE PERSIAN Cleopatra's brother Ptolemy is at war with her. Let us sell her to him.

THE GUARDSMEN O subtle one! O serpent.

BELZANOR We dare not. We are descended from the gods, but Cleopatra is descended from the river Nile, and the lands of our fathers will grow no grain if the Nile rises not to water them. Without our father's gifts we should live the lives of dogs.

PERSIAN It is true the Queen's guard cannot live on its pay. But hear me further, O ye kinsmen of Osiris.

THE GUARDSMEN Speak, O subtle one. Hear the serpent begotten!

PERSIAN Have I heretofore spoken truly to you of Cæsar, when you thought I mocked you?

GUARDSMEN Truly, truly.

BELZANOR [reluctantly admitting it] So Bel Affris says.

PERSIAN Hear more of him, then. This Cæsar is a great lover of women: he makes them his friends and counsellors.

BELZANOR Faugh! This rule of women will be the ruin of Egypt.

THE PERSIAN Let it rather be the ruin of Rome! Cæsar grows old now: he is past fifty and full of labors and battles. He is too old for the young women, and the old women are too wise to worship him.

BEL AFFRIS Take heed, Persian. Cæsar is by this time almost within earshot.

PERSIAN Cleopatra is not yet a woman: neither is she wise. But she already troubles men's wisdom.

BELZANOR Ay, that is because she is descended from the river Nile and a black kitten of the sacred White Cat. What then?

PERSIAN Why, sell her secretly to Ptolemy, and then offer ourselves to Cæsar as volunteers to fight for the overthrow of her brother and the rescue of our Queen, the Great Granddaughter of the Nile.

THE GUARDSMEN O serpent!

PERSIAN He will listen to us if we come with her picture in our mouths. He will conquer and kill her brother, and reign in Egypt with Cleopatra for his Queen. And we shall be her guard.

GUARDSMEN O subtlest of all the serpents! O admiration! O wisdom!

BEL AFFRIS He will also have arrived before you have done talking, O word spinner.

BELZANOR That is true. [An affrighted uproar in the palace interrupts him] Quick, the flight has begun: guard the door! [They rush to the door and form a cordon before it with their spears

A mob of women-servants and nurses surges out Those in front recoil from the spears, screaming to those behind to keep back Belzanor's voice dominates the disturbance as he shouts Back there In again, unprofitable cattle

THE GUARDSMEN Back, unprofitable cattle

BELZANOR Send us out Ftataetea, the Queen's chief nurse

THE WOMEN [calling into the palace] Ftatateeta, Ftataetea Come, come Speak to Belzanor

A WOMAN Oh, keep back You are thrusting me on the spearheads

A huge grim woman, her face covered with a network of tiny wrinkles, and her eyes old, large, and wise, sinewy handed, very tall, very strong, with the mouth of a bloodhound and the jaws of a bulldog, appears on the threshold She is dressed like a person of consequence in the palace, and confronts the guardsmen insolently

FTATATEETA Make way for the Queen's chief nurse

BELZANOR [with solemn arrogance] Ftatateeta I am Belzanor, the captain of the Queen's guard, descended from the gods

FTATATEETA [retorting his arrogance with interest] Belzanor I am Ftataetea, the Queen's chief nurse, and your divine ancestors were proud to be painted on the wall in the pyramids of the kings whom my fathers served

The women laugh triumphantly

BELZANOR [with grim humor] Ftataetea daughter of a long-tongued, swivel-eyed chameleon, the Romans are at hand [A cry of terror from the women they would fly but for the spears] Not even the descendants of the gods can resist them for they have each man seven arms, each carrying seven spears The blood in their veins is boiling quicksilver, and their wives become mothers in three hours, and are slain and eaten the next day

A shudder of horror from the women Ftatateeta, despising them and scorning the soldiers, pushes her way through the crowd and confronts the spear points undismayed

FTATATEETA Then fly and save yourselves,
 O cowardly sons of the cheap clay gods that are sold to fish porters, and leave us to shift for ourselves

BELZANOR Not until you have first done
 our bidding, O terror of manhood Bring out Cleopatra the Queen to us, and then go whither you will

FTATATEETA [with a derisive laugh] Now I know why the gods have taken her out of our hands [The guardsmen start and look at one another] Know, thou foolish soldier, that the Queen has been missing since an hour past sundown

BELZANOR [furiously] Hag you have hidden her to sell to Cæsar or her brother [He grasps her by the left wrist, and drags her, helped by a few of the guard, to the middle of the courtyard, where, as they fling her on her knees, he draws a murderous looking knife] Where is she? Where is she? or— [he threatens to cut her throat]

FTATATEETA [savagely] Touch me, dog, and the Nile will not rise on your fields for seven times seven years of famine

BELZANOR [frightened, but desperate] I will sacrifice I will pay Or stay [To the Persian] You, O subtle one your father's lands lie far from the Nile Slay her

PERSIAN [threatening her with his knife] Persia has but one god, yet he loves the blood of old women Where is Cleopatra?

FTATATEETA Persian as Osiris lives, I do not know I chide her for bringing evil days upon us by talking to the sacred eats of the priests, and carrying them in her arms I told her she would be left alone here when the Romans came as a punishment for her disobedience And now she is gone—run away—hidden I speak the truth I call Osiris to witness—

THE WOMEN [protesting officiously] She speaks
 the truth, Belzanor

BELZANOR You have frightened the child she is hiding Search—quick—into the palace
 —search every corner

The guards, led by Belzanor, shoulder their way into the palace through the flying crowd of women, who escape through the courtyard gate

FTATATEETA [screaming] Sacrilege! Men in the Queen's chambers! Sa— [her voice dies away as the Persian puts his knife to her throat]

BEL AFFRIS [laying a hand on Ftataetea's left shoulder] Forbear her yet a moment, Persian [To Ftataetea, very significantly] Mother your gods are asleep or away hunting, and the sword is at your throat Bring us to where the Queen is hid, and you shall live

FTATATEETA [contemptuously] Who shall stay the sword in the hand of a fool, if the high gods put it there? Listen to me, ye young men without understanding Cleopatra fears me, but she fears the Romans more There is but one power greater in her eyes than the wrath of the Queen's nurse and the cruelty of Cæsar, and that is the power of the Sphinx that sits in the desert watching the way to the sea. What she would have it know, she tells into the ears of the sacred cats, and on her birthday she sacrifices to it and decks it with poppies. Go ye therefore into the desert and seek Cleopatra in the shadow of the Sphinx, and on your heads see to it that no harm comes to her.

BEL AFFRIS [to the Persian] May we believe this, O subtle one?

PERSIAN Which way come the Romans?

BEL AFFRIS Over the desert, from the sea, by this vey Sphinx.

PERSIAN [to Ftateeta] O mother of guile! O asp's tongue! You have made up this tale so that we two may go into the desert and perish on the spears of the Romans [Lifting his knife] Taste death.

FTATEETA Not from thee, baby [She snatches his ankle from under him and flies slooping along the palace wall, vanishing in the darkness within its precinct. Bel Affris roars with laughter as the Persian tumbles. The guardsmen rush out of the palace with Belzanor and a mob of fugitives, mostly carrying bundles].

PERSIAN Have you found Cleopatra?

BELZANOR She is gone. We have searched every corner.

THE NUBIAN SENTINEL [appearing at the door of the palace] Woe! Alas! Fly, fly!

BELZANOR What is the matter now?

THE NUBIAN SENTINEL The sacred white cat has been stolen.

ALL Woe! woe! [General panic. They all fly with cries of consternation. The torch is thrown down and extinguished in the rush. The noise of the fugitives dies away. Darkness and dead silence].

ACT I

The same darkness into which the temple of Ra and the Syrian palace vanished. The same silence. Suspense. Then the blackness and stillness break softly into silver mist and strange airs as the windswept harp of Memnon plays at the dawning of the moon. It rises full over the desert, and a vast horizon comes into relief, broken by a huge shape which soon reveals itself in the spreading radiance as a Sphinx pedestalled on the sands. The light still clears, until the upraised eyes of the image are distinguished looking straight forward and upward in infinite fearless vigil, and a mass of color between its great paws defines itself as a heap of red poppies on which a girl lies motionless, her silken vest heaving gently and regularly with the breathing of a dreamless sleeper, and her braided hair glittering in a shaft of moonlight like a bird's wing.

Suddenly there comes from afar a vaguely fearful sound (it might be the bellow of a Minotaur softened by great distance) and Memnon's music stops. Silence then a few faint high-ringing trumpet notes. Then silence again. Then a man comes from the south with stealing steps, ravished by the mystery of the night, all nondescript, and halts, lost in contemplation, opposite the left flank of the Sphinx, whose bosom, with its burden, is hidden from him by its massive shoulder.

THE MAN Hail, Sphinx! salutation from Julius Cæsar! I have wandered in many lands, seeking the lost regions from which my birth into this world exiled me, and the company of creatures such as I myself. I have found flocks and pastures, men and cities, but no other Cæsar, no air native to me, no man kindred to me, none who can do my day's deed, and think my night's thought. In the little world yonder, Sphinx, my place is as high as yours in this great desert, only I wander, and you sit still, I conquer, and you endure, I work and wonder, you watch and wait, I look up and am dazzled, look down and am darkened, look round and am puzzled, whilst your eyes never turn from looking out—out of the world—to the lost region—the home from which we have strayed. Sphinx, you and I, strangers to the race of men, are no strangers to one another. Have I not been conscious of you and of this place since I was born? Rome is a madman's dream. This is my Reality. These starry lamps of yours I have seen from afar in Gaul, in Britain, in Spain, in Thessaly, signalling great secrets to some eternal sentinel below, whose post I never could find. And here at last is their sentinel—an image of the constant and immortal part of my life, silent, full of thoughts, alone in the silver desert. Sphinx, Sphinx! I have climbed mountains at night to hear in the distance the stealthy footfall of the winds that chase your sands in forbidden play—our invisible children, O Sphinx, laughing in whispers. My way hither was the way of destiny, for I am he of whose genius you are the symbol: part brute, part woman, and part god—nothing of man in me at all. Have I read your riddle, Sphinx?

THE GIRL [who has wakened, and peeped cautiously from her nest to see who is speaking]

Old gentleman

CÆSAR [starting violently, and clutching his sword] Immortal gods!

THE GIRL Old gentleman dont run away

CÆSAR [stupefied] "Old gentleman dont run away!" This! to Julius Cæsar!

THE GIRL [urgently] Old gentleman

CÆSAR Sphinx you presume on your centuries I am younger than you, though your voice is but a girl's voice as yet

THE GIRL Climb up here, quickly, or the Romans will come and eat you

CÆSAR [running forward past the Sphinx's shoulder, and seeing her] A child at its breast! a divine child!

THE GIRL Come up quickly You must get up at its side and creep round

CÆSAR [amazed] Who are you?

THE GIRL Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt

CÆSAR Queen of the Gypsies, you mean

CLEOPATRA You must not be disrespectful to me, or the Sphinx will let the Romans eat you Come up It is quite cosy here

CÆSAR [to himself] What a dream! What a magnificent dream! Only let me not wake, and I will conquer ten continents to pay for dreaming it out to the end [He climbs to the Sphinx's flank, and presently reappears to her on the pedestal, stepping round its right shoulder]

CLEOPATRA Take care Thats right Now sit down you may have its other paw. [She seats herself comfortably on its left paw] It is very powerful and will protect us, but [shivering, and with plaintive loneliness] it would not take any notice of me or keep me company I am glad you have come I was very lonely Did you happen to see a white cat anywhere?

CÆSAR [sitting slowly down on the right paw in extreme wonderment] Have you lost one?

CLEOPATRA Yes the sacred white cat is it not dreadful? I brought him here to sacrifice him to the Sphinx, but when we got a little way from the city a black cat called him, and he jumped out of my arms and ran away to it Do you think that the black cat can have been my great-great-grandmother?

CÆSAR [staring at her] Your great-great-great-grandmother! Well, why not? Nothing would surprise me on this night of nights

CLEOPATRA I think it must have been My great-great-grandmother's great-grandmother was a black kitten of the sacred white cat, and the river Nile made her his seventh wife That is why my hair is so wavy And I always want to be let do as I like, no matter whether it is the will of the gods or not that is because my blood is made with Nile water

CÆSAR What are you doing here at this time of night? Do you live here?

CLEOPATRA Of course not I am the Queen, and I shall live in the palace at Alexandria when I have killed my brother, who drove me out of it When I am old enough I shall do just what I like I shall be able to poison the slaves and see them wriggle, and pretend to Ftatateeta that she is going to be put into the fiery furnace CÆSAR Hm! Meanwhile why are you not at home and in bed?

CLEOPATRA Because the Romans are coming to eat us all You are not at home and in bed either

CÆSAR [with conviction] Yes I am I live in a tent, and I am now in that tent, fast asleep and dreaming Do you suppose that I believe you are real, you impossible little dream witch?

CLEOPATRA [giggling and leaning trustfully towards him] You are a funny old gentleman I like you

CÆSAR Ah, that spoils the dream Why dont you dream that I am young?

CLEOPATRA I wish you were, only I think I should be more afraid of you I like men, especially young men with round strong arms, but I am afraid of them You are old and rather thin and stringy, but you have a nice voice, and I like to have somebody to talk to, though I think you are a little mad It is the moon that makes you talk to yourself in that silly way

CÆSAR What! you heard that, did you? I was saying my prayers to the great Sphinx

CLEOPATRA But this isnt the great Sphinx

CÆSAR [much disappointed, looking up at the statue] What!

CLEOPATRA This is only a dear little kitten of a Sphinx Why, the great Sphinx is so big that it has a temple between its paws This is my pet Sphinx Tell me do you think the Romans have any sorcerers who could take us away from the Sphinx by magic?

CÆSAR Why? Are you afraid of the Romans?

CLEOPATRA [very seriously] Oh, they would eat us if they caught us They are barbarians Their chief is called Julius Cæsar His father was a tiger and his mother a burning mountain, and his nose is like an elephant's trunk [Cæsar involuntarily rubs his nose] They all have long noses, and ivory tusks, and little tails, and seven arms with a hundred arrows in each, and they live on human flesh

CÆSAR Would you like me to shew you a real Roman?

CLEOPATRA [terrified] No You are frightening me

CÆSAR No matter this is only a dream—

CLEOPATRA [excitedly] It is not a dream it is not a dream See, see [She plucks a pin from her hair and jabs it repeatedly into his arm]

CÆSAR Ffff—Stop [Wrathfully] How dare you?

CLEOPATRA [abashed] You said you were dreaming [Whimpering] I only wanted to shew you—

CÆSAR [gently] Come, come dont cry A queen mustnt cry [He rubs his arm, wondering at the reality of the smart] Am I awakc? [He strikes his hand against the Sphinx to test its solidity It feels so real that he begins to be alarmed, and says perplexedly] Yes, I— [quite panicstricken] no impossible madness, madness! [Desperately] Back to camp—to camp [He rises to spring down from the pedestal]

CLEOPATRA [flinging her arms in terror round him] No you shant leave me No, no, no dont go I'm afraid—afraid of the Romans

CÆSAR [as the conviction that he is really awake forces itself on him] Cleopatra can you see my face well?

CLEOPATRA Yes It is so white in the moonlight

CÆSAR Arc you sure it is the moonlight that makes me look whiter than an Egyptian? [Grimly] Do you notice that I have a rather long nose?

CLEOPATRA [recoiling, paralysed by a terrible suspicion] Oh!

CÆSAR It is a Roman nose, Cleopatra

CLEOPATRA Ah! [With a piercing scream she springs up, darts round the left shoulder of the Sphinx, scrambles down to the sand, and falls on her knees in frantic supplication, shrieking] Bite him in two, Sphinx bite him in two I meant to sacrifice the white cat—I did indeed—I [Cæsar, who has slipped down from the pedestal, touches her on the shoulder]—Ah! [She buries her head in her arms]

CÆSAR Cleopatra shall I teach you a way to prevent Cæsar from eating you?

CLEOPATRA [clinging to him piteously] Oh do, do, do I will steal Ptatatecta's jewels and givc them to you I will make the river Nile water your lands twice a year

CÆSAR Peace, peace, my child Your gods are afraid of the Romans you see the Sphinx darc not bite me, nor prevent me carrying you off to Julius Cæsar

CLEOPATRA [in pleading murmurings] You wont, you wont You said you wouldnt

CÆSAR Cæsar never eats women

CLEOPATRA [springing up full of hope] What!

CÆSAR [impressively] But he eats girls [she relapses] and eats Now you are a silly little girl, and you are descended from the black kitten You arc both a girl and a cat

CLEOPATRA [trembling] And will he eat me?

CÆSAR Yes, unless you make him believe that you arc a woman

CLEOPATRA Oh, you must get a sorcerer to make a woman of me Arc you a sorcerer?

CÆSAR Perhaps But it will take a long time, and this very night you must stand face to face with Cæsar in the palace of your fathers

CLEOPATRA No, no I darent

CÆSAR Whatever dread may be in your soul—however terrible Cæsar may be to you—you must confront him as a brave woman and a great queen, and you must feel no fear If your hand shakes if your voice quavers, then—night and death! [She moans] But if he thinks you worthy to rule, he will set you on the throne by his side and make you the real ruler of Egypt

CLEOPATRA [despairingly] No he will find me out he will find me out

CÆSAR [rather mournfully] He is easily deceived by women Their cyes dazzle him, and he sees them not as they arc, but as he wishes them to appear to him

CLEOPATRA [hopefully] Then we will cheat him I will put on Ptatatecta's head-dress, and he will think me quite an old woman

CÆSAR If you do that he will eat you at one mouthful

CLEOPATRA But I will give him a cake with my magic opal and seven hairs of the white cat baked in it, and—

CÆSAR [abruptly] Pah! you are a little fool He will eat your cake and you too [He turns contemptuously from her]

CLEOPATRA [running after him and clinging to him] Oh please, please! I will do whatever you tell me I will be good I will be your slave [Again the terrible bellowing note sounds across the desert, now closer at hand It is the bucina, the Roman war trumpet]

CÆSAR Hark!

CLEOPATRA [trembling] What was that?

CÆSAR Cæsar's voice

CLEOPATRA [pulling at his hand] Let us run away Come Oh, come

CÆSAR You are safe with me until you stand on your throne to receive Cæsar Now lead me thither

CLEOPATRA [only too glad to get away] I will, I will [Again the bucina] Oh come, come, come the gods are angry Do you feel the earth shaking?

CÆSAR It is the tread of Cæsar's legions

CLEOPATRA [drawing him away] This way, quickly And let us look for the white cat as we go It is he that has turned you into a Roman

CÆSAR Incorrigible, oh, incorrigible! Away! [He follows her, the bucina sounding louder as they steal across the desert The moonlight wanes the horizon again shows black against the sky, broken only by the fantastic silhouette of the Sphinx The sky itself vanishes in darkness, from which there is no relief until the gleam of a distant torch falls on great Egyptian pillars supporting the roof of a majestic corridor At the further end of this corridor a Nubian slave appears carrying the torch Cæsar, still led by Cleopatra, follows him They come down the corridor, Cæsar peering keenly about at the strange architecture, and at the pillar shadows between which, as the passing torch makes them hurry noiselessly backwards, figures of men with wings and hawks' heads, and vast black marble cats seem to flit in and out of ambush Further along, the wall turns a corner and makes a spacious transept in which Cæsar sees, on his right, a throne, and behind the throne a door On each side of the throne is a slender pillar with a lamp on it]

CÆSAR What place is this?

CLEOPATRA This is where I sit on the throne when I am allowed to wear my crown and robes [The slave holds his torch to shew the throne]

CÆSAR Order the slave to light the lamps

CLEOPATRA [shyly] Do you think I may?

CÆSAR Of course You are the Queen [She hesitates] Go on

CLEOPATRA [timidly, to the slave] Light all the lamps

FTATATEETA [suddenly coming from behind the throne] Stop [The slave stops She turns sternly to Cleopatra, who quails like a naughty child] Who is this you have with you, and how dare you order the lamps to be lighted without my permission? [Cleopatra is dumb with apprehension]

CÆSAR Who is she?

CLEOPATRA Ftatateeta

FTATATEETA [arrogantly] Chief nurse to—

CÆSAR [cutting her short] I speak to the Queen Be silent [To Cleopatra] Is this how your servants know their places? Send her away, and do you [to the slave] do as the Queen has bidden [The slave lights the lamps Meanwhile Cleopatra stands hesitating, afraid of Ftatateeta] You are the Queen send her away

CLEOPATRA [cajoling] Ftatateeta, dear you must go away—just for a little

CÆSAR You are not commanding her to go away you are begging her You are no Queen You will be eaten Farewell [He turns to go]

CLEOPATRA [clutching him] No, no, no Dont leave me

CÆSAR A Roman does not stay with queens who are afraid of their slaves

CLEOPATRA I am not afraid Indeed I am not afraid

FTATATEETA We shall see who is afraid here [Menacingly] Cleopatra—

CÆSAR 'On your knees, woman am I also a child that you dare trifle with me? [He points to the floor at Cleopatra's feet Ftatateeta, half coned, half savage, hesitates Cæsar calls to the Nubian] Slave [The Nubian comes to him] Can you cut off a head? [The Nubian nods and grins ecstatically, showing all his teeth Cæsar takes his sword by the scabbard, ready to offer the hilt to the Nubian, and turns again to Ftatateeta, repeating his gesture] Have you remembered yourself, mistress?

Ftatateeta, crushed, kneels before Cleopatra, who can hardly believe her eyes

FTATATEETA [hoarsely] O Queen, forget not thy servant in the days of thy greatness

CLEOPATRA [blazing with excitement] Go Begone Go away [Ftatateeta rises with stooped head, and moves backwards towards the door Cleopatra watches her submission eagerly, almost clapping her hands, which are trembling Suddenly she cries] Give me something to beat her with [She snatches a snake-skin from the throne and dashes after Ftatateeta, whirling it like a scourge in the air Cæsar makes a bound and manages to catch her and hold her while Ftatateeta escapes]

CÆSAR You scratch, kitten, do you?

CLEOPATRA [breaking from him] I will beat somebody I will beat him [She attacks the slave] There, there, there! [The slave flies for his life up the corridor and vanishes. She throws the snake-skin away and jumps on the step of the throne with her arms waving, crying] I am a real Queen at last—a real, real Queen! Cleopatra the Queen! [Cæsar shakes his head dubiously, the advantage of the change seeming open to question from the point of view of the general welfare of Egypt. She turns and looks at him exultantly. Then she jumps down from the steps, runs to him, and flings her arms round him rapturously, crying] Oh, I love you for making me a Queen

CÆSAR But queens love only kings

CLEOPATRA I will make all the men I love kings. I will make you a king. I will have many young kings, with round, strong arms, and when I am tired of them I will whip them to death, but you shall always be my king my nice, kind, wise, good old king

CÆSAR Oh, my wrinkles, my wrinkles! And my child's heart! You will be the most dangerous of all Cæsar's conquests

CLEOPATRA [appalled] Cæsar! I forgot Cæsar [Anxiously] You will tell him that I am a Queen, will you not?—a real Queen. Listen! [stealthily coaxing him] let us run away and hide until Cæsar is gone

CÆSAR If you fear Cæsar, you are no true queen, and though you were to hide beneath a pyramid, he would go straight to it and lift it with one hand. And then—! [he chops his teeth together]

CLEOPATRA [trembling] Oh!

CÆSAR Be afraid if you dare [The note of the bucina resounds again in the distance. She moans with fear. Cæsar exults in it, exclaiming] Aha! Cæsar approaches the throne of Cleopatra. Come take your place [He takes her hand and leads her to the throne. She is too down-cast to speak] Ho, there, Teetatota. How do you call your slaves?

CLEOPATRA [spiritlessly, as she sinks on the throne and covers her face, shaking] Clap your hands

He claps his hands. Ftatateeta returns

CÆSAR Bring the Queen's robes, and her crown, and her women, and prepare her

CLEOPATRA [eagerly—recovering herself a little] Yes, the crown, Ftatateeta. I shall wear the crown

FTATATEETA For whom must the Queen put on her state?

CÆSAR For a citizen of Rome. A king of kings, Totateeta

CLEOPATRA [stamping at her] How dare you ask questions? Go and do as you are told [Ftatateeta goes out with a grim smile. Cleopatra goes on eagerly, to Cæsar] Cæsar will know that I am a Queen when he sees my crown and robes, will he not?

CÆSAR No. How shall he know that you are not a slave dressed up in the Queen's ornaments?

CLEOPATRA You must tell him

CÆSAR He will not ask me. He will know Cleopatra by her pride, her courage, her majesty, and her beauty [She looks very doubtful] Are you trembling?

CLEOPATRA [shivering with dread] No, I—I— [in a very sickly voice] No

Ftatateeta and three women come in with the regalia

FTATATEETA Of all the Queen's women, these three alone are left. The rest are fled [They begin to deck Cleopatra, who submits, pale and motionless]

CÆSAR Good, good. Three are enough. Poor Cæsar generally has to dress himself

FTATATEETA [contemptuously] The queen of Egypt is not a Roman barbarian [To Cleopatra] Be brave, my nursing. Hold up your head before this stranger

CÆSAR [admiring Cleopatra, and placing the crown on her head] Is it sweet or bitter to be a Queen, Cleopatra?

CLEOPATRA Bitter

CÆSAR Cast out fear, and you will conquer. Cæsar. Tota are the Romans at hand?

FTATATEETA They are at hand, and the guard has fled

THE WOMEN [wailing subduedly] Woe to us! The Nubian comes running down the hall

NUBIAN The Romans are in the courtyard [He bolts through the door. With a shriek, the women fly after him. Ftatateeta's jaw expresses savage resolution. She does not budge. Cleopatra can hardly restrain herself from following them. Cæsar grips her wrist, and looks steadfastly at her. She stands like a martyr]

CÆSAR The Queen must face Cæsar alone. Answer 'So be it'

CLEOPATRA [white] So be it

CÆSAR [releasing her] Good

A tramp and tumult of armed men is heard. Cleopatra's terror increases. The bucina sounds close at hand, followed by a formidable clangor of trumpets. This is too much for Cleopatra. She utters a cry and darts towards the door. Ftatateeta stops her ruthlessly

FIAT-TESTA You are my nursing. You have said "So be it"—and if you die for it, you must make the Queen's word good [She hands Cleopatra to Cæsar, who takes her back, almost beside herself with apprehension to the throne]

CÆSAR. Now if you quail— [He seats himself on the throne]

She stands on the step, all but unconscious waiting for death. The Roman soldiers troop in tumultuously through the corridor, headed by their ensign with his eagle and their buccinator, a burly fellow with his instrument coiled round his body its brazen bell shaped like the head of a howling wolf. When they reach the transept, they stare in amazement at the throne; dress into ordered rank opposite it; draw their swords and lift them in the air with a shout of Hail. Cæsar. Cleopatra turns and stares mildly at Cæsar; grasps the situation; and, with a great sob of relief, falls into his arms

ACT II

Alexandria A hall on the first floor of the Palace, ending in a loggia approached by two steps. Through the arches of the loggia the Mediterranean can be seen, bright in the morning sun. The clean lofty walls, painted with a procession of the Egyptian theocracy, presented in profile as flat ornament, and the absence of mirrors, sharp perspectives, stuffy upholstery and textiles, make the place handsome, wholesome, simple and cool, or, as a rich English manufacturer would express it, poor, bare, ridiculous and unhomey. For Tottenham Court Road civilization is to this Egyptian civilization as glass bead and tattoo civilization is to Tottenham Court Road

The young king Ptolemy Dionysus (aged ten) is at the top of the steps or his way in through the loggia, led by his guardian Pothinus, who has him by the hand. The court is assembled to receive him. It is made up of men and women (some of the women being officials) of various complexions and races mostly Egyptian, some of them comparatively fair, from lower Egypt, some much darker, from upper Egypt; with a few Greeks and Jews. Prominent in a group on Ptolemy's right hand is Theodotus, Ptolemy's tutor. Another group, on Ptolemy's left, is headed by Achilles the general of Ptolemy's troops. Theodotus is a little old man, whose features are as cramped and wizened as his limbs, except his tall straight forehead, which occupies more space than all the rest of his face. He maintains an air of magpie keenness and profundity, listening to what the others say with the sarcastic vigilance of a philosopher listening to the exercises of his disciples. Achilles is a tall handsome man of thirty-five with a fire black beard curled like the coat of a poodle. Apparently not a clever man, but distinguished and dignified. Pothinus is a vigorous man of fifty a curiously passionate energetic and quick witted but of common mind and character; impatient and unable to control his temper. He has fire tawny hair, like fur. Ptolemy the King, looks much older than an English boy of ten, but he has the childish air, the habit of being in leading strings, the mixture of impotence and petulance, the appearance of being excessively washed, combed and dressed by other hands, which is exhibited by court-bred princes of all ages

All receive the King with reverence. He comes down the steps to a chair of state which stands a little to his right, the only seat in the hall. Taking his place before it he looks nervously for instructions to Pothinus who places himself at his left hand

POTHINUS The king of Egypt has a word to speak.

THEODOTUS [in a squeal which he makes impressive by sheer self-opinionativeness] Peace for the King's word!

PTOLEMY [without any vocal inflections he is evidently repeating a lesson] Take notice of this all of you I am the first-born son of Auletes the Flute Blower who was your King. My sister Berenice drove him from his throne and reigned in his stead but—but—[he hesitates]

POTHINUS [stealthily prompting]—but the gods would not suffer—

PTOLEMY. Yes—the gods would not suffer—not suffer—[He stops; then, crestfallen] I forget what the gods would not suffer

THEODOTUS Let Pothinus, the King's guardian, speak for the King

POTHINUS [suppressing his impatience with difficulty] The King wished to say that the gods would not suffer the impiety of his sister to go unpunished

PTOLEMY [hastily] Yes I remember the rest of it. [He resumes his monologue] Therefore the gods sent a stranger one Mark Antony a Roman captain of horsemen across the sands of the desert and he set my father again upon the throne. And my father took Berenice my sister and struck her head off. And now that my father is dead yet another of his daughters my sister Cleopatra would snatch the kingdom from me and reign in my place But the gods would not suffer—[Pothinus coughs admonitory]—the gods—the gods would not suffer—

POTHINUS [prompting]—will not maintain—

PTOLEMY Oh yes—will not maintain such iniquity they will give her head to the axe even as her sister's But with the help of the witch Tatateeta she hath cast a spell on the Roman Julius Cæsar to make him uphold her false pretence to rule in Egypt Take notice then that I will not suffer—that I will not suffer—[pettishly, to Pothinus] What is it that I will not suffer?

POTHINUS [suddenly exploding with all the force and emphasis of political passion] The King will not suffer a foreigner to take from him the throne of our Egypt [A shout of applause] Tell the King, Achilles, how many soldiers and horsemen follow the Roman?

THEODOTUS Let the King's general speak!

ACHILLAS But two Roman legions, O King Three thousand soldiers and scarce a thousand horsemen

The court breaks into derisive laughter, and a great chattering begins, amid which Rufio, a Roman officer, appears in the loggia He is a burly, black-bearded man of middle age, very blunt, prompt and rough, with small clear eyes, and plump nose and cheeks, which, however, like the rest of his flesh, are in iron-hard condition

RUFIO [from the steps] Peace, ho! [The laughter and chatter cease abruptly] Cæsar approaches

THEODOTUS [with much presence of mind] The King permits the Roman commander to enter!

Cæsar, plainly dressed, but wearing an oak wreath to conceal his baldness, enters from the loggia, attended by Britannus, his secretary, a Briton, about forty, tall, solemn, and already slightly bald, with a heavy, drooping, hazel-colored moustache trained so as to lose its ends in a pair of trim whiskers He is carefully dressed in blue, with portfolio, inkhorn, and reed pen at his girdle His serious air and sense of the importance of the business in hand is in marked contrast to the kindly interest of Cæsar, who looks at the scene, which is new to him, with the frank curiosity of a child, and then turns to the king's chair Britannus and Rufio posting themselves near the steps at the other side

CÆSAR [looking at Pothinus and Ptolemy]

Which is the King? the man or the boy?

POTHINUS I am Pothinus, the guardian of my lord the King

CÆSAR [patting Ptolemy kindly on the shoulder] So you are the King Dull work at your age, eh? [To Pothinus] Your servant, Pothinus [He turns away unconcernedly and comes slowly along the middle of the hall, looking from side to side at the courtiers until he reaches Achilles] And this gentleman?

THEODOTUS Achilles, the King's general

CÆSAR [to Achilles, very friendly] A general, eh? I am a general myself But I began too old, too old Health and many victories, Achilles!

ACHILLAS As the gods will, Cæsar

CÆSAR [turning to Theodotus] And you, sir, are—?

THEODOTUS Theodotus, the King's tutor

CÆSAR You teach men how to be kings, Theodotus That is very clever of you [Looking at the gods on the walls as he turns away from Theodotus and goes up again to Pothinus] And this place?

POTHINUS The council chamber of the chancellors of the King's treasury, Cæsar

CÆSAR Ah! that reminds me I want some money

POTHINUS The King's treasury is poor, Cæsar

CÆSAR Yes I notice that there is but one chair in it

RUFIO [shouting gruffly] Bring a chair there, some of you, for Cæsar

PTOLEMY [rising shyly to offer his chair] Cæsar—

CÆSAR [kindly] No, no, my boy that is your chair of state Sit down

He makes Ptolemy sit down again Meanwhile Rufio, looking about him, sees in the nearest corner an image of the god Ra, represented as a seated man with the head of a hawk Before the image is a bronze tripod, about as large as a three-legged stool, with a stick of incense burning on it Rufio, with Roman resourcefulness and indifference to foreign superstitions, promptly seizes the tripod, shakes off the incense, blows away the ash, and dumps it down behind Cæsar, nearly in the middle of the hall

RUFIO Sit on that, Cæsar

A shiver runs through the court, followed by a hissing whisper of Sacrilege!

CÆSAR [seating himself] Now, Pothinus, to business I am badly in want of money

BRITANNUS [disapproving of these informal] expressions] My master would say that there is a lawful debt due to Rome by Egypt, contracted by the King's deceased father to the Triumvirate: and that it is Caesar's duty to his country to require immediate payment.

CÆSAR [bla-dy] Ah I forgot. I have not made my companions known here. Pothinus this is Britannus, my secretary. He is an islander from the western end of the world, a day's voyage from Gaul. [Britannus bows stiffly] This gentleman is Rufio my comrade in arms. [Rufio nods] Pothinus I want 1 600 talents

The courtiers, appalled, murmur loudly and Theodotus and Achilles appeal mutely to one another against so monstrous a demand.

POTHINUS [aghast] Forty million sesterces! Impossible. There is not so much money in the King's treasury.

CÆSAR [encouragingly] Only sixteen hundred talents, Pothinus. Why count it in sesterces? A sesterce is only worth a loaf of bread.

POTHINUS And a talent is worth a race-horse. I say it is impossible. We have been at strife here, because the King's sister Cleopatra falsely claims his throne. The King's taxes have not been collected for a whole year.

CÆSAR. Yes they have. Pothinus. My officers have been collecting them all morning [Revered whisper and sensation of without some stifled laughter, among the courtiers]

RUFIO [bluntly] You must pay, Pothinus. Why waste words? You are getting off cheaply enough.

POTHINUS [bitterly] Is it possible that Caesar, the conqueror of the world, has time to occupy himself with such a trifle as our taxes?

CÆSAR. My friend: taxes are the chief business of a conqueror of the world.

POTHINUS Then take warning, Caesar. This day, the treasures of the temple and the gold of the King's treasury shall be sent to the mint to be melted down for our ransom in the sight of the people. They shall see us sitting under bare walls and drinking from wooden cups. And their wrath be on your head. Caesar, if you force us to this sacrifice.

CÆSAR. Do not fear. Pothinus: the people know how well wine tastes in wooden cups. In return for your bounty, I will send this dispute about the throne for you, if you will. What say you?

POTHINUS If I say no, will that hinder you?

RUFIO [defiantly] No

CÆSAR. You say the matter has been at issue for a year. Pothinus. May I have ten minutes at it?

POTHINUS You will do your pleasure, doubtless

CÆSAR. Good! But first, let us have Cleopatra here.

THEODOTUS She is not in Alexandria she is fled into Syria.

CÆSAR. I think not. [To Rufio] Call Tot-teeta.

RUFIO [Calling] Ho there. Teetateeta.

Flaccetea enters the loggia and stands arrogantly at the top of the steps

FLACCETEIA. Who pronounces the name of Flacceteia, the Queen's chief nurse?

CÆSAR. Nobody can pronounce it. Tot, except yourself. Where is your mistress?

Cleopatra, who is hiding behind Flacceteia, peeps out at them laughing. Caesar rises CÆSAR. Will the Queen favor us with her presence for a moment?

CLEOPATRA [pushing Flacceteia aside and standing haughtily on the brink of the steps] Am I to behave like a Queen?

CÆSAR. Yes.

Cleopatra indignantly comes down to the chair of state; seizes Ptolemy, drags him out of his seat; then takes his place in the chair. Flacceteia seats herself on the top of the loggia, and sits there, watching the scene with sly, bare interest

POTLEMY [mortified, and struggling with his tears] Caesar, this is how she treats me always. If I am a king why is she allowed to take everything from me?

CLEOPATRA. You are not to be King, you little cry-baby. You are to be eaten by the Romans.

CÆSAR [stretched by Ptolemy's distress] Come here, my boy, and stand by me.

Ptolemy goes over to Caesar, who, removing his seat on the tripod, takes the boy's hand to encourage him. Cleopatra, furiously jealous, rises and glares at them.

CLEOPATRA [with forcing cheer] Take your throne: I don't want it. [She flings away from the chair, and approaches Ptolemy who shrinks from her] Go this instant and sit down in your place.

CÆSAR. Go Ptolemy. Always take a throne when it is offered to you.

RUFIO. I hope you will have the good sense to follow your own advice when we return to Rome, Caesar.

Ptolemy slowly goes back to the throne, giving Cleopatra a wide berth, in evident fear of her hands. She takes his place beside Cæsar

CÆSAR Pothinus—

CLEOPATRA [interrupting him] Are you not going to speak to me?

CÆSAR Be quiet. Open your mouth again before I give you leave, and you shall be eaten.

CLEOPATRA I am not afraid. A queen must not be afraid. Eat my husband there, if you like he is afraid.

CÆSAR [starting] Your husband! What do you mean?

CLEOPATRA [pointing to Ptolemy] That little thing.

The two Romans and the Briton stare at one another in amazement

THEODOTUS Cæsar, you are a stranger here, and not conversant with our laws. The kings and queens of Egypt may not marry except with their own royal blood. Ptolemy and Cleopatra are born king and consort just as they are born brother and sister.

BRITANNUS [shocked] Cæsar, this is not proper.

THEODOTUS [outraged] How!

CÆSAR [recovering his self-possession] Pardon him, Theodotus. He is a barbarian, and thinks that the customs of his tribe and island are the laws of nature.

BRITANNUS On the contrary, Cæsar, it is these Egyptians who are barbarians, and you do wrong to encourage them. I say it is a scandal.

CÆSAR Scandal or not, my friend, it opens the gate of peace. [He addresses Pothinus seriously] Pothinus, hear what I propose.

RUFIO Hear Cæsar there.

CÆSAR Ptolemy and Cleopatra shall reign jointly in Egypt.

ACHILLAS What of the King's younger brother and Cleopatra's younger sister?

RUFIO [explaining] There is another little Ptolemy, Cæsar, so they tell me.

CÆSAR Well, the little Ptolemy can marry the other sister, and we will make them both a present of Cyprus.

POTHINUS [impatiently] Cyprus is of no use to anybody.

CÆSAR No matter you shall have it for the sake of peace.

BRITANNUS [unconsciously anticipating a later statesman] Peace with honor, Pothinus.

POTHINUS [mutinously] Cæsar, be honest.

The money you demand is the price of our freedom. Take it, and leave us to settle our own affairs.

THE BOLDER COURTIERS [encouraged by Pothinus's tone and Cæsar's quietness] Yes, yes Egypt for the Egyptians!

The conference now becomes an altercation, the Egyptians becoming more and more heated. Cæsar remains unruffled, but Rufio grows fiercer and doggeder, and Britannus haughtily indignant.

RUFIO [contemptuously] Egypt for the Egyptians! Do you forget that there is a Roman army of occupation here, left by Aulus Gabinus when he set up your toy king for you?

ACHILLAS [suddenly asserting himself] And now under my command I am the Roman general here, Cæsar.

CÆSAR [ticked by the humor of the situation] And also the Egyptian general, eh?

POTHINUS [triumphantly] That is so, Cæsar.

CÆSAR [to Achillas] So you can make war on the Egyptians in the name of Rome, and on the Romans—on me, if necessary—in the name of Egypt?

ACHILLAS That is so, Cæsar.

CÆSAR And which side are you on at present, if I may presume to ask, general?

ACHILLAS On the side of the right and of the gods.

CÆSAR Hm! How many men have you?

ACHILLAS That will appear when I take the field.

RUFIO [truculently] Are your men Romans? If not, it matters not how many there are, provided you are no stronger than 500 to ten.

POTHINUS It is useless to try to bluff us, Rufio. Cæsar has been defeated before and may be defeated again. A few weeks ago Cæsar was flying for his life before Pompey, a few months hence he may be flying for his life before Cato and Juba of Numidia, the African King.

ACHILLAS [following up Pothinus's speech menacingly] What can you do with 1,000 men?

THEODOTUS [following up Achillas's speech with a raucous squeal] And without money! Away with you!

ALL THE COURTIERS [shouting fiercely and crowding towards Cæsar] Away with you Egypt for the Egyptians! Begone!

Rufio bites his beard, too angry to speak. Cæsar sits as comfortably as if he were at breakfast, and the cat were clamoring for a piece of

Finnan-haddie

CLEOPATRA Why do you let them talk to you like that, Cæsar? Are you afraid?

CÆSAR Why, my dear what they say is quite true

CLEOPATRA But if you go away, I shall not be Queen

CÆSAR I shall not go away until you are Queen

POTHINUS Achillas if you are not a fool, you will take that girl whilst she is under your hand

RUFIO [daring them] Why not take Cæsar as well, Achillas?

POTHINUS [retorting the defiance with interest] Well said, Rufio Why not?

RUFIO Try, Achillas [Calling] Guard there The loggia immediately fills with Cæsar's soldiers, who stand, sword in hand, at the top of the steps, waiting the word to charge from their centurion, who carries a cudgel For a moment the Egyptians face them proudly then they retire sullenly to their former places

BRITANNUS You are Cæsar's prisoners, all of you

CÆSAR [benevolently] Oh no, no no By no means Cæsar's guests, gentlemen

CLEOPATRA Wont you cut their heads off?

CÆSAR What! Cut off your brother's head?

CLEOPATRA Why not? He would cut off mine, if he got the chance Wouldnt you, Ptolemy?

PTOLEMY [pale and obstinate] I would I will, too, when I grow up

Cleopatra is rent by a struggle between her newly-acquired dignity as a queen, and a strong impulse to put out her tongue at him She takes no part in the scene which follows, but natches it with curiosity and wonder, fidgeting with the restlessness of a child, and sitting down on Cæsar's tripod when he rises

POTHINUS Cæsar if you attempt to detain us—

RUFIO He will succeed Egyptian make up your mind to that. We hold the palace, the beach, and the eastern harbor The road to Rome is open, and you shall travel it if Cæsar chooses

CÆSAR [courteously] I could do no less, Pothinus to secure the retreat of my own soldiers I am accountable for every life among them But you are free to go So are all here, and in the palace

RUFIO [aghast at this clemency] What! Renegades and all?

CÆSAR [softening the expression] Roman army of occupation and all Rufio

POTHINUS [bewildered] But—but—but—

CÆSAR Well my friend?

POTHINUS You are turning us out of our own palace into the streets, and you tell us with a grand air that we are free to go! It is for you to go

CÆSAR Your friends are in the street, Pothinus You will be safer there

POTHINUS This is a trick I am the king's guardian I refuse to stir I stand on my right here Where is your right?

CÆSAR It is in Rufio's scabbard, Pothinus I may not be able to keep it there if you wait too long

Sensation

POTHINUS [bitterly] And this is Roman justice!

THEODOTUS But not Roman gratitude, I hope

CÆSAR Gratitude! Am I in your debt for any service, gentlemen?

THEODOTUS Is Cæsar's life of so little account to him that he forgets that we have saved it?

CÆSAR My life! Is that all?

THEODOTUS Your life Your laurels Your future

POTHINUS It is true I can call a witness to prove that but for us, the Roman army of occupation led by the greatest soldier in the world would now have Cæsar at its mercy [Calling through the loggia] Ho, there, Lucius Septimius [Cæsar starts, deeply moved] if my voice can reach you come forth and testify before Cæsar

CÆSAR [shrinking] No, no

THEODOTUS Yes, I say Let the military tribune bear witness

Lucius Septimius, a clean shaven, trim athlete of about 40, with symmetrical features, resolute mouth, and handsome, thin Roman nose, in the dress of a Roman officer, comes in through the loggia and confronts Cæsar, who hides his face with his robe for a moment, then, mastering himself, drops it, and confronts the tribune with dignity

POTHINUS Bear witness, Lucius Septimius Cæsar came hither in pursuit of his foe Did we shelter his foe?

LUCIUS As Pompey's foot touched the Egyptian shore, his head fell by the stroke of my sword

THEODOTUS [with viperish relish] Under the eyes of his wife and child! Remember that, Cæsar! They saw it from the ship he had just left. We have given you a full and sweet measure of vengeance.

CÆSAR [with horror] Vengeance!

POTHINUS Our first gift to you, as your galley came into the roadstead, was the head of your rival for the empire of the world. Bear witness, Lucius Septimius, is it not so?

LUCIUS It is so. With this hand, that slew Pompey, I placed his head at the feet of Cæsar.

CÆSAR Murderer! So would you have slain Cæsar, had Pompey been victorious at Pharsalia.

LUCIUS Woe to the vanquished, Cæsar! When I served Pompey, I slew as good men as he, only because he conquered them. His turn came at last.

THEODOTUS [flatteringly] The deed was not yours, Cæsar, but ours—nay, mine, for it was done by my counsel. Thanks to us, you keep your reputation for clemency, and have your vengeance too.

CÆSAR Vengeance! Vengeance!! Oh, if I could stoop to vengeance, what would I not exact from you as the price of this murdered man's blood? [They shrink back, appalled and disconcerted] Was he not my son-in-law, my ancient friend, for 20 years the master of great Rome, for 30 years the compeller of victory? Did not I, as a Roman, share his glory? Was the Fate that forced us to fight for the mastery of the world, of our making? Am I Julius Cæsar, or am I a wolf, that you fling to me the grey head of the old soldier, the laurelled conqueror, the mighty Roman, treacherously struck down by this callous ruffian, and then claim my gratitude for it! [To Lucius Septimius] Begone, you fill me with horror.

LUCIUS [cold and undaunted] Pshaw! You have seen severed heads before, Cæsar, and severed right hands too, I think, some thousands of them, in Gaul, after you vanquished Vercingetorix. Did you spare him, with all your clemency? Was that vengeance?

CÆSAR No, by the gods! would that it had been! Vengeance at least is human. No, I say those severed right hands, and the brave Vercingetorix basely strangled in a vault beneath the Capitol, were [with shuddering sature] a wise severity, a necessary protection to the commonwealth, a duty of statesmanship—folles and fictions ten times bloodier than honest vengeance! What a fool was I then! To think that men's lives should be at the mercy of such fools! [Humbly] Lucius Septimius, pardon me. Why should the slayer of Vercingetorix rebuke the slayer of Pompey? You are free to go with the rest. Or stay if you will. I will find a place for you in my service.

LUCIUS The odds are against you, Cæsar. I go. [He turns to go out through the loggia]

RUFIO [full of wrath at seeing his prey escaping] That means that he is a Republican.

LUCIUS [turning defiantly on the loggia steps] And what are you?

RUFIO A Cæsarian, like all Cæsar's soldiers.

CÆSAR [courteously] Lucius, believe me, Cæsar is no Cæsarian. Were Rome a true republic, then were Cæsar the first of Republicans. But you have made your choice. Farewell.

LUCIUS Farewell. Come, Achilles, whilst there is yet time.

Cæsar, seeing that Rufio's temper threatens to get the worse of him, puts his hand on his shoulder and brings him down the hall out of harm's way, Britannus accompanying them and posting himself on Cæsar's right hand. This movement brings the three in a little group to the place occupied by Achilles, who moves haughtily away and joins Theodotus on the other side. Lucius Septimius goes out through the soldiers in the loggia. Pothinus, Theodotus and Achilles follow him with the courtiers, very mistrustful of the soldiers, who close up in their rear and go out after them, keeping them moving without much ceremony. The King is left in his chair, piteous, obstinate, with twitching face and fingers. During these movements Rufio maintains an energetic grumbling, as follows—

RUFIO [as Lucius departs] Do you suppose he would let us go if he had our heads in his hands?

CÆSAR I have no right to suppose that his ways are any baser than mine.

RUFIO Pshaw!

CÆSAR Rufio, if I take Lucius Septimius for my model, and become exactly like him, ceasing to be Cæsar, will you serve me still?

BRITANNUS Cæsar, this is not good sense. Your duty to Rome demands that her enemies should be prevented from doing further mischief. [Cæsar, whose delight in the moral eye-to-business of his British secretary is inexhaustible, smiles indulgently]

RUFIO It is no use talking to him, Brit

annus' you may save your breath to cool your porridge. But mark this Caesar. Clemency is very well for you, but what is it for your soldiers, who have to fight tomorrow the men you spared yesterday? You may give what orders you please: but I tell you that your next victory will be a massacre, thanks to your clemency. I, for one, will take no prisoners. I will kill my enemies in the field and then you can preach as much clemency as you please: I shall never have to fight them again. And now, with your leave, I will see these gentry off the premises. [He turns to go.]

CÆSAR [turning also and seeing Ptolemy] What! have they left the boy alone! Oh shame, shame!

RUFIO [taking Ptolemy's hand and making him rise] Come, your majesty!

PTOLEMY [to Cæsar, drawing away his hand from Rufio] Is he turning me out of my palace?

RUFIO [grin] You are welcome to stay if you wish.

CÆSAR [kindly] Go my boy. I will not harm you, but you will be safer away, among your friends. Here you are in the lion's mouth.

PTOLEMY [turning to go] It is not the lion I fear, but [looking at Rufio] the jackal. [He goes out through the loggia.]

CÆSAR [laughing approvingly] Brave boy!

CLEOPATRA [jealous of Cæsar's approbation, calling after Ptolemy] Little silly. You think that very clever.

CÆSAR. Britannus: attend the King. Give him in charge to that Pothinus fellow. [Britannus goes out after Ptolemy.]

RUFIO [pointing to Cleopatra] And this piece of goods? What is to be done with her? However, I suppose I may leave that to you. [He goes out through the loggia.]

CLEOPATRA [flashing suddenly and turning on Cæsar] Did you mean me to go with the rest?

CÆSAR [a little preoccupied, goes with a sigh to Ptolemy's chair, whilst she waits for his answer with red cheeks and clenched fists] You are free to do just as you please. Cleopatra.

CLEOPATRA. Then you do not care whether I stay or not?

CÆSAR [smiling] Of course I had rather you stayed.

CLEOPATRA. Much, much rather?

CÆSAR [nodding] Much, much rather.

CLEOPATRA. Then I consent to stay because I am asked. But I do not want to mind.

CÆSAR. That is quite understood [Calling]

Totateeta.

Flutateeta, still seated, turns her eyes on him with a sinister expression, but does not rise.

CLEOPATRA [with a splutter of laughter] Her name is not Totateeta, it is Flutateeta. [Calling] Flutateeta. [Flutateeta instantly rises and comes to Cleopatra.]

CÆSAR [stumbling over the name] Flutateeta will forgive the erring tongue of a Roman. Totateeta: the Queen will hold her state here in Alexandria. Engage women to attend upon her; and do all that is needful.

FLUTATEETA. Am I then the mistress of the Queen's household?

CLEOPATRA [starchily] No: I am the mistress of the Queen's household. Go and do as you are told, or I will have you thrown into the Nile this very afternoon, to poison the poor crocodiles.

CÆSAR [shocked] Oh no no.

CLEOPATRA. Oh yes yes You are very sentimental Cæsar: but you are clever and if you do as I tell you you will soon learn to govern.

Cæsar, quite disconcerted by this impudence, turns to his chair and stares at her.

Flutateeta, smiling grimly and showing a splendid set of teeth goes leaving them alone together.

CÆSAR. Cleopatra: I really think I must eat you, after all.

CLEOPATRA [kneeling beside him and looking at him with eager interest, half real half affected to show how intelligent she is] You must not talk to me now as if I were a child.

CÆSAR. You have been growing up since the sphinx introduced us the other night: and you think you know more than I do already.

CLEOPATRA [taken down and anxious to justify herself] No: that would be very silly of me, of course I know that. But—[suddenly] are you angry with me?

CÆSAR. No.

CLEOPATRA [only half believing him] Then why are you so thoughtful?

CÆSAR [rising] I have work to do Cleopatra.

CLEOPATRA [drawing back] Work! [Offered] You are tired of talking to me: and that is your excuse to get away from me.

CÆSAR [sitting down again to appease her] Well well: another minute. But then—work!

CLEOPATRA. Work! what nonsense! You must remember that you are a king now I have made you one Kings dont work

CÆSAR Oh! Who told you that, little kitten? Eh?

CLEOPATRA My father was King of Egypt, and he never worked But he was a great king, and cut off my sister's head because she rebelled against him and took the throne from him

CÆSAR Well, and how did he get his throne back again?

CLEOPATRA [eagerly, her eyes lighting up] I will tell you A beautiful young man, with strong round arms, came over the desert with many horsemen, and slew my sister's husband and gave my father back his throne [Wistfully] I was only twelve then Oh, I wish he would come again, now that I am a queen I would make him my husband

CÆSAR It might be managed, perhaps, for it was I who sent that beautiful young man to help your father

CLEOPATRA [enraptured] You know him!

CÆSAR [nodding] I do

CLEOPATRA Has he come with you? [Cæsar shakes his head she is cruelly disappointed] Oh, I wish he had, I wish he had If only I were a little older, so that he might not think me a mere kitten, as you do! But perhaps that is because you are old He is many many years younger than you, is he not?

CÆSAR [as if swallowing a pill] He is somewhat younger

CLEOPATRA Would he be my husband, do you think, if I asked him?

CÆSAR Very likely

CLEOPATRA But I should not like to ask him Could you not persuade him to ask me —without knowing that I wanted him to?

CÆSAR [touched by her innocence of the beautiful young man's character] My poor child!

CLEOPATRA Why do you say that as if you were sorry for me? Does he love anyone else?

CÆSAR I am afraid so

CLEOPATRA [tearfully] Then I shall not be his first love

CÆSAR Not quite the first He is greatly admired by women

CLEOPATRA I wish I could be the first But if he loves me, I will make him kill all the rest Tell me is he still beautiful? Do his strong round arms shine in the sun like marble?

CÆSAR He is in excellent condition—considering how much he eats and drinks

CLEOPATRA Oh, you must not say common, earthly things about him, for I love him He is a god

CÆSAR He is a great captain of horsemen, and swifter of foot than any other Roman

CLEOPATRA What is his real name?

CÆSAR [puzzled] His real name?

CLEOPATRA Yes I always call him Horus, because Horus is the most beautiful of our gods But I want to know his real name

CÆSAR His name is Mark Antony

CLEOPATRA [musically] Mark Antony, Mark Antony, Mark Antony! What a beautiful name! [She thrans her arms round Cæsar's neck] Oh, how I love you for sending him to help my father! Did you love my father very much?

CÆSAR No, my child, but your father, as you say, never worked I always work So when he lost his crown he had to promise me 16,000 talents to get it back for him

CLEOPATRA Did he ever pay you?

CÆSAR Not in full

CLEOPATRA He was quite right it was too dear The whole world is not worth 16,000 talents

CÆSAR That is perhaps true, Cleopatra Those Egyptians who work paid as much of it as he could drag from them The rest is still due But as I most likely shall not get it, I must go back to my work So you must run away for a little and send my secretary to me

CLEOPATRA [coaxing] No I want to stay and hear you talk about Mark Antony

CÆSAR But if I do not get to work, Pothinus and the rest of them will cut us off from the harbor, and then the way from Rome will be blocked

CLEOPATRA No matter I dont want you to go back to Rome

CÆSAR But you want Mark Antony to come from it

CLEOPATRA [springing up] Oh yes, yes, yes I forgot Go quickly and work, Cæsar, and keep the way over the sea open for my Mark Antony [She runs out through the loggia, kissing her hand to Mark Antony across the sea]

CÆSAR [going briskly up the middle of the hall to the loggia steps] Ho, Britannus [He is startled by the entry of a wounded Roman soldier, who confronts him from the upper step] What now?

SOLDIER [pointing to his bandaged head] This, Cæsar, and two of my comrades killed in the market place

CÆSAR [quiet, but attending] Ay Why?

SOLDIER There is an army come to Alexandria, calling itself the Roman army

CÆSAR The Roman army of occupation Ay?

SOLDIER Commanded by one Achillas

CÆSAR Well?

SOLDIER The citizens rose against us when the army entered the gates I was with two others in the market place when the news came They set upon us I cut my way out, and here I am

CÆSAR Good I am glad to see you alive [Rufio enters the loggia hastily, passing behind the soldier to look out through one of the arches at the quay beneath] Rufio we are besieged RUFIO What! Already?

CÆSAR Now or tomorrow what does it matter? We shall be besieged

Britannus runs in

BRITANNUS Cæsar—

CÆSAR [anticipating him] Yes I know [Rufio and Britannus come down the hall from the loggia at opposite sides, past Cæsar, who waits for a moment near the step to say to the soldier] Comrade give the word to turn out on the beach and stand by the boats Get your wound attended to Go [The soldier hurries out Cæsar comes down the hall between Rufio and Britannus] Rufio we have some ships in the west harbor Burn them

RUFIO [staring] Burn them!!

CÆSAR Take every boat we have in the east harbor, and seize the Pharos—that island with the lighthouse Leave half our men behind to hold the beach and the quay outside this palace that is the way home

RUFIO [disapproving strongly] Are we to give up the city?

CÆSAR We have not got it, Rufio This palace we have, and—what is that building next door?

RUFIO The theatre

CÆSAR We will have that too it commands the strand For the rest, Egypt for the Egyptians!

RUFIO Well, you know best, I suppose Is that all?

CÆSAR That is all Are those ships burnt yet?

RUFIO Be easy I shall waste no more time [He runs out]

BRITANNUS Cæsar Pothinus demands speech of you In my opinion he needs a lesson His manner is most insolent

CÆSAR Where is he?

BRITANNUS He waits without

CÆSAR Ho there! admit Pothinus

Pothinus appears in the loggia, and comes down the hall very haughtily to Cæsar's left hand

CÆSAR Well, Pothinus?

POTHINUS I have brought you our ultimatum, Cæsar

CÆSAR Ultimatum! The door was open you should have gone out through it before you declared war You are my prisoner now [He goes to the chair and loosens his toga]

POTHINUS [scornfully] I your prisoner! Do you know that you are in Alexandria, and that King Ptolemy, with an army outnumbering your little troop a hundred to one, is in possession of Alexandria?

CÆSAR [unconcernedly taking off his toga and throwing it on the chair] Well, my friend, get out if you can And tell your friends not to kill any more Romans in the market place Otherwise my soldiers, who do not share my celebrated clemency, will probably kill you Britannus pass the word to the guard, and fetch my armor [Britannus runs out Rufio returns] Well?

RUFIO [pointing from the loggia to a cloud of smoke drifting over the harbor] See there! [Pothinus runs eagerly up the steps to look out]

CÆSAR What, ablaze already! Impossible!

RUFIO Yes, five good ships, and a barge laden with oil grappled to each But it is not my doing the Egyptians have saved me the trouble They have captured the west harbor

CÆSAR [anxiously] And the east harbor? The lighthouse, Rufio?

RUFIO [with a sudden splutter of raging ill usage, coming down to Cæsar and scolding him] Can I embark a legion in five minutes? The first cohort is already on the beach We can do no more If you want faster work, come and do it yourself

CÆSAR [soothing him] Good, good Patience, Rufio, patience

RUFIO Patience! Who is impatient here, you or I? Would I be here, if I could not oversee them from that balcony?

CÆSAR Forgive me, Rufio, and [anxiously] hurry them as much as—

He is interrupted by an outcry as of an old man in the extremity of misfortune It draws near rapidly, and Theodotus rushes in, tearing his hair, and squeaking the most lamentable exclamations Rufio steps back to stare at him, amazed at his frantic condition Pothinus turns to listen

THEODOTUS [on the steps, with uplifted arms] Horror unspeakable! Woe, alas! Help!

RUFIO What now?

CÆSAR [frowning] Who is slain?

THEODOTUS Slain! Oh, worse than the death of ten thousand men! Loss irreparable to mankind

RUFIO What has happened, man?

THEODOTUS [rushing down the hall between them] The fire has sprcad from your ships The first of the seven wonders of the world perishes The library of Alexandria is in flames

RUFIO Psha! [Quite relieved, he goes up to the loggia and watches the preparations of the troops on the beach]

CÆSAR Is that all?

THEODOTUS [unable to believe his senses] All! Cæsar will you go down to posterity as a barbarous soldier too ignorant to know the value of books?

CÆSAR Theodotus I am an author myself, and I tell you it is better that the Egyptians should live their lives than dream them away with the help of books

THEODOTUS [kneeling, with genuine literary emotion the passion of the pedant] Cæsar once in ten generations of men, the world gains an immortal book

CÆSAR [inflexible] If it did not flatter mankind, the common executioner would burn it

THEODOTUS Without history, death will lay you beside your meanest soldier

CÆSAR Death will do that in any case I ask no better grave

THEODOTUS What is burning there is the memory of mankind

CÆSAR A shameful memory Let it burn

THEODOTUS [wildly] Will you destroy the past?

CÆSAR Ay, and build the future with its ruins [Theodotus, in despair, strikes himself on the temples with his fists] But harken, Theodotus, teacher of kings you who valued Pompey's head no more than a shepherd values an onion, and who now kneel to me, with tears in your old eyes, to plead for a few sheepskins scrawled with errors I cannot spare you a man or a bucket of water just now, but you shall pass freely out of the palace Now, away with you to Achilles, and borrow his legions to put out the fire [He hurries him to the steps]

POTHINUS [significantly] You understand, Theodotus I remain a prisoner

THEODOTUS A prisoner!

CÆSAR Will you stay to talk whilst the memory of mankind is burning? [Calling through the loggia] Ho there! Pass Theodotus out [To Theodotus] Away with you

THEODOTUS [to Pothinus] I must go to save the library [He hurries out]

CÆSAR Follow him to the gate, Pothinus Bid him urge your people to kill no more of my soldiers, for your sake

POTHINUS My life will cost you dear if you take it, Cæsar [He goes out after Theodotus]

Rufio, absorbed in watching the embarkation, does not notice the departure of the two Egyptians

RUFIO [shouting from the loggia to the beach] All ready, there?

A CENTURION [from below] All ready We wait for Cæsar

CÆSAR Tell them Cæsar is coming—the rogues! [Calling] Britannicus [This magniloquent version of his secretary's name is one of Cæsar's jokes In later years it would have meant, quite seriously and officially, Conqueror of Britain]

RUFIO [calling down] Push off, all except the longboat Stand by it to embark, Cæsar's guard there [He leaves the balcony and comes down into the hall] Where are those Egyptians? Is this more clemency? Have you let them go?

CÆSAR [chuckling] I have let Theodotus go to save the library We must respect literature, Rufio

RUFIO [raging] Folly on folly's head! I believe if you could bring back all the dead of Spain, Gaul, and Thessaly to life, you would do it that we might have the trouble of fighting them over again

CÆSAR Might not the gods destroy the world if their only thought were to be at peace next year? [Rufio, out of all patience, turns away in anger Cæsar suddenly grips his sleeve, and adds slyly in his ear] Besides, my friend every Egyptian we imprison means imprisoning two Roman soldiers to guard him Eh?

RUFIO Agh! I might have known there was some fox's trick behind your fine talking [He gets away from Cæsar with an ill-humored shrug, and goes to the balcony for another look at the preparations, finally goes out]

CÆSAR Is Britannus asleep? I sent him for my armor an hour ago [Calling] Britannicus, thou British islander Britannicus!

Cleopatra runs in through the loggia with Cæsar's helmet and sword, snatched from Britannus, who follows her with a cuirass and greaves. They come down to Cæsar, she to his left hand, Britannus to his right

CLEOPATRA I am going to dress you, Cæsar. Sit down [He obeys]. These Roman helmets are so becoming! [She takes off his wreath]. Oh! [She bursts out laughing at him].

CÆSAR What are you laughing at?

CLEOPATRA You're bald [beginning with a big B, and ending with a splutter].

CÆSAR [almost annoyed]. Cleopatra! [He rises, for the convenience of Britannus, who puts the cuirass on him].

CLEOPATRA So that is why you wear the wreath—to hide it.

BRITANNUS Peace, Egyptian! they are the bays of the conqueror [He buckles the cuirass].

CLEOPATRA Peace, thou islander! [To Cæsar]. You should rub your head with strong spirits of sugar, Cæsar. That will make it grow.

CÆSAR [with a wry face]. Cleopatra, do you like to be reminded that you are very young?

CLEOPATRA [pouting]. No.

CÆSAR [sitting down again, and setting out his leg for Britannus, who kneels to put on his greaves]. Neither do I like to be reminded that I am—middle aged. Let me give you ten of my superfluous years. That will make you 26, and leave me only—no matter. Is it a bargain?

CLEOPATRA Agreed, 26, mind [She puts the helmet on him]. Oh! How nice! You look only about 50 in it!

BRITANNUS [looking up severely at Cleopatra]. You must not speak in this manner to Cæsar.

CLEOPATRA Is it true that when Cæsar caught you on that island, you were painted all over blue?

BRITANNUS Blue is the color worn by all Britons of good standing. In war we stain our bodies blue, so that though our enemies may strip us of our clothes and our lives, they cannot strip us of our respectability [He rises].

CLEOPATRA [with Cæsar's sword]. Let me hang this on. Now you look splendid. Have they made any statues of you in Rome?

CÆSAR Yes, many statues.

CLEOPATRA You must send for one and give it to me.

RUFIO [coming back into the loggia, more impatient than ever]. Now Cæsar, have you done talking? The moment your foot is aboard there will be no holding our men back: the boats will race one another for the lighthouse.

CÆSAR [drawing his sword and trying the edge]. Is this well set today, Britannicus? At Pharsalia it was as blunt as a barrel-hoop.

BRITANNUS It will split one of the Egyptian's hairs today, Cæsar. I have set it myself.

CLEOPATRA [suddenly throwing her arms in terror round Cæsar]. Oh, you are not really going into battle to be killed?

CÆSAR No, Cleopatra. No man goes to battle to be killed.

CLEOPATRA But they do get killed. My sister's husband was killed in battle. You must not go. Let him go [pointing to Rufio]. They all laugh at her. Oh please, please don't go. What will happen to me if you never come back?

CÆSAR [gravely]. Are you afraid?

CLEOPATRA [shrinking]. No.

CÆSAR [with quiet authority]. Go to the balcony, and you shall see us take the Pharos. You must learn to look on battles. Go [She goes, downcast, and looks out from the balcony]. That is well. Now, Rufio, March.

CLEOPATRA [suddenly clapping her hands]. Oh, you will not be able to go!

CÆSAR Why? What now?

CLEOPATRA They are drying up the harbor with buckets—a multitude of soldiers—over there [pointing out across the sea to her left].—they are dipping up the water.

RUFIO [hastening to look]. It is true. The Egyptian army! Crawling over the edge of the west harbor like locusts [With sudden anger he strides down to Cæsar]. This is your accursed clemency, Cæsar. Theodotus has brought them.

CÆSAR [delighted at his own cleverness]. I meant him to, Rufio. They have come to put out the fire. The library will keep them busy whilst we seize the lighthouse. Eh? [He rushes out buoyantly through the loggia, followed by Britannus].

RUFIO [disgustedly]. More foxying! Agh! [He rushes off. A shout from the soldiers announces the appearance of Cæsar below].

CENTURION [below]. All aboard. Give way there [Another shout].

CLEOPATRA [waving her scarf through the loggia arch]. Goodbye, goodbye, dear Cæsar. Come back safe. Goodbye!

ACT III

The edge of the quay in front of the palace, looking out nest over the east harbor of Alexandria to Pharos island, just off the end of which, and connected with it by a narrow mole, is the famous lighthouse, a gigantic square tower of white marble diminishing in size storey by storey to the top, on which stands a cresset beacon. The island is joined to the main land by the Heptastadium, a great mole or causeway five miles long bounding the harbor on the south.

In the middle of the quay a Roman sentinel stands on guard, pilum in hand, looking out to the lighthouse with strained attention, his left hand shading his eyes. The pilum is a stout wooden shaft 4½ feet long, with an iron spit about three feet long fixed in it. The sentinel is so absorbed that he does not notice the approach from the north end of the quay of four Egyptian market porters carrying rolls of carpet, preceded by Ftatalecta and Apollodorus. The Sicilian Apollodorus is a dashing young man of about 24, handsome and debonair, dressed with deliberate æstheticism in the most delicate purples and dove greys, with ornaments of bronze, oxidized silver, and stones of jade and agate. His sword, designed as carefully as a medieval cross, has a blued blade shewing through an openwork scabbard of purple leather and filagree. The porters, conducted by Ftatalecta, pass along the quay behind the sentinel to the steps of the palace, where they put down their bales and squat on the ground. Apollodorus does not pass along with them; he halts, amused by the preoccupation of the sentinel.

APOLLODORUS [calling to the sentinel] Who goes there, eh?

SENTINEL [starting violently and turning with his pilum at the charge, revealing himself as a small, wiry, sandy-haired, conscientious young man with an elderly face] Whats this? Stand Who are you?

APOLLODORUS I am Apollodorus the Sicilian. Why, man, what are you dreaming of? Since I came through the lines beyond the theatre there, I have brought my caravan past three sentinels, all so busy staring at the lighthouse that not one of them challenged me. Is this Roman discipline?

SENTINEL We are not here to watch the land but the sea. Cæsar has just landed on the Pharos [Looking at Ftatalecta] What have you here? Who is this piece of Egyptian crockery?

FTATATEETA Apollodorus rebuke this

Roman dog, and bid him bridle his tongue in the presence of Ftatalecta, the mistress of the Queen's household.

APOLLODORUS My friend this is a great lady who stands high with Cæsar.

SENTINEL [not at all impressed, pointing to the carpets] And what is all this truck?

APOLLODORUS Carpets for the furnishing of the Queen's apartments in the palace. I have picked them from the best carpets in the world, and the Queen shall choose the best of my choosing.

SENTINEL So you are the carpet merchant?

APOLLODORUS [hurl] My friend I am a patrician.

SENTINEL A patrician! A patrician keeping a shop instead of following arms!

APOLLODORUS I do not keep a shop. Mine is a temple of the arts. I am a worshipper of beauty. My calling is to choose beautiful things for beautiful queens. My motto is Art for Art's sake.

SENTINEL That is not the password.

APOLLODORUS It is a universal password.

SENTINEL I know nothing about universal passwords. Either give me the password for the day or get back to your shop.

Ftatalecta, roused by his hostile tone, steals towards the edge of the quay with the step of a panther, and gets behind him.

APOLLODORUS How if I do neither?

SENTINEL Then I will drive this pilum through you.

APOLLODORUS At your service, my friend [He draws his sword, and springs to his guard with unruffled grace].

FTATATEETA [suddenly seizing the sentinel's arms from behind] Thrust your knife into the dog's throat, Apollodorus [The chivalrous Apollodorus laughingly shakes his head, breaks ground away from the sentinel towards the palace, and lowers his point].

SENTINEL [struggling vainly] Curse on you! Let me go. Help ho!

FTATATEETA [lifting him from the ground] Stab the little Roman reptile. Spit him on your sword.

A couple of Roman soldiers, with a centurion, come running along the edge of the quay from the north end. They rescue their comrade, and throw off Ftatalecta, who is sent reeling away on the left hand of the sentinel.

CENTURION [an unattractive man of fifty, short in his speech and manners, with a vine-wood cudgel in his hand] How now? What is all this?

FTATATEETA [to Apollodorus] Why did you not stab him? There was time!

APOLLODORUS Centurion I am here by order of the Queen to—

CENTURION [interrupting him] The Queen! Yes, yes [to the sentinel] pass him in Pass all these bazaar people in to the Queen, with their goods But mind you pass no one out that you have not passed in—not even the Queen herself

SENTINEL This old woman is dangerous she is as strong as three men She wanted the merchant to stab me

APOLLODORUS Centurion I am not a merchant I am a patrician and a votary of art

CENTURION Is the woman your wife?

APOLLODORUS [horrified] No, no! [Correcting himself politely] Not that the lady is not a striking figure in her own way But [emphatically] she is not my wife

FTATATEETA [to the centurion] Roman I am Ftatateeta, the mistress of the Queen's household

CENTURION Keep your hands off our men, mistress, or I will have you pitched into the harbor, though you were as strong as ten men [To his men] To your posts march! [He returns with his men the way they came]

FTATATEETA [looking malignantly after him] We shall see whom Isis loves best herservant Ftatateeta or a dog of a Roman

SENTINEL [to Apollodorus, with a wave of his pilum towards the palace] Pass in there, and keep your distance [Turning to Ftatateeta] Come within a yard of me, you old crocodile, and I will give you this [the pilum] in your jaws

CLEOPATRA [calling from the palace] Ftatateeta, Ftatateeta

FTATATEETA [looking up, scandalized] Go from the window, go from the window There are men here

CLEOPATRA I am coming down

FTATATEETA [distracted] No, no What are you dreaming of? O ye gods, ye gods! Apollodorus bid your men pick up your bales, and in with me quickly

APOLLODORUS Obey the mistress of the Queen's household

FTATATEETA [impatiently, as the porters stoop to lift the bales] Quick, quick she will be out upon us [Cleopatra comes from the palace and runs across the quay to Ftatateeta] Oh that ever I was born!

CLEOPATRA [eagerly] Ftatateeta I have thought of something I want a boat—at once

FTATATEETA A boat! No, no you cannot Apollodorus speak to the queen

APOLLODORUS [gallantly] Beautiful queen I am Apollodorus the Sicilian, your servant, from the bazaar I have brought you the three most beautiful Persian carpets in the world to choose from

CLEOPATRA I have no time for carpets to-day Get me a boat

FTATATEETA What whim is this? You cannot go on the water except in the royal barge

APOLLODORUS Royalty, Ftatateeta, lies not in the barge but in the Queen [To Cleopatra] The touch of your majesty's foot on the gunwale of the meanest boat in the harbor will make it royal [He turns to the harbor and calls seaward] Ho there, boatman! Pull in to the steps CLEOPATRA Apollodorus you are my perfect knight, and I will always buy my carpets through you [Apollodorus bows joyously An oar appears above the quay, and the boatman, a bullet-headed, vivacious, grinning fellow, burnt almost black by the sun, comes up a flight of steps from the water on the sentinel's right, oar in hand, and nauts at the top] Can you row, Apollodorus?

APOLLODORUS My oars shall be your majesty's wings Whither shall I row my Queen?

CLEOPATRA To the lighthouse Come [She makes for the steps]

SENTINEL [opposing her with his pilum at the charge] Stand You cannot pass

CLEOPATRA [flushing angrily] How dare you? Do you know that I am the Queen?

SENTINEL I have my orders You cannot pass

CLEOPATRA I will make Cæsar have you killed if you do not obey me

SENTINEL He will do worse to me if I disobey my officer Stand back

CLEOPATRA Ftatateeta strangle him

SENTINEL [alarmed—looking apprehensively at Ftatateeta, and brandishing his pilum] Keep off, there

CLEOPATRA [running to Apollodorus] Apollodorus make your slaves help us

APOLLODORUS I shall not need their help, lady [He draws his sword] Now, soldier choose which weapon you will defend yourself with Shall it be sword against pilum, or sword against sword?

SENTINEL Roman against Sicilian, curse you Take that [He hurls his pilum at Apollodorus, who drops expertly on one knee The pilum passes whizzing over his head and falls harmless Apollodorus, with a cry of triumph, springs up and attacks the sentinel, who draws his sword and defends himself, crying] Ho there, guard Help!

Cleopatra, half frightened, half delighted, takes refuge near the palace, where the porters are squalling among the bales The boatman, alarmed, hurries down the steps out of harm's way, but stops, with his head just visible above the edge of the quay, to watch the fight The sentinel is handicapped by his fear of an attack in the rear from Ftatateeta, His swordsmanship, which is of a rough and ready sort, is heavily taxed, as he has occasionally to strike at her to keep her off between a blow and a guard with Apollodorus The centurion returns with several soldiers Apollodorus springs back towards Cleopatra as this reinforcement confronts him

CENTURION [coming to the sentinel's right hand] What is this? What now?

SENTINEL [panting] I could do well enough by myself if it weren't for the old woman Keep her off me that is all the help I need

CENTURION Make your report, soldier What has happened?

FTATATEETA Centurion he would have slain the Queen

SENTINEL [bluntly] I would, sooner than let her pass She wanted to take boat, and go—so she said—to the lighthouse I stopped her, as I was ordered to, and she set this fellow on me [He goes to pick up his pilum and returns to his place with it]

CENTURION [turning to Cleopatra] Cleopatra I am loth to offend you, but without Cæsar's express order we dare not let you pass beyond the Roman lines

APOLLODORUS Well, Centurion, and has not the lighthouse been within the Roman lines since Cæsar landed there?

CLEOPATRA Yes, yes Answer that, if you can

CENTURION [to Apollodorus] As for you, Apollodorus, you may thank the gods that you are not nailed to the palace door with a pilum for your meddling

APOLLODORUS [urbanely] My military friend, I was not born to be slain by so ugly a weapon When I fall, it will be [holding up his sword] by this white queen of arms, the only weapon fit for an artist And now that you are convinced that we do not want to go beyond the lines, let me finish killing your sentinel and depart with the Queen

CENTURION [as the sentinel makes an angry demonstration] Peace there, Cleopatra I must abide by my orders, and not by the subtleties of this Sicilian You must withdraw into the palace and examine your carpets there

CLEOPATRA [pouting] I will not I am the Queen Cæsar does not speak to me as you do Have Cæsar's centurions changed manners with his scullions?

CENTURION [sulkily] I do my duty That is enough for me

APOLLODORUS Majesty when a stupid man is doing something he is ashamed of, he always declares that it is his duty

CENTURION [angry] Apollodorus—

APOLLODORUS [interrupting him with defiant elegance] I will make amends for that insult with my sword at fitting time and place Who says artist, says duellist [To Cleopatra] Hear my counsel, star of the east Until word comes to these soldiers from Cæsar himself, you are a prisoner Let me go to him with a message from you, and a present, and before the sun has stooped half way to the arms of the sea, I will bring you back Cæsar's order of release

CENTURION [sneering at him] And you will sell the Queen the present, no doubt

APOLLODORUS Centurion the Queen shall have from me, without payment, as the unforced tribute of Sicilian taste to Egyptian beauty, the richest of these carpets for her present to Cæsar

CLEOPATRA [exultantly, to the centurion] Now you see what an ignorant common creature you are!

CENTURION [curtly] Well, a fool and his wares are soon parted [He turns to his men] Two more men to this post here and see that no one leaves the palace but this man and his merchandize If he draws his sword again inside the lines, kill him To your posts March

He goes out, leaving two auxiliary sentinels with the other

APOLLODORUS [with polite goodfellowship] My friends will you not enter the palace and bury our quarrel in a bowl of wine? [He takes out his purse, jingling the coins in it] The Queen has presents for you all

SENTINEL [very sulkily] You heard our orders Get about your business

FIRST AUXILIARY Yes you ought to know better Off with you

SECOND AUXILIARY [looking longingly at the purse—this sentinel is a hooknosed man, unlike his comrade, who is squab faced] Do not tantalize a poor man

APOLLODORUS [to Cleopatra] Pearl of Queens the centurion is at hand, and the Roman soldier is incorruptible when his officer is looking I must carry your word to Cæsar

CLEOPATRA [who has been meditating among the carpets] Are these carpets very heavy?

APOLLODORUS It matters not how heavy There are plenty of porters

CLEOPATRA How do they put the carpets into boats? Do they throw them down?

APOLLODORUS Not into small boats, majesty It would sink them

CLEOPATRA Not into that man's boat, for instance? [pointing to the boatman]

APOLLODORUS No Too small

CLEOPATRA But you can take a carpet to Cæsar in it if I send one?

APOLLODORUS Assuredly.

CLEOPATRA And you will have it carried gently down the steps and take great care of it?

APOLLODORUS Depend on me

CLEOPATRA Great, great care?

APOLLODORUS More than of my own body

CLEOPATRA You will promise me not to let the porters drop it or throw it about?

APOLLODORUS Place the most delicate glass goblet in the palace in the heart of the roll, Queen, and if it be broken, my head shall pay for it

CLEOPATRA Good Come, Ftateeta [Ftateeta comes to her Apollodorus offers to squire them into the palace] No, Apollodorus, you must not come I will choose a carpet for myself You must wait here [She runs into the palace]

APOLLODORUS [to the porters] Follow this lady [indicating Ftateeta], and obey her

The porters rise and take up their bales

FTATEETA [addressing the porters as if they were vermin] This way. And take your shoes off before you put your feet on those stairs

She goes in, followed by the porters with the carpets Meanwhile Apollodorus goes to the edge of the quay and looks out over the harbor The sentinels keep their eyes on him malignantly

APOLLODORUS [addressing the sentinel] My friend—

SENTINEL [rudely] Silence there

FIRST AUXILIARY Shut your muzzle, you.

SECOND AUXILIARY [in a half whisper, glancing apprehensively towards the north end of the quay] Cant you wait a bit?

APOLLODORUS Patience, worthy three-headed donkey [They mutter ferociously, but he is not at all intimidated] Listen were you set here to watch me, or to watch the Egyptians?

SENTINEL We know our duty

APOLLODORUS Then why don't you do it? There is something going on over there [pointing southward to the mole]

SENTINEL [sulkily] I do not need to be told what to do by the like of you

APOLLODORUS Blockhead [He begins shouting] Ho there, Centurion Ho!ho!

SENTINEL Curse your meddling [Shouting] Ho!ho! Alarm! Alarm!

FIRST AND SECOND AUXILIARIES Alarm! alarm! Ho!ho!

The Centurion comes running in with his guard

CENTURION What now? Has the old woman attacked you again? [Seeing Apollodorus] Are you here still?

APOLLODORUS [pointing as before] See there The Egyptians are moving They are going to recapture the Pharos They will attack by sea and land by land along the great mole, by sea from the west harbor Stir yourselves, my military friends the hunt is up [A clangor of trumpets from several points along the quay] Aha! I told you so

CENTURION [quickly] The two extra men pass the alarm to the south posts One man keep guard here The rest with me—quick

The two auxiliary sentinels run off to the south The centurion and his guard run off northward, and immediately afterwards the bucina sounds The four porters come from the palace carrying a carpet, followed by Ftateeta

SENTINEL [handling his pilum apprehensively] You again! [The porters stop]

FTATEETA Peace, Roman fellow you are now singlehanded Apollodorus this carpet is Cleopatra's present to Cæsar It has rolled up in it ten precious goblets of the thinnest Iberian crystal, and a hundred eggs of the sacred blue pigeon On your honor, let not one of them be broken

APOLLODORUS On my head be it! [To the porters] Into the boat with them carefully

The porters carry the carpet to the steps

FIRST PORTER [looking down at the boat] Beware what you do, sir Those eggs of which the lady speaks must weigh more than a pound apiece This boat is too small for such a load

BOATMAN [exultedly rushing up the steps] Oh thou injurious porter! Oh thou unnatural son of a she-camel! [To Apollodorus] My boat, sir, hath often carried five men Shall it not carry your lordship and a bale of pigeons' eggs? [To the porter] Thou mangedydromedary, the gods shall punish thee for this envious wickedness

FIRST PORTER [stolidly] I cannot quit this bale now to beat thee, but another day I will lie in wait for thee

APOLLODORUS [going between them] Peace there If the boat were but a single plank, I would get to Cæsar on it

FTATATEETA [anxiously] In the name of the gods, Apollodorus, run no risks with that bale

APOLLODORUS Fear not, thou venerable grotesque I guess its great worth [To the porters] Down with it, I say, and gently, or ye shall eat nothing but stick for ten days

The boatman goes down the steps, followed by the porters with the bale Ftataeteeta and Apollodorus watching from the edge

APOLLODORUS Gently, my sons, my children— [with sudden alarm] gently, ye dogs Lay it level in the stern—so—tis well

FTATATEETA [screaming down at one of the porters] Do not step on it, do not step on it Oh thou brute beast!

FIRST PORTER [ascending] Be not excited, mistress all is well

FTATATEETA [panting] All well! Oh, thou has given my heart a turn! [She clutches her side, gasping]

The four porters have now come up and are waiting at the stairhead to be paid

APOLLODORUS Here, ye hungry ones [He gives money to the first porter, who holds it in his hand to shew to the others They crowd greedily to see how much it is, quite prepared, after the Eastern fashion, to protest to heaven against their patron's stinginess But his liberality overpowers them]

FIRST PORTER O bounteous prince!

SECOND PORTER O lord of the bazaar!

THIRD PORTER O favored of the gods!

FOURTH PORTER O father to all the porters of the market!

SENTINEL [enviously, threatening them fiercely with his pilum] Hence, dogs off Out of this [They fly before him northward along the quay]

APOLLODORUS Farewell, Ftataeteeta I shall be at the lighthouse before the Egyptians [He descends the steps]

FTATATEETA The gods speed thee and protect my nursing!

The sentry returns from chasing the porters and looks down at the boat, standing near the stairhead lest Ftataeteeta should attempt to escape

APOLLODORUS [from beneath, as the boat moves off] Farewell, valiant pilum pitcher

SENTINEL Farewell, shopkeeper

APOLLODORUS Ha, ha! Pull, thou brave boatman, pull Soho-o-o-o-o! [He begins to sing in barecarolle measure to the rhythm of the oars]

My heart, my heart, spread out thy wings
Shake off thy heavy load of love—

Give me the oars, O son of a snail

SENTINEL [threatening Ftataeteeta] Now mistress back to your henhouse In with you

FTATATEETA [falling on her knees and stretching her hands over the waters] Gods of the seas, bear her safely to the shore!

SENTINEL Bear who safely? What do you mean?

FTATATEETA [looking darkly at him] Gods of Egypt and of Vengeance, let this Roman fool be beaten like a dog by his captain for suffering her to be taken over the waters SENTINEL Accursed one is she then in the boat? [He calls over the sea] Hoiho, there, boatman! Hoiho!

APOLLODORUS [singing in the distance]

My heart, my heart, be whole and free
Love is thine only enemy

Meanwhile Rufio, the morning's fighting done, sits munching dates on a faggot of brushwood outside the door of the lighthouse, which towers gigante to the clouds on his left His helmet, full of dates, is between his knees, and a leathern bottle of wine is by his side Behind him the great stone pedestal of the lighthouse is shut in from the open sea by a low stone parapet, with a couple of steps in the middle to the broad coping A huge chain with a hook hangs down from the lighthouse crane above his head Faggots like the one he sits on lie beneath it ready to be drann up to feed the beacon

Cæsar is standing on the step at the parapet looking out anxiously, evidently ill at ease Britannus comes out of the lighthouse door

RUFIO Well, my British islander Have you been up to the top?

BRITANNUS I have I reckon it at 200 feet high

RUFIO Anybody up there?

BRITANNUS One elderly Tyrian to work the crane, and his son, a well conducted youth of 14

RUFIO [looking at the chain] What! An old man and a boy work that! Twenty men, you mean

BRITANNUS Two only, I assure you They have counterweights, and a machine with boiling water in it which I do not understand it is not of British design They use it to haul up barrels of oil and faggots to burn in the brazier on the roof

RUFIO But—

BRITANNUS Excuse me I came down because there are messengers coming along the mole to us from the island I must see what their business is [He hurries out past the lighthouse]

CÆSAR [coming away from the parapet, shivering and out of sorts] Rufio this has been a mad expedition We shall be beaten I wish I knew how our men are getting on with that barricade across the great mole

RUFIO [angrily] Must I leave my food and go starving to bring you a report?

CÆSAR [soothing him nervously] No, Rufio, no Eat, my son, eat [He takes another turn, Rufio chewing dates meanwhile] The Egyptians cannot be such fools as not to storm the barricade and swoop down on us here before it is finished It is the first time I have ever run an avoidable risk I should not have come to Egypt

RUFIO An hour ago you were all for victory

CÆSAR [apologetically] Yes I was a fool—rash, Rufio—boyish

RUFIO Boyish! Not a bit of it Here [offering him a handful of dates]

CÆSAR What are these for?

RUFIO To eat That's what's the matter with you When a man comes to your age, he runs down before his midday meal Eat and drink, and then have another look at our chances

CÆSAR [taking the dates] My age! [He shakes his head and bites a date] Yes, Rufio I am an old man—worn out now—true, quite true [He gives way to melancholy contemplation, and eats another date] Achilles is still in his prime Ptolemy is a boy [He eats another date, and plucks up a little] Well, every dog has his day and I have had mine I cannot complain [With sudden cheerfulness] These dates are not bad, Rufio [Britannus returns, greatly excited, with a leathern bag Cæsar is himself again in a moment] What now?

BRITANNUS [triumphantly] Our brave Rhodian mariners have captured a treasure There! [He throws the bag down at Cæsar's feet] Our enemies are delivered into our hands

CÆSAR In that bag?

BRITANNUS Wait till you hear, Cæsar This bag contains all the letters which have passed between Pompey's party and the army of occupation here

CÆSAR Well?

BRITANNUS [impatient of Cæsar's slowness to grasp the situation] Well, we shall now know who your foes are The name of every man who has plotted against you since you crossed the Rubicon may be in these papers, for all we know

CÆSAR Put them in the fire

BRITANNUS Put them— [he gasps]!!!!

CÆSAR In the fire Would you have me waste the next three years of my life in proscribing and condemning men who will be my friends when I have proved that my friendship is worth more than Pompey's was—than Cato's is O incorrigible British islander am I a bull dog, to seek quarrels merely to shew how stubborn my jaws are?

BRITANNUS But your honor—the honor of Rome—

CÆSAR I do not make human sacrifices to my honor, as your Druids do Since you will not burn these, at least I can drown them [He picks up the bag and throws it over the parapet into the sea]

BRITANNUS Cæsar this is mere eccentricity Are traitors to be allowed to go free for the sake of a paradox?

RUFIO [rising] Cæsar when the islander has finished preaching, call me again I am going to have a look at the boiling water machine [He goes into the lighthouse]

BRITANNUS [with genuine feeling] O Cæsar, my great master, if I could but persuade you to regard life seriously, as men do in my country!

CÆSAR Do they truly do so, Britannus?

BRITANNUS Have you not been there? Have you not seen them? What Briton speaks as you do in your moments of levity? What Briton neglects to attend the services at the sacred grove? What Briton wears clothes of many colors as you do, instead of plain blue, as all solid, well esteemed men should? These are moral questions with us

CÆSAR Well, well, my friend some day I shall settle down and have a blue toga, perhaps. Meanwhile, I must get on as best I can in my flippant Roman way [Apollodorus comes past the lighthouse] What now?

BRITANNUS [turning quickly, and challenging the stranger with official haughtiness] What is this? Who are you? How did you come here?

APOLLODORUS Calm yourself, my friend. I am not going to eat you. I have come by boat, from Alexandria, with precious gifts for Cæsar.

CÆSAR From Alexandria!

BRITANNUS [severely] That is Cæsar, sir.

RUFIO [appearing at the lighthouse door] What's the matter now?

APOLLODORUS Hail, great Cæsar! I am Apollodorus the Sicilian, an artist.

BRITANNUS An artist! Why have they admitted this vagabond?

CÆSAR Peace, man. Apollodorus is a famous patrician amateur.

BRITANNUS [disconcerted] I crave the gentleman's pardon [To Cæsar] I understood him to say that he was a professional [Somewhat out of countenance, he allows Apollodorus to approach Cæsar, changing places with him. Rufio, after looking Apollodorus up and down with marked disparagement, goes to the other side of the platform].

CÆSAR You are welcome, Apollodorus. What is your business?

APOLLODORUS First, to deliver to you a present from the Queen of Queens.

CÆSAR Who is that?

APOLLODORUS Cleopatra of Egypt.

CÆSAR [taking him into his confidence in his most winning manner] Apollodorus, this is no time for playing with presents. Pray you, go back to the Queen, and tell her that if all goes well I shall return to the palace this evening.

APOLLODORUS Cæsar, I cannot return. As I approached the lighthouse, some fool threw a great leathern bag into the sea. It broke the nose of my boat, and I had hardly time to get myself and my charge to the shore before the poor little cockleshell sank.

CÆSAR I am sorry, Apollodorus. The fool shall be rebuked. Well, well, what have you brought me? The Queen will be hurt if I do not look at it.

RUFIO Have we time to waste on this trumpery? The Queen is only a child.

CÆSAR Just so that is why we must not disappoint her. What is the present, Apollodorus?

APOLLODORUS Cæsar, it is a Persian carpet—a beauty! And in it are—so I am told—pigeons' eggs and crystal goblets and fragile precious things. I dare not for my head have it carried up that narrow ladder from the causeway.

RUFIO Swing it up by the crane, then. We will send the eggs to the cook, drink our wine from the goblets, and the carpet will make a bed for Cæsar.

APOLLODORUS The crane! Cæsar, I have sworn to tender this bale of carpet as I tender my own life.

CÆSAR [cheerfully] Then let them swing you up at the same time, and if the chain breaks, you and the pigeons' eggs will perish together [He goes to the chain and looks up along it, examining it curiously].

APOLLODORUS [to Britannus] Is Cæsar serious?

BRITANNUS His manner is frivolous because he is an Italian, but he means what he says.

APOLLODORUS Serious or not, he spake well. Give me a squad of soldiers to work the crane.

BRITANNUS Leave the crane to me. Go and await the descent of the chain.

APOLLODORUS Good. You will presently see me there [turning to them all and pointing with an eloquent gesture to the sky above the parapet] rising like the sun with my treasure.

He goes back the way he came. Britannus goes into the lighthouse.

RUFIO [ill-humoredly] Are you really going to wait here for this foolery, Cæsar?

CÆSAR [backing away from the crane as it gives signs of working] Why not?

RUFIO The Egyptians will let you know why not if they have the sense to make a rush from the shore end of the mole before our barricade is finished. And here we are waiting like children to see a carpet full of pigeons' eggs.

The chain rattles, and is drawn up high enough to clear the parapet. It then swings round out of sight behind the lighthouse.

CÆSAR Fear not, my son Rufio. When the first Egyptian takes his first step along the mole, the alarm will sound, and we two will reach the barricade from our end before the Egyptians reach it from their end—we two, Rufio, I, the old man, and you, his biggest boy. And the old man will be there first. So peace, and give me some more dates.

APOLLODORUS [from the causeway below] Soho, haul away So-ho-o-o-o! [The chain is drawn up and comes round again from behind the lighthouse Apollodorus is swinging in the air with his bale of carpet at the end of it He breaks into song as he soars above the parapet]

Aloft, aloft behold the blue
That never shone in woman's eyes—

Easy there stop her [He ceases to rise]
Further round! [The chain comes forward above the platform]

RUFIO [calling up] Lower away there. [The chain and its load begin to descend]

APOLLODORUS [calling up] Gently—slowly—mind the eggs

RUFIO [calling up] Easy there—slowly—slowly

Apollodorus and the bale are deposited safely on the flags in the middle of the platform Rufio and Cæsar help Apollodorus to cast off the chain from the bale

RUFIO Haul up

The chain rises clear of their heads with a rattle Britannus comes from the lighthouse and helps them to uncoil the carpet

APOLLODORUS [when the cords are loose] Stand off, my friends let Cæsar see. [He throws the carpet open]

RUFIO Nothing but a heap of shawls
Where are the pigeons' eggs?

APOLLODORUS Approach, Cæsar, and search for them among the shawls

RUFIO [drawing his sword] Ha, treachery! Keep back, Cæsar I saw the shawl move there is something alive there BRITANNUS [drawing his sword] It is a serpent.

APOLLODORUS Dares Cæsar thrust his hand into the sack where the serpent moves?

RUFIO [turning to him] Treacherous dog—

CÆSAR Peace Put up your swords Apollodorus your serpent seems to breathe very regularly [He thrusts his hand under the shawls and draws out a bare arm] This is a pretty little snake

RUFIO [drawing out the other arm] Let us have the rest of you

They pull Cleopatra up by the wrists into a sitting position Britannus scandalized, sheathes his sword with a drine of protest

CLEOPATRA [gasping] Oh, I'm smothered Oh, Cæsar, a man stood on me in the boat, and a great sack of something fell upon me out of the sky, and then the boat sank; and then I was swung up into the air and bumped down

CÆSAR [petting her as she rises and takes refuge on his breast] Well, never mind here you are safe and sound at last RUFIO Ay, and now that she is here, what are we to do with her?

BRITANNUS She cannot stay here Cæsar, without the companionship of some matron

CLEOPATRA [jealously, to Cæsar, who is obviously perplexed] Arnt you glad to see me?

CÆSAR Yes, yes, I am very glad But Rufio is very angry, and Britannus is shocked CLEOPATRA [contemptuously] You can have their heads cut off, can you not?

CÆSAR They would not be so useful with their heads cut off as they are now, my sea bird

RUFIO [to Cleopatra] We shall have to go away presently and cut some of your Egyptians' heads off How will you like being left here with the chance of being captured by that little brother of yours if we are beaten?

CLEOPATRA But you mustnt leave me alone Cæsar you will not leave me alone, will you?

RUFIO What! not when the trumpet sounds and all our lives depend on Cæsar's being at the barricade before the Egyptians reach it? Eh?

CLEOPATRA Let them lose their lives they are only soldiers

CÆSAR [gravely] Cleopatra when that trumpet sounds, we must take every man his life in his hand, and throw it in the face of Death And of my soldiers who have trusted me there is not one whose hand I shall not hold more sacred than your head [Cleopatra is overwhelmed. Her eyes fill with tears] Apollodorus you must take her back to the palace

APOLLODORUS Am I a dolphin, Cæsar, to cross the seas with young ladies on my back? My boat is sunk all yours are either at the barricade or have returned to the city I will hail one if I can. that is all I can do [He goes back to the causeway].

CLEOPATRA [struggling with her tears] It does not matter I will not go back. Nobody cares for me

CÆSAR Cleopatra—

CLEOPATRA You want me to be killed.

CÆSAR [still more gravely] My poor child, your life matters little here to anyone but yourself [She gives way altogether at this, casting herself down on the faggots reeping Sud- denly a great tumult is heard in the distance, bucinæ and trumpets sounding through a storm of shouting Britannus rushes to the parapet and looks along the mole Cæsar and Rufio turn to one another with quick intelligence]

CÆSAR Come, Rufio

CLEOPATRA [scrambling to her knees and clinging to him] No, no Do not leave me, Cæsar [He snatches his skirt from her clutch] Oh!

BRITANNUS [from the parapet] Cæsar we are cut off The Egyptians have landed from the west harbor between us and the barricade!!!

RUFIO [running to see] Curses! It is true We are caught like rats in a trap

CÆSAR [ruthfully] Rufio, Rufio my men at the barricade are between the sea party and the shore party I have murdered them

RUFIO [coming back from the parapet to Cæsar's right hand] Ay that comes of fooling with this girl here

APOLLODORUS [coming up quickly from the causeway] Look over the parapet, Cæsar

CÆSAR We have looked, my friend We must defend ourselves here

APOLLODORUS I have thrown the ladder into the sea They cannot get in without it

RUFIO Ay, and we cannot get out Have you thought of that?

APOLLODORUS Not get out! Why not? You have ships in the east harbor

BRITANNUS [hopefully, at the parapet] The Rhodian galleys are standing in towards us already [Cæsar quickly joins Britannus at the parapet]

RUFIO [to Apollodorus, impatiently] And by what road are we to walk to the galleys, pray?

APOLLODORUS [with gay, defiant rhetoric] By the road that leads everywhere—the diamond path of the sun and moon Have you never seen the child's shadow play of The Broken Bridge? "Ducks and geese with ease get over"—eh? [He throws away his cloak and cap, and binds his sword on his back]

RUFIO What are you talking about?

APOLLODORUS I will shew you [Calling to Britannus] How far off is the nearest galley?

BRITANNUS Fifty fathom

CÆSAR No, no they are further off than they seem in this clear air to your British eyes Nearly quarter of a mile, Apollodorus

APOLLODORUS Good Defend yourselves here until I send you a boat from that galley

RUFIO Have you wings, perhaps?

APOLLODORUS Water wings, soldier Behold!

He runs up the steps between Cæsar and Britannus to the coping of the parapet, springs into the air, and plunges head foremost into the sea

CÆSAR [like a schoolboy—wildly excited] Bravo, bravo! [Throwing off his cloak] By Jupiter, I will do that too

RUFIO [seizing him] You are mad You shall not

CÆSAR Why not? Can I not swim as well as he?

RUFIO [frantic] Can an old fool dive and swim like a young one? He is twenty-five and you are fifty CÆSAR [breaking loose from Rufio] Old!!!

BRITANNUS [shocked] Rufio you forget yourself

CÆSAR I will race you to the galley for a week's pay, father Rufio

CLEOPATRA But me! me! me! what is to become of me?

CÆSAR I will carry you on my back to the galley like a dolphin Rufio when you see me rise to the surface, throw her in I will answer for her And then in with you after her, both of you

CLEOPATRA No, no, NO I shall be drowned

BRITANNUS Cæsar I am a man and a Briton, not a fish I must have a boat I cannot swim

CLEOPATRA Neither can I

CÆSAR [to Britannus] Stay here, then, alone, until I recapture the lighthouse I will not forget you Now, Rufio

RUFIO You have made up your mind to this folly?

CÆSAR The Egyptians have made it up for me What else is there to do? And mind where you jump I do not want to get your fourteen stone in the small of my back as I come up [He runs up the steps and stands on the coping]

BRITANNUS [anxiously] One last word, Cæsar Do not let yourself be seen in the fashionable part of Alexandria until you have changed your clothes

CÆSAR [calling over the sea] Ho, Apollodorus [he points skynard and quotes the barcarolle]

The white upon the blue above—

APOLLODORUS [swimming in the distance]

Is purple on the green below.—

CÆSAR [exultantly] Ah! [He plunges into the sea]

CLEOPATRA [running excitedly to the steps] Oh, let me see He will be drowned [Rufio seizes her—Ah—ah—ah—ah! [He pitches her screaming into the sea Rufio and Britannus roar with laughter]

RUFIO [looking down after her] He has got her [To Britannus] Hold the fort, Briton Cæsar will not forget you [He springs off]

BRITANNUS [running to the steps to watch them as they swim] All safe, Rufio?

RUFIO [swimming] All safe

CÆSAR [swimming further off] Take refuge up there by the beacon, and pile the fuel on the trap door, Britannus

BRITANNUS [calling in reply] I will first do so, and then commend myself to my country's gods [A sound of cheering from the sea Britannus gives full vent to his excitement] The boat has reached him Hip, hip, hup, hurrah!

ACT IV

Cleopatra's sousing in the east harbor of Alexandria was in October 48 B C In March 47 she is passing the afternoon in her boudoir in the palace, among a bevy of her ladies, listening to a slave girl who is playing the harp in the middle of the room The harpist's master, an old musician, with a lined face, prominent brows, white beard, moustache and eyebrows twisted and horned at the ends, and a consciously keen and pretentious expression, is squatting on the floor close to her on her right, watching her performance Ftatateeta is in attendance near the door, in front of a group of female slaves Except the harp player all are seated Cleopatra in a chair opposite the door on the other side of the room; the rest on the ground Cleopatra's ladies are all young, the most conspicuous being Charmian and Iras, her favorites Charmian is a hatchet faced, terra cotta colored little goblin, swift in her movements, and neatly finished at the hands and feet Iras is a plump, goodnatured creature, rather fatuous, with a profusion of red hair, and a tendency to giggle on the slightest provocation

CLEOPATRA Can I—

FTATATEETA [insolently, to the player] Peace, thou! The Queen speaks [The player stops]

CLEOPATRA [to the old musician] I want to learn to play the harp with my own hands Cæsar loves music Can you teach me?

MUSICIAN Assuredly I and no one else can teach the queen Have I not discovered the lost method of the ancient Egyptians, who could make a pyramid tremble by touching a bass string? All the other teachers are quacks I have exposed them repeatedly CLEOPATRA Good you shall teach me How long will it take?

MUSICIAN Not very long only four years Your Majesty must first become proficient in the philosophy of Pythagoras

CLEOPATRA Has she [indicating the slave] become proficient in the philosophy of Pythagoras?

MUSICIAN Oh, she is but a slave She learns as a dog learns

CLEOPATRA Well, then I will learn as a dog learns, for she plays better than you You shall give me a lesson every day for a fortnight. [The musician hastily scrambles to his feet and bows profoundly] After that, whenever I strike a false note you shall be flogged, and if I strike so many that there is not time to flog you, you shall be thrown into the Nile to feed the crocodiles Give the girl a piece of gold, and send them away

MUSICIAN [much taken aback] But true art will not be thus forced

FTATATEETA [pushing him out] What is this? Answering the Queen, forsooth Out with you

He is pushed out by Ftatateeta, the girl following with her harp, amid the laughter of the ladies and slaves

CLEOPATRA Now, can any of you amuse me? Have you any stories or any news?

IRAS Ftatateeta—

CLEOPATRA Oh, Ftatateeta, Ftatateeta, always Ftatateeta Some new tale to set me against her

IRAS No this time Ftatateeta has been virtuous [All the ladies laugh—not the slaves] Pothinus has been trying to bribe her to let him speak with you

CLEOPATRA [wrathfully] Ha! you all sell audiences with me, as if I saw whom you please, and not whom I please I should like to know how much of her gold piece that harp girl will have to give up before she leaves the palace

IRAS We can easily find out that for you
The ladies laugh

CLEOPATRA [frowning] You laugh, but take care, take care I will find out some day how to make myself served as Cæsar is served.

CHARMIAN Old hooknose! [They laugh again]

CLEOPATRA [revolted] Silence Charmian do not you be a silly little Egyptian fool Do you know why I allow you all to chatter im-pertinently just as you please, instead of treating you as Ftatateeta would treat you if she were Queen?

CHARMIAN Because you try to imitate Cæsar in everything, and he lets everybody say what they please to him

CLEOPATRA No, but because I asked him one day why he did so, and he said "Let your women talk, and you will learn something from them." What have I to learn from them? I said "What they are," said he, and oh! you should have seen his eye as he said it. You would have curled up, you shallow things [They laugh. She turns fiercely on Iras]. At whom are you laughing—at me or at Cæsar?

IRAS At Cæsar

CLEOPATRA If you were not a fool, you would laugh at me, and if you were not a coward you would not be afraid to tell me so [Ftateeta returns]. Ftateeta they tell me that Pothinus has offered you a bribe to admit him to my presence.

FTATEETA [protesting] Now by my father's gods—

CLEOPATRA [cutting her short despotically] Have I not told you not to deny things? You would spend the day calling your father's gods to witness to your virtues if I let you go take the bribe, and bring in Pothinus [Ftateeta is about to reply]. Don't answer me Go.

Ftateeta goes out, and Cleopatra rises and begins to prowl to and fro between her chair and the door, meditating. All rise and stand.

IRAS [as she reluctantly rises] Heigho! I wish Cæsar were back in Rome.

CLEOPATRA [threateningly] It will be a bad day for you all when he goes. Oh, if I were not ashamed to let him see that I am as cruel at heart as my father, I would make you repent that speech! Why do you wish him away?

CHARMIAN He makes you so terribly prosy and serious and learned and philosophical. It is worse than being religious, at our ages [The ladies laugh].

CLEOPATRA Cease that endless creaking, will you. Hold your tongues.

CHARMIAN [with mock resignation] Well, well we must try to live up to Cæsar.

They laugh again. Cleopatra rages silently as she continues to prowl to and fro. Ftateeta comes back with Pothinus, who halts on the threshold.

FTATEETA [at the door] Pothinus craves

the ear of the—

CLEOPATRA There, there that will do. Let him come in [She resumes her seat. All sit down except Pothinus, who advances to the middle of the room. Ftateeta takes her former place]. Well, Pothinus, what is the latest news from your rebel friends?

POTHINUS [haughtily] I am no friend of rebellion. And a prisoner does not receive news.

CLEOPATRA You are no more a prisoner than I am—than Cæsar is. These six months we have been besieged in this place by my subjects. You are allowed to walk on the beach among the soldiers. Can I go further myself, or can Cæsar?

POTHINUS You are but a child, Cleopatra, and do not understand these matters.

The ladies laugh. Cleopatra looks inscrutably at him.

CHARMIAN I see you do not know the latest news, Pothinus.

POTHINUS What is that?

CHARMIAN That Cleopatra is no longer a child. Shall I tell you how to grow much older, and much, much wiser in one day?

POTHINUS I should prefer to grow wiser without growing older.

CHARMIAN Well, go up to the top of the lighthouse, and get somebody to take you by the hair and throw you into the sea [The ladies laugh].

CLEOPATRA She is right, Pothinus, you will come to the shore with much conceit washed out of you [The ladies laugh. Cleopatra rises impatiently]. Begone, all of you. I will speak with Pothinus alone. Drive them out, Ftateeta [They run out laughing. Ftateeta shuts the door on them]. What are you waiting for?

FTATEETA It is not meet that the Queen remain alone with—

CLEOPATRA [interrupting her] Ftateeta must I sacrifice you to your father's gods to teach you that I am Queen of Egypt, and not you?

FTATEETA [indignantly] You are like the rest of them. You want to be what these Romans call a New Woman [She goes out, banging the door].

CLEOPATRA [sitting down again] Now, Pothinus, why did you bribe Ftateeta to bring you hither?

POTHINUS [studying her gravely] Cleopatra, what they tell me is true. You are changed.

CLEOPATRA Do you speak with Cæsar every day for six months and you will be changed

 POTHINUS It is the common talk that you are infatuated with this old man?

CLEOPATRA Infatuated? What does that mean? Made foolish, is it not? Oh no I wish I were POTHINUS You wish you were made foolish! How so?

CLEOPATRA When I was foolish, I did what I liked, except when Pstatetea beat me, and even then I cheated her and did it by stealth. Now that Cæsar has made me wise, it is no use my liking or disliking. I do what must be done, and have no time to attend to myself. That is not happiness, but it is greatness. If Cæsar were gone, I think I could govern the Egyptians, for what Cæsar is to me, I am to the fools around me.

POTHINUS [looking hard at her] Cleopatra this may be the vanity of youth.

CLEOPATRA No, no it is not that I am so clever, but that the others are so stupid.

POTHINUS [musingly] Truly, that is the great secret.

CLEOPATRA Well, now tell me what you came to say?

POTHINUS [embarrassed] I! Nothing.

CLEOPATRA Nothing!

POTHINUS At least—to beg for my liberty that is all.

CLEOPATRA For that you would have knelt to Cæsar. No, Pothinus you came with some plan that depended on Cleopatra being a little nursery kitten. Now that Cleopatra is a Queen, the plan is upset.

POTHINUS [bowing his head submissively] It is so.

CLEOPATRA [exultant] Aha!

POTHINUS [raising his eyes keenly to hers] Is Cleopatra then indeed a Queen, and no longer Cæsar's prisoner and slave?

CLEOPATRA Pothinus we are all Cæsar's slaves—all we in this land of Egypt—whether we will or no. And she who is wise enough to know this will reign when Cæsar departs.

POTHINUS You harp on Cæsar's departure.

CLEOPATRA What if I do?

POTHINUS Does he not love you?

CLEOPATRA Love me! Pothinus Cæsar loves no one. Who are those we love. Only those whom we do not hate. All people are strangers and enemies to us except those we love. But it is not so with Cæsar. He has no hatred in him. He makes friends with everyone as he does with dogs and children. His kindness to me is a wonder. Neither mother, father, nor nurse have ever taken so much care for me, or thrown open their thoughts to me so freely.

POTHINUS Well is not this love?

CLEOPATRA What! when he will do as much for the first girl he meets on his way back to Rome? Ask his slave, Britannus. He has been just as good to him. Nay, ask his very horse! His kindness is not for anything in me. It is in his own nature.

POTHINUS But how can you be sure that he does not love you as men love women?

CLEOPATRA Because I cannot make him jealous. I have tried.

POTHINUS Hm! Perhaps I should have asked then, do you love him?

CLEOPATRA Can one love a god? Besides, I love another Roman. One whom I saw long before Cæsar—no god, but a man—one who can love and hate—one whom I can hurt and who would hurt me.

POTHINUS Does Cæsar know this?

CLEOPATRA Yes.

POTHINUS And he is not angry?

CLEOPATRA He promises to send him to Egypt to please me!

POTHINUS I do not understand this man.

CLEOPATRA [with superb contempt] You understand Cæsar! How could you? [Proudly] I do—by instinct.

POTHINUS [deferentially, after a moment's thought] Your Majesty caused me to be admitted today. What message has the Queen for me?

CLEOPATRA This. You think that by making my brother king, you will rule in Egypt, because you are his guardian and he is a little silly.

POTHINUS The Queen is pleased to say so.

CLEOPATRA The Queen is pleased to say this also. That Cæsar will eat up you, and Achilles, and my brother, as a cat eats up mice, and that he will put on this land of Egypt as a shepherd puts on his garment. And when he has done that, he will return to Rome, and leave Cleopatra here as his viceroy.

POTHINUS [breaking out wrathfully] That he shall never do. We have a thousand men to his ten, and we will drive him and his beggarly legions into the sea.

CLEOPATRA [with scorn, getting up to go] You rant like any common fellow. Go, then, and marshal your thousands, and make haste, for Mithridates of Pergamos is at hand with reinforcements for Cæsar Cæsar has held you at bay with two legions we shall see what he will do with twenty

POTHINUS Cleopatra—

CLEOPATRA Enough, enough Cæsar has spoiled me for talking to weak things like you [She goes out Pothinus, with a gesture of rage, is following, when Flutateeta enters and stops him]

POTHINUS Let me go forth from this hateful place

FLUTATEETA What angers you?

POTHINUS The curse of all the gods of Egypt be upon her! She has sold her country to the Roman, that she may buy it back from him with her kisses

FLUTATEETA Fool did she not tell you that she would have Cæsar gone?

POTHINUS You listened?

FLUTATEETA I took care that some honest woman should be at hand whilst you were with her

POTHINUS Now by the gods—

FLUTATEETA Enough of your gods! Cæsar's gods are all powerful here It is no use you coming to Cleopatra you are only an Egyptian She will not listen to any of her own race she treats us all as children

POTHINUS May she perish for it!

FLUTATEETA [balefully] May your tongue wither for that wish! Go! send for Lucius Septimius, the slayer of Pompey He is a Roman may be she will listen to him Begone!

POTHINUS [darkly] I know to whom I must go now

FLUTATEETA [suspiciously] To whom, then?

POTHINUS To a greater Roman than Lucius And mark this, mistress You thought, before Cæsar came, that Egypt should presently be ruled by you and your crew in the name of Cleopatra I set myself against it—

FLUTATEETA [interrupting him—wrangling] Ay, that it might be ruled by you and your crew in the name of Ptolemy

POTHINUS Better me, or even you, than a woman with a Roman heart, and that is what Cleopatra is now become Whilst I live, she shall never rule So guide yourself accordingly [He goes out]

It is by this time drawing on to dinner time The table is laid on the roof of the palace, and thither Rufio is now climbing, ushered by a majestic palace official, and of office in hand, and followed by a slave carrying an inlaid stool After many stairs they emerge at last into a massive colonnade on the roof Light curtains are drawn between the columns on the north and east to soften the nesting sun The official leads Rufio to one of these shaded sections A cord for pulling the curtains apart hangs down between the pillars

THE OFFICIAL [bowing] The Roman commander will await Cæsar here

The slave sets down the stool near the southernmost column, and slips out through the curtains

RUFIO [sitting down, a little blown] Puff! That was a climb How high have we come?

THE OFFICIAL We are on the palace roof, O Beloved of Victory!

RUFIO Good! the Beloved of Victory has no more stairs to get up

A second official enters from the opposite end, walking backwards

THE SECOND OFFICIAL Cæsar approaches

Cæsar, fresh from the bath, clad in a new tunic of purple silk, comes in, beaming and festive, followed by two slaves carrying a light couch, which is hardly more than an elaborately designed bench They place it near the northmost of the two curtained columns When this is done they slip out through the curtains, and the two officials, formally bowing, follow them Rufio rises to receive Cæsar

CÆSAR [coming over to him] Why, Rufio! [Surveying his dress with an air of admiring astonishment] A new baldric! A new golden pommel to your sword! And you have had your hair cut! But not your beard—? impossible! [He sniffs at Rufio's beard] Yes, perfumed, by Jupiter Olympus!

RUFIO [growling] Well is it to please myself?

CÆSAR [affectionately] No, my son Rufio, but to please me—to celebrate my birthday

RUFIO [contemptuously] Your birthday! You always have a birthday when there is a pretty girl to be flattered or an ambassador to be conciliated We had seven of them in ten months last year

CÆSAR [contritely] It is true, Rufio! I shall never break myself of these petty deceits RUFIO Who is to dine with us—besides Cleopatra?

CÆSAR Apollodorus the Sicilian

RUFIO That popinjay!

CÆSAR Come! the popinjay is an amusing dog—tells a story, sings a song, and saves us the trouble of flattering the Queen What does she care for old politicians and camp-fed bears like us? No Apollodorus is good company, Rufio, good company

RUFIO Well, he can swim a bit and fence a bit he might be worse, if he only knew how to hold his tongue

CÆSAR The gods forbid he should ever learn! Oh, this military life! this tedious, brutal life of action! That is the worst of us Romans we are mere doers and drudgers a swarm of bees turned into men Give me a good talker—one with wit and imagination enough to live without continually doing something!

RUFIO Ay! a nice time he would have of it with you when dinner was over! Have you noticed that I am before my time?

CÆSAR Aha! I thought that meant something What is it?

RUFIO Can we be overheard here?

CÆSAR Our privacy invites eavesdropping I can remedy that [He claps his hands twice The curtains are drawn, revealing the roof garden with a banqueting table set across in the middle for four persons, one at each end, and two side by side The side next Cæsar and Rufio is blocked with golden wine vessels and basins A gorgeous major-domo is superintending the laying of the table by a staff of slaves The colonnade goes round the garden at both sides to the further end, where a gap in it, like a great gateway, leaves the view open to the sky beyond the western edge of the roof, except in the middle, where a life size image of Ra, seated on a huge plinth, towers up, with hawk head and crown of asp and disk His altar, which stands at his feet, is a single white stone] Now everybody can see us, nobody will think of listening to us [He sits down on the bench left by the two slaves]

RUFIO [sitting down on his stool] Pothinus wants to speak to you I advise you to see him. there is some plotting going on here among the women

CÆSAR Who is Pothinus?

RUFIO The fellow with hair like squirrels fur—the little King's bear leader, whom you kept prisoner

CÆSAR [annoyed] And has he not escaped?

RUFIO No

CÆSAR [rising imperiously] Why not? You have been guarding this man instead of watching the enemy Have I not told you always to let prisoners escape unless there are special orders to the contrary? Are there not enough mouths to be fed without him?

RUFIO Yes, and if you would have a little sense and let me cut his throat, you would save his rations Anyhow, he wont escape Three sentries have told him they would put a pilum through him if they saw him again What more can they do? He prefers to stay and spy on us So would I if I had to do with generals subject to fits of clemency

CÆSAR [resuming his seat, argued down] Hm! And so he wants to see me

RUFIO Ay I have brought him with me He is waiting there [jerking his thumb over his shoulder] under guard

CÆSAR And you want me to see him?

RUFIO [obstinately] I dont want anything I daresay you will do what you like Dont put it on to me

CÆSAR [with an air of doing it expressly to indulge Rufio] Well, well let us have him

RUFIO [calling] Ho there, guard! Release your man and send him up [Beckoning] Come along!

Pothinus enters and stops mistrustfully between the two, looking from one to the other CÆSAR [graciously] Ah, Pothinus! You are welcome And what is the news this afternoon?

POTHINUS Cæsar I come to warn you of a danger, and to make you an offer

CÆSAR Never mind the danger Make the offer

RUFIO Never mind the offer Whats the danger?

POTHINUS Cæsar you think that Cleopatra is devoted to you

CÆSAR [gravely] My friend I already know what I think Come to your offer

POTHINUS I will deal plainly I know not by what strange gods you have been enabled to defend a palace and a few yards of beach against a city and an army Since we cut you off from Lake Mareotis, and you dug wells in the salt sea sand and brought up buckets of fresh water from them, we have known that your gods are irresistible, and that you are a worker of miracles I no longer threaten you—

RUFIO [sarcastically] Very handsome of you, indeed

POTHINUS So be it you are the master Our gods sent the north west winds to keep you in our hands, but you have been too strong for them

CÆSAR [gently urging him to come to the point]

Yes, yes, my friend But what then?

RUFIO Spit it out, man What have you to say?

POTHINUS I have to say that you have a traitress in your camp Cleopatra—

THE MAJOR-DOMO [at the table, announcing] The Queen! [Cæsar and Rufio rise]

RUFIO [aside to Pothinus] You should have spat it out sooner, you fool Now it is too late

Cleopatra, in gorgeous raiment, enters in state through the gap in the colonnade, and comes down past the image of Ra and past the table to Cæsar Her retinue, headed by Ptarmacha, joins the staff at the table Cæsar gives Cleopatra his seat, which she takes

CLEOPATRA [quickly, seeing Pothinus] What is he doing here?

CÆSAR [seating himself beside her, in the most amiable of tempers] Just going to tell me something about you You shall hear it Proceed, Pothinus

POTHINUS [disconcerted] Cæsar— [he stammers]

CÆSAR Well, out with it

POTHINUS What I have to say is for your ear, not for the Queen's

CLEOPATRA [with subdued ferocity] There are means of making you speak Take care

POTHINUS [defiantly] Cæsar does not employ those means

CÆSAR My friend when a man has anything to tell in this world, the difficulty is not to make him tell it, but to prevent him from telling it too often Let me celebrate my birthday by setting you free Farewell we shall not meet again

CLEOPATRA [angrily] Cæsar this merey is foolish

POTHINUS [to Cæsar] Will you not give me a private audience? Your life may depend on it [Cæsar rises loftily]

RUFIO [aside to Pothinus] Ass! Now we shall have some heroics

CÆSAR [oratorically] Pothinus—

RUFIO [interrupting him] Cæsar the dinner will spoil if you begin preaching your favorite sermon about life and death

CLEOPATRA [priggishly] Peace, Rufio I desire to hear Cæsar

RUFIO [bluntly] Your Majesty has heard it before You repeated it to Apollodorus last week, and he thought it was all your own [Cæsar's dignity collapses Much tickled, he sits down again and looks roguishly at Cleopatra, who is furious Rufio calls as before] Ho there, guard! Pass the prisoner out He is released [To Pothinus] Now off with you You have lost your chance

POTHINUS [his temper overcoming his prudence] I will speak

CÆSAR [to Cleopatra] You see Torture would not have wrung a word from him

POTHINUS Cæsar you have taught Cleopatra the arts by which the Romans govern the world

CÆSAR Alas! they cannot even govern themselves What then?

POTHINUS What then? Are you so besotted with her beauty that you do not see that she is impatient to reign in Egypt alone, and that her heart is set on your departure?

CLEOPATRA [rising] Liar!

CÆSAR [shocked] What! Protestations! Contradictions!

CLEOPATRA [ashamed, but trembling with suppressed rage] No I do not deign to contradict Let him talk [She sits down again]

POTHINUS From her own lips I have heard it You are to be her catspaw, you are to tear the crown from her brother's head and set it on her own, delivering us all into her hand—delivering yourself also And then Cæsar can return to Rome, or depart through the gate of death, which is nearer and surer CÆSAR [calmly] Well, my friend, and is not this very natural?

POTHINUS [astonished] Natural! Then you do not resent treachery?

CÆSAR Resent! O thou foolish Egyptian, what have I to do with resentment? Do I resent the wind when it chills me, or the night when it makes me stumble in the darkness? Shall I resent youth when it turns from age, and ambition when it turns from servitude? To tell me such a story as this is but to tell me that the sun will rise tomorrow

CLEOPATRA [unable to contain herself] But it is false—false I swear it

CÆSAR It is true, though you swore it a thousand times, and believed all you swore [She is convulsed with emotion To screen her, he rises and takes Pothinus to Rufio, saying] Come, Rufio let us see Pothinus past the guard I have a word to say to him [Aside to them] We must give the Queen a moment to recover herself [Aloud] Come [He takes Pothinus and Rufio out with him, conversing with them meanwhile] Tell your friends, Pothinus, that they must not think I am opposed to a reasonable settlement of the country's affairs— [They pass out of hearing]

CLEOPATRA [in a stifled whisper] Ftatateeta, Ftatateeta

FTATATEETA [hurrying to her from the table and petting her] Peace, child be comforted—

CLEOPATRA [interrupting her] Can they hear us?

FTATATEETA No, dear heart, no

CLEOPATRA Listen to me If he leaves the Palace alive, never see my face again

FTATATEETA He? Poth—

CLEOPATRA [striking her on the mouth] Strike his life out as I strike his name from your lips Dash him down from the wall Break him on the stones Kill, kill, kill him

FTATATEETA [showing all her teeth] The dog shall perish

CLEOPATRA Fail in this, and you go out from before me for ever.

FTATATEETA [resolutely] So be it You shall not see my face until his eyes are darkened

Cæsar comes back, with Apollodorus, exquisitely dressed, and Rufio

CLEOPATRA [to Ftatateeta] Come soon—soon. [Ftatateeta turns her meaning eyes for a moment on her mistress, then goes grimly away past Ra and out Cleopatra runs like a gazelle to Cæsar] So you have come back to me, Cæsar [Caressingly] I thought you were angry Welcome, Apollodorus [She gives him her hand to kiss, with her other arm about Cæsar]

APOLLODORUS Cleopatra grows more womanly beautiful from week to week

CLEOPATRA Truth, Apollodorus?

APOLLODORUS Far, far short of the truth! Friend Rufio threw a pearl into the sea Cæsar fished up a diamond

CÆSAR Cæsar fished up a touch of rheumatism, my friend Come to dinner! to dinner! [They move towards the table]

CLEOPATRA [skipping like a young fawn] Yes, to dinner I have ordered such a dinner for you, Cæsar!

CÆSAR Ay? What are we to have?

CLEOPATRA Peacocks' brains

CÆSAR [as if his mouth watered] Peacocks' brains, Apollodorus!

APOLLODORUS. Not for me I prefer nightingales' tongues [He goes to one of the two covers set side by side]

CLEOPATRA Roast boar, Rufio!

CÆSAR [looking at his seat, which is at the end of the table, to Ra's left hand] What has become of my leathern cushion?

CLEOPATRA [at the opposite end] I have got new ones for you

THE MAJOR-DOMO These cushions, Cæsar, are of Maltese gauze, stuffed with rose leaves

CÆSAR Rose leaves! Am I a caterpillar? [He throws the cushions away and seats himself on the leather mattress underneath]

CLEOPATRA What a shame! My new cushions!

THE MAJOR-DOMO [at Cæsar's elbow] What shall we serve to whet Cæsar's appetite?

CÆSAR What have you got?

THE MAJOR-DOMO Sea hedgehogs, black and white sea acorns, sea nettles, beccaficoes, purple shellfish—

CÆSAR Any oysters?

THE MAJOR-DOMO Assuredly

CÆSAR British oysters?

THE MAJOR-DOMO [assenting] British oysters, Cæsar

CÆSAR Oysters, then [The Major-Domo signs to a slave at each order, and the slave goes out to execute it] I have been in Britain—that western land of romance—the last piece of earth on the edge of the ocean that surrounds the world I went there in search of its famous pearls The British pearl was a fable, but in searching for it I found the British oyster

APOLLODORUS All posterity will bless you for it [To the Major-Domo] Sea hedgehogs for me

RUFIO Is there nothing solid to begin with?

THE MAJOR-DOMO Fieldfares with asparagus—

CLEOPATRA [interrupting] Fattened fowls! have some fattened fowls, Rufio

RUFIO Ay, that will do

CLEOPATRA [greedily] Fieldfares for me

THE MAJOR-DOMO Cæsar will deign to choose his wine? Sicilian, Lesbian, Chian—

RUFIO [contemptuously] All Greek

APOLLODORUS Who would drink Roman wine when he could get Greek? Try the Lesbian, Cæsar

CÆSAR Bring me my barley water

RUFIO [with intense disgust] Ugh! Bring me my Falernian [The Falernian is presently brought to him]

CLEOPATRA [pouting] It is waste of time giving you dinners, Cæsar My scullions would not condescend to your diet

CÆSAR [relenting] Well, well let us try the Lesbian [The Major-Domo fills Cæsar's goblet, then Cleopatra's and Apollodorus's] But when I return to Rome, I will make laws against these extravaganees I will even get the laws earned out

CLEOPATRA [coaxingly] Never mind Today you are to be like other people idle, luxurious, and kind [She stretches her hand to him along the table]

CÆSAR Well, for once I will sacrifice my comfort— [kissing her hand] there! [He takes a draught of wine] Now are you satisfied?

CLEOPATRA And you no longer believe that I long for your departure for Rome?

CÆSAR I no longer believe anything My brains are asleep Besides, who knows whether I shall return to Rome?

RUFIO [alarmed] How? Eh? What?

CÆSAR What has Rome to shew me that I have not seen already? One year of Rome is like another, except that I grow older, whilst the crowd in the Appian Way is always the same age

APOLLODORUS It is no better here in Egypt The old men, when they are tired of life, say "We have seen everything except the source of the Nile"

CÆSAR [his imagination catching fire] And why not see that? Cleopatra will you come with me and track the flood to its cradle in the heart of the regions of mystery? Shall we leave Rome behind us—Rome, that has achieved greatness only to learn how greatness destroys nations of men who are not great! Shall I make you a new kingdom, and build you a holy city there in the great unknown?

CLEOPATRA [rapturously] Yes, yes You shall

RUFIO Ay now he will conquer Africa with two legions before we come to the roast boar

APOLLODORUS Come no scoffing This is a noble scheme in it Cæsar is no longer merely the conquering soldier, but the creative poet-artist Let us name the holy city, and consecrate it with Lesbian wine

CÆSAR Cleopatra shall name it herself

CLEOPATRA It shall be called Cæsar's Gift to his Beloved

APOLLODORUS No, no Something vaster than that—something universal, like the starry firmament

CÆSAR [prosaically] Why not simply The Cradle of the Nile?

CLEOPATRA No the Nile is my ancestor, and he is a god Oh! I have thought of something The Nile shall name it himself Let us call upon him [To the Major-Domo] Send for him [The three men stare at one another, but the Major-Domo goes out as if he had received the most matter-of-fact order] And [to the retinue] away with you all

The retinue withdraws, making obeisance

A priest enters, carrying a miniature sphinx with a tiny tripod before it A morsel of incense is smoking in the tripod The priest comes to the table and places the image in the middle of it The light begins to change to the magenta purple of the Egyptian sunset, as if the god had brought a strange colored shadow with him The three men are determined not to be impressed, but they feel curious in spite of themselves

CÆSAR What hocus-pocus is this?

CLEOPATRA You shall see And it is not hocus-pocus To do it properly, we should kill something to please him, but perhaps he will answer Cæsar without that if we spill some wine to him

APOLLODORUS [turning his head to look up over his shoulder at Ra] Why not appeal to our hawkheaded friend here?

CLEOPATRA [nervously] Sh! He will hear you and be angry

RUFIO [phlegmatically] The source of the Nile is out of his district, I expect

CLEOPATRA No I will have my city named by nobody but my dear little sphinx, because it was in its arms that Cæsar found me asleep [She languishes at Cæsar, then turns curtly to the priest] Go I am a priestess, and have power to take your charge from you [The priest makes a reverence and goes out] Now let us call on the Nile all together Perhaps he will rap on the table

CÆSAR What! table rapping! Are such superstitions still believed in this year 707 of the Republic?

CLEOPATRA It is no superstition our priests learn lots of things from the tables Is it not so, Apollodorus?

APOLLODORUS Yes I profess myself a converted man When Cleopatra is priestess, Apollodorus is devotee Propose the conjuration

CLEOPATRA You must say with me "Send us thy voice, Father Nile"

ALL FOUR [holding their glasses together before the idol] Send us thy voice, Father Nile

The death cry of a man in mortal terror and agony answers them Appalled, the men set down their glasses, and listen Silence The purple deepens in the sky Cæsar glancing at Cleopatra, catches her pouring out her wine before the god, with gleaming eyes, and mute assurances of gratitude and worship Apollodorus springs up and runs to the edge of the roof to peer down and listen

CÆSAR [looking piercingly at Cleopatra] What was that?

CLEOPATRA [petulantly] Nothing They are beating some slave

CÆSAR Nothing!

RUFIO A man with a knife in him, I'll swear

CÆSAR [rising] A murder!

APOLLODORUS [at the back, waving his hand for silence] S-sh! Silence Did you hear that?

CÆSAR Another cry?

APOLLODORUS [returning to the table] No, a thud Something fell on the beach, I think RUFIO [grimly, as he rises] Something with bones in it, eh?

CÆSAR [shuddering] Hush, hush, Rufio [He leaves the table and returns to the colonnade Rufio following at his left elbow, and Apollodorus at the other side]

CLEOPATRA [still in her place at the table] Will you leave me, Cæsar? Apollodorus are you going?

APOLLODORUS Faith, dearest Queen, my appetite is gone

CÆSAR Go down to the courtyard, Apollodorus, and find out what has happened

Apollodorus nods and goes out, making for the staircase by which Rufio ascended CLEOPATRA Your soldiers have killed somebody, perhaps What does it matter?

The murmur of a crowd rises from the beach below Cæsar and Rufio look at one another

CÆSAR This must be seen to [He is about to follow Apollodorus when Rufio stops him with a hand on his arm as Ftataetea comes back by the far end of the roof, with dragging steps, a drowsy satiety in her eyes and in the corners of the bloodhound lips For a moment Cæsar suspects that she is drunk with wine Not so Rufio he knows well the red vintage that has inebriated her]

RUFIO [in a low tone] There is some mischief between those two

FTATATEETA The Queen looks again on the face of her servant

Cleopatra looks at her for a moment with an exultant reflection of her murderous expression Then she flings her arms round her, kisses her repeatedly and savagely, and tears off her jewels and heaps them on her The two men turn from the spectacle to look at one another Ftataetea drags herself sleepily to the altar, kneels before Ra, and remains there in prayer Cæsar goes to Cleopatra, leaving Rufio in the colonnade

CÆSAR [with searching earnestness] Cleopatra what has happened?

CLEOPATRA [in mortal dread of him, but with her utmost cajolery] Nothing, dearest Cæsar [With sickly sweetness, her voice almost failing] Nothing I am innocent [She approaches him affectionately] Dear Cæsar are you angry with me? Why do you look at me so? I have been here with you all the time How can I know what has happened?

CÆSAR [reflectively] That is true

CLEOPATRA [greatly relieved, trying to caress him] Of course it is true [He does not respond to the caress] You know it is true, Rufio

The murmur without suddenly swells to a roar and subsides

RUFIO I shall know presently [He makes for the altar in the burly trot that serves him for a stride, and touches Ftataetea on the shoulder] Now, mistress I shall want you [He orders her, with a gesture, to go before him]

FTATATEETA [rising and glowering at him] My place is with the Queen

CLEOPATRA She has done no harm, Rufio

CÆSAR [to Rufio] Let her stay

RUFIO [sitting down on the altar] Very well Then my place is here too, and you can see what is the matter for yourself The city is in a pretty uproar, it seems

CÆSAR [with grave displeasure] Rufio there is a time for obedience

RUFIO And there is a time for obstinacy [He folds his arms doggedly]

CÆSAR [to Cleopatra] Send her away

CLEOPATRA [whining in her eagerness to propitiate him] Yes, I will I will do whatever you ask me, Cæsar, always, because I love you Ftataetea go away

FTATATEETA The Queen's word is my will I shall be at hand for the Queen's call [She goes out past Ra, as she came]

RUFIO [following her] Remember, Cæsar, your bodyguard also is within call [He follows her out]

Cleopatra, presuming upon Cæsar's submission to Rufio, leaves the table and sits down on the bench in the colonnade

CLEOPATRA Why do you allow Rufio to treat you so? You should teach him his place

CÆSAR Teach him to be my enemy, and to hide his thoughts from me as you are now hiding yours

CLEOPATRA [her fears returning] Why do you say that, Cæsar? Indeed, indeed, I am not hiding anything. You are wrong to treat me like this [She stifles a sob] I am only a child, and you turn into stone because you think some one has been killed. I cannot bear it [She purposely breaks down and weeps. He looks at her with profound sadness and complete coldness. She looks up to see what effect she is producing. Seeing that he is unmoved, she sits up, pretending to struggle with her emotion and to put it bravely away]. But there I know you hate tears; you shall not be troubled with them. I know you are not angry, but only sad, only I am so silly, I cannot help being hurt when you speak coldly. Of course you are quite right; it is dreadful to think of anyone being killed or even hurt, and I hope nothing really serious has— [her voice dies away under his contemptuous penetration].

CÆSAR What has frightened you into this? What have you done? [A trumpet sounds on the beach below] Aha! that sounds like the answer.

CLEOPATRA [sinking back trembling on the bench and covering her face with her hands] I have not betrayed you, Cæsar. I swear it.

CÆSAR I know that. I have not trusted you [He turns from her, and is about to go out when Apollodorus and Britannus drag in Lucius Septimius to him. Rufio follows. Cæsar shudders]. Again, Pompey's murderer!

RUFIO The town has gone mad, I think. They are for tearing the palace down and driving us into the sea straight away. We laid hold of this renegade in clearing them out of the courtyard.

CÆSAR Release him [They let go his arms]. What has offended the citizens, Lucius Septimius?

LUCIUS What did you expect, Cæsar? Pothinus was a favorite of theirs.

CÆSAR What has happened to Pothinus? I set him free, here, not half an hour ago. Did they not pass him out?

LUCIUS Ay, through the gallery arch sixty feet above ground, with three inches of steel in his ribs. He is as dead as Pompey. We are quits now, as to killing—you and I.

CÆSAR [shocked] Assassinated!—our prisoner, our guest! [He turns reproachfully on Rufio] Rufio—

RUFIO [emphatically—anticipating the question] Whoever did it was a wise man and a friend of yours [Cleopatra is greatly emboldened], but none of us had a hand in it. So it is no use to frown at me [Cæsar turns and looks at Cleopatra].

CLEOPATRA [violently—rising] He was slain by order of the Queen of Egypt. I am not Julius Cæsar the dreamer, who allows every slave to insult him. Rufio has said I did well; now the others shall judge me too [She turns to the others]. Thus Pothinus sought to make me conspire with him to betray Cæsar to Achilles and Ptolemy. I refused, and he cursed me and came privily to Cæsar to accuse me of his own treachery. I caught him in the act, and he insulted me—me, the Queen! to my face. Cæsar would not avenge me; he spoke him fair and set him free. Was I right to avenge myself? Speak, Lucius.

LUCIUS I do not grudge it. But you will get little thanks from Cæsar for it.

CLEOPATRA Speak, Apollodorus. Was I wrong?

APOLLODORUS I have only one word of blame, most beautiful. You should have called upon me, your knight, and in fair duel I should have slain the slanderer.

CLEOPATRA [passionately] I will be judged by your very slave, Cæsar. Britannus speak. Was I wrong?

BRITANNUS Were treachery, falsehood, and disloyalty left unpunished, society must become like an arena full of wild beasts, tearing one another to pieces. Cæsar is in the wrong.

CÆSAR [with quiet bitterness] And so the verdict is against me, it seems.

CLEOPATRA [vehemently] Listen to me, Cæsar. If one man in all Alexandria can be found to say that I did wrong, I swear to have myself crucified on the door of the palace by my own slaves.

CÆSAR If one man in all the world can be found, now or forever, to know that you did wrong, that man will have either to conquer the world as I have, or be crucified by it [The uproar in the streets again reaches them]. Do you hear? These knockers at your gate are also believers in vengeance and in stabbing. You have slain their leader; it is right that they shall slay you. If you doubt it, ask your four counsellors here. And then in the name of that right [he emphasizes the word with great scorn] shall I not slay them for murdering their Queen, and be slain in my turn by their countrymen as the invader of their fatherland? Can Rome do less than than slay these slayers, too, to shew the world how Rome avenges her sons and her honor And so, to the end of history, murder shall breed murder, always in the name of right and honor and peace until the gods are tired of blood and create a race that can understand [Fierce uproar Cleopatra becomes white with terror] Hearken, you who must not be insulted Go near enough to catch their words you will find them bitterer than the tongue of Pothinus [Loftily, wrapping himself up in an impenetrable dignity] Let the Queen of Egypt now give her orders for vengeance, and take her measures for defence, for she has renounced Cæsar [He turns to go]

CLEOPATRA [terrified, running to him and falling on her knees] You will not desert me, Cæsar You will defend the palace

CÆSAR You have taken the powers of life and death upon you I am only a dreamer

CLEOPATRA But they will kill me

CÆSAR And why not?

CLEOPATRA In pity—

CÆSAR Pity! What! has it come to this so suddenly, that nothing can save you now but pity? Did it save Pothinus?

She rises, wringing her hands, and goes back to the bench in despair Apollodorus shews his sympathy with her by quietly posting himself behind the bench The sky has by this time become the most vivid purple, and soon begins to change to a glowing pale orange, against which the colonnade and the great image shew darker and darker

RUFIO Cæsar enough of preaching The enemy is at the gate

CÆSAR [turning on him and giving way to his wrath] Ay, and what has held him baffled at the gate all these months? Was it my folly, as you deem it, or your wisdom? In this Egyptian Red Sea of blood, whose hand has held all your heads above the waves? [Turning on Cleopatra] And yet, when Cæsar says to such an one, "Friend, go free" you, clinging for your little life to my sword, dare steal out and stab him in the back? And you, soldiers and gentlemen, and honest servants as you forget that you are, applaud this assassination, and say "Cæsar is in the wrong" By the gods, I am tempted to open my hand and let you all sink into the flood

CLEOPATRA [with a ray of cunning hope] But, Cæsar, if you do, you will perish yourself

Cæsar's eyes blaze

RUFIO [greatly alarmed] Now, by great Jove, you filthy little Egyptian rat, that is the very word to make him walk out alone into the city and leave us here to be cut to pieces [Desperately, to Cæsar] Will you desert us because we are a parcel of fools? I mean no harm by killing I do it as a dog kills a cat, by instinct We are all dogs at your heels, but we have served you faithfully

CÆSAR [relenting] Alas, Rufio, my son, my son as dogs we are like to perish now in the streets

APOLLODORUS [at his post behind Cleopatra's seat] Cæsar what you say has an Olympian ring in it it must be right, for it is fine art But I am still on the side of Cleopatra If we must die, she shall not want the devotion of a man's heart nor the strength of a man's arm

CLEOPATRA [sobbing] But I don't want to die

CÆSAR [sadly] Oh, ignoble, ignoble!

LUCIUS [coming forward between Cæsar and Cleopatra] Hearken to me, Cæsar It may be ignoble, but I also mean to live as long as I can

CÆSAR Well, my friend you are likely to outlive Cæsar Is it any magic of mine, think you, that has kept your army and this whole city at bay for so long? Yesterday, what quarrel had they with me that they should risk their lives against me? But today we have flung them down their hero, murdered, and now every man of them is set upon clearing out this nest of assassins—for such we are and no more Take courage then, and sharpen your sword Pompey's head has fallen, and Cæsar's head is ripe

APOLLODORUS Does Cæsar despair?

CÆSAR [with infinite pride] He who has never hoped can never despair Cæsar, in good or bad fortune, looks his fate in the face

LUCIUS Look it in the face, then, and it will smile as it always has on Cæsar

CÆSAR [with involuntary haughtiness] Do you presume to encourage me?

LUCIUS I offer you my services I will change sides if you will have me

CÆSAR [suddenly coming down to earth again, and looking sharply at him, divining that there is something behind the offer] What! At this point?

LUCIUS [firmly] At this point

RUFIO Do you suppose Cæsar is mad, to trust you?

LUCIUS I do not ask him to trust me until he is victorious I ask for my life, and for a command in Cæsar's army And since Cæsar is a fair dealer, I will pay in advance

CÆSAR Pay! How?

LUCIUS With a piece of good news for you Cæsar divines the news in a flash

RUFIO What news?

CÆSAR [with an elate and buoyant energy which makes Cleopatra sit up and stare] What news! What news, did you say, my son Rufio? The relief has arrived what other news remains for us? Is it not so, Lucius Septimius? Mithridates of Pergamos is on the march

LUCIUS He has taken Pelusium

CÆSAR [delighted] Lucius Septimius you are henceforth my officer Rufio the Egyptians must have sent every soldier from the city to prevent Mithridates crossing the Nile There is nothing in the streets now but mob—mob!

LUCIUS It is so Mithridates is marching by the great road to Memphis to cross above the Delta Achilles will fight him there

CÆSAR [all audacity] Achilles shall fight Cæsar there Sec, Rufio [He runs to the table, snatches a napkin, and draws a plan on it with his finger dipped in wine, whilst Rufio and Lucius Septimius crowd about him to watch, all looking closely, for the light is now almost gone] Here is the palace [pointing to his plan] here is the theatre You [to Rufio] take twenty men and pretend to go by that street [pointing it out], and whilst they are stoning you, out go the cohorts by this and this My streets are right, are they, Lucius?

LUCIUS Ay, that is the fig market—

CÆSAR [too much excited to listen to him] I saw them the day we arrived Good! [He throws the napkin on the table, and comes down again into the colonnade] Away, Britannus tell Petronius that within an hour half our forces must take ship for the western lake See to my horse and armor [Britannus runs out] With the rest, I shall march round the lake and up the Nile to meet Mithridates Away, Lucius, and give the word [Lucius hurries out after Britannus] Apollodorus lend me your sword and your right arm for this campaign

APOLLODORUS Ay, and my heart and life to boot

CÆSAR [grasping his hand] I accept both [Mighty handshake] Are you ready for work?

APOLLODORUS Ready for Art—the Art of War [he rushes out after Lucius, totally forget- ting Cleopatra]

RUFIO Come! this is something like business

CÆSAR [buoyantly] Is it not, my only son? [He claps his hands The slaves hurry in to the table] No more of this mawkish revelling away with all this stuff shut it out of my sight and be off with you [The slaves begin to remove the table, and the curtains are drawn, shutting in the colonnade] You understand about the streets, Rufio?

RUFIO Ay, I think I do I will get through them, at all events

The bucina sounds busily in the courtyard beneath

CÆSAR Come, then we must talk to the troops and hearten them You down to the beach I to the courtyard [He makes for the staircase]

CLEOPATRA [rising from her seat, where she has been quite neglected all this time, and stretching out her hands timidly to him] Cæsar

CÆSAR [turning] Eh?

CLEOPATRA Have you forgotten me?

CÆSAR [indulgently] I am busy now, my child, busy When I return your affairs shall be settled Farewell, and be good and patient

He goes, preoccupied and quite indifferent She stands with clenched fists, in speechless rage and humiliation

RUFIO That game is played and lost, Cleopatra The woman always gets the worst of it

CLEOPATRA [haughtily] Go Follow your master

RUFIO [in her ear, with rough familiarity] A word first Tell your executioner that if Pothinus had been properly killed—in the throat—he would not have called out Your man bungled his work

CLEOPATRA [enigmatically] How do you know it was a man?

RUFIO [startled, and puzzled] It was not you you were with us when it happened [She turns her back scornfully on him He shakes his head, and draws the curtains to go out It is now a magnificent moonlit night The table has been removed Flute music is seen in the light of the moon and stars, again in prayer before the white altar-stone of Ra Rufio starts, closes the curtains again softly, and says in a low voice to Cleopatra] Was it she? with her own hand?

CLEOPATRA [threateningly] Whoever it was, let my enemies beware of her Look to it, Rufio, you who dare make the Queen of

Egypt a fool before Cæsar

RUFIO [looking grimly at her] I will look to it, Cleopatra [He nods in confirmation of the promise, and slips out through the curtains loosening his sword in its sheath as he goes]

ROMAN SOLDIERS [in the courtyard below]
Hail, Cæsar! Hail hail!

Cleopatra listens The bucina sounds again, followed by several trumpets

CLEOPATRA [wringing her hands and calling]
Ftataetea. Ftataetea It is dark, and I am alone Come to me [Silence] Ftataetea [Louder] Ftataetea [Silence In a panic she snatches the cord and pulls the curtains apart]

Ftataetea is lying dead on the altar of Ra, with her throat cut Her blood deluges the white stone

ACT V

High noon Festival and military pageant on the esplanade before the palace In the east harbor Cæsar's galley so gorgeously decorated that it seems to be rigged with flowers, is alongside the quay close to the steps Apollodorus descended when he embarked with the carpet A Roman guard is posted there in charge of a gangway, whence a red floorcloth is laid down the middle of the esplanade turning off to the north opposite the central gate in the palace front which shuts in the esplanade on the south side The broad steps of the gate, crowded with Cleopatra's ladies all in their gayest attire, are like a flower garden The façade is lined by her guard officered by the same gallants to whom Bel Affris announced the coming of Cæsar six months before in the old palace on the Syrian border. The north side is lined by Roman soldiers, with the townsfolk on tiptoe behind them, peering over their heads at the cleared esplanade, in which the officers stroll about, chatting Among these are Belzanor and the Persian, also the centurion vineyard cudgel in hand, battle horn, thick-booted and much outshone, both socially and decoratively, by the Egyptian officers

Apollodorus makes his way through the townsfolk and calls to the officers from behind the Roman line

APOLLODORUS Hullo! May I pass?

CENTURION Pass Apollodorus the Sicilian there! [The soldiers let him through]

BELZANOR Is Cæsar at hand?

APOLLODORUS Not yet He is still in the market place I could not stand any more of the roaring of the soldiers! After half an hour of the enthusiasm of an army, one feels the need of a little sea air

PERSIAN Tell us the news Hath he slain the priests?

APOLLODORUS Not he They met him in the market place with ashes on their heads and their gods in their hands They placed the gods at his feet The only one that was worth looking at was Apis a miracle of gold and ivory work By my advice he offered the chief priest two talents for it

BELZANOR [appalled] Apis the all-knowing for two talents! What said the chief priest?

APOLLODORUS He invoked the mercy of Apis, and asked for five.

BELZANOR. There will be famine and tempest in the land for this

PERSIAN. Pooh! Why did not Apis cause Cæsar to be vanquished by Achilles? Any fresh news from the war, Apollodorus?

APOLLODORUS The little King Ptolemy was drowned

BELZANOR Drowned! How?

APOLLODORUS With the rest of them Cæsar attacked them from three sides at once and swept them into the Nile. Ptolemy's barge sank.

BELZANOR A marvellous man, this Cæsar! Will he come soon, think you?

APOLLODORUS He was settling the Jewish question when I left

A flourish of trumpets from the north, and commotion among the townsfolk, announces the approach of Cæsar

PERSIAN He has made short work of them Here he comes [He hurries to his post in front of the Egyptian lines]

BELZANOR [following him] Ho there! Cæsar comes

The soldiers stand at attention, and dress their lines Apollodorus goes to the Egyptian line

CENTURION [hurrying to the gangway guard] Attention there! Cæsar comes Cæsar arrives in state with Rufio Britannus following The soldiers receive him with enthusiastic shouting CÆSAR. I see my ship awaits me The hour of Cæsar's farewell to Egypt has arrived And now Rufio, what remains to be done before I go?

RUFIO [at his left hand] You have not yet appointed a Roman governor for this province

CÆSAR [looking whimsically at him, but speaking with perfect gravity] What say you to Mithridates of Pergamos, my reliever and rescuer, the great son of Eupator?

RUFIO Why, that you will want him elsewhere Do you forget that you have some three or four armies to conquer on your way home?

CÆSAR Indeed! Well, what say you to yourself?

RUFIO [incredulously] I! I a governor! What are you dreaming of? Do you not know that I am only the son of a freedman?

CÆSAR [affectionately] Has not Cæsar called you his son? [Calling to the whole assembly] Peace awhile there, and hear me

THE ROMAN SOLDIERS Hear Cæsar

CÆSAR Hear the service, quality, rank and name of the Roman governor By service, Cæsar's shield, by quality, Cæsar's friend, by rank, a Roman soldier [The Roman soldiers give a triumphant shout] By name, Rufio [They shout again]

RUFIO [kissing Cæsar's hand] Ay I am Cæsar's shield, but of what use shall I be when I am no longer on Cæsar's arm? Well, no matter—[He becomes husky, and turns away to recover himself]

CÆSAR Where is that British Islander of mine?

BRITANNUS [coming forward on Cæsar's right hand] Here, Cæsar

CÆSAR Who bade you, pray, thrust yourself into the battle of the Delta, uttering the barbarous cries of your native land, and affirming yourself a match for any four of the Egyptians, to whom you applied unseemly epithets?

BRITANNUS Cæsar I ask you to excuse the language that escaped me in the heat of the moment

CÆSAR And how did you, who cannot swim, cross the canal with us when we stormed the camp?

BRITANNUS Cæsar I elung to the tail of your horse

CÆSAR These are not the deeds of a slave, Britannicus, but of a free man

BRITANNUS Cæsar I was born free

CÆSAR But they call you Cæsar's slave

BRITANNUS Only as Cæsar's slave have I found real freedom

CÆSAR [moved] Well said Ungrateful that I am, I was about to set you free, but now I will not part from you for a million talents [He claps him friendly on the shoulder Britannus, gratified, but a trifle shamefaced, takes his hand and kisses it sheepishly]

BELZANOR [to the Persian] Th s Roman knows how to make men serve him

PERSIAN Ay men too humble to become dangerous rivals to him

BELZANOR O subtle one! O cynic!

CÆSAR [seeing Apollodorus in the Egyptian corner, and calling to him] Apollodorus I leave the art of Egypt in your charge Remember Rome loves art and will encourage it ungrudgingly

APOLLODORUS I understand Cæsar Rome will produce no art itself, but it will buy up and take away whatever the other nations produce

CÆSAR What! Rome produce no art! Is peace not an art? is war not an art? is government not an art? is civilization not an art? All these we give you in exchange for a few ornaments You will have the best of the bargain [Turning to Rufio] And now, what else have I to do before I embark? [Trying to recollect] There is something I cannot remember what can it be? Well, well it must remain undone we must not waste this favorable wind Farewell, Rufio

RUFIO Cæsar I am loth to let you go to Rome without your shield There are too many daggers there

CÆSAR It matters not I shall finish my life's work on my way back, and then I shall have lived long enough Besides I have always disliked the idea of dying I had rather be killed Farewell

RUFIO [with a sigh, raising his hands and giving Cæsar up as incorrigible] Farewell [They shake hands]

CÆSAR [waving his hand to Apollodorus] Farewell, Apollodorus, and my friends, all of you Aboard!

The gangway is run out from the quay to the ship As Cæsar moves towards it, Cleopatra, cold and tragic, cunningly dressed in black, without ornaments or decoration of any kind, and thus making a striking figure among the brilliantly dressed bevy of ladies as she passes through it, comes from the palace and stands on the steps Cæsar does not see her until she speaks

CLEOPATRA Has Cleopatra no part in this levitating?

CÆSAR [enlightened] Ah, I knew there was something [To Rufio] How could you let me forget her, Rufio? [Hastening to her] Had I gone without seeing you, I should never have forgiven myself [He takes her hands, and brings her into the middle of the esplanade She submits stonily] Is this mourning for me?

CLEOPATRA No

CÆSAR [remorsefully] Ah, that was thoughtless of me! It is for your brother.

CLEOPATRA No

CÆSAR For whom, then?

CLEOPATRA Ask the Roman governor whom you have left us

CÆSAR Rufio?

CLEOPATRA Yes Rufio [She points at him with deadly scorn] He who is to rule here in Cæsar's name, in Cæsar's way, according to Cæsar's boasted laws of life

CÆSAR [dubiously] He is to rule as he can, Cleopatra He has taken the work upon him, and will do it in his own way

CLEOPATRA Not in your way, then?

CÆSAR [puzzled] What do you mean by my way?

CLEOPATRA Without punishment Without revenge Without judgment

CÆSAR [approvingly] Ay, that is the right way, the great way, the only possible way in the end [To Rufio] Believe it, Rufio, if you can

RUFIO Why, I believe it, Cæsar You have convinced me of it long ago But look you You are sailing for Numidia today Now tell me if you meet a hungry lion there, you will not punish it for wanting to eat you?

CÆSAR [wondering what he is driving at] No

RUFIO Nor revenge upon it the blood of those it has already eaten

CÆSAR No

RUFIO Nor judge it for its guiltiness

CÆSAR No

RUFIO What, then, will you do to save your life from it?

CÆSAR [promptly] Kill it, man, without malice, just as it would kill me What does this parable of the lion mean?

RUFIO Why, Cleopatra had a tigress that killed men at her bidding I thought she might bid it kill you some day Well, had I not been Cæsar's pupil, what pious things might I not have done to that tigress! I might have punished it I might have revenged Pothinus on it

CÆSAR [interjects] Pothinus!

RUFIO [continuing] I might have judged it But I put all these follies behind me, and, without malice, only cut its throat And that is why Cleopatra comes to you in mourning

CLEOPATRA [vehemently] He has shed the blood of my servant Ftatateeta On your head be it as upon his, Cæsar, if you hold him free of it

CÆSAR [energetically] On my head be it, then, for it was well done Rufio had you set yourself in the seat of the judge, and with hateful ceremonies and appeals to the gods handed that woman over to some hired executioner to be slain before the people in the name of justice, never again would I have touched your hand without a shudder But this was natural slaying I feel no horror at it

Rufio, satisfied, nods at Cleopatra, mutely inviting her to mark that

CLEOPATRA [pettish and childish in her impotence] No not when a Roman slays an Egyptian All the world will now see how unjust and corrupt Cæsar is CÆSAR [taking her hands coaxingly] Come! do not be angry with me I am sorry for that poor Totateeta [She laughs in spite of herself] Aha! you are laughing Does that mean reconciliation?

CLEOPATRA [angry with herself for laughing] No, no, NO! But it is so ridiculous to hear you call her Totateeta CÆSAR What! As much a child as ever, Cleopatra! Have I not made a woman of you after all?

CLEOPATRA Oh, it is you who are a great baby you make me seem silly because you will not behave seriously But you have treated me badly, and I do not forgive you

CÆSAR Bid me farewell

CLEOPATRA I will not

CÆSAR [coaxing] I will send you a beautiful present from Rome

CLEOPATRA [proudly] Beauty from Rome to Egypt indeed! What can Rome give me that Egypt cannot give me?

APOLLODORUS That is true, Cæsar If the present is to be really beautiful, I shall have to buy it for you in Alexandria

CÆSAR You are forgetting the treasures for which Rome is most famous, my friend You cannot buy them in Alexandria

APOLLODORUS What are they, Cæsar?

CÆSAR Her sons Come, Cleopatra forgive me and bid me farewell, and I will send you a man, Roman from head to heel and Roman of the noblest, not old and ripe for the knife, not lean in the arms and cold in the heart, not hiding a bald head under his conqueror's laurels, not stooped with the weight of the world on his shoulders, but brisk and fresh, strong and young, hoping in the morning, fighting in the day, and revelling in the evening Will you take such an one in exchange for Cæsar?

CLEOPATRA [palpitating] His name, his name?

CÆSAR Shall it be Mark Antony? [She throws herself into his arms]

RUFIO You are a bad hand at a bargain, mistress, if you will swop Cæsar for Antony

CÆSAR So now you are satisfied

CLEOPATRA You will not forget

CÆSAR I will not forget Farewell I do not think we shall meet again Farewell [He kisses her on the forehead She is much affected and begins to sniff He embarks]

THE ROMAN SOLDIERS [as he sets his foot on the gangway] Hail, Cæsar, and farewell!

He reaches the ship and returns Rufio's name of the hand

APOLLODORUS [to Cleopatra] No tears, dearest Queen they stab your servant to the heart He will return some day

CLEOPATRA I hope not But I cant help crying, all the same [She waves her handkerchief to Cæsar, and the ship begins to move]

THE ROMAN SOLDIERS [drawing their swords and raising them in the air] Hail, Cæsar!

CAPTAIN BRASSBOUND'S CONVERSION

AN ADVENTURE (1899)

BEING THE THIRD OF THREE PLAYS FOR PURITANS

ACT I

On the heights overlooking the harbor of Mogador, a seaport on the west coast of Morocco, the missionary, in the coolness of the late afternoon, is following the precept of Voltaire by cultivating his garden He is an elderly Scotchman, spiritually a little weatherbeaten, as having to navigate his creed in strange waters crowded with other craft, but still a convinced son of the Free Church and the North African Mission, with a faithful brown eye, and a peaceful soul Physically a wiry small-knit man, well tanned, clean shaven, with delicate resolute features and a twinkle of mild humor He wears the sun helmet and pagri, the neutral-tinted spectacles, and the white canvas Spanish sand shoes of the modern Scotch missionary, but instead of a cheap tourist's suit from Glasgow, a grey flannel shirt with white collar, a green sailor knot tie with a cheap pin in it, he wears a suit of clean white linen, acceptable in color, if not in cut, to the Moorish munda

The view from the garden includes much Atlantic Ocean and a long stretch of sandy coast to the south, swept by the north east trade wind, and scantily nourishing a few stunted pepper trees, mangy palms, and tamarisks The prospect ends, as far as the land is concerned, in little hills that come nearly to the sea rudiments, these, of the Atlas Mountains The missionary, having had daily opportunities of looking at this seascape for thirty years or so, pays no heed to it, being absorbed in trunming a huge red geranium bush, to English eyes unnaturally big, which, with a dusty smilar or two, is the sole product of his pet flower-bed He is sitting to his work on a Moorish stool In the middle of the garden there is a pleasant seat in the shade of a tamarisk tree The house is in the south west corner of the garden, and the geranium bush in the north east corner

At the garden-door of the house there appears presently a man who is clearly no barbarian, being in fact a less agreeable product peculiar to modern commercial civilization His frame and flesh are those of an ill-nourished lad of seventeen, but his age is inscrutable only the absence of any sign of grey in his mud colored hair suggests that he is at all events probably under forty, without prejudice to the possibility of his being under twenty A Londoner would recognize him at once as an extreme but hardy specimen of the abortion produced by nurture in a city slum His utterance, affectedly pumped and hearty, and naturally vulgar and nasal, is ready and fluent nature, a Board School education, and some Jerbstone practice having made him a bit of an orator His dialect, apart from its base nasal delivery, is not unlike that of smart London society in its tendency to replace diphthongs by vowels (sometimes rather prettily) and to shuffle all the traditional vowel pronunciations He pronounces ow as ah, and i as aw, using the ordinary ore for

o, i for ā, ā for ū and ě for ä, with this reservation, that when any vowel is followed by an r, he signifies its presence not by pronouncing the r, which he never does under these circumstances, but by prolonging and modifying the vowel, sometimes even to the extreme degree of pronouncing it properly. As to his yol for l (a compendious delivery of the provincial eh-al), and other metropolitan refinements, amazing to all but cockneys, they cannot be indicated, save in the above imperfect manner. without the aid of a phonetic alphabet. He is dressed in somebody else's very second best as a coastguardsman and gives himself the airs of a stage tar with sufficient success to pass as a possible fish porter of bad character in casual employment during busy times at Billingsgate. His manner shews an earnest disposition to ingratiate himself with the missionary, probably for some dishonest purpose.

THE MAN Awtenoon, Mr Renkin [The missionary sits up quickly, and turns, resigning himself dutifully to the interruption] Yr honor's eolth

RANKIN [reservedly] Good afternoon, Mr Drinkwotter

DRINKWATER Youre not best pleased to be interrupted in yr bit o gawdnin baw the lawk o me, gavner

RANKIN A missionary knows nothing of leks of that soart, or of disleks either, Mr Drinkwotter. What can I do for ye?

DRINKWATER [heartily] Nathunk, gavner. Awve bror noos fer yer

RANKIN Well, sit ye doon.

DRINKWATER. Aw thank yr honor [He sits down on the seat under the tree and composes himself for conversation] Hever ear o Jadge Ellam?

RANKIN -Sir Howtrd Hallam?

DRINKWATER. Thets im—enginest jadge in Hingland!—awlus gives the ket wen its robbry with voylence. Bless is awt. Aw sy nathunk agin im awm all fer lor mawseolf aw em

RANKIN Well?

DRINKWATER. Hever ear of is sist-in-lor Lidy Sisly Winefleet?

RANKIN Do ye mean the celebrated leddy—the traveller?

DRINKWATER Yuss should think aw doo. Walked acrost Harfricar with nathunk but a little dawg, and wrowt abaht it in the Dily Mile [the Daily Mail, a popular London newspaper] she did RANKIN Is she Sir Howtrd Hallam's sister-in-law?

DRINKWATER Deceased wawfe's sister yuss thets wot she is

RANKIN Well, what about them?

DRINKWATER Wot abaht them! Waw, theyr eah Lannid aht of a steam yacht in Mogador awber not twenty minnts ago. Gorn to the British cornsl's. E'll send em orn to you e ynt got naowheres to put em. Sor em awr (here) a Harab an two Krooboys to kerry their laggige. Thort awd cam an teoll yer

RANKIN Thank you. Its verra kind of you, Mr Drinkwotter

DRINKWATER. Downt mention it, gavner. Lor bless yer, wawnt it you as converted me? Wot was aw wen aw cam eah but a pore lorst sinner? Downt aw ow y'a turn fer thet? Besawds, gavner, thus Lidy Sisly Winefleet mawt wornt to tike a walk crost Morocher—a rawd inter the mahntns or sech lawk. Weoll, as you knaow, gavner, thet cawnt be done eah withaht a heskort

RANKIN It's impoossible th' would oall b' murdered. Morocco is not lek the rest of Africa

DRINKWATER No, gavner. These eah Moors ez their religion, an it mikes em dinegerous. Hever convert a Moor, gavner?

RANKIN [with a rueful smile] No

DRINKWATER [solemnly] Nor hever will, gavner

RANKIN I have been at work here for twenty-five years, Mr Drinkwotter, and you are my first and only convert DRINKWATER Downt seem naow good, do it, gavner?

RANKIN I dont say that. I hope I have done some good. They come to me for medicine when they are ill; and they call me the Christian who is not a thief. That is something

DRINKWATER Their mawnds kennot rawse to Christiennity lawk. Hahrs ken, gavner. Thets ah it is. Weoll, ez haw was syn, if a heskort is wornted, there's maw friend and commawnder Kepn Brarsbahnd of the schooner Thenksgivin, an is crew, incloodin mawseolf, will see the lidy an Jadge Ellam through henny little excursion in reason. Yr honor mawt mention it

RANKIN I will certainly not propose any thing so dangerous as an excursion

DRINKWATER [virtuously] Naow, gavner, nor would I awst you to [Shaking his head] Naow, naow it is dinegerous. But hall the more call for a heskort if they should ev it hin their mawnds to gow

RANKIN I hope they wont

DRINKWATER An sow aw do too, gavner

RANKIN [pondering] Tis strange that they should come to Mogador, of all places, and to my house! I once met Sir Howrred Hallam, years ago

DRINKWATER [amazed] Naow! didger? Think o thet, gavner! Waw, sow aw did too But it were a misunnerstendin, thet wors Lef the court witaht a stine on maw kerricketei, aw did

RANKIN [with some indignation] I hope you dont think I met Sir Howrred in that way

DRINKWATER Mawt yeppn to the honestest, best meannin pussan, aw do assure yer, gavner

RANKIN I would have you to know that I met him privately, Mr Drinkwotter His brother was a dear friend of mine Years ago He went out to the West Indies

DRINKWATER The Wust Hindies! Jist acrost there, tather sawd thet howeean [pointing seaward]! Dear me! We camn him with venny, an we deepawts in dawknness Downt we, gavner?

RANKIN [pricking up his ears] Eh? Have you been reading that little book I gave you?

DRINKWATER Aw hev, et odd tawms Very camfitn, gavner [He rises, apprehensive lest further catechism should find him unprepared] Awll sy good awtenoon, gavner youre busy hexpectin o Sr Ahrd an Lidy Sisly, ynt yer? [About to go]

RANKIN [stopping him] No, stop we're oal-ways ready for travellers here I have something else to say—a question to ask you

DRINKWATER [with misgiving, which he masks by exaggerating his hearty sailor manner] An weollcome, yr honor

RANKIN Who is this Captain Brassbound?

DRINKWATER [guiltily] Kepn Brarsbahnd! E's—weoll, e's maw Kepn, gavner

RANKIN Yes Well?

DRINKWATER [fcebly] Kepn of the schooner Thenksgivin, gavner

RANKIN [scarchingly] Have ye ever hard of a bad character in these seas called Black Paquito?

DRINKWATER [with a sudden radiance of complete enlightenment] Aoh, nar aw tikes yer wiv me, yr honor Nah sammun es bin a teolln you thet Kepn Brarsbahnd an Bleck Pakeetow is haw-dentically the sime pussn Ynt thet sow?

RANKIN That is so [Drinkwoter slaps his face triumphantly The missionary proceeds determinedly] And the someone was a verr honest, straightforward man, as far as I could judge

DRINKWATER [embracing the implication] Course e wors, gavner Ls aw said a word agin him? Ev aw nah?

RANKIN But is Captain Brassbound Black Paquito then?

DRINKWATER Waw, its the nime is blessed mather give im at er knec, bless is little awt! Ther ynt naow awm in it She were a Wust Hinjin—however there agin, yer see [pointing seaward]-leastwaws, naow she worst she were a Brazilian, aw think, an Pakeetow's Brazilian for a bloomin little perrit—awskun yr pawdn for the word [Sentimentally] Ls aw as a Hinglish lidy mawt eall er litle boy Birdie

RANKIN [not quite convinced] But why Black Paquito?

DRINKWATER [artlessly] Waw, the bird in its netral stite bein green, an e evin bleck air, y' knaow—

RANKIN [cutting him short] I see And now I will put ye another question What is Captain Brassbound, or Paquito, or whatever he calls himself?

DRINKWATER [officially] Brarsbahnd, gavner Awlls calls isseelf Brarsbahnd

RANKIN Well, Brassbound then What is he?

DRINKWATER [fervently] You awks me wot e is, gavner?

RANKIN [firmly] I do

DRINKWATER [with rising enthusiasm] An shll aw teoll yer wot e is, yr honor?

RANKIN [not at all impressed] If ye will be so good, Mr Drinkwotter

DRINKWATER [with overhelming conviction] Then awll teoll you, gavner, wot he is Le's a Paffick Genlmn thets wot e is RANKIN [gravely] Mr Drinkwotter parfection is an attribute, not of West Coast captains, but of thr Maaker And there are gentlemen and gentlemen in the world, espacially in these latitudes Which sort of gentleman is he?

DRINKWATER Hinglish genlmn, gavner Hinglish speakin, Hinglish fawther, West Hinjin plawnter, Hinglish true blue breed [Reflectively] Teech o brahn from the mather, preps, she bein Brazilian

RANKIN Now on your faith as a Christian, Feh Drinkwotter, is Captain Brassbound

a slaver or not?

DRINKWATER [surprised into his natural cockney pertness] Naow e ynt

RANKIN Are ye sure?

DRINKWATER Waw, a sliver is abaht the wanne thing in the wy of a genlman o fortn thet e ynt

RANKIN Ive hard that expression "gentleman of fortune" before Mr Drinkwotter It means pirate Do ye know that?

DRINKWATER Bless yr awt, y' cawnt be a pawrit naradys Waw, the aw seas is wuss pleest nor Piccadilly Suckus If aw was to do orn thet there Hetlentic Howcean the things aw did as a bwoy in the Worterleoo Rowd, awd ev maw air cat afore aw could turn maw ed Pawrit be blaowed!—awskink yr pawdn, gavner Nah, jest to shaow you ah little thet there striteforard man y' mude mention on knaowed wot e was atorkin abaht oo would you spowse was the marster to wich Kepn Brarsbahnd served apprentice, as yr mawt sy?

RANKIN I dont know

DRINKWATER Gawdn, gavner, Gawdn Gawdn o Kawtoom—stetcher stends in Trifawlg Square to this dy Trined Bleck Paketow in smawshin hap the slive riders, e did Promist Gawdn e wouldnt never smaggle slives nor gin, an [with suppressed aggravation] wo wnt, gavner, not if we gows dahn on ahr bloomin bended knees to im to do it

RANKIN [drily] And do ye go down on your bended knees to him to do it?

DRINKWATER [somewhat abashed] Some of huz is hanconverted men, gavner, an they sy You smaggles wanne thing, Kepn, waw not hanather?

RANKIN Weve come to it at last I thought so Captain Brassbound is a smuggler

DRINKWATER Weoll, waw not? Waw not, gavner? Ahrs is a Free Trade nition It gows agin us as Hinglishmen to see these bloomin furnners settin ap their Castoms Ahses and spheres o hinfuence and sich lawk hall owver Africar Daownt Harfricar belong as much to huz as to them? thets wot we sy Ennywys, there ynt naow awm in ahr business All we daz is hescort, tourist hor commercial Cook's hexcursions to the Hatlas Mahntns thets hall it is Waw, its spreadin civlawzytion, it is Ynt it nah?

RANKIN You think Captain Brassbound's crew sufficiently equipped for that, do you?

DRINKWATER Hee-qupped! Haw should think sow Lawtnin rawfles, twelve shots in the meggezine! Oo's to storp us?

RANKIN The most dangerous chieftain in these parts, the Sheikh Sidi el Assif, has a new American machine pistol which fires ten bullets without loadin, and his rifle hassixteen shots in the magazine

DRINKWATER [indignantly] Yuss, and the people that sells sich thungs into the ends o them eathen blëck niggers calls theirseolves Christians! Its a crool shume, sow it is RANKIN If a man has the heart to pull the trigger, it matters litle what color his hand is, Mr Drinkwotter Have ye anything else to say to me this afternoon?

DRINKWATER [rising] Nathink, gavner, cept to wishyer the bust o yolth, and a many cornverts Awtenoon, gavner

As Drinkwater turns to go, a Moorish porter comes from the house with two Krooboys

THE PORTER [at the door, addressing Rankin] Bikouros [Moroccan for Epicurus, a general Moorish name for the missionaries, who are supposed by the Moors to have chosen their calling through a love of luxurious idleness] I have brought to your house a Christian dog and his woman

DRINKWATER Theres eathen menners fer yer! Calls Sr Ahrd Ellam an Lidy Winefleet a Christian dorg and is woman! If ee ed you in the dorek et the Centl Crimnal, youd fawnd aht oo was the dorg and oo was is marster, pretty quick, you would RANKIN Have you broat their boxes?

THE PORTER By Allah, two camel loads!

RANKIN Have you been paid?

THE PORTER Only one miserable dollar, Bikouros I have brought them to your house They will pay you Give me something for bringing gold to your door

DRINKWATER Yah! You oughter bin bawn a Christian, you ought You knaow too mach

RANKIN You have broat onnly trouble and expense to my door, Hassan, and you know it Have I ever charged your wife and children for my medicines?

HASSAN [philosophically] It is always permitted by the Prophet to ask, Bikouros [He goes cheerfully into the house with the Krooboys]

DRINKWATER Jist thort eed trah it orn, e did Hooman nitre is the sime everywhere Them eathens is jast lawk you an me, gavner

A lady and gentleman, both English, come into the garden The gentleman, more than elderly, is facing old age on compulsion, not re-

signedly He is clean shaven, and has a brany rectangular forehead, a resolute nose with strongly governed nostrils, and a tightly fastened down mouth which has evidently shut in much temper and anger in its time He has a habit of deliberately assumed authority and dignity, but is trying to take life more genially and easily in his character of tourist, which is further borne out by his white hat and summery racecourse attire

The lady is between thirty and forty, tall, very goodlooking, sympathetic, intelligent, tender and humorous, dressed with cunning simplicity not as a businesslike, tailor made, gaitered tourist, but as if she lived at the next cottage and had dropped in for tea in blouse and flowered straw hat A woman of great vitality and humanity, who begins a casual acquaintance at the point usually attained by English people after thirty years' acquaintance when they are capable of reaching it at all She pounces genially on Drinkwater, who is smirking at her, hat in hand, with an air of hearty welcome The gentleman, on the other hand, comes down the side of the garden next the house, instinctively maintaining a distance between himself and the others

THE LADY [to Drinkwater] How dye do? Are you the missionary?

DRINKWATER [modestly] Naow, hidy, aw will not deceive you, thow the mistike his but netral Awm wanne of the missionary's good works, hidy—is first cornvert, a umble British seaman—countrymen o yours, hidy, and of is lawdship's This eah is Mr Renkin, the bust worker in the wust cowst vawnyard [Introducing the judge] Mr Renkin is lawdship Sr Ahrd Ellam [He withdraws discreetly into the house]

SIR HOWARD [to Rankin] I am sorry to intrude on you, Mr Rankin, but in the absence of a hotel there seems to be no alternative

LADY CICELY [beaming on him] Besides, we would so much rather stay with you, if you will have us, Mr Rankin

SIR HOWARD [introducing her] My sister-in-law, Lady Cicely Waynflete, Mr Rankin

RANKIN I am glad to be of service to your leddyship You will be wishing to have some tea after your journey, I'm thinking

LADY CICELY Thoughtful man that you are, Mr Rankin But we've had some already on board the yacht And I've arranged everything with your servants, so you must go on gardening just as if we were not here

SIR HOWARD I am sorry to have to warn you, Mr Rankin, that Lady Cicely, from travelling in Africa, has acquired a habit of walking into people's houses and behaving as if she were in her own

LADY CICELY But, my dear Howard, I assure you the natives like it

RANKIN [gallantly] So do I

LADY CICELY [delighted] Oh, that is so nice of you, Mr Rankin This is a delicious country! And the people seem so good! They have such nice faces! We had such a handsome Moor to carry our luggage up! And two perfect pets of Krooboy's! Did you notice their faces, Howard?

SIR HOWARD I did, and I can confidently say, after a long experience of faces of the worst type looking at me from the dock, that I have never seen so entirely villainous a trio as that Moor and the two Krooboy's, to whom you gave five dollars when they would have been perfectly satisfied with one

RANKIN [throning up his hands] Five dollars! 'Tis easy to see you are not Scotch, my leddy

LADY CICELY O, poor things, they must want it more than we do, and you know, Howard, that Mahometans never spend money in drink

RANKIN Excuse me a moment, my leddy I have a word in season to say to that same Moor [He goes into the house]

LADY CICELY [walking about the garden, looking at the view and at the flowers] I think this is a perfectly heavenly place

Drinkwater returns from the house with a chair

DRINKWATER [placing the chair for Sir Howard] Awshink yr pawdn for the libbety, Sr Ahrd

SIR HOWARD [looking at him] I have seen you before somewhere

DRINKWATER You ay, Sr Ahrd But tw do assure yer it were hall a mistike

SIR HOWARD As usual [He sits down] Wrongfully convicted, of course

DRINKWATER [with sly delight] Naow, gavner [Half whispering, with an ineffable grin] Wronngfully hacquittid!

SIR HOWARD Indeed! That's the first case of the kind I have ever met DRINKWATER Lawd, Sr Ahrd, wot jagginses them jurymen was! You an me knaowed it too, didnt we?

SIR HOWARD I daresay we did I am sorry to say I forget the exact nature of the difficulty you were in Can you refresh my memory?

DRINKWATER Owny the aw sperrits o youth y' lawdship Worterleoo Rowd kice Wot they calls Ooliganism

SIR HOWARD Oh! You were a Hooligan, were you?

LADY CICELY [puzzled] A Hooligan!

DRINKWATER [deprecatingly] Nime giv huz pore thortless leds baw a gent on the Dily Chronicle, ldy [Rankin returns Drinkwater immediately withdraws, stopping the missionary for a moment near the threshold to say, touching his forelock] Awill eng abaht within ile, gavner, hin kice aw should be wornted [He goes into the house with soft steps]

Lady Cicely sits down on the bench under the tamarisk. Rankin takes his stool from the flower-bed and sits down on her left, Sir Howard being on her right

LADY CICELY What a pleasant face your sailor friend has, Mr Rankin! He has been so frank and truthful with us. You know I dont think anybody can pay me a greater compliment than to be quite sincere with me at first sight. Its the perfection of natural good manners

SIR HOWARD You must not suppose, Mr Rankin, that my sister-in-law talks nonsense on purpose. She will continue to believe in your friend until he steals her watch, and even then she will find excuses for him

RANKIN [drily changing the subject] And how have ye been, Sir Howrd, since our last meeting that morning nigh forty year ago down at the docks in London?

SIR HOWARD [greatly surprised, pulling himself together] Our last meeting! Mr Rankin have I been unfortunate enough to forget an old acquaintance?

RANKIN Well, perhaps hardly an acquaintance, Sir Howrd. But I was a close friend of your brother Miles, and when he sailed for Brazil I was one of the little party that saw him off. You were one of the party also, if I'm not mistaken. I took particular notice of you because you were Miles's brother and I had never seen ye before. But ye had no call to take notice of me

SIR HOWARD [reflecting] Yes there was a young friend of my brother's who might well be you. But the name, as I recollect it, was Leshe

RANKIN That was me, sir. My name is Leshe Rankin, and your brother and I were always Miles and Leshe to one another

SIR HOWARD [pluming himself a little] Ah! that explains it. I can trust my memory still, Mr Rankin, though some people do complain that I am growing old

RANKIN And where may Miles be now, Sir Howard?

SIR HOWARD [abruptly] Dont you know that he is dead?

RANKIN [much shocked] Never hard of it. Dear, dear. I shall never see him again, and I can scarcely bring his face to mind after all these years [With moistening eyes, which at once touch Lady Cicely's sympathy] I'm right sorry—right sorry

SIR HOWARD [decorously subduing his voice] Yes he did not live long indeed, he never came back to England. It must be nearly thirty years ago now that he died in the West Indies on his property there

RANKIN [surprised] His proaperty! Miles with a proaperty!

SIR HOWARD Yes he became a planter, and did well out there, Mr Rankin. The history of that property is a very curious and interesting one—at least it is so to a lawyer like myself

RANKIN I should be glad to hear it for Miles's sake, though I am no lawyer, Sir Howrd

LADY CICELY I never knew you had a brother, Howard?

SIR HOWARD [not pleased by this remark] Perhaps because you never asked me [Turning more blandly to Rankin] I will tell you the story, Mr Rankin. When Miles died, he left an estate in one of the West Indian islands. It was in charge of an agent who was a sharpish fellow, with all his wits about him. Now, sir, that man did a thing which probably could hardly be done with impunity even here in Morocco, under the most barbarous of surviving civilizations. He quite simply took the estate for himself and kept it

RANKIN But how about the law?

SIR HOWARD The law, sir, in that island, consisted practically of the Attorney General and the Solicitor General, and these gentlemen were both retained by the agent. Consequently there was no solicitor in the island to take up the case against him

RANKIN Is such a thing possible today in the British Empire?

SIR HOWARD [calmly] Oh, quite. Quite

LADY CICELY But could not a first-rate solicitor have been sent out from London?

SIR HOWARD No doubt, by paying him enough to compensate him for giving up his London practice that is, rather more than there was any reasonable likelihood of the estate proving worth

RANKIN Then the estate was lost?

SIR HOWARD Not permanently It is in my hands at present

RANKIN Then how did ye get it back?

SIR HOWARD [with crafty enjoyment of his own cunning] By hoisting the rogue with his own petard I had to leave matters as they were for many years, for I had my own position in the world to make But at last I made it In the course of a holiday trip to the West Indies, I found that this dishonest agent had left the island, and placed the estate in the hands of an agent of his own, whom he was foolish enough to pay very badly I put the case before that agent, and he decided to treat the estate as my property The robber now found himself in exactly the same position he had formerly forced me into Nobody in the island would act against me, least of all the Attorney and Solicitor General, who appreciated my influence at the Colonial Office And so I got the estate back "The mills of the gods grind slowly," Mr Rankin, "but they grind exceeding small"

LADY CECILY Now I suppose if I'd done such a clever thing in England, you'd have sent me to prison

SIR HOWARD Probably, unless you had taken care to keep outside the law against conspiracy Whenever you wish to do anything against the law, Cecily, always consult a good solicitor first LADY CECILY So I do But suppose your agent takes it into his head to give the estate back to his wicked old employer?

SIR HOWARD I heartily wish he would

RANKIN [openeyed] You wish he would!

SIR HOWARD Yes A few years ago the collapse of the West Indian sugar industry converted the income of the estate into an annual loss of about £150 a year If I can't sell it soon, I shall simply abandon it—unless you, Mr Rankin, would like to take it as a present

RANKIN [laughing] I thank your lordship we have estates enough of that sort in Scotland Your setting with your back to the sun, Leddy Cecily, and losing something worth looking at See there [He rises and points seaward, where the rapid twilight of the latitude

has begun]

LADY CECILY [getting up to look and uttering a cry of admiration] Oh, how lovely!

SIR HOWARD [also rising] What are those hills over there to the south-east?

RANKIN They are the outposts, so to speak of the Atlas Mountains

LADY CECILY The Atlas Mountains! Where Shelley's witch lived! We'll make an excursion to them tomorrow, Howard

RANKIN That's impossible, my ledgy The natives are verra dangerous

LADY CECILY Why? Has any explorer been shooting them?

RANKIN No But every man of them believes he will go to Heaven if he kills an unbeliever

LADY CECILY Bless you, dear Mr Rankin, the people in England believe that they will go to heaven if they give all their property to the poor But they don't do it I'm not a bit afraid of that

RANKIN But they are not accustomed to see women going about unveiled

LADY CECILY I always get on best with people when they can see my face

SIR HOWARD Cecily you are talking great nonsense, and you know it These people have no laws to restrain them, which means, in plain English, that they are habitual thieves and murderers

RANKIN Nay, nay not exactly that, Sir Howtrd

LADY CECILY [indignantly] Of course not You always think, Howard, that nothing prevents people killing each other but the fear of your hanging them for it But what nonsense that is! And how wicked! If these people weren't here for some good purpose, they wouldn't have been made, would they, Mr Rankin?

RANKIN That is a point, certainly, Leddy Cecily

SIR HOWARD Oh, if you are going to talk theology—

LADY CECILY Well, why not? theology is as respectable as law, I should think Besides, I'm only talking commonsense Why do people get killed by savages? Because instead of being polite to them, and saying How dye do? like me, people aim pistols at them I've been among savages—cannibals and all sorts Everybody said they'd kill me But when I met them, I said Howdyedor and they were quite nice The kings always wanted to marry me

SIR HOWARD That does not seem to me to make you any safer here Cicely You shall certainly not stir a step beyond the protection of the consul if I can help it, without a strong escort

LADY CICELY. I dont want an escort.

SIR HOWARD I do And I suppose you will expect me to accompany you

RANKIN Tis not safe, Leddy Ceecily Really and truly, tis not safe The tribes are verra fierce and there are cities here that no Christian has ever set foot in If you go without being well protected, the first chief you meet will seize you and send you back again to prevent his followers murdering you

LADY CICELY. Oh, how nice of him, Mr Rankin!

RANKIN He would not do it for your sake Leddy Ceecily, but for his own The Sultan would get into trouble with England if you were killed, and the Sultan would kill the chief to pacify the English government

LADY CICELY. But I always go everywhere. I know the people here wont touch me They have such nice faces and such pretty scenery

SIR HOWARD [to Rankin, sitting down again resignedly] You can imagine how much use there is in talking to a woman who admires the faces of the ruffians who infest these ports Mr Rankin Can anything be done in the way of an escort?

RANKIN. There is a certain Captain Brass-bound here who trades along the coast, and occasionally escorts parties of merchants on journeys into the interior. I understand that he served under Gordon in the Soudan.

SIR HOWARD That sounds promising But I should like to know a little more about him before I trust myself in his hands

RANKIN I quite agree with you Sir Howard I'll send Felix Drinkwotter for him [He claps his hands An Arab boy appears at the house door] Muley is sailor man here? [Muley nods] Tell sailor man bring captam [Muley nods and goes]

SIR HOWARD Who is Drinkwater?

RANKIN His agent, or mate I dont rightly know which LADY CICELY. Oh, if he has a mate named Felix Drinkwater, it must be quite a respectable crew It is such a nice name.

RANKIN You saw him here just now He is a convert of mine.

LADY CICELY [delighted] That nice truthful sailor!

SIR HOWARD [horrified] What! The Hooligan! RANKIN [puzzled] Hooligan? No, my lord he is an Englishman

SIR HOWARD My dear Mr Rankin, this man was tried before me on a charge of street ruffianism

RANKIN So he told me He was badly broat up, I am afraid But he is now a converted man.

LADY CICELY Of course he is His telling you so frankly proves it You know, really, Howard all those poor people whom you try are more sinned against than sinning If you would only talk to them in a friendly way instead of passing cruel sentences on them, you would find them quite nice to you [Indignantly] I wont have this poor man trampled on merely because his mother brought him up as a Hooligan I am sure nobody could be nicer than he was when he spoke to us

SIR HOWARD In short, we are to have an escort of Hooligans commanded by a filibuster Very well, very well You will most likely admire all their faces, and I have no doubt at all that they will admire yours

Drinkwater comes from the house with an Italian dressed in a much worn suit of blue serge, a dilapidated Alpine hat, and boots laced with scraps of twine He remains near the door, whilst Drinkwater comes forward between Sir Howard and Lady Cicely

DRINKWATER Yr honor's servant [To the Italian] Mawtzow is lawdshup Sr Ahrd Ellam [Marzo touches his hat] Er ldyshup Lidy Winefleet [Marzo touches his hat] Hawtelhan shipmite, ldy. Hahr chef

LADY CICELY [nodding affably to Marzo] Howdyedo? I love Italy What part of it were you born in?

DRINKWATER Wornt bawn in Hitly at all, ldy Bawn in Ettin Gawdn [Hatton Garden] Hawce barrer an street pianner Hawtellian, ldy thets wot e is Kepn Brarsbahnd's respects to yr honors; an e awites yr com-mawnds

RANKIN Shall we go indoors to see him?

SIR HOWARD I think we had better have a look at him by daylight

RANKIN Then we must lose no time the dark is soon down in this latitude [To Drinkwater] Will ye ask him to step out here to us, Mr Drinkwotter?

DRINKWATER. Rawt you aw, gavner [He goes officiously into the house]

Lady Cicely and Rankin sit down as before to receive the Captain. The light is by this time waning rapidly, the darkness creeping nest into the orange crimson

LADY CICELY [whispering] Dont you feel rather creepy, Mr Rankin? I wonder what he'll be like

RANKIN I misdoubt me he will not answer, your leddyship

There is a scuffling noise in the house, and Drinkwater shoots out through the doorway across the garden with every appearance of having been violently kicked. Marzo immediately hurries down the garden on Sir Howard's right out of the neighborhood of the doorway

DRINKWATER [trying to put a cheerful air on much mortification and bodily anguish] Narsty step to thet ere door—tripped me hap, it did [Raising his voice and narrowly escaping a squeak of pain] Kepn Brarsbahnd [He gets as far from the house as possible, on Rankin's left Rankin rises to receive his guest]

An olive complexioned man with dark southern eyes and hair comes from the house. Age about 36. Handsome features, but joyless, dark eyebrows drawn towards one another, mouth set grimly, nostrils large and strained, a face set to one tragic purpose. A man of few words, fewer gestures, and much significance. On the whole, interesting, and even attractive, but not friendly. He stands for a moment, saturnine in the ruddy light, to see who is present, looking in a singular and rather deadly way at Sir Howard, then with some surprise and uneasiness at Lady Cicely. Finally he comes down into the middle of the garden, and confronts Rankin, who has been staring at him in consternation from the moment of his entrance, and continues to do so in so marked a way that the glow in Brassbound's eyes deepens as he begins to take offence

BRASSBOUND Well, sir, have you stared your fill at me?

RANKIN [recovering himself with a start] I ask your pardon for my bad manners, Captain Brassbound. Ye are extraordinary lek an auld college friend of mine, whose face I said not ten minutes gone that I could no longer bring to mind. It was as if he had come from the grave to remind me of it.

BRASSBOUND Why have you sent for me?

RANKIN We have a matter of business with ye, Captain.

BRASSBOUND Who are "we"?

RANKIN This is Sir Howard Hallam, who will be well known to ye as one of Her Majesty's judges

BRASSBOUND [turning the singular look again on Sir Howard] The friend of the widow! the protector of the fatherless!

SIR HOWARD [startled] I did not know I was so favorably spoken of in these parts, Captain Brassbound. We want an escort for a trip into the mountains.

BRASSBOUND [ignoring this announcement] Who is the lady?

RANKIN Lady Cecely Waynflete, his lordship's sister-in-law.

LADY CICELY Howdyedo, Captain Brassbound? [He bows gravely]

SIR HOWARD [a little impatient of these questions, which strike him as somewhat impertinent] Let us come to business, if you please. We are thinking of making a short excursion to see the country about here. Can you provide us with an escort of respectable, trustworthy men?

BRASSBOUND No.

DRINKWATER [in strong remonstrance] Nah, nah, nah! Nah look eah, Kepn, y' knaow—

BRASSBOUND [between his teeth] Hold your tongue.

DRINKWATER [abjectly] Yuss, Kepn.

RANKIN I understood it was your business to provide escorts, Captain Brassbound.

BRASSBOUND You were rightly informed. That is my business.

LADY CICELY Then why wont you do it for us?

BRASSBOUND You are not content with an escort. You want respectable, trustworthy men. You should have brought a division of London policemen with you. My men are neither respectable nor trustworthy.

DRINKWATER [unable to contain himself] Nah, nah, look eah, Kepn. If you want to be moddist, be moddist on your awn recchnt, nort on mawn.

BRASSBOUND You see what my men are like. That rascal [indicating Marzo] would cut a throat for a dollar if he had courage enough.

MARZO I not understand. I no spik Inglis.

BRASSBOUND This thing [pointing to Drinkwater] is the greatest liar, thief, drunkard, and rapsallion on the west coast.

DRINKWATER [affecting an ironie indifference] Gow orn, gow orn. Sr Ahrd ez erd witnesses to maw kerrichter fforh. E knaovs ah mech to bheve of em.

LADY CICELY Captain Brassbound I have heard all that before about the blacks, and

I found them very nice people when they were properly treated

DRINKWATER [chuckling the Italian is also grinning] Nah, Kepn, nah! Owp yr prahd o y'seolf nah

BRASSBOUND I quite understand the proper treatment for him, madam If he opens his mouth again without my leave, I will break every bone in his skin

LADY CICELY [in her most sunnily matter-of-fact way] Does Captain Brassbound always treat you like this, Mr Drinkwater?

Drinkwater hesitates, and looks apprehensively at the Captain

BRASSBOUND Answer, you dog, when the lady orders you [To Lady Cicely] Do not address him as Mr Drinkwater, madam he is accustomed to be called Brandyfaced Jack

DRINKWATER [indignantly] Eah, aw sy! nah look eah, Kepn maw nime is Drinkworter You awsk em et Sin Jorn's in the Worterleoo Rowd Orn maw grenfawther's tombstown, it is

BRASSBOUND It will be on your own tombstone, presently, if you cannot hold your tongue [Turning to the others] Let us understand one another, if you please An escort here, or anywhere where there are no regular disciplined forces, is what its captain makes it If I undertake this business, I shall be your escort I may require a dozen men, just as I may require a dozen horses Some of the horses will be vicious, so will all the men If either horse or man tries any of his viciousness on me, so much the worse for him, but it will make no difference to you I will order my men to behave themselves before the lady, and they shall obey their orders But the lady will please understand that I take my own way with them and suffer no interference

LADY CICELY Captain Brassbound I dont want an escort at all It will simply get us all into danger, and I shall have the trouble of getting it out again Thats what escorts always do But since Sir Howard prefers an escort, I think you had better stay at home and let me take charge of it I know your men will get on perfectly well if theyre properly treated

DRINKWATER [with enthusiasm] Feed aht o yr and, lidy, we would

BRASSBOUND [with sardonic assent] Good I agree [To Drinkwater] You shall go without me

DRINKWATER [terrified] Eah! Wot are you a syn orn? We cawnt gow withaht yer [To Lady Cicely] Naow, lidy it wouldnt be for yr hown good Yer cawnt heypect a lot o poor honeddikited men lawk huz to ran ahrseolvs into dineger withaht naow Kepn to teoll us wot to do Naow, lidy hoonawted we stend deevawdid we fall -

LADY CICELY Oh, if you prefer your captain, have him by all means Do you like to be treated as he treats you?

DRINKWATER [with a smile of vanity] Weoll, lidy y' cawnt deenaw that e's a Paffick Genlmn Bit hawbitrary, preps, but him a genlmn you looks for sich It tikes a hawbitrary wanne to knock aht them eathen Shikes, aw teoll yer

BRASSBOUND Thats enough Go

DRINKWATER Weoll, aw was hownly a teolln the lidy thet— [A threatening movement from Brassbound cuts him short He flies for his life into the house, followed by the Italian]

BRASSBOUND Your ladyship sees These men serve me by their own free choice If they are dissatisfied, they go If I am dissatisfied, they go They take care that I am not dissatisfied

SIR HOWARD [who has listened with approval and growing confidence] Captain Brassbound you are the man I want If your terms are at all reasonable, I will accept your services if we decide to make an excursion You do not object, Cicely, I hope

LADY CICELY Oh no After all, those men must really like you, Captain Brassbound I feel sure you have a kind heart You have such nice eyes

SIR HOWARD [scandalized] My dear Cicely you really must restrain your expressions of confidence in people's eyes and faces [To Brassbound] Now, about terms, Captain?

BRASSBOUND Where do you propose to go?

SIR HOWARD I hardly know Where can we go, Mr Rankin?

RANKIN Take my advice, Sir Howrrd Dont go far

BRASSBOUND I can take you to Meshala, from which you can see the Atlas Mountains From Meshala I can take you to an ancient castle in the hills, where you can put up as long as you please The customary charge is half a dollar a man per day and his food I charge double

SIR HOWARD I suppose you answer for your men being sturdy fellows, who will stand to their guns if necessary

BRASSBOUND I can answer for their being more afraid of me than of the Moors

LADY CICELY That doesn't matter in the least, Howard. The important thing, Captain Brassbound, is first, that we should have as few men as possible, because men give such a lot of trouble travelling. And then, they must have good lungs and not be always catching cold. Above all, their clothes must be of good wearing material. Otherwise I shall be nursing and stitching and mending all the way, and it will be trouble enough, I assure you, to keep them washed and fed without that.

BRASSBOUND [haughtily] My men, madam, are not children in the nursery.

LADY CICELY [with unanswerable conviction] Captain Brassbound, all men are children in the nursery. I see that you don't notice things. That poor Italian had only one proper bootlace: the other was a bit of string. And I am sure from Mr Drinkwater's complexion that he ought to have some medicine.

BRASSBOUND [outwardly determined not to be trifled with inwardly puzzled and rather daunted] Madam, if you want an escort, I can provide you with an escort. If you want a Sunday School treat, I can not provide it.

LADY CICELY [with sweet melancholy] Ah, don't you wish you could, Captain? Oh, if I could only shew you my children from Waynflete Sunday School! The darlings would love this place, with all the camels and black men. I'm sure you would enjoy having them here, Captain Brassbound, and it would be such an education for your men! [Brassbound stares at her with drying lips]

SIR HOWARD Cicely, when you have quite done talking nonsense to Captain Brassbound, we can proceed to make some definite arrangement with him.

LADY CICELY But it's arranged already. We'll start at eight o'clock tomorrow morning, if you please, Captain. Never mind about the Italian. I have a big box of clothes with me for my brother in Rome, and there are some bootlaces in it. Now go home to bed and don't fuss yourself. All you have to do is to bring your men round, and I'll see to the rest. Men are always so nervous about moving. Goodnight! [She offers him her hand. Surprised he pulls off his cap for the first time. Some scruple prevents him from taking her hand at once. He hesitates, then turns to Sir Howard and addresses him with nerving earnestness]

BRASSBOUND Sir Howard Hallam, I advise you not to attempt this expedition.

SIR HOWARD Indeed! Why?

BRASSBOUND You are safe here. I warn you, in those hills there is a justice that is not the justice of your courts in England. If you have wronged a man, you may meet that man there. If you have wronged a woman, you may meet her son there. The justice of those hills is the justice of vengeance.

SIR HOWARD [faintly amused] You are superstitious, Captain. Most sailors are, I notice. However, I have complete confidence in your escort.

BRASSBOUND [almost threateningly] Take care. The avenger may be one of the escort.

SIR HOWARD I have already met the only member of your escort who might have borne a grudge against me, Captain, and he was acquitted.

BRASSBOUND You are fated to come, then?

SIR HOWARD [smiling] It seems so.

BRASSBOUND On your head be it! [To Lady Cicely, accepting her hand at last] Goodnight. He goes. It is by this time starry night.

ACT II

Midday. A room in a Moorish castle. A divan seat runs round the dilapidated adobe walls, which are partly painted, partly faced with white tiles patterned in green and yellow. The ceiling is made up of little squares, painted in bright colors, with gilded edges, and ornamented with gilt knobs. On the cement floor are matings, sheepskins, and leathern cushions with geometrical patterns on them. There is a tiny Moorish table in the middle, and at it a huge saddle, with saddle cloths of various colors, shewing that the room is used by foreigners accustomed to chairs. Anyone sitting at the table in this seat would have the chief entrance, a large horseshoe arch, on his left, and another saddle seat between him and the arch, whilst, if susceptible to draughts, he would probably catch cold from a little Moorish door in the wall behind him to his right.

Two or three of Brassbound's men, overcome by the midday heat, sprawl supine on the floor, with their reefer coats under their heads, their knees uplifted, and their calves laid comfortably on the divan. Those who wear shirts have them open at the throat for greater coolness. Some have jerseys. All wear boots and belts, and have guns ready to their hands. One of them, lying with his head against the second saddle seat, wears what was once a fashionable white English yachting suit. He is evidently a pleasantly worthless young English gentleman gone to the bad, but retaining sufficient self-respect to shave carefully and brush his hair, which is nearing thin, and does not seem to have been luxuriant even in its best days.

The silence is broken only by the snores of the young gentleman, whose mouth has fallen open, until a few distant shots half waken him. He shuts his mouth convulsively, and opens his eyes sleepily. A door is violently kicked outside, and the voice of Drinkwater is heard raising urgent alarm.

DRINKWATER Wot ow! Wike ap there, will yr Wike ap [He rushes in through the horseshoe arch, hot and excited, and runs round, kicking the sleepers] Nah then Git ap Git ap, will yr, Kiddy Redbrook [He gives the young gentleman a rude shove] REDBROOK [sitting up] Stow that, will you. Whats amiss?

DRINKWATER [disgusted] Wots amiss! Didnt eah naow fawrin, I spowse

REDBROOK No

DRINKWATER [sneering] Naow Thort it sifer nort, didnt yr?

REDBROOK [with crisp intelligence] What! Youre running away, are you? [He springs up, crying] Look alive, Johnnies there's danger Brandyfaced Jack's on the run [They spring up hastily, grasping their guns]

DRINKWATER Dineger! Yuss should think there wors dineger. It's howver, thow, as it mowstly his baw the tawm youre awike [They relapse into lassitude] Waw wasnt you on the look-aht to give us a end? Bin hat-tecked baw the Benny Seeras [Bent Siras], we ev, an ed to rawd for it pretty strite, too, aw teoll yr Mawtzow is it the bullet glawnst all rahnd is bloomin brisket Brarsbahnd e dropt the Shike's oss at six unner fifty yawds [Bustling them about] Nah then git the plice ready for the British herristorcracy, Lawd Ellam an Lidy Wineffete?

REDBROOK Lady faint, eh?

DRINKWATER Fynt! Not lawkly Wornted to gow an talk to the Benny Seeras blaow me if she didnt! Harskt huz wot we was frahtnd of Tyin ap Mawtzow's wound, she is, like a bloomin orspittle nass [Sir Howard, with a copious pagri on his white hat, enters through the horseshoe arch, followed by a couple of men supporting the wounded Marzo, who, weeping and terrorstricken by the prospect of death and of subsequent torments for which he is conscious of having eminently qualified himself, has his coat off and a bandage round his chest. One of his supporters is a black-bearded, thickset, slow, middle-aged man with an air of damaged respectability, named—as it afterwards appears—Johnson. Lady Cicely walks beside Marzo Redbrook, a little shamefaced, crosses the room to the opposite wall as far away as possible from the visitors. Drinkwater turns and receives them with jocular ceremony.] Weolcome to Brarsbahnd Cawstl, Sr Ahrd an lidy. This eah is the corfee and commercial room.

Sir Honard goes to the table and sits on the saddle, rather exhausted. Lady Cicely comes to Drinkwater.

LADY CICELY Where is Marzo's bed?

DRINKWATER Is bed, lidy? Weoll e ynt petickler, lidy. E ez is chawce of henny flegstowin agin thet wall.

They deposit Marzo on the flags against the wall close to the little door. He groans. Johnson phlegmatically leaves him and joins Redbrook.

LADY CICELY But you cant leave him there in that state.

DRINKWATER Ow e's hall rawt [Strolling up callously to Marzo] Youre hall rawt, ynt yer, Mawtzow? [Marzo whimpers] Corsey'aw.

LADY CICELY [to Sir Howard] Did you ever see such a helpless lot of poor creatures? [She makes for the little door]

DRINKWATER Eah! [He runs to the door and places himself before it] Where mawt yr lidyship be gowin?

LADY CICELY I'm going through every room in this castle to find a proper place to put that man. And now I'll tell you where youre going. Youre going to get some water for Marzo, who is very thirsty. And then, when Ive chosen a room for him, youre going to make a bed for him there.

DRINKWATER [sarcastically] Ow! Henny ather little suvvice? Mike yrseolf at owm, y' knaow, lidy.

LADY CICELY [considerately] Dont go if youd rather not, Mr Drinkwater. Perhaps youre too tired [Turning to the archway] I'll ask Captain Brassbound he wont mind.

DRINKWATER [terrified, running after her and getting between her and the arch] Naow, naow! Naow, lidy downt you gow disturbin the kep'n. Awwl see to it.

LADY CICELY [gravely] I was sure you would, Mr Drinkwater. You have such a kind face.

[She turns back and goes out through the small door]

DRINKWATER [looking after her] Garn!

SIR HOWARD [to Drinkwater] Will you ask one of your friends to shew me to my room whilst you are getting the water?

DRINKWATER [insolently] Yr room! Ow this ynt good enaf fr yr, ynt it? [Feroiciously] Oo a you orderin abaht, ih?

SIR HOWARD [rising quietly, and taking refuge between Redbrook and Johnson, whom he addresses] Can you find me a more private room than this?

JOHNSON [shaking his head] Ive no orders You must wait til the capn comes, sir

DRINKWATER [following Sir Howard] Yuss, an whawl youre watin, yll tike your horders from me see?

JOHNSON [with slow severity, to Drinkwater] Look here do you see three gentlemen talkin to one another here, civil and private, eh?

DRINKWATER [chappfallen] No offence, Miste Jorson—

JOHNSON [ominously] Ay, but there is offence Wheres your manners, you gutter-snipe? [Turning to Sir Howard] Thats the curse o this kind o life, sir you got to associate with all sorts My father, sir, was Capn Johnson o Hull—owned his own schooner, sir We're mostly gentlemen here, sir, as youll find, except the poor ignorant foreigner and that there scum of the submerged tenth [Contemptuously talking at Drinkwater] He aint nobody's son he's only a offspring o eoster folk or such

DRINKWATER [bursting into tears] Clawss feeln! thets wot it is, clawss feeln! Wot are yer, arter all, bat a bloomin gang o wust covst cazhls [casual ward paupers]? [Johnson is scandalized, and there is a general thrill of indignation] Better ev naow sembly, an rawse aht of it, lawk me, than ev a speeble one and disgreee it, lawk you

JOHNSON Brandyfaced Jack I name you for conduct and language unbecoming to a gentleman Those who agree will signify the same in the usual manner

ALL [vehemently] Aye

DRINKWATER [mildly] Naow

JOHNSON Felix Drinkwater are you goin out, or are you goin to wait til youre chueked out? You can cry in the passage If you give any trouble, youll have something to cry for

They make a threatening movement towards Drinkwater

DRINKWATER [nlimpering] You lee me alown awn gowin Theres n'maw true dem-meecrettick feelin eah than there is in the owl bloomin M division of Noontn Corzwy coppers [Newington Causenay policemen]

As he shlns away in tears towards the arch, Brassbound enters Drinkwater promptly shelters himself on the captain's left hand, the others retreating to the opposite side as Brassbound advances to the middle of the room Sir Howard retires behind them and seats himself on the divan, much fatigued

BRASSBOUND [to Drinkwater] What are you snivelling at?

DRINKWATER You awsk the wust covst herristoreraey They fawnds maw eornduek hanbeeamin to a genlmm

Brassbound is about to ask Johnson for an explanation, when Lady Cicely returns through the little door, and comes between Brassbound and Drinkwater

LADY CICELY [to Drinkwater] Have you fetched the water?

DRINKWATER Yuss nah you begin orn me [He neeps afresh]

LADY CICELY [surprised] Oh! This wont do, Mr Drinkwater If you cry, I cant let you nurse your friend

DRINKWATER [frantic] Thetll brike maw awt, wownt it nah? [With a lamentable sob, he throns himself down on the divan, raging like an argry child]

LADY CICELY [after contemplating him in astonishment for a moment] Captain Brassbound are there any charwomen in the Atlas Mountains?

BRASSBOUND There are people here who will work if you pay them, as there are elsewhere

LADY CICELY This castle is very romantic, Captain, but it hasnt had a spring cleaning since the Prophet lived in it There's only one room I can put that wounded man into Its the only one that has a bed in it the second room on the right out of that passage

BRASSBOUND [haughtily] That is my room, madam

LADY CICELY [relieved] Oh, thats all right It would have been so awkward if I had had to ask one of your men to turn out You wont mind, I know [All the men stare at her Even Drinkwater forgets his sorrows in his stupefaction]

BRASSBOUND Pray, madam, have you made any arrangements for my accommodation?

LADY CICELY [surprised] Oh! This wont do, Mr Drinkwater. If you cry, I cant let you nurse your friend.

DRINKWATER [frantic] Thetll brike maw awt, wownt it nah? [With a lamentable sob, he throns himself down on the divan, raging like an angry child].

LADY CICELY [after contemplating him in astonishment for a moment] Captain Brassbound are there any charwomen in the Atlas Mountains?

BRASSBOUND There are people here who will work if you pay them, as there are elsewhere.

LADY CICELY This castle is very romantic, Captain, but it hasnt had a spring cleaning since the Prophet lived in it. There's only one room I can put that wounded man into. Its the only one that has a bed in it the second room on the right out of that passage.

BRASSBOUND [haughtily] That is my room, madam.

LADY CICELY [relieved] Oh, thats all right. It would have been so awkward if I had had to ask one of your men to turn out. You wont mind, I know [All the men stare at her. Even Drinkwater forgets his sorrows in his stupefaction].

BRASSBOUND Pray, madam, have you made any arrangements for my accommodation?

LADY CICELY [reassuringly] Yes. you can have my room instead wherever it may be. I'm sure you chose me a nice one. I must be near my patient, and I don't mind roughing it. Now I must have Marzo moved very carefully. Where is that truly gentlemanly Mr Johnson?—oh there you are, Mr Johnson [She runs to Johnson, past Brassbound who has to step back hastily out of her way with every expression frozen out of his face except one of extreme and indignant dumbfoundedness] Will you ask your strong friend to help you with Marzo strong people are always so gentle

JOHNSON Let me introduce Mr Redbrook. Your ladyship may know his father the very Rev. Dean Redbrook [He goes to Marzo]

REDBROOK. Happy to oblige you, Lady Cicely.

LADY CICELY [shaking hands] Howdyedo? Of course I knew your father—Dunham wasn't it? Were you ever called—

REDBROOK. The kid? Yes

LADY CICELY But why—

REDBROOK [anticipating the rest of the question] Cards and drink. Lady Sis [He follows Johnson to the patient Lady Cicely goes too] Now, Count Marzo [Marzo groans as Johnson and Redbrook raise him]

LADY CICELY Now they're not hurting you, Marzo They couldn't be more gentle MARZO Drink.

LADY CICELY. I'll get you some water myself Your friend Mr Drinkwater was too overcome—take care of the corner—that's it—the second door on the right [She goes out with Marzo and his bearers through the little door]

BRASSBOUND [still staring] Well, I am damned!

DRINKWATER [getting up] Weoll, blimey!

BRASSBOUND [turning irritably on him] What did you say?

DRINKWATER. Weoll wot did yer sy yrseolf, kep'n? Fust tawm aw yever see y' afride of ennybody. [The others laugh]

BRASSBOUND Afraid!

DRINKWATER [maliciously] She's took y'bed from hander yr for a bloomin penny hawcemen If y' ynt afride. lets eah yer speak ap to er wen she cams bawck agin.

BRASSBOUND [to Sir Howard] I wish you to understand, Sir Howard, that in this castle, it is I who give orders and no one else. Will you be good enough to let Lady Cicely Waynflete know that.

SIR HOWARD [sitting up on the divan and pulling himself together] You will have ample opportunity for speaking to Lady Cicely yourself when she returns [Drinkwater chuckles, and the rest grin]

BRASSBOUND My manners are rough, Sir Howard I have no wish to frighten the lady

SIR HOWARD Captain Brassbound if you can frighten Lady Cicely, you will confer a great obligation on her family. If she had any sense of danger, perhaps she would keep out of it

BRASSBOUND Well sir if she were ten Lady Cicelys, she must consult me while she is here.

DRINKWATER. Thets rawt, kep'n Lets eah you steblish yr hawthority [Brassbound turns impatiently on him he retreats remonstrating] Nah nah nah!

SIR HOWARD If you feel at all nervous, Captain Brassbound, I will mention the matter with pleasure

BRASSBOUND Nervons, sir! no Nervousness is not in my line You will find me perfectly capable of saying what I want to say—with considerable emphasis, if necessary [Sir Howard assents with a polite but incredulous nod]

DRINKWATER. Eah, eah!

Lady Cicely returns with Johnson and Redbrook. She carries a jar

LADY CICELY [stopping between the door and the arch] Now for the water Where is it?

REDBROOK. Theres a well in the courtyard I'll come and work the bucket.

LADY CICELY So good of you Mr Kidbrook [She makes for the horseshoe arch, followed by Redbrook]

DRINKWATER. Nah Kepn Brarsbahnd you got sathink to sy to the ldy. ynt yr?

LADY CICELY [stopping] I'll come back to hear it presently, Captain. And oh, while I remember it [coming forward between Brassbound and Drinkwater] do please tell me Captain, if I interfere with your arrangements in any way. If I disturb you the least bit in the world stop me at once You have all the responsibility; and your comfort and your authority must be the first thing You'll tell me wont you?

BRASSBOUND [awkwardly, quite beaten] Pray do as you please, madam

LADY CICELY Thank you. Thats so like you, Captain Thank you Now, Mr Redbrook! Show me the way to the well [She follows]

Redbrook out through the arch]

DRINKWATER Yah! Yah! Shime! Beat baw a woman!

JOHNSON [coming forward on Brassbound's right] What's wrong now?

DRINKWATER [with an air of disappointment and disillusion] Downt awsk me, Miste Jorns! The kepn's naow clawss arter all BRASSBOUND [a little shamefacedly] What has she been fixing up in there, Johnson?

JOHNSON Well Marzo's in your bed Lady wants to make a kitchen of the Sheikh's audience chamber, and to put me and the Kid handy in his bedroom in case Marzo gets erysipelas and breaks out violent From what I can make out, she means to make herself matron of this institution I spose it's all right, isnt it?

DRINKWATER Yuss, an horder huz abaht as if we was keb tahts! An the kepn afride to talk bawek at er!

Lady Cicely returns with Redbrook. She carries the jar full of water

LADY CICELY [putting down the jar, and coming between Brassbound and Drinkwater as before] And now, Captain, before I go to poor Marzo, what have you to say to me?

BRASSBOUND I! Nothing

DRINKWATER Downt fank it, gavner Be a men!

LADY CICELY [looking at Drinkwater, puzzled] Mr Drinkwater said you had

BRASSBOUND [recovering himself] It was only this That fellow there [pointing to Drinkwater] is subject to fits of insolence If he is impertinent to your ladyship, or disobedient, you have my authority to order him as many kicks as you think good for him, and I will see that he gets them

DRINKWATER [lifting up his voice in protest] Nah, nah—

LADY CICELY Oh, I couldnt think of such a thing, Captain Brassbound I am sure it would hurt Mr Drinkwater

DRINKWATER [lachrymously] Lady's hinky-p'ble o sich bawbrous usage

LADY CICELY But there's one thing I should like, if Mr Drinkwater wont mind my mentioning it It's so important if he's to attend on Marzo

BRASSBOUND What is that?

LADY CICELY Well—you wont mind, Mr Drinkwater, will you?

DRINKWATER [suspiciously] Wot is it?

LADY CICELY There would be so much less danger of erysipelas if you would be so good as to take a bath

DRINKWATER [aghast] A bawth!

BRASSBOUND [in tones of command] Stand by, all hands [They stand by] Take that man and wash him [With a roar of laughter they seize him]

DRINKWATER [in an agony of protest] Naow, naow Look eah—

BRASSBOUND [ruthlessly] In cold water

DRINKWATER [shrieking] Na-a-a-ow Aw cawnt, aw teol yer Naow Aw sy, look eah Naow, naow, naow, naow, naow, NAOW!!!

He is dragged away through the arch in a whirlwind of laughter, protests and tears

LADY CICELY I'm afraid he isnt used to it, poor fellow, but really it will do him good, Captain Brassbound Now I must be off to my patient [She takes up her jar and goes out by the little door, leaving Brassbound and Sir Howard alone together]

SIR HOWARD [rising] And now, Captain Brass—

BRASSBOUND [cutting him short with a fierce contempt that astonishes him] I will attend to you presently [Calling] Johnson Send me Johnson there And Osman [He pulls off his coat and throws it on the table, standing at his ease in his blue jersey]

SIR HOWARD [after a momentary flush of anger, with a controlled force that compels Brassbound's attention in spite of himself] You seem to be in a strong position with reference to these men of yours

BRASSBOUND I am in a strong position with reference to everyone in this castle

SIR HOWARD [politely but threateningly] I have just been noticing that you think so I do not agree with you Her Majesty's Government, Captain Brassbound, has a strong arm and a long arm If anything disagreeable happens to me or to my sister-in-law, that arm will be stretched out If that happens you will not be in a strong position Excuse my reminding you of it

BRASSBOUND [grimly] Much good may it do you! [Johnson comes in through the arch] Where is Osman, the Sheikh's messenger? I want him too

JOHNSON Coming, Captain He had a prayer to finish

Osman, a tall, skanny, whiteclad, elderly Moor, appears in the archway

BRASSBOUND Osman Ali [Osman comes forward between Brassbound and Johnson] you have seen this unbeliever [indicating Sir Howard] come in with us?

OSMAN Yea, and the shameless one with the naked face, who flattered my countenance and offered me her hand

JOHNSON Yes, and you took it too, Johnny, didn't you?

BRASSBOUND Take horse, then, and ride fast to your master the Sheikh Sidi el Assif—

OSMAN [proudly] Kinsman to the Prophet

BRASSBOUND Tell him what you have seen here That is all Johnson give him a dollar, and note the hour of his going, that his master may know how fast he rides

OSMAN The believer's word shall prevail with Allah and his servant Sidi el Assif

BRASSBOUND Off with you.

OSMAN Make good thy master's word ere I go out from his presence, O Johnson el Hull.

JOHNSON He wants the dollar

Brassbound gives Osman a coin

OSMAN [bowing] Allah will make hell easy for the friend of Sidi el Assif and his servant [He goes out through the arch]

BRASSBOUND [to Johnson] Keep the men out of this until the Sheikh comes. I have business to talk over. When he does come, we must keep together all Sidi el Assif's natural instinct will be to cut every Christian throat here.

JOHNSON We look to you, Captain, to square him since you invited him over

BRASSBOUND You can depend on me, and you know it I think

JOHNSON [phlegmatically] Yes we know it. [He is going out when Sir Howard speaks]

SIR HOWARD You know also, Mr Johnson, I hope, that you can depend on me

JOHNSON [turning] On you, sir?

SIR HOWARD Yes on me. If my throat is cut, the Sultan of Morocco may send Sidi's head with a hundred thousand dollars blood-money to the Colonial Office, but it will not be enough to save his kingdom—any more than it would save your life, if your Captain here did the same thing

JOHNSON [struck] Is that so, Captain?

BRASSBOUND I know the gentleman's value—better perhaps than he knows it himself I shall not lose sight of it.

Johnson nods gravely, and is going out when Lady Cicely returns softly by the little door and calls to him in a whisper She has taken off her travelling things and put on an apron At her chatelaine is a case of sewing materials

LADY CICELY. Mr Johnson [He turns] I've got Marzo to sleep Would you mind asking the gentlemen not to make a noise under his window in the courtyard

JOHNSON Right, maam. [He goes out]

Lady Cicely sits down at the tiny table and begins stitching at a sling bandage for Marzo's arm Brassbound walks up and down on her right, muttering to himself so ominously that Sir Howard quietly gets out of his way by crossing to the other side and sitting down on the second saddle seat

SIR HOWARD Are you yet able to attend to me for a moment, Captain Brassbound?

BRASSBOUND [still walking about] What do you want?

SIR HOWARD Well, I am afraid I want a little privacy, and, if you will allow me to say so a little civility. I am greatly obliged to you for bringing us safely off today when we were attacked So far, you have carried out your contract But since we have been your guests here your tone and that of the worst of your men has changed—intentionally changed, I think BRASSBOUND [stopping abruptly and flinging the announcement at him] You are not my guest you are my prisoner.

SIR HOWARD Prisoner!

Lady Cicely, after a single glance up, continues stitching, apparently quite unconcerned

BRASSBOUND I warned you You should have taken my warning

SIR HOWARD [immediately taking the tone of cold disgust for moral delinquency] Am I to understand, then, that you are a brigand? Is this a matter of ransom?

BRASSBOUND [with unaccountable intensity] All the wealth of England shall not ransom you

SIR HOWARD Then what do you expect to gain by this?

BRASSBOUND Justice on a thief and a murderer

Lady Cicely lays down her work and looks up anxiously

SIR HOWARD [deeply outraged, rising with venerable dignity] Sir do you apply those terms to me?

BRASSBOUND I do [He turns to Lady Cicely, and adds, pointing contemptuously to Sir Howard] Look at him You would not take this virtuously indignant gentleman for the uncle of a brigand, would you?

Sir Howard starts The shock is too much for him he sits down again, looking very old, and his hands tremble, but his eyes and mouth are intrepid, resolute, and angry

LADY CICELY Uncle! What do you mean?

BRASSBOUND Has he never told you about my mother? this fellow who puts on ermine and scarlet and calls himself Justice

SIR HOWARD [almost voiceless] You are the son of that woman!

BRASSBOUND [fiercely] "That woman!" [He makes a movement as if to rush at Sir Howard]

LADY CICELY [rising quickly and putting her hand on his arm] Take care You mustn't strike an old man

BRASSBOUND [raging] He did not spare my mother—"that woman," he calls her—because of her sex I will not spare him because of his age [Lowering his tone to one of sullen vindictiveness] But I am not going to strike him [Lady Cicely releases him, and sits down, much perplexed Brassbound continues, with an evil glance at Sir Howard] I shall do no more than justice

SIR HOWARD [recovering his voice and vigor] Justice! I think you mean vengeance, disguised as justice by your passions

BRASSBOUND To many and many a poor wretch in the dock you have brought vengeance in that disguise—the vengeance of society, disguised as justice by its passions Now the justice you have outraged meets you disguised as vengeance How do you like it?

SIR HOWARD I shall meet it, I trust, as becomes an innocent man and an upright judge What do you charge against me?

BRASSBOUND I charge you with the death of my mother and the theft of my inheritance

SIR HOWARD As to your inheritance, sir, it was yours whenever you came forward to claim it Three minutes ago I did not know of your existence I affirm that most solemnly I never knew—never dreamt—that my brother Miles left a son As to your mother, her case was a hard one—perhaps the hardest that has come within even my experience I mentioned it, as such, to Mr Rankin, the missionary, the evening we met you As to her death, you know—you must know—that she died in her native country, years after our last meeting Perhaps you were too young to know that she could hardly have expected to live long

BRASSBOUND You mean that she drank

SIR HOWARD I did not say so I do not think she was always accountable for what she did BRASSBOUND Yes she was mad too, and whether drink drove her to madness or madness drove her to drink matters little The question is, who drove her to both?

SIR HOWARD I presume the dishonest agent who seized her estate did I repeat, it was a hard case—a frightful injustice But it could not be remedied

BRASSBOUND You told her so When she would not take that false answer you drove her from your doors When she exposed you in the street and threatened to take with her own hands the redress the law denied her, you had her imprisoned, and forced her to write you an apology and leave the country to regain her liberty and save herself from a lunatic asylum And when she was gone, and dead, and forgotten, you found for yourself the remedy you could not find for her You recovered the estate easily enough then, robber and rascal that you are Did he tell the missionary that, Lady Cicely, eh?

LADY CICELY [sympathetically] Poor woman! [To Sir Howard] Couldn't you have helped her, Howard?

SIR HOWARD No This man may be ignorant enough to suppose that when I was a struggling barrister I could do everything I did when I was Attorney General You know better There is some excuse for his mother She was an uneducated Brazilian, knowing nothing of English society, and driven mad by injustice

BRASSBOUND Your defence—

SIR HOWARD [interrupting him determinedly] I do not defend myself I call on you to obey the law

BRASSBOUND I intend to do so The law of the Atlas Mountains is administered by the Sheikh Sidi el Assif He will be here within an hour He is a judge, like yourself You can talk law to him He will give you both the law and the prophets

SIR HOWARD Does he know what the power of England is?

BRASSBOUND He knows that the Mahdi killed my master Gordon, and that the Mahdi died in his bed and went to paradise

SIR HOWARD Then he knows also that England's vengeance was on the Mahdi's track

BRASSBOUND Ay, on the track of the railway from the Cape to Cairo? Who are you, that a nation should go to war for you? If you are missing, what will your newspapers say? A foolhardy tourist! What will your learned friends at the bar say? That it was time for you to make room for younger and better men. You a national hero! You had better find a goldfield in the Atlas Mountains. Then all the governments of Europe will rush to your rescue. Until then, take care of yourself, for you are going to see at last the hypocrisy in the sanctimonious speech of the judge who is sentencing you, instead of the despair in the white face of the wretch you are recommending to the mercy of your god.

SIR HOWARD [deeply and personally offended by this slight to his profession, and for the first time throwing away his assumed dignity and rising to approach Brassbound with his fists clenched, so that Lady Cicely lifts one eye from her work to assure herself that the table is between them] I have no more to say to you, sir. I am not afraid of you, nor of any bandit with whom you may be in league. As to your property, it is ready for you as soon as you come to your senses and claim it as your father's heir. Commit a crime, and you will become an outlaw, and not only lose the property, but shut the doors of civilization against yourself for ever.

BRASSBOUND I will not sell my mother's revenge for ten properties.

LADY CICELY [placidly] Besides, really, Howard, as the property now costs £150 a year to keep up instead of bringing in anything, I am afraid it would not be of much use to him [Brassbound stands amazed at this revelation].

SIR HOWARD [taken aback] I must say, Cicely, I think you might have chosen a more suitable moment to mention that fact.

BRASSBOUND [with disgust] Agh! Trickster! Lawyer! Even the price you offer for your life is to be paid in false coin. [Calling] Hallo there! Johnson! Redbrook! Some of you there! [To Sir Howard] You ask for a little privacy: you shall have it. I will not endure the company of such a fellow.

SIR HOWARD [very angry, and full of the crustiest pluck] You insult me, sir. You are a rascal. You are a rascal.

Johnson, Redbrook and a few others come in through the arch.

BRASSBOUND Take this man away.

JOHNSON Where are we to put him?

BRASSBOUND Put him where you please so long as you can find him when he is wanted.

SIR HOWARD You will be laid by the heels yet, my friend.

REDBROOK [with cheerful tact] Tut tut, Sir Howard, what's the use of talking back? Come along, we'll make you comfortable.

Sir Howard goes out through the arch between Johnson and Redbrook, muttering wrathfully. The rest, except Brassbound and Lady Cicely, follow.

Brassbound walks up and down the room, nursing his indignation. In doing so he unconsciously enters upon an unequal contest with Lady Cicely, who sits quietly stitching. It soon becomes clear that a tranquil woman can go on sewing longer than an angry man can go on fuming. Further, it begins to dawn on Brassbound's wrath-blurred perception that Lady Cicely has at some unnoticed stage in the proceedings finished Marzo's bandage, and is now stitching a coat. He stops, glances at his shirtsleeves, finally realizes the situation.

BRASSBOUND What are you doing there, madam?

LADY CICELY Mending your coat, Captain Brassbound.

BRASSBOUND I have no recollection of asking you to take that trouble.

LADY CICELY No. I don't suppose you even knew it was torn. Some men are born untidy. You cannot very well receive Sidi el—what's his name?—with your sleeve half out.

BRASSBOUND [disconcerted] I—I don't know how it got torn.

LADY CICELY You should not get virtuously indignant with people. It bursts clothes more than anything else, Mr. Hallam.

BRASSBOUND [flushing quickly] I beg you will not call me Mr. Hallam. I hate the name.

LADY CICELY Black Paquito is your pet name, isn't it?

BRASSBOUND [huffily] I am not usually called so to my face.

LADY CICELY [turning the coat a little] I'm so sorry [She takes another piece of thread and puts it into her needle, looking placidly and reflectively upward meanwhile]. Do you know, you are wonderfully like your uncle.

BRASSBOUND Damnation!

LADY CICELY Eh?

BRASSBOUND If I thought my veins contained a drop of his black blood, I would drain them empty with my knife I have no relations I had a mother that was all

LADY CICELY [unconvinced] I daresay you have your mother's complexion But didnt you notice Sir Howard's temper, his doggedness, his high spirit above all, his belief in ruling people by force, as you rule your men, and in revenge and punishment, just as you want to revenge your mother? Didnt you recognize yourself in that?

BRASSBOUND [startled] Myself!—in that!

LADY CICELY [returning to the tailoring question as if her last remark were of no consequence whatever] Did this sleeve catch you at all under the arm? Perhaps I had better make it a little easier for you

BRASSBOUND [irritably] Let my coat alone It will do very well as it is Put it down

LADY CICELY Oh, dont ask me to sit doing nothing It bores me so

BRASSBOUND In Heaven's name then, do what you like! Only dont worry me with it

LADY CICELY I'm so sorry All the Hallams are irritable

BRASSBOUND [penning up his fury with difficulty] As I have already said, that remark has no appellation to me

LADY CICELY [resuming her stitching] Thats so funny! They all hate to be told that they are like one another BRASSBOUND [with the beginnings of despair in his voice] Why did you come here? My trap was laid for him, not for you Do you know the danger you are in?

LADY CICELY Theres always a danger of something or other Do you think it's worth bothering about BRASSBOUND [scolding her] Do I think! Do you think my coat's worth mending?

LADY CICELY [prosaically] Oh yes it's not so far gone as that BRASSBOUND Have you any feeling? Or are you a fool?

LADY CICELY I'm afraid I'm a dreadful fool But I cant help it I was made so, I suppose BRASSBOUND Perhaps you dont realize that your friend my good uncle will be pretty fortunate if he is allowed to live out his life as a slave with a set of chains on him?

LADY CICELY Oh, I dont know about that, Mr H—I mean Captain Brassbound Men are always thinking that they are going to do something grandly wicked to their enemies, but when it comes to the point, really bad men are just as rare as really good ones

BRASSBOUND You forget that I am like my uncle, according to you Have you any doubt as to the reality of his badness?

LADY CICELY Bless me! your uncle Howard is one of the most harmless of men—much nicer than most professional people Of course he does dreadful things as a judge, but then if you take a man and pay him £5,000 a year to be wicked, and praise him for it, and have policemen and courts and laws and juries to drive him into it so that he cant help doing it, what can you expect? Sir Howard's all right when he's left to himself We caught a burglar one night at Waynflete when he was staying with us, and I insisted on his locking the poor man up, until the police came, in a room with a window opening on the lawn The man came back next day and said he must return to a life of crime unless I gave him a job in the garden, and I did It was much more sensible than giving him ten years penal servitude Howard admitted it So you see he's not a bit bad really BRASSBOUND He had a fellow feeling for the thief, knowing he was a thief himself Do you forget that he sent my mother to prison?

LADY CICELY [softly] Were you very fond of your poor mother, and always very good to her?

BRASSBOUND [rather taken aback] I was not worse than other sons, I suppose LADY CICELY [opening her eyes very widely] Oh! Was that all?

BRASSBOUND [exculpating himself, full of gloomy remembrances] You dont understand It was not always possible to be very tender with my mother She had unfortunately a very violent temper, and she—she—

LADY CICELY Yes so you told Howard [With genuine pity for him] You must have had a very unhappy childhood

BRASSBOUND [grimly] Hell That was what my childhood was Hell

LADY CICELY Do you think she would really have killed Howard, as she threatened, if he hadnt sent her to prison?

BRASSBOUND [breaking out again, with a growing sense of being morally trapped] What if she did? Why did he rob her? Why did he not help her to get the estate, as he got it for himself afterwards?

LADY CICELY He says he couldnt, you know But perhaps the real reason was that he didn't like her You know, don't you, that if you don't like people you think of all the reasons for not helping them, and if you like them you think of all the opposite reasons

BRASSBOUND But his duty as a brother!

LADY CICELY Are you going to do your duty as a nephew!

BRASSBOUND Don't quibble with me I am going to do my duty as a son, and you know it

LADY CICELY But I should have thought that the time for that was in your mother's lifetime, when you could have been kind and forbearing with her Hurting your uncle won't do her any good, you know

BRASSBOUND It will teach other scoundrels to respect widows and orphans Do you forget that there is such a thing as justice?

LADY CICELY [gaily shaking out the finished coat] Oh, if you are going to dress yourself in ermine and call yourself Justice, I give you up You are just your uncle over again, only he gets £5,000 a year for it, and you do it for nothing [She holds the coat up to see whether any further repairs are needed]

BRASSBOUND [sulkily] You twist my words very cleverly But no man or woman has ever changed me

LADY CICELY Dear me! That must be very nice for the people you deal with, because they can always depend on you, but isn't it rather inconvenient for yourself when you change your mind?

BRASSBOUND I never change my mind

LADY CICELY [rising with the coat in her hands] Oh! Oh! Nothing will ever persuade me that you are as pigheaded as that BRASSBOUND [offended] Pigheaded!

LADY CICELY [with quick, caressing apology] No, no, no I didn't mean that Firm! unalterable! Resolute! Iron-willed! Stonewall Jackson! That's the idea, isn't it?

BRASSBOUND [hopelessly] You are laughing at me

LADY CICELY No trembling, I assure you Now will you try this on for me I'm so afraid I have made it too tight under the arm [She holds it behind him]

BRASSBOUND [obeying mechanically] You take me for a fool, I think [He misses the sleeve]

LADY CICELY No all men look foolish when they are feeling for their sleeves—

BRASSBOUND Agh! [He turns and snatches the coat from her, then puts it on himself and buttons the lowest button]

LADY CICELY [horrified] Stop No You must never pull a coat at the skirts, Captain Brassbound it spoils the sit of it Allow me [She pulls the lapels of his coat vigorously forward] Put back your shoulders [He frowns, but obeys] That's better [She buttons the top button] Now button the rest from the top down Does it catch you at all under the arm?

BRASSBOUND [miserably—all resistance beaten out of him] No

LADY CICELY That's right Now before I go back to poor Marzo, say thank you to me for mending your jacket, like a nice polite sailor

BRASSBOUND [sitting down at the table in great agitation] Damn you! you have belittled my whole life to me [He bows his head on his hands, convulsed]

LADY CICELY [quite understanding, and putting her hand kindly on his shoulder] Oh no I am sure you have done lots of kind things and brave things, if you could only recollect them With Gordon for instance? Nobody can belittle that

He looks up at her for a moment, then kisses her hand She presses his and turns away with her eyes so wet that she sees Drinkwater, coming in through the arch just then, with a prismatic halo round him Even when she sees him clearly, she hardly recognizes him, for he is ludicrously clean and smoothly brushed, and his hair, formerly mud color, is now lively red

DRINKWATER Look eah, kep'n [Brassbound springs up and recovers himself quickly] Eahs—the bloomin Shike jest appeahd on the orawzn wiv abaht fifty men Thyll be eah insawd o ten minnits, they will

LADY CICELY The Sheikh!

BRASSBOUND Sidi el Assif and fifty men! [To Lady Cicely] You were too late I gave you up my vengeance when it was no longer in my hand [To Drinkwater] Call all hands to stand by and shut the gates Then all here to me for orders, and bring the prisoner

DRINKWATER Rawt, kep'n [He runs out]

LADY CICELY Is there really any danger for Howard?

BRASSBOUND Yes Danger for all of us unless I keep to my bargain with this fanatic

LADY CICELY What bargain?

BRASSBOUND I pay him so much a head for every party I escort through to the interior In return he protects me and lets my caravans alone But I have sworn an oath to him to take only Jews and true believers—no Christians, you understand

LADY CICELY Then why did you take us?

BRASSBOUND I took my uncle on purpose—and sent word to Sidi that he was here

LADY CICELY Well, thats a pretty kettle of fish, isnt it?

BRASSBOUND I will do what I can to save him—and you But I fear my repentance has come too late, as repentance usually does

LADY CICELY [cheerfully] Well, I must go and look after Marzo, at all events [She goes out through the little door Johnson, Redbrook, and the rest come in through the arch, with Sir Howard, still very crusty and determined He keeps close to Johnson, who comes to Brassbound's right, Redbrook taking the other side]

BRASSBOUND Wheres Drinkwater?

JOHNSON On the lookout Look here, Capn we dont half like this job The gentleman has been talking to us a bit, and we think that he is a gentleman, and talks straight sense

REDBROOK Righto, Brother Johnson [To Brassbound] Wont do, governor Not good enough

BRASSBOUND [fiercely] Mutiny, eh?

REDBROOK Not at all, governor Dont talk Tommy rot with Brother Sidi only five minutes gallop off Cant hand over an Englishman to a nigger to have his throat cut

BRASSBOUND [unexpectedly acquiescing] Very good You know, I suppose, that if you break my bargain with Sidi, youll have to defend this place and fight for your lives in five minutes That cant be done without discipline you know that too I'll take my part with the rest under whatever leader you are willing to obey So choose your captain and look sharp about it [Murmurs of surprise and discontent]

VOICES No, no Brassbound must command

BRASSBOUND Youre wasting your five minutes Try Johnson

JOHNSON No I havnt the head for it

BRASSBOUND Well, Redbrook

REDBROOK Not this Johnny, thank you Havnt character enough

BRASSBOUND Well, theres Sir Howard Hallam for you! He has character enough

A VOICE He's too old

ALL No, no Brassbound, Brassbound

JOHNSON Theres nobody but you, Captain

REDBROOK The mutiny's over, governor You win, hands down

BRASSBOUND [turning on them] Now listen, you, all of you If I am to command here, I am going to do what I like, not what you like I'll give this gentleman here to Sidi or to the devil if I choose I'll not be intimidated or talked back to Is that understood?

REDBROOK [diplomatically] He's offered a present of five hundred quid if he gets safe back to Mogador, governor Excuse my mentioning it

SIR HOWARD Myself and Lady Cicely

BRASSBOUND What! A judge compound a felony! You greenhorns, he is more likely to send you all to penal servitude if you are fools enough to give him the chance

VOICES So he would Whew! [Murmurs of conviction]

REDBROOK Righto, governor Thats the ace of trumps

BRASSBOUND [to Sir Howard] Now, have you any other card to play? Any other bribe? Any other threat? Quick Time presses

SIR HOWARD My life is in the hands of Providence Do your worst

BRASSBOUND Or my best I still have that choice

DRINKWATER [running in] Look eah, kep'n Eahs anather lot cammin from the sahth heast Hunnerds of em, this tawm The owl dezzit is lawk a bloomin And Pawk demonstration Aw blieve its the Kidy from Kintorfy [General alarm All look to Brassbound] BRASSBOUND [eagerly] The Cadi! How far off?

DRINKWATER Matter o two mawl

BRASSBOUND We're saved Open the gates to the Sheikh [They stare at him] Look alive there

DRINKWATER [appalled, almost in tears] Naow, naow Lissen, kep'n [pointing to Sir Howard] e'll give huz fawv unnerd red uns [To the others] Ynt yer spowk to im, Miste Joranson—Miste Redbrook—

BRASSBOUND [cutting him short] Now then, do you understand plain English? Johnson and Redbrook take what men you want and open the gates to the Sheikh Let him come straight to me Look alive, will you

JOHNSON Ay ay, sir

REDBROOK Righto, governor

They hurry out, with a few others Drinkwater stares after them, dumbfounded by their obedience

BRASSBOUND [taking out a pistol] You wanted to sell me to my prisoner, did you, you dog

DRINKWATER [falling on his knees with a yell] Naow! [Brassbound turns on him as if to kick him He scrambles away and takes refuge behind

Sir Howard]

BRASSBOUND Sir Howard Hallam you have one chance left The Cadi of Kintafi stands superior to the Sheikh as the responsible governor of the whole province It is the Cadi who will be sacrificed by the Sultan if England demands satisfaction for any injury to you If we can hold the Sheikh in parley until the Cadi arrives, you may frighten the Cadi into forcing the Sheikh to release you The Cadi's coming is a lucky chance for you

SIR HOWARD If it were a real chance, you would not tell me of it Dont try to play cat and mouse with me, man

DRINKWATER [aside to Sir Howard, as Brassbound turns contemptuously away to the other side of the room] It ynt mach of a chawnst, Sir Ahrd But if there was a ganbowt in Mogador Awbr, awd put a bit on it, aw would

Johnson, Redbrook, and the others return, rather mistrustfully ushering in Sidi el Assif, attended by Osman and a troop of Arabs Brassbound's men keep together on the archway side, backing their captain Sidi's followers cross the room behind the table and assemble near Sir Howard, who stands his ground Drinkwater runs across to Brassbound and stands at his elbow as he turns to face Sidi

Sidi el Assif, clad in spotless white, is a nobly handsome Arab, hardly thirty, with fine eyes, bronzed complexion and instinctively dignified carriage He places himself between the two groups, with Osman in attendance at his right hand

OSMAN [pointing out Sir Howard] This is the infidel Cadi [Sir Howard bows to Sidi, but, being an infidel, receives only the haughtiest stare in acknowledgement] This [pointing to Brassbound] is Brassbound the Franguestani captain the servant of Sidi

DRINKWATER [not to be outdone, points out the Sheikh and Osman to Brassbound] This eah is the Commawnder of the Fythful an is Vizzээр Hosman

SIDI Where is the woman?

OSMAN The shameless one is not here

BRASSBOUND Sidi el Assif, kinsman of the Prophet you are welcome

REDBROOK [with much aplomb] There is no majesty and no might save in Allah, the Glorious, the Great!

DRINKWATER Eah, eah!

OSMAN [to Sidi] The servant of the captain makes his profession of faith as a true be-

hever

SIDI It is well

BRASSBOUND [aside to Redbrook] Where did you pick that up?

REDBROOK [aside to Brassbound] Captain Burton's Arabian Nights—copy in the library of the National Liberal Club

LADY CICELY [calling without] Mr Drinkwater Come and help me with Marzo [The Sheikh pricks up his ears His nostrils and eyes expand]

OSMAN The shameless one!

BRASSBOUND [to Drinkwater, seizing him by the collar and slinging him towards the door] Off with you

Drinkwater goes out through the little door

OSMAN Shall we hide her face before she enters?

SIDI No

Lady Cicely, who has resumed her travelling equipment, and has her hat slung across her arm, comes through the little door supporting Marzo, who is very white, but able to get about Drinkwater has his other arm Redbrook hastens to relieve Lady Cicely of Marzo, taking him into the group behind Brassbound Lady Cicely comes forward between Brassbound and the Sheikh, to whom she turns affably

LADY CICELY [proffering her hand] Sidi el Assif, isnt it? How d'ye do? [He recoils, blushing somewhat]

OSMAN [scandalized] Woman touch not the kinsman of the Prophet

LADY CICELY Oh, I see I'm being presented at court. Very good [She makes a presentation curtsey]

REDBROOK Sidi el Assif this is one of the mighty women Sheikhs of Franguestan She goes unveiled among Kings, and only princes may touch her hand

LADY CICELY Allah upon thee, Sidi el Assif! Be a good little Sheikh, and shake hands

SIDI [timidly touching her hand] Now this is a wonderful thing, and worthy to be chronicled with the story of Solomon and the Queen of Sheba Is it not so, Osman Ah?

OSMAN Allah upon thee, master! it is so

SIDI Brassbound Ah the oath of a just man fulfils itself without many words The infidel Cadi, thy captive, falls to my share

BRASSBOUND [firmly] It cannot be, Sidi el Assif [Sidi's brows contract gravely] The price of his blood will be required of our lord the Sultan I will take him to Morocco and deliver him up there

SIDI [impressively] Brassbound I am in mine own house and amid mine own people I am the Sultan here Consider what you say, for when my word goes forth for life or death, it may not be recalled

BRASSBOUND Sidi el Assif I will buy the man from you at what price you choose to name, and if I do not pay faithfully, you shall take my head for his

SIDI It is well You shall keep the man, and give me the woman in payment

SIR HOWARD AND BRASSBOUND [with the same impulse] No, no

LADY CICELY [eagerly] Yes, yes Certainly, Mr Sidi Certainly

Sidi smiles gravely

SIR HOWARD Impossible

BRASSBOUND You dont know what youre doing

LADY CICELY Oh, dont I? Ive not crossed Africa and stayed with sive cannibal chiefs for nothing [To the Sheikh] It's all right, Mr Sidi I shall be delighted

SIR HOWARD You are mad Do you suppose this man will treat you as a European gentleman would?

LADY CICELY No he'll treat me like one of Nature's gentlemen look at his perfectly splendid face! [Addressing Osman as if he was her oldest and most attached retainer] Osman be sure you choose me a good horse, and get a nice strong camel for my luggage

Osman, after a moment of stupefaction, hurries out Lady Cicely puts on her hat and pins it to her hair, the Sheikh gazing at her during the process with timid admiration

DRINKWATER [chuckling] She'll mawch em all to church next Sunder lawk a bloomin lot o chernty kids you see if she dont

LADY CICELY [busily] Goodbye, Howard dont be anxious about me, and above all, dont bring a parcel of men with guns to rescue me I shall be all right now that I am getting away from the escort Captain Brassbound I rely on you to see that Sir Howard gets safe to Mogador [Whispering] Take your hand off that pistol [He takes his hand out of his pocket, reluctantly] Goodbye

A tumult without They all turn apprehensively to the arch Osman rushes in

OSMAN The Cadi, the Cadi He is in anger His men are upon us Defend—

The Cadi, a vigorous, fatfeatured, choleric, whitehaired and bearded elder, rushes in, cudgel in hand, with an overwhelming retinue, and silences Osman with a sounding thrack In a moment the back of the room is crowded with his followers The Sheikh retreats a little towards his men, and the Cadi comes impetuously forward between him and Lady Cicely

THE CADI Now woe upon thee, Sidi el Assif, thou child of mischief!

SIDI [sternly] Am I a dog, Muley Othman, that thou speakest thus to me?

THE CADI Wilt thou destroy thy country, and give us all into the hands of them that set the sea on fire but yesterday with their ships of war? Where are the Franguestani captives?

LADY CICELY Here we are, Cadi How dye do?

THE CADI Allah upon thee, thou moon at the full! Where is thy kinsman, the Cadi of Franguestan? I am his friend, his servant I come on behalf of my master the Sultan to do him honor, and to cast down his enemies

SIR HOWARD You are very good, I am sure

SIDI [graver than ever] Muley Othman—

THE CADI [fumbling in his breast] Peace, peace, thou inconsiderate one [He takes out a letter]

BRASSBOUND Cadi—

THE CADI Oh thou dog, thou, thou accused Brassbound, son of a wanton it is thou hast led Sidi el Assif into this wrongdoing Read this writing that thou has brought upon me from the commander of the warship

BRASSBOUND Warship! [He takes the letter and opens it, his men whispering to one another very low-spiritedly meanwhile]

REDBROOK Warship! Whew!

JOHNSON Gunboat, praps

DRINKWATER Lawk bloomin Worterleoo buses, they are, on this cowst

Brassbound folds up the letter, looking glum

SIR HOWARD [sharply] Well, sir, are we not to have the benefit of that letter? Your men are waiting to hear it, I think

BRASSBOUND It is not a British ship [Sir Howard's face falls]

LADY CICELY What is it, then?

BRASSBOUND An American cruiser The Santiago

THE CADI [tearing his beard] Woe! alas! it is where they set the sea on fire

SIDI Peace, Muley Othman Allah is still above us

JOHNSON Would you mind readin it to us, capn?

BRASSBOUND [grimly] Oh, I'll read it to you

"Mogador Harbor 26 Sept 1899 Captain Hamlin Kearney, of the cruiser Santiago, presents the compliments of the United States to the Cadi Muley Othman el Kintafi, and announces that he is coming to look for the two British travellers Sir Howard Hallam and Lady Cicely Waynflete, in the Cadi's jurisdiction. As the search will be conducted with machine guns, the prompt return of the travellers to Mogador Harbor will save much trouble to all parties"

THE CADI As I live, O Cadi, and thou, moon of loveliness, ye shall be led back to Mogador with honor And thou, accursed Brassbound, shalt go thither a prisoner in chains, thou and thy people [Brassbound and his men make a movement to defend themselves] Seize them

LADY CICELY Oh, please don't fight [Brassbound, seeing that his men are hopelessly outnumbered, makes no resistance They are made prisoners by the Cadi's followers]

SIDI [attempting to draw his scimitar] The woman is mine I will not forego her. [He is seized and overpowered after a Homeric struggle]

SIR HOWARD [dryly] I told you you were not in a strong position, Captain Brassbound [Looking implacably at him] You are laid by the heels my friend, as I said you would be

LADY CICELY But I assure you—

BRASSBOUND [interrupting her] What have you to assure him of? You persuaded me to spare him Look at his face Will you be able to persuade him to spare me?

ACT III

Torrid forenoon filtered through small Moorish windows high up in the adobe walls of the largest room in Leslie Rankin's house A clean cool room, with the table (a Christian article) set in the middle, a presidentially elbowed chair behind it, and an inkstand and paper ready for the sitter A couple of cheap American chairs right and left of the table, facing the same way as the presidential chair, give a judicial aspect to the arrangement Rankin is placing a little tray with a jug and some glasses near the inkstand when Lady Cicely's voice is heard at the door, which is behind him in the corner to his right

LADY CICELY Good morning May I come in?

RANKIN Certainly [She comes in to the nearest end of the table She has discarded all travelling equipment, and is dressed exactly as she might be in Surrey on a very hot day] Sit ye down, Liddy Ceecily

LADY CICELY [sitting down] How nice you've made the room for the inquiry!

RANKIN [doubtfully] I could wish there were more chairs You American captain will preside in this, and that leaves but one for Sir Howrrd and one for your leddyship I could almost be tempted to call it a marey that your friend that owns the yacht has sprained his ankle and cannot come I misdoubt me it will not look judeecial to have Captain Kearney's officers squatting on the floor

LADY CICELY Oh, they won't mind What about the prisoners?

RANKIN They are to be broat here from the town gaol presently LADY CICELY And where is that silly old Cadi, and my handsome Sheikh Sidi? I must see them before the inquiry, or they'll give Captain Kearney quite a false impression of what happened

RANKIN But ye cannot see them They decamped last night, back to their castles in the Atlas

LADY CICELY [delighted] No!

RANKIN Indeed and they did The poor Cadi is so tarrified by all he has hard of the destruction of the Spanish fleet, that he darent trust himself in the captain's hands [Looking reproachfully at her] On your journey back here, ye seem to have frightened the poor man yourself, Liddy Ceecily, by talking to him about the fanatical Chreestianity of the Americans Ye have largely yourself to thank if he's gone

LADY CICELY Allah be praised! What a weight off our minds, Mr Rankin!

RANKIN [puzzled] And why? Do ye not understand how necessary their evidence is?

LADY CICELY Their evidence! It would spoil everything They would perjure themselves out of pure spite against poor Captain Brassbound

RANKIN [amazed] Do ye call him poor Captain Brassbound! Does not your leddyship know that this Brassbound is—Heaven forgive me for judging him!—a precious scoundrel? Did ye not hear what Sir Howrrd told me on the yacht last night?

LADY CICELY All a mistake, Mr Rankin all a mistake, I assure you You said just now, Heaven forgive you for judging him! Well, thats just what the whole quarrel is about Captain Brassbound is just like you he thinks

we have no right to judge one another, and as Sir Howard gets £5,000 a year for doing nothing else but judging people, he thinks poor Captain Brassbound a regular Anarchist They quarrelled dreadfully at the castle You mustnt mind what Sir Howard says about him you really mustnt

RANKIN But his conduct—

LADY CICELY Perfectly saintly, Mr Rankin Worthy of yourself in your best moments He forgave Sir Howard, and did all he could to save him

RANKIN Ye astoanish me, Leddy Ceecily

LADY CICELY And thnk of the temptation to behave badly when he had us all there helpless!

RANKIN The temptation! ay thats true Yerc ower bonny to be cast away among a parcel o lone, lawless men, my led dy

LADY CICELY [naively] Bless me, thats quite true, and I never thought of it! Oh, after that you really must do all you can to help Captain Brassbound

RANKIN [reservedly] No I cannot say that, Leddy Ceecily I doubt he has imposed on your good nature and sweet disposection I had a crack with the Cadi as well as with Sir Howrdr, and there is lttle question in my mind but that Captain Brassbound is no better than a breegand

LADY CICELY [apparently deeply impressed] I wonder whether he can be, Mr Rankin If you think so, thats heavily against him in my opinion, because you have more knowledge of men than anyone else here Perhaps I'm mistaken I only thought you might like to help him as the son of your old friend

RANKIN [startled] The son of my old friend! What d'ye mean?

LADY CICELY Oh! Didnt Sir Howard tell you that? Why, Captain Brassbound turns out to be Sir Howard's nephew, the son of the brother you knew RANKIN [overwhelmed] I saw the likeness the night he came here! It's true it's true Uncle and nephew!

LADY CICELY Yes thatswhy they quarrelled so

RANKIN [with a momentary sense of ill usage] I thnk Sir Howrdr might have told me that LADY CICELY Of course he ought to have told you You see he only tells one side of the story That comes from his training as a barrister You mustnt think he's naturally deceitful if he'd been brought up as a clergyman, he'd have told you the whole truth as a matter of course

RANKIN [too much perturbed to dwell on his grievance] Leddy Ceecily I must go to the prison and see the lad He may have been a bit wild, but I cant leave poor Miles's son unbefriended in a foreign gaol

LADY CICELY [rising, radiant] Oh, how good of you! You have a real kind heart of gold, Mr Rankin Now, before you go, shall we just put our heads together, and consider how to give Miles's son every chance—I mean of course every chance that he ought to have

RANKIN [rather addled] I am so confused by this astoanishing news—

LADY CICELY Yes, yes of course you are But dont you think he would make a better impression on the American captain if he were a lttle more respectably dresed?

RANKIN Mebbe But how can that be remedied here in Mogador?

LADY CICELY Oh, Ive thought of that You know I'm going back to England by way of Rome, Mr Rankin, and I'm bringing a portmanteau full of clothes for my brother there he's ambassador, you know, and has to be very particular as to what he wears I had the portmanteau brought here this morning Now would you mind taking it to the prison, and smartening up Captain Brassbound a lttle Tell him he ought to do it to shew his respect for me, and he will It will be quite easy there are two Krooboys waiting to carry the portmanteau You will I know you will [She edges him to the door] And do you think there is time to get him shaved?

RANKIN [succumbing, half bewildered] I'll do my best

LADY CICELY I know you will [As he is going out] Oh! one word, Mr Rankin [He comes back] The Cadi didnt know that Captain Brassbound was Sir Howard's nephew, did he?

RANKIN No

LADY CICELY Then he must have misunderstood everything quite dreadfully I'm afraid, Mr Rankin—though you know best, of course—that we are bound not to repeat anything at the inquiry that the Cadi said He didnt know, you see

RANKIN [cannily] I take your point, Leddy Ceecily It alters the case I shall certainly make no allusion to it

LADY CICELY [magnanimously] Well, then, I wont either There!

They shake hands on it Sir Howard comes in

SIR HOWARD Good morning, Mr Rankin I hope you got home safely from the yacht last night

RANKIN Quite safe, thank ye, Sir Howard

LADY CICELY Howard he's in a hurry Dont make him stop to talk

SIR HOWARD Very good, very good [He comes to the table and takes Lady Cicely's chair]

RANKIN Oo revoir, Leddy Ceecily

LADY CICELY Bless you, Mr Rankin [Rankin goes out She comes to the other end of the table, looking at Sir Howard with a troubled, sorrowfully sympathetic air, but unconsciously making her right hand stalk about the table on the tips of its fingers in a tentative stealthy way which would put Sir Howard on his guard if he were in a suspicious frame of mind, which, as it happens, he is not] I'm so sorry for you, Howard, about this unfortunate inquiry

SIR HOWARD [swinging round on his chair, astonished] Sorry for me! Why?

LADY CICELY It will look so dreadful Your own nephew, you know

SIR HOWARD Cicely an English judge has no nephews, no sons even, when he has to carry out the law

LADY CICELY But then he oughtnt to have any property either People will never understand about the West Indian Estate They'll think youre the wicked uncle out of the Babes in the Wood [With a fresh gush of compassion] I'm so so sorry for you

SIR HOWARD [rather stiffly] I really do not see how I need your commiseration, Cicely The woman was an impossible person, half mad, half drunk Do you understand what such a creature is when she has a grievance, and imagines some innocent person to be the author of it

LADY CICELY [with a touch of impatience] Oh, quite That'll be made clear enough I can see it all in the papers already our half mad, half drunk sister-in-law, making scenes with you in the steet, with the police called in, and prison and all the rest of it The family will be furious [Sir Howard quails She instantly follows up her advantage with] Think of papa!

SIR HOWARD I shall expect Lord Waynflete to look at the matter as a reasonable man

LADY CICELY Do you think he's so greatly changed as that, Howard?

SIR HOWARD [falling back on the fatalism of the depersonalized public man] My dear Cicely there is no use discussing the matter. It cannot be helped, however disagreeable it may be

LADY CICELY Of course not Thats whats so dreadful Do you think people will understand?

SIR HOWARD I really cannot say Whether they do or not, I cannot help it

LADY CICELY If you were anybody but a judge, it wouldnt matter so much But a judge mustnt even be misunderstood [Despairingly] Oh, it's dreadful, Howard it's terrible! What would poor Mary say if she were alive now?

SIR HOWARD [with emotion] I dont think, Cicely, that my dear wife would misunderstand me

LADY CICELY No she'd know you mean well And when you came home and said, "Mary Ive just told all the world that your sister-in-law was a police court criminal, and that I sent her to prison, and your nephew is a brigand, and I'm sending him to prison," she'd have thought it must be all right because you did it But you dont think she would have liked it, any more than papa and the rest of us, do you?

SIR HOWARD [appalled] But what am I to do? Do you ask me to compound a felony?

LADY CICELY [sternly] Certainly not I would not allow such a thing, even if you were wicked enough to attempt it No What I say is, that you ought not to tell the story yourself

SIR HOWARD Why?

LADY CICELY Because everybody would say you are such a clever lawyer you could make a poor simple sailor like Captam Kearney believe anything The proper thing for you to do, Howard, is to let me tell the exact truth Then you can simply say that you are bound to confirm me Nobody can blame you for that

SIR HOWARD [looking suspiciously at her] Cicely you are up to some devilment

LADY CICELY [promptly washing her hands of his interests] Oh, very well Tell the story yourself, in your own clever way I only proposed to tell the exact truth You call that devilment So it is, I daresay, from a lawyer's point of view

SIR HOWARD I hope youre not offended

LADY CICELY [with the utmost goodhumor] My dear Howard, not a bit Of course youre right you know how these things ought to be done I'll do exactly what you tell me, and confirm everything you say

SIR HOWARD [alarmed by the completeness of his victory] Oh, my dear, you mustn't act in my interest. You must give your evidence with absolute impartiality [She nods, as if thoroughly impressed and reproved, and gazes at him with the steadfast candor peculiar to liars who read novels. His eyes turn to the ground, and his brow clouds perplexedly. He rises, rubs his chin nervously with his forefinger, and adds] I think, perhaps, on reflection, that there is something to be said for your proposal to relieve me of the very painful duty of telling what has occurred.

LADY CICELY [holding off] But you'd do it so very much better.

SIR HOWARD For that very reason, perhaps, it had better come from you.

LADY CICELY [reluctantly] Well, if you'd rather.

SIR HOWARD But mind, Cicely, the exact truth.

LADY CICELY [with conviction] The exact truth [They shake hands on it].

SIR HOWARD [holding her hand] Fiat justitia ruat cælum!

LADY CICELY Let Justice be done, though the ceiling fall!

An American bluejacket appears at the door.

BLUEJACKET Captain Kearney's compliments to Lady Waynflete, and may he come in?

LADY CICELY Yes. By all means. Where are the prisoners?

BLUEJACKET Party gawn to the jail to fetch em, marm.

LADY CICELY Thank you. I should like to be told when they are coming, if I might.

BLUEJACKET You shall so, marm [He stands aside, saluting, to admit his captain, and goes out].

Captain Hamlin Kearney is a robustly built western American, with the keen, squeezed, wind-beaten eyes and obstinately enduring mouth of his profession. A curious ethnological specimen, with all the nations of the old world at war in his veins, he is developing artificially in the direction of sleekness and culture under the restraints of an overwhelming dread of European criticism, and climatically in the direction of the indigenous North American, who is already in possession of his hair, his cheekbones, and the manlier instincts in him which the sea has rescued from civilization. The world, pondering on the great part of its own future which is in his hands, contemplates him with wonder as to what the devil he will evolve into in another century or two. Meanwhile he presents himself to Lady Cicely as a blunt sailor who has something to say to her concerning her conduct which he wishes to put politely, as becomes an officer addressing a lady, but also with an emphatically implied rebuke, as an American addressing an English person who has taken a liberty.

LADY CICELY [as he enters] So glad you've come, Captain Kearney.

KEARNEY [coming between Sir Howard and Lady Cicely] When we parted yesterday afternoon, Lady Waynflete, I was unaware that in the course of your visit to my ship you had entirely altered the sleeping arrangements of my stokers. I thank you. As captain of the ship, I am customarily consulted before the orders of English visitors are carried out, but as your alterations appear to cawndooce to the comfort of the men, I have not interfered with them.

LADY CICELY How clever of you to find out! I believe you know every bolt in that ship.

Kearney softens perceptibly.

SIR HOWARD I am really very sorry that my sister-in-law has taken so serious a liberty, Captain Kearney. It is a mania of hers—simply a mania. Why did your men pay any attention to her?

KEARNEY [with gravely dissembled humor] Well, I asked that question too. I said, Why did you obey that lady's orders instead of waiting for mine? They said they didn't see exactly how they could refuse. I asked whether they considered that discipline. They said, Well, sir, will you talk to the lady yourself next time?

LADY CICELY I'm so sorry. But you know, Captain, the one thing that one misses on board a man-of-war is a woman.

KEARNEY We often feel that deprivation very keenly, Lady Waynflete.

LADY CICELY My uncle is first Lord of the Admiralty, and I am always telling him what a scandal it is that an English captain should be forbidden to take his wife on board to look after the ship.

KEARNEY Stranger still, Lady Waynflete, he is not forbidden to take any other lady. Yours is an extraordinary country—to an American.

LADY CICELY But it's most serious, Captain. The poor men go melancholy mad, and ram each other's ships and do all sorts of things.

SIR HOWARD Cicely, I beg you will not talk nonsense to Captain Kearney Your ideas on some subjects are really hardly decorous

LADY CICELY [to Kearney] That's what English people are like, Captain Kearney They won't hear of anything concerning your poor sailors except Nelson and Trafalgar You understand me, don't you?

KEARNEY [gallantly] I cawnsider that you have more sense in your wedding ring finger than the British Ahdmiralty has in its whole cawnstitootion, Lady Waynflete

LADY CICELY. Of course I have Sailors always understand things

The bluejacket reappears

BLUEJACKET [to Lady Cicely] Prisoners coming up the hill, marm

KEARNEY [turning sharply on him] Who sent you in to say that?

BLUEJACKET [calmly] British lady's orders, sir [He goes out, unruffled, leaving Kearney dumbfounded]

SIR HOWARD [contemplating Kearney's expression with dismay] I am really very sorry, Captain Kearney I am quite aware that Lady Cicely has no right whatever to give orders to your men

LADY CICELY I didn't give orders I just asked him He has such a nice face! Don't you think so, Captain Kearney? [He gasps, speechless] And now will you excuse me a moment I want to speak to somebody before the inquiry begins [She hurries out]

KEARNEY There is sertainly a wonderful chahm about the British aristocracy, Sir Howard Hallam Are they all like that? [He takes the presidential chair]

SIR HOWARD [resuming his seat on Kearney's right] Fortunately not, Captain Kearney Half a dozen such women would make an end of law in England in six months

The bluejacket comes to the door again

BLUEJACKET All ready, sir

KEARNEY Verry good I'm waiting

The bluejacket turns and intimates this to those without The officers of the Santiago enter

SIR HOWARD [rising and bobbing to them in a judicial manner] Good morning, gentlemen

They acknowledge the greeting rather shyly, bowing or touching their caps, and stand in a group behind Kearney

KEARNEY [to Sir Howard] You will be glahd to hear that I have a verry good account of one of our prisoners from our chahplain, who visited them in the gaol He has expressed a wish to be cawnverted to Episcopahianism

SIR HOWARD [drily] Yes, I think I know him
KEARNEY Bring in the prisoners

BLUEJACKET [at the door] They are engaged with the British lady, sir Shall I ask her—

KEARNEY [jumping up and exploding in storm piercing tones] Bring in the prisoners Tell the lady those are my orders Do you hear? Tell her so [The bluejacket goes out dubiously The officers look at one another in mute comment on the unaccountable pepperiness of their commander]

SIR HOWARD [suavely] Mr Rankin will be present, I presume

KEARNEY [angrily] Rahnkin! Who is Rahnkin?

SIR HOWARD Our host the missionary

KEARNEY [subsiding unwillingly] Oh! Rahnkin, is he? He'd better look sharp or he'll be late [Again exploding] What are they doing with those prisoners?

Rankin hurries in, and takes his place near Sir Howard

SIR HOWARD This is Mr Rankin, Captain Kearney

RANKIN Excuse my delay, Captain Kearney The ledly sent me on an errand [Kearney grunts] I thoaght I should be late But the first thing I heard when I arrived was your officer giving your compliments to Leddy Ceecily, and would she kindly allow the prisoners to come in, as you were anxious to see her again Then I knew I was in time

KEARNEY Oh, that was it, was it? May I ask, sir, did you notice any sign on Lady Waynflete's part of cawmplying with that verry moderate request

LADY CICELY [outside] Coming, coming

The prisoners are brought in by a guard of armed bluejackets Drinkwater first, again elaborately clean, and conveying by a virtuous and steadfast smirk a cheerful confidence in his innocence Johnson solid and inexpressive, Redbrook unconcerned and debonair, Marzo uneasy These four form a little group together on the captain's left The rest wait unintelligently on Providence in a row against the wall on the same side, shepherded by the bluejackets The first bluejacket, a petty officer, posts himself on the captain's right, behind Rankin and Sir Howard Finally Brassbound appears with Lady Cicely on his arm He is in fashionable frock coat and trousers, spotless collar and cuffs, and elegant boots He carries a glossy tall hat in his hand To an unsophisticated eye, the change is monstrous and appalling, and its effect on himself is so unmannng that he is quite out of countenance—a shaven Samson Lady Cicely, however, is greatly pleased with it, and the rest regard it as an unquestionable improvement The officers fall back gallantly to allow her to pass Kearney rises to receive her, and stares with some surprise at Brassbound as she stops at the table on his left Sir Howard rises punctiliously when Kearney rises and sits when he sits

KEARNEY Is this another gentleman of your party, Lady Waynflete? I presume I met you last night, sir, on board the yacht

BRASSBOUND No I am your prisoner My name is Brassbound

DRINKWATER [officially] Kepn Brarsbahnd, of the schooner Thanksgiv—

REDBROOK [hastily] Shut up, you fool [He elbows Drinkwater into the background]

KEARNEY [surprised and rather suspicious] Well, I hardly understand this However, if you are Captain Brassbound, you can take your place with the rest [Brassbound joins Redbrook and Johnson Kearney sits down again after inviting Lady Cicely, with a solemn gesture, to take the vacant chair] Now let me see You are a man of experience in these matters, Sir Howard Hallam If you had to conduct this business, how would you start?

LADY CICELY He'd call on the counsel for the prosecution, wouldn't you, Howard?

SIR HOWARD But there is no counsel for the prosecution, Cicely

LADY CICELY Oh yes there is I'm counsel for the prosecution You mustn't let Sir Howard make a speech, Captain Kearney his doctors have positively forbidden anything of that sort Will you begin with me?

KEARNEY By your leave, Lady Waynflete, I think I will just begin with myself Sailor fashion will do as well here as lawyer fashion

LADY CICELY Ever so much better, dear Captain Kearney [Silence Kearney composes himself to speak She breaks out again] You look so nice as a judge!

A general smile Drinkwater splutters into a half suppressed laugh

REDBROOK [in a fierce whisper] Shut up, you fool, will you? [Again he pushes him back with a furtive kick]

SIR HOWARD [remonstrating] Cicely!

KEARNEY [grimly keeping his countenance] Your ladyship's compliments will be in order at a later stage Captain Brassbound the position is this My ship, the United States cruiser Santiago, was spoken off

Mogador last Thursday by the yacht Redgauntlet The owner of the aforesaid yacht, who is not present through having sprained his ankle, gave me certain information In consequence of that information the Santiago made the twenty knots to Mogador Harbor inside of fifty-seven minutes Before noon next day a messenger of mine gave the Cadı of the district certain information In consequence of that information the Cadı stimulated himself to some ten knots an hour, and lodged you and your men in Mogador jail at my disposal The Cadı then went back to his mountain fastnesses, so we shall not have the pleasure of his company here today Do you follow me so far?

BRASSBOUND Yes I know what you did and what the Cadı did The point is, why did you do it?

KEARNEY With due patience we shall come to that presently Mr Rankin will you kindly take up the parable?

RANKIN On the very day that Sir Howard and Lady Cicely started on their excursion I was applied to for medicine by a follower of the Sheikh Sidi el Assif He told me I should never see Sir Howard again, because his master knew he was a Christian and would take him out of the hands of Captain Brassbound I hurried on board the yacht and told the owner to scour the coast for a gunboat or cruiser to come into the harbor and put persuasion on the authorities [Sir Howard turns and looks at Rankin with a sudden doubt of his integrity as a witness]

KEARNEY But I understood from our chaplain that you reported Captain Brassbound as in league with the Sheikh to deliver Sir Howard up to him

RANKIN That was my first hasty conclusion, Captain Kearney But it appears that the compact between them was that Captain Brassbound should escort travellers under the Sheikh's protection at a certain payment per head, provided none of them were Christians As I understand it, he tried to smuggle Sir Howard through under this compact, and the Sheikh found him out

DRINKWATER Rawt, gainer Thets jest ah it wors The Kepn—

REDBROOK [again suppressing him] Shut up, you fool, I tell you

SIR HOWARD [to Rankin] May I ask have you had any conversation with Lady Cicely on this subject?

RANKIN [naïvely] Yes [Sir Howard grunts emphatically, as who should say "I thought so"] Rankin continues, addressing the court] May I say how sorry I am that there are so few chairs, Captain and gentlemen

KEARNEY [with genial American courtesy] Oh, thats all right, Mr Rankin Well, I see no harm so far its human fawly, but not human crime Now the counsel for the prosecution can proceed to prosecute The floor is yours, Lady Waynflete

LADY CICELY [rising] I can only tell you the exact truth—

DRINKWATER [involutarily] Naow, downt do thet, ldy—

REDBROOK [as before] Shut up, you fool, will you

LADY CICELY We had a most delightful trip in the hills, and Captain Brassbound's men could not have been nicer—I must say that for them—until we saw a tribe of Arabs—such nice looking men!—and then the poor things were frightened

KEARNEY The Arabs?

LADY CICELY No Arabs are never frightened The escort, of course escorts are always frightened I wanted to speak to the Arab chief, but Captain Brassbound cruelly shot his horse, and the chief shot the Count, and then—

KEARNEY The Count! What Count?

LADY CICELY Marzo Thats Marzo [pointing to Marzo, who grins and touches his forehead]

KEARNEY [slightly overwhelmed by the unexpected profusion of incident and character in her story] Well, what happened then?

LADY CICELY Then the escort ran away—all escorts do—and dragged me into the castle, which you really ought to make them clean and whitewash thoroughly, Captain Kearney Then Captain Brassbound and Sir Howard turned out to be related to one another [Sensation], and then of course there was a quarrel The Hallams always quarrel

SIR HOWARD [rising to protest] Cicely! Captain Kearney this man told me—

LADY CICELY [swiftly interrupting him] You mustnt say what people told you its not evidence [Sir Howard chokes with indignation]

KEARNEY [calmly] Allow the lady to proceed, Sir Howard Hallam

SIR HOWARD [recovering his self-control with a gulp, and resuming his seat] I beg your pardon, Captain Kearney

LADY CICELY Then Sidi came

KEARNEY Sidney! Who was Sidney?

LADY CICELY No, Sidi The Sheikh Sidi el Assif A noble creature, with such a fine face! He fell in love with me at first sight—

SIR HOWARD [remonstrating] Cicely!

LADY CICELY He did you know he did You told me to tell the exact truth

KEARNEY I can readily believe it, madam Proceed

LADY CICELY Well, that put the poor fellow into a most cruel dilemma You see, he could clam to carry off Sir Howard, because Sir Howard is a Christian But as I am only a woman, he had no clam to me

KEARNEY [somewhat sternly, suspecting Lady Cicely of aristocratic atheism] But you are a Christian woman

LADY CICELY No the Arabs dont count women They dont believe we have any souls

RANKIN That is true, Captain the poor benighted creatures!

LADY CICELY Well, what was he to do? He wasnt in love with Sir Howard, and he was in love with me So he naturally offered to swop Sir Howard for me Dont you think that was nice of him, Captain Kearney?

KEARNEY I should have done the same myself, Lady Waynflete Proceed

LADY CICELY Captain Brassbound, I must say, was nobleness itself, in spite of the quarrel between himself and Sir Howard He refused to give up either of us, and was on the point of fighting for us when in came the Cadi with your most amusing and delightful letter, captain, and bundled us all back to Mogador after calling my poor Sidi the most dreadful names, and putting all the blame on Captain Brassbound So here we are Now, Howard, isnt that the exact truth, every word of it?

SIR HOWARD It is the truth, Cicely, and nothing but the truth But the English law requires a witness to tell the whole truth

LADY CICELY What nonsense! As if anybody ever knew the whole truth about anything! [Sitting down, much hurt and discouraged] I'm sorry you wish Captain Kearney to understand that I am an untruthful witness

SIR HOWARD No but—

LADY CICELY Very well, then please dont say things that convey that impression

KEARNEY But Sir Howard told me yesterday that Captain Brassbound threatened to sell him into slavery

LADY CICELY [springing up again] Did Sir

Howard tell you the things he said about Captain Brassbound's mother? [Renewed sensation] I told you they quarrelled, Captain Kearney I said so, didn't I?

REDBROOK [crisply] Distinctly [Drinkwater opens his mouth to corroborate] Shut up, you fool

LADY CICELY Of course I did Now, Captain Kearney, do you want me—does Sir Howard want me—does anybody want me to go into the details of that shocking family quarrel? Am I to stand here in the absence of any individual of my own sex and repeat the language of two angry men?

KEARNEY [rising impressively] The United States navy will have no hand in offering any violence to the pure instincts of womanhood Lady Waynflete I thank you for the delicacy with which you have given your evidence [Lady Cicely beams on him gratefully and sits down triumphant] Captain Brassbound I shall not hold you responsible for what you may have said when the English bench addressed you in the language of the English forecaskle—[Sir Howard is about to protest] No, Sir Howard Hallam, excuse me In moments of passion I have called a man that myself We are all glad to find real flesh and blood beneath the ermine of the judge We will now drop a subject that should never have been broached in a lady's presence [He resumes his seat, and adds, in a businesslike tone] Is there anything further before we release these men?

BLUEJACKET There are some documents handed over by the Cad, sir He reckoned they were sort of magic spells The chaplain ordered them to be reported to you and burnt, with your leave, sir

KEARNEY What are they?

BLUEJACKET [reading from a list] Four books, torn and dirty, made up of separate numbers, value each wawn penny, and entitled Sweeny Todd, the Demon Barber of London, the Skeleton Horseman—

DRINKWATER [rushing forward in painful alarm and anxiety] It's maw lawbrary, gavner Downt burn em

KEARNEY You'll be better without that sort of reading, my man

DRINKWATER [in intense distress, appealing to Lady Cicely] Downt let em burn em, lidy They dassent if you horder em not to [With desperate eloquence] Yer dunno wot them books is to me They took me aht of the saw-did reeyellties of the Worterleoo Rowd They formed maw mawnd they shaowed me sathink awgher than the squalor of a corster's lawf—

REDBROOK [collaring him] Oh shut up, you fool Get out Hold your ton—

DRINKWATER [frantically breaking from him] Lady, lidy sy a word for me Ev a feeln awt [His tears choke him he clasps his hands in dumb entreaty]

LADY CICELY [touched] Dont burn his books, Captain Let me give them back to him

KEARNEY The books will be handed over to the lady

DRINKWATER [in a small voice] Thenkyer, lidy [He retires among his comrades, snivelling subduedly]

REDBROOK [aside to him as he passes] You silly ass, you [Drinkwater sniffs and does not reply]

KEARNEY I suppose you and your men accept this lady's account of what passed, Captain Brassbound

BRASSBOUND [gloomily] Yes It is true—as far as it goes

KEARNEY [impatiently] Do you want it to go any further?

MARZO She leave out something Arab shoot me She nurse me She cure me

KEARNEY And who are you, pray?

MARZO [seized with a sanctimonious desire to demonstrate his higher nature] Only dam thief Dam liar Dam rascal She no lady JOHNSON [revolted by the seeming insult to the English peerage from a low Italian] What? Whats that you say?

MARZO No lady nurse dam rascal Only saint She saint She get me to heaven—get us all to heaven We do what we like now

LADY CICELY Indeed you will do nothing of the sort, Marzo, unless you like to behave yourself very nicely indeed What hour did you say we were to lunch at, Captain Kearney?

KEARNEY You recall me to my dooty, Lady Waynflete My barge will be ready to take off you and Sir Howard to the Santiago at one o'clock [He rises] Captain Brassbound this inquiry has elicited no reason why I should detain you or your men I advise you to aht as escort in future to heathens exclusively Mr Rahnkin I thank you in the name of the United States for the hospitality you have extended to us today, and I invite you to accompany me bahck to my ship with a view to lunch at half-past-one Gentlemen we will wait on the governor of the gaol on our way to the harbor [He goes out, following his officers, and followed by the bluejackets and the petty officer]

SIR HOWARD [to Lady Cicely] Cicely in the course of my professional career I have met with unscrupulous witnesses, and, I am sorry to say, unscrupulous counsel also But the combination of unscrupulous witness and unscrupulous counsel I have met today has taken away my breath You have made me your accomplice in defeating justice

LADY-CICELY Yes arnt you glad it's been defeated for once? [She takes his arm to go out with him] Captain Brassbound I will come back to say goodbye before I go [He nods gloomily She goes out with Sir Howard, following the Captain and his staff]

RANKIN [running to Brassbound and taking both his hands] I'm right glad yere cleared I'll come back and have a crack with ye when yon lunch is over God bless ye [He goes out quickly]

Brassbound and his men, left by themselves in the room, free and unobserved, go straight out of their senses They laugh, they dance, they embrace one another, they set to partners and waltz clumsily, they shake hands repeatedly and maudlinly Three only retain some sort of self-possession Marzo, proud of having successfully thrust himself into a leading part in the recent proceedings and made a dramatic speech, inflates his chest, curls his scanty moustache, and throws himself into a swaggering pose, chin up and right foot forward, despising the emotional English barbarians around him Brassbound's eyes and the working of his mouth shew that he is infected with the general excitement, but he bridles himself savagely Redbrook, trained to affect indifference, grins cynically, winks at Brassbound, and finally relieves himself by assuming the character of a circus ringmaster, flourishing an imaginary whip and egging on the rest to wilder exertions A climax is reached when Drinkwater, let loose without a stain on his character for the second time, is rapt by belief in his star into an ecstasy in which, scorning all partnership, he becomes as it were a whirling derviser, and executes so miraculous a clog dance that the others gradually cease their slower antics to stare at him

BRASSBOUND [tearing off his hat and striding forward as Drinkwater collapses, exhausted, and is picked up by Redbrook] Now to get rid of this respectable clobber and feel like a man again Stand by, all hands, to jump on the captain's tall hat [He puts the hat down and prepares to jump on it The effect is startling, and takes him completely aback His followers, far from appreciating his iconoclasm, are shocked into scandalized sobriety, except Redbrook, who is intensely tickled by their prudery]

DRINKWATER Naow, look eah, kep'n that yint rawt Dror a lawn somewhere

JOHNSON I say nothin agen a bit of fun,
Cap'n, but lets be gentlemen

REDBROOK I suggest to you, Brassbound, that the clobber belongs to Lady Sis Aint you going to give it back to her?

BRASSBOUND [*picking up the hat and brushing
the dust off it anxiously*] Thats true I'm a fool
All the same, she shall not see me again like this [He pulls off the coat and waistcoat together] Does any man here know how to fold up this sort of thing properly?

REDBROOK Allow me, governor [He takes the coat and waistcoat to the table, and folds them up]

BRASSBOUND [loosening his collar and the front of his shirt] Brandyfaced Jack youre looking at these studs I know whats in your mind

DRINKWATER [indignantly] Naow yer downt nort a bit on it Wots in maw mawnd is secrifawce, seolf-secrifawce

BRASSBOUND If one brass pin of that lady's property is missing, I'll hang you with my own hands at the gaff of the Thanksgiving—and would, if she were lying under the guns of all the fleets in Europe [He pulls off the shirt and stands in his blue jersey, with his hair ruffled He passes his hand through it and ex-claims] Now I am half a man, at any rate

REDBROOK A horrible combination, governor churchwarden from the waist down, and the rest pirate Lady Sis wont speak to you in it

BRASSBOUND I'll change altogether [He leaves the room to get his own trousers]

REDBROOK [softly] Look here, Johnson, and gents generally [They gather about him]
Spose she takes him back to England!

MARZO [trying to repeat his success] Im! Im only dam pirate She saint, I tell you—no take any man nowhere

JOHNSON [severely] Dont you be a ignorant and immoral foreigner [The rebuke is well received, and Marzo is hustled into the background and extinguished] She wont take him for harm, but she might take him for good And then where should we be?

DRINKWATER Brarsbahnd ynt the ownly kep'n in the world Wot mikes a kep'n is brines an knollidge o lawf It ynt thet thers naow sitch pusson its thet you dunno where to look fr hum [The implication that he is such a person is so intolerable that they receive it with a prolonged burst of booming]

BRASSBOUND [returning in his own clothes, getting into his jacket as he comes] Stand by, all [They start asunder guiltily, and wait for orders] Redbrook you pack that clobber in the lady's portmanteau, and put it aboard the yacht for her Johnson you take all hands aboard the Thanksgiving, look through the stores, weigh anchor, and make all ready for sea Then send Jack to wait for me at the slip with a boat, and give me a gunfire for a signal Lose no time

JOHNSON Ay, ay, sir All aboard, mates

ALL Ay, ay [They rush out tumultuously]

When they are gone, Brassbound sits down at the end of the table, with his elbows on it and his head on his fists, gloomily thinking Then he takes from the breast pocket of his jacket a leather case, from which he extracts a scrappy packet of dirty letters and newspaper cuttings These he throws on the table Next comes a photograph in a cheap frame He throws it down untenderly beside the papers, then folds his arms, and is looking at it with grim distaste when Lady Cicely enters His back is towards her, and he does not hear her Perceiving this, she shuts the door loudly enough to attract attention He starts up

LADY CICELY [coming to the opposite end of the table] So youve taken off all my beautiful clothes!

BRASSBOUND Your brother's, you mean A man should wear his own clothes, and a man should tell his own lies I'm sorry you had to tell mine for me today

LADY CICELY Oh, women spend half their lives telling little lies for men, and sometimes big ones We're used to it But mind! I dont admit that I told any today

BRASSBOUND How did you square my uncle?

LADY CICELY I dont understand the expression

BRASSBOUND I mean—

LADY CICELY I'm afraid we havnt time to go into what you mean before lunch I want to speak to you about your future May I?

BRASSBOUND [darkening a little, but politely]

Sit down [She sits down So does he]

LADY CICELY What are your plans?

BRASSBOUND I have no plans You will hear a gun fired in the harbor presently That will mean that the Thanksgiving's anchor's weighed and that she is waiting for her captain to put out to sea And her captain doesnt know now whether to turn her head north or south

LADY CICELY Why not north for England?

BRASSBOUND Why not south for the Pole?

LADY CICELY But you must do something with yourself?

BRASSBOUND [settling himself with his fists and elbows weightily on the table and looking straight and powerfully at her] Look you when you and I first met, I was a man with a purpose I stood alone I saddled no friend, woman or man, with that purpose, because it was against law, against religion, against my own credit and safety But I believed in it, and I stood alone for it, as a man should stand for his belief, against law and religion as much as against wickedness and selfishness Whatever I may be, I am none of your fairweather sailors that'll do nothing for their creed but go to Heaven for it I was ready to go to hell for mine Perhaps you dont understand that

LADY CICELY Oh bless you, yes It's so very like a certain sort of man

BRASSBOUND I daresay, but Ive not met many of that sort Anyhow, that was what I was like I dont say I was happy in it, but I wasnt unhappy, because I wasnt drifting I was steering a course and had work in hand Give a man health and a course to steer, and he'll never stop to trouble about whether he's happy or not

LADY CICELY Sometimes he wont even stop to trouble about whether other people are happy or not

BRASSBOUND I dont deny that nothing makes a man so selfish as work But I was not self-seeking it seemed to me that I had put justice above self I tell you life meant something to me then Do you see that dirty little bundle of scraps of paper?

LADY CICELY What are they?

BRASSBOUND Accounts cut out of newspapers Speeches made by my uncle at charitable dinners, or sentencing men to death—pious, highminded speeches by a man who was to me a thief and a murderer! To my mind they were more weighty, more momentous, better revelations of the wicked ness of law and respectability than the book of the prophet Amos What are they now? [He quietly tears the newspaper cuttings into little fragments and throws them away, looking fixedly at her meanwhile]

LADY CICELY. Well, thats a comfort, at all events

BRASSBOUND Yes, but it's a part of my life gone your doing, remember What have I left? See here! [he takes up the letters] the letters my uncle wrote to my mother with her comments on their cold drawn insolence, their treachery and cruelty And the piteous letters she wrote to him later on, returned unopened Must they go too?

LADY CICELY [uneasily] I cant ask you to destroy your mother's letters

BRASSBOUND Why not, now that you have taken the meaning out of them? [He tears them] Is that a comfort too?

LADY CICELY It's a little sad, but perhaps it is best so

BRASSBOUND That leaves one relic her portrait [He plucks the photograph out of its cheap case]

LADY CICELY [with vivid curiosity] Oh, let me see. [He hands it to her Before she can control herself her expression changes to one of unmistakable disappointment and repulsion]

BRASSBOUND [with a single sardonic cachinnation] Ha! You expected something better than that Well, youre right Her face does not look well opposite yours

LADY CICELY [distressed] I said nothing

BRASSBOUND What could you say? [He takes back the portrait she relinquishes it without a word He looks at it, shakes his head, and takes it quietly between his finger and thumb to tear it]

LADY CICELY [staying his hand] Oh, not your mother's picture!

BRASSBOUND If that were your picture, would you like your son to keep it for younger and better women to see?

LADY CICELY [releasing his hand] Oh, you are dreadful! Tear it, tear it. [She covers her eyes for a moment to shut out the sight]

BRASSBOUND [tearing it quietly] You killed her for me that day in the castle, and I am better without her [He throws away the fragments] Now everything is gone You have taken the old meaning out of my life, but you have put no new meaning into it I can see that you have some clue to the world that makes all its difficulties easy for you, but I'm not clever enough to seize it. Youve lamed me by shewing me that I take life the wrong way when I'm left to myself

LADY CICELY Oh no Why do you say that?

BRASSBOUND What else can I say? See what Ive done! My uncle is no worse a man than myself—better, most likely, for he has a better head and a higher place Well, I took him for a villain out of a storybook My mother would have opened anybody else's eyes she shut mine I'm a stupider man than Brandyfaced Jack even, for he got his romantic nonsense out of his penny numbers and such like trash, but I got just the same nonsense out of life and experience [Shaking his head] It was vulgar—vulgar I see that now, for youve opened my eyes to the past; but what good is that for the future? What am I to do? Where am I to go?

LADY CICELY It's quite simple Do whatever you like Thats what I always do

BRASSBOUND That answer is no good to me What I like is to have something to do, and I have nothing You might as well talk like the missionary and tell me to do my duty

LADY CICELY [quickly] Oh no thank you Ive had quite enough of your duty, and Howard's duty Where would you both be now if I'd let you do it?

BRASSBOUND We'd have been somewhere, at all events It seems to me that now I am nowhere

LADY CICELY. But arnt you coming back to England with us?

BRASSBOUND What for?

LADY CICELY Why, to make the most of your opportunities

BRASSBOUND What opportunities?

LADY CICELY Dont you understand that when you are the nephew of a great bigwig, and have influential connexions, and good friends among them, lots of things can be done for you that are never done for ordinary ship captains?

BRASSBOUND Ah, but I'm not an aristocrat, you see And like most poor men, I'm proud I dont like being patronized

LADY CICELY What is the use of saying that? In my world, which is now your world—our world—getting patronage is the whole art of life A man cant have a career without it

BRASSBOUND In my world a man can navigate a ship and get his living by it

LADY CICELY Oh, I see youre one of the Idealists—the Impossibleists! We have them, too, occasionally, in our world There's only one thing to be done with them

BRASSBOUND Whats that?

LADY CICELY Marry them straight off to some girl with enough money for them, and plenty of sentiment Thats their fate

BRASSBOUND Youve spoiled even that chance for me Do you think I could look at any ordinary woman after you? You seem to be able to make me do pretty well what you like, but you cant make me marry anybody but yourself

LADY CICELY Do you know, Captain Paquito, that Ive married no less than seventeen men [Brassbound stares] to other women And they all opened the subject by saying that they would never marry anybody but me

BRASSBOUND Then I shall be the first man you ever found to stand to his word

LADY CICELY [part pleased, part amused, part sympathetic] Do you really want a wife?

BRASSBOUND I want a commander Dont undervalue me I am a good man when I have a good leader I have courage I have determination I'm not a drinker I can command a schooner and a shore party if I cant command a ship or an army When work is put upon me, I turn neither to save my life nor to fill my pocket Gordon trusted me, and he never regretted it If you trust me, you shant regret it All the same, theres something wanting in me I suppose I'm stupid

LADY CICELY Oh, youre not stupid

BRASSBOUND Yes I am Since you saw me for the first time in that garden, youve heard me say nothing clever And Ive heard you say nothing that didnt make me laugh, or make me feel friendly, as well as telling me what to think and what to do Thats what I mean by real cleverness Well, I havnt got it I can give an order when I know what order to give I can make men obey it, willing or unwilling But I'm stupid, I tell you stupid When theres no Gordon to command me, I cant think of what to do Left to myself, Ive become half a brigand I can kick that little gutterscrub Drinkwater, but I find myself doing what he puts into my head because I cant think of anything else When you came, I took your orders as naturally as I took Gordons, though I little thought my next commander would be a woman I want to take service under you And theres no way in which that can be done except marrying you Will you let me do it?

LADY CICELY I'm afraid you dont quite know how odd a match it would be for me according to the ideas of English society

BRASSBOUND I care nothing about English society let it mind its own business

LADY CICELY [rising, a little alarmed] Captain Paquito I am not in love with you

BRASSBOUND [also rising, with his gaze still steadfastly on her] I didnt suppose you were the commander is not usually in love with his subordinate

LADY CICELY Nor the subordinate with the commander

BRASSBOUND [assenting firmly] Nor the subordinate with the commander

LADY CICELY [learning for the first time in her life what terror is, as she finds that he is unconsciously mesmerizing her] Oh, you are dangerous!

BRASSBOUND Come are you in love with anybody else? Thats the question

LADY CICELY [shaking her head] I have never been in love with any real person, and I never shall How could I manage people if I had that mad little bit of self left in me? Thats my secret

BRASSBOUND Then throw away the last bit of self Marry me

LADY CICELY [vainly struggling to recall her wandering will] Must I?

BRASSBOUND There is no must You can I ask you to My fate depends on it

LADY CICELY Its frightful, for I dont mean to—dont wish to

BRASSBOUND But you will

LADY CICELY [quite lost, slowly stretches out her hand to give it to him] I— [Gunfire from the Thanksgiving His eyes dilate It nakes her from her trance] What is that?

BRASSBOUND It is farewell Rescue for you—safety, freedom! You were made to be something better than the wife of Black Paquito [He kneels and takes her hands] You can do no more for me now I have blundered somehow on the secret of command at last [he kisses her hands] thanks for that, and for a man's power and purpose restored and righted And farewell, farewell, farewell

LADY CICELY [in a strange ecstasy, holding his hands as he rises] Oh, farewell With my heart's deepest feeling, farewell, farewell

BRASSBOUND With my heart's noblest honor and triumph, farewell [He turns and flies]

LADY CICELY How glorious! how glorious! And what an escape!

THE END

XI

MAN AND SUPERMAN

A COMEDY AND A PHILOSOPHY (1901-3)

ACT I

Roebuck Ramsden is in his study, opening the morning's letters. The study, handsomely and solidly furnished, proclaims the man of means. Not a speck of dust is visible: it is clear that there are at least two housemaids and a parlormaid downstairs, and a housekeeper upstairs who does not let them spare elbow-grease. Even the top of Roebuck's head is polished on a sunshiny day he could heliograph his orders to distant camps by merely nodding. In no other respect, however, does he suggest the military man. It is in active civil life that men get his broad air of importance, his dignified expectation of deference, his determinate mouth disarmed and refined since the hour of his success by the withdrawal of opposition and the concession of comfort and precedence and power. He is more than a highly respectable man: he is marked out as a president of highly respectable men, a chairman among directors, an alderman among councillors, a mayor among aldermen. Four tufts of iron-grey hair, which will soon be as white as isinglass, and are in other respects not at all unlike it, grow in two symmetrical pairs above his ears and at the angles of his spreading jaws. He wears a black frock coat, a white waistcoat (it is bright spring weather), and trousers, neither black nor perceptibly blue, of one of those indefinitely mixed hues which the modern clothier has produced to harmonize with the religions of respectable men. He has not been out of doors yet today, so he still wears his slippers, his boots being ready for him on the hearthrug. Surmising that he has no valet, and seeing that he has no secretary with a shorthand notebook and a typewriter, one meditates on how little our great burgess domesticity has been disturbed by new fashions and methods, or by the enterprise of the railway and hotel companies which sell you a Saturday to Monday of life at Folkestone as a real gentleman for two guineas, first class fares both ways included.

How old is Roebuck? The question is important on the threshold of a drama of ideas, for under such circumstances everything depends on whether his adolescence belonged to the sixties or to the eighties. He was born, as a matter of fact, in 1839, and was a Unitarian and Free Trader from his boyhood, and an Evolutionist from the publication of the Origin of Species. Consequently he has always classed himself as an advanced thinker and fearlessly outspoken reformer.

Sitting at his writing table, he has on his right the windows giving on Portland Place. Through these, as through a proscenium, the curious spectator may contemplate his profile as well as the blinds will permit. On his left is the inner wall, with a stately bookcase, and the door not quite in the middle, but somewhat further from him. Against the wall opposite him are two busts on pillars: one, to his left, of John Bright, the other, to his right, of Mr Herbert Spencer. Between them hang an engraved portrait of Richard Cobden, enlarged photographs of Martineau, Huxley, and George Eliot, autotypes of allegories by Mr G. F. Watts (for Roebuck believes in the fine arts with all the earnestness of a man who does not understand them), and an impression of Dupont's engraving of Delaroche's Beaux Arts hemicycle, representing the great men of all ages. On the wall behind him, above the mantelshelf, is a family portrait of impenetrable obscurity.

A chair stands near the writing table for the convenience of business visitors. Two other chairs are against the wall between the busts.

A parlormaid enters with a visitor's card. Roebuck takes it, and nods, pleased. Evidently a welcome caller.

RAMSDEN Shew him in.

The parlormaid goes out and returns with the visitor.

THE MAID Mr Robinson.

Mr Robinson is really an uncommonly nice looking young fellow. He must, one thinks, be the jeune premier, for it is not in reason to suppose that a second such attractive male figure should appear in one story. The slim, shapely frame, the elegant suit of new mourning, the small head and regular features, the pretty little moustache, the frank clear eyes, the wholesome bloom on the youthful complexion, the well brushed glossy hair, not curly, but of fine texture and good dark color, the arch of good nature in the eyebrows, the erect forehead and neatly pointed chin, all announce the man who will love and suffer later on And that he will not do so without sympathy is guaranteed by an engaging sincerity and eager modest serviceableness which stamp him as a man of amiable nature The moment he appears, Ramsden's face expands into fatherly liking and welcome, an expression which drops into one of decorous grief as the young man approaches him with sorrow in his face as well as in his black clothes Ramsden seems to know the nature of the bereavement As the visitor advances silently to the writing table, the old man rises and shakes his hand across it without a word a long, affectionate shake which tells the story of a recent sorrow common to both

RAMSDEN [concluding the handshake and cheering up] Well, well, Octavius, it's the common lot We must all face it some day Sit down Octavius takes the visitor's chair Ramsden replaces himself in his own

OCTAVIUS Yes we must face it, Mr Ramsden But I owed him a great deal He did everything for me that my father could have done if he had lived

RAMSDEN He had no son of his own, you see

OCTAVIUS But he had daughters, and yet he was as good to my sister as to me And his death was so sudden! I always intended to thank him—to let him know that I had not taken all his care of me as a matter of course, as any boy takes his father's care But I waited for an opportunity, and now he is dead—dropped without a moment's warning He will never know what I felt [He takes out his handkerchief and cries unaffectedly]

RAMSDEN How do we know that, Octavius? He may know it we cannot tell Come! don't grieve [Octavius masters himself and puts up his handkerchief] That's right Now let me tell you something to console you The last time I saw him—it was in this very room—he said to me "Tavy is a generous lad and the soul of honor, and when I see how little consideration other men get from their sons, I realize how much better than a son he's been to me" There! Doesn't that do you good?

OCTAVIUS Mr Ramsden he used to say to me that he had met only one man in the world who was the soul of honor, and that was Roebuck Ramsden

RAMSDEN Oh, that was his partiality we were very old friends, you know But there was something else he used to say about you

I wonder whether I ought to tell you or not!

OCTAVIUS You know best

RAMSDEN It was something about his daughter

OCTAVIUS [eagerly] About Ann! Oh, do tell me that, Mr Ramsden

RAMSDEN Well, he said he was glad, after all, you were not his son, because he thought that someday Annie and you—[Octavius blushes vividly] Well, perhaps I shouldn't have told you But he was in earnest

OCTAVIUS Oh, if only I thought I had a chance! You know, Mr Ramsden, I don't care about money or about what people call position, and I can't bring myself to take an interest in the business of struggling for them Well, Ann has a most exquisite nature, but she is so accustomed to be in the thick of that sort of thing that she thinks a man's character incomplete if he is not ambitious She knows that if she married me she would have to reason herself out of being ashamed of me for not being a big success of some kind

RAMSDEN [getting up and planting himself with his back to the fireplace] Nonsense, my boy, nonsense! You're too modest What does she know about the real value of men at her age? [More seriously] Besides, she's a wonderfully dutiful girl Her father's wish would be sacred to her Do you know that since she grew up to years of discretion, I don't believe she has ever once given her own wish as a reason for doing anything or not doing it It's always "Father wishes me to" or "Mother wouldn't like it" It's really almost a fault in her I have often told her she must learn to think for herself

OCTAVIUS [shaking his head] I couldn't ask her to marry me because her father wished it, Mr Ramsden

RAMSDEN Well, perhaps not No of course not I see that No you certainly couldn't But when you win her on your own merits, it will be a great happiness to her to fulfil her father's desire as well as her own Eh? Come! you'll ask her, won't you?

OCTAVIUS [with sad gaiety] At all events I promise you I shall never ask anyone else

RAMSDEN Oh, you shan't need to She'll accept you, my boy—although [here he suddenly becomes very serious indeed] you have one great drawback

OCTAVIUS [anxiously] What drawback is that, Mr Ramsden? I should rather say which of my many drawbacks?

RAMSDEN I'll tell you, Octavius [He takes from the table a book bound in red cloth] I have in my hand a copy of the most infamous, the most scandalous, the most mischievous, the most blackguardly book that ever escaped burning at the hands of the common hangman I have not read it I would not soil my mind with such filth, but I have read what the papers say of it The title is quite enough for me [He reads it] The Revolutionist's Handbook and Pocket Companion By John Tanner, M I R C, Member of the Idle Rich Class

OCTAVIUS [smiling] But Jack—

RAMSDEN [testily] For goodness' sake, dont call him Jack under my roof [he throws the book violently down on the table Then, somewhat relieved, he comes past the table to Octavius, and addresses him at close quarters with impressive gravity] Now, Octavius, I know that my dead friend was right when he said you were a generous lad I know that this man was your schoolfellow, and that you feel bound to stand by him because there was a boyish friendship between you But I ask you to consider the altered circumstances You were treated as a son in my friend's house You lived there, and your friends could not be turned from the door This man Tanner was in and out there on your account almost from his childhood He addresses Annie by her Christian name as freely as you do Well, while her father was alive, that was her father's business, not mine This man Tanner was only a boy to him his opinions were something to be laughed at, like a man's hat on a child's head But now Tanner is a grown man and Annie a grown woman And her father is gone We dont as yet know the exact terms of his will, but he often talked it over with me, and I have no more doubt than I have that youre sitting there that the will appoints me Annie's trustee and guardian [Forcibly] Now I tell you, once for all, I cant and I wont have Annie placed in such a position that she must, out of regard for you, suffer the intimacy of this fellow Tanner It's not fair it's not right it's not kind What are you going to do about it?

OCTAVIUS But Ann herself has told Jack that whatever his opinions are, he will always be welcome because he knew her dear father

RAMSDEN [out of patience] That girl's mad about her duty to her parents [He starts off

like a goaded ox in the direction of John Bright, in whose expression there is no sympathy for him As he speaks he fumes down to Herbert Spencer, who receives him still more coldly] Excuse me, Octavius, but there are limits to social toleration You know that I am not a bigoted or prejudiced man You know that I am plain Roebuck Ramsden when other men who have done less have got handles to their names, because I have stood for equality and liberty of conscience while they were truckling to the Church and to the aristocracy Whitefield and I lost chance after chance through our advanced opinions But I draw the line at Anarchism and Free Love and that sort of thing If I am to be Annie's guardian, she will have to learn that she has a duty to me I wont have it I will not have it She must forbid John Tanner the house, and so must you

The parlormaid returns

OCTAVIUS But—

RAMSDEN [calling his attention to the servant] Ssh! Well?

THE MAID Mr Tanner wishes to see you, sir

RAMSDEN Mr Tanner!

OCTAVIUS Jack!

RAMSDEN How dare Mr Tanner call on me! Say I cannot see him

OCTAVIUS [hurt] I am sorry you are turning my friend from your door like that

THE MAID [calmly] He's not at the door, sir He's upstairs in the drawing room with Miss Ramsden He came with Miss Whitefield and Miss Ann and Miss Robinson, sir

Ramsden's feelings are beyond words

OCTAVIUS [grinning] Thats very like Jack, Mr Ramsden You must see him, even if it's only to turn him out

RAMSDEN [hammering out his words with suppressed fury] Go upstairs and ask Mr Tanner to be good enough to step down here [The parlormaid goes out, and Ramsden returns to the fireplace, as to a fortified position] I must say that of all the confounded pieces of impertinence—well, if these are Anarchist manners, I hope you like them And Annie with him! Annie! A— [he chokes]

OCTAVIUS Yes thats what surprises me He's so desperately afraid of Ann There must be something the matter

Mr John Tanner suddenly opens the door and enters He is too young to be described simply as a big man with a beard But it is already plain that middle life will find him in that category. He has still some of the slimness of youth, but youthfulness is not the effect he aims at. His frock coat would befit a prime minister, and a certain high chested carriage of the shoulders, a lofty pose of the head, and the Olympian majesty with which a mane, or rather a huge mass, of hazel colored hair is thrown back from an imposing brow, suggest Jupiter rather than Apollo. He is prodigiously fluent of speech, restless, excitable (mark the snorting nostril and the restless blue eye, just the thirty-second of an inch too wide open), possibly a little mad. He is carefully dressed, not from the vanity that cannot resist finery, but from a sense of the importance of everything he does which leads him to make as much of paying a call as other men do of getting married or laying a foundation stone. A sensitive, susceptible, exaggerative, earnest man—a megalomaniac, who would be lost without a sense of humor.

Just at present the sense of humor is in abeyance. To say that he is excited is nothing; all his moods are phases of excitement. He is now in the panic-stricken phase, and he walks straight up to Ramsden as if with the fixed intention of shooting him on his own hearthrug. But what he pulls from his breast pocket is not a pistol, but a foolscap document which he thrusts under the indignant nose of Ramsden as he exclaims:

TANNER Ramsden, do you know what that is?

RAMSDEN [loftily] No, sir.

TANNER It's a copy of Whitefield's will. Ann got it this morning.

RAMSDEN When you say Ann, you mean, I presume, Miss Whitefield.

TANNER I mean our Ann, your Ann, Tavy's Ann, and now, Heaven help me, my Ann!

OCTAVIUS [rising, very pale] What do you mean?

TANNER Mean! [He holds up the will] Do you know who is appointed Ann's guardian by this will?

RAMSDEN [coolly] I believe I am.

TANNER You! You and I, man! I! I! I! Both of us! [He flings the will down on the writing table]

RAMSDEN You! Impossible.

TANNER It's only too hideously true [He throws himself into Octavius's chair]. Ramsden get me out of it somehow. You don't know Ann as well as I do. She'll commit every crime a respectable woman can, and she'll justify every one of them by saying that it was the wish of her guardians. She'll put everything on us, and we shall have no more control over her than a couple of mice over a cat.

OCTAVIUS Jack, I wish you wouldn't talk like that about Ann.

TANNER This chap's in love with her; that's another complication. Well, she'll either jilt him and say I didn't approve of him, or marry him and say you ordered her to. I tell you, this is the most staggering blow that has ever fallen on a man of my age and temperament.

RAMSDEN Let me see that will, sir [He goes to the writing table and picks it up]. I cannot believe that my old friend Whitefield would have shown such a want of confidence in me as to associate me with— [His countenance falls as he reads].

TANNER It's all my own doing; that's the horrible irony of it. He told me one day that you were to be Ann's guardian, and like a fool I began arguing with him about the folly of leaving a young woman under the control of an old man with obsolete ideas.

RAMSDEN [stupended] My ideas obsolete! "!!!!"

TANNER Totally. I had just finished an essay called Down with Government by the Greyhaired, and I was full of arguments and illustrations. I said the proper thing was to combine the experience of an old hand with the vitality of a young one. Hang me if he didn't take me at my word and alter his will—it's dated only a fortnight after that conversation—appointing me as joint guardian with you!

RAMSDEN [pale and determined] I shall refuse to act.

TANNER What's the good of that? I've been refusing all the way from Richmond, but Ann keeps on saying that of course she's only an orphan, and that she can't expect the people who were glad to come to the house in her father's time to trouble much about her now. That's the latest game. An orphan! It's like hearing an ironclad talk about being at the mercy of the wind and waves.

OCTAVIUS This is not fair, Jack. She is an orphan. And you ought to stand by her.

TANNER Stand by her! What danger is she in? She has the law on her side, she has popular sentiment on her side, she has plenty of money and no conscience. All she wants with me is to load up all her moral responsibilities on me and do as she likes at the expense of my character I cant control her, and she can compromise me as much as she likes I might as well be her husband

RAMSDEN You can refuse to accept the guardianship I shall certainly refuse to hold it jointly with you

TANNER Yes and what will she say to that? what does she say to it? Just that her father's wishes are sacred to her, and that she shall always look up to me as her guardian whether I care to face the responsibility or not Refuse! You might as well refuse to accept the embraces of a boa constrictor when once it gets round your neck

OCTAVIUS This sort of talk is not kind to me, Jack

TANNER [rising and going to Octavius to console him, but still lamenting] If he wanted a young guardian, why didnt he appoint Tavy?

RAMSDEN Ah! why indeed?

OCTAVIUS I will tell you He sounded me about it, but I refused the trust because I loved her I had no right to let myself be forced on her as a guardian by her father He spoke to her about it, and she said I was right You know I love her, Mr Ramsden, and Jack knows it too If Jack loved a woman, I would not compare her to a boa constrictor in his presence, however much I might dislike her [he sits down between the busts and turns his face to the wall]

RAMSDEN I do not believe that Whitefield was in his right senses when he made that will You have admitted that he made it under your influence

TANNER You ought to be pretty well obliged to me for my influence He leaves you two thousand five hundred for your trouble He leaves Tavy a dowry for his sister and five thousand for himself

OCTAVIUS [his tears flowing afresh] Oh, I cant take it He was too good to us

TANNER You wont get it, my boy, if Ramsden upsets the will

RAMSDEN Ha! I see You have got me in a cleft stick

TANNER. He leaves me nothing but the charge of Ann's morals, on the ground that I have already more money than is good for me That shews that he had his wits about him, dosen't it?

RAMSDEN [grimly] I admit that

OCTAVIUS [rising and coming from his refuge by the wall] Mr Ramsden I think you are prejudiced against Jack He is a man of honor, and incapable of abusing—

TANNER Dont, Tavy youll make me ill I am not a man of honor I am a man struck down by a dead hand Tavy you must marry her after all and take her off my hands And I had set my heart on saving you from her!

OCTAVIUS Oh, Jack, you talk of saving me from my highest happiness

TANNER Yes, a lifetime of happiness If it were only the first half hour's happiness, Tavy, I would buy it for you with my last penny But a lifetime of happiness! No man alive could bear it it would be hell on earth

RAMSDEN [violently] Stuff sir Talk sense, or else go and waste someone else's time I have something better to do than listen to your fooleries [he positively kicks his way to his table and resumes his seat]

TANNER You hear him, Tavy! Not an idea in his head later than eighteenth century We cant leave Ann with no other guardian to turn to

RAMSDEN I am proud of your contempt for my character and opinions, sir Your own are set forth in that book, I believe

TANNER [eagerly going to the table] What! Youve got my book! What do you think of it?

RAMSDEN Do you suppose I would read such a book, sir?

TANNER Then why did you buy it?

RAMSDEN I did not buy it, sir It has been sent me by some foolish lady who seems to admire your views I was about to dispose of it when Octavius interrupted me I shall do so now, with your permission [He throws the book into the waste paper basket with such vehemence that Tanner recoils under the impression that it is being thrown at his head]

TANNER You have no more manners than I have myself However, that saves ceremony between us [He sits down again] What do you intend to do about this will?

OCTAVIUS May I make a suggestion?

RAMSDEN Certainly, Octavius

OCTAVIUS Arnt we forgetting that Ann herself may have some wishes in this matter?

RAMSDEN I quite intend that Annie's wishes shall be consulted in every reasonable way But she is only a woman, and a young and inexperienced woman at that

TANNER Ramsden I begin to pity you

RAMSDEN [holly] I dont want to know how you feel towards me, Mr Tanner

TANNER. Ann will do just exactly what she likes And whats more, she'll foree us to advise her to do it, and she'll put the blame on us if it turns out badly So, as Tavy is longing to see her—

OCTAVIUS [shyly] I am not, Jack

TANNER You lie, Tavy you are So lets have her down from the drawing room and ask her what she intends us to do Off with you, Tavy, and fetch her [Tavy turns to go] And dont be long, for the strained relations between myself and Ramsden will make the interval rather painful [Ramsden compresses his lips, but says nothing]

OCTAVIUS Never mind him, Mr Ramsden He's not serious [He goes out]

RAMSDEN [very deliberately] Mr Tanner you are the most impudent person I have ever met

TANNER [seriously] I know it, Ramsden Yet even I cannot wholly conquer shame We live in an atmosphere of shame We are ashamed of everything that is real about us, ashamed of ourselves, of our relatives, of our incomes, of our accents, of our opinions, of our experience, just as we are ashamed of our naked skins Good Lord, my dear Ramsden, we are ashamed to walk, ashamed to ride in an omnibus, ashamed to hire a hansom instead of keeping a carriage, ashamed of keeping one horse instead of two and a groom-gardener instead of a coachman and footman The more things a man is ashamed of, the more respectable he is Why, youre ashamed to buy my book, ashamed to read it the only thing youre not ashamed of is to judge me for it without having read it, and even that only means that youre ashamed to have heterodox opinions Look at the effect I produce because my fairy godmother withheld from me this gift of shame I have every possible virtue that a man can have except—

RAMSDEN I am glad you think so well of yourself

TANNER All you mean by that is that you think I ought to be ashamed of talking about my virtues You dont mean that I havnt got them you know perfectly well that I am as sober and honest a citizen as yourself, as truthful personally, and much more truthful politically and morally

RAMSDEN [touched on his most sensitive point] I deny that I will not allow you or any man to treat me as if I were a mere member of the British public I detest its prejudices, I scorn its narrowness, I demand the right to think for myself You pose as an advanced man Let me tell you that I was an advanced man before you were born

TANNER I knew it was a long time ago

RAMSDEN I am as advanced as ever I was I defy you to prove that I have ever hauled down the flag I am more advanced than ever I was I grow more advanced every day

TANNER More advanced in years, Polonius
RAMSDEN Polonius! So you are Hamlet, I suppose

TANNER No I am only the most impudent person youve ever met Thats your notion of a thoroughly bad character When you want to give me a piece of your mind, you ask yourself, as a just and upright man what is the worst you can fairly say of me Thief liar, forger, adulterer, perjurer, glutton, drunkard? Not one of these names fit me You have to fall back on my deficiency in shame Well, I admit it I even congratulate myself, for if I were ashamed of my real self, I should cut as stupid a figure as any of the rest of you Cultivate a little impudence, Ramsden, and you will become quite a remarkable man

RAMSDEN I have no—

TANNER You have no desire for that sort of notoriety Bless you, I knew that answer would come as well as I know that a box of matches will come out of an automatic machine when I put a penny in the slot you would be ashamed to say anything else

The crushing retort for which Ramsden has been visibly collecting his forces is lost for ever, for at this point Octavius returns with Miss Ann Whitefield and her mother, and Ramsden springs up and hurries to the door to receive them Whether Ann is good-looking or not depends upon your taste, also and perhaps chiefly on your age and sex To Octavius she is an enchantingly beautiful woman, in whose presence the world becomes transfigured and the puny limits of individual consciousness are suddenly made infinite by a mystic memory of the whole life of the race to its beginnings in the east, or even back to the paradise from which it fell She is to him the reality of romance, the inner good sense of nonsense, the unveiling of his eyes, the freeing of his soul, the abolition of time, place, and circumstance, the etherealization of his blood into rapturous rivers of the very water of life itself the revelation of all the mysteries and the sanctification of all the dogmas To her mother she is, to put it as moderately as possible, nothing what-responsibilities on me and do as she likes at the expense of my character I cant control her and she can compromise me as much as she likes I might as well be her husband

RAMSDEN I have no—

TANNER You have no desire for that sort of notoriety Bless you, I knew that answer would come as well as I know that a box of matches will come out of an automatic machine when I put a penny in the slot you would be ashamed to say anything else

The crushing retort for which Ramsden has been visibly collecting his forces is lost for ever, for at this point Octavius returns with Miss Ann Whitefield and her mother, and Ramsden springs up and hurries to the door to receive them Whether Ann is good-looking or not depends upon your taste, also and perhaps chiefly on your age and sex To Octavius she is an enchantingly beautiful woman, in whose presence the world becomes transfigured, and the puny limits of individual consciousness are suddenly made infinite by a mystic memory of the whole life of the race to its beginnings in the east, or even back to the paradise from which it fell She is to him the reality of romance, the inner good sense of nonsense, the unveiling of his eyes, the freeing of his soul, the abolition of time, place, and circumstance, the etherealization of his blood into raplurous rivers of the very water of life itself, the revelation of all the mysteries and the sanctification of all the dogmas To her mother she is, to put it as moderately as possible, nothing whatever of the kind Not that Octavius's admiration is in any way ridiculous or discreditable Ann is a well formed creature, as far as that goes, and she is perfectly ladylike, graceful, and comely, with ensnaring eyes and hair Besides, instead of making herself an eyesore, like her mother, she has devised a mourning costume of black and violet silk which does honor to her late father and reveals the family tradition of brave unconventionality by which Ramsden sets such store

But all this is beside the point as an explanation of Ann's charm Turn up her nose, give a cast to her eye, replace her black and violet confection by the apron and feathers of a flower girl, strike all the itches out of her speech, and Ann would still make men dream Vitality is as common as humanity, but, like humanity, it sometimes rises to genius, and Ann is one of the vital geniuses Not at all, if you please, an oversexed person that is a vital defect, not a true excess She is a perfectly respectable, perfectly self-controlled woman, and looks it, though her pose is fashionably frank and impulsive She inspires confidence as a person who will do nothing she does not mean to do, also some fear, perhaps, as a woman who will probably do everything she means to do without taking more account of other people than may be necessary and what she calls right In short, what the weaker of her own sex sometimes call a cat

Nothing can be more decorous than her entry and her reception by Ramsden, whom she kisses The late Mr Whitefield would be gratified almost to impatience by the long faces of the men (except Tanner, who is fidgety), the silent handgrasps, the sympathetic placing of chairs, the sniffing of the widow, and the liquid eye of the daughter, whose heart, apparently, will not let her control her tongue to speech Ramsden and Octavius take the two chairs from the wall, and place them for the two ladies, but Ann comes to Tanner and takes his chair, which he offers with a brusque gesture, subsequently relieving his irritation by sitting down on the corner of the writing table with studied indecorum Octavius gives Mrs Whitefield a chair next Ann, and himself takes the vacant one which Ramsden has placed under the nose of the effigy of Mr Herbert Spencer

Mrs Whitefield, by the way, is a little woman, whose faded flaxen hair looks like straw on an egg She has an expression of muddled shrewdness, a squeak of protest in her voice, and an odd air of continually elbowing away some larger person who is crushing her into a corner One guesses her as one of those women who are conscious of being treated as silly and negligible, and who, without having strength enough to assert themselves effectually, at any rate never submit to their fate There is a touch of chivalry in Octavius's scrupulous attention to her, even whilst his whole soul is absorbed by Ann

Ramsden goes solemnly back to his magisterial seat at the writing table, ignoring Tanner, and opens the proceedings

RAMSDEN I am sorry, Annie, to force business on you at a sad time like the present But your poor dear father's will has raised a very serious question You have read it, I believe?

Ann assents with a nod and a catch of her breath, too much affected to speak

I must say I am surprised to find Mr Tanner named as joint guardian and trustee with myself of you and Rhoda [A pause They all look portentous, but they have nothing to say Ramsden, a little ruffled by the lack of any response, continues] I don't know that I can consent to act under such conditions Mr Tanner has, I understand, some objection also, but I do not profess to understand its nature he will no doubt speak for himself But we are agreed that we can decide nothing until we know your views I am afraid I shall have to ask you to choose between my sole guardianship and that of Mr Tanner, for I fear it is impossible for us to undertake a joint arrangement

ANN [in a low musical voice] Mamma—

MRS WHITEFIELD [hastily] Now, Ann, I do beg you not to put it on me I have no opinion on the subject, and if I had, it would probably not be attended to I am quite content with whatever you three think best

Tanner turns his head and looks fixedly at Ramsden, who angrily refuses to receive this mute communication

ANN [resuming in the same gentle voice, ignoring her mother's bad taste] Mamma knows that she is not strong enough to bear the whole responsibility for me and Rhoda without some help and advice Rhoda must have a guardian, and though I am older, I do not think any young unmarried woman should be left quite to her own guidance I hope you agree with me, Granny?

TANNER [starting] Granny! Do you intend to call your guardians Granny?

ANN Don't be foolish, Jack Mr Ramsden has always been Grandpapa Roebuck to me I am Granny's Annie, and he is Annie's

Granny I christened him so when I first learned to speak

RAMSDEN [sarcastically] I hope you are satisfied, Mr Tanner Go on, Annie I quite agree with you

ANN Well, if I am to have a guardian, can I set aside anybody whom my dear father appointed for me?

RAMSDEN [biting his lip] You approve of your father's choice, then?

ANN It is not for me to approve or disapprove I accept it My father loved me and knew best what was good for me

RAMSDEN Of course I understand your feeling, Annie It is what I should have expected of you, and it does you credit But it does not settle the question so completely as you think Let me put a case to you. Suppose you were to discover that I had been guilty of some disgraceful action—that I was not the man your poor dear father took me for! Would you still consider it right that I should be Rhoda's guardian?

ANN I cant imagine you doing anything disgraceful, Granny

TANNER [to Ramsden] You havnt done anything of the sort, have you?

RAMSDEN [indignantly] No, sir

MRS WHITEFIELD [placidly] Well, then, why suppose it?

ANN You see, Granny, Mamma would not like me to suppose it

RAMSDEN [much perplexed] You are both so full of natural and affectionate feeling in these family matters that it is very hard to put the situation fairly before you

TANNER Besides, my friend, you are not putting the situation fairly before them

RAMSDEN [sulkily] Put it yourself, then

TANNER I will Ann Ramsden thinks I am not fit to be your guardian, and I quite agree with him He considers that if your father had read my book, he wouldnt have appointed me That book is the disgraceful action he has been talking about He thinks it's your duty for Rhoda's sake to ask him to act alone and to make me withdraw Say the word, and I will

ANN But I havnt read your book, Jack

TANNER [diving at the waste-paper basket and fishing the book out for her] Then read it at once and decide

RAMSDEN [vehemently] If I am to be your guardian, I positively forbid you to read that book, Annie [He smites the table with his fist

and rises]

ANN Of course not if you dont wish it [She puts the book on the table]

TANNER If one guardian is to forbid you to read the other guardian's book, how are we to settle it? Suppose I order you to read it! What about your duty to me?

ANN [gently] I am sure you would never purposely force me into a painful dilemma, Jack

RAMSDEN [irritably] Yes, yes, Annie this is all very well, and, as I said, quite natural and becoming But you must make a choice one way or the other We are as much in a dilemma as you

ANN I feel that I am too young, too inexperienced, to decide My father's wishes are sacred to me

MRS WHITEFIELD If you two men wont carry them out I must say it is rather hard that you should put the responsibility on Ann It seems to me that people are always putting things on other people in this world

RAMSDEN I am sorry you take it in that way

ANN [touchingly] Do you refuse to accept me as your ward, Granny?

RAMSDEN No I never said that I greatly object to act with Mr Tanner thats all

MRS WHITEFIELD Why? What's the matter with poor Jack?

TANNER My views are too advanced for him

RAMSDEN [indignantly] They are not I deny it

ANN Of course not What nonsense! Nobody is more advanced than Granny I am sure it is Jack himself who has made all the difficulty Come, Jack! be kind to me in my sorrow You dont refuse to accept me as your ward, do you?

TANNER [gloomily] No I let myself in for it, so I suppose I must face it [He turns away to the bookcase, and stands there, moodily studying the titles of the volumes]

ANN [rising and expanding with subdued but gushing delight] Then we are all agreed, and my dear father's will is to be carried out You dont know what a joy that is to me and to my mother! [She goes to Ramsden and presses both his hands, saying] And I shall have my dear Granny to help and advise me [She casts a glance at Tanner over her shoulder] And Jack the Giant Killer [She goes past her mother to Octavius] And Jack's inseparable friend Ricky-ticky-tavy [he blushes and looks inexpressibly foolish]

MRS WHITEFIELD [rising and shaking her widow's weeds straight] Now that you are Ann's guardian, Mr Ramsden, I wish you would speak to her about her habit of giving people nicknames. They can't be expected to like it [She moves towards the door]

ANN How can you say such a thing, Mamma! [Glowing with affectionate remorse] Oh, I wonder can you be right! Have I been inconsiderate? [She turns to Octavius, who is sitting astride his chair with his elbows on the back of it. Putting her hand on his forehead she turns his face up suddenly] Do you want to be treated like a grown-up man? Must I call you Mr Robinson in future?

OCTAVIUS [earnestly] Oh please call me Ricky-ticky-tavy. "Mr Robinson" would hurt me cruelly [She laughs and pats his cheek with her finger, then comes back to Ramsden] You know I'm beginning to think that Granny is rather a piece of impertinence. But I never dreamt of its hurting you.

RAMSDEN [breezily, as he pats her affectionately on the back] My dear Annie, nonsense. I insist on Granny. I won't answer to any other name than Annie's Granny.

ANN [gratefully] You all spoil me, except Jack.

TANNER [over his shoulder from the bookcase] I think you ought to call me Mr Tanner.

ANN [gently] No you don't, Jack. That's like the things you say on purpose to shock people—those who know you pay no attention to them. But, if you like, I'll call you after your famous ancestor Don Juan.

RAMSDEN Don Juan!

ANN [innocently] Oh, is there any harm in it? I didn't know. Then I certainly won't call you that. May I call you Jack until I can think of something else?

TANNER Oh, for Heaven's sake don't try to invent anything worse. I capitulate. I consent to Jack. I embrace Jack. Here endeth my first and last attempt to assert my authority.

ANN You see, Mamma, they all really like to have pet names.

MRS WHITEFIELD Well, I think you might at least drop them until we are out of mourning.

ANN [reproachfully stricken to the soul] Oh, how could you remind me, mother? [She hastily leaves the room to conceal her emotion]

MRS WHITEFIELD Of course. My fault as usual! [She follows Ann]

TANNER [coming from the bookcase] Ramsden

we're beaten—smashed—nonentitized, like her mother.

RAMSDEN Stuff, sir [He follows Mrs Whitefield out of the room]

TANNER [left alone with Octavius, stares whimsically at him] Tavy, do you want to count for something in the world?

OCTAVIUS I want to count for something as a poet. I want to write a great play.

TANNER With Ann as the heroine?

OCTAVIUS Yes, I confess it.

TANNER Take care, Tavy. The play with Ann as the heroine is all right, but if you're not very careful, by Heaven she'll marry you.

OCTAVIUS [sighing] No such luck, Jack!

TANNER Why, man, your head is in the lioness's mouth. You are half-swallowed already—in three bites—Bite One, Ricky, Bite Two, Ticky, Bite Three, Tavy, and down you go.

OCTAVIUS She is the same to everybody, Jack. You know her ways.

TANNER Yes, she breaks everybody's back with the stroke of her paw, but the question is, which of us will she eat? My own opinion is that she means to eat you.

OCTAVIUS [rising, petulantly] It's horrible to talk like that about her when she is upstairs crying for her father. But I do so want her to eat me that I can bear your brutalities because they give me hope.

TANNER Tavy, that's the devilish side of a woman's fascination. She makes you will your own destruction.

OCTAVIUS But it's not destruction. It's fulfilment.

TANNER Yes, of her purpose, and that purpose is neither her happiness nor yours, but Nature's. Vitality in a woman is a blind fury of creation. She sacrifices herself to it. Do you think she will hesitate to sacrifice you?

OCTAVIUS Why, it is just because she is self-sacrificing that she will not sacrifice those she loves.

TANNER That is the profoundest of mistakes, Tavy. It is the self-sacrificing women that sacrifice others most recklessly. Because they are unselfish, they are kind in little things. Because they have a purpose which is not their own purpose but that of the whole universe—a man is nothing to them but an instrument of that purpose.

OCTAVIUS Don't be ungenerous, Jack. They take the tenderest care of us.

TANNER Yes, as a soldier takes care of his rifle or a musician of his violin But do they allow us any purpose or freedom of our own? Will they lend us to one another? Can the strongest man escape from them when once he is appropriated? They tremble when we are in danger, and weep when we die, but the tears are not for us, but for a father wasted, a son's breeding thrown away They accuse us of treating them as a mere means to our pleasure, but how can so feeble and transient a folly as a man's selfish pleasure enslave a woman as the whole purpose of Nature embodied in a woman can enslave a man?

OCTAVIUS What matter, if the slavery makes us happy?

TANNER No matter at all if you have no purpose of your own, and are, like most men, a mere breadwinner But you, Tavy, are an artist that is, you have a purpose as absorbing and as unscrupulous as a woman's purpose

OCTAVIUS Not unscrupulous

TANNER Quite unscrupulous The true artist will let his wife starve, his children go barefoot, his mother drudge for his living at seventy, sooner than work at anything but his art To women he is half vivisector, half vampire He gets into intimate relations with them to study them, to strip the mask of convention from them, to surprise their inmost secrets, knowing that they have the power to rouse his deepest creative energies, to rescue him from his cold reason, to make him see visions and dream dreams, to inspire him, as he calls it He persuades women that they may do this for their own purpose whilst he really means them to do it for his He steals the mother's milk and blackens it to make printer's ink to scoff at her and glorify ideal women with He pretends to spare her the pangs of child-bearing so that he may have for himself the tenderness and fostering that belong of right to her children Since marriage began, the great artist has been known as a bad husband But he is worse he is a child-robber, a blood-sucker, a hypocrite, and a cheat Perish the race and wither a thousand women if only the sacrifice of them enable him to act Hamlet better, to paint a finer picture, to write a deeper poem, a greater play, a profounder philosophy! For mark you, Tavy, the artist's work is to shew us ourselves as we really are Our minds are nothing but this knowledge of ourselves, and he who adds a jot to such knowledge creates new mind as surely as any woman creates new men In the rage of that creation he is as ruthless as the woman, as dangerous to her as she to him, and as horribly fascinating Of all human struggles there is none so treacherous and remorseless as the struggle between the artist man and the mother woman Which shall use up the other? that is the issue between them And it is all the deadlier because, in your romanticist cant, they love one another

OCTAVIUS Even if it were so—and I don't admit it for a moment—it is out of the deadliest struggles that we get the noblest characters

TANNER Remember that the next time you meet a grizzly bear or a Bengal tiger, Tavy

OCTAVIUS I meant where there is love, Jack

TANNER Oh, the tiger will love you There is no love sincerer than the love of food I think Ann loves you that way she patted your cheek as if it were a nicely underdone chop

OCTAVIUS You know, Jack, I should have to run away from you if I did not make it a fixed rule not to mind anything you say You come out with perfectly revolting things sometimes

Ramsden returns, followed by Ann They come in quickly, with their former leisurely air of decorous grief changed to one of genuine concern, and, on Ramsden's part, of worry He comes between the two men, intending to address Octavius, but pulls himself up abruptly as he sees Tanner

RAMSDEN I hardly expected to find you still here, Mr Tanner

TANNER Am I in the way? Good morning, fellow guardian [he goes towards the door]

ANN Stop, Jack Granny he must know, sooner or later

RAMSDEN Octavius I have a very serious piece of news for you It is of the most private and delicate nature—of the most painful nature too, I am sorry to say Do you wish Mr Tanner to be present whilst I explain?

OCTAVIUS [turning pale] I have no secrets from Jack

RAMSDEN Before you decide that finally, let me say that the news concerns your sister, and that it is terrible news

OCTAVIUS Violet! What has happened? Is she—dead?

RAMSDEN I am not sure that it is not even worse than that OCTAVIUS Is she badly hurt? Has there been an accident?

RAMSDEN No nothing of that sort

TANNER Ann will you have the common humanity to tell us what the matter is?

ANN [half whispering] I cant Violet has done something dreadful We shall have to get her away somewhere [She flutters to the writing table and sits in Ramsden's chair, leaving the three men to fight it out between them]

OCTAVIUS [enlightened] Is that what you meant, Mr Ramsden?

RAMSDEN Yes [Octavius sinks upon a chair, crushed] I am afraid there is no doubt that Violet did not really go to Eastbourne three weeks ago when we thought she was with the Parry Whitefields And she called on a strange doctor yesterday with a wedding ring on her finger Mrs Parry Whitefield met her there by chance, and so the whole thing came out

OCTAVIUS [rising with his fists clenched] Who is the scoundrel?

ANN She wont tell us

OCTAVIUS [collapsing into the chair again] What a frightful thing!

TANNER [with angry sarcasm] Dreadful Appalling Worse than death, as Ramsden says [He comes to Octavius] What would you not give, Tavy, to turn it into a railway accident, with all her bones broken, or something equally respectable and deserving of sympathy?

OCTAVIUS Dont be brutal, Jack

TANNER Brutal! Good Heavens, man, what are you crying for? Here is a woman whom we all supposed to be making bad water color sketches, practising Grieg and Brahms, gadding about to concerts and parties, wasting her life and her money We suddenly learn that she has turned from these sillinesses to the fulfilment of her highest purpose and greatest function—to increase, multiply, and replenish the earth And instead of admiring her courage and rejoicing in her instinct, instead of crowning the completed womanhood and raising the triumphal strain of "Unto us a child is born unto us a son is given", here you are—you who have been as merry as grigs in your mourning for the dead—all pulling long faces and looking as ashamed and disgraced as if the girl had committed the vilest of crimes

RAMSDEN [roaring with rage] I will not have these abominations uttered in my house [he smites the writing-table with his fist]

TANNER Look here if you insult me again I'll take you at your word and leave your house Ann where is Violet now?

ANN Why? Are you going to her?

TANNER Of course I am going to her She wants help, she wants money, she wants respect and congratulation, she wants every chance for her child She does not seem likely to get it from you she shall from me Where is she?

ANN Dont be so headstrong, Jack She's upstairs

TANNER What! Under Ramsden's sacred roof! Go and do your miserable duty, Ramsden Hunt her out into the street Cleanse your threshold from her contamination Vindicate the purity of your English home I'll go for a cab

ANN [alarmed] Oh, Granny, you mustnt do that

OCTAVIUS [broken-heartedly, rising] I'll take her away, Mr Ramsden She had no right to come to your house

RAMSDEN [indignantly] But I am only too anxious to help her [Turning on Tanner] How dare you, sir, impute such monstrous intentions to me? I protest against it I am ready to put down my last penny to save her from being driven to run to you for protection

TANNER [subsiding] It's all right, then He's not going to act up to his principles It's agreed that we all stand by Violet

OCTAVIUS But who is the man? He can make reparation by marrying her, and he shall, or he shall answer for it to me

RAMSDEN He shall, Octavius There you speak like a man

TANNER Then you dont think him a scoundrel, after all?

OCTAVIUS Not a scoundrel! He is a heartless scoundrel

RAMSDEN A damned scoundrel I beg your pardon, Annie, but I can say no less

TANNER So we are to marry your sister to a damned scoundrel by way of reforming her character! On my soul, I think you are all mad

ANN Dont be absurd, Jack Of course you are quite right, Tavy, but we dont know who he is Violet wont tell us

TANNER What on earth does it matter who he is? He's done his part, and Violet must do the rest

RAMSDEN [beside himself] Stuff! lunacy! There is a rascal in our midst, a libertine, a villain worse than a murderer, and we are not to learn who he is! In our ignorance we are to shake him by the hand, to introduce him into our homes, to trust our daughters with him, to—to—

ANN [coaxingly] There, Granny, don't talk so loud. It's most shocking we must all admit that, but if Violet won't tell us, what can we do? Nothing. Simply nothing.

RAMSDEN Hmph! I'm not so sure of that. If any man has paid Violet any special attention, we can easily find that out. If there is any man of notoriously loose principles among us—

TANNER Ahem!

RAMSDEN [raising his voice] Yes, sir, I repeat, if there is any man of notoriously loose principles among us—

TANNER Or any man notoriously lacking in self-control

RAMSDEN [aghast] Do you dare to suggest that I am capable of such an act?

TANNER My dear Ramsden, this is an act of which every man is capable. That is what comes of getting at cross purposes with Nature. The suspicion you have just flung at me clings to us all. It's a sort of mud that sticks to the judge's ermine or the cardinal's robe as fast as to the rags of the tramp. Come, Tavy! don't look so bewildered. It might have been me. It might have been Ramsden, just as it might have been anybody. If it had, what could we do but he and protest—as Ramsden is going to protest.

RAMSDEN [choking] I—I—I—

TANNER Guilt itself could not stammer more confusedly. And yet you know perfectly well he's innocent, Tavy.

RAMSDEN [exhausted] I am glad you admit that, sir. I admit, myself, that there is an element of truth in what you say, grossly as you may distort it to gratify your malicious humor. I hope, Octavius, no suspicion of me is possible in your mind.

OCTAVIUS Of you! No, not for a moment.

TANNER [dryly] I think he suspects me just a little.

OCTAVIUS Jack you couldn't—you wouldn't—

TANNER Why not?

OCTAVIUS [appalled] Why not!

TANNER Oh, well, I'll tell you why not.

First, you would feel bound to quarrel with me. Second, Violet doesn't like me. Third, if I had the honor of being the father of Violet's child, I should boast of it instead of denying it. So be easy. Our friendship is not in danger.

OCTAVIUS I should have put away the suspicion with horror if only you would think and feel naturally about it. I beg your pardon.

TANNER My pardon! nonsense! And now let's sit down and have a family council. [He sits down. The rest follow his example, more or less under protest.] Violet is going to do the State a service, consequently she must be packed abroad like a criminal until it's over. What's happening upstairs?

ANN Violet is in the housekeeper's room—by herself, of course.

TANNER Why not in the drawing room?

ANN Don't be absurd, Jack. Miss Ramsden is in the drawing room with my mother, considering what to do.

TANNER Oh! the housekeeper's room is the penitentiary, I suppose, and the prisoner is waiting to be brought before her judges. The old cats!

ANN Oh, Jack!

RAMSDEN You are at present a guest beneath the roof of one of the old cats, sir. My sister is the mistress of this house.

TANNER She would put me in the housekeeper's room, too, if she dared, Ramsden. However, I withdraw. Cats would have more sense. Ann as your guardian, I order you to go to Violet at once and be particularly kind to her.

ANN I have seen her, Jack. And I am sorry to say I am afraid she is going to be rather obstinate about going abroad. I think Tavy ought to speak to her about it.

OCTAVIUS How can I speak to her about such a thing [he breaks down]?

ANN Don't break down, Ricky. Try to bear it for all our sakes.

RAMSDEN Life is not all plays and poems, Octavius. Come! face it like a man.

TANNER [chafing again] Poor dear brother! Poor dear friends of the family! Poor dear Tabbies and Grimalkins! Poor dear everybody except the woman who is going to risk her life to create another life! Tavy, don't you be a selfish ass. Away with you and talk to Violet, and bring her down here if she cares to come. [Octavius rises] Tell her we'll stand by her.

RAMSDEN [rising] No, sir—

TANNER [rising also and interrupting him] Oh, we understand it's against your conscience, but still you'll do it

OCTAVIUS I assure you all, on my word, I never meant to be selfish. It's so hard to know what to do when one wishes earnestly to do right

TANNER My dear Tavy your pious English habit of regarding the world as a moral gymnasium built expressly to strengthen your character in, occasionally leads you to think about your own confounded principles when you should be thinking about other people's necessities. The need of the present hour is a happy mother and a healthy baby. Bend your energies on that, and you will see your way clearly enough

Octavius, much perplexed goes out

RAMSDEN [facing Tanner impressively] And Morality, sir? What is to become of that?

TANNER Meaning a weeping Magdalen and an innocent child branded with her shame. Not in our circle, thank you. Morality can go to its father the devil

RAMSDEN I thought so, sir. Morality sent to the devil to please our libertines, male and female. That is to be the future of England, is it?

TANNER Oh, England will survive your disapproval. Meanwhile, I understand that you agree with me as to the practical course we are to take?

RAMSDEN Not in your spirit, sir. Not for your reasons

TANNER You can explain that if anybody calls you to account, here or hereafter [He turns away, and plants himself in front of Mr Herbert Spencer at whom he stares gloomily]

ANN [rising and coming to Ramsden] Granny hadn't you better go up to the drawing room and tell them what we intend to do?

RAMSDEN [looking pointedly at Tanner] I hardly like to leave you alone with this gentleman. Will you not come with me?

ANN Miss Ramsden would not like to speak about it before me, Granny. I ought not to be present

RAMSDEN You are right. I should have thought of that. You are a good girl, Annie

He pats her on the shoulder. She looks up at him with beaming eyes, and he goes out, much moved. Having disposed of him, she looks at Tanner. His back being turned to her, she gives a moment's attention to her personal appearance, then softly goes to him and speaks almost into his ear

ANN Jack [he turns with a start] are you glad that you are my guardian? You don't mind being made responsible for me, I hope

TANNER The latest addition to your collection of scapegoats, eh?

ANN Oh, that stupid old joke of yours about me! Do please drop it. Why do you say things that you know must pain me? I do my best to please you, Jack. I suppose I may tell you so now that you are my guardian. You will make me so unhappy if you refuse to be friends with me

TANNER [studying her as gloomily as he studied the bust] You need not go begging for my regard. How unreal our moral judgments are! You seem to me to have absolutely no conscience—only hypocrisy, and you can't see the difference—yet there is a sort of fascination about you. I always attend to you, somehow. I should miss you if I lost you

ANN [tranquilly slipping her arm into his and walking about with him] But isn't that only natural, Jack? We have known each other since we were children. Do you remember—

TANNER [abruptly breaking loose] Stop! I remember everything

ANN Oh, I daresay we were often very silly, but—

TANNER I won't have it, Ann. I am no more that schoolboy now than I am the dotard of ninety. I shall grow into it if I live long enough. It is over. Let me forget it

ANN Wasn't it a happy time? [She attempts to take his arm again]

TANNER Sit down and behave yourself [He makes her sit down in the chair next the writing table] No doubt it was a happy time for you. You were a good girl and never compromised yourself. And yet the wickedest child that ever was slapped could hardly have had a better time. I can understand the success with which you bullied the other girls: your virtue imposed on them. But tell me this: did you ever know a good boy?

ANN Of course. All boys are foolish sometimes, but Tavy was always a really good boy

TANNER [struck by this] Yes, you're right. For some reason you never tempted Tavy

ANN Tempted! Jack!

TANNER Yes, my dear Lady Mephistopheles tempted. You were insatiably curious as to what a boy might be capable of, and diabolically clever at getting through his guard and surprising his inmost secrets

ANN What nonsense! All because you used to tell me long stories of the wicked things you had done—silly boy's tricks! And you call such things inmost secrets! Boys' secrets are just like men's, and you know what they are!

TANNER [obstinately] No I don't. What are they, pray?

ANN Why, the things they tell everybody, of course

TANNER Now I swear I told you things I told no one else. You lured me into a compact by which we were to have no secrets from one another. We were to tell one another everything. I didn't notice that you never told me anything.

ANN You didn't want to talk about me, Jack. You wanted to talk about yourself.

TANNER Ah, true, horribly true. But what a devil of a child you must have been to know that weakness and to play on it for the satisfaction of your own curiosity! I wanted to brag to you, to make myself interesting. And I found myself doing all sorts of mischievous things simply to have something to tell you about. I fought with boys I didn't hate, I lied about things I might just as well have told the truth about, I stole things I didn't want, I kissed little girls I didn't care for. It was all bravado, passionless and therefore unreal.

ANN I never told of you, Jack.

TANNER No, but if you had wanted to stop me you would have told of me. You wanted me to go on.

ANN [flashing out] Oh, that's not true. It's not true, Jack. I never wanted you to do those dull, disappointing, brutal, stupid, vulgar things. I always hoped that it would be something really heroic at last. [Recovering herself] Excuse me, Jack, but the things you did were never a bit like the things I wanted you to do. They often gave me great uneasiness, but I could not tell of you and get you into trouble. And you were only a boy. I knew you would grow out of them. Perhaps I was wrong.

TANNER [sardonically] Do not give way to remorse, Ann. At least nineteen twentieths of the exploits I confessed to you were pure lies. I soon noticed that you didn't like the true stories.

ANN Of course I knew that some of the things couldn't have happened. But—

TANNER You are going to remind me that some of the most disgraceful ones did.

ANN [fondly, to his great terror] I don't want to remind you of anything. But I knew the people they happened to, and heard about them.

TANNER Yes, but even the true stories were touched up for telling. A sensitive boy's humiliations may be very good fun for ordinary thickskinned grown-ups, but to the boy himself they are so acute, so ignominious, that he cannot confess them—cannot but deny them passionately. However, perhaps it was as well for me that I romanced a bit, for, on the one occasion when I told you the truth, you threatened to tell of me.

ANN Oh, never. Never once.

TANNER Yes, you did. Do you remember a dark-eyed girl named Rachel Rosetree? [Ann's brows contract for an instant involuntarily] I got up a love affair with her, and we met one night in the garden and walked about very uncomfortably with our arms round one another, and kissed at parting, and were most conscientiously romantic. If that love affair had gone on, it would have bored me to death, but it didn't go on, for the next thing that happened was that Rachel cut me because she found out that I had told you. How did she find it out? From you. You went to her and held the guilty secret over her head, leading her a life of abject terror and humiliation by threatening to tell on her.

ANN And a very good thing for her, too. It was my duty to stop her misconduct, and she is thankful to me for it now.

TANNER Is she?

ANN She ought to be, at all events.

TANNER It was not your duty to stop my misconduct, I suppose.

ANN I did stop it by stopping her.

TANNER Are you sure of that? You stopped my telling you about my adventures, but how do you know that you stopped the adventures?

ANN Do you mean to say that you went on in the same way with other girls?

TANNER No. I had enough of that sort of romantic tomfoolery with Rachel.

ANN [unconvinced] Then why did you break off our confidences and become quite strange to me?

TANNER [enigmatically] It happened just then that I got something that I wanted to keep all to myself instead of sharing it with

you

ANN I am sure I shouldnt have asked for any of it if you had grudged it

TANNER It wasnt a box of sweets, Ann It was something youd never have let me call my own

ANN [incredulously] What?

TANNER My soul

ANN Oh, do be sensible Jack. You know youre talking nonsense

TANNER The most solemn earnest Ann You didnt notice at that time that you were getting a soul too But you were It was not for nothing that you suddenly found you had a moral duty to chastise and reform Rachel Up to that time you had traded pretty extensively in being a good child but you had never set up a sense of duty to others Well, I set one up too Up to that time I had played the boy buccaneer with no more conscience than a fox in a poultry farm But now I began to have scruples, to feel obligations, to find that veracity and honor were no longer goody-goody expressions in the mouths of grown-up people, but compelling principle in myself

ANN [quietly] Yes, I suppose youre right You were beginning to be a man, and I to be a woman

TANNER Are you sure it was not that we were beginning to be something more? What does the beginning of manhood and womanhood mean in most people's mouths? You know it means the beginning of love But love began long before that for me Love played its part in the earliest dreams and follies and romances I can remember—may I say the earliest follies and romances we can remember?—though we did not understand it at the time No the change that came to me was the birth in me of moral passion, and I declare that according to my experience moral passion is the only real passion

ANN All passions ought to be moral, Jack

TANNER Ought! Do you think that anything is strong enough to impose oughts on a passion except a stronger passion still?

ANN Our moral sense controls passion, Jack Dont be stupid

TANNER Our moral sense! And is that not a passion? Is the devil to have all the passions as well as all the good tunes? If it were not a passion—if it were not the mightiest of the passions, all the other passions would sweep it away like a leaf before a hurricane It is the birth of that passion that turns a child into a man

ANN There are other passions Jack. Very strong ones

TANNER All the other passions were in me before, but they were idle and aimless—mere childish greedinesses and cruelties, curiosities and fancies, habits and superstitions, grotesque and ridiculous to the mature intelligence When they suddenly began to shine like newly lit flames it was by no light of their own, but by the radiance of the dawning moral passion That passion dignified them, gave them conscience and meaning, found them a mob of appetites and organized them into an army of purposes and principles My soul was born of that passion.

ANN I noticed that you got more sense You were a dreadfully destructive boy before that

TANNER Destructive! Stuff! I was only mischievous

ANN Oh, Jack, you were very destructive You ruined all the young fir trees by chopping off their leaders with a wooden sword You broke all the cucumber frames with your catapult. You set fire to the common the police arrested Tavy for it because he ran away when he couldnt stop you You—

TANNER Pooh! pooh! pooh! these were battles, bombardments stratagems to save our scalps from the red Indians You have no imagination, Ann I am ten times more destructive now than I was then The moral passion has taken my destructiveness in hand and directed it to moral ends I have become a reformer and like all reformers, an iconoclast. I no longer break cucumber frames and burn gorse bushes I shatter creeds and demolish idols

ANN [bored] I am afraid I am too feminine to see any sense in destruction Destruction can only destroy

TANNER Yes That is why it is so useful Construction cumbers the ground with institutions made by busybodies Destruction clears it and gives us breathing space and liberty

ANN It's no use, Jack No woman will agree with you there

TANNER. Thats because you confuse construction and destruction with creation and murder Theyre quite different I adore creation and abhor murder Yes I adore it in tree and flower in bird and beast even in you [A flush of interest and delight suddenly chases the growing perplexity and boredom from her face]

It was the creative instinct that led you to attach me to you by bonds that have left their mark on me to this day Yes, Ann the old childish compact between us was an unconscious love compact—

ANN Jack!

TANNER Oh, dont be alarmed—

ANN I am not alarmed

TANNER [whimsically] Then you ought to be where are your principles?

ANN Jack are you serious or are you not?

TANNER Do you mean about the moral passion?

ANN No, no the other one [Confused] Oh! you are so silly one never knows how to take you

TANNER You must take me quite seriously I am your guardian, and it is my duty to improve your mind

ANN The love compact is over, then, is it? I suppose you grew tired of me?

TANNER No, but the moral passion made our childish relations impossible A jealous sense of my new individuality arose in me—

ANN You hated to be treated as a boy any longer Poor Jack!

TANNER Yes, because to be treated as a boy was to be taken on the old footing I had become a new person, and those who knew the old person laughed at me The only man who behaved sensibly was my tailor he took my measure anew every time he saw me, whilst all the rest went on with their old measurements and expected them to fit me

ANN You became frightfully self-conscious

TANNER When you go to heaven, Ann, you will be frightfully conscious of your wings for the first year or so When you meet your relatives there, and they persist in treating you as if you were still a mortal, you will not be able to bear them You will try to get into a circle which has never known you except as an angel

ANN So it was only your vanity that made you run away from us after all?

TANNER Yes, only my vanity, as you call it

ANN You need not have kept away from me on that account

TANNER From you above all others You fought harder than anybody against my emancipation

ANN [earnestly] Oh, how wrong you are! I would have done anything for you

TANNER Anything except let me get loose from you Even then you had acquired by instinct that damnable woman's trick of heaping obligations on a man, of placing yourself so entirely and helplessly at his mercy that at last he dare not take a step without running to you for leave I know a poor wretch whose one desire in life is to run away from his wife She prevents him by threatening to throw herself in front of the engine of the train he leaves her in That is what all women do If we try to go where you do not want us to go there is no law to prevent us, but when we take the first step your breasts are under our foot as it descends your bodies are under our wheels as we start No woman shall ever enslave me in that way

ANN But, Jack, you cannot get through life without considering other people a little

TANNER Ay, but what other people? It is this consideration of other people—or rather this cowardly fear of them which we call consideration—that makes us the sentimental slaves we are To consider you, as you call it, is to substitute your will for my own How if it be a baser will than mine? Are women taught better than men or worse? Are mobs of voters taught better than statesmen or worse? Worse, of course, in both cases And then what sort of world are you going to get, with its public men considering its voting mobs, and its private men considering their wives? What does Church and State mean nowadays? The Woman and the Ratepayer

ANN [placidly] I am so glad you understand politics, Jack it will be most useful to you if you go into parliament [he collapses like a pricked bladder] But I am sorry you thought my influence a bad one

TANNER I dont say it was a bad one But bad or good, I didnt choose to be cut to your measure And I wont be cut to it

ANN Nobody wants you to, Jack I assure you—really on my word—I dont mind your queer opinions one little bit You know we have all been brought up to have advanced opinions Why do you persist in thinking me so narrow minded?

TANNER Thats the danger of it I know you dont mind, because youve found out that it doesnt matter The boa constrictor doesnt mind the opinions of a stag one little bit when once she has got her coils round it

ANN [rising in sudden enlightenment] O-o-o-o-oh! now I understand why you warned Tavy that I am a boa constrictor Granny told me [She laughs and throws her boa round his neck] Doesn't it feel nice and soft, Jack?

TANNER [in the toils] You scandalous woman, will you throw away even your hypocrisy?

ANN I am never hypocritical with you, Jack Are you angry? [She withdraws the boa and throws it on a chair] Perhaps I shouldn't have done that TANNER [contemptuously] Pooh, prudery! Why should you not, if it amuses you?

ANN [shyly] Well, because—because I suppose what you really meant by the boa constrictor was this [she puts her arms round his neck]

TANNER [staring at her] Magnificent audacity! [She laughs and pats his cheeks] Now just to think that if I mentioned this episode not a soul would believe me except the people who would cut me for telling, whilst if you accused me of it nobody would believe my denial!

ANN [taking her arms away with perfect dignity] You are incorrigible, Jack But you should not jest about our affection for one another Nobody could possibly misunderstand it You do not misunderstand it, I hope

TANNER My blood interprets for me, Ann Poor Ricky Ticky Tavy!

ANN [looking quickly at him as if this were a new light] Surely you are not so absurd as to be jealous of Tavy

TANNER Jealous! Why should I be? But I don't wonder at your grip of him I feel the coils tightening round my very self, though you are only playing with me

ANN Do you think I have designs on Tavy?

TANNER I know you have

ANN [earnestly] Take care, Jack You may make Tavy very unhappy if you mislead him about me

TANNER Never fear he will not escape you

ANN I wonder are you really a clever man!

TANNER Why this sudden misgiving on the subject?

ANN You seem to understand all the things I don't understand, but you are a perfect baby in the things I do understand

TANNER I understand how Tavy feels for you, Ann you may depend on that, at all events

ANN And you think you understand how I feel for Tavy, don't you?

TANNER I know only too well what is going to happen to poor Tavy

ANN I should laugh at you, Jack, if it were not for poor papa's death Mind! Tavy will be very unhappy

TANNER Yes, but he won't know it, poor devil He is a thousand times too good for you That's why he is going to make the mistake of his life about you

ANN I think men make more mistakes by being too clever than by being too good [she sits down, with a trace of contempt for the whole male sex in the elegant carriage of her shoulders]

TANNER Oh, I know you don't care very much about Tavy But there is always one who kisses and one who only allows the kiss Tavy will kiss, and you will only turn the cheek And you will throw him over if anybody better turns up

ANN [offended] You have no right to say such things, Jack They are not true, and not delicate If you and Tavy choose to be stupid about me, that is not my fault

TANNER [remorsefully] Forgive my brutalities, Ann They are levelled at this wicked world, not at you [She looks up at him, pleased and forgiving He becomes cautious at once] All the same, I wish Ramsden would come back I never feel safe with you there is a devilish charm—or no not a charm, a subtle interest [she laughs—Just so you know it, and you triumph in it Openly and shamelessly triumph in it!

ANN What a shocking flirt you are, Jack!

TANNER A flirt! I!!!

ANN Yes, a flirt You are always abusing and offending people, but you never really mean to let go your hold of them

TANNER I will ring the bell This conversation has already gone further than I intended

Ramsden and Octavius come back with Miss Ramsden, a hardheaded old maiden lady in a plain brown silk gown, with enough rings, chains, and brooches to shew that her plainness of dress is a matter of principle, not of poverty She comes into the room very determinedly the two men, perplexed and downcast, following her Ann rises and goes eagerly to meet her Tanner retreats to the wall between the busts and pretends to study the pictures Ramsden goes to his table as usual, and Octavius clings to the neighborhood of Tanner

MISS RAMSDEN [almost pushing Ann aside as she comes to Mrs Whitefield's chair and plants herself there resolutely] I wash my hands of the whole affair

OCTAVIUS [very wretched] I know you wish me to take Violet away, Miss Ramsden I will [He turns irresolutely to the door]

RAMSDEN No no—

MISS RAMSDEN What is the use of saying no, Roebuck? Octavius knows that I would not turn any truly contrite and repentant woman from your doors. But when a woman is not only wicked but intends to go on being wicked, she and I part company.

ANN Oh, Miss Ramsden, what do you mean? What has Violet said?

RAMSDEN Violet is certainly very obstinate. She wont leave London. I dont understand her.

MISS RAMSDEN I do. It's as plain as the nose on your face, Roebuck, that she wont go because she doesnt want to be separated from this man, whoever he is.

ANN Oh, surely, surely! Octavius did you speak to her?

OCTAVIUS She wont tell us anything. She wont make any arrangement until she has consulted somebody. It cant be any body else than the scoundrel who has betrayed her.

TANNER [to Octavius] Well, let her consult him. He will be glad enough to have her sent abroad. Where is the difficulty?

MISS RAMSDEN [taking the answer out of Octavius's mouth] The difficulty, Mr Jack, is that when I offered to help her I didnt offer to become her accomplice in her wickedness. She either pledges her word never to see that man again, or else she finds some new friends, and the sooner the better.

The parlormaid appears at the door. Ann hastily resumes her seat, and looks as unconcerned as possible. Octavius instinctively imitates her.

THE MAID The cab is at the door, maam.

MISS RAMSDEN What cab?

THE MAID For Miss Robinson.

MISS RAMSDEN Oh! [Recovering herself] All right [The maid withdraws]. She has sent for a cab.

TANNER I wanted to send for that cab half an hour ago.

MISS RAMSDEN I am glad she understands the position she has placed herself in.

RAMSDEN I dont like her going away in this fashion, Susan. We had better not do anything harsh.

OCTAVIUS No, thank you again and again, but Miss Ramsden is quite right. Violet cannot expect to stay.

ANN Hadnt you better go with her, Tavy?

OCTAVIUS She wont have me.

MISS RAMSDEN Of course she wont. She's going straight to that man.

TANNER As a natural result of her virtuous reception here.

RAMSDEN [much troubled] There, Susan! You hear! and theres some truth in it. I wish you could reconcile it with your principles to be a little patient with this poor girl. She's very young, and theres a time for everything.

MISS RAMSDEN Oh, she will get all the sympathy she wants from the men. I'm surprised at you, Roebuck.

TANNER So am I, Ramsden, most favorably.

Violet appears at the door. She is as impatient and self-possessed a young lady as one would desire to see among the best behaved of her sex. Her small head and tiny resolute mouth and chin, her haughty crispness of speech and trimness of carriage, the ruthless elegance of her equipment, which includes a very smart hat with a dead bird in it, mark a personality which is as formidable as it is exquisitely pretty. She is not a siren, like Ann: admiration comes to her without any compulsion or even interest on her part, besides, there is some fun in Ann, but in this woman none, perhaps no mercy either. If anything restrains her, it is intelligence and pride, not compassion. Her voice might be the voice of a schoolmistress addressing a class of girls who had disgraced themselves, as she proceeds with complete composure and some disgust to say what she has come to say.

VIOLET I have only looked in to tell Miss Ramsden that she will find her birthday present to me, the filagree bracelet, in the house-keeper's room.

TANNER Do come in, Violet, and talk to us sensibly.

VIOLET Thank you. I have had quite enough of the family conversation this morning. So has your mother, Ann. She has gone home crying. But at all events, I have found out what some of my pretended friends are worth. Goodbye.

TANNER No, no. One moment. I have something to say which I beg you to hear [She looks at him without the slightest curiosity, but waits, apparently as much to finish getting her glove on as to hear what he has to say]. I am altogether on your side in this matter. I congratulate you, with the sincerest respect, on having the courage to do what you have done.

You are entirely in the right, and the family is entirely in the wrong

Sensation Ann and Miss Ramsden rise and turn towards the two Violet, more surprised than any of the others, forgets her glove, and comes forward into the middle of the room, both puzzled and displeased Octavius alone does not move nor raise his head he is overwhelmed with shame

ANN [pleading to Tanner to be sensible] Jack!

MISS RAMSDEN [outraged] Well, I must say!

VIOLET [sharply to Tanner] Who told you?

TANNER Why, Ramsden and Tavy of course Why should they not?

VIOLET But they dont know

TANNER Dont know what?

VIOLET They dont know that I am in the right, I mean

TANNER Oh, they know it in their hearts, though they think themselves bound to blame you by their silly superstitions about morality and propriety and so forth But I know, and the whole world really knows, though it dare not say so, that you were right to follow your instinct, that vitality and blavery are the greatest qualities a woman can have, and motherhood her solemn initiation into womanhood, and that the fact of your not being legally married matters not one scrap either to your own worth or to our real regard for you

VIOLET [flushing with indignation] Oh! You think me a wicked woman, like the rest You think I have not only been vile, but that I share your abominable opinions Miss Ramsden I have borne your hard words because I knew you would be sorry for them when you found out the truth But I wont bear such a horrible insult as to be complimented by Jack on being one of the wretches of whom he approves I have kept my marriage a secret for my husband's sake But now I claim my right as a married woman not to be insulted

OCTAVIUS [raising his head with inexpressible relief] You are married!

VIOLET Yes, and I think you might have guessed it What business had you all to take it for granted that I had no right to wear my wedding ring? Not one of you even asked me I cannot forget that

TANNER [in ruins] I am utterly crushed I meant well I apologize—abjectly apologize

VIOLET I hope you will be more careful in future about the things you say Of course

one does not take them seriously, but they are very disagreeable, and rather in bad taste, I think

TANNER [bowing to the storm] I have no defence I shall know better in future than to take any woman's part We have all disgraced ourselves in your eyes, I am afraid, except Ann She befriended you For Ann's sake, forgive us

VIOLET Yes Ann has been kind, but then Ann knew

TANNER [with a desperate gesture] Oh!!! Unfathomable deceit! Double crossed!

MISS RAMSDEN [stiffly] And who, pray, is the gentleman who does not acknowledge his wife?

VIOLET [promptly] That is my business, Miss Ramsden, and not yours I have my reasons for keeping my marriage a secret for the present

RAMSDEN All I can say is that we are extremely sorry, Violet I am shocked to think of how we have treated you

OCTAVIUS [awkwardly] I beg your pardon, Violet I can say no more

MISS RAMSDEN [still loth to surrender] Of course what you say puts a very different complexion on the matter All the same, I owe it to myself—

VIOLET [cutting her short] You owe me an apology, Miss Ramsden thats what you owe both to yourself and to me If you were a married woman you would not like sitting in the housekeeper's room and being treated like a naughty child by young girls and old ladies without any serious duties and responsibilities

TANNER Dont hit us when we're down, Violet We seem to have made fools of ourselves, but really it was you who made fools of us

VIOLET It was no business of yours, Jack, in any case

TANNER No business of mine! Why, Ramsden as good as accused me of being the unknown gentleman

Ramsden makes a frantic demonstration, but Violet's cool keen anger extinguishes it

VIOLET You! Oh, how infamous! how abominable! how disgracefully you have all been talking about me! If my husband knew it he would never let me speak to any of you again [To Ramsden] I think you might have spared me that, at least

RAMSDEN But I assure you I never—at least it is a monstrous perversion of something I said that—

MISS RAMSDEN You neednt apologize, Roebuck. She brought it all on herself. It is for her to apologize for having deceived us.

VIOLET I can make allowances for you, Miss Ramsden, you cannot understand how I feel on this subject, though I should have expected rather better taste from people of greater experience. However, I quite feel that you have placed yourselves in a very painful position, and the most truly considerate thing for me to do is to go at once. Good morning.

She goes, leaving them staring.

MISS RAMSDEN Well, I must say!

RAMSDEN [plaintively] I dont think she is quite far to us.

TANNER You must cower before the wedding ring like the rest of us, Ramsden. The cup of our ignominy is full.

ACT II

On the carriage drive in the park of a country house near Richmond an open touring car has broken down. It stands in front of a clump of trees round which the drive sweeps to the house, which is partly visible through them. Indeed Tanner, standing in the drive with his back to us, could get an unobstructed view of the west corner of the house on his left. Here he not far too much interested in a pair of supine legs in dungaree overalls which protrude from beneath the machine. He is watching them intently with bent back and hands supported on his knees. His leathern overcoat and peaked cap proclaim him one of the dismounted passengers.

THE LEGS Aha! I got him.

TANNER All right now?

THE LEGS Aw rawt nah.

Tanner stoops and takes the legs by the ankles, drawing their owner forth like a wheelbarrow, walking on his hands, with a hammer in his mouth. He is a young man in a neat suit of blue serge, clean shaven, dark eyed, square fingered, with short well brushed black hair and rather irregular sceptically turned eyebrows. When he is manipulating the car his movements are swift and sudden, yet attentive and deliberate. With Tanner and Tanner's friends his manner is not in the least deferential, but cool and reticent, keeping them quite effectually at a distance whilst giving them no excuse for complaining of him. Nevertheless he has a vigilant eye on them always, and that, too, rather cynically, like a man who knows the world well from its seamy side. He speaks slowly and with a touch of sarcasm, and as he does not at all affect the gentleman in his speech, it may be inferred that his smart appearance is a mark of respect to himself and his own class, not to that which employs him.

He now gets into the car to stow away his tools and divest himself of his overalls. Tanner takes off his leathern overcoat and pitches it into the car with a sigh of relief, glad to be rid of it. The chauffeur, noting this, tosses his head contemptuously, and surveys his employer sardonically.

THE CHAUFFEUR Had enough of it, eh?

TANNER I may as well walk to the house and stretch my legs and calm my nerves a little [Looking at his watch] I suppose you know that we have come from Hyde Park Corner to Richmond in twenty-one minutes.

THE CHAUFFEUR I'd ha done it under fifteen if I'd had a clear road all the way.

TANNER Why do you do it? Is it for love of sport or for the fun of terrifying your unfortunate employer?

THE CHAUFFEUR What are you afraid of?

TANNER The police, and breaking my neck.

THE CHAUFFEUR Well, if you like easy going, you can take a bus, you know. It's cheaper. You pay me to save your time and give you the value of what you paid for the car [He sits down calmly].

TANNER I am the slave of that car and of you too. I dream of the accursed thing at night.

THE CHAUFFEUR You'll get over that all right. If you're going up to the house, may I ask how long you're going to stay? Because if you mean to put in the whole morning in there talking to the ladies, I'll put the car in the garage and make myself agreeable with a view to lunching here. If not, I'll keep the car on the go about here till you come.

TANNER Better wait here. We shant be long. There's a young American gentleman, a Mr Malone, who is driving Mr Robinson down in his new American steam car.

THE CHAUFFEUR [springing up and coming hastily out of the car to Tanner] American steam car! Wot! racin us dahn from London!

TANNER Perhaps they're here already.

THE CHAUFFEUR If I'd known it! [With deep reproach] Why didnt you tell me, Mr Tanner?

TANNER Because I've been told that this car is capable of 84 miles an hour, and I already know what you are capable of when there is a rival car on the road No, Henry there are things it is not good for you to know, and this was one of them However, cheer up we are going to have a day after your own heart The American is to take Mr Robinson and his sister and Miss Whitefield We are to take Miss Rhoda

THE CHAUFFEUR [consoled, and musing on another matter] That's Miss Whitefield's sister, isn't it?

TANNER Yes

THE CHAUFFEUR And Miss Whitefield herself is going in the other car? Not with you?

TANNER Why the devil should she come with me? Mr Robinson will be in the other car [The Chauffeur looks at Tanner with cool incredulity, and turns to the car, whistling a popular air softly to himself Tanner, a little annoyed, is about to pursue the subject when he hears the footsteps of Octavius on the gravel Octavius is coming from the house, dressed for motoring, but without his overcoat] We've lost the race, thank Heaven here's Mr Robinson Well, Tavy, is the steam car a success?

OCTAVIUS I think so We came from Hyde Park Corner here in seventeen minutes [The Chauffeur, furious, kicks the car with a groan of vexation] How long were you?

TANNER Oh, about three quarters of an hour or so

THE CHAUFFEUR [remonstrating] Now, now, Mr Tanner, come now! We could have done it easy under fifteen

TANNER By the way, let me introduce you Mr Octavius Robinson Mr Enry Straker

STRAKER Pleased to meet you, sir Mr Tanner is gittin at you with is Enry Straker, you know You call it Henery But I don't mind, bless you!

TANNER You think it's simply bad taste in me to chaff him, Tavy But you're wrong This man takes more trouble to drop his arched than ever his father did to pick them up It's a mark of caste to him I have never met anybody more swollen with the pride of class than Enry is

STRAKER Easy, easy! A little moderation, Mr Tanner

TANNER A little moderation, Tavy, you observe. You would tell me to draw it mild But this chap has been educated Whats more, he knows that we haven't What was that Board School of yours Straker?

STRAKER Sherbrooke Road

TANNER Sherbrooke Road! Would any of us say Rugby! Harrow! Eton! in that tone of intellectual snobbery? Sherbrooke Road is a place where boys learn something Eton is a boy farm where we are sent because we are nuisances at home, and because in after life, whenever a Duke is mentioned, we can claim him as an old school-fellow

STRAKER You don't know nothing about it, Mr Tanner It's not the Board School that does it it's the Polytechnic TANNER His university, Octavius Not Oxford, Cambridge, Durham, Dublin, or Glasgow Not even those Nonconformist holes in Wales No, Tavy Regent Street! Chelsea! the Borough!—I don't know half their confounded names these are his universities, not mere shops for selling class limitations like ours You despise Oxford, Enry, don't you?

STRAKER No, I don't Very nice sort of place, Oxford, I should think, for people that like that sort of place They teach you to be a gentleman there In the Polytechnic they teach you to be an engineer or such like See?

TANNER Sarcasm, Tavy, sarcasm! Oh, if you could only see into Enry's soul, the depth of his contempt for a gentleman, the arrogance of his pride in being an engineer, would appal you He positively likes the car to break down because it brings out my gentlemanly helplessness and his workman-like skill and resource STRAKER Never you mind him, Mr Robinson He likes to talk We know him, don't we?

OCTAVIUS [earnestly] But there's a great truth at the bottom of what he says I believe most intensely in the dignity of labor

STRAKER [unimpressed] That's because you never done any, Mr Robinson My business is to do away with labor You'll get more out of me and a machine than you will out of twenty laborers, and not so much to drink either

TANNER For Heaven's sake, Tavy, don't start him on political economy He knows all about it, and we don't You're only a poetic Socialist, Tavy he's a scientific one

STRAKER [unperturbed] Yes Well, this conversation is very improving, but I've got to look after the car, and you two want to talk about your ladies I know [He pretends to busy himself about the car, but presently saunters off to indulge in a cigarette]

TANNER That's a very momentous social phenomenon

OCTAVIUS What is?

TANNER Straker is Here have we literary and cultured persons been for years setting up a cry of the New Woman whenever some unusually old fashioned female came along, and never noticing the advent of the New Man Straker's the New Man

OCTAVIUS I see nothing new about him, except your way of chaffing him But I don't want to talk about him just now I want to speak to you about Ann

TANNER Straker knew even that He learnt it at the Polytechnic, probably Well, what about Ann? Have you proposed to her?

OCTAVIUS [self-reproachfully] I was brute enough to do so last night

TANNER Brute enough! What do you mean?

OCTAVIUS [dithyrambically] Jack we men are all coarse we never understand how exquisite a woman's sensibilities are How could I have done such a thing!

TANNER Done what, you maudlin idiot?

OCTAVIUS Yes, I am an idiot Jack if you had heard her voice! if you had seen her tears! I have lain awake all night thinking of them If she had reproached me, I could have borne it better

TANNER Tears! that's dangerous What did she say?

OCTAVIUS She asked me how she could think of anything now but her dear father She stifled a sob— [he breaks down]

TANNER [patting him on the back] Bear it like a man, Tavy, even if you feel it like an ass It's the old game she's not tired of playing with you yet

OCTAVIUS [impatiently] Oh, don't be a fool, Jack Do you suppose this eternal shallow cynicism of yours has any real bearing on a nature like hers?

TANNER Hm! Did she say anything else?

OCTAVIUS Yes, and that is why I expose myself and her to your ridicule by telling you what passed

TANNER [remorsefully] No, dear Tavy, not ridicule, on my honor! However, no matter Go on

OCTAVIUS Her sense of duty is so devout, so perfect, so—

TANNER Yes I know Go on

OCTAVIUS You see, under this new arrangement, you and Ramsden are her guardians, and she considers that all her duty to her father is now transferred to you She said she thought I ought to have spoken to you both in the first instance Of course she is right, but somehow it seems rather absurd that I am to come to you and formally ask to be received as a suitor for your ward's hand

TANNER I am glad that love has not totally extinguished your sense of humor, Tavy

OCTAVIUS That answer won't satisfy her

TANNER My official answer is, obviously, Bless you, my children may you be happy!

OCTAVIUS I wish you would stop playing the fool about this If it is not serious to you, it is to me, and to her

TANNER You know very well that she is as free to choose as you are

OCTAVIUS She does not think so

TANNER Oh, doesn't she! just! However, say what you want me to do?

OCTAVIUS I want you to tell her sincerely and earnestly what you think about me I want you to tell her that you can trust her to me—that is, if you feel you can TANNER I have no doubt that I can trust her to you What worries me is the idea of trusting you to her Have you read Maeterlinck's book about the bee?

OCTAVIUS [keeping his temper with difficulty] I am not discussing literature at present

TANNER Be just a little patient with me I am not discussing literature the book about the bee is natural history It's an awful lesson to mankind You think that you are Ann's suitor, that you are the pursuer and she the pursued, that it is your part to woo, to persuade, to prevail, to overcome Fool it is you who are the pursued, the marked down quarry, the destined prey You need not sit looking longingly at the bait through the wires of the trap the door is open, and will remain so until it shuts behind you for ever

OCTAVIUS I wish I could believe that, vilely as you put it

TANNER Why, man, what other work has she in life but to get a husband? It is a woman's business to get married as soon as possible, and a man's to keep unmarried as long as he can You have your poems and your tragedies to work at Ann has nothing

OCTAVIUS I cannot write without inspiration And nobody can give me that except Ann

TANNER Well, hadn't you better get it from her at a safe distance? Petrarch didn't see half as much of Laura, nor Dante of Beatrice, as you see of Ann now, and yet they wrote first-rate poetry—at least so I'm told. They never exposed their idolatry to the test of domestic familiarity, and it lasted them to their graves. Marry Ann, and at the end of a week you'll find no more inspiration in her than in a plate of muffins.

OCTAVIUS You think I shall tire of her!

TANNER Not at all. You don't get tired of muffins. But you don't find inspiration in them, and you won't in her when she ceases to be a poet's dream and becomes a solid eleven stone wife. You'll be forced to dream about somebody else, and then there will be a row.

OCTAVIUS This sort of talk is no use, Jack. You don't understand. You have never been in love.

TANNER If I have never been out of it. Why, I am in love even with Ann. But I am neither the slave of love nor its dupe. Go to the bee, thou poet. Consider her ways and be wise. By Heaven, Tavy, if women could do without our work, and we ate their children's bread instead of making it, they would kill us as the spider kills her mate or as the bees kill the drone. And they would be right if we were good for nothing but love.

OCTAVIUS Ah, if we were only good enough for Love! There is nothing like Love: there is nothing else but Love. Without it the world would be a dream of sordid horror.

TANNER And this—this is the man who asks me to give him the hand of my ward! Tavy, I believe we were changed in our cradles, and that you are the real descendant of Don Juan.

OCTAVIUS I beg you not to say anything like that to Ann.

TANNER Don't be afraid. She has marked you for her own, and nothing will stop her now. You are doomed. [Straker comes back with a newspaper] Here comes the New Man, demoralizing himself with a halfpenny paper as usual.

STRAKER Now would you believe it, Mr Robinson, when we're out motoring we take in two papers: the Times for him, the Leader or the Echo for me. And do you think I ever see my paper? Not much. He grabs the Leader and leaves me to stodge myself with his Times.

OCTAVIUS Are there no winners in the Times?

TANNER Enry don't old with bettin, Tavy. Motor records are his weakness. What's the latest?

STRAKER Paris to Biskra at forty miles an hour average, not counting the Mediterranean.

TANNER How many killed?

STRAKER Two silly sheep. What does it matter? Sheep don't cost such a lot; they were glad to have the price without the trouble of selling 'em to the butcher. All the same, d'y'see, there'll be a clamor again presently, and then the French Government'll stop it, an' our chance'll be gone, see? That's what makes me fairly mad. Mr Tanner won't do a good run while he can.

TANNER Tavy, do you remember my uncle James?

OCTAVIUS Yes. Why?

TANNER Uncle James had a first-rate cook. He couldn't digest anything except what she cooked. Well, the poor man was shy and hated society. But his cook was proud of her skill, and wanted to serve up dinners to princes and ambassadors. To prevent her from leaving him, that poor old man had to give a big dinner twice a month, and suffer agonies of awkwardness. Now here am I, and here is this chap Enry Straker, the New Man. I loathe travelling, but I rather like Enry. He cares for nothing but tearing along in a leather coat and goggles, with two inches of dust all over him, at sixty miles an hour and the risk of his life and mine. Except, of course, when he is lying on his back in the mud under the machine trying to find out where it has given way. Well, if I don't give him a thousand mile run at least once a fortnight I shall lose him. He will give me the sack and go to some American millionaire, and I shall have to put up with a nice respectful groom-gardener-amateur, who will touch his hat and know his place. I am Enry's slave, just as Uncle James was his cook's slave.

STRAKER [exasperated] Garn! I wish I had a car that would go as fast as you can talk, Mr Tanner. What I say is that you lose money by a motor car unless you keep it working. Might as well have a pram and a nussmaid to wheel you in it as that car and me if you don't git the last inch out of us both.

TANNER [soothingly] All right, Henry, all right We'll go out for half an hour presently STRAKER [in disgust] Arf an ahr! [He returns to his machine, seats himself in it, and turns up a fresh page of his paper in search of more news]

OCTAVIUS Oh, that reminds me I have a note for you from Rhoda [He gives Tanner a note]

TANNER [opening it] I rather think Rhoda is heading for a row with Ann As a rule there is only one person an English girl hates more than she hates her eldest sister, and thats her mother But Rhoda positively prefers her mother to Ann She—[indignantly] Oh, I say!

OCTAVIUS Whats the matter?

TANNER Rhoda was to have come with me for a ride in the motor car She says Ann has forbidden her to go out with me

Straker suddenly begins whistling his favorite air with remarkable deliberation Surprised by this burst of larklike melody, and jarred by a sardonic note in its cheerfulness, they turn and look inquiringly at him But he is busy with his paper, and nothing comes of their movement

OCTAVIUS [recovering himself] Does she give any reason?

TANNER Reason! An insult is not a reason Ann forbids her to be alone with me on any occasion Says I am not a fit person for a young girl to be with What do you think of your paragon now?

OCTAVIUS You must remember that she has a very heavy responsibility now that her father is dead Mrs Whitefield is too weak to control Rhoda

TANNER [staring at him] In short, you agree with Ann

OCTAVIUS No, but I think I understand her You must admit that your views are hardly suited for the formation of a young girl's mind and character

TANNER I admit nothing of the sort I admit that the formation of a young lady's mind and character usually consists in telling her lies, but I object to the particular lie that I am in the habit of abusing the confidence of girls

OCTAVIUS Ann doesnt say that, Jack

TANNER What else does she mean?

STRAKER [catching sight of Ann coming from the house] Miss Whitefield, gentlemen [He dismounts and strolls away down the avenue with the air of a man who knows he is no longer wanted]

ANN [coming between Octavius and Tanner]

Good morning, Jack I have come to tell you that poor Rhoda has got one of her headaches and cannot go out with you today in the car It is a cruel disappointment to her, poor child!

TANNER What do you say now, Tavy?

OCTAVIUS Surely you cannot misunderstand, Jack Ann is shewing you the kindest consideration, even at the cost of deceiving you

ANN What do you mean?

TANNER Would you like to cure Rhoda's headache, Ann?

ANN Of course

TANNER Then tell her what you said just now, and add that you arrived about two minutes after I had received her letter and read it

ANN Rhoda has written to you!

TANNER With full particulars

OCTAVIUS Never mind him, Ann You were right—quite right Ann was only doing her duty, Jack, and you know it Doing it in the kindest way, too

ANN [going to Octavius] How kind you are, Tavy! How helpful! How well you understand!

Octavius beams

TANNER Ay tighten the coils You love her, Tavy, dont you?

OCTAVIUS She knows I do

ANN Hush For shame, Tavy!

TANNER Oh, I give you leave I am your guardian, and I commit you to Tavy's care for the next hour I am off for a turn in the car

ANN No, Jack I must speak to you about Rhoda Ricky will you go back to the house and entertain your American friend He's rather on Mamma's hands so early in the morning She wants to finish her housekeeping

OCTAVIUS I fly, dearest Ann [he kisses her hand]

ANN [tenderly] Ricky Ticky Tavy!

He looks at her with an eloquent blush, and runs off

TANNER [bluntly] Now look here, Ann This time youve landed yourself, and if Tavy were not in love with you past all salvation he'd have found out what an incorrigible liar you are

ANN You misunderstand, Jack I didn't dare tell Tavy the truth

TANNER No your daring is generally in the opposite direction What the devil do you mean by telling Rhoda that I am too vicious to associate with her? How can I ever have any human or decent relations with her again, now that you have poisoned her mind in that abominable way?

ANN I know you are incapable of behaving badly—

TANNER Then why did you lie to her?

ANN I had to

TANNER Had to!

ANN Mother made me

TANNER [his eye flashing] Ha! I might have known it The mother! Always the mother!

ANN It was that dreadful book of yours You know how timid mother is All timid women are conventional we must be conventional, Jack, or we are so cruelly, so vilely misunderstood Even you, who are a man, cannot say what you think without being misunderstood and vilified—yes I admit it I have had to vilify you Do you want to have poor Rhoda misunderstood and vilified in the same way? Would it be right for mother to let her expose herself to such treatment before she is old enough to judge for herself?

TANNER In short, the way to avoid misunderstanding is for everybody to lie and slander and insinuate and pretend as hard as they can That is what obeying your mother comes to

ANN I love my mother, Jack

TANNER [working himself up into a sociological rage] Is that any reason why you are not to call your soul your own? Oh, I protest against this vile abjection of youth to age! Look at fashionable society as you know it What does it pretend to be? An exquisite dance of nymphs What is it? A horrible procession of wretched girls, each in the claws of a cynical, cunning, avaricious, disillusioned, ignorantly experienced, foul-minded old woman whom she calls mother, and whose duty it is to corrupt her mind and sell her to the highest bidder Why do these unhappy slaves marry anybody, however old and vile, sooner than not marry at all? Because, marriage is their only means of escape from these decrepit fiends who hide their selfish ambitions, their jealous hatreds of the young rivals who have supplanted them, under the mask of maternal duty and family affection Such things are abominable the voice of nature proclaims for the daughter a father's care and for the son a mother's The law for father and son and mother and daughter is not the law of love it is the law of evolution, of emancipation, of final supersession of the old and worn-out by the young and capable I tell you, the first duty of manhood and womanhood is a Declaration of Independence the man who pleads his father's authority is no man the woman who pleads her mother's authority is unfit to bear citizens to a free people

ANN [watching him with quiet curiosity] I suppose you will go in seriously for politics some day, Jack TANNER [heavily let down] Eh? What? Wh—? [Collecting his scattered wits] What has that got to do with what I have been saying?

ANN You talk so well

TANNER Talk! Talk! It means nothing to you but talk Well, go back to your mother, and help her to poison Rhoda's imagination as she has poisoned yours It is the tame elephants who enjoy capturing the wild ones

ANN I am getting on Yesterday I was a boa constrictor today I am an elephant

TANNER Yes So pack your trunk and be gone I have no more to say to you

ANN You are so utterly unreasonable and impracticable What can I do?

TANNER Do! Break your chains Go your way according to your own conscience and not according to your mother's Get your mind clean and vigorous, and learn to enjoy a fast ride in a motor car instead of seeing nothing in it but an excuse for a detestable intrigue Come with me to Marseilles and across to Algiers and to Biskra, at sixty miles an hour Come right down to the Cape if you like That will be a Declaration of Independence with a vengeance You can write a book about it afterwards That will finish your mother and make a woman of you

ANN [thoughtfully] I don't think there would be any harm in that, Jack You are my guardian you stand in my father's place, by his own wish Nobody could say a word against our travelling together It would be delightful thank you a thousand times, Jack I'll come

TANNER [aghast] You'll come!!!

ANN Of course

TANNER But—[he stops, utterly appalled, then resumes feebly] No look here, Ann if there's no harm in it there's no point in doing it

ANN How absurd you are! You don't want to compromise me, do you?

TANNER Yes that's the whole sense of my proposal

ANN You are talking the greatest nonsense, and you know it You would never do anything to hurt me

TANNER Well, if you don't want to be compromised, don't come

ANN [with simple earnestness] Yes, I will come, Jack, since you wish it You are my guardian, and I think we ought to see more of one another and come to know one another better [Gratefully] It's very thoughtful and very kind of you, Jack, to offer me this lovely holiday, especially after what I said about Rhoda You really are good—much better than you think When do we start?

TANNER But—

The conversation is interrupted by the arrival of Mrs Whitefield from the house She is accompanied by the American gentleman, and followed by Ramsden and Octavius

Hector Malone is an Eastern American, but he is not at all ashamed of his nationality This makes English people of fashion think well of him, as of a young fellow who is manly enough to confess to an obvious disadvantage without any attempt to conceal or extenuate it They feel that he ought not to be made to suffer for what is clearly not his fault, and make a point of being specially kind to him His chivalrous manners to women, and his elevated moral sentiments, being both gratuitous and unusual, strike them as perhaps a little unfortunate, and though they find his vein of easy humor rather amusing when it has ceased to puzzle them (as it does at first), they have had to make him understand that he really must not tell anecdotes unless they are strictly personal and scandalous, and also that oratory is an accomplishment which belongs to a cruder stage of civilization than that in which his migration has landed him On these points Hector is not quite convinced he still thinks that the British are apt to make merits of their stupidities, and to represent their various incapacities as points of good breeding English life seems to him to suffer from a lack of edifying rhetoric (which he calls moral tone), English behavior to shew a want of respect for womanhood, English pronunciation to fail very vulgarly in tackling such words as world, girl, bird, etc., English society to be plain spoken to an extent which stretches occasionally to intolerable coarseness, and English intercourse to need enlivening by games and stories and other pastimes, so he does not feel called upon to acquire these defects after taking great pains to cultivate himself in a first rate manner before venturing across the Atlantic To this culture he finds English people either totally indifferent, as they very commonly are to all culture, or else politely evasive, the truth being that Hector's culture is nothing but a state of saturation with our literary exports of thirty years ago, reimported by him to be unpacked at a moment's notice and hurled at the head of English literature, science, and art, at every conversational opportunity The dismay set up by these sallies encourages him in his belief that he is helping to educate England When he finds people chattering harmlessly about Anatole France and Nietzsche, he devastates them with Matthew Arnold, the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, and even Macaulay, and as he is devoutly religious at bottom, he first leads the unwary, by humorous irreverence, to leave popular theology out of account in discussing moral questions with him, and then scatters them in confusion by demanding whether the carrying out of his ideals of conduct was not the manifest object of God Almighty in creating honest men and pure women The engaging freshness of his personality and the dumbfoundering staleness of his culture make it extremely difficult to decide whether he is worth knowing, for whilst his company is undeniably pleasant and enlivening, there is intellectually nothing new to be got out of him, especially as he despises politics, and is careful not to talk commercial shop, in which department he is probably much in advance of his English capitalist friends He gets on best with romantic Christians of the amoralistic sect hence the friendship which has sprung up between him and Octavius

In appearance Hector is a neatly built young man of twenty-four, with a short, smartly trimmed black beard, clear, well shaped eyes, and an ingratiating vivacity of expression He is, from the fashionable point of view, faultlessly dressed As he comes along the drive from the house with Mrs Whitefield he is sedulously making himself agreeable and entertaining, and thereby placing on her slender wit a burden it is unable to bear An Englishman would let her alone, accepting boredom and indifference as their common lot, and the poor lady wants to be either let alone or let prattle about the things that interest her

Ramsden strolls over to inspect the motor car Octavius joins Hector

ANN [pouncing on her mother joyously] Oh, mamma, what do you think! Jack is going to take me to Nice in his motor car Isn't it lovely? I am the happiest person in London

TANNER [desperately] Mrs Whitefield objects I am sure she objects Doesnt she, Ramsden?

RAMSDEN I should think it very likely indeed

ANN You dont object, do you, mother?

MRS WHITEFIELD I object! Why should I? I think it will do you good, Ann [Trotting over to Tanner] I meant to ask you to take Rhoda out for a run occasionally she is too much in the house, but it will do when you come back

TANNER Abyss beneath abyss of perfidy!

ANN [hastily, to distract attention from this outburst] Oh, I forgot you have not met Mr Malone Mr Tanner, my guardian Mr Hector Malone

HECTOR Pleased to meet you, Mr Tanner I should like to suggest an extension of the travelling party to Nice, if I may ANN Oh, we're all coming Thats understood, isnt it?

HECTOR I also am the mawdest possessor of a motor car If Miss Rawbnsn will allow me the privilege of taking her, my car is at her service

OCTAVIUS Violet!

General constraint

ANN [subduedly] Come, mother we must leave them to talk over the arrangements I must see to my travelling kit

Mrs Whitefield looks bewildered, but Ann draws her discreetly away, and they disappear round the corner towards the house

HECTOR I think I may go so far as to say that I can depend on Miss Rawbnsn's consent

Continued embarrassment

OCTAVIUS I'm afraid we must leave Violet behind There are circumstances which make it impossible for her to come on such an expedition

HECTOR [amused and not at all convinced] Too American, eh? Must the young lady have a chaperone?

OCTAVIUS It's not that, Malone—at least not altogether

HECTOR Indeed! May I ask what other objection applies?

TANNER [impatiently] Oh, tell him, tell him We shall never be able to keep the secret unless everybody knows what it is Mr Malone if you go to Nice with Violet, you go with another man's wife She is married

HECTOR [thunderstruck] You dont tell me so!

TANNER We do In confidence

RAMSDEN [with an air of importance, lest Malone should suspect a misalliance] Her marriage has not yet been made known she desires that it shall not be mentioned for the present

HECTOR I shall respect the lady's wishes Would it be indiscreet to ask who her husband is, in case I should have an opportunity of cawnsulting him about this trip?

TANNER We dont know who he is

HECTOR [retiring into his shell in a very marked manner] In that case, I have no more to say They become more embarrassed than ever

OCTAVIUS You must think this very strange

HECTOR A little singular Pardon mee for saying so

RAMSDEN [half apologetic, half huffy] The young lady was married secretly, and her husband has forbidden her, it seems, to declare his name It is only right to tell you, since you are interested in Miss—er—in Violet

OCTAVIUS [sympathetically] I hope this is not a disappointment to you

HECTOR [softened, coming out of his shell again] Well it is a blow I can hardly understand how a man can leave his wife in such a position Surely it's not custoMary It's not manly It's not considerate

OCTAVIUS We feel that, as you may imagine, pretty deeply

RAMSDEN [testily] It is some young fool who has not enough experience to know what mystifications of this kind lead to

HECTOR [with strong symptoms of moral repugnance] I hope so A man need be very young and pretty foolish too to be excused for such conduct You take a very lenient view, Mr Ramsden Too lenient to my mind Surely marriage should ennoble a man

TANNER [sardonically] Ha!

HECTOR Am I to gather from that cacchination that you dont agree with me, Mr Tanner?

TANNER [dryly] Get married and try You may find it delightful for a while you certainly wont find it ennobling The greatest common measure of a man and a woman is not necessarily greater than the man's single measure

HECTOR Well, we think in America that a woman's moral number is higher than a man's, and that the purer nature of a woman lifts a man right out of himself, and makes him better than he was

OCTAVIUS [with conviction] So it does

TANNER No wonder American women prefer to live in Europe! It's more comfortable than standing all their lives on an altar to be worshipped. Anyhow, Violet's husband has not been ennobled. So what's to be done?

HECTOR [shaking his head] I can't dismiss that man's cawnduct as lightly as you do, Mr Tanner. However, I'll say no more. Whoever he is, he's Miss Rawbnsn's husband, and I should be glad for her sake to think better of him.

OCTAVIUS [touched, for he divines a secret sorrow] I'm very sorry, Malone. Very sorry.

HECTOR [gratefully] You're a good fellow, Rawbnsn. Thank you.

TANNER Talk about something else. Violet's coming from the house.

HECTOR I should esteem it a very great favor, gentlemen, if you would take the opportunity to let me have a few words with the lady alone. I shall have to cry off this trip, and it's rather a dulicate—

RAMSDEN [glad to escape] Say no more. Come, Tanner. Come, Tavy. [He strolls away into the park with Octavius and Tanner, past the motor car]

Violet comes down the avenue to Hector

VIOLET Are they looking?

HECTOR No.

She kisses him

VIOLET Have you been telling lies for my sake?

HECTOR Lying! Lying hardly describes it. I overdo it. I get carried away in an ecstasy of mendacity. Violet, I wish you'd let me own up.

VIOLET [instantly becoming serious and resolute] No, no, Hector. You promised me not to.

HECTOR I'll keep my prawnis until you release me from it. But I feel mean, lying to those men, and denying my wife. Just dastardly.

VIOLET I wish your father were not so unreasonable.

HECTOR He's not unreasonable. He's right from his point of view. He has a prejudice against the English middle class.

VIOLET It's too ridiculous. You know how I dislike saying such things to you, Hector, but if I were to—oh, well, no matter.

HECTOR I know. If you were to marry the son of an English manufacturer of awffice furniture, your friends would consider it a misalliance. And here's my silly old dad, who is the biggest awffice furniture man in the world, would shew me the door for marrying the most perfect lady in England merely because she has no handle to her name. Of course it's just absurd. But I tell you, Violet, I don't like deceiving him. I feel as if I was stealing his money. Why won't you let me own up?

VIOLET We can't afford it. You can be as romantic as you please about love, Hector, but you mustn't be romantic about money.

HECTOR [divided between his uxoriousness and his habitual elevation of moral sentiment] That's very English. [Appealing to her impulsively] Violet, dad's bound to find us out someday.

VIOLET Oh yes, later on of course. But don't let's go over this every time we meet, dear. You promised—

HECTOR All right, all right, I—

VIOLET [not to be silenced] It is I and not you who suffer by this concealment, and as to facing a struggle and poverty and all that sort of thing I simply will not do it. It's too silly.

HECTOR You shall not. I'll sort of borrow the money from my dad until I get on my own feet, and then I can own up and pay up at the same time.

VIOLET [alarmed and indignant] Do you mean to work? Do you want to spoil our marriage?

HECTOR Well, I don't mean to let marriage spoil my character. Your friend Mr Tanner has got the laugh on me a bit already about that, and—

VIOLET The beast! I hate Jack Tanner.

HECTOR [magnanimously] Oh, hee's all right. He only needs the love of a good woman to ennoble him. Besides, he's proposed a motoring trip to Nice, and I'm going to take you.

VIOLET How jolly!

HECTOR Yes, but how are we going to manage? You see, they've warned me off going with you, so to speak. They've told me in cawnfidnce that you're married. That's just the most overwhelming cawnfidnce I've ever been honored with.

Tanner returns with Straker, who goes to his car

TANNER Your car is a great success, Mr Malone. Your engineer is showing it off to Mr Ramsden.

HECTOR [eagerly—forgetting himself] Let's come, V₁

VIOLET [coldly, warning him with her eyes] I beg your pardon Mr Malone I did not quite catch—

HECTOR [recollecting himself] I ask to be allowed the pleasure of shewing you my little American steam car. Miss Rawbnsn

VIOLET I shall be very pleased [They go off together down the avenue]

TANNER About this trip, Straker

STRAKER [preoccupied with the car] Yes?

TANNER Miss Whitefield is supposed to be coming with me

STRAKER So I gather

TANNER Mr Robinson is to be one of the party

STRAKER Yes

TANNER Well, if you can manage so as to be a good deal occupied with me, and leave Mr Robinson a good deal occupied with Miss Whitefield, he will be deeply grateful to you

STRAKER [looking round at him] Evidently

TANNER "Evidently"! Your grandfather would have simply winked

STRAKER My grandfather would have touched his at.

TANNER And I should have given your good nice respectful grandfather a sovereign

STRAKER Five shillins, more likely [He leaves the car and approaches Tanner] What about the lady's views?

TANNER She is just as willing to be left to Mr Robinson as Mr Robinson is to be left to her [Straker looks at his principal with cool scepticism, then turns to the car whistling his favorite air] Stop that aggravating noise What do you mean by it? [Straker calmly resumes the melody and finishes it Tanner politely hears it out before he again addresses Straker, this time with elaborate seriousness] Enry I have ever been a warm advocate of the spread of music among the masses but I object to your obliging the company whenever Miss Whitefield's name is mentioned You did it this morning, too

STRAKER [obstinately] It's not a bit o use Mr Robinson may as well give it up first as last

TANNER Why?

STRAKER Garn! You know why Course it's not my business, but you neednt start kiddin me about it

TANNER I am not kidding I dont know why

STRAKER [cheerfully sulky] Oh, very well

All right It ant my business

TANNER [impressively] I trust, Enry that, as between employer and engineer, I shall always know how to keep my proper distance, and not intrude my private affairs on you Even our business arrangements are subject to the approval of your Trade Union But dont abuse your advantages Let me remind you that Voltaire said that what was too silly to be said could be sung

STRAKER It wasnt Voltaire it was Bow Mar Shay

TANNER. I stand corrected. Beaumarchais of course Now you seem to think that what is too delicate to be said can be whistled Unfortunately your whistling, though melodious is unintelligible Come! theres nobody listening neither my genteel relatives nor the secretary of your confounded Union As man to man Enry. why do you think that my friend has no chance with Miss Whitefield?

STRAKER Cause she's arter summun else

TANNER Bosh! who else?

STRAKER You

TANNER. Me!!!

STRAKER. Mean to tell me you didnt know? Oh, come, Mr Tanner!

TANNER [in fierce earnest] Are you playing the fool, or do you mean it?

STRAKER [with a flash of temper] I'm not playin no fool [More coolly] Why, it's as plain as the nose on your face If you ant spotted that, you dont know much about these sort of things [Serene again] Ex-cuse me, you know, Mr Tanner; but you asked me as man to man; and I told you as man to man

TANNER [wildly appealing to the heavens] Then I—I am the bee, the spider the marked down victim, the destined prey

STRAKER I dunno about the bee and the spider But the marked down victim, thats what you are and no mistake, and a jolly good job for you, too, I should say

TANNER [momentously] Henry Straker the golden moment of your life has arrived.

STRAKER What d'y'mean?

TANNER That record to Biskra.

STRAKER [eagerly] Yes?

TANNER Break it

STRAKER [rising to the height of his destiny] D'y'mean it?

TANNER I do

STRAKER When?

TANNER Now Is that machine ready to start?

STRAKER [quailing] But you cant—

TANNER [cutting him short by getting into the car] Off we go First to the bank for money, then to my rooms for my kit, then to your rooms for your kit, then break the record from London to Dover or Folkestone, then across the channel and away like mad to Marseilles, Gibraltar, Genoa, any port from which we can sail to a Mahometan country where men are protected from women

STRAKER Garn' you're kiddin

TANNER [resolutely] Stay behind then If you wont come I'll do it alone [He starts the motor]

STRAKER [running after him] Here! Mister! arf a mo' steady on! [he scrambles in as the car plunges forward]

ACT III

Evening in the Sierra Nevada Rolling slopes of brown with olive trees instead of apple trees in the cultivated patches, and occasional prickly pears instead of gorse and bracken in the wilds Higher up, tall stone peaks and precipices, all handsome and distinguished No wild nature here rather a most aristocratic mountain landscape made by a fastidious artist-creator No vulgar profusion of vegetation even a touch of aridity in the frequent patches of stones Spanish magnificence and Spanish economy everywhere

Not very far north of a spot at which the high road over one of the passes crosses a tunnel on the railway from Malaga to Granada, is one of the mountain amphitheatres of the Sierra Looking at it from the wide end of the horse-shoe, one sees, a little to the right, in the face of the cliff, a romantic cave which is really an abandoned quarry, and towards the left a little hill, commanding a view of the road, which skirts the amphitheatre on the left, maintaining its higher level on embankments and an occasional stone arch On the hill, watching the road, is a man who is either a Spaniard or a Scotchman Probably a Spaniard, since he wears the dress of a Spanish goatherd and seems at home in the Sierra Nevada, but very like a Scotchman for all that In the hollow, on the slope leading to the quarry-cave, are about a dozen men who, as they recline at their ease round a heap of smouldering white ashes of dead leaf and brushwood, have an air of being conscious of themselves as picturesque scoundrels honoring the Sierra by using it as an effective pictorial background As a matter of artistic fact they are not picturesque, and the mountains tolerate them as lions tolerate lice An English policeman or Poor Law Guardian would recognize them as a selected band of tramps and ablebodied paupers

- This description of them is not wholly contemptuous Whoever has intelligently observed the tramp, or visited the ablebodied ward of a workhouse, will admit that our social failures are not all drunkards and weaklings Some of them are men who do not fit the class they were born into Precisely the same qualities that make the educated gentleman an artist may make an uneducated manual laborer an ablebodied pauper There are men who fall helplessly into the workhouse because they are good for nothing, but there are also men who are there because they are strong-minded enough to disregard the social convention (obviously not a disinterested one on the part of the ratepayer) which bids a man live by heavy and badly paid drudgery when he has the alternative of walking into the workhouse, announcing himself as a destitute person, and legally compelling the Guardians to feed, clothe, and house him better than he could feed, clothe, and house himself without great exertion When a man who is born a poet refuses a stool in a stockbroker's office, and starves in a garret, spunging on a poor landlady or on his friends and relatives sooner than work against his grain, or when a lady, because she is a lady, will face any extremity of parasitic dependence rather than take a situation as cook or parlormaid, we make large allowances for them To such allowances the ablebodied pauper, and his nomadic variant the tramp, are equally entitled

Further, the imaginative man, if his life is to be tolerable to him, must have leisure to tell himself stories, and a position which lends itself to imaginative decoration The rant of unskilled labor offer no such positions We misuse our laborers horribly, and when a man refuses to be misused, we have no right to say that he is refusing honest work Let us be frank in this matter before we go on with our play, so that we may enjoy it without hypocrisy If we were reasoning, far-sighted people, four fifths of us would go straight to the Guardians for relief, and knock the whole social system to pieces with most beneficial reconstructive results The reason we do not do this is because we work like bees or ants, by instinct or habit, not reasoning about the matter at all Therefore when a man comes along who can and does reason, and who, applying the Kantian test to his conduct, can truly say to us, If everybody d.d as I do the world would be compelled to reform itself industrially and abolish slavery and squalor which exist only because everybody does as you do let us honor that man and seriously consider the advisability of following his example. Such a man is the able-bodied able-minded pauper Were he a gentleman doing his best to get a pension or a secure instead of sweeping a crossing, nobody would blame him for deciding that so long as the alternative lies between living mainly at the expense of the community and allowing the community to live mainly at his it would be folly to accept what is to him personally the greater of the two evils.

We may therefore contemplate the tramps of the Sierra without prejudice, admitting cheerfully that our objects—briefly to be gentlemen of fortune—are much the same as theirs and the difference in our position and methods merely accidental One or two of them perhaps, it would be wiser to kill without malice in a friendly and frank manner, for there are b.b.peds just as there are quadrupeds, who are too dangerous to be left unchained and unmuzzled, and these cannot fairly expect to have other men's lives wasted in the work of watching them But as society has not the courage to kill them and when it catches them simply treats on them some superstitious expiatory rites of torture and degradation and then lets them loose with heightened qualifications for mischief it is just as well that they are at large in the Sierra, and in the hands of a chief who looks as if he might possibly on provocation order them to be shot.

This chief seated in the centre of the group on a squared block of stone from the quarry is a tall strong man, with a striking cockatoo nose, glossy black hair, pointed beard, upturned moustache and a Mephistophelean affectation which is fairly imposing perhaps because the scenery admits of a larger swagger than Piccadilly perhaps because of a certain sentimentality in the man which gives him that touch of grace which alone can excuse deliberate picturesqueness His eyes and mouth are by no means rascally, he has a fine voice and a ready wit, and whether he is really the strongest man in the party or not he looks it He is certainly the best fed, the best dressed and the best trained. The fact that he speaks English is not unexpected in spite of the Spanish landscape, for with the exception of one man who might be guessed as a bullfighter ruined by drink and one unmistakable Frenchman they are all cockney or American; therefore in a land of cloaks and sombreros, they mostly wear seedy overcoats roller mufflers, hard hemispherical hats, and dirty brown gloves Only a very few dress after their leader, whose broad sombrero with a cock's feather in the band, and voluminous cloak descending to his high boots are as un-English as possible None of them are armed; and the ungloved ones keep their hands in their pockets because it is their national belief that it must be dangerously cold in the open air with the right coming on. (It is as warm an evening as any reasonable man could desire)

Except the bullfighting inebriate there is only one person in the company who looks more than, say thirty-three He is a small man with reddish whiskers real eyes and the anxious look of a small tradesman in difficulties He wears the only tall hat visible it shines in the sunset with the sticky gloss of some sixpenny patent hat retainer, often applied and constantly tending to produce a worse state of the original surface than the ruin it was applied to remedy He has a collar and cuffs of celluloid, and his brown Chesterfield overcoat with velvet collar, is still presentable He is pre-eminently the respectable man of the party and is certainly over forty possibly over fifty He is the corner man on the leader's right opposite three men in scarlet ties on his left One of these three is the Frenchman Of the remaining two who are both English, one is argumentative, solemn and obstinate, the other rosy and mischievous

The chief with a magnificent fling of the end of his cloak across his left shoulder, rises to address them The applause which greets him shows that he is a favorite orator

THE CHIEF. Friends and fellow brigands I have a proposal to make to this meeting We have now spent three evenings in discussing the question Have Anarchists or Social-Democrats the most personal courage? We have gone into the principles of Anarchism and Social-Democracy at great length The cause of Anarchy has been ably represented by our one Anarchist, who doesn't know what Anarchism means [laughter]—

THE ANARCHIST [rising] A point of order, Mendoza—

MENDOZA [forcibly] No by thunder your last point of order took half an hour Besides, Anarchists don't believe in order

THE ANARCHIST [mild polite but persistent] He is in fact the respectable looking elderly man in the celluloid collar and cuffs That is a vulgar error I can prove—

MENDOZA. Order, order

THE OTHERS [shouting] Order, order Sit down Chair! Shut up

The Anarchist is suppressed

MENDOZA On the other hand we have three Social-Democrats among us They are not on speaking terms, and they have put before us three distinct and incompatible views of Social-Democracy

THE THREE MEN IN SCARLET TIES 1 Mr Chairman, I protest A personal explanation 2 It's a lie I never said so Be fair, Mendoza 3 Je demande la parole C'est absolument faux C'est faux! faux! faux!!! Assas-s-s-s-sin!!!!

MENDOZA Order, order

THE OTHERS Order, order, order! Chair!

The Social-Democrats are suppressed

MENDOZA Now, we tolerate all opinions here But after all, comrades, the vast majority of us are neither Anarchists nor Socialists, but gentlemen and Christians

THE MAJORITY [shouting assent] Hear, hear! So we are Right

THE ROWDY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [smarting under suppression] You aint no Christian Youre a Sheeny, you are

MENDOZA [with crushing magnanimity] My friend I am an exception to all rules It is true that I have the honor to be a Jew, and when the Zionists need a leader to reassemble our race on its historic soil of Palestine, Mendoza will not be the last to volunteer [sympathetic applause—Hear, Hear, &c] But I am not a slave to any superstition I have swallowed all the formulas, even that of Socialism, though, in a sense, once a Socialist, always a Socialist

THE SOCIAL-DEMOCRATS Hear, hear!

MENDOZA But I am well aware that the ordinary man—even the ordinary brigand, who can scarcely be called an ordinary man [Hear, hear!]
—is not a philosopher Common sense is good enough for him, and in our business affairs common sense is good enough for me Well, what is our business here in the Sierra Nevada, chosen by the Moors as the fairest spot in Spain? Is it to discuss abstruse questions of political economy? No it is to hold up motor cars and secure a more equitable distribution of wealth

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT All made by labor, mind you

MENDOZA [urbanely] Undoubtedly All made by labor, and on its way to be squandered by wealthy vagabonds in the dens of vice that disfigure the sunny shores of the Mediterranean We intercept that wealth We restore it to circulation among the class that produced it and that chiefly needs it the working class We do this at the risk of our lives and liberties, by the exercise of the virtues of courage, endurance, foresight, and abstinence—especially abstinence I myself have eaten nothing but prickly pears and broiled rabbit for three days

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [stubbornly] No more aint we

MENDOZA [indignantly] Have I taken more than my share?

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [unmoved] Why should you?

THE ANARCHIST Why should he not? To each according to his needs from each according to his means

THE FRENCHMAN [shaking his fist at the Anarchist] Fumiste!

MENDOZA [diplomatically] I agree with both of you

THE GENUINELY ENGLISH BRIGANDS Hear, hear! Biavo Mendoza!

MENDOZA What I say is, let us treat one another as gentlemen, and strive to excel in personal courage only when we take the field

THE ROWDY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [derisively] Shikespear

A whistle comes from the goatherd on the hill He springs up and points excitedly forward along the road to the north

THE GOATHERD Automobile! Automobile! [He rushes down the hill and joins the rest, who all scramble to their feet]

MENDOZA [in ringing tones] To arms! Who has the gun?

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [handing a rifle to Mendoza] Here

MENDOZA Have the nails been strewn in the road?

THE ROWDY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT Two ahnces of em

MENDOZA Good! [To the Frenchman] With me, Duval If the nails fail, puncture their tires with a bullet [He gives the rifle to Duval, who follows him up the hill Mendoza produces an opera glass The others hurry across to the road and disappear to the north]

MENDOZA [on the hill, using his glass] Two only, a capitalist and his chauffeur They look English

DUVAL Angliche! Aoh yess Cochons!

[Handling the rifle] Faut tirer, n'est-ce-pas?

MENDOZA No the nails have gone home
Their tire is down they stop

DUVAL [shouting to the others] Fondez sur eux, nom de Dieu!

MENDOZA [rebuking his excitement] Du calme, Duval keep your hair on They take it quietly Let us descend and receive them

Mendoza descends, passing behind the fire and coming forward, whilst Tanner and Straker, in their motoring goggles, leather coats, and caps, are led in from the road by the brigands

TANNER Is this the gentleman you describe as your boss? Does he speak English?

THE ROWDY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT Course e daz Y' dont suppowz we Hinglishmen luts ahrselves be bossed by a bloomin Speniard, do you?

MENDOZA [with dignity] Allow me to introduce myself Mendoza, President of the League of the Sierra! [Posing loftily] I am a brigand I live by robbing the rich

TANNER [promptly] I am a gentleman I live by robbing the poor Shake hands

THE ENGLISH SOCIAL-DEMOCRATS Hear, hear! General laughter and good humor Tanner and Mendoza shake hands The Brigands drop into their former places

STRAKER Ere! where do I come in?

TANNER [introducing] My friend and chauffeur

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [suspiciously] Well, which is he? friend or show-foor? It makes all the difference, you know

MENDOZA [explaining] We should expect ransom for a friend A professional chauffeur is free of the mountains He even takes a trifling percentage of his principal's ransom if he will honor us by accepting it

STRAKER I see Just to encourage me to come this way again Well, I'll think about it

DUVAL [impulsively rushing across to Straker] Mon frere! [He embraces him rapturously and kisses him on both cheeks]

STRAKER [disgusted] Ere, git aht dont be silly Who are you, pray?

DUVAL Duval Social-Democrat

STRAKER Oh, youre a Social-Democrat, are you?

THE ANARCHIST He means that he has sold out to the parliamentary humbugs and the bourgeoisie Compromise! that is his faith

DUVAL [furiously] I understand what he say

He say Bourgeois He say Compromise
Jamais de la vie! Misérable menteur—

STRAKER See here, Captain Mendoza, ah mach o this sort o thing do you put up with here? Are we avin a pleasure trip in the mountains, or are we at a Socialist meetin?

THE MAJORITY Hear, hear! Shut up Chuck it Sit down, &c &c [The Social-Democrats and the Anarchist are hustled into the background Straker, after superintending this proceeding with satisfaction, places himself on Mendoza's left, Tanner being on his right]

MENDOZA Can we offer you anything? Broiled rabbit and prickly pears—

TANNER Thank you we have dined

MENDOZA [to his followers] Gentlemen business is over for the day Go as you please until morning

The Brigands disperse into groups lazily Some go into the cave Others sit down or lie down to sleep in the open A few produce a pack of cards and move off towards the road, for it is now starlight, and they know that motor cars have lamps which can be turned to account for lighting a card party

STRAKER [calling after them] Dont none of you go fooling with that car, d'ye hear?

MENDOZA No fear, Monsieur le Chauffeur The first one we captured cured us of that STRAKER [interested] What did it do?

MENDOZA It carried three brave comrades of ours, who did not know how to stop it, into Granada, and capsized them opposite the police station Since then we never touch one without sending for the chauffeur Shall we chat at our ease?

TANNER By all means

Tanner, Mendoza, and Straker sit down on the turf by the fire Mendoza delicately waves his presidential dignity, of which the right to sit on the squared stone block is the appanage, by sitting on the ground like his guests, and using the stone only as a support for his back

MENDOZA It is the custom in Spain always to put off business until tomorrow In fact, you have arrived out of office hours However, if you would prefer to settle the question of ransom at once, I am at your service

TANNER Tomorrow will do for me I am rich enough to pay anything in reason

MENDOZA [respectfully, much struck by this admission] You are a remarkable man, sir Our guests usually describe themselves as miserably poor

TANNER Pooh! Miserably poor people dont own motor cars

MENDOZA Precisely what we say to them

TANNER Treat us well we shall not prove ungrateful

STRAKER No prickly pears and broiled rabbits, you know Dont tell me you cant do us a bit better than that if you like

MENDOZA Wine, kids, milk, cheese, and bread can be procured for ready money

STRAKER [graciously] Now youre talkin

TANNER Are you all Socialists here, may I ask?

MENDOZA [repudiating this humiliating misconception] Oh no, no, no nothing of the kind, I assure you We naturally have modern views as to the injustice of the existing distribution of wealth otherwise we should lose our self-respect But nothing that you could take exception to, except two or three faddists

TANNER I had no intention of suggesting anything discreditable In fact, I am a bit of a Socialist myself

STRAKER [dryly] Most rich men are, I notice

MENDOZA Quite so It has reached us, I admit It is in the air of the century

STRAKER Socialism must be lookin up a bit if your chaps are taking to it

MENDOZA That is true, sir A movement which is confined to philosophers and honest men can never exercise any real political influence there are too few of them Until a movement shews itself capable of spreading among brigands, it can never hope for a political majority TANNER But are your brigands any less honest than ordinary citizens?

MENDOZA Sir I will be frank with you Brigandage is abnormal Abnormal professions attract two classes those who are not good enough for ordinary bourgeois life and those who are too good for it We are dregs and scum, sir the dregs very filthy, the scum very superior

STRAKER Take care! some o the dregs'll hear you

MENDOZA It does not matter each brigand thinks himself scum, and likes to hear the others called dregs

TANNER Come! you are a wit [Mendoza inclines his head, flattered] May one ask you a blunt question?

MENDOZA As blunt as you please

TANNER How does it pay a man of your talent to shepherd such a flock as this on broiled rabbit and prickly pears? I have seen men less gifted, and I'll swear less honest, supping at the Savoy on foie gras and champagne

MENDOZA Pooh! they have all had their turn at the broiled rabbit, just as I shall have my turn at the Savoy Indeed, I have had a turn there already—as waiter

TANNER A waiter! You astonish me!

MENDOZA [reflectively] Yes I, Mendoza of the Sierra, was a waiter Hence, perhaps, my cosmopolitanism [With sudden intensity] Shall I tell you the story of my life?

STRAKER [apprehensively] If it aint too long, old chap—

TANNER [interrupting him] Tsh-sh you are a Philistine, Henry you have no romance in you [To Mendoza] You interest me extremely, President Never mind Henry he can go to sleep

MENDOZA The woman I loved—

STRAKER Oh, this is a love story, is it? Right you are Go on I was only afraid you were going to talk about yourself

MENDOZA Myself! I have thrown myself away for her sake that is why I am here No matter I count the world well lost for her She had, I pledge you my word, the most magnificent head of hair I ever saw She had humor, she had intellect, she could cook to perfection, and her highly stung temperament made her uncertain, incalculable, variable, capricious, cruel, in a word, enchanting STRAKER A six shillin novel sort o woman, all but the cookin Er name was Lady Gladys Plantagenet, wasnt it?

MENDOZA No, sir she was not an earl's daughter Photography, reproduced by the half-tone process, has made me familiar with the appearance of the daughters of the English peerage, and I can honestly say that I would have sold the lot, faces, dowries, clothes, titles, and all, for a smile from this woman Yet she was a woman of the people, a worker otherwise—let me reciprocate your bluntness—I should have scorned her

TANNER Very properly And did she respond to your love?

MENDOZA Should I be here if she did? She objected to marry a Jew

TANNER On religious grounds?

MENDOZA No she was a freethinker She said that every Jew considers in his heart that English people are dirty in their habits

TANNER [surprised] Dirty!

MENDOZA It shewed her extraordinary knowledge of the world, for it is undoubtedly true Our elaborate sanitary code makes us unduly contemptuous of the Gentile

TANNER Did you ever hear that, Henry?

STRAKER Ive heard my sister say so She was cook in a Jewish family once

MENDOZA I could not deny it, neither could I eradicate the impression it made on her mind I could have got round any other objection, but no woman can stand a suspicion of indelicacy as to her person My entreaties were in vain she always retorted that she wasnt good enough for me, and recommended me to marry an accursed barmaid named Rebecca Lazarus whom I loathed I talked of suicide she offered me a packet of beetle poison to do it with I hinted at murder she went into hysterics, and as I am a living man I went to America so that she might sleep without dreaming that I was stealing upstairs to cut her throat In America I went out west and fell in with a man who was wanted by the police for holding up trains It was he who had the idea of holding up motor cars in the South of Europe a welcome idea to a desperate and disappointed man He gave me some valuable introductions to capitalists of the right sort I formed a syndicate and the present enterprise is the result I became leader, as the Jew always becomes leader, by his brains and imagination But with all my pride of race I would give everything I possess to be an Englishman. I am like a boy I cut her name on the trees and her initials on the sod When I am alone I lie down and tear my wretched hair and cry Louisa—

STRAKER [startled] Louisa!

MENDOZA It is her name—Louisa—Louisa Straker—

TANNER Straker!

STRAKER [scrambling up on his knees most indignantly] Look here Louisa Straker is my sister, see? Wot do you mean by gassin about her like this? Wotshe got to do with you?

MENDOZA A dramatic coincidence! You are Enry, her favorite brother!

STRAKER Oo are you callin Enry? What call have you to take a liberty with my name or with hers? For two pins I'd punch your fat edd, so I would

MENDOZA [with grandiose calm] If I let you do it, will you promise to brag of it afterwards to her? She will be reminded of her Mendoza that is all I desire

TANNER This is genuine devotion, Henry You should respect it

STRAKER [fiercely] Funk, more likely

MENDOZA [springing to his feet] Funk! Young man I come of a famous family of fighters, and as your sister well knows, you would have as much chance against me as a perambulator against your motor car

STRAKER [secretly daunted, but rising from his knees with an air of reckless pugnacity] I aint afraid of you With your Louisa! Louisa! Miss Straker is good enough for you, I should think

MENDOZA I wish you could persuade her to think so

STRAKER [exasperated] Here—

TANNER [rising quickly and interposing] Oh come, Henry even if you could fight the President you cant fight the whole League of the Sierra Sit down again and be friendly A cat may look at a king, and even a President of brigands may look at your sister All this family pride is really very old fashioned

STRAKER [subdued, but grumbling] Let him look at her But wot does he mean by makin out that she ever looked at im? [Reluctantly resuming his couch on the turf] Ear him talk, one ud think she was keepin company with him [He turns his back on them and composes himself to sleep]

MENDOZA [to Tanner, becoming more confidential as he finds himself virtually alone with a sympathetic listener in the still starlight of the mountains, for all the rest are asleep by this time] It was just so with her, sir Her intellect reached forward into the twentieth century. her social prejudices and family affections reached back into the dark ages Ah, sir, how the words of Shakespear seem to fit every crisis in our emotions!

I loved Louisa 40,000 brothers

Could not with all their quantity of love

Make up my sum

And so on I forget the rest Call it madness if you will—infatuation I am an able man, a strong man in ten years I should have owned a first-class hotel I met her, and—you see!—I am a brigand, an outcast Even Shakespear cannot do justice to what I feel for Louisa Let me read you some lines that I have written about her myself However slight their literary merit may be, they express what I feel better than any casual words can [He produces a packet of hotel bills scrawled with manuscript, and kneels at the fire to decipher them, poking it with a stick to make it glow]

TANNER [slapping him rudely on the shoulder] Put them in the fire, President

MENDOZA [startled] Eh?

TANNER You are sacrificing your career to a monomania

MENDOZA I know it

TANNER No you dont No man would commit such a crime against himself if he really knew what he was doing How can you look round at these august hills, look up at this divine sky, taste this finely tempered air, and then talk like a literary hack on a second floor in Bloomsbury?

MENDOZA [shaking his head] The Sierra is no better than Bloomsbury when once the novelty has worn off Besides, these mountains make you dream of women—of women with magnificent hair

TANNER Of Louisa, in short They will not make me dream of women, my friend I am heartwhole

MENDOZA Do not boast until morning, sir This is a strange country for dreams

TANNER Well, we shall see Goodnight [He lies down and composes himself to sleep]

Mendoza, with a sigh, follows his example, and for a few moments there is peace in the Sierra Then Mendoza sits up suddenly and says pleadingly to Tanner—

MENDOZA Just allow me to read a few lines before you go to sleep I should really like your opinion of them

TANNER [drowsily] Go on I am listening

MENDOZA I saw thee first on Whitsun week
Louisa, Louisa—

TANNER [rousing himself] My dear President, Louisa is a very pretty name, but it really doesnt rhyme well to Whitsun week

MENDOZA Of course not Louisa is not the rhyme, but the refrain

TANNER [subsiding] Ah, the refrain I beg your pardon Go on MENDOZA Perhaps you do not care for that one I think you will like this better [He recites, in rich soft tones, and in slow time]

Louisa, I love thee
I love thee, Louisa

Louisa, Louisa, Louisa, I love thee
One name and one phrase make my music,
Louisa

Louisa, Louisa, Louisa, I love thee
Mendoza thy lover,

Thy lover, Mendoza,

Mendoza adoringly lives for Louisa

Theres nothing but that in the world for Mendoza

Louisa, Louisa, Mendoza adores thee

[Affected] There is no merit in producing beautiful lines upon such a name Louisa is an exquisite name, is it not?

TANNER [all but asleep, responds with a faint groan]

MENDOZA O wert thou, Louisa,

The wife of Mendoza,

Mendoza's Louisa, Louisa Mendoza,

How blest were the life of Louisa's Mendoza!
How painless his longing of love for Louisa!

That is real poetry—from the heart—from the heart of hearts Dont you think it will move her?

No answer

[Resignedly] Asleep, as usual Doggrel to all the world heavenly music to me! Idiot that I am to wear my heart on my sleeve! [He composes himself to sleep, murmuring]
Louisa, I love thee, I love thee, Louisa, Louisa, Louisa, Louisa, I—

Straker snores, rolls over on his side, and relapses into sleep Stillness settles on the Sierra, and the darkness deepens The fire has again buried itself in white ash and ceased to glow The peaks shew unfathomably dark against the starry firmament, but now the stars dim and vanish, and the sky seems to steal away out of the universe Instead of the Sierra there is nothing omnipresent nothing No sky, no peaks, no light, no sound, no time nor space, utter void Then somewhere the beginning of a pallor, and with it a faint throbbing buzz as of a ghostly violoncello palpitating on the same note endlessly A couple of ghostly violins presently take advantage of this bass and therewith the pallor reveals a man in the void, an incorporeal but visible man, seated, absurdly enough, on nothing For a moment he raises his head as the music passes him by Then, with a heavy sigh, he droops in utter dejection, and the violins, discouraged, retrace their melody in despair and at last give it up, extinguished by wailings from uncanny wind instruments, thus

It is all very odd One recognizes the Mozartian strain, and on this hint, and by the aid of certain sparkles of violet light in the pallor, the man's costume explains itself as that of a Spanish nobleman of the XV-XVI century Don Juan, of course, but where? why? how? Besides, in the brief lifting of his face, now hidden by his hat brim, there was a curious suggestion of Tanner A more critical, fastidious, handsome face, paler and colder, without Tanner's impetuous credulity and enthusiasm, and without a touch of his modern plutocratic vulgarity, but still a resemblance, even an identity The name too Don Juan Tenorio, John Tanner Where on earth—or elsewhere—have we got to from the XX century and the Sierra?

Another pallor in the void, this time not violet, but a disagreeable smoky yellow With it, the whisper of a ghostly clarinet turning this tune into infinite sadness

The yellowish pallor moves there is an old crone wandering in the void, bent and toothless, draped, as well as one can guess, in the coarse brown frock of some religious order She wanders and wanders in her slow hopeless way, much as a wasp flies in its rapid busy way, until she blunders against the thing she seeks companionship With a sob of relief the poor old creature clutches at the presence of the man and addresses him in her dry unlovely voice, which can still express pride and resolution as well as suffering

THE OLD WOMAN Excuse me, but I am so lonely, and this place is so awful

DON JUAN A new comer?

THE OLD WOMAN Yes I suppose I died this morning I confessed, I had extreme unction, I was in bed with my family about me and my eyes fixed on the cross Then it grew dark, and when the light came back it was this light by which I walk seeing nothing I have wandered for hours in horrible loneliness

DON JUAN [sighing] Ah! you have not yet

lost the sense of time One soon does, in eternity

THE OLD WOMAN Where are we?

DON JUAN In hell

THE OLD WOMAN [proudly] Hell! I in hell! How dare you?

DON JUAN [unimpressed] Why not, Señora?

THE OLD WOMAN You do not know to whom you are speaking I am a lady, and a faithful daughter of the Church

DON JUAN I do not doubt it

THE OLD WOMAN But how then can I be in hell? Purgatory, perhaps I have not been perfect who has? But hell! oh, you are lying

DON JUAN Hell, Señora, I assure you, hell at its best that is, its most solitary—though perhaps you would prefer company

THE OLD WOMAN But I have sincerely repented, I have confessed—

DON JUAN How much?

THE OLD WOMAN More sins than I really committed I loved confession

DON JUAN Ah, that is perhaps as bad as confessing too little At all events, Señora, whether by oversight or intention, you are certainly damned, like myself, and there is nothing for it now but to make the best of it

THE OLD WOMAN [indignantly] Oh! and I might have been so much wickeder! All my good deeds wasted! It is unjust

DON JUAN No you were fully and clearly warned For your bad deeds, vicarious atonement, mercy without justice For your good deeds, justice without mercy We have many good people here

THE OLD WOMAN Were you a good man?

DON JUAN I was a murderer

THE OLD WOMAN A murderer! Oh, how dare they send me to herd with murderers! I was not as bad as that I was a good woman There is some mistake where can I have it set right?

DON JUAN I do not know whether mistakes can be corrected here Probably they will not admit a mistake even if they have made one

THE OLD WOMAN But whom can I ask?

DON JUAN I should ask the Devil, Señora he understands the ways of this place, which is more than I ever could

THE OLD WOMAN The Devil! I speak to the Devil!

DON JUAN In hell, Señora, the Devil is the leader of the best society

THE OLD WOMAN I tell you, wretch, I know

I am not in hell

DON JUAN How do you know?

THE OLD WOMAN Because I feel no pain

DON JUAN Oh, then there is no mistake you are intentionally damned

THE OLD WOMAN Why do you say that?

DON JUAN Because hell, Señora, is a place for the wicked The wicked are quite comfortable in it it was made for them You tell me you feel no pain I conclude you are one of those for whom Hell exists

THE OLD WOMAN Do you feel no pain?

DON JUAN I am not one of the wicked, Señora, therefore it bores me, bores me beyond description, beyond belief

THE OLD WOMAN Not one of the wicked! You said you were a murderer

DON JUAN Only a duel I ran my sword through an old man who was trying to run his through me

THE OLD WOMAN If you were a gentleman, that was not a murder

DON JUAN The old man called it murder, because he was, he said, defending his daughter's honor By this he meant that because I foolishly fell in love with her and told her so, she screamed, and he tried to assassinate me after calling me insulting names

THE OLD WOMAN You were like all men Libertines and murderers all, all, all!

DON JUAN And yet we meet here, dear lady

THE OLD WOMAN Listen to me My father was slain by just such a wretch as you, in just such a duel, for just such a cause I screamed it was my duty My father drew on my assailant his honor demanded it He fell that was the reward of honor I am here in hell, you tell me that is the reward of duty Is there justice in heaven?

DON JUAN No, but there is justice in hell heaven is far above such idle human personalities You will be welcome in hell, Señora Hell is the home of honor, duty, justice, and the rest of the seven deadly virtues All the wickedness on earth is done in their name where else but in hell should they have their reward? Have I not told you that the truly damned are those who are happy in hell?

THE OLD WOMAN And are you happy here?

DON JUAN [springing to his feet] No, and that is the enigma on which I ponder in darkness Why am I here? I, who repudiated all duty, trampled honor underfoot, and laughed at justice

THE OLD WOMAN Oh, what do I care why you are here? Why am I here? I, who sacrificed all my inclinations to womanly virtue and propriety!

DON JUAN Patience, lady you will be perfectly happy and at home here As saith the poet, "Hell is a city much like Seville"

THE OLD WOMAN Happy! here! where I am nothing! where I am nobody!

DON JUAN Not at all you are a lady, and wherever ladies are is hell Do not be surprised or terrified you will find everything here that a lady can desire, including devils who will serve you from sheer love of servitude, and magnify your importance for the sake of dignifying their service—the best of servants

THE OLD WOMAN My servants will be devils!

DON JUAN Have you ever had servants who were not devils?

THE OLD WOMAN Never they were devils, perfect devils, all of them But that is only a manner of speaking I thought you meant that my servants here would be real devils

DON JUAN No more real devils than you will be a real lady Nothing is real here That is the horror of damnation

THE OLD WOMAN Oh, this is all madness This is worse than fire and the worm

DON JUAN For you, perhaps, there are consolations For instance how old were you when you changed from time to eternity?

THE OLD WOMAN Do not ask me how old I was—as if I were a thing of the past I am 77

DON JUAN A ripe age, Señora But in hell old age is not tolerated It is too real Here we worship Love and Beauty Our souls being entirely damned, we cultivate our hearts As a lady of 77, you would not have a single acquaintance in hell

THE OLD WOMAN How can I help my age, man?

DON JUAN You forget that you have left your age behind you in the realm of time You are no more 77 than you are 7 or 17 or 27

THE OLD WOMAN Nonsense!

DON JUAN Consider, Señora was not this true even when you lived on earth? When you were 70, were you really older underneath your wrinkles and your grey hairs than when you were 30?

THE OLD WOMAN No, younger at 30 I was a fool But of what use is it to feel younger and look older?

DON JUAN, You see Señora, the look was only an illusion Your wrinkles lied, just as the plump smooth skin of many a stupid girl of 17, with heavy spirits and decrepit ideas, lies about her age? Well, here we have no bodies we see each other as bodies only because we learnt to think about one another under that aspect when we were alive, and we still think in that way, knowing no other But we can appear to one another at what age we choose You have but to will any of your old looks back, and back they will come

THE OLD WOMAN It cannot be true

DON JUAN Try

THE OLD WOMAN Seventeen!

DON JUAN Stop Before you decide, I had better tell you that these things are a matter of fashion. Occasionally we have a rage for 17, but it does not last long Just at present the fashionable age is 40—or say 37, but there are signs of a change If you were at all good-looking at 27, I should suggest your trying that, and setting a new fashion

THE OLD WOMAN I do not believe a word you are saying However, 27 be it [Whisk! the old woman becomes a young one, magnificently attired and so handsome that in the radiance into which her dull yellow halo has suddenly lightened one might almost mistake her for Ann Whitefield]

DON JUAN Doña Ana de Ulloa!

ANA What? You know me!

DON JUAN And you forget me!

ANA I cannot see your face [He raises his hat] Don Juan Tenorio! Monster! You who slew my father! even here you pursue me

DON JUAN I protest I do not pursue you Allow me to withdraw [going]

ANA [seizing his arm] You shall not leave me alone in this dreadful place

DON JUAN Provided my staying be not interpreted as pursuit

ANA [releasing him] You may well wonder how I can endure your presence My dear, dear father!

DON JUAN Would you like to see him?

ANA My father here!!!

DON JUAN No he is in heaven

ANA I knew it My noble father! He is looking down on us now What must he feel to see his daughter in this place, and in conversation with his murderer!

DON JUAN By the way, if we should meet him—

ANA How can we meet him? He is in heaven

DON JUAN He condescends to look in upon us here from time to time Heaven bores him So let me warn you that if you meet him he will be mortally offended if you speak of me as his murderer! He maintains that he was a much better swordsman than I, and that if his foot had not slipped he would have killed me No doubt he is right I was not a good fencer I never dispute the point; so we are excellent friends

ANA It is no dishonor to a soldier to be proud of his skill in arms

DON JUAN You would rather not meet him, probably

ANA How dare you say that?

DON JUAN Oh, that is the usual feeling here You may remember that on earth—though of course we never confessed it—the death of anyone we knew, even those we liked best, was always mingled with a certain satisfaction at being finally done with them

ANA Monster! Never, never

DON JUAN [placidly] I see you recognize the feeling Yes a funeral was always a festivity in black, especially the funeral of a relative At all events, family ties are rarely kept up here Your father is quite accustomed to this he will not expect any devotion from you

ANA Wretch I wore mourning for him all my life

DON JUAN Yes it became you But a life of mourning is one thing an eternity of it quite another Besides, here you are as dead as he Can anything be more ridiculous than one dead person mourning for another? Do not look shocked, my dear Ana, and do not be alarmed there is plenty of humbug in hell (indeed there is hardly anything else), but the humbug of death and age and change is dropped because here we are all dead and all eternal You will pick up our ways soon

ANA And will all the men call me their dear Ana?

DON JUAN No That was a slip of the tongue I beg your pardon

ANA [almost tenderly] Juan did you really love me when you behaved so disgracefully to me?

DON JUAN [impatiently] Oh, I beg you not to begin talking about love Here they talk of nothing else but love its beauty, its holiness, its spirituality, its devil knows what!—excuse me, but it does so bore me They dont know what theyre talking about I do They think they have achieved the perfection of love because they have no bodies Sheer imaginative debauchery! Faugh!

ANA Has even death failed to refine your soul, Juan? Has the terrible judgment of which my father's statue was the minister taught you no reverence?

DON JUAN How is that very flattering statue, by the way? Does it still come to supper with naughty people and cast them into this bottomless pit?

ANA It has been a great expense to me The boys in the monastery school would not let it alone the mischievous ones broke it, and the studious ones wrote their names on it Three new noses in two years, and fingers without end I had to leave it to its fate at last, and now I fear it is shockingly mutilated My poor father!

DON JUAN Hush! Listen! [Two great chords rolling on syncopated waves of sound break forth D minor and its dominant a sound of dreadful joy to all musicians] Ha! Mozart's statue music It is your father You had better disappear until I prepare him [She vanishes]

From the void comes a living statue of white marble, designed to represent a majestic old man But he waves his majesty with infinite grace, walks with a feather-like step, and makes every wrinkle in his war worn visage brim over with holiday joyousness To his sculptor he owes a perfectly trained figure, which he carries erect and trim, and the ends of his moustache curl up, elastic as watchsprings, giving him an air which, but for its Spanish dignity, would be called jaunty He is on the pleasantest terms with Don Juan His voice, save for a much more distinguished intonation, is so like the voice of Roebuck Ramsden that it calls attention to the fact that they are not unlike one another in spite of their very different fashions of shaving

DON JUAN Ah, here you are, my friend Why dont you learn to sing the splendid music Mozart has written for you?

THE STATUE Unluckily he has written it for a bass voice Mine is a counter tenor Well have you repented yet?

DON JUAN I have too much consideration for you to repent, Don Gonzalo If I did, you would have no excuse for coming from heaven to argue with me

THE STATUE True Remain obdurate, my boy I wish I had killed you, as I should have done but for an accident Then I should have come here, and you would have had a statue and a reputation for piety to live up to Any news?

DON JUAN Yes your daughter is dead

THE STATUE [puzzled] My daughter? [Recollecting] Oh! the one you were taken with Let me see what was her name?

DON JUAN Ana

THE STATUE To be sure Ana A good-looking girl, if I recollect aright Have you warned Whatshisname? her husband

DON JUAN My friend Ottavio? No I have not seen him since Ana arrived

Ana comes indignantly to light

ANA What does this mean? Ottavio here and your friend! And you, father, have forgotten my name You are indeed turned to stone

THE STATUE My dear I am so much more admired in marble than I ever was in my own person that I have retained the shape the sculptor gave me He was one of the first men of his day you must acknowledge that ANA Father! Vanity! personal vanity! from you!

THE STATUE Ah, you outlived that weakness, my daughter you must be nearly 80 by this time I was cut off (by an accident) in my 64th year, and am considerably your junior in consequence Besides, my child, in this place, what our libertine friend here would call the farce of parental wisdom is dropped Regard me, I beg, as a fellow creature, not as a father

ANA You speak as this villain speaks

THE STATUE Juan is a sound thinker, Ana A bad fencer, but a sound thinker

ANA [horror creeping upon her] I begin to understand These are devils, mocking me I had better pray

THE STATUE [consoling her] No, no, no, my child do not pray If you do, you will throw away the main advantage of this place Written over the gate here are the words "Leave every hope behind, ye who enter" Only think what a relief that is! For what is hope? A form of moral responsibility Here there is no hope, and consequently no duty, no work, nothing to be gained by praying, nothing to be lost by doing what you like Hell, in short, is a place where you have nothing to do but amuse yourself [Don Juan sighs deeply] You sigh, friend Juan, but if you dwelt in heaven, as I do, you would realize your advantages

DON JUAN You are in good spirits today, Commander You are positively brilliant What is the matter?

THE STATUE I have come to a momentous decision, my boy But first, where is our friend the Devil? I must consult him in the matter And Ana would like to make his acquaintance, no doubt

ANA You are preparing some torment for me

DON JUAN All that is superstition, Ana Reassure yourself Remember the devil is not so black as he is painted

THE STATUE Let us give him a call

At the wave of the statue's hand the great chords roll out again, but this time Mozart's music gets grotesquely adulterated with Gounod's A scarlet halo begins to glow, and into it the Devil rises, very Mephistophelean, and not at all unlike Mendoza, though not so interesting He looks older, is getting prematurely bald, and, in spite of an effusion of goodnature and friendliness, is peevish and sensitive when his advances are not reciprocated He does not inspire much confidence in his powers of hard work or endurance, and is, on the whole, a disagreeably self-indulgent looking person, but he is clever and plausible, though perceptibly less well bred than the two other men, and enormously less vital than the woman

THE DEVIL [heartily] Have I the pleasure of again receiving a visit from the illustrious Commander of Calatrava? [Coldly] Don Juan, your servant [Politely] And a strange lady? My respects, Señora

ANA Are you—

THE DEVIL [bowing] Lucifer, at your service

ANA I shall go mad

THE DEVIL [gallantly] Ah, Señora, do not be anxious You come to us from earth, full of the prejudices and terrors of that priest-ridden place You have heard me ill spoken of, and yet, believe me, I have hosts of friends there

ANA Yes you reign in their hearts

THE DEVIL [shaking his head] You flatter me, Señora, but you are mistaken It is true that the world cannot get on without me, but it never gives me credit for that in its heart it mistrusts and hates me Its sympathies are all with misery, with poverty, with starvation of the body and of the heart I call on it to sympathize with joy, with love, with happiness, with beauty—

DON JUAN [nauseated] Excuse me I am going You know I cannot stand this

THE DEVIL [angrily] Yes I know that you are no friend of mine

THE STATUE What harm is he doing you, Juan? It seems to me that he was talking excellent sense when you interrupted him

THE DEVIL [warmly patting the statue's hand] Thank you, my friend thank you You have always understood me he has always disparaged and avoided me

DON JUAN I have treated you with perfect courtesy

THE DEVIL Courtesy! What is courtesy? I care nothing for mere courtesy Give me warmth of heart, true sincerity, the bond of sympathy with love and joy—

DON JUAN You are making me ill

THE DEVIL There! [Appealing to the statue] You hear, sir! Oh, by what irony of fate was this cold selfish egotist sent to my kingdom, and you taken to the icy mansions of the sky!

THE STATUE I cant complain I was a hypocrite, and it served me right to be sent to heaven

THE DEVIL Why, sir, do you not join us, and leave a sphere for which your temperament is too sympathetic, your heart too warm, your capacity for enjoyment too generous?

THE STATUE I have this day resolved to do so In future, excellent Son of the Morning, I am yours I have left heaven for ever

THE DEVIL [again touching the marble hand] Ah, what an honor! what a triumph for our cause! Thank you, thank you And now, my friend—I may call you so at last—could you not persuade him to take the place you have left vacant above?

THE STATUE [shaking his head] I cannot conscientiously recommend anybody with whom I am on friendly terms to deliberately make himself dull and uncomfortable

THE DEVIL Of course not, but are you sure he would be uncomfortable? Of course you know best you brought him here originally, and we had the greatest hopes of him His sentiments were in the best taste of our best people You remember how he sang? [He begins to sing in a nasal operatic baritone, tremulous from an eternity of misuse in the French manner]

Vivan le femmine!

Viva il buon vino!

THE STATUE [taking up the tune an octave higher in his counter tenor]

Sostegno e gloria D'umanità

THE DEVIL Precisely Well, he never sings for us now

DON JUAN Do you complain of that? Hell is full of musical amateurs music is the brandy of the damned May not one lost soul be permitted to abstain?

THE DEVIL You dare blaspheme against the sublimest of the arts!

DON JUAN [with cold disgust] You talk like a hysterical woman fawning on a fiddler

THE DEVIL I am not angry I merely pity you You have no soul, and you are unconscious of all that you lose Now you, Señor Commander, are a born musician How well you sing! Mozart would be delighted if he were still here but he moped and went to heaven Curious how these clever men, whom you would have supposed born to be popular here, have turned out social failures, like Don Juan!

DON JUAN I am really very sorry to be a social failure

THE DEVIL Not that we dont admire your intellect, you know We do But I look at the matter from your own point of view You dont get on with us The place doesnt suit you The truth is, you have—I wont say no heart, for we know that beneath all your affected cynicism you have a warm one—

DON JUAN [shrinking] Don't, please dont

THE DEVIL [nettled] Well, youve no capacity for enjoyment Will that satisfy you?

DON JUAN It is a somewhat less insufferable form of cant than the other But if youll allow me, I'll take refuge, as usual, in solitude

THE DEVIL Why not take refuge in heaven? Thats the proper place for you [To Ana] Come, Señora! could you not persuade him for his own good to try change of air?

ANA But can he go to heaven if he wants to?

THE DEVIL Whats to prevent him?

ANA Can anybody—can I go to heaven if I want to?

THE DEVIL [rather contemptuously] Certainly, if your taste lies that way

ANA But why doesn't everybody go to heaven, then?

THE STATUE [chuckling] I can tell you that, my dear It's because heaven is the most angelically dull place in all creation thats why

THE DEVIL His Excellency the Commander

puts it with military bluntness, but the strain of living in heaven is intolerable There is a notion that I was turned out of it, but as a matter of fact nothing could have induced me to stay there I simply left it and organized this place

THE STATUE I dont wonder at it Nobody could stand an eternity of heaven

THE DEVIL Oh, it suits some people Let us be just, Commander it is a question of temperament I dont admire the heavenly temperament I dont understand it I dont know that I particularly want to understand it, but it takes all sorts to make a universe There is no accounting for tastes there are people who like it I think Don Juan would like it

DON JUAN But—pardon my frankness—could you really go back there if you desired to, or are the grapes sour?

THE DEVIL Back there! I often go back there Have you never read the book of Job? Have you any canonical authority for assuming that there is any barrier between our circle and the other one?

ANA But surely there is a great gulf fixed

THE DEVIL Dear lady a parable must not be taken literally The gulf is the difference between the angelic and the diabolic temperament What more impassable gulf could you have? Think of what you have seen on earth There is no physical gulf between the philosopher's class room and the bull ring, but the bull fighters do not come to the class room for all that Have you ever been in the country where I have the largest following? England There they have great racecourses, and also concert rooms where they play the classical compositions of His Excellency's friend Mozart Those who go to the racecourses can stay away from them and go to the classical concerts instead if they like there is no law against it, for Englishmen never will be slaves they are free to do whatever the Government and public opinion allow them to do And the classical concert is admitted to be a higher, more cultivated, poetic, intellectual, ennobling place than the racecourse But do the lovers of racing desert their sport and flock to the concert room? Not they They would suffer there all the weariness the Commander has suffered in heaven There is the great gulf of the parable between the two places A mere physical gulf they could bridge, or at least I could bridge it for them (the earth is full of Devil's Bridges), but the gulf of dislike is impassable and eternal And that is the only gulf that separates my friends here from those who are invidiously called the blest

ANA I shall go to heaven at once

THE STATUE My child one word of warning first Let me complete my friend Lucifer's similitude of the classical concert At every one of those concerts in England you will find rows of weary people who are there, not because they really like classical music, but because they think they ought to like it Well, there is the same thing in heaven A number of people sit there in glory, not because they are happy, but because they think they owe it to their position to be in heaven They are almost all English

THE DEVIL Yes the Southerners give it up and join me just as you have done But the English really do not seem to know when they are thoroughly miserable An Englishman thinks he is moral when he is only uncomfortable

THE STATUE In short, my daughter, if you go to Heaven without being naturally qualified for it, you will not enjoy yourself there

ANA And who dares say that I am not naturally qualified for it? The most distinguished princes of the Church have never questioned it I owe it to myself to leave this place at once

THE DEVIL [offended] As you please, Señora. I should have expected better taste from you

ANA Father I shall expect you to come with me You cannot stay here What will people say?

THE STATUE People! Why, the best people are here—princes of the church and all So few go to Heaven, and so many come here, that the blest, once called a heavenly host, are a continually dwindling minority The saints, the fathers, the elect of long ago are the cranks, the faddists, the outsiders of today

THE DEVIL It is true From the beginning of my career I knew that I should win in the long run by sheer weight of public opinion, in spite of the long campaign of misrepresentation and calumny against me At bottom the universe is a constitutional one, and with such a majority as mine I cannot be kept permanently out of office

DON JUAN I think, Ana, you had better stay here

ANA [jealously] You do not want me to go with you

DON JUAN Surely you do not want to enter Heaven in the company of a reprobate like me

ANA All souls are equally precious You repent, do you not?

DON JUAN My dear Ana, you are silly Do you suppose heaven is like earth, where people persuade themselves that what is done can be undone by repentance, that what is spoken can be unspoken by withdrawing it, that what is true can be annihilated by a general agreement to give it the lie? No heaven is the home of the masters of reality that is why I am going thither

ANA Thank you I am going to heaven for happiness I have had quite enough of reality on earth

DON JUAN Then you must stay here, for hell is the home of the unreal and of the seekers for happiness It is the only refuge from heaven, which is, as I tell you, the home of the masters of reality, and from earth, which is the home of the slaves of reality The earth is a nursery in which men and women play at being heroes and heroines, saints and sinners, but they are dragged down from their fool's paradise by their bodies hunger and cold and thirst, age and decay and disease, death above all, makes them slaves of reality thrice a day meals must be eaten and digested thrice a century a new generation must be engendered ages of faith, of romance, and of science are all driven at last to have but one prayer "Make me a healthy animal" But here you escape this tyranny of the flesh, for here you are not an animal at all you are a ghost, an appearance, an illusion, a convention, deathless, ageless in a word, bodiless There are no social questions here, no political questions, no religious questions, best of all, perhaps, no sanitary questions Here you call your appearance beauty, your emotions love, your sentiments heroism, your aspirations virtue, just as you did on earth, but here there are no hard facts to contradict you, no ironic contrast of your needs with your pretensions, no human comedy, nothing but a perpetual romance, a universal melodrama As our German friend put it in his poem, "the poetically nonsensical here is good sense, and the Eternal Feminine draws us ever upward and on"—without getting us a step farther And yet you want to leave this paradise!

ANA But if hell be so beautiful as this, how glorious must heaven be!

The Devil, the Statue, and Don Juan all begin to speak at once in violent protest, then stop, abashed

DON JUAN I beg your pardon

THE DEVIL Not at all I interrupted you

THE STATUE You were going to say something

DON JUAN After you, gentlemen

THE DEVIL [to Don Juan] You have been so eloquent on the advantages of my dominions that I leave you to do equal justice to the drawbacks of the alternative establishment

DON JUAN In heaven, as I picture it, dear lady, you live and work instead of playing and pretending You face things as they are, you escape nothing but glamor, and your steadfastness and your peril are your glory If the play still goes on here and on earth, and all the world is a stage, heaven is at least behind the scenes But heaven cannot be described by metaphor Thither I shall go presently, because there I hope to escape at last from lies and from the tedious, vulgar pursuit of happiness, to spend my eons in contemplation—

THE STATUE Ugh!

DON JUAN Señor Commander I do not blame your disgust a picture gallery is a dull place for a blind man But even as you enjoy the contemplation of such romantic mirages as beauty and pleasure, so would I enjoy the contemplation of that which interests me above all things namely, Life the force that ever strives to attain greater power of contemplating itself What made this brain of mine, do you think? Not the need to move my limbs, for a rat with half my brains moves as well as I Not merely the need to do, but the need to know what I do, lest in my blind efforts to live I should be slaying myself

THE STATUE You would have slain yourself in your blind efforts to fence but for my foot slipping, my friend

DON JUAN Audacious ribald your laughter will finish in hideous boredom before morning

THE STATUE Ha ha! Do you remember how I frightened you when I said something like that to you from my pedestal in Seville? It sounds rather flat without my trombones

DON JUAN They tell me it generally sounds flat with them, Commander

ANA Oh, do not interrupt with these frivolities, father Is there nothing in heaven but contemplation, Juan

DON JUAN In the heaven I seek, no other joy But there is the work of helping Life in its struggle upward Think of how it wastes and scatters itself, how it raises up obstacles to itself and destroys itself in its ignorance and blindness, It needs a brain, this irresistible force, lest in its ignorance it should resist itself What a piece of work is man! says the poet Yes, but what a blunderer! Here is the highest miracle of organization yet attained by life, the most intensely alive thing that exists, the most conscious of all the organisms, and yet, how wretched are his brains! Stupidity made sordid and cruel by the realities learnt from toil and poverty Imagination resolved to starve sooner than face these realities, piling up illusions to hide them, and calling itself cleverness, genius! And each accusing the other of its own defect Stupidity accusing Imagination of folly, and Imagination accusing Stupidity of ignorance whereas, alas! Stupidity has all the knowledge, and Imagination all the intelligence

THE DEVIL And a pretty kettle of fish they make of it between them Did I not say, when I was arranging that affair of Faust's, that all Man's reason has done for him is to make him beastlier than any beast One splendid body is worth the brains of a hundred dyspeptic, flatulent philosophers

DON JUAN You forget that brainless magnificence of body has been tried Things immeasurably greater than man in every respect but brain have existed and perished The megatherium, the ichthyosaurus have paced the earth with seven-league steps and hidden the day with cloud vast wings Where are they now? Fossils in museums, and so few and imperfect at that, that a knuckle bone or a tooth of one of them is prized beyond the lives of a thousand soldiers These things lived and wanted to live, but for lack of brains they did not know how to carry out their purpose, and so destroyed themselves

THE DEVIL And is Man any the less destroying himself for all this boasted brain of his? Have you walked up and down upon the earth lately? I have, and I have examined Man's wonderful inventions And I tell you that in the arts of life man invents nothing; but in the arts of death he outdoes Nature herself, and produces by chemistry and machinery all the slaughter of plague, pestilence, and famine. The peasant I tempt today eats and drinks what was eaten and drunk by the peasants of ten thousand years ago, and the house he lives in has not altered as much in a thousand centuries as the fashion of a lady's bonnet in a score of weeks. But when he goes out to slay, he carries a marvel of mechanism that lets loose at the touch of his finger all the hidden molecular energies, and leaves the javelin, the arrow, the blowpipe of his fathers far behind. In the arts of peace Man is a bungler. I have seen his cotton factories and the like, with machinery that a greedy dog could have invented if it had wanted money instead of food. I know his clumsy typewriters and bungling locomotives and tedious bicycles; they are toys compared to the Maxim gun, the submarine torpedo boat. There is nothing in Man's industrial machinery but his greed and sloth: his heart is in his weapons. This marvellous force of Life of which you boast is a force of Death. Man measures his strength by his destructiveness. What is his religion? An excuse for hating me. What is his law? An excuse for hanging you. What is his morality? Gentility! an excuse for consuming without producing. What is his art? An excuse for gloating over pictures of slaughter. What are his politics? Either the worship of a despot because a despot can kill, or parliamentary cock-fighting. I spent an evening lately in a certain celebrated legislature, and heard the pot lecturing the kettle for its blackness, and ministers answering questions. When I left I chalked up on the door the old nursery saying "Ask no questions and you will be told no lies." I bought a sixpenny family magazine, and found it full of pictures of young men shooting and stabbing one another. I saw a man die: he was a London bricklayer's laborer with seven children. He left seventeen pounds club money, and his wife spent it all on his funeral and went into the workhouse with the children next day. She would not have spent sevenpence on her children's schooling: the law had to force her to let them be taught gratuitously, but on death she spent all she had. Their imagination glows, their energies rise up at the idea of death, these people: they love it, and the more horrible it is the more they enjoy it. Hell is a place far above their comprehension: they derive their notion of it from two of the greatest fools that ever lived, an Italian and an Englishman. The Italian described it as a place of mud, frost, filth, fire, and venomous serpents: all torture. This ass, when he was not lying about me, was maundering about some woman whom he saw once in the street. The Englishman described me as being expelled from Heaven by cannons and gunpowder, and to this day every Briton believes that the whole of his silly story is in the Bible. What else he says I do not know, for it is all in a long poem which neither I nor anyone else ever succeeded in wading through. It is the same in everything. The highest form of literature is the tragedy, a play in which everybody is murdered at the end. In the old chronicles you read of earthquakes and pestilences, and are told that these shewed the power and majesty of God and the littleness of Man. Nowadays the chronicles describe battles. In a battle two bodies of men shoot at one another with bullets and explosive shells until one body runs away, when the others chase the fugitives on horseback and cut them to pieces as they fly. And this, the chronicle concludes, shews the greatness and majesty of empires and the littleness of the vanquished. Over such battles the people run about the streets yelling with delight, and egg their governments on to spend hundreds of millions of money in the slaughter, whilst the strongest Ministers dare not spend an extra penny in the pound against the poverty and pestilence through which they themselves daily walk. I could give you a thousand instances, but they all come to the same thing: the power that governs the earth is not the power of Life but the power of Death, and the inner need that has nerved Life to the effort of organizing itself into the human being is not the need for higher life but for a more efficient engine of destruction. The plague, the famine, the earthquake, the tempest were too spasmodic in their action, the tiger and crocodile were too easily satiated and not cruel enough: something more constantly, more ruthlessly, more ingeniously destructive was needed, and that something was Man, the inventor of the rack, the stake, the gallows, the electric chair, of sword and gun and poison gas, above all, of justice, duty, patriotism, and all the other isms by which even those who are clever enough to be humanely disposed are persuaded to become the most destructive of all the destroyers

DON JUAN Pshaw! all this is old Your weak side, my diabolic friend, is that you have always been a gull you take Man at his own valuation Nothing would flatter him more than your opinion of him He loves to think of himself as bold and bad He is neither one nor the other he is only a coward Call him tyrant, murderer, pirate, bully, and he will adore you, and swagger about with the consciousness of having the blood of the old sea kings in his veins Call him liar and thief, and he will only take an action against you for libel But call him coward, and he will go mad with rage he will face death to outface that stinging truth Man gives every reason for his conduct save one, every excuse for his crimes save one, every plea for his safety save one, and that one is his cowardice Yet all his civilization is founded on his cowardice, on his abject tameness, which he calls his respectability There are limits to what a mule or an ass will stand, but Man will suffer himself to be degraded until his vileness becomes so loathsome to his oppressors that they themselves are forced to reform it

THE DEVIL Precisely And these are the creatures in whom you discover what you call a Life Force!

DON JUAN Yes, for now comes the most surprising part of the whole business

THE STATUE Whats that?

DON JUAN Why, that you can make any of these cowards brave by simply putting an idea into his head

THE STATUE Stuff! As an old soldier I admit the cowardice it's as universal as sea sickness, and matters just as little But that about putting an idea into a man's head is stuff and nonsense In a battle all you need to make you fight is a little hot blood and the knowledge that it's more dangerous to lose than to win

DON JUAN That is perhaps why battles are so useless But men never really overcome fear until they imagine they are fighting to further a universal purpose—fighting for an idea, as they call it Why was the Crusader braver than the pirate? Because he fought, not for himself, but for the Cross What force was it that met him with a valor as reckless as his own? The force of men who fought, not for themselves, but for Islam They took Spain from us, though we were fighting for our very hearts and homes, but when we, too, fought for that mighty idea, a Catholic Church, we swept them back to Africa

THE DEVIL [ironically] What! you a Catholic, Señor Don Juan! A devotee! My congratulations

THE STATUE [seriously] Come, come! as a soldier, I can listen to nothing against the Church

DON JUAN Have no fear, Commander this idea of a Catholic Church will survive Islam, will survive the Cross, will survive even that vulgar pageant of incompetent schoolboyish gladiators which you call the Army

THE STATUE Juan you will force me to call you to account for this

DON JUAN Useless I cannot fence Every idea for which Man will die will be a Catholic idea When the Spaniard learns at last that he is no better than the Saracen, and his prophet no better than Mahomet, he will anse, more Catholic than ever, and die on a barricade across the filthy slum he starves in, for universal liberty and equality

THE STATUE Bosh!

DON JUAN What you call bosh is the only thing men dare die for Later on, Liberty will not be Catholic enough men will die for human perfection, to which they will sacrifice all their liberty gladly

THE DEVIL Ay they will never be at a loss for an excuse for killing one another

DON JUAN What of that? It is not death that matters, but the fear of death It is not killing and dying that degrades us, but base living, and accepting the wages and profits of degradation Better ten dead men than one live slave or his master Men shall yet rise up, father against son and brother against brother, and kill one another for the great Catholic idea of abolishing slavery

THE DEVIL Yes, when the Liberty and Equality of which you prate shall have made free white Christians cheaper in the labor market than black heathen slaves sold by auction at the block

DON JUAN Never fear! the white laborer shall have his turn too But I am not now defending the illusory forms the great ideas take I am giving you examples of the fact that this creature Man, who in his own selfish affairs is a coward to the backbone, will fight for an idea like a hero. He may be abject as a citizen, but he is dangerous as a fanatic. He can only be enslaved whilst he is spiritually weak enough to listen to reason. I tell you, gentlemen, if you can shew a man a piece of what he now calls God's work to do, and what he will later on call by many new names, you can make him entirely reckless of the consequences to himself personally.

ANA Yes, he shrinks all his responsibilities, and leaves his wife to grapple with them.

THE STATUE Well said, daughter. Do not let him talk you out of your common sense.

THE DEVIL 'Alas! Señor Commander, now that we have got on to the subject of Woman, he will talk more than ever. However, I confess it is for me the one supremely interesting subject.

DON JUAN To a woman, Señora, man's duties and responsibilities begin and end with the task of getting bread for her children. To her, Man is only a means to the end of getting children and rearing them.

ANA Is that your idea of a woman's mind? I call it cynical and disgusting animalism.

DON JUAN Pardon me, Ana. I said nothing about a woman's whole mind. I spoke of her view of Man as a separate sex. It is no more cynical than her view of herself as above all things a Mother. Sexually, Woman is Nature's contrivance for perpetuating its highest achievement. Sexually, Man is Woman's contrivance for fulfilling Nature's behest in the most economical way. She knows by instinct that far back in the evolutionary process she invented him, differentiated him, created him in order to produce something better than the single-sexed process can produce. Whilst he fulfils the purpose for which she made him, he is welcome to his dreams, his follies, his ideals, his heroisms, provided that the keystone of them all is the worship of woman, of motherhood, of the family, of the hearth. But how rash and dangerous it was to invent a separate creature whose sole function was her own impregnation! For mark what has happened. First, Man has multiplied on her hands until there are as many men as women, so that she has been unable to employ for her purposes more than a fraction of the immense energy she has left at his disposal by saving him the exhausting labor of gestation. This superfluous energy has gone to his brain and to his muscle. He has become too strong to be controlled by her bodily, and too imaginative and mentally vigorous to be content with mere self-reproduction. He has created civilization without consulting her, taking her domestic labor for granted as the foundation of it.

ANA That is true, at all events.

THE DEVIL Yes, and this civilization! what is it, after all?

DON JUAN After all, an excellent peg to hang your cynical commonplaces on, but before all, it is an attempt on Man's part to make himself something more than the mere instrument of Woman's purpose. So far, the result of Life's continual effort not only to maintain itself, but to achieve higher and higher organization and completer self-consciousness, is only, at best, a doubtful campaign between its forces and those of Death and Degeneration. The battles in this campaign are mere blunders, mostly won, like actual military battles, in spite of the commanders.

THE STATUE That is a dig at me. No matter, go on, go on.

DON JUAN It is a dig at a much higher power than you, Commander. Still, you must have noticed in your profession that even a stupid general can win battles when the enemy's general is a little stupider.

THE STATUE [very seriously] Most true, Juan, most true. Some donkeys have amazing luck.

DON JUAN Well, the Life Force is stupid, but it is not so stupid as the forces of Death and Degeneration. Besides, these are in its pay all the time. And so Life wins, after a fashion. What mere copiousness of fecundity can supply and mere greed preserve, we possess. The survival of whatever form of civilization can produce the best rifle and the best fed riflemen is assured.

THE DEVIL Exactly! the survival, not of the most effective means of Life but of the most effective means of Death. You always come back to my point, in spite of your wriggings and evasions and sophistries, not to mention the intolerable length of your speeches.

DON JUAN Oh, come! who began making long speeches? However, if I overtax your intellect, you can leave us and seek the society of love and beauty and the rest of your favorite boredoms.

THE DEVIL [much offended] This is not fair,

Don Juan, and not civil I am also on the intellectual plane Nobody can appreciate it more than I do I am arguing fairly with you, and, I think, successfully refuting you Let us go on for another hour if you like

DON JUAN Good let us

THE STATUE Not that I see any prospect of your coming to any point in particular, Juan Still, since in this place, instead of merely killing time we have to kill eternity, go ahead by all means

DON JUAN [somewhat impatiently] My point, you marble-headed old masterpiece, is only a step ahead of you Are we agreed that Life is a force which has made innumerable experiments in organizing itself, that the mammoth and the man, the mouse and the megatherium, the flies and the fleas and the Fathers of the Church, are all more or less successful attempts to build up that raw force into higher and higher individuals, the ideal individual being omnipotent, omniscient, infallible, and withal completely, unilludedly self-conscious in short, a god?

THE DEVIL I agree, for the sake of argument

THE STATUE I agree, for the sake of avoiding argument

ANA I most emphatically disagree as regards the Fathers of the Church, and I must beg you not to drag them into the argument

DON JUAN I did so purely for the sake of alliteration, Ana, and I shall make no further allusion to them And now, since we are, with that exception, agreed so far, will you not agree with me further that Life has not measured the success of its attempts at godhead by the beauty or bodily perfection of the result, since in both these respects the birds, as our friend Aristophanes long ago pointed out, are so extraordinarily superior, with their power of flight and their lovely plumage, and, may I add, the touching poetry of their loves and nestings, that it is inconceivable that Life, having once produced them, should, if love and beauty were her object, start off on another line and labor at the clumsy elephant and the hideous ape, whose grandchildren we are?

ANA Aristophanes was a heathen, and you, Juan, I am afraid, are very little better

THE DEVIL You conclude, then, that Life was driving at clumsiness and ugliness?

DON JUAN No, perverse devil that you are, a thousand times no Life was driving at brains—at its darling object an organ by which it can attain not only self-consciousness but self-understanding

THE STATUE This is metaphysics, Juan Why the devil should—[to The Devil] I beg your pardon

THE DEVIL Pray dont mention it I have always regarded the use of my name to secure additional emphasis as a high complement to me It is quite at your service, Commander

THE STATUE Thank you thats very good of you Even in heaven, I never quite got out of my old military habits of speech What I was going to ask Juan was why Life should bother itself about getting a brain Why should it want to understand itself? Why not be content to enjoy itself?

DON JUAN Without a brain, Commander, you would enjoy yourself without knowing it, and so lose all the fun

THE STATUE True, most true But I am quite content with brain enough to know that I'm enjoying myself I dont want to understand why In fact, I'd rather not My experience is that one's pleasures dont bear thinking about

DON JUAN That is why intellect is so unpopular But to Life, the force behind the Man, intellect is a necessity, because without it he blunders into death Just as Life, after ages of struggle, evolved that wonderful bodily organ the eye, so that the living organism could see where it was going and what was coming to help or threaten it, and thus avoid a thousand dangers that formerly slew it, so it is evolving today a mind's eye that shall see, not the physical world, but the purpose of Life, and thereby enable the individual to work for that purpose instead of thwarting and baffling it by setting up shortsighted personal aims as at present Even as it is, only one sort of man has ever been happy, has ever been universally respected among all the conflicts of interests and illusions

THE STATUE You mean the military man

DON JUAN Commander I do not mean the military man When the military man approaches, the world locks up its spoons and packs off its womankind No I sing, not arms and the hero, but the philosophic man he who seeks in contemplation to discover the inner will of the world, in invention to discover the means of fulfilling that will, and in action to do that will by the so-discovered means Of all other sorts of men I declare myself tired They are tedious failures When I was on earth, professors of all sorts prowled round me feeling for an unhealthy spot in me on which they could fasten The doctors of medicine bade me consider what I must do to save my body, and offered me quack cures for imaginary diseases I replied that I was not a hypochondriac, so they called me Ignoramus and went their way The doctors of divinity bade me consider what I must do to save my soul, but I was not a spiritual hypochondriac any more than a bodily one, and would not trouble myself about that either, so they called me Atheist and went their way After them came the politician who said there was only one purpose in nature, and that was to get him into parliament I told him I did not care whether he got into parliament or not, so he called me Mugwump and went his way Then came the romantic man, the Artist, with his love songs and his paintings and his poems, and with him I had great delight for many years, and some profit, for I cultivated my senses for his sake, and his songs taught me to hear better, his paintings to see better, and his poems to feel more deeply But he led me at last into the worship of Woman

ANA Juan!

DON JUAN Yes I came to believe that in her voice was all the music of the song, in her face all the beauty of the painting, and in her soul all the emotion of the poem

ANA And you were disappointed, I suppose Well, was it her fault that you attributed all these perfections to her?

DON JUAN Yes, partly, For with a wonderful instinctive cunning, she kept silent and allowed me to glorify her to mistake my own visions, thoughts, and feelings for hers Now my friend the romantic man was often too poor or too timid to approach those women who were beautiful or refined enough to seem to realize his ideal, and so he went to his grave believing in his dream But I was more favored by nature and circumstance I was of noble birth and rich, and when my person did not please, my conversation flattered, though I generally found myself fortunate in both

THE STATUE Coxcomb!

DON JUAN Yes, but even my coxcombry pleased Well, I found that when I had touched a woman's imagination, she would allow me to persuade myself that she loved me, but when my suit was granted she never said "I am happy my love is satisfied" she always said, first, "At last, the barriers are down," and second, "When will you come again?"

ANA, That is exactly what men say

DON JUAN I protest I never said it But all women say it Well, these two speeches always alarmed me, for the first meant that the lady's impulse had been solely to throw down my fortifications and gain my citadel, and the second openly announced that henceforth she regarded me as her property, and counted my time as already wholly at her disposal

THE DEVIL That is where your want of heart came in

THE STATUE [shaking his head] You shouldnt repeat what a woman says, Juan

ANA [severely] It should be sacred to you

THE STATUE Still, they certainly do say it I never minded the barriers, but there was always a slight shock about the other, unless one was very hard hit indeed

DON JUAN Then the lady, who had been happy and idle enough before, became anxious, preoccupied with me, always intriguing, conspiring, pursuing, watching, waiting, bent wholly on making sure of her prey I being the prey, you understand Now this was not what I had bargained for It may have been very proper and very natural, but it was not music, painting, poetry, and joy incarnated in a beautiful woman I ran away from it I ran away from it very often in fact I became famous for running away from it

ANA Infamous, you mean

DON JUAN I did not run away from you Do you blame me for running away from the others?

ANA Nonsense, man You are talking to a woman of 77 now If you had had the chance, you would have run away from me too—if I had let you You would not have found it so easy with me as with some of the others If men will not be faithful to their home and their duties, they must be made to be I daresay you all want to marry lovely incarnations of music and painting and poetry Well, you cant have them, because they dont exist If flesh and blood is not good enough for you you must go without thats

all Women have to put up with flesh-and-blood husbands—and little enough of that too, sometimes, and you will have to put up with flesh-and-blood wives [The Devil looks dubious The Statue makes a wry face] I see you don't like that, any of you, but it's true, for all that, so if you don't like it you can lump it

DON JUAN My dear lady, you have put my whole case against romance into a few sentences. That is just why I turned my back on the romantic man with the artist nature, as he called his infatuation. I thanked him for teaching me to use my eyes and ears, but I told him that his beauty worshipping and happiness hunting and woman idealizing was not worth a dump as a philosophy of life, so he called me Philistine and went his way.

ANA It seems that Woman taught you something, too, with all her defects.

DON JUAN She did more she interpreted all the other teaching for me. Ah, my friends, when the barriers were down for the first time, what an astounding illumination! I had been prepared for infatuation, for intoxication, for all the illusions of love's young dream, and lo! never was my perception clearer, nor my criticism more ruthless. The most jealous rival of my mistress never saw every blemish in her more keenly than I. I was not duped. I took her without chloroform.

ANA But you did take her.

DON JUAN That was the revelation. Up to that moment I had never lost the sense of being my own master, never consciously taken a single step until my reason had examined and approved it. I had come to believe that I was a purely rational creature, a thinker! I said, with the foolish philosopher, "I think, therefore I am." It was Woman who taught me to say "I am, therefore I think." And also "I would think more, therefore I must be more."

THE STATUE This is extremely abstract and metaphysical, Juan. If you would stick to the concrete, and put your discoveries in the form of entertaining anecdotes about your adventures with women, your conversation would be easier to follow.

DON JUAN Bah! what need I add? Do you not understand that when I stood face to face with Woman, every fibre in my clear critical brain warned me to spare her and save myself. My morals said No. My conscience said No. My chivalry and pity for her said No. My prudent regard for myself said No. My ear, practised on a thousand songs and symphonies, my eye, exercised on a thousand paintings, tore her voice, her features, her color to shreds. I caught all those tell-tale resemblances to her father and mother by which I knew what she would be like in thirty years' time. I noted the gleam of gold from a dead tooth in the laughing mouth. I made curious observations of the strange odors of the chemistry of the nerves. The visions of my romantic reveries, in which I had trod the plains of heaven with a deathless, ageless creature of coral and ivory, deserted me in that supreme hour. I remembered them and desperately strove to recover their illusion, but they now seemed the emptiest of inventions. My judgment was not to be corrupted. My brain still said No on every issue. And whilst I was in the act of framing my excuse to the lady, Life seized me and threw me into her arms as a sailor throws a scrap of fish into the mouth of a seabird.

THE STATUE You might as well have gone without thinking such a lot about it, Juan. You are like all the clever men you have more brains than is good for you.

THE DEVIL And were you not the happier for the experience, Señor Don Juan?

DON JUAN The happier, no, the wiser, yes. That moment introduced me for the first time to myself, and, through myself, to the world. I saw then how useless it is to attempt to impose conditions on the irresistible force of Life, to preach prudence, careful selection, virtue, honor, chastity—

ANA Don Juan a word against chastity is an insult to me.

DON JUAN I say nothing against your chastity, Señora, since it took the form of a husband and twelve children. What more could you have done had you been the most abandoned of women?

ANA I could have had twelve husbands and no children. That's what I could have done, Juan. And let me tell you that that would have made all the difference to the earth which I replenished.

THE STATUE Bravo Ana! Juan you are floored, quelled, annihilated.

DON JUAN No, for though that difference is the true essential difference—Doña Ana has, I admit, gone straight to the real point —yet it is not a difference of love or chastity, or even constancy, for twelve children by twelve different husbands would have replenished the earth perhaps more effectively. Suppose my friend Ottavio had died when you were thirty, you would never have remained a widow; you were too beautiful. Suppose the successor of Ottavio had died when you were forty, you would still have been irresistible, and a woman who marries twice marries three times if she becomes free to do so. Twelve lawful children borne by one highly respectable lady to three different fathers is not impossible nor condemned by public opinion. That such a lady may be more law-abiding than the poor girl whom we used to spurn into the gutter for bearing one unlawful infant is no doubt true, but dare you say she is less self-indulgent?

ANA She is more virtuous; that is enough for me.

DON JUAN In that case, what is virtue but the Trade Unionism of the married? Let us face the facts, dear Ana. The Life Force respects marriage only because marriage is a contrivance of its own to secure the greatest number of children and the closest care of them. For honor, chastity, and all the rest of your moral figments it cares not a rap. Marriage is the most licentious of human institutions—

ANA Juan!

THE STATUE [protesting] Really!—

DON JUAN [determinedly] I say the most licentious of human institutions—that is the secret of its popularity. And a woman seeking a husband is the most unscrupulous of all the beasts of prey. The confusion of marriage with morality has done more to destroy the conscience of the human race than any other single error. Come, Ana! do not look shocked; you know better than any of us that marriage is a mantrap baited with simulated accomplishments and delusive idealizations. When your sainted mother, by dint of scoldings and punishments, forced you to learn how to play half a dozen pieces on the spinet—which she hated as much as you did—had she any other purpose than to delude your suitors into the belief that your husband would have in his home an angel who would fill it with melody, or at least play him to sleep after dinner? You married my friend Ottavio well, did you ever open the spinet from the hour when the Church united him to you?

ANA You are a fool, Juan. A young married woman has something else to do than sit at the spinet without any support for her back, so she gets out of the habit of playing.

DON JUAN Not if she loves music. No, believe me, she only throws away the bait when the bird is in the net.

ANA [bitterly] And men, I suppose, never throw off the mask when their bird is in the net. The husband never becomes negligent, selfish, brutal—oh, never!

DON JUAN What do these recriminations prove, Ana? Only that the hero is as gross an imposture as the heroine.

ANA It is all nonsense; most marriages are perfectly comfortable.

DON JUAN "Perfectly" is a strong expression, Ana. What you mean is that sensible people make the best of one another. Send me to the galleys and chain me to the felon whose number happens to be next before mine, and I must accept the inevitable and make the best of the companionship. Many such companionships, they tell me, are touchingly affectionate, and most are at least tolerably friendly. But that does not make a chain a desirable ornament nor the galleys an abode of bliss. Those who talk most about the blessings of marriage and the constancy of its vows are the very people who declare that if the chain were broken and the prisoners left free to choose, the whole social fabric would fly asunder. You cannot have the argument both ways. If the prisoner is happy, why lock him in? If he is not, why pretend that he is?

ANA At all events, let me take an old woman's privilege again, and tell you flatly that marriage peoples the world and debauchery does not.

DON JUAN How if a time come when this shall cease to be true? Do you not know that where there is a will there is a way? that whatever Man really wishes to do he will finally discover a means of doing? Well, you have done your best, you virtuous ladies, and others of your way of thinking, to bend Man's mind wholly towards honorable love as the highest good, and to understand by honorable love romance and beauty and happiness in the possession of beautiful, refined, delicate, affectionate women. You have taught women to value their own youth, health, shapeliness, and refinement above all things. Well, what place have squalling babies and household cares in this exquisite paradise of the senses and emotions? Is it not the inevitable end of it all that the human will shall say to the human brain invent me a means by which I can have love, beauty, romance, emotion, passion, without their wretched penalties, their expenses, their worries, their trials, their illnesses and agonies and risks of death, their retinue of servants and nurses and doctors and schoolmasters

THE DEVIL All this, Señor Don Juan, is realized here in my realm

DON JUAN Yes, at the cost of death Man will not take it at that price he demands the romantic delights of your hell whilst he is still on earth Well, the means will be found the brain will not fail when the will is in earnest The day is coming when great nations will find their numbers dwindling from census to census, when the six roomed villa will rise in price above the family mansion, when the viciously reckless poor and the stupidly pious rich will delay the extinction of the race only by degrading it, whilst the boldly prudent, the thriftily selfish and ambitious, the imaginative and poetic, the lovers of money and solid comfort, the worshippers of success, of art, and of love, will all oppose to the Force of Life the device of sterility

THE STATUE That is all very eloquent, my young friend, but if you had lived to Ana's age, or even to mine, you would have learned that the people who get rid of the fear of poverty and children and all the other family troubles, and devote themselves to having a good time of it, only leave their minds free for the fear of old age and ugliness and impotence and death The childless laborer is more tormented by his wife's idleness and her constant demands for amusement and distraction than he could be by twenty children, and his wife is more wretched than he I have had my share of vanity, for as a young man I was admired by women, and as a statue I am praised by art critics But I confess that had I found nothing to do in the world but wallow in these delights I should have cut my throat When I married Ana's mother—or perhaps, to be strictly correct, I should rather say when I at last gave in and allowed Ana's mother to marry me—I knew that I was planting thorns in my pillow, and that marriage for me, a swaggering young officer thitherto unvanquished, meant defeat and capture

ANA [scandalized] Father!

THE STATUE I am sorry to shock you, my love, but since Juan has stripped every rag of decency from the discussion I may as well tell the frozen truth

ANA Hmf! I suppose I was one of the thorns

THE STATUE By no means you were often a rose You see, your mother had most of the trouble you gave

DON JUAN Then may I ask, Commander, why you have left Heaven to come here and wallow, as you express it, in sentimental beatitudes which you confess would once have driven you to cut your throat?

THE STATUE [struck by this] Egad, that's true

THE DEVIL [alarmed] What! You are going back from your word! [To Don Juan] And all your philosophizing has been nothing but a mask for proselytizing! [To the Statue] Have you forgotten already the hideous dulness from which I am offering you a refuge here? [To Don Juan] And does your demonstration of the approaching sterilization and extinction of mankind lead to anything better than making the most of those pleasures of art and love which you yourself admit refined you, elevated you, developed you?

DON JUAN I never demonstrated the extinction of mankind Life cannot will its own extinction either in its blind amorphous state or in any of the forms into which it has organized itself I had not finished when His Excellency interrupted me

THE STATUE I begin to doubt whether you ever will finish, my friend You are extremely fond of hearing yourself talk

DON JUAN True, but since you have endured so much, you may as well endure to the end Long before this sterilization which I described becomes more than a clearly foreseen possibility, the reaction will begin The great central purpose of breeding the race away, breeding it to heights now deemed superhuman that purpose, which is now hidden in a mephitic cloud of love and romance and prudery and fastidiousness, will break through into clear sunlight as a purpose no longer to be confused with the gratification of personal fancies, the impossible realization of boys' and girls' dreams of bliss, or the need of older people for companionship or money The plain-spoken marriage services of the vernacular Churches will no longer be abbreviated and half suppressed as indelicate. The sober decency, earnestness, and authority of their declaration of the real purpose of marriage will be honored and accepted, whilst their romantic vowings and pledgings and until-death-do-us-partings and the like will be expunged as unbearable frivolities. Do my sex the justice to admit, Señora, that we have always recognized that the sex relation is not a personal or friendly relation at all.

ANA Not a personal or friendly relation! What relation is more personal? more sacred? more holy?

DON JUAN Sacred and holy, if you like, Ana, but not personally friendly. Your relation to God is sacred and holy. dare you call it personally friendly? In the sex relation the universal creative energy, of which the parties are both the helpless agents, overrides and sweeps away all personal considerations, and dispenses with all personal relations. The pair may be utter strangers to one another, speaking different languages, differing in race and color, in age and disposition, with no bond between them but a possibility of that fecundity for the sake of which the Life Force throws them into one another's arms at the exchange of a glance. Do we not recognize this by allowing marriages to be made by parents without consulting the woman? Have you not often expressed your disgust at the immorality of the English nation, in which women and men of noble birth become acquainted and court each other like peasants? And how much does even the peasant know of his bride or she of him before he engages himself? Why, you would not make a man your lawyer or your family doctor on so slight an acquaintance as you would fall in love with and marry him!

ANA Yes, Juan we know the libertine's philosophy. Always ignore the consequences to the woman.

DON JUAN The consequences, yes they justify her fierce grip of the man. But surely you do not call that attachment a sentimental one. As well call the policeman's attachment to his prisoner a love relation.

ANA You see you have to confess that marriage is necessary, though, according to you, love is the slightest of all human relations.

DON JUAN How do you know that it is not the greatest of all human relations? far too great to be a personal matter. Could your father have served his country if he had refused to kill any enemy of Spain unless he personally hated him? Can a woman serve her country if she refuses to marry any man she does not personally love? You know it is not so. the woman of noble birth marries as the man of noble birth fights, on political and family grounds, not on personal ones.

THE STATUE [impressed] A very clever point that, Juan. I must think it over. You are really full of ideas. How did you come to think of this one?

DON JUAN I learnt it by experience. When I was on earth, and made those proposals to ladies which though universally condemned, have made me so interesting a hero of legend, I was not infrequently met in some such way as this. The lady would say that she would countenance my advances, provided they were honorable. On inquiring what that proviso meant, I found that it meant that I proposed to get possession of her property if she had any, or to undertake her support for life if she had not, that I desired her continual companionship, counsel, and conversation to the end of my days, and would take a most solemn oath to be always enraptured by them. Above all, that I would turn my back on all other women for ever for her sake. I did not object to these conditions because they were exorbitant and inhuman. It was their extraordinary irrelevance that prostrated me. I invariably replied with perfect frankness that I had never dreamt of any of these things, that unless the lady's character and intellect were equal or superior to my own, her conversation must degrade and her counsel mislead me, that her constant companionship might, for all I knew, become intolerably tedious to me, that I could not answer for my feelings for a week in advance, much less to the end of my life, that to cut me off from all natural and unconstrained intercourse with half my fellow-creatures would narrow and warp me if I submitted to it, and if not, would bring me under the curse of clandestinity; that, finally, my proposals to her were wholly unconnected with any of these matters, and were the outcome of a perfectly simple impulse of my manhood towards her womanhood.

ANA You mean that it was an immoral impulse -

DON JUAN Nature, my dear lady, is what you call immoral I blush for it, but I cannot help it Nature is a pandar, Time a wrecker, and Death a murderer I have always preferred to stand up to those facts and build institutions on their recognition You prefer to propitiate the three devils by proclaiming their chastity, their thrift, and their loving kindness, and to base your institutions on these flatteries Is it any wonder that the institutions do not work smoothly?

THE STATUE What used the ladies to say, Juan?

DON JUAN Oh, come! Confidence for confidence First tell me what you used to say to the ladies

THE STATUE I! Oh, I swore that I would be faithful to the death, that I should die if they refused me, that no woman could ever be to me what she was—

ANA She! Who?

THE STATUE Whoever it happened to be at the time, my dear I had certain things I always said One of them was that even when I was eighty, one white hair of the woman I loved would make me tremble more than the thickest gold tress from the most beautiful young head Another was that I could not bear the thought of anyone else being the mother of my children

DON JUAN [revolted] You old rascal!

THE STATUE [stoutly] Not a bit, for I really believed it with all my soul at the moment I had a heart not like you And it was this sincerity that made me successful

DON JUAN Sincerity! To be fool enough to believe a ramping, stamping, thumping lie that is what you call sincerity! To be so greedy for a woman that you deceive yourself in your eagerness to deceive her sincerity, you call it!

THE STATUE Oh, damn your sophistries! I was a man in love, not a lawyer And the women loved me for it, bless them!

DON JUAN They made you think so What will you say when I tell you that though I played the lawyer so callously, they made me think so too? I also had my moments of infatuation in which I gushed nonsense and believed it Sometimes the desire to give pleasure by saying beautiful things so rose in me on the flood of emotion that I said them recklessly At other times I argued against myself with a devilish coldness that drew tears But I found it just as hard to escape when I was cruel as when I was kind

When the lady's instinct was set on me, there was nothing for it but lifelong servitude or flight

ANA You dare boast, before me and my father, that every woman found you irresistible

DON JUAN Am I boasting? It seems to me that I cut the most pitiable of figures Besides, I said "when the lady's instinct was set on me" It was not always so, and then, heavens! what transports of virtuous indignation! what overwhelming defiance to the dastardly seducer! what scenes of Imogen and Iachimo!

ANA I made no scenes I simply called my father

DON JUAN And he came, sword in hand, to vindicate outraged honor and morality by murdering me

THE STATUE Murdering! What do you mean? Did I kill you or did you kill me?

DON JUAN Which of us was the better fencer?

THE STATUE I was

DON JUAN Of course you were And yet you, the hero of those scandalous adventures you have just been relating to us, you had the effrontery to pose as the avenger of outraged morality and condemn me to death! You would have slain me but for an accident

THE STATUE I was expected to, Juan That is how things were arranged on earth I was not a social reformer, and I always did what it was customary for a gentleman to do

DON JUAN That may account for your attacking me, but not for the revolting hypocrisy of your subsequent proceedings as a statue

THE STATUE That all came of my going to Heaven

THE DEVIL I still fail to see, Señor Don Juan, that these episodes in your earthly career and in that of the Señor Commander in any way discredit my view of life Here, I repeat, you have all that you sought without anything that you shrank from

DON JUAN On the contrary, here I have everything that disappointed me without anything that I have not already tried and found wanting I tell you that as long as I can conceive something better than myself I cannot be easy unless I am striving to bring it into existence or clearing the way for it That is the law of my life That is the working within me of Life's incessant aspiration to higher organization, wider, deeper, intenser self-consciousness, and clearer self-understanding. It was the supremacy of this purpose that reduced love for me to the mere pleasure of a moment, art for me to the mere schooling of my faculties, religion for me to a mere excuse for laziness, since it had set up a God who looked at the world and saw that it was good, against the instinct in me that looked through my eyes at the world and saw that it could be improved. I tell you that in the pursuit of my own pleasure, my own health, my own fortune, I have never known happiness. It was not love for Woman that delivered me into her hands; it was fatigue, exhaustion. When I was a child, and bruised my head against a stone, I ran to the nearest woman and cried away my pain against her apron. When I grew up, and bruised my soul against the brutalities and stupidities with which I had to strive, I did again just what I had done as a child. I have enjoyed, too, my rests, my recuperations, my breathing times, my very prostrations after strife, but rather would I be dragged through all the circles of the foolish Italian's Inferno than through the pleasures of Europe. That is what has made this place of eternal pleasures so deadly to me. It is the absence of this instinct in you that makes you that strange monster called a Devil. It is the success with which you have diverted the attention of men from their real purpose, which in one degree or another is the same as mine, to yours, that has earned you the name of The Tempter. It is the fact that they are doing your will, or rather drifting with your want of will, instead of doing their own, that makes them the uncomfortable, false, restless, artificial, petulant, wretched creatures they are.

THE DEVIL [mortified] Señor Don Juan, you are uncivil to my friends.

DON JUAN Pooh! why should I be civil to them or to you? In this Palace of Lies a truth or two will not hurt you. Your friends are all the dullest dogs I know. They are not beautiful; they are only decorated. They are not clean; they are only shaved and starched. They are not dignified; they are only fashionably dressed. They are not educated; they are only college passmen. They are not religious; they are only pewrenters. They are not moral; they are only conventional. They are not virtuous; they are only cowardly. They are not even vicious; they are only

"frail." They are not artistic; they are only lascivious. They are not prosperous; they are only rich. They are not loyal; they are only servile, not dutiful, only sheepish, not public spirited, only patriotic, not courageous, only quarrelsome, not determined, only obstinate, not masterful, only domineering, not self-controlled, only obtuse, not self-respecting, only vain, not kind, only sentimental, not social, only gregarious, not considerate, only polite, not intelligent, only opinionated, not progressive, only factious, not imaginative, only superstitious, not just, only vindictive, not generous, only propitiatory, not disciplined, only cowed, and not truthful at all. Hars every one of them, to the very backbone of their souls.

THE STATUE Your flow of words is simply amazing, Juan. How I wish I could have talked like that to my soldiers.

THE DEVIL It is mere talk, though. It has all been said before, but what change has it ever made? What notice has the world ever taken of it?

DON JUAN Yes, it is mere talk. But why is it mere talk? Because, my friend, beauty, purity, respectability, religion, morality, art, patriotism, bravery, and the rest are nothing but words which I or anyone else can turn inside out like a glove. Were they realities, you would have to plead guilty to my indictment, but fortunately for your self-respect, my diabolical friend, they are not realities. As you say, they are mere words, useful for duping barbarians into adopting civilization, or the civilized poor into submitting to be robbed and enslaved. That is the family secret of the governing caste, and if we who are of that caste aimed at more life for the world instead of at more power and luxury for our miserable selves, that secret would make us great. Now, since I, being a nobleman, am in the secret too, think how tedious to me must be your unending cant about all these moralistic figments, and how squalidly disastrous your sacrifice of your lives to them! If you even believed in your moral game enough to play it fairly, it would be interesting to watch, but you don't; you cheat at every trick, and if your opponent outcheats you, you upset the table and try to murder him.

THE DEVIL On earth there may be some truth in this, because the people are uneducated and cannot appreciate my religion.

of love and beauty, but here—

DON JUAN Oh yes I know Here there is nothing but love and beauty Ugh! it is like sitting for all eternity at the first act of a fashionable play, before the complications begin Never in my worst moments of superstitious terror on earth did I dream that Hell was so horrible I live, like a hairdresser, in the continual contemplation of beauty, toying with silken tresses I breathe an atmosphere of sweetness, like a confectioner's shopboy Commander are there any beautiful women in Heaven?

THE STATUE None Absolutely none All dowdies Not two pennorth of jewellery among a dozen of them They might be men of fifty

DON JUAN I am impatient to get there Is the word beauty ever mentioned, and are there any artistic people?

THE STATUE I give you my word they wont admire a fine statue even when it walks past them

DON JUAN I go

THE DEVIL Don Juan shall I be frank with you?

DON JUAN Were you not so before?

THE DEVIL As far as I went, yes But I will now go further, and confess to you that men get tired of everything, of heaven no less than of hell, and that all history is nothing but a record of the oscillations of the world between these two extremes An epoch is but a swing of the pendulum, and each generation thinks the world is progressing because it is always moving But when you are as old as I am, when you have a thousand times wearied of heaven, like myself and the Commander, and a thousand times wearied of hell, as you are wearied now, you will no longer imagine that every swing from heaven to hell is an emancipation, every swing from hell to heaven an evolution Where you now see reform, progress, fulfilment of upward tendency, continual ascent by Man on the stepping stones of his dead selves to higher things, you will see nothing but an infinite comedy of illusion You will discover the profound truth of the saying of my friend Koheleth, that there is nothing new under the sun Vanitas vanitatum—

DON JUAN [out of all patience] By Heaven, this is worse than your cant about love and beauty Clever dolt that you are, is a man no better than a worm, or a dog than a wolf, because he gets tired of everything? Shall he give up eating because he destroys his appetite in the act of gratifying it? Is a field idle when it is fallow? Can the Commander expend his hellish energy here without accumulating heavenly energy for his next term of blessedness? Granted that the great Life Force has hit on the device of the clock-maker's pendulum, and uses the earth for its bob, that the history of each oscillation, which seems so novel to us the actors, is but the history of the last oscillation repeated, nay more, that in the unthinkable infinitude of time the sun throws off the earth and catches it again a thousand times as a circus rider throws up a ball, and that our age-long epochs are but the moments between the toss and the catch, has the colossal mechanism no purpose?

THE DEVIL None, my friend You think, because you have a purpose, Nature must have one You might as well expect it to have fingers and toes because you have them

DON JUAN But I should not have them if they served no purpose And I, my friend, am as much a part of Nature as my own finger is a part of me If my finger is the organ by which I grasp the sword and the mandoline, my brain is the organ by which Nature strives to understand itself My dog's brain serves only my dog's purposes, but my own brain labors at a knowledge which does nothing for me personally but make my body bitter to me and my decay and death a calamity Were I not possessed with a purpose beyond my own I had better be a ploughman than a philosopher, for the ploughman lives as long as the philosopher, eats more, sleeps better, and rejoices in the wife of his bosom with less misgiving. This is because the philosopher is in the grip of the Life Force. This Life Force says to him "I have done a thousand wonderful things unconsciously by merely willing to live and following the line of least resistance now I want to know myself and my destination, and choose my path, so I have made a special brain—a philosopher's brain—to grasp this knowledge for me as the husbandman's hand grasps the plough for me And this" says the Life Force to the philosopher "must thou strive to do for me until thou diest, when I will make another brain and another philosopher to carry on the work"

THE DEVIL What is the use of knowing?

- DON JUAN Why, to be able to choose the line of greatest advantage instead of yielding in the direction of the least resistance Does a ship sail to its destination no better than a log drifts nowhither? The philosopher is Nature's pilot And there you have our difference to be in hell is to drift to be in heaven is to steer

THE DEVIL On the rocks, most likely

DON JUAN Pooh! which ship goes oftenest on the rocks or to the bottom? the drifting ship or the ship with a pilot on board?

THE DEVIL Well, well, go your way, Señor Don Juan I prefer to be my own master and not the tool of any blundering universal force I know that beauty is good to look at, that music is good to hear, that love is good to feel, and that they are all good to think about and talk about I know that to be well exercised in these sensations, emotions, and studies is to be a refined and cultivated being Whatever they may say of me in churches on earth, I know that it is universally admitted in good society that the Prince of Darkness is a gentleman, and that is enough for me As to your Life Force, which you think irresistible, it is the most resistible thing in the world for a person of any character But if you are naturally vulgar and credulous, as all reformers are, it will thrust you first into religion, where you will sprinkle water on babies to save their souls from me, then it will drive you from religion into science, where you will snatch the babies from the water sprinkling and inoculate them with disease to save them from catching it accidentally, then you will take to politics, where you will become the catspaw of corrupt functionaries and the henchman of ambitious humbugs, and the end will be despair and decrepitude, broken nerve and shattered hopes, vain regrets for that worst and silliest of wastes and sacrifices, the waste and sacrifice of the power of enjoyment in a word, the punishment of the fool who pursues the better before he has secured the good

DON JUAN But at least I shall not be bored The service of the Life Force has that advantage, at all events So fare you well, Señor Satan

THE DEVIL [amiably] Fare you well, Don Juan I shall often think of our interesting chats about things in general I wish you every happiness Heaven, as I said before, suits some people But if you should change your mind, do not forget that the gates are always open here to the repentant prodigal If you feel at any time that warmth of heart, sincere unforced affection, innocent enjoyment, and warm, breathing, palpitating reality—

DON JUAN Why not say flesh and blood at once, though we have left those two greasy commonplaces behind us?

THE DEVIL [angrily] You throw my friendly farewell back in my teeth, then, Don Juan?

DON JUAN By no means But though there is much to be learnt from a cynical devil, I really cannot stand a sentimental one Señor Commander you know the way to the frontier of hell and heaven Be good enough to direct me

THE STATUE Oh, the frontier is only the difference between two ways of looking at things Any road will take you across it if you really want to get there

DON JUAN Good [Saluting Doña Ana] Señora your servant

ANA But I am going with you

DON JUAN I can find my own way to heaven, Ana, not yours [he vanishes]

ANA How annoying!

THE STATUE [calling after him] Bon voyage, Juan! [He wafts a final blast of his great rolling chords after him as a parting salute A faint echo of the first ghostly melody comes back in acknowledgment] Ah! there he goes [Puffing a long breath out through his lips] Whew! How he does talk! They'll never stand it in heaven

THE DEVIL [gloomily] His going is a political defeat I cannot keep these Life Worshipers they all go This is the greatest loss I have had since that Dutch painter went a fellow who would paint a hag of 70 with as much enjoyment as a Venus of 20

THE STATUE I remember he came to heaven Rembrandt

THE DEVIL Ay, Rembrandt There is something unnatural about these fellows Do not listen to their gospel, Señor Commander it is dangerous Beware of the pursuit of the Superhuman it leads to an indiscriminate contempt for the Human To a man, horses and dogs and cats are mere species, outside the moral world Well, to the Superman, men and women are a mere species too, also outside the moral world This Don Juan was kind to women and courteous to men as your daughter here was kind to her pet cats and dogs, but such kindness is a denial of the exclusively human character of the soul

THE STATUE And who the deuce is the Superman?

THE DEVIL Oh, the latest fashion among the Life Force fanatics Did you not meet in Heaven, among the new arrivals, that German Polish madman? what was his name? Nietzsche?

THE STATUE Never heard of him

THE DEVIL Well, he came here first, before he recovered his wits I had some hopes of him, but he was a confirmed Life Force worshipper It was he who raked up the Superman, who is as old as Prometheus, and the 20th century will run after this newest of the old crazes when it gets tired of the world, the flesh, and your humble servant

THE STATUE Superman is a good cry, and a good cry is half the battle I should like to see this Nietzsche

THE DEVIL Unfortunately he met Wagner here, and had a quarrel with him

THE STATUE Quite right, too Mozart for me!

THE DEVIL Oh, it was not about music Wagner once drifted into Life Force worship, and invented a Superman called Siegfried But he came to his senses afterwards So when they met here, Nietzsche denounced him as a renegade, and Wagner wrote a pamphlet to prove that Nietzsche was a Jew, and it ended in Nietzsche's going to heaven in a huff And a good riddance too And now, my friend, let us hasten to my palace and celebrate your arrival with a grand musical service

THE STATUE With pleasure you're most kind

THE DEVIL This way, Commander We go down the old trap [he places himself on the grave trap]

THE STATUE Good [Reflectively] All the same, the Superman is a fine conception There is something statuesque about it [He places himself on the grave trap beside The Devil It begins to descend slowly Red glow from the abyss] Ah, this reminds me of old times

THE DEVIL And me also

ANA Stop! [The trap stops]

THE DEVIL You, Señora, cannot come this way You will have an apotheosis But you will be at the palace before us

ANA That is not what I stopped you for Tell me where can I find the Superman?

THE DEVIL He is not yet created, Señora
THE STATUE And never will be, probably
Let us proceed the red fire will make me sneeze [They descend]

ANA Not yet created! Then my work is not yet done [Crossing herself devoutly] I believe in the Life to Come [Crying to the universe] A father! a father for the Superman!

She vanishes into the void, and again there is nothing all existence seems suspended infinitely Then, vaguely, there is a live human voice crying somewhere One sees, with a shock, a mountain peak shewing faintly against a lighter background The sky has returned from afar, and we suddenly remember where we were The cry becomes distinct and urgent it says Automobile, Automobile The complete reality comes back with a rush in a moment it is full morning in the Sierra, and the brigands are scrambling to their feet and making for the road as the goatherd runs down from the hill, warning them of the approach of another motor Tanner and Mendoza rise amazedly and stare at one another with scattered wits Straker sits up to yawn for a moment before he gets on his feet, making it a point of honor not to shew any undue interest in the excitement of the bandits Mendoza gives a quick look to see that his followers are attending to the alarm, then exchanges a private word with Tanner

MENDOZA Did you dream?

TANNER Damnably Did you?

MENDOZA Yes I forget what You were in it

TANNER So were you Amazing!

MENDOZA I warned you [A shot is heard from the road] Dolts! they will play with that gun [The brigands come running back scared] Who fired that shot? [to Duval] was it you?

DUVAL [breathless] I have not shoot Dey shoot first

ANARCHIST I told you to begin by abolishing the State Now we are all lost

THE ROWDY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [stampeding across the amphitheatre] Ran, everybody

MENDOZA [collaring him, throwing him on his back, and drawing a knife] I stab the man who stirs [He blocks the way The stampede is checked] What has happened?

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT A motor—

THE ANARCHIST Three men—

DUVAL Deux femmes—

MENDOZA Three men and two women! Why have you not brought them here? Are you afraid of them?

THE ROWDY ONE [getting up] Thyve a hes-cort Ow, de-oooh luts ook it, Mendowza

THE SULKY ONE Two armored cars full o soldiers at the ed o the valley

THE ANARCHIST The shot was fired in the air
It was a signal

Straker whistles his favorite air, which falls on the ears of the brigands like a funeral march

TANNER It is not an escort, but an expedition to capture you We were advised to wait for it, but I was in a hurry

THE ROWDY ONE [in an agony of apprehension] And Ow my good Lord, ere we are, wytin for em! Luts tike to the mahntns

MENDOZA Idiot, what do you know about the mountains? Are you a Spaniard? You would be given up by the first shepherd you met Besides, we are already within range of their rifles

THE ROWDY ONE Bat—

MENDOZA Silence Leave this to me [To Tanner] Comrade you will not betray us

STRAKER Oo are you callin comrade?

MENDOZA Last night the advantage was with me The robber of the poor was at the mercy of the robber of the rich You offered your hand I took it

TANNER I bring no charge against you, comrade We have spent a pleasant evening with you that is all

STRAKER I gev my and to nobody, see?

MENDOZA [turning on him impressively] Young man if I am tried, I shall plead guilty, and explain what drove me from England, home, and duty Do you wish to have the respectable name of Straker dragged through the mud of a Spanish criminal court? The police will search me They will find Louisa's portrait It will be published in the illustrated papers You blench It will be your doing, remember

STRAKER [with baffled rage] I dont care about the court It's avin our name mixed up with yours that I object to, you blackmailin swine, you

MENDOZA Language unworthy of Louisa's brother! But no matter you are muzzled that is enough for us [He turns to face his own men, who back uneasily across the amphitheatre towards the cave to take refuge behind him, as a fresh party, muffled for motorng, comes from the road in riotous spirits Ann, who makes straight for Tanner, comes first, then Violet, helped over the rough ground by Hector holding her right hand and Ramsden her left Mendoza goes to his presidential block and seats himself calmly with his rank and file grouped behind him, and his Staff, consisting of Duval and the Anarchist on his right and the two Social-Democrats on his left, supporting him in flank

ANN It's Jack!

TANNER Caught!

HECTOR Why, certainly it is I said it was you, Tanner We've just been stopped by a puncture the road is full of nails

VIOLET What are you doing here with all these men?

ANN Why did you leave us without a word of warning?

HECTOR I wawnt that bunch of roses, Miss Whitefield [To Tanner] When we found you were gone, Miss Whitefield bet me a bunch of roses my car would not overtake yours before you reached Monte Carlo

TANNER But this is not the road to Monte Carlo

HECTOR No matter Miss Whitefield tracked you at every stopping place she is a regular Sherlock Holmes

TANNER The Life Force! I am lost

OCTAVIUS [bounding gaily down from the road into the amphitheatre, and coming between Tanner and Straker] I am so glad you are safe, old chap We were afraid you had been captured by brigands

RAMSDEN [who has been staring at Mendoza] I seem to remember the face of your friend here [Mendoza rises politely and advances with a smile between Ann and Ramsden]

HECTOR Why, so do I

OCTAVIUS I know you perfectly well, sir, but I cant think where I have met you

MENDOZA [to Violet] Do you remember me, madam?

VIOLET Oh, quite well, but I am so stupid about names

MENDOZA It was at the Savoy Hotel [To Hector] You, sir, used to come with this lady [Violet] to lunch [To Octavius] You, sir, often brought this lady [Ann] and her mother to dinner on your way to the Lyceum Theatre [To Ramsden] You, sir, used to come to supper, with [dropping his voice to a confidential but perfectly audible whisper] several different ladies

RAMSDEN [angrily] Well, what is that to you, pray?

OCTAVIUS Why, Violet, I thought you hardly knew one another before this trip, you and Malone!

VIOLET [vexed] I suppose this person was the manager

MENDOZA The waiter, madam I have a grateful recollection of you all I gathered from the bountiful way in which you treated me that you all enjoyed your visits very much

VIOLET What impertinence! [She turns her back on him, and goes up the hill with Hector]

RAMSDEN That will do, my friend You do not expect these ladies to treat you as an acquaintance, I suppose, because you have waited on them at table

MENDOZA Pardon me it was you who claimed my acquaintance The ladies followed your example However, this display of the unfortunate manners of your class closes the incident For the future, you will please address me with the respect due to a stranger and fellow traveller [He turns haughtily away and resumes his presidential seat]

TANNER There! I have found one man on my journey capable of reasonable conversation, and you all instinctively insult him Even the New Man is as bad as any of you Enry you have behaved just like a miserable gentleman

STRAKER Gentleman! Not me

RAMSDEN Really, Tanner, this tone—

ANN Dont mind him, Granny you ought to know him by this time [she takes his arm and coaxes him away to the hill to join Violet and Hector Octavius follows her, dog-like]

VIOLET [calling from the hill] Here are the soldiers They are getting out of their motors

DUVAL [panicstricken] Oh, nom de Dieu!

THE ANARCHIST Fools the State is about to crush you because you spared it at the prompting of the political hangers-on of the bourgeoisie

THE SULKY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [argumentative to the last] On the contrary, only by capturing the State machine—

THE ANARCHIST It is going to capture you

THE ROWDY SOCIAL-DEMOCRAT [his anguish culminating] Ow, chack it Wot are we ere for? Wot are we wytin for?

MENDOZA [between his teeth] Go on Talk politics, you idiots nothing sounds more respectable Keep it up, I tell you

The soldiers line the road, commanding the amphitheatre with their rifles The brigands, struggling with an overwhelming impulse to hide behind one another, look as unconcerned as they can Mendoza rises superbly, with undaunted front The officer in command steps down from the road into the amphitheatre, looks hard at the brigands, and then inquiringly at Tanner

THE OFFICER Who are these men, Señor Ingles?

TANNER My escort

Mendoza, with a Mephistophelean smile, bows profoundly An irrepressible grin runs from face to face among the brigands They touch their hats, except the Anarchist, who defies the State with folded arms

ACT IV

The garden of a villa in Granada Whoever wishes to know what it is like must go to Granada to see One may prosaically specify a group of hills dotted with villas, the Alhambra on the top of one of the hills, and a considerable town in the valley, approached by dusty white roads in which the children, no matter what they are doing or thinking about, automatically whine for half-pence and reach out little clutching brown palms for them, but there is nothing in this description except the Alhambra, the begging, and the color of the roads, that does not fit Surrey as well as Spain The difference is that the Surrey hills are comparatively small and ugly, and should properly be called the Surrey Protuberances, but these Spanish hills are of mountain stock the amenity which conceals their size does not compromise their dignity

This particular garden is on a hill opposite the Alhambra, and the villa is as expensive and pretentious as a villa must be if it is to be let furnished by the week to opulent American and English visitors If ne stand on the lawn at the foot of the garden and look uphill, our horizon is the stone balustrade of a flagged platform on the edge of infinite space at the top of the hill Between us and this platform is a flower garden with a circular basin and fountain in the centre, surrounded by geometrical flower beds, gravel paths, and clipped yew trees in the genteel order The garden is higher than our lawn, so ne reach it by a few steps in the middle of its embankment The platform is higher again than the garden, from which we mount a couple more steps to look over the balustrade at a fine view of the town up the valley and of the hills that stretch away beyond it to where, in the remotest distance, they become mountains On our left is the villa, accessible by steps from the left hand corner of the garden Returning from the platform through the garden and down again to the lawn (a movement which leaves the villa behind us on our right) we find evidence of literary interests on the part of the tenants in the fact that there is no tennis net nor set of croquet hoops, but, on our left, a little iron garden table with books on it, mostly yellow-backed, and a chair beside it. A chair on the right has also a couple of open books upon it. There are no newspapers, a circumstance which, with the absence of games, might lead an intelligent spectator to the most far reaching conclusions as to the sort of people who live in the villa. Such speculations are checked, however, on this delightfully fine afternoon, by the appearance at a little gate in a paling on our left, of Henry Straker in his professional costume. He opens the gate for an elderly gentleman, and follows him on to the lawn.

This elderly gentleman defies the Spanish sun in a black frock coat, tall silk hat, trousers in which narrow stripes of dark grey and lilac blend into a highly respectable color, and a black necktie tied into a bow over spotless linen. Probably therefore a man whose social position needs constant and scrupulous affirmation without regard to climate one who would dress thus for the middle of the Sahara or the top of Mont Blanc. And since he has not the stamp of the class which accepts as its life-mission the advertizing and maintenance of first rate tailoring and millinery, he looks vulgar in his finery, though in a working dress of any kind he would look dignified enough. He is a bullet cheeked man with a red complexion, stubbly hair, smallish eyes, a hard mouth that folds down at the corners, and a dogged chin. The looseness of skin that comes with age has attacked his throat and the laps of his cheeks, but he is still hard as an apple above the mouth, so that the upper half of his face looks younger than the lower. He has the self-confidence of one who has made money, and something of the truculence of one who has made it in a brutalizing struggle, his civility having under it a perceptible menace that he has other methods in reserve if necessary. Withal, a man to be rather pitied when he is not to be feared, for there is something pathetic about him at times, as if the huge commercial machine which has worked him into his frock coat had allowed him very little of his own way and left his affections hungry and baffled. At the first word that falls from him it is clear that he is an Irishman whose native intonation has clung to him through many changes of place and rank. One can only guess that the original material of his speech was perhaps the surly

Kerry brogue, but the degradation of speech that occurs in London, Glasgow, Dublin, and big cities generally has been at work on it so long that nobody but an arrant cockney would dream of calling it a brogue now, for its music is almost gone, though its surliness is still perceptible. Straker, being a very obvious cockney, inspires him with implacable contempt, as a stupid Englishman who cannot even speak his own language properly. Straker, on the other hand, regards the old gentleman's accent as a joke thoughtfully provided by Providence expressly for the amusement of the British race, and treats him normally with the indulgence due to an inferior and unlucky species, but occasionally with indignant alarm when the old gentleman shews signs of intending his Irish nonsense to be taken seriously.

STRAKER I'll go tell the young lady. She said you'd prefer to stay here [he turns to go up through the garden to the villa].

THE IRISHMAN [who has been looking round him with lively curiosity] The young lady? That's Miss Violet, eh?

STRAKER [stopping on the steps with sudden suspicion] Well, you know, dont you?

THE IRISHMAN Do I?

STRAKER [his temper rising] Well, do you or dont you?

THE IRISHMAN What business is that of yours?

Straker, now highly indignant, comes back from the steps and confronts the visitor.

STRAKER I'll tell you what business it is of mine. Miss Robinson—

THE IRISHMAN [interrupting] Oh, her name is Robinson, is it? Thank you.

STRAKER Why, you dont know even her name?

THE IRISHMAN Yes I do, now that you've told me.

STRAKER [after a moment of stupefaction at the old man's readiness in repartee] Look here, what do you mean by getting into my car and letting me bring you here if you're not the person I took that note to?

THE IRISHMAN Who else did you take it to, pray?

STRAKER I took it to Mr Ector Malone, at Miss Robinson's request, see? Miss Robinson is not my principal. I took it to oblige her. I know Mr Malone, and he isn't you, not by a long chalk. At the hotel they told me that your name is Ector Malone—

MALONE Hector Malone.

STRAKER [with calm superiority] Hector in your own country thats what comes o livin in provincial places like Ireland and America Over here youre Ector if you avnt noticed it before you soon will

The growing strain of the conversation is here relieved by Violet, who has sallied from the villa and through the garden to the steps, which she now descends, coming very opportunely between Malone and Straker

VIOLET [to Straker] Did you take my message?

STRAKER Yes, miss I took it to the hotel and sent it up, expecting to see young Mr Malone Then out walks this gent, and says it's all right and he'll come with me So as the hotel people said he was Mr Ector Malone, I fetched him And now he goes back on what he said But if he isnt the gentleman you meant, say the word it's easy enough to fetch him back again

MALONE I should esteem it a great favor if I might have a short conversation with you, madam I am Hector's father, as this bright Britisher would have guessed in the course of another hour or so

STRAKER [coolly defiant] No, not in another year or so When weve ad you as long to polish up as weve ad im, perhaps youll begin to look a little bit up to is mark At present you fall a long way short Youve got too many aitches, for one thing [To Violet, amiably] All right, Miss you want to talk to him I shant intrude [He nods affably to Malone and goes out through the little gate in the paling]

VIOLET [very civilly] I am so sorry, Mr Malone, if that man has been rude to you But what can we do? He is our chauffeur

MALONE Your hwat?

VIOLET The driver of our automobile He can drive a motor car at seventy miles an hour, and mend it when it breaks down We are dependent on our motor cars, and our motor cars are dependent on him, so of course we are dependent on him

MALONE Ive noticed, madam, that every thousand dollars an Englishman gets seems to add one to the number of people he's dependent on However, you neednt apologize for your man I made him talk on purpose By doing so I learnt that youre stayin here in Granmda with a party of English, including my son Hector

VIOLET [conversationally] Yes We intended to go to Nice, but we had to follow a rather eccentric member of our party who started first and came here Wont you sit down? [She clears the nearest chair of the two books on it]

MALONE [impressed by this attention] Thank you [He sits down, examining her curiously as she goes to the iron table to put down the books When she turns to him again, he says] Miss Robinson, I believe?

VIOLET [sitting down] Yes

MALONE [taking a letter from his pocket] Your note to Hector runs as follows [Violet is unable to repress a start He pauses quietly to take out and put on his spectacles, which have gold rims] "Dearest they have all gone to the Alhambra for the afternoon I have shammed headache and have the garden all to myself Jump into Jack's motor Straker will rattle you here in a jiffy Quick, quick, quick. Your loving Violet" [He looks at her, but by this time she has recovered herself, and meets his spectacles with perfect composure He continues slowly] Now I dont know on hwat terms young people associate in English society, but in America that note would be considered to imply a very considerable degree of affectionate intimacy between the parties

VIOLET Yes I know your son very well, Mr Malone Have you any objection?

MALONE [somewhat taken aback] No, no objection exactly Provided it is understood that my son is altogether dependent on me, and that I have to be consulted in any important step he may propose to take

VIOLET I am sure you would not be unreasonable with him, Mr Malone

MALONE I hope not, Miss Robinson, but at your age you might think many things unreasonable that dont seem so to me

VIOLET [with a little shrug] Oh, well, I suppose theres no use our playing at cross purposes, Mr Malone Hector wants to marry me

MALONE I inferred from your note that he might Well, Miss Robinson, he is his own master, but if he marries you he shall not have a rap from me [He takes off his spectacles and pockets them with the note]

VIOLET [with some severity] That is not very complimentary to me, Mr Malone

MALONE I say nothing against you, Miss Robinson I daresay you are an amiable and excellent young lady But I have other views for Hector

VIOLET Hector may not have other views

for himself, Mr Malone

MALONE Possibly not Then he does without me thats all I daresay you are prepared for that When a young lady writes to a young man to come to her quick, quick, quick, money seems nothing and love seems everything

VIOLET [sharply] I beg your pardon, Mr Malone I do not think anything so foolish Hector must have money

MALONE [staggered] Oh, very well, very well No doubt he can work for it

VIOLET What is the use of having money if you have to work for it? [She rises impatiently] It's all nonsense, Mr Malone you must enable your son to keep up his position It is his right

MALONE [grimly] I should not advise you to marry him on the strength of that right, Miss Robinson

Violet, who has almost lost her temper, controls herself with an effort, unclenches her fingers, and resumes her seat with studied tranquillity and reasonableness

VIOLET What objection have you to me, pray? My social position is as good as Hector's, to say the least He admits it

MALONE [shrendly] You tell him so from time to time eh? Hector's social position in England, Miss Robinson, is just what I choose to buy for him I have made him a fair offer Let him pick out the most historic house, castle, or abbey that England contains The very day he tells me he wants it for a wife worthy of its traditions, I buy it for him, and give him the means of keeping it up VIOLET What do you mean by a wife worthy of its traditions? Cannot any well bred woman keep such a house for him?

MALONE No she must be born to it.

VIOLET Hector was not born to it, was he?

MALONE His granmother was a barefooted Irish girl that nursed me by a turf fire Let him marry another such, and I will not stint her marriage portion Let him raise himself socially with my money or raise somebody else so long as there is a social profit somewhere, I'll regard my expenditure as justified But there must be a profit for someone A marriage with you would leave things just where they are

VIOLET Many of my relations would object very much to my marrying the grandson of a common woman, Mr Malone That may be prejudice but so is your desire to have him marry a title prejudice

MALONE [rising, and approaching her with a scrutiny in which there is a good deal of reluctant respect] You seem a pretty straightforward downright sort of a young woman

VIOLET I do not see why I should be made miserably poor because I cannot make profits for you Why do you want to make Hector unhappy?

MALONE He will get over it all right enough Men thrive better on disappointments in love than on disappointments in money I daresay you think that sordid, but I know what I'm talking about Me father died of starvation in Ireland in the black 47 Maybe you've heard of it

VIOLET The Famine?

MALONE [with smouldering passion] No, the starvation When a country is full o food, and exporting it, there can be no famine. Me father was starved dead, and I was starved out to America in me mother's arms English rule drove me and mine out of Ireland Well, you can keep Ireland Me and me like are coming back to buy England, and we'll buy the best of it I want no middle class properties and no middle class women for Hector Thats straightforward, isnt it, like yourself?

VIOLET [icily pitying his sentimentality] Really, Mr Malone, I am astonished to hear a man of your age and good sense talking in that romantic way. Do you suppose English noblemen will sell their places to you for the asking?

MALONE I have the refusal of two of the oldest family mansions in England One historic owner cant afford to keep all the rooms dusted the other cant afford the death duties What do you say now?

VIOLET Of course it is very scandalous, but surely you know that the Government will sooner or later put a stop to all these Socialistic attacks on property

MALONE [grinning] D'y' think they'll be able to get that done before I buy the house—or rather the abbey? Theyre both abbeys

VIOLET [putting that aside rather impatiently] Oh, well, let us talk sense, Mr Malone You must feel that we havnt been talking sense so far

MALONE I cant say I do I mean all I say

VIOLET Then you dont know Hector as I do He is romantic and faddy—he gets it from you, I fancy—and he wants a certain sort of wife to take care of him Not a faddy sort of person, you know

MALONE Somebody like you, perhaps?

VIOLET [quietly] Well, yes But you cannot very well ask me to undertake this with absolutely no means of keeping up his position

MALONE [alarmed] Stop a bit, stop a bit Where are we getting to? I'm not aware that I'm asking you to undertake anything

VIOLET Of course, Mr Malone, you can make it very difficult for me to speak to you if you choose to misunderstand me

MALONE [half bewildered] I don't wish to take any unfair advantage, but we seem to have got off the straight track somehow

Straker, with the air of a man who has been making haste, opens the little gate, and admits Hector, who, snorting with indignation, comes upon the lawn, and is making for his father when Violet, greatly dismayed, springs up and intercepts him Straker does not wait, at least he does not remain within earshot

VIOLET Oh, how unlucky! Now please, Hector, say nothing Go away until I have finished speaking to your father

HECTOR [inexorably] No, Violet I mean to have this thing out, right away [He puts her aside, passes her by, and faces his father, whose cheeks darken as his Irish blood begins to simmer] Dad you've not played this hand straight

MALONE Hwat d'y'mean?

HECTOR You've opened a letter addressed to me You've impersonated me and stolen a march on this lady That's disawnerable

MALONE [threateningly] Now you take care what you're saying, Hector Take care, I tell you

HECTOR I have taken care I am taking care I'm taking care of my honor and my position in English society

MALONE [hotly] Your position has been got by my money do you know that?

HECTOR Well, you've just spoiled it all by opening that letter A letter from an English lady, not addressed to you—a cawnfidential letter! a dullicate letter! a private letter! opened by my father! That's a sort of thing a man can't struggle against in England The sooner we go back together the better [He appeals mutely to the heavens to witness the shame and anguish of two outcasts]

VIOLET [snubbing him with an instinctive dis- like for scene making] Don't be unreasonable, Hector It was quite natural for Mr Malone to open my letter his name was on the envelope

MALONE There! You've no common sense, Hector I thank you, Miss Robinson

HECTOR I thank you, too It's very kind of you My father knows no better

MALONE [furiously clenching his fists] Hector—

HECTOR [with undaunted moral force] Oh, it's no use hectoring me A private letter's a private letter, dad you can't get over that

MALONE [raising his voice] I won't be talked back to by you, d'y'hear?

VIOLET Ssh! please, please Here they all come

Father and son, checked, glare mutely at one another as Tanner comes in through the little gate with Ramsden, followed by Octavius and Ann

VIOLET Back already!

TANNER The Alhambra is not open this afternoon

VIOLET What a sell!

Tanner passes on, and presently finds himself between Hector and a strange elder, both apparently on the verge of personal combat He looks from one to the other for an explanation They sulkily avoid his eye, and nurse their wrath in silence

RAMSDEN Is it wise for you to be out in the sunshine with such a headache, Violet?

TANNER Have you recovered too, Malone?

VIOLET Oh, I forgot We have not all met before Mr Malone won't you introduce your father?

HECTOR [with Roman firmness] No, I will not He is no father of mine

MALONE [very angry] You disown your dad before your English friends, do you?

VIOLET Oh, please don't make a scene

Ann and Octavius, lingering near the gate, exchange an astomished glance, and discreetly withdraw up the steps to the garden, where they can enjoy the disturbance without intruding On their way to the steps Ann sends a little grimace of mute sympathy to Violet, who is standing with her back to the little table, looking on in helpless annoyance as her husband soars to higher and higher moral eminences without the least regard to the old man's millions

HECTOR I'm very sorry, Miss Robinson, but I'm contending for a principle I am a son, and, I hope, a dutiful one, but before everything I'm a Mahn!" And when dad treats my private letters as his own, and takes it on himself to say that I shant marry you if I am happy and fortunate enough to gain your consent, then I just snap my fingers and go my own way

TANNER Marry Violet!

RAMSDEN Are you in your senses?

TANNER Do you forget what we told you?

HECTOR [recklessly] I dont care what you told me

RAMSDEN [scandalized] Tut tut, sir! Monstrous! [he flings away towards the gate, his elbows quivering with indignation]

TANNER Another madman! These men in love should be locked up [He gives Hector up as hopeless, and turns away towards the garden, but Malone, taking offence in a new direction, follows him and compels him, by the aggressiveness of his tone, to stop]

MALONE I dont understand this Is Hector not good enough for this lady, pray?

TANNER My dear sir, the lady is married already Hector knows it, and yet he persists in his infatuation Take him home and lock him up

MALONE [bitterly] So this is the highborn social tone Ive spoilt be me ignorant, uncultivated behavior! Makin love to a married woman! [He comes angrily between Hector and Violet, and almost bawls into Hector's left ear] Youve picked up that habit of the British aristocracy, have you?

HECTOR Thats all right Dont you trouble yourself about that I'll answer for the morality of what I'm doing

TANNER [coming forward to Hector's right hand with flashing eyes] Well said, Malone! You also see that mere marriage laws are not morality! I agree with you, but unfortunately Violet does not

MALONE I take leave to doubt that, sir [Turning on Violet] Let me tell you, Mrs Robinson, or whatever your right name is, you had no right to send that letter to my son when you were the wife of another man

HECTOR [outraged] This is the last straw Dad you have insulted my wife

MALONE Your wife!

TANNER You the missing husband! Another moral impostor! [He smites his brow, and collapses into Malone's chair]

MALONE Youve married without my consent!

RAMSDEN You have deliberately humbugged us, sir!

HECTOR Here I have had just about enough of being badgered Violet and I are married thats the long and the short of it Now what have you got to say—any of you?

MALONE I know what Ive got to say She's married a beggar

HECTOR No she's married a Worker [his American pronunciation imparts an overwhelming intensity to this simple and unpopular word] I start to earn my own living this very afternoon

MALONE [sneering angrily] Yes youre very plucky now, because you got your remittance from me yesterday or this morning, I reckon Wait! it's spent You wont be so full of cheek then

HECTOR [producing a letter from his pocket-book] Here it is [thrusting it on his father] Now you just take your remittance and yourself out of my life I'm done with remittances, and I'm done with you I dont sell the privilege of insulting my wife for a thousand dollars

MALONE [deeply wounded and full of concern] Hector you dont know what poverty is

HECTOR [fervidly] Well, I wawnt to know what it is I wawnt be a Mahn Violet you come along with me, to your own home I'll see you through

OCTAVIUS [jumping down from the garden to the lawn and running to Hector's left hand] I hope youll shake hands with me before you go, Hector I admire and respect you more than I can say [He is affected almost to tears as they shake hands]

VIOLET [also almost in tears, but of vexation] Oh, dont be an idiot, Tavy Hector's about as fit to become a workman as you are

TANNER [rising from his chair on the other side of Hector] Never fear theres no question of his becoming a navy, Mrs Malone [To Hector] Theres really no difficulty about capital to start with Treat me as a friend draw on me

OCTAVIUS [impulsively] Or on me

MALONE [with fierce jealousy] Who wants your durty money? Who should he draw on but his own father? [Tanner and Octavius recoil, Octavius rather hurt, Tanner consoled by the solution of the money difficulty Violet looks up hopefully] Hector dont be rash, my boy I'm sorry for what I said I never meant to insult Violet I take it all back She's just the wife you want there!

HECTOR [patting him on the shoulder] Well, thats all right, dad Say no more we're friends again Only, I take no money from anybody

MALONE [pleading abjectly] Dont be hard on me, Hector I'd rather you quarrelled and took the money than made friends and starved You dont know what the world is I do

HECTOR No, no, NO Thats fixed thats not going to change [He passes his father inexorably by, and goes to Violet] Come, Mrs Malone youve got to move to the hotel with me, and take your proper place before the world

VIOLET But I must go in, dear, and tell Davis to pack Wont you go on and make them give you a room overlooking the garden for me? I'll join you in half an hour

HECTOR Very well Youll dine with us, Dad, wont you?

MALONE [eager to conciliate him] Yes, yes

HECTOR See you all later [He waves his hand to Ann, who has now been joined by Tanner, Octavius, and Ramsden in the garden, and goes out through the little gate, leaving his father and Violet together on the lawn]

MALONE Youll try to bring him to his senses, Violet I know you will

VIOLET I had no idea he could be so head-strong If he goes on like that, what can I do?

MALONE Dont be discurridged domestic pressure may be slow, but it's sure Youll wear him down Promise me you will

VIOLET I will do my best Of course I think it's the greatest nonsense deliberately making us poor like that

MALONE Of course it is

VIOLET [after a moment's reflection] You had better give me the remittance He will want it for his hotel bill I'll see whether I can induce him to accept it Not now, of course, but presently

MALONE [eagerly] Yes, yes, yes thats just the thing [he hands her the thousand dollar bill, and adds cunningly] Y'understand that this is only a bachelor allowance

VIOLET [coolly] Oh, quite [She takes it] Thank you By the way, Mr Malone, those two houses you mentioned—the abbeyes

MALONE Yes?

VIOLET Dont take one of them until Ive seen it One never knows what may be wrong with these places

MALONE I wont I'll do nothing without consulting you, never fear

VIOLET [politely, but without a ray of gratitude] Thanks that will be much the best way [She goes calmly back to the villa, escorted obsequiously by Malone to the upper end of the garden]

TANNER [drawing Ramsden's attention to Malone's cringing attitude as he takes leave of Violet] And that poor devil is a billionaire! one of the master spirits of the age! Led in a string like a pug dog by the first girl who takes the trouble to despise him! I wonder will it ever come to that with me [He comes down to the lawn]

RAMSDEN [following him] The sooner the better for you

MALONE [slapping his hands as he returns through the garden] That'll be a grand woman for Hector I wouldnt exchange her for ten duchesses [He descends to the lawn and comes between Tanner and Ramsden]

RAMSDEN [very civil to the billionaire] It's an unexpected pleasure to find you in this corner of the world, Mr Malone Have you come to buy up the Alhambra?

MALONE Well, I dont say I mightnt I think I could do better with it than the Spanish government But thats not what I came about To tell you the truth, about a month ago I overheard a deal between two men over a bundle of shares They differed about the price they were young and greedy, and didnt know that if the shares were worth what was bid for them they must be worth what was asked, the margin being too small to be of any account, you see To amuse meself, I cut in and bought the shares Well, to this day I havnt found out what the business is The office is in this town, and the name is Mendoza, Limited Now whether Mendoza's a mine, or a steamboat line, or a bank, or a patent article—

TANNER He's a man I know him his principles are thoroughly commercial Let us take you round the town in our motor, Mr Malone, and call on him on the way

MALONE If youll be so kind, yes And may I ask who—

TANNER Mr Roebuck Ramsden, a very old friend of your daughter-in-law

MALONE Happy to meet you, Mr Ramsden

RAMSDEN Thank you Mr Tanner is also one of our circle

MALONE Glad to know you also, Mr Tanner

TANNER Thanks [Malone and Ramsden go] out very amucably through the little gate Tanner calls to Octavius who is wandering in the garden with Ann] Tavy! [Tavy comes to the steps Tanner whispers loudly to him] Violet's father-in-law is a financier of brigands [Tanner hurries away to overtake Malone and Ramsden Ann strolls to the steps with an idle impulse to torment Octavius]

ANN Wont you go with them Tavy?

OCTAVIUS [tears suddenly flushing his eyes] You cut me to the heart, Ann, by wanting me to go [he comes down on the lawn to hide his face from her She follows him caressingly]

ANN Poor Ricky Ticky Tavy! Poor heart!

OCTAVIUS It belongs to you, Ann Forgive me I must speak of it I love you You know I love you

ANN Whats the good, Tavy? You know that my mother is determined that I shall marry Jack OCTAVIUS [amazed] Jack!

ANN It seems absurd doesnt it?

OCTAVIUS [with growing resentment] Do you mean to say that Jack has been playing with me all this time? That he has been urging me not to marry you because he intends to marry you himself?

ANN [alarmed] No no you mustnt lead him to believe that I said that I dont for a moment think that Jack knows his own mind But it's clear from my father's will that he wished me to marry Jack. And my mother is set on it

OCTAVIUS But you are not bound to sacrifice yourself always to the wishes of your parents

ANN My father loved me My mother loves me Surely their wishes are a better guide than my own selfishness

OCTAVIUS Oh I know how unselfish you are, Ann But believe me—though I know I am speaking in my own interest—there is another side to this question Is it fair to Jack to marry him if you do not love him? Is it fair to destroy my happiness as well as your own if you can bring yourself to love me?

ANN [looking at him with a faint impulse of pity] Tavy, my dear, you are a nice creature—a good boy

OCTAVIUS [humiliated] Is that all?

ANN [mischievously in spite of her pity] Thats a great deal I assure you You would always worship the ground I trod on, wouldnt you?

OCTAVIUS I do It sounds ridiculous, but it's no exaggeration I do, and I always shall

ANN Always is a long word, Tavy You see, I shall have to live up always to your idea of my divinity, and I dont think I could do that if we were married But if I marry Jack, youll never be disillusioned—at least not until I grow too old

OCTAVIUS I too shall grow old, Ann And when I am eighty, one white hair of the woman I love will make me tremble more than the thickest gold tress from the most beautiful young head

ANN [quite touched] Oh thats poetry, Tavy, real poetry It gives me that strange sudden sense of an echo from a former existence which always seems to me such a striking proof that we have immortal souls

OCTAVIUS Do you believe that it is true?

ANN Tavy if it is to come true, you must lose me as well as love me

OCTAVIUS Oh! [he hastily sits down at the little table and covers his face with his hands]

ANN [with conviction] Tavy I wouldnt for worlds destroy your illusions I can neither take you nor let you go I can see exactly what will suit you You must be a sentimental old bachelor for my sake

OCTAVIUS [desperately] Ann I'll kill myself

ANN Oh no, you wont that wouldnt be kind You wont have a bad time You will be very nice to women and you will go a good deal to the opera A broken heart is a very pleasant complaint for a man in London if he has a comfortable income

OCTAVIUS [considerably cooled, but believing that he is only recovering his self-control] I know you mean to be kind, Ann Jack has persuaded you that cynicism is a good tonic for me [He rises with quiet dignity]

ANN [studying him slyly] You see I'm disillusionizing you already Thats what I dread

OCTAVIUS You do not dread disillusionizing Jack.

ANN [her face lighting up with mischievous ecstasy—whispering] I cant he has no illusions about me I shall surprise Jack the other way Getting over an unfavorable impression is ever so much easier than living up to an ideal Oh, I shall enrapture Jack sometimes!

OCTAVIUS [resuming the calm phase of despair and beginning to enjoy his broken heart and delicate attitude without knowing it] I dont doubt that You will enrapture him always And he—the fool!—thinks you would make him wretched

ANN Yes thats the difficulty, so far
OCTAVIUS [heroically] Shall I tell him that you love him?

ANN [quickly] Oh no he'd run away again
OCTAVIUS [shocked] Ann would you marry an unwilling man?

ANN What a queer creature you are, Tavy! Theres no such thing as a willing man when you really go for him [She laughs naughtily] I'm shocking you, I suppose But you know you are really getting a sort of satisfaction already in being out of danger yourself

OCTAVIUS [startled] Satisfaction! [Reproachfully] You say that to me!

ANN Well, if it were really agony, would you ask for more of it?

OCTAVIUS Have I asked for more of it?

ANN You have offered to tell Jack that I love him Thats self-sacrifice, I suppose, but there must be some satisfaction in it Perhaps it's because youre a poet You are like the bird that presses its breast against the sharp thorn to make itself sing

OCTAVIUS It's quite simple I love you, and I want you to be happy You dont love me, so I cant make you happy myself, but I can help another man to do it

ANN Yes it seems quite simple But I doubt if we ever know why we do things The only really simple thing is to go straight for what you want and grab it I suppose I dont love you, Tavy, but sometimes I feel as if I should like to make a man of you somehow You are very foolish about women

OCTAVIUS [almost coldly] I am content to be what I am in that respect

ANN Then you must keep away from them, and only dream about them I wouldnt marry you for worlds, Tavy

OCTAVIUS I have no hope, Ann I accept my ill luck But I dont think you quite know how much it hurts

ANN You are so softhearted! It's queer that you should be so different from Violet Violet's as hard as nails

OCTAVIUS Oh no I am sure Violet is thoroughly womanly at heart

ANN [with some impatience] Why do you say that? Is it unwomanly to be thoughtful and businesslike and sensible? Do you want Violet to be an idiot—or something worse, like me?

OCTAVIUS Something worse—like you! What do you mean, Ann?

ANN Oh well, I dont mean that, of course But I have a great respect for Violet She gets her own way always

OCTAVIUS [sighing] So do you

ANN Yes, but somehow she gets it without coaxing—without having to make people sentimental about her

OCTAVIUS [with brotherly callousness] Nobody could get very sentimental about Violet, I think, pretty as she is

ANN Oh yes they could, if she made them

OCTAVIUS But surely no really nice woman would deliberately practise on men's instincts in that way

ANN [throwing up her hands] Oh, Tavy, Tavy, Ricky Ticky Tavy, heaven help the woman who marries you!

OCTAVIUS [his passion reviving at the name] Oh why, why, why do you say that? Dont torment me I dont understand

ANN Suppose she were to tell fibs, and lay snares for men?

OCTAVIUS Do you think I could marry such a woman—I, who have known and loved you?

ANN Hm! Well, at all events, she wouldnt let you if she were wise So thats settled And now I cant talk any more Say you forgive me, and that the subject is closed

OCTAVIUS I have nothing to forgive, and the subject is closed And if the wound is open, at least you shall never see it bleed

ANN Poetie to the last, Tavy Goodbye, dear [She pats his cheek, has an impulse to kiss him and then another impulse of distaste which prevents her, finally runs away through the garden and into the villa]

Octavius again takes refuge at the table, bowing his head on his arms and sobbing softly Mrs Whitefield, who has been pottering round the Granada shops, and has a net full of little parcels in her hand, comes in through the gate and sees him

MRS WHITEFIELD [running to him and lifting his head] Whats the matter, Tavy? Are you ill?

OCTAVIUS No, nothing, nothing

MRS WHITEFIELD [still holding his head, anxiously] But youre crying Is it about Violet's marriage?

OCTAVIUS No, no Who told you about Violet?

MRS WHITEFIELD [restoring the head to its owner] I met Roebuck and that awful old Irishman Are you sure youre not ill? Whats the matter?

OCTAVIUS [affectionately] It's nothing Only a man's broken heart Doesnt that sound ridiculous?

MRS WHITEFIELD But what is it all about? Has Ann been doing anything to you?

OCTAVIUS It's not Ann's fault And dont think for a moment that I blame you

MRS WHITEFIELD [startled] For what?

OCTAVIUS [pressing her hand consolingly] For nothing I said I didnt blame you

MRS WHITEFIELD But I havnt done anything Whats the matter?

OCTAVIUS [smiling sadly] Cant you guess? I daresay you are right to prefer Jack to me as a husband for Ann but I love Ann, and it hurts rather [He rises and moves away from her towards the middle of the lawn]

MRS WHITEFIELD [following him hastily] Does Ann say that I want her to marry Jack?

OCTAVIUS Yes she has told me

MRS WHITEFIELD [thoughtfully] Then I'm very sorry for you, Tavy It's only her way of saying she wants to marry Jack. Little she cares what I say or what I want OCTAVIUS But she would not say it unless she believed it Surely you dont suspect Ann of—of deceit!

MRS WHITEFIELD Well, never mind, Tavy I dont know which is best for a young man to know too little, like you, or too much, like Jack

Tanner returns

TANNER Well, I've disposed of old Malone I've introduced him to Mendoza, Limited, and left the two brigands together to talk it out Hullo, Tavy! anything wrong?

OCTAVIUS I must go wash my face, I see [To Mrs Whitefield] Tell him what you wish [To Tanner] You may take it from me, Jack, that Ann approves of it.

TANNER [puzzled by his manner] Approves of what?

OCTAVIUS Of what Mrs Whitefield wishes [He goes his way with sad dignity to the villa]

TANNER [to Mrs Whitefield] This is very mysterious What is it you wish? It shall be done, whatever it is

MRS WHITEFIELD [with snivelling gratitude] Thank you, Jack. [She sits down Tanner brings the other chair from the table and sits close to her with his elbows on his knees, giving her his whole attention] I dont know why it is that other people's children are so nice to me, and that my own have so little consideration for me It's no wonder I dont seem able to care for Ann and Rhoda as I do for you and Tavy and

Violet It's a very queer world It used to be so straightforward and simple, and now nobody seems to think and feel as they ought Nothing has been right since that speech that Professor Tyndall made at Belfast

TANNER Yes life is more complicated than we used to think But what am I to do for you?

MRS WHITEFIELD Thats just what I want to tell you Of course you'll marry Ann whether I like it or not—

TANNER [startling] It seems to me that I shall presently be married to Ann whether I like it myself or not

MRS WHITEFIELD [peacefully] Oh, very likely you will you know what she is when she has set her mind on anything But dont put it on me thats all I ask Tavy has just let out that she's been saying that I am making her marry you, and the poor boy is breaking his heart about it, for he is in love with her himself, though what he sees in her so wonderful, goodness knows I dont It's no use telling Tavy that Ann puts things into people's heads by telling them that I want them when the thought of them never crossed my mind It only sets Tavy against me But you know better than that So if you marry her, dont put the blame on me

TANNER [emphatically] I havnt the slightest intention of marrying her

MRS WHITEFIELD [slyly] She'd suit you better than Tavy She'd meet her match in you, Jack I'd like to see her meet her match

TANNER No man is a match for a woman, except with a poker and a pair of hobnailed boots Not always even then Anyhow, I cant take the poker to her I should be a mere slave

MRS WHITEFIELD No she's afraid of you At all events, you would tell her the truth about herself She wouldnt be able to slip out of it as she does with me

TANNER. Everybody would call me a brute if I told Ann the truth about herself in terms of her own moral code To begin with, Ann says things that are not strictly true

MRS WHITEFIELD I'm glad somebody sees she is not an angel

TANNER In short—to put it as a husband would put it when exasperated to the point of speaking out—she is a liar And since she has plunged Tavy head over ears in love with her without any intention of marrying him, she is a coquette, according to the standard definition of a coquette as a woman who rouses passions she has no intention of gratifying And as she has now reduced you to the point of being willing to sacrifice me at the altar for the mere satisfaction of getting me to call her a har to her face, I may conclude that she is a bully as well She cant bully men as she bullies women, so she habitually and unscrupulously uses her personal fascination to make men give her whatever she wants That makes her almost something for which I know no polite name

MRS WHITEFIELD [in mild expostulation] Well, you cant expect perfection, Jack

TANNER I dont But what annoys me is that Ann does I know perfectly well that all this about her being a har and a bully and a coquette and so forth is a trumped-up moral indictment which might be brought against anybody We all lie, we all bully as much as we dare, we all bid for admiration without the least intention of earning it, we all get as much rent as we can out of our powers of fascination If Ann would admit this I shouldnt quarrel with her But she wont If she has children she'll take advantage of their telling lies to amuse herself by whacking them If another woman makes eyes at me, she'll refuse to know a coquette She will do just what she likes herself whilst insisting on everybody else doing what the conventional code prescribes In short, I can stand everything except her confounded hypocrisy Thats what beats me

MRS WHITEFIELD [carried away by the relief of hearing her own opinion so eloquently expressed] Oh, she is a hypocrite She is she is Isnt she?

TANNER Then why do you want to marry me to her?

MRS WHITEFIELD [querulously] There now! put it on me, of course I never thought of it until Tavy told me she said I did But, you know, I'm very fond of Tavy he's a sort of son to me, and I dont want him to be trampled on and made wretched

TANNER Whereas I dont matter, I suppose

MRS WHITEFIELD Oh, you are different, somehow you are able to take care of yourself Youd serve her out And anyhow, she must marry somebody

TANNER Ah! there speaks the life instinct You detest her, but you feel that you must get her married

MRS WHITEFIELD [rising, shocked] Do you mean that I detest my own daughter! Surely you dont believe me to be so wicked and unnatural as that, merely because I see her faults

TANNER [cynically] You love her, then?

MRS WHITEFIELD Why, of course I do What queer things you say, Jack! We cant help loving our own blood relations

TANNER Well, perhaps it saves unpleasantness to say so But for my part, I suspect that the tables of consanguinity have a natural basis in a natural repugnance [he rises]

MRS WHITEFIELD You shouldnt say things like that, Jack I hope you wont tell Ann that I have been speaking to you I only wanted to set myself right with you and Tavy I couldnt sit mumchance and have everything put on me

TANNER [politely] Quite so

MRS WHITEFIELD [dissatisfied] And now Ive only made matters worse Tavy's angry with me because I dont worship Ann And when it's been put into my head that Ann ought to marry you, what can I say except that it would serve her right?

TANNER Thank you

MRS WHITEFIELD Now dont be silly and twist what I say into something I dont mean I ought to have far play—

Ann comes from the villa, followed presently by Violet, who is dressed for driving

ANN [coming to her mother's right hand with threatening suavity] Well, mamma darling, you seem to be having a delightful chat with Jack We can hear you all over the place

MRS WHITEFIELD [appalled] Have you overheard—

TANNER Never fear Ann is only—well, we were discussing that habit of hers just now She hasnt heard a word

MRS WHITEFIELD [stoutly] I dont care whether she has or not I have a right to say what I please

VIOLET [arriving on the lawn and coming between Mrs Whitefield and Tanner] Ive come to say goodbye I'm off for my honeymoon

MRS WHITEFIELD [crying] Oh, dont say that, Violet And no wedding, no breakfast, no clothes, nor anything

VIOLET [petting her] It wont be for long

MRS WHITEFIELD Dont let him take you to America Promise me that you wont

VIOLET [very decidedly] I should think not, indeed Dont cry, dear I'm only going to the hotel

MRS WHITEFIELD But going in that dress, with your luggage, makes one realize—[she chokes, and then breaks out again] How I wish you were my daughter, Violet!

VIOLET [soothing her] There, there so I am Ann will be jealous

MRS WHITEFIELD Ann doesn't care a bit for me

ANN Fie, mother! Come, now you mustn't cry any more you know Violet doesn't like it [Mrs Whitefield dries her eyes, and subsides]

VIOLET Goodbye, Jack

TANNER Goodbye, Violet

VIOLET The sooner you get married too, the better You will be much less misunderstood

TANNER [restively] I quite expect to get married in the course of the afternoon You all seem to have set your minds on it

VIOLET You might do worse [To Mrs Whitefield putting her arm round her] Let me take you to the hotel with me the drive will do you good Come in and get a wrap [She takes her towards the villa]

MRS WHITEFIELD [as they go up through the garden] I don't know what I shall do when you are gone, with no one but Ann in the house, and she always occupied with the men! It's not to be expected that your husband will care to be bothered with an old woman like me Oh, you needn't tell me politeness is all very well, but I know what people think—[She talks herself and Violet out of sight and hearing]

Ann, alone with Tanner, watches him and waits He makes an irresolute movement towards the gate, but some magnetism in her draws him to her, a broken man

ANN Violet is quite right You ought to get married

TANNER [explosively] Ann I will not marry you Do you hear? I won't, won't, won't, won't, WONT marry you

ANN [placidly] Well, nobody and you, sir she said, sir she said, sir she said So that's settled

TANNER Yes, nobody has asked me, but everybody treats the thing as settled It's in the air When we meet, the others go away on absurd pretexts to leave us alone together Ramsden no longer scowls at me his eye beams, as if he were already giving you away to me in church Tavy refers me to your mother and gives me his blessing Straker openly treats you as his future employer it was he who first told me of it

ANN Was that why you ran away?

TANNER Yes, only to be stopped by a love-sick brigand and run down like a truant schoolboy

ANN Well, if you don't want to be married, you needn't be [she turns away from him and sits down, much at her ease]

TANNER [following her] Does any man want to be hanged? Yet men let themselves be hanged without a struggle for life, though they could at least give the chaplain a black eye We do the world's will, not our own I have a frightful feeling that I shall let myself be married because it is the world's will that you should have a husband

ANN I daresay I shall, someday

TANNER But why me? me of all men! Marriage is to me apostasy, profanation of the sanctuary of my soul, violation of my manhood, sale of my birthright, shameful surrender, ignominious capitulation, acceptance of defeat I shall decay like a thing that has served its purpose and is done with, I shall change from a man with a future to a man with a past, I shall see in the greasy eyes of all the other husbands their relief at the arrival of a new prisoner to share their ignominy The young men will scorn me as one who has sold out to the women I, who have always been an enigma and a possibility, shall be merely somebody else's property—and damaged goods at that a second-hand man at best

ANN Well, your wife can put on a cap and make herself ugly to keep you in countenance, like my grandmother

TANNER So that she may make her triumph more insolent by publicly throwing away the bait the moment the trap snaps on the victim!

ANN After all, though, what difference would it make? Beauty is all very well at first sight, but who ever looks at it when it has been in the house three days? I thought our pictures very lovely when papa bought them, but I haven't looked at them for years You never bother about my looks you are too well used to me I might be the umbrella stand

TANNER You he, you vampire you he

ANN Flatterer Why are you trying to fascinate me, Jack, if you don't want to marry me?

TANNER The Life Force I am in the grip of the Life Force

ANN I dont understand in the least it sounds like the Life Guards

TANNER Why dont you marry Tavy? He is willing Can you not be satisfied unless your prey struggles?

ANN [turning to him as if to let him into a secret] Tavy will never marry Havnt you noticed that that sort of man never marries?

TANNER What! a man who idolizes women! who sees nothing in nature but romantic scenery for love duets! Tavy, the chivalrous, the faithful, the tenderhearted and true! Tavy never marry! Why, he was born to be swept up by the first pair of blue eyes he meets in the street

ANN Yes, I know All the same, Jack, men like that always live in comfortable bachelor lodgings with broken hearts, and are adored by their landladies, and never get married Men like you always get married

TANNER [smiting his brow] How frightfully, horribly true! It has been staring me in the face all my life, and I never saw it before

ANN Oh, it's the same with women The poetic temperament's a very nice temperament, very amiable, very harmless and poetic, I daresay, but it's an old maid's temperament

TANNER Barren The Life Force passes it by

ANN If thats what you mean by the Life Force, yes

TANNER You dont care for Tavy?

ANN [looking round carefully to make sure that Tavy is not within earshot] No

TANNER And you do care for me?

ANN [rising quietly and shaking her finger at him] Now, Jack! Behave yourself

TANNER Infamous, abandoned woman! Devil!

ANN Boa-constrictor! Elephant!

TANNER Hypocrite!

ANN [softly] I must be, for my future husband's sake

TANNER For mine! [Correcting himself savagely] I mean for his

ANN [ignoring the correction] Yes, for yours You had better marry what you call a hypocrite, Jack Women who are not hypocrites go about in rational dress and are insulted and get into all sorts of hot water And then their husbands get dragged in too, and live in continual dread of fresh complications

Wouldnt you prefer a wife you could depend on?

TANNER No a thousand times no hot water is the revolutionist's element You clean men as you clean milk-pails, by scalding them

ANN Cold water has its uses too It's healthy

TANNER [despairingly] Oh, you are witty at the supreme moment the Life Force endows you with every quality Well, I too can be a hypocrite Your father's will appointed me your guardian, not your suitor I shall be faithful to my trust

ANN [in low siren tones] He asked me who I would have as my guardian before he made that will I chose you!

TANNER The will is yours then! The trap was laid from the beginning

ANN [concentrating all her magic] From the beginning—from our childhood—for both of us—by the Life Force

TANNER I will not marry you I will not marry you

ANN Oh, you will, you will

TANNER I tell you, no, no, no

ANN I tell you, yes, yes, yes

TANNER No

ANN [coaxing—imploing—almost exhausted] Yes Before it is too late for repentance Yes

TANNER [struck by the echo from the past] When did all this happen to me before? Are we two dreaming?

ANN [suddenly losing her courage, with an anguish that she does not conceal] No We are awake, and you have said no that is all

TANNER [brutally] Well?

ANN Well, I made a mistake you do not love me

TANNER [seizing her in his arms] It is false I love you The Life Force enchants me I have the whole world in my arms when I clasp you But I am fighting for my freedom, for my honor, for my self, one and indivisible

ANN Your happiness will be worth them all

TANNER You would sell freedom and honor and self for happiness?

ANN It will not be all happiness for me Perhaps death

TANNER [groaning] Oh, that clutch holds and hurts What have you grasped in me? Is there a father's heart as well as a mother's?

ANN Take care, Jack if anyone comes while we are like this, you will have to marry me

TANNER If we two stood now on the edge of a precipice, I would hold you tight and jump

ANN [panting, failing more and more under the strain] Jack let me go I have dared so frightfully—it is lasting longer than I thought Let me go I cant bear it

TANNER Nor I Let it kill us

ANN Yes I dont care I am at the end of my forces I dont care I think I am going to faint

At this moment Violet and Octavius come from the villa with Mrs Whitefield, who is wrapped up for driving Simultaneously Malone and Ramsden, followed by Mendoza and Straker, come in through the little gate in the paling Tanner shamefacedly releases Ann, who raises her hand giddily to her forehead

MALONE Take care Something's the matter with the lady

RAMSDEN What does this mean?

VIOLET [running between Ann and Tanner] Are you ill?

ANN [reeling, with a supreme effort] I have promised to marry Jack [She swoons Violet kneels by her and chafes her hand Tanner runs round to her other hand, and tries to lift her head Octavius goes to Violet's assistance, but does not know what to do Mrs Whitefield hurries back into the villa Octavius, Malone, and Ramsden run to Ann and crowd round her, stooping to assist Straker coolly comes to Ann's feet, and Mendoza to her head, both upright and self-possessed]

STRAKER Now then, ladies and gentlemen she dont want a crowd round her she wants air—all the air she can git If you please, gents—[Malone and Ramsden allow him to drive them gently past Ann and up the lawn towards the garden, where Octavius, who has already become conscious of his uselessness, joins them Straker, following them up, pauses for a moment to instruct Tanner] Dont lift er ed, Mr Tanner let it go flat so's the blood can run back into it

MENDOZA He is right, Mr Tanner Trust to the air of the Sierra [He withdraws delicately to the garden steps]

TANNER [rising] I yield to your superior knowledge of physiology, Henry [He withdraws to the corner of the lawn, and Octavius immediately hurries down to him]

TAVY [aside to Tanner, grasping his hand] Jack be very happy

TANNER [aside to Tavy] I never asked her

It is a trap for me [He goes up the lawn towards the garden Octavius remains petrified]

MENDOZA [intercepting Mrs Whitefield, who comes from the villa with a glass of brandy] What is this, madam [he takes it from her]?

MRS WHITEFIELD A little brandy

MENDOZA The worst thing you could give her Allow me [He swallows it] Trust to the air of the Sierra, madam

For a moment the men all forget Ann and stare at Mendoza

ANN [in Violet's ear, clutching her round the neck] Violet did Jack say anything when I fainted?

VIOLET No

ANN Ah! [with a sigh of intense relief she relapses]

MRS WHITEFIELD Oh, she's fainted again They are about to rush back to her, but Mendoza stops them with a warning gesture

ANN [supine] No, I havnt I'm quite happy

TANNER [suddenly walking determinedly to her, and snatching her hand from Violet to feel her pulse] Why, her pulse is positively bounding Come! get up What nonsense! Up with you [He hauls her up summarily]

ANN Yes I feel strong enough now But you very nearly killed me, Jack, for all that

MALONE A rough wooer, eh? Theyre the best sort, Miss Whitefield I congratulate Mr Tanner, and I hope to meet you and him as frequent guests at the abbey

ANN Thank you [She goes past Malone to Octavius] Ricky Ticky Tavy congratulate me [Aside to him] I want to make you cry for the last time

TAVY [steadfastly] No more tears I am happy in your happiness And I believe in you in spite of everything

RAMSDEN [coming between Malone and Tanner] You are a happy man, Jack Tanner I envy you

MENDOZA [advancing between Violet and Tanner] Sir there are two tragedies in life One is to lose your heart's desire The other is to gain it Mine and yours, sir

TANNER Mr Mendoza I have no heart's desires Ramsden it is very easy for you to call me a happy man you are only a spectator I am one of the principals, and I know better Ann stop tempting Tavy, and come back to me

ANN [complying] You are absurd, Jack [She takes his proffered arm]

TANNER [continuing] I solemnly say that I am not a happy man Ann looks happy, but she is only triumphant, successful, victorious That is not happiness, but the price for which the strong sell their happiness What we have both done this afternoon is to renounce happiness, renounce freedom, renounce tranquillity, above all, renounce the romantic possibilities of an unknown future, for the cares of a household and a family I beg that no man may seize the occasion to get half drunk and utter imbecile speeches and coarse pleasantries at my expense We propose to furnish our own house according to our own taste, and I hereby give notice that the seven or eight travelling clocks, the four or five dressing cases, the carvers and fish slices, the copies of Patmore's Angel In The House in extra morocco, and the other articles you are preparing to heap upon us, will be instantly sold, and the proceeds devoted to circulating free copies of the Revolutionist's Handbook The wedding will take place three days after our return to England, by special licence, at the office of the district superintendent registrar, in the presence of my solicitor and his clerk, who, like his clients, will be in ordinary walking dress—

VIOLET [with intense conviction] You are a brute, Jack

ANN [looking at him with fond pride and caressing his arm] Never mind her, dear Go on talking

TANNER Talking!
Universal laughter

THE END

JOHN BULL'S OTHER ISLAND

1904

ACT I

Great George Street, Westminster, is the address of Doyle and Broadbent, civil engineers On the threshold one reads that the firm consists of Mr Laurence Doyle and Mr Thomas Broadbent, and that their rooms are on the first floor Most of these rooms are private, for the partners, being bachelors and bosom friends, live there, and the door marked Private, next the clerks' office, is their domestic sitting room as well as their reception room for clients Let me describe it briefly from the point of view of a sparrow on the window sill The outer door is in the opposite wall, close to the right hand corner Between this door and the left hand corner is a hatstand and a table consisting of large drawing boards on trestles, with plans, rolls of tracing paper, mathematical instruments, and other draughtsman's accessories on it In the left hand wall is the fireplace, and the door of an inner room between the fireplace and our observant sparrow Against the right hand wall is a filing cabinet, with a cupboard on it, and nearer, a tall office desk and stool for one person In the middle of the room a large double writing table is set across, with a chair at each end for the two partners It is a room which no woman would tolerate, smelling of tobacco, and much in need of repapering, repainting, and recarpeting, but this is the effect of bachelor untidiness and indifference, not want of means, for nothing that Doyle and Broadbent themselves have purchased is cheap, nor is anything they want lacking On the walls hang a large map of South America, a pictorial advertisement of a steamship company, an impressive portrait of Gladstone, and several caricatures of Mr Balfour as a rabbit and Mr Chamberlain as a fox by Francis Carruthers Gould

At twenty minutes to five o'clock on a summer afternoon in 1904, the room is empty Presently the outer door is opened, and a valet comes in laden with a large Gladstone bag and a strap of rugs He carries them into the inner room He is a respectable valet, old enough to have lost all alacrity and acquired an air of putting up patiently with a great deal of trouble and indifferent health The luggage belongs to Broadbent, who enters after the valet He pulls off his overcoat and hangs it with his hat on the stand Then he comes to the writing table and looks through the letters waiting there for him He is a robust, full-blooded, energetic man in the prime of life, sometimes eager and credulous, sometimes shrewd and roguish, sometimes portentously solemn, sometimes jolly and impetuous, always buoyant and irresistible, mostly likeable, and enormously absurd in his most earnest moments He bursts open his letters with his thumb, and glances through them firing the envelopes about the floor with reckless untidiness whilst he talks to the valet.

BROADBENT [calling] Hodson.

HODSON [in the bedroom] Yes sir

BROADBENT Dont unpack. Just take out the things Ive worn: and put in clean things

HODSON [appearing at the bedroom door] Yes sir [He turns to go back into the bedroom]

BROADBENT And look here! [Hodson turns again] Do you remember where I put my revolver?

HODSON Revolver, sir! Yes sir Mr Doyle uses it as a paper-weight, sir. when he's drawing.

BROADBENT Well. I want it packed Theres a packet of cartridges somewhere. I think. Find it and pack it as well

HODSON. Yes sir.

BROADBENT By the way. pack your own traps too I shall take you with me this time.

HODSON [hesitant] Is it a dangerous part youre going to, sir? Should I be expected to carry a revolver, sir?

BROADBENT. Perhaps it might be as well I m going to Ireland

HODSON [reassured] Yes sir

BROADBENT You dont feel nervous about it, I suppose?

HODSON Not at all, sir I'll risk it, sir.

BROADBENT Ever been in Ireland?

HODSON. No sir I understand its a very wet climate, sir I'd better pack your india-rubber overalls BROADBENT. Do Wheres Mr Doyle?

HODSON I'm expecting him at five, sir. He went out after lunch.

BROADBENT Anybody been looking for me?

HODSON. A person giving the name of Haffigan has called twice today sir.

BROADBENT. Oh I'm sorry. Why didnt he wait? I told him to wait if I wasnt in.

HODSON. Well sir, I didnt know you expected him so I thought it best to—to—not to encourage him sir.

BROADBENT. Oh he's all right He's an Irishman and not very particular about his appearance.

HODSON Yes sir. I noticed that he was rather Irish.

BROADBENT If he calls again let him come up

HODSON I think I saw him waiting about, sir when you drove up Shall I fetch him sir?

BROADBENT. Do, Hodson.

HODSON Yes sir [He makes for the outer door]

BROADBENT He'll want tea Let us have some

HODSON [stopping] I shouldnt think he drank tea, sir

BROADBENT Well bring whatever you think he'd like.

HODSON Yes sir [An electric bell rings] Here he is sir Saw you arrive, sir

BROADBENT Right. Shew him in [Hodson goes out Broadbent gets through the rest of his letters before Hodson returns with the visitor]

HODSON Mr Affigan.

Haffigan is a started short-necked small-headed man of about 50 with a small bullet head a red nose and furtive eyes He is dressed in seedy black, almost clerically, and might be a tenth-rate schoolmaster ruined by drink He hastens to shake Broadbent's hand with a show of reckless geniality and high spirits helped out by a rollicking stage brogue This is perhaps a comfort to himself, as he is secretly pursued by the horrors of incipient delirium tremens

HAFFIGAN Tim Haffigan sir, at your service. The top o the mornin to you, Misther Broadbent.

BROADBENT [delighted with his Irish visitor] Good afternoon Mr Haffigan

TIM. An is it the afternoon it is already? Begorra, what I call the mornin is all the time a man fasts after breakfast.

BROADBENT. Havnt you lunched?

TIM. Divil a lunch!

BROADBENT. I'm sorry I couldnt get back from Brighton in time to offer you some, but—

TIM Not a word sir, not a word Sure it'll do tomorrow Besides I'm Irish, sir a poor aither, but a powerful drinker

BROADBENT I was just about to ring for tea when you came Sit down Mr Haffigan

TIM Tay is a good drink if your nerves can stand it. Mine cant.

Haffigan sits down at the writing table with his back to the filing cabinet Broadbent sits opposite him Hodson enters empty-handed, takes two glasses a sipper, and a tumbler from the cupboard, places them before Broadbent on the writing table; looks ruthlessly at Haffigan, who cannot meet his eye, and retires

BROADBENT Try a whisky and soda

TIM [sobered] There you touch the national wakeness, sir [Pro-sly] Not that I share it meself. Ive seen too much of the mischief of it.

BROADBENT [pouring the whisky] Say when.

TIM Not too sthrong [Broadbent stops and looks inquiringly at him] Say half-an-half [Broadbent, somewhat startled by this demand, pours a little more, and again stops and looks] Just a dhrain more the lower half o the tumbler doesnt hold a fair half Thankya

BROADBENT [laughing] You Irishmen certainly do know how to drink [Pouring some whisky for himself] Now thats my poor English idea of a whisky and soda

TIM An a very good idea it is too Dhrink is the curse o me unhappy counthry I take it meself because Ive a wake heart and a poor digestion, but in principle I'm a teetotaler

BROADBENT [suddenly solemn and strenuous] So am I, of course I'm a Local Optionist to the backbone You have no idea, Mr Haffigan, of the ruin that is wrought in this country by the unholy alliance of the publicans the bishops, the Tories, and The Times We must close the public-houses at all costs [he drinks]

TIM Sure I know It's awful [he drinks] I see youre a good Liberal like meself, sir

BROADBENT I am a lover of liberty, like every true Englishman, Mr Haffigan My name is Broadbent If my name were Breitstem, and I had a hooked nose and a house in Park Lane, I should earry a Union Jaek handkerchief and a penny trumpet, and tax the food of the people to support the Navy League, and elamor for the destruction of the last remnants of national liberty—

TIM Not another word Shake hands

BROADBENT But I should like to explain—

TIM Sure I know every word youre goin to say before yev said it I know the sort o man yar An so youre thinkin o comin to Ireland for a bit?

BROADBENT Where else can I go? I am an Englishman and a Liberal, and now that South Africa has been enslaved and destroyed, there is no country left to me to take an interest in but Ireland Mind I dont say that an Englishman has not other duties He has a duty to Finland and a duty to Macedonia But what sane man can deny that an Englishman's first duty is his duty to Ireland? Unfortunately, we have politicians here more unscrupulous than Bobrikoff, more bloodthirsty than Abdul the Damned, and it is under their heel that Ireland is now writhing

TIM Faith, theyve reckoned up with poor ould Bobrikoff anyhow

BROADBENT Not that I defend assassination God forbid! However strongly we may feel that the unfortunate and patriotic young man who avenged the wrongs of Finland on the Russian tyrant was perfectly right from his own point of view, yet every civilized man must regard murder with abhorrence Not even in defence of Free Trade would I lift my hand against a political opponent, however richly he might deserve it

TIM I'm sure you wouldnt, and I honor you for it Youre goin to Ireland, then, out o sympathy is it?

BROADBENT I'm going to develop an estate there for the Land Development Syndicate, in which I am interested I am convinced that all it needs to make it pay is to handle it properly, as estates are handled in England You know the English plan, Mr Haffigan, dont you?

TIM Bedad I do, sir Take all you can out of Ireland and spend it in England thats it

BROADBENT [not quite liking this] My plan, sir, will be to take a little money out of England and spend it in Ireland

TIM More power to your elbow! an may your shadda never be less! for youre the broth of a boy intirely An how can I help you? Command me to the last dhrop o me blood

BROADBENT Have you ever heard of Garden City?

TIM [doubtfully] D'ye mane Heavn?

BROADBENT Heaven! No it's near Hitchin If you can spare half an hour I'll go into it with you

TIM I tell you hwat, Gimme a prospectus Lemmy take it home and reflect on it

BROADBENT Youre quite right I will [He gives him a copy of Ebenezer Howard's book, and several pamphlets] You understand that the map of the city—the circular construction—is only a suggestion

TIM I'll make a careful note o that [looking dazedly at the map]

BROADBENT What I say is, why not start a Garden City in Ireland?

TIM [with enthusiasm] Thats just what was on the tip o me tongue to ask you Why not? [Defiantly] Tell me why not

BROADBENT There are difficulties I shall overcome them, but there are difficulties When I first arrive in Ireland I shall be hated as an Englishman As a Protestant, I shall be denounced from every altar My life may be in danger Well, I am prepared to face that

TIM Never fear, sir We know how to respect a brave innimy

BROADBENT What I really dread is misunderstanding I think you could help me to avoid that When I heard you speak the other evening in Bermondsey at the meeting of the National League, I saw at once that you were—You wont mind my speaking frankly?

TIM Tell me all me faults as man to man I can stand any thing but flatthery

BROADBENT May I put it in this way? that I saw at once that you are a thorough Irishman, with all the faults and all the qualities of your race rash and improvident but brave and goodnatured, not likely to succeed in business on your own account perhaps, but eloquent, humorous, a lover of freedom, and a true follower of that great Englishman Gladstone

TIM Spare me blushes I mustnt sit here to be praised to me face But I confess to the goodnature it's an Irish wakeness I'd share me last shillin with a friend

BROADBENT I feel sure you would, Mr Haffigan

TIM [impulsively] Damn it! call me Tim A man that talks about Ireland as you do may call me anything Gimmy a howlt o that whisky bottle [he replenishes]

BROADBENT [smiling indulgently] Well, Tim, will you come with me and help to break the ice between me and your warmhearted, impulsive countrymen?

TIM Will I come to Madagascar or Cochin China wid you? Bedad I'll come to the North Pole wid you if yll pay me fare, for the divil a shillin I have to buy a third class ticket

BROADBENT Ive not forgotten that, Tim We must put that little matter on a solid English footing, though the rest can be as Irish as you please You must come as my—my—well, I hardly know what to call it If we call you my agent, theyll shoot you If we call you a bailiff, theyll duck you in the horsepond I have a secretary already, and—

TIM Then we'll call him the Home Secretary and me the Irish Secretary Eh?

BROADBENT [laughing industriously] Capital Your Irish wit has settled the first difficulty Now about your salary—

TIM A salary, is it? Sure I'd do it for nothin, only me cloes ud disgrace you, and I'd be dhriven to borra money from your friends a thing thats agin me nacher But I wont take a penny more than a hundherd a year

[He looks with restless cunning at Broadbent, trying to guess how far he may go]

BROADBENT If that will satisfy you—

TIM [more than reassured] Why shouldnt it satisfy me? A hundherd a year is twelve pound a month, isnt it?

BROADBENT No Eight pound six and eightpence

TIM Oh murdher! An I'll have to sind five timmy poor oul mother in Ireland But no matther I said a hundherd, and what I said I'll stick to, if I have to starve for it

BROADBENT [with business caution] Well, let us say twelve pounds for the first month Afterwards, we shall see how we get on

TIM Youre a gentleman, sir Whin me mother turns up her toes, you shall take the five pounds off, for your expinses must be kep down wid a sthrong hand, an—[He is interrupted by the arrival of Broadbent's partner]

Mr Laurence Doyle is a man of 36, with cold grey eyes, strained nose, fine fastidious lips, critical brows, clever head, rather refined and goodlooking on the whole, but with a suggestion of thinskinness and dissatisfaction that contrasts strongly with Broadbent's eupeptic jollity

He comes in as a man at home there, but on seeing the stranger shrinks at once, and is about to withdraw when Broadbent reassures him He then comes forward to the table, between the two others

DOYLE [retreating] Youre engaged

BROADBENT Not at all, not at all Come in [To Tim] This gentleman is a friend who lives with me here my partner, Mr Doyle [To Doyle] This is a new Irish friend of mine, Mr Tim Haffigan

TIM [rising with effusion] Sure it's meself thats proud to meet any friend o Misther Broadbent's The top o the mornin to you, sir! Me heart goes out teeye both It's not often I meet two such splendid specimens iv the Anglo-Saxon race

BROADBENT [chuckling] Wrong for once, Tim My friend Mr Doyle is a countryman of yours

Tim is noticeably dashed by this announcement He draws in his horns at once, and scowls suspiciously at Doyle under a vanishing mask of good-fellowship cringing a little, too, in mere nerveless fear of him

DOYLE [with cool disgust] Good evening [He retires to the fireplace, and says to Broadbent in a tone which conveys the strongest possible hint to Haffigan that he is unwelcome] Will you soon be disengaged?

TIM [his brogue decaying into a common nould-be genteel accent with an unexpected strain of Glasgow in it] I must be going Avnmpoartnt engeegement in the west end

BROADBENT [rising] It's settled, then, that you come with me

TIM Ashll be verra pleased to accompany ye, sir

BROADBENT But how soon? Can you start to-might? from Paddington? We go by Milford Haven

TIM [hesitating] Well—A'm afraid—A [Doyle goes abruptly into the bedroom, slamming the door and shattering the last remnant of Tim's nerve. The poor wretch saves himself from bursting into tears by plunging again into his role of daredevil Irishman. He rushes to Broadbent, plucks at his sleeve with trembling fingers, and pours forth his entreaty with all the brogue he can muster, subduing his voice lest Doyle should hear and return] Misther Broadbent donthumiliate me before a fella counthryman. Look here me cloes is up the spout. Gimmy a fypoun-note—I'll pay ya nex Choosda whin me ship comes home—or you can stop it out o me month's sallery. I'll be on the platform at Paddnton punctial anready. Gimmy it quick, before he comes back. You wont mind me axin, will ye?

BROADBENT Not at all. I was about to offer you an advance for travelling expenses [He gives him a bank note]

TIM [pocketing it] Thank you. I'll be there half an hour before the thrain starts [Larry is heard at the bedroom door, returning] Whisht he's comin back. Goodbye an God bless ye [He hurries out almost crying, the £5 note and all the drink it means to him being too much for his empty stomach and overstrained nerves]

DOYLE [returning] Where the devil did you pick up that seedy swindler? What was he doing here? [He goes up to the table where the plans are, and makes a note on one of them, referring to his pocket book as he does so]

BROADBENT There you go! Why are you so down on every Irishman you meet, especially if he's a bit shabby? poor devil! Surely a fellow-countryman may pass you the top of the morning without offence, even if his coat is a bit shiny at the seams

DOYLE [contemptuously] The top of the morning! Did he call you the broth of a boy? [He comes to the writing table]

BROADBENT [triumphantly] Yes

DOYLE And wished you more power to your elbow?

BROADBENT He did

DOYLE And that your shadow might never be less?

BROADBENT Certainly

DOYLE [taking up the depleted whisky bottle and shaking his head at it] And he got about half a pint of whisky out of you

BROADBENT It did him no harm. He never turned a hair

DOYLE How much money did he borrow?

BROADBENT It was not borrowing exactly. He shewed a very honorable spirit about money. I believe he would share his last shilling with a friend

DOYLE No doubt he would share his friend's last shilling if his friend was fool enough to let him. How much did he touch you for?

BROADBENT Oh, nothing. An advance on his salary—for travelling expenses

DOYLE Salary! In Heaven's name, what for?

BROADBENT For being my Home Secretary, as he very wittily called it

DOYLE I dont see the joke

BROADBENT You can spoil any joke by being cold blooded about it. I saw it all right when he said it. It was something—something really very amusing—about the Home Secretary and the Irish Secretary. At all events, he's evidently the very man to take with me to Ireland to break the ice for me. He can gain the confidence of the people there, and make them friendly to me. Eh? [He seats himself on the office stool, and tilts it back so that the edge of the standing desk supports his back and prevents his toppling over]

DOYLE A nice introduction, by George! Do you suppose the whole population of Ireland consists of drunken begging letter writers, or that even if it did, they would accept one another as references?

BROADBENT Pooh! nonsense! he's only an Irishman. Besides, you dont seriously suppose that Haffigan can humbug me, do you?

DOYLE No. he's too lazy to take the trouble. All he has to do is to sit there and drink your whisky while you humbug yourself. However, we neednt argue about Haffigan, for two reasons. First, with your money in his pocket he will never reach Paddington. There are too many public houses on the way. Second, he's not an Irishman at all

BROADBENT Not an Irishman! [He is so amazed by the statement that he straightens himself and brings the stool bolt upright]

DOYLE Born in Glasgow Never was in Ireland in his life I know all about him

BROADBENT But he spoke—he behaved just like an Irishman

DOYLE Like an Irishman! Man alive dont you know that all this top-o-the-morning and broth-of-a-boy and more-power-to-your-elbow business is got up in England to fool you, like the Albert Hall concerts of Irish music? No Irishman ever talks like that in Ireland or ever did, or ever will But when a thoroughly worthless Irishman comes to England, and finds the whole place full of romantic duffers like you, who will let him loaf and drink and sponge and brag as long as he flatters your sense of moral superiority by playing the fool and degrading himself and his country, he soon learns the antics that take you in He picks them up at the theatre or the music hall. Haffigan learnt the rudiments from his father who came from my part of Ireland I knew his uncles, Matt and Andy Haffigan of Rosscullen

BROADBENT [still incredulous] But his brogue?

DOYLE His brogue! A fat lot you know about brogues! I've heard you call a Dublin accent that you could hang your hat on, a brogue Heaven help you! you dont know the difference between Connemara and Rathmines [With violent irritation] Oh, damn Tim Haffigan! lets drop the subject he's not worth wrangling about.

BROADBENT Whats wrong with you today, Larry? Why are you so bitter?

Doyle loo's at him perplexedly, comes slowly to the writing table, and sits down at the end next the fireplace before replying

DOYLE Well your letter completely upset me, for one thing

BROADBENT Why?

LARRY. Your foreclosing this Rosscullen mortgage and turning poor Nick Lestrangle out of house and home has rather taken me aback; for I liked the old rascal when I was a boy and had the run of his park to play in I was brought up on the property

BROADBENT But he wouldnt pay the interest. I had to foreclose on behalf of the Syndicate So now I'm off to Rosscullen to look after the property myself [He sits down at the writing table opposite Larry, and adds, casually, but with an anxious glance at his partner] Youre coming with me, of course?

DOYLE [rising nervously and recommencing his restless movements] Thats it Thats what I dread Thats what has upset me

BROADBENT But dont you want to see your country again after 18 years absence? to see your people? to be in the old home again? to—

DOYLE [interrupting him very impatiently] Yes, yes I know all that as well as you do

BROADBENT Oh well, of course [with a shrug] if you take it in that way. I'm sorry

DOYLE Never you mind my temper it's not meant for you, as you ought to know by this time [He sits down again, a little ashamed of his petulance, reflects a moment bitterly, then bursts out] I have an instinct against going back to Ireland an instinct so strong that I'd rather go with you to the South Pole than to Rosscullen

BROADBENT What! Here you are, belonging to a nation with the strongest patriotism! the most inveterate homing instinct in the world! and you pretend youd rather go anywhere than back to Ireland You dont suppose I believe you do you? In your heart—

DOYLE Never mind my heart an Irishman's heart is nothing but his imagination How many of all those millions that have left Ireland have ever come back or wanted to come back? But whats the use of talking to you? Three verses of twaddle about the Irish emigrant "sitting on the stile, Mary," or three hours of Irish patriotism in Bermondsey or the Scotland Division of Liverpool go further with you than all the facts that stare you in the face Why, man alive, look at me! You know the way I nag, and worry and carp, and cavil, and disparage, and am never satisfied and never quiet, and try the patience of my best friends

BROADBENT Oh, come, Larry! do yourself justice Youre very amusing and agreeable to strangers

DOYLE Yes, to strangers Perhaps if I was a bit stiffer to strangers, and a bit easier at home, like an Englishman, I'd be better company for you

BROADBENT We get on well enough Of course you have the melancholy of the Celtic race—

DOYLE [bounding out of his chair] Good God!!!

BROADBENT [slyly]—and also its habit of using strong language when theres nothing the matter

DOYLE Nothing the matter! When people talk about the Celtic race, I feel as if I could burn down London That sort of rot does more harm than ten Coercion Acts Do you suppose a man need be a Celt to feel melancholy in Rossculen? Why, man, Ireland was peopled just as England was, and its breed was crossed by just the same invaders

BROADBENT True All the capable people in Ireland are of English extraction It has often struck me as a most remarkable circumstance that the only party in parliament which shews the genuine old English character and spirit is the Irish party Look at its independence, its determination, its defiance of bad Governments, its sympathy with oppressed nationalities all the world over! How English!

DOYLE Not to mention the solemnity with which it talks old-fashioned nonsense which it knows perfectly well to be a century behind the times Thats English, if you like

BROADBENT No, Larry, no You are thinking of the modern hybrids that now monopolize England Hypocrites, humbugs, Germans, Jews, Yankees, foreigners, Park Laners, cosmopolitan riffraff Dont call them English They dont belong to the dear old island, but to their confounded new empire, and by George! theyre worthy of it, and I wish them joy of it

DOYLE [unmoved by this outburst] There! You feel better now, dont you?

BROADBENT [defiantly] I do Much better

DOYLE My dear Tom, you only need a touch of the Irish climate to be as big a fool as I am myself If all my Irish blood were poured into your veins, you wouldnt turn a hair of your constitution and character Go and marry the most English English-woman you can find, and then bring up your son in Rossculen, and that son's character will be so like mine and so unlike yours that everybody will accuse me of being his father [With sudden anguish] Rossculen! oh, good Lord, Rossculen! The dullness! the hopelessness! the ignorance! the bigotry!

BROADBENT [matter-of-factly] The usual thing in the country, Larry Just the same here

DOYLE [hastily] No, no the climate is different Here, if the life is dull, you can be dull too, and no great harm done [Going off into a passionate dream] But your wits cant thicken in that soft moist air, on those white springy roads, in those misty rushes and brown bogs, on those hillsides of granite rocks and magenta heather Youve no such colors in the sky, no such lure in the distances, no such sadness in the evenings Oh, the dreaming! the dreaming! the torturing, heart-scalding, never satisfying dreaming, dreaming, dreaming, dreaming! [Savagely] No debauchery that ever coarsened and brutalized an Englishman can take the worth and usefulness out of him like that dreaming An Irishman's imagination never lets him alone, never convinces him, never satisfies him, but it makes him that he cant face reality nor deal with it nor handle it nor conquer it he can only sneer at them that do, and [bitterly, at Broadbent] be "agreeable to strangers," like a good-for-nothing woman on the streets [Gabbling at Broadbent across the table] It's all dreaming, all imagination He cant be religious The inspired Churchman that teaches him the sanctity of life and the importance of conduct is sent away empty, while the poor village priest that gives him a miracle or a sentimental story of a saint, has cathedrals built for him out of the pennies of the poor He cant be intelligently political he dreams of what the Shan Van Vocht said in ninety eight If you want to interest him in Ireland youve got to call the unfortunate island Kathleen ni Hoolhan and pretend she's a little old woman It saves thinking It saves working It saves everything except imagination, imagination, imagination, and imagination's such a torture that you cant bear it without whisky [With fierce shivering self-contempt] At last you get that you can bear nothing real at all youd rather starve than cook a meal, youd rather go shabby and dirty than set your mind to take care of your clothes and wash yourself, you nag and squabble at home because your wife isnt an angel, and she despises you because youre not a hero, and you hate the whole lot round you because theyre only poor slovenly useless devils like yourself [Dropping his voice like a man making some shameful confidence] And all the while there goes on a horrible, senseless, mischievous laughter When youre young, you exchange drinks with other young men, and you exchange vile stories with them, and as youre too futile to be able to help or cheer them, you chaff and sneer and taunt them for not doing the things you darent do yourself And all the time you laugh! laugh! laugh! eternal derision, eternal envy, eternal

folly, eternal fouling and staining and degrading, until, when you come at last to a country where men take a question seriously and give a serious answer to it, you deride them for having no sense of humor, and plume yourself on your own worthlessness as if it made you better than them

BROADBENT [roused to intense earnestness by Doyle's eloquence] Never despair, Larry. There are great possibilities for Ireland. Home Rule will work wonders under English guidance.

DOYLE [pulled up short, his face twitching with a reluctant smile] Tom, why do you select my most tragic moments for your most irresistible strokes of humor?

BROADBENT Humor! I was perfectly serious. What do you mean? Do you doubt my seriousness about Home Rule?

DOYLE I am sure you are serious, Tom, about the English guidance.

BROADBENT [quite reassured] Of course I am. Our guidance is the important thing. We English must place our capacity for government without stint at the service of nations who are less fortunately endowed in that respect, so as to allow them to develop in perfect freedom to the English level of self-government, you know. You understand me?

DOYLE Perfectly. And Rosscullen will understand you too.

BROADBENT [cheerfully] Of course it will. So that's all right. [He pulls up his chair and settles himself comfortably to lecture Doyle] Now, Larry, I've listened carefully to all you've said about Ireland, and I can see nothing whatever to prevent your coming with me. What does it all come to? Simply that you were only a young fellow when you were in Ireland. You'll find all that chaffing and drinking and not knowing what to be at in Peckham just the same as in Donnybrook. You looked at Ireland with a boy's eyes and saw only boyish things. Come back with me and look at it with a man's, and get a better opinion of your country.

DOYLE I daresay you're partly right in that at all events. I know very well that if I had been the son of a laborer instead of the son of a country landagent, I should have struck more grit than I did. Unfortunately I'm not going back to visit the Irish nation, but to visit my father and Aunt Judy and Nora Reilly and Father Dempsey and the rest of them.

BROADBENT Well, why not? They'll be delighted to see you, now that England has made a man of you.

DOYLE [struck by this] Ah! you hit the mark there, Tom, with true British inspiration.

BROADBENT Common sense, you mean.

DOYLE [quickly] No, I don't. You've no more common sense than a gander. No Englishman has any common sense, or ever had, or ever will have. You're going on a sentimental expedition for perfectly ridiculous reasons, with your head full of political nonsense that would not take in any ordinarily intelligent donkey, but you can hit me in the eye with the simple truth about myself and my father.

BROADBENT [amazed] I never mentioned your father.

DOYLE [not heeding the interruption] There he is in Rosscullen, a landagent who's always been in a small way because he's a Catholic, and the landlords are mostly Protestants. What with land courts reducing rents and Land Purchase Acts turning big estates into little holdings, he'd be a beggar if he hadn't taken to collecting the new purchase instalments instead of the old rents. I doubt if he's been further from home than Athenmullet for twenty years. And here am I, made a man of, as you say, by England.

BROADBENT [apologetically] I assure you I never meant—

DOYLE Oh, don't apologize. It's quite true. I daresay I've learnt something in America and a few other remote and inferior spots, but in the main it is by living with you and working in double harness with you that I have learnt to live in a real world and not in an imaginary one. I owe more to you than to any Irishman.

BROADBENT [shaking his head with a twinkle in his eye] Very friendly of you, Larry, old man, but all blarney. I like blarney, but it's rot, all the same.

DOYLE No, it's not. I should never have done anything without you, though I never stop wondering at that blessed old head of yours with all its ideas in watertight compartments, and all the compartments warranted impervious to anything it doesn't suit you to understand.

BROADBENT [invincible] Unmitigated rot, Larry, I assure you.

DOYLE Well, at any rate you will admit that all my friends are either Englishmen or men of the big world that belongs to the big Powers All the serious part of my life has been lived in that atmosphere all the serious part of my work has been done with men of that sort Just think of me as I am now going back to Rosscullen¹ to that hell of littleness and monotony¹ How am I to get on with a little country landagent that ekes out his 5 per cent with a little farming and a scrap of house property in the nearest country town? What am I to say to him? What is he to say to me?

BROADBENT [scandalized] But youre father and son, man!

DOYLE What difference does that make? What would you say if I proposed a visit to your father?

BROADBENT [nith filial rectitude] I always made a point of going to see my father regularly until his mind gave way

DOYLE [concerned] Has he gone mad? You never told me

BROADBENT He has joined the Tariff Reform League He would never have done that if his mind had not been weakened [Beginning to declaim] He has fallen a victim to the arts of a political charlatan who—

DOYLE [interrupting him] You mean that you keep clear of your father because he differs from you about Free Trade, and you dont want to quarrel with him Well, think of me and my father! He's a Nationalist and a Separatist I'm a metallurgical chemist turned civil engineer Now whatever else metallurgical chemistry may be, it's not national It's international And my business and yours as civil engineers is to join countries, not to separate them The one real political conviction that our business has rubbed into us is that frontiers are hindrances and flags confounded nuisances

BROADBENT [still smarting under Mr Chamberlain's economic heresy] Only when there is a protective tariff—

DOYLE [firmly] Now look here, Tom you want to get in a speech on Free Trade, and youre not going to do it I wont stand it My father wants to make St George's Channel a frontier and hoist a green flag on College Green, and I want to bring Galway within 3 hours of Colchester and 24 of New York I want Ireland to be the brains and imagination of a big Commonwealth, not a Robinson Crusoe island Then theres the religious difficulty My Catholicism is the Catholicism of Charlemagne or Dante, qualified by a great deal of modern science and folklore which Father Dempsey would call the ravings of an Atheist Well, my father's Catholicism is the Catholicism of Father Dempsey

BROADBENT [shrendly] I dont want to interrupt you, Larry, but you know this is all gammon These differences exist in all families, but the members rub on together all right [Suddenly relapsing into portentousness] Of course there are some questions which touch the very foundations of morals, and on these I grant you even the closest relationships cannot excuse any compromise or laxity For instance—

DOYLE [impatiently springing up and walking about] For instance, Home Rule, South Africa, Free Trade, and putting the Church schools on the Education Rate Well, I should differ from my father on every one of them, probably, just as I differ from you about them

BROADBENT Yes, but you are an Irishman, and these things are not serious to you as they are to an Englishman

DOYLE What! not even Home Rule!

BROADBENT [steadfastly] Not even Home Rule We owe Home Rule not to the Irish, but to our English Gladstone No, Larry I cant help thinking that theres something behind all this DOYLE [hotly] What is there behind it? Do you think I'm humbugging you?

BROADBENT Dont fly out, old chap I only thought—

DOYLE What did you think?

BROADBENT Well, a moment ago I caught a name which is new to me a Miss Nora Reilly, I think [Doyle stops dead and stares at him nith something like awe] I dont wish to be impertinent, as you know, Larry, but are you sure she has nothing to do with your reluctance to come to Ireland with me?

DOYLE [sitting down again, vanquished] Thomas Broadbent I surrender The poor silly-clever Irishman takes off his hat to God's Englishman The man who could in all seriousness make that recent remark of yours about Home Rule and Gladstone must be simply the champion idiot of all the world Yet the man who could in the very next sentence sweep away all my special pleading and go straight to the heart of my motives must be a man of genius But that the idiot and the genius should be the same man! how is that possible? [Springing to his feet] By

Jove, I see it all now I'll write an article about it, and send it to Nature

BROADBENT [staring at him] What on earth—

DOYLE It's quite simple You know that a caterpillar—

BROADBENT A caterpillar!!!

DOYLE Yes, a caterpillar Now give your mind to what I am going to say, for it's a new and important scientific theory of the English national character A caterpillar—

BROADBENT Look here, Larry dont be an ass

DOYLE [insisting] I say a caterpillar and I mean a caterpillar Youll understand presently A caterpillar [Broadbent mutters a slight protest, but does not press it] when it gets into a tree, instinctively makes itself look exactly like a leaf, so that both its enemies and its prey may mistake it for one and think it not worth bothering about BROADBENT Whats that got to do with our English national character?

DOYLE I'll tell you The world is as full of fools as a tree is full of leaves Well, the Englishman does what the caterpillar does He instinctively makes himself look like a fool and eats up all the real fools at his ease while his enemies let him alone and laugh at him for being a fool like the rest Oh, nature is cunning! cunning! [He sits down, lost in contemplation of his word-picture]

BROADBENT [with hearty admiration] Now you know, Larry, that would never have occurred to me You Irish people are amazingly clever Of course it's all tommy rot, but it's so brilliant, you know! How the dickens do you think of such things! You really must write an article about it theyll pay you something for it If Nature wont have it, I can get it into Engineering for you I know the editor

DOYLE Lets get back to business I'd better tell you about Nora Reilly

BROADBENT No never mind I shouldnt have alluded to her

DOYLE I'd rather Nora has a fortune

BROADBENT [leerily interested] Eh? How much?

DOYLE Forty per annum

BROADBENT Forty thousand?

DOYLE No, forty Forty pounds

BROADBENT [much dashed] Thats what you call a fortune in Rosscullen is it?

DOYLE A girl with a dowry of five pounds calls it a fortune in Rosscullen Whats more,

£40 a year is a fortune there, and Nora Reilly enjoys a good deal of social consideration as an heiress on the strength of it It has helped my father's household through many a tight place My father was her father's agent She came on a visit to us when he died, and has lived with us ever since

BROADBENT [attentively, beginning to suspect Larry of misconduct with Nora, and resolving to get to the bottom of it] Since when? I mean how old were you when she came?

DOYLE I was seventeen So was she if she'd been older she'd have had more sense than to stay with us We were together for 18 months before I went up to Dublin to study When I went home for Christmas and Easter, she was there I suppose it used to be something of an event for her, though of course I never thought of that then

BROADBENT Were you at all hard hit?

DOYLE Not really I had only two ideas at that time first, to learn to do something, and then to get out of Ireland and have a chance of doing it She didnt count I was romantic about her, just as I was romantic about Byron's heroines or the old Round Tower of Rosscullen, but she didnt count any more than they did Ive never crossed St George's Channel since for her sake—never even landed at Queenstown and come back to London through Ireland

BROADBENT But did you ever say anything that would justify her in waiting for you?

DOYLE No, never But she is waiting for me

BROADBENT How do you know?

DOYLE She writes to me—on her birthday She used to write on mine, and send me little things as presents, but I stopped that by pretending that it was no use when I was travelling, as they got lost in the foreign post-offices [He pronounces post-offices with the stress on offices, instead of on post]

BROADBENT You answer the letters?

DOYLE Not very punctually But they get acknowledged at one time or another BROADBENT How do you feel when you see her handwriting?

DOYLE Uneasy I'd give £50 to escape a letter

BROADBENT [looking grave, and throwing himself back in his chair to intimate that the cross-examination is over, and the result very damaging to the witness] Hm!

DOYLE What d'ye mean by Hm!

BROADBENT Of course I know that the moral code is different in Ireland But in England it's not considered fair to trifle with a woman's affections

DOYLE You mean that an Englishman would get engaged to another woman and return Nora her letters and presents with a letter to say he was unworthy of her and wished her every happiness?

BROADBENT Well, even that would set the poor girl's mind at rest

DOYLE Would it? I wonder! One thing I can tell you, and that is that Nora would wait until she died of old age sooner than ask my intentions or condescend to hint at the possibility of my having any You dont know what Irish pride is England may have knocked a good deal of it out of me, but she's never been in England, and if I had to choose between wounding that delicacy in her and hitting her in the face, I'd hit her in the face without a moment's hesitation

BROADBENT [who has been nursing his knee and reflecting, apparently rather agreeably] You know, all this sounds rather interesting Theres the Irish charm about it Thats the worst of you the Irish charm doesnt exist for you

DOYLE Oh yes it does But it's the charm of a dream Live in contact with dreams and you will get something of their charm live in contact with facts and you will get something of their brutality I wish I could find a country to live in where the facts were not brutal and the dreams not unreal

BROADBENT [changing his attitude and responding to Doyle's earnestness with deep conviction his elbows on the table and his hands clenched] Dont despair, Larry, old boy things may look black, but there will be a great change after the next election

DOYLE [jumping up] Oh, get out, you idiot!

BROADBENT [rising also, not a bit snubbed] Ha! ha! you may laugh, but we shall see However, dont let us argue about that Come now! you ask my advice about Miss Reilly?

DOYLE [reddening] No I dont Damn your advice! [Softening] Lets have it, all the same

BROADBENT Well, everything you tell me about her impresses me favorably She seems to have the feelings of a lady, and though we must face the fact that in England her income would hardly maintain her in the lower middle class—

DOYLE [interrupting] Now look here, Tom

That reminds me When you go to Ireland, just drop talking about the middle class and bragging of belonging to it In Ireland youre either a gentleman or youre not If you want to be particularly offensive to Nora, you can call her a Papist, but if you call her a middle-class woman, Heaven help you!

BROADBENT [irrepressible] Never fear Youre all descended from the ancient kings I know that [Complacently] I'm not so tactless as you think, my boy [Earnest again] I expect to find Miss Reilly a perfect lady, and I strongly advise you to come and have another look at her before you make up your mind about her By the way, have you a photograph of her?

DOYLE Her photographs stopped at twenty-five

BROADBENT [saddened] Ah yes, I suppose so [With feeling, severely] Larry youve treated that poor girl disgracefully

DOYLE By George, if she only knew that two men were talking about her like this—!

BROADBENT She wouldnt like it, would she? Of course not We ought to be ashamed of ourselves, Larry [More and more carried away by his new fancy] You know, I have a sort of presentiment that Miss Reilly is a very superior woman DOYLE [staring hard at him] Oh! you have, have you?

BROADBENT Yes I have There is something very touching about the history of this beautiful girl

DOYLE Beau—! Oho! Heres a chance for Nora! and for me! [Calling] Hodson

HODSON [appearing at the bedroom door] Did you call, sir?

DOYLE Pack for me too I'm going to Ireland with Mr Broadbent

HODSON Right, sir [He retires into the bedroom]

BROADBENT [clapping Doyle on the shoulder] Thank you, old chap Thank you

ACT II

Rosscullen Westward a hillside of granite rock and heather slopes upward across the prospect from south to north A huge stone stands on it in a naturally impossible place, as if it had been tossed up there by a giant Over the brow, in the desolate valley beyond, is a round tower A lonely white high road trending away westward past the tower loses itself at the foot of the far mountains It is evening, and there are great breadths of silken green in the Irish sky The sun is setting

A man with the face of a young saint, yet with white hair and perhaps 50 years on his back, is standing near the stone in a trance of intense melancholy, looking over the hills as if by mere intensity of gaze he could pierce the glories of the sunset and see into the streets of heaven He is dressed in black, and is rather more clerical in appearance than most English curates are nowadays, but he does not wear the collar and waistcoat of a parish priest He is roused from his trance by the chirp of an insect from a tuft of grass in a crevice of the stone His face relaxes he turns quietly, and gravely takes off his hat to the tuft, addressing the insect in a brogue which is the jocular assumption of a gentleman and not the natural speech of a peasant

THE MAN An is that yourself, Misther Grasshopper? I hope I see you well this fine evenin

THE GRASSHOPPER [prompt and shrill in answer] X X

THE MAN [encouragingly] Thats right I suppose now youve come out to make yourself miserable be admyerin the sunset?

THE GRASSHOPPER [sadly] X X

THE MAN Aye, youre a thrue Irish grasshopper

THE GRASSHOPPER [loudly] X X X

THE MAN Three cheers for ould Ireland, is it? That helps you to face out the misery and the poverty and the torment, doesnt it?

THE GRASSHOPPER [plaintively] X X

THE MAN Ah, it's no use, me poor little friend If you could jump as far as a kangaroo you couldnt jump away from your own heart an its punishment You can only look at Heaven from here you cant reach it There! [pointing with his stick to the sunset] thats the gate o glory, isnt it?

THE GRASSHOPPER [assenting] X X

THE MAN Sure it's the wise grasshopper yar to know that But tell me this, Misther Unworldly Wiseman why does the sight of Heaven wring your heart an mine as the sight of holy wather wrings the heart o the divil? What wickedness have you done to bring that curse on you? Here! where are you jumpin to? Wheres your manners to go skyrocketin like that out o the box in the middle o your confession [he threatens it with his stick]?

THE GRASSHOPPER [penitently] X

THE MAN [lowering the stick] I accept your apology, but dont do it again And now tell me one thing before I let you go home to bed Which would you say this counthry was hell or purgatory?

THE GRASSHOPPER X

THE MAN Hell! Faith I'm afraid youre right I wondher what you and me did when we were alive to get sent here

THE GRASSHOPPER [shrilly] X X

THE MAN [nodding] Well, as you say, it's a delicate subject, and I wont press it on you Now off widja

THE GRASSHOPPER X X [It springs away]

THE MAN [waving his stick] God speed you! [He walks away past the stone towards the brow of the hill Immediately a young laborer, his face distorted with terror, slips round from behind the stone]

THE LABORER [crossing himself repeatedly] Oh glory be to God! glory be to God! Oh Holy Mother an all the saints! Oh murder! murder! [Beside himself, calling] Fadher Keegan! Fadher Keegan!

THE MAN [turning] Who's there? Whats that? [He comes back and finds the laborer, who clasps his knees] Patsy Farrell! What are you doing here?

PATSY Oh for the love o God dont lave me here wi dhe grasshopper I hard it spakin to you Dont let it do me any harm, Father darlint

KEEGAN Get up, you foolsh man, get up Are you afraid of a poor insect because I pretended it was talking to me?

PATSY Oh, it was no pretendin, Fadher dear Didnt it give three cheers n say it was a divil out o hell? Oh say youll see me safe home, Fadher, n put a blessin on me or somethin [he moans with terror]

KEEGAN What were you doing there, Patsy, hstnin? Were you spyin on me?

PATSY No, Fadher on me oath an soul I wasnt I was waitn to meet Masther Larry n carry his luggage from the car, n I fell asleep on the grass, n you woke me talkin to the grasshopper, n I hard its wicked little voice Oh, d'ye think I'll die before the year's out, Fadher?

KEEGAN For shame, Patsy! Is that your religion, to be afraid of a little deeshy grasshopper? Suppose it was a divil, what call have you to fear it? If I could ketch it, I'd make you take it home widja in your hat for a penance

PATSY Sure, if you wont let it harm me, I'm not afraid, your riverence [He gets up, a little reassured He is a callow, flaxen polled, smoothfaced, donny chunned lad, fully grown but not yet fully filled out, with blue eyes and an instinctively acquired air of helplessness and silliness, indicating, not his real character, but a cunning developed by his constant dread of a hostile dominance, which he habitually tries to disarm and tempt into unmasking by pretending to be a much greater fool than he really is Englishmen think him half-witted, which is exactly what he intends them to think He is clad in corduroy trousers, unbuttoned waistcoat, and coarse blue striped shirt]

KEEGAN [admonitory] Patsy what did I tell you about callin me Father Keegan an your reverence? What did Father Dempsey tell you about it?

PATSY Yis, Fadier

KEEGAN Father!

PATSY [desperately] Arra, hwat am I to call you? Fadier Dempsey sez youre not a priest, n we all know youre not a man, n how do we know what ud happen to us if we shewed any disrespect to you? N sure they say wanse a priest always a priest

KEEGAN [sternly] It's not for the like of you, Patsy, to go behind the instruction of your parish priest and set yourself up to judge whether your Church is right or wrong

PATSY Sure I know that, sir

KEEGAN The Church let me be its priest as long as it thought me fit for its work. When it took away my papers it meant you to know that I was only a poor madman, unfit and unworthy to take charge of the souls of the people

PATSY But wasnt it only because you knew more Latn than Father Dempsey that he was jealous of you?

KEEGAN [scolding him to keep himself from smiling] How dar you, Patsy Farrell, put your own wicked little spites and foolishnesses into the heart of your priest? For two pins I'd tell him what you just said

PATSY [coaxing] Sure you wouldnt—

KEEGAN Wouldnt I? God forgive you! youre little better than a heathen

PATSY Deedn I am, Fadier it s me brudher the tinsmith in Dublin youre thunkin of. Sure he had to be a freethinker when he larnt a thrade and went to live in the town

KEEGAN Well, he'll get to Heaven before you if youre not careful, Patsy And now you listen to me, once and for all Youll talk to me and pray for me by the name of Pether Keegan, so you will And when youre angry and tempted to lift your hand agen the donkey or stamp your foot on the little grasshopper, remember that the donkey's Pether Keegan's brother, and the grasshopper Pether Keegan's friend And when youre tempted to throw a stone at a sinner or a curse at a beggar, remember that Pether Keegan is a worse sinner and a worse beggar, and keep the stone and the curse for him the next time you meet him Now say God bless you, Pether, to me before I go, just to practise you a bit

PATSY Sure it wouldnt be right, Fadier I cant—

KEEGAN Yes you can Now out with it, or I'll put this stick into your hand an make you hit me with it

PATSY [throwing himself on his knees in an ecstasy of adoration] Sure it's your blessin I want, Fadier Keegan I'll have no luck without it

KEEGAN [shocked] Get up out o that, man Dont kneel to me I'm not a saint

PATSY [with intense conviction] Oh in throth yar, sir [The grasshopper chirps Patsy, terrified, clutches at Keegan's hands] Dont set it on me, Fadier I'll do anythin you bid me

KEEGAN [pulling him up] You bosthoon, you! Dont you see that it only whistled to tell me Miss Reilly's comin? There! Look at her and pull yourself together for shame Off widja to the road youll be late for the car if you dont make haste [bustling him down the hill] I can see the dust of it in the gap already

PATSY The Lord save us! [He goes down the hill towards the road like a haunted man]

Nora Reilly comes down the hill A slight neak woman in a pretty muslin print gown (her best), she is a figure commonplace enough to Irish eyes, but on the inhabitants of fatter-fed, cronded, hustling and bustling modern countries she makes a very different impression The absence of any symptoms of coarseness or hardness or appetite in her, her comparative delicacy of manner and sensibility of apprehension, her fine hands and frail figure, her novel accent, with the caressing plaintive Irish melody of her speech, give her a charm which is all the more effective because, being untravellered, she is unconscious of it, and never dreams of deliberately dramatizing and exploiting it, as the Irishwomen in England do For Tom Broadbent therefore, an attractive woman, whom he would even call ethereal To Larry Doyle, an everyday woman fit only for the eighteenth century, helpless, useless, almost sexless, an invalid without the excuse of disease, an incarnation of everything in Ireland that drove him out of it These judgments have little value and no finality, but they are the judgments on which her fate hangs just at present Keegan touches his hat to her. he does not take it off

NORA Mr Keegan I want to speak to you a minute if you dont mind

KEEGAN [dropping the broad Irish vernacular of his speech to Patsy] An hour if you like, Miss Reilly youre always welcome Shall we sit down?

NORA Thank you [They sit on the heather She is shy and anxious, but she comes to the point promptly because she can think of nothing else] They say you did a gradle o travelling at one time

KEEGAN Well, you see I'm not a Mnooth man [he means that he was not a student at Maynooth College] When I was young I admired the older generation of priests that had been educated in Salamanca So when I felt sure of my vocation I went to Salamanca Then I walked from Salamanca to Rome, an sted in a monastery there for a year My pilgrimage to Rome taught me that walking is a better way of travelling than the train, so I walked from Rome to the Sorbonne in Paris, and I wish I could have walked from Paris to Oxford, for I was very sick on the sea After a year of Oxford I had to walk to Jerusalem to walk the Oxford feeling off me From Jerusalem I came back to Patmos, and spent six months at the monastery of Mount Athos From that I came to Ireland and settled down as a parish priest until I went mad

NORA [startled] Oh dont say that

KEEGAN Why not? Dont you know the story? how I confessed a black man and gave him absolution? and how he put a spell on me and drove me mad?

NORA How can you talk such nonsense about yourself? For shame!

KEEGAN It's not nonsense at all it's true—in a way But never mind the black man Now that you know what a travelled man I am, what can I do for you? [She hesitates and plucks nervously at the heather He stays her hand gently] Dear Miss Nora dont pluck the little flower If it was a pretty baby you wouldnt want to pull its head off and stick it in a rawse o water to look at [The grasshopper chirps Keegan turns his head and addresses it in the vernacular] Be aisy, me son she wont spoil the swing-swong in your little three [To Nora, resuming his urbane style] You see I'm quite cracked, but never mind I'm harmless Now what is it?

NORA [embarrassed] Oh, only idle curiosity I wanted to know whether you found Ireland—I mean the country part of Ireland, of course—very small and backwardlike when you came back to it from Rome and Oxford and all the great cities

KEEGAN. When I went to those great cities I saw wonders I had never seen in Ireland But when I came back to Ireland I found all the wonders there waiting for me You see they had been there all the time, but my eyes had never been opened to them I did not know what my own house was like, because I had never been outside it

NORA D'ye think thats the same with everybody?

KEEGAN With everybody who has eyes in his soul as well as in his head

NORA But really and truly now, werent the people rather disappointing? I should think the girls must have seemed rather coarse and dowdy after the foreign princesses and people? But I suppose a priest wouldnt notice that

KEEGAN It's a priest's business to notice everything I wont tell you all I noticed about women, but I'll tell you this The more a man knows, and the farther he travels, the more likely he is to marry a country girl afterwards

NORA [blushing with delight] Youre joking, Mr Keegan I'm sure yar

KEEGAN My way of joking is to tell the truth It's the funniest joke in the world

NORA [incredulous] Galong with you!

KEEGAN [springing up actively] Shall we go down to the road and meet the car? [She gives him her hand and he helps her up] Patsy Farrell told me you were expecting young Doyle

NORA [tossing her chun up at once] Oh, I'm not expecting him particularly It's a wonder he's come back at all After staying away eighteen years he can harly expect us to be very anxious to see him can he now?

KEEGAN Well, not anxious perhaps, but you will be curious to see how much he's changed in all these years

NORA [with a sudden bitter flush] I suppose thats all that brings him back to look at us, just to see how much we've changed. Well, he can wait and see me be candlelight. I didnt come out to meet him. I'm going to walk to the Round Tower [going west across the hill].

KEEGAN You couldnt do better this fine evening [Gravely] I'll tell him where youve gone [She turns as if to forbid him, but the deep understanding in his eyes makes that impossible, and she only looks at him earnestly and goes]. He watches her disappear on the other side of the hill, then says] Aye, he's come to torment you, and youre driven already to torment him [He shakes his head, and goes slowly away across the hill in the opposite direction, lost in thought].

By this time the car has arrived, and dropped three of its passengers on the high road at the foot of the hill. It is a monster jaunting car, black and dilapidated, one of the last survivors of the public vehicles known to earlier generations as Bicycankany cars, the Irish having laid violent tongues on the name of their projector, one Bianconi, an enterprising Italian. The three passengers are the parish priest, Father Dempsey, Cornelius Doyle, Larry's father, and Broadbent, all in overcoats and as stiff as only an Irish car could make them.

The priest, stout and fatherly, falls far short of that finest type of countryside pastor which represents the genius of priesthood, but he is equally far above the base type in which a strong-minded unscrupulous peasant uses the Church to extort money, power, and privilege. He is a priest neither by vocation nor ambition, but because the life suits him. He has boundless authority over his flock, and taxes them stiffly enough to be a rich man. The old Protestant ascendancy is now too broken to gail him. On the whole, an easygoing, amiable, even modest man as long as his ducs are paid and his authority and dignity fully admitted.

Cornelius Doyle is an elder of the small niry type, with a hardskinned, rather norried face, clean shaven except for sandy whiskers blanching into a lustreless pale yellow and quite white at the roots. His dress is that of a country-town man of business—that is, an oldish shooting suit, with elastic sided boots quite unconnected with shooting. Feeling shy with Broadbent, he is hasty, which is his way of trying to appear genial.

Broadbent, for reasons which will appear later, has no luggage except a field glass and a guide book. The other two have left theirs to the unfortunate Patsy Farrell, who struggles up the hill after them, loaded with a sack of potatoes, a hamper, a fat goose, a colossal salmon, and several paper parcels.

Cornelius leads the way up the hill, with Broadbent at his heels. The priest follows. Patsy lags laboriously behind.

CORNELIUS This is a bit of a climb, Mr Broadbent, but it's shorter than going round by the road.

BROADBENT [stopping to examine the great stone] Just a moment, Mr Doyle. I want to look at this stone. It must be Fimian's die-east.

CORNELIUS [in blank bewilderment] Hvat?

BROADBENT Murray describes it. One of your great national heroes—I cant pronounce the name—Fimian Somebody, I think.

FATHER DEMPSEY [also perplexed, and rather scandalized] Is it Fim McCool you mean?

BROADBENT I daresay it is [Referring to the guide book]. Murray says that a huge stone, probably of Druidic origin, is still pointed out as the die east by Fim in his celebrated match with the devil.

CORNELIUS [dubiously] Jeeuce a word I ever heard of it!

FATHER DEMPSEY [very seriously indeed, and even a little severely] Dont believe any such nonsense, sir. There never was any such thing. When people talk to you about Fim McCool and the like, take no notice of them. It's all idle stories and superstition.

BROADBENT [sometimes indignantly, for to be rebuked by an Irish priest for superstition is more than he can stand] You dont suppose I believe it, do you?

FATHER DEMPSEY Oh, I thought you did. D'ye see the top o the Round Tower there? thats an antiquity worth lookin at.

BROADBENT [deeply interested] Have you any theory as to what the Round Towers were for?

FATHER DEMPSEY [a little offended] A theory? Me! [Theories are connected in his mind with the late Professor Tyndall and with scientific scepticism generally, also perhaps with the view that the Round Towers are phallic symbols].

CORNELIUS [remonstrating] Father Dempsey is the priest of the parish, Mr Broadbent. What would he be doing with a theory?

FATHER DEMPSEY [with gentle emphasis] I have a knowledge of what the Round Towers were, if thats what you mean. They are the forefingers of the early Church, pointing us all to God

Patsy, intolerably overburdened, loses his balance and sits down involuntarily His burdens are scattered over the hillside Cornelius and Father Dempsey turn furiously on him, leaving Broadbent beaming at the stone and the tower with fatuous interest

CORNELIUS Oh, be the hokey, the sammin's broke in two! You schoopid ass, what d'ye mean?

FATHER DEMPSEY Are you drunk, Patsy Farrell? Did I tell you to carry that hamper carefully or did I not?

PATSY [rubbing the back of his head which has almost dinted a slab of granite] Sure me fut slpht Howln I carry three men's luggage at wanst?

FATHER DEMPSEY You were told to leave behind what you couldnt carry, an go back for it

PATSY. An whose things was I to lave behind? Hwat would your reverence think if I left your hamper behind in the wet grass, n hwat would the masther say if I left the sammin and the goose be the side o the road for annywan to pick up?

CORNELIUS Oh youve a dale to say for yourself, you butther-fingered omadhaun Waitil Ant Judy sees the state o that sammin she'll talk to you Here! gimmy that birdn that fish there, an take Father Dempsey's hamper to his house for him, n then come back for the rest

FATHER DEMPSEY Do Patsy And mind you dont fall down again

PATSY Sure I—

CORNELIUS [bustling him up the hill] Whisht! heres Ant Judy [Patsy goes grumbling in disgrace, with Father Dempsey's hamper]

Aunt Judy comes down the hill, a woman of 50 in no way remarkable, lively and busy without energy or grip, placid without tranquillity, kindly without concern for others indeed without much concern for herself a contented product of a narrow, strainless life She wears her hair parted in the middle and quite smooth with a flattened bun at the back Her dress is a plain brown frock, with a woollen pelerine of black and aniline mauve over her shoulders, all very trim in honor of the occasion She looks round for Larry, is puzzled, then stares incredulously at Broadbent

AUNT JUDY Surely to goodness thats not you, Larry!

CORNELIUS Arra how could he be Larry, woman alive? Larry's in no hurry home it seems I havnt set eyes on him This is his friend, Mr Broadbent. Mr Broadbent me sister Judy

AUNT JUDY [hospitably going to Broadbent and shaking hands heartily] Mr Broadbent! Fancy me takin you for Larry! Sure we havnt seen a sight of him for eighteen years, n he only a lad when he left us BROADBENT It's not Larry's fault he was to have been here before me He started in our motor an hour before Mr Doyle arrived, to meet us at Athenmullet, intending to get here long before me.

AUNT JUDY Lord save us! do you think he's had n avindt?

BROADBENT No he's wired to say he's had a breakdown and will come on as soon as he can He expects to be here at about ten

AUNT JUDY There now! Fancy him trustn himself in a motor and we all expectn him! Just like him! he'd never do anything like anybody else Well, what cant be cured must be injoored Come on in, all of you You must be dyin for your tea, Mr Broadbent.

BROADBENT [with a slight start] Oh, I'm afraid it's too late for tea [he looks at his watch]

AUNT JUDY Not a bit we never have it ariher than this I hope they gave you a good dinner at Athenmullet

BROADBENT [trying to conceal his consternation as he realizes that he is not going to get any dinner after his drive] Oh—er—excellent, excellent By the way, hadnt I better see about a room at the hotel? [They stare at him]

CORNELIUS The hotel!

FATHER DEMPSEY Hwat hotel?

AUNT JUDY Indeedn youre not goin to a hotel. Youll stay with us I'd have put you into Larry's room, ony the boy's pallyass is too short for you, but we'll make a comfortable bed for you on the sofa in the parlor

BROADBENT Youre very kind, Miss Doyle, but really I'm ashamed to give you so much trouble unnecessarily I shant mnd the hotel in the least.

FATHER DEMPSEY Man alive! theres no hotel in Rosscullen

BROADBENT No hotel! Why, the driver told me there was the finest hotel in Ireland here [They regard him joylessly]

AUNT JUDY Arra would you mind what the like of him would tell you? Sure he'd say hwatever was the least trouble to himself and the pleasantest to you, thinkin you might give him a thruppeny bit for himself or the like

BROADBENT Perhaps theres a public house
FATHER DEMPSEY [grimly] Theres seventeen

AUNT JUDY Ah then, how could you stay at a public house? theyd have no place to put you even if it was a right place for you to go Come! is it the sofa youre afraid of? If it is, you can have me own bed I can sleep with Nora

BROADBENT Not at all, not at all I should be only too delighted But to upset your arrangements in this way—

CORNELIUS [anxious to cut short the discussion, which makes him ashamed of his house, for he guesses Broadbent's standard of comfort a little more accurately than his sister does] Thats all right itll be no trouble at all Hweres Nora?

AUNT JUDY Oh, how do I know? She slipped out a little while ago I thought she was goin to meet the car

CORNELIUS [dissatisfied] It's a queer thing of her to run out o the way at such a time

AUNT JUDY Sure she's a queer girl altogether Come Come in come in

FATHER DEMPSEY I'll say good-night, Mr Broadbent If theres anything I can do for you in this parish, let me know [He shakes hands with Broadbent]

BROADBENT [effusively cordial] Thank you, Father Dempsey Delighted to have met you, sir

FATHER DEMPSEY [passing on to Aunt Judy] Good-night, Miss Doyle

AUNT JUDY Wont you stay to tea?

FATHER DEMPSEY Not to-night, thank you kindly I have business to do at home [He turns to go, and meets Patsy Farrell returning unloaded] Have you left that hamper for me?

PATSY Yis, your reverence

FATHER DEMPSEY Thats a good lad [going]

PATSY [to Aunt Judy] Fadher Keegan sez—

FATHER DEMPSEY [turning sharply on him] Whats that you say?

PATSY [frightened] Fadher Keegan—

FATHER DEMPSEY How often have you heard me bid you call Mister Keegan in his proper name, the same as I do? Father Keegan indeed! Cant you tell the difference between your priest and any ole madman in a black coat?

PATSY Sure I'm afraid he might put a spell on me

FATHER DEMPSEY [nrathfully] You mind

what I tell you or I'll put a spell on you thatll make you lep D'ye mind that now? [He goes home]

Patsy goes down the hull to retrieve the fish, the bird, and the sack

AUNT JUDY Ah, hwy cant you hold your tongue, Patsy, before Father Dempsey?

PATSY Well, hwat was I to do? Father Keegan bid me tell you Miss Nora was gone to the Roun Tower

AUNT JUDY An hwy couldnt you wait to tell us until Father Dempsey was gone?

PATSY I was afeerd o forgetn it, and then may be he'd a sent the grasshopper or the little dark looker into me at night to remind me of it [The dark looker is the common grey lizard, which is supposed to walk down the throats of incautious sleepers and cause them to perish in a slow decline]

CORNELIUS Yah, you great gaum, you! Widjer grasshoppers and dark lookers! Here take up them things and let me hear no more o your foolish lip [Patsy obeys] You can take the sammin under your oxther [He nedges the salmon into Patsy's avilla]

PATSY I can take the goose too, sir Put it on me back n gimmy the neck of it in me mouth [Cornelius is about to comply thoughtlessly]

AUNT JUDY [feeling that Broadbent's presence demands special punctiliousness] For shame, Patsy! to offer to take the goose in your mouth that we have to eat after you! The masterll bring it in for you

PATSY Arra what would a dead goose care for me mouth? [He takes his load up the hull]

CORNELIUS Hwats Nora doin at the Roun Tower?

AUNT JUDY Oh, the Lord knows! Romanen, I suppose Praps she thinks Larry would go there to look for her and see her safe home

BROADBENT Miss Reilly must not be left to wait and walk home alone at night Shall I go for her?

AUNT JUDY [contemptuously] Arra hwat ud happen to her? Hurry in now, Corny Come, Mr Broadbent I left the tea on the hob to draw, and itll be black if we dont go in an drink it

They go up the hull It is dusk by this time Broadbent does not fare so badly after all at Aunt Judy's board He gets not only tea and bread-and-butter, but more mutton chops than he has ever conceived it possible to eat at one sitting There is also a most filling substance called potato cake Hardly have his fears of being starved been replaced by his first misgiving that he is eating too much and will be sorry for it tomorrow, when his appetite is revived by the production of a bottle of illicitly distilled whisky, called potcheen, which he has read and dreamed of (he calls it pottine) and is now at last to taste His goodhumor rises almost to excitement before Cornelius shews signs of sleepiness The contrast between Aunt Judy's table service and that of the south and east coast hotels at which he spends his Fridays-to-Tuesdays when he is in London, seems to him delightfully Irish The almost total atrophy of any sense of enjoyment in Cornelius, or even any desire for it or toleration of the possibility of life being something better than a round of sordid worries, relieved by tobacco, punch, fine mornings, and petty successes in buying and selling, passes with his guest as the whimsical affectation of a shrewd Irish humorist and incorrigible spendthrift Aunt Judy seems to him an incarnate joke The likelihood that the joke will pall after a month or so, and is probably not apparent at any time to born Rossculleners, or that he himself unconsciously entertains Aunt Judy by his fantastic English personality and English mispronunciations, does not occur to him for a moment In the end he is so charmed, and so loth to go to bed and perhaps dream of prosaic England, that he insists on going out to smoke a cigar and look for Nora Reilly at the Round Tower Not that any special insistence is needed, for the English inhibitive instinct does not seem to exist in Rosscullen Just as Nora's liking to miss a meal and stay out at the round Tower is accepted as a sufficient reason for her doing it, and for the family going to bed and leaving the door open for her, so Broadbent's whim to go out for a late stroll provokes neither hospitable remonstrance nor surprise Indeed Aunt Judy wants to get rid of him whilst she makes a bed for him on the sofa So off he goes, full fed, happy and enthusiastic, to explore the valley by moonlight

The Round Tower stands about half an Irish mile from Rosscullen, some fifty yards south of the road on a knoll with a circle of wide green-sward on it The road once ran over this knoll, but modern engineering has tempered the level to the Beeyankany car by carrying the road partly round the knoll and partly through a cutting, so that the way from the road to the tower is a footpath up the embankment through furze and brambles

On the edge of this slope, at the top of the path, Nora is straining her eyes in the moonlight, watching for Larry At last she gives it up with a sob of impatience, and retreats to the hoary foot of the tower, where she sits down discouraged and cries a little Then she settles herself resignedly to wait, and hums a song—not an Irish melody, but a hackneyed English drawing room ballad of the season before last—until some slight noise suggests a footstep, when she springs up eagerly and runs to the edge of the slope again Some moments of silence and suspense follow, broken by unmistakable footsteps She gives a little gasp as she sees a man approaching

NORA Is that you, Larry? [Frightened a little] Who's that?

BROADBENT'S voice from below on the path Dont be alarmed

NORA Oh, what an English accent youve got!

BROADBENT [rising into view] I must introduce myself—

NORA [violently startled, retreating] It's not you! Who are you? What do you want?

BROADBENT [advancing] I'm really so sorry to have alarmed you, Miss Reilly My name is Broadbent Larry's friend, you know

NORA [chilled] And has Mr Doyle not come with you?

BROADBENT No I've come instead I hope I am not unwelcome

NORA [deeply mortified] I'm sorry Mr Doyle should have given you the trouble, I'm sure

BROADBENT You see, as a stranger and an Englishman, I thought it would be interesting to see the Round Tower by moonlight

NORA Oh, you came to see the tower I thought—[confused, trying to recover her manners] Oh, of course I was so startled It's a beautiful night, isn't it?

BROADBENT Lovely I must explain why Larry has not come himself

NORA Why should he come? He's seen the tower often enough it's no attraction to him [Genteelly] An what do you think of Ireland, Mr Broadbent? Have you ever been here before?

BROADBENT Never

NORA An how do you like it?

BROADBENT [suddenly betraying a condition of extreme sentimentality] I can hardly trust myself to say how much I like it The magic of this Irish scene, and—I really dont want to be personal, Miss Reilly, but the charm of your Irish voice—

NORA [quite accustomed to gallantry, and attaching no seriousness whatever to it] Oh, get along with you, Mr Broadbent! You're breaking your heart about me already, I daresay, after seeing me for two minutes in the dark.

BROADBENT The voice is just as beautiful in the dark, you know. Besides, I've heard a great deal about you from Larry.

NORA [with bitter indifference] Have you now? Well, that's a great honor, I'm sure.

BROADBENT I have looked forward to meeting you more than to anything else in Ireland.

NORA [ironically] Dear me! did you now?

BROADBENT I did really. I wish you had taken half as much interest in me.

NORA Oh, I was dying to see you, of course I daresay you can imagine the sensation an Englishman like you would make among us poor Irish people.

BROADBENT Ah, now you're chaffing me, Miss Reilly, you know you are. You mustn't chaff me. I'm very much in earnest about Ireland and everything Irish. I'm very much in earnest about you and about Larry.

NORA Larry has nothing to do with me, Mr Broadbent.

BROADBENT If I really thought that, Miss Reilly, I should—well, I should let myself feel that charm of which I spoke just now more deeply than I—than I—

NORA Is it making love to me you are?

BROADBENT [scared and much upset] On my word I believe I am, Miss Reilly. If you say that to me again I shant answer for myself all the harps of Ireland are in your voice. [She laughs at him. He suddenly loses his head and seizes her arms, to her great indignation.] Stop laughing, do you hear? I am in earnest in English earnest. When I say a thing like that to a woman, I mean it. [Releasing her and trying to recover his ordinary manner in spite of his bewildering emotion.] I beg your pardon.

NORA How dare you touch me?

BROADBENT There are not many things I would not dare for you. That does not sound right perhaps, but I really—[he stops and passes his hand over his forehead, rather lost]

NORA I think you ought to be ashamed alone with you in this place at night, you would die rather than do such a thing.

BROADBENT You mean that it's an act of treachery to Larry?

NORA Deed I dont. What has Larry to do with it? It's an act of disrespect and rudeness to me. It shews what you take me for. You can go your way now, and I'll go mine. Good-night, Mr Broadbent.

BROADBENT No, please, Miss Reilly. One moment. Listen to me. I'm serious. I'm desperately serious. Tell me that I'm interfering with Larry, and I'll go straight from this spot back to London and never see you again. That's on my honor. I will. Am I interfering with him?

NORA [answering in spite of herself in a sudden spring of bitterness] I should think you ought to know better than me whether you're interfering with him. You've seen him oftener than I have. You know him better than I do, by this time. You've come to me quicker than he has, havnt you?

BROADBENT I'm bound to tell you, Miss Reilly, that Larry has not arrived in Ross-cullen yet. He meant to get here before me, but his ear broke down, and he may not arrive until to-morrow.

NORA [her face lighting up] Is that the truth?

BROADBENT Yes, that's the truth. [She gives a sigh of relief.] You're glad of that?

NORA [up in arms at once] Glad indeed! Why should I be glad? As we've waited eighteen years for him we can afford to wait a day longer, I should think.

BROADBENT If you really feel like that about him, there may be a chance for another man yet. Eh?

NORA [deeply offended] I suppose people are different in England, Mr Broadbent, so perhaps you dont mean any harm. In Ireland nobody'd mind what a man'd say in fun, nor take advantage of what a woman might say in answer to it. If a woman couldnt talk to a man for two minutes at their first meeting without being treated the way you're treating me, no decent woman would ever talk to a man at all.

BROADBENT I dont understand that. I dont admit that I am sincere, and my intentions are perfectly honorable. I think you will accept the fact that I'm an Englishman as a guarantee that I am not a man to act hastily or romantically, though I confess that your voice had such an extraordinary effect on me just now when you asked me so quaintly whether I was making love to you—

NORA [flushing] I never thought—

BROADBENT [quickly] Of course you didnt. I'm not so stupid as that. But I couldnt bear your laughing at the feeling it gave me You —[again struggling with a surge of emotion] you dont know what I—[he chokes for a moment and then blurts out with unnatural steadiness] Will you be my wife?

NORA [promptly] Deed I wont The idea! [Looking at him more carefully] Arra, come home, Mr Broadbent, and get your senses back again I think youre not accustomed to potcheen punch in the evening after your tea

BROADBENT [horrified] Do you mean to say that I—I—I—my God! that I appear drunk to you, Miss Reilly?

NORA [compassionately] How many tumblers had you?

BROADBENT [helplessly] Two

NORA The flavor of the turf prevented you noticing the strength of it Youd better come home to bed

BROADBENT [fearfully agitated] But this is such a horrible doubt to put into my mind—to—to— For Heaven's sake, Miss Reilly, am I really drunk?

NORA [soothingly] Youll be able to judge better in the morning Come on now back with me, an think no more about it [She takes his arm with motherly solicitude and urges him gently towards the path]

BROADBENT [yielding in despair] I must be drunk frightfully drunk, for your voice drove me out of my senses—[he stumbles over a stone] No on my word, on my most sacred word of honor, Miss Reilly, I tripped over that stone It was an accident it was indeed

NORA Yes, of course it was Just take my arm, Mr Broadbent, while we're goin down the path to the road Youll be all right then

BROADBENT [submissively taking it] I cant sufficiently apologize, Miss Reilly, or express my sense of your kindness when I am in such a disgusting state How could I be such a bea—[he trips again] damn the heather! my foot caught in it

NORA Steady now, steady Come along come [He is led down to the road in the character of a convicted drunkard To him there is something divine in the sympathetic indulgence she substitutes for the angry disgust with which one of his own countrywomen would resent his supposed condition And he has no suspicion of the fact, or of her ignorance of it, that when an Englishman is sentimental he behaves very much as an Irishman does when he is drunk]

ACT III

Next morning Broadbent and Larry are sitting at the ends of a breakfast table in the middle of a small grass plot before Cornehus Doyle's house They have finished their meal, and are buried in newspapers Most of the crockery is crowded upon a large square black tray of japanned metal The teapot is of brown delft ware There is no silver, and the butter, on a dinner plate, is en bloc The background to this breakfast is the house, a small white slated building, accessible by a half-glazed door A person coming out into the garden by this door would find the table straight in front of him, and a gate leading to the road half way down the garden on his right, or, if he turned sharp to his left, he could pass round the end of the house through an unkempt shrubbery The mutilated remnant of a huge plaster statue, nearly dissolved by the rains of a century, and vaguely resembling a majestic female in Roman draperies, with a wreath in her hand, stands neglected amid the laurels Such statues, though apparently works of art, grow naturally in Irish gardens Their germination is a mystery to the oldest inhabitants, to whose means and tastes they are totally foreign

There is a rustic bench, much soiled by the birds, and decorticated and split by the weather, near the little gate At the opposite side, a basket lies unmolested because it might as well be there as anywhere else An empty chair at the table was lately occupied by Cornelius, who has finished his breakfast and gone in to the room in which he receives rents and keeps his books and cash, known in the household as "the office" This chair, like the two occupied by Larry and Broadbent, has a mahogany frame and is upholstered in black horsehair

Larry rises and goes off through the shrubbery with his newspaper Hodson comes in through the garden gate, disconsolate Broadbent, who sits facing the gate, augurs the worst from his expression

BROADBENT Have you been to the village?

HODSON No use, sir We'll have to get everything from London by parcel post

BROADBENT I hope they made you comfortable last night

HODSON I was no worse than you were on that sofa, sir One expects to rough it here, sir

BROADBENT We shall have to look out for some other arrangement [Cheering up irrepressibly] Still, it's no end of a joke How do you like the Irish, Hodson?

HODSON Well, sir, theyre all right anywhere but in their own country I've known lots of em in England, and generally liked em But here, sir, I seem simply to hate em The feeling come over me the moment we landed at Cork, sir It's no use my pretendin, sir I cant bear em My mind rises up agin their ways, somehow they rub me the wrong way all over

BROADBENT Oh, their faults are on the surface at heart they are one of the finest races on earth [Hodson turns away, without affecting to respond to his enthusiasm] By the way, Hodson—

HODSON [turning] Yes, sir

BROADBENT Did you notice anything about me last night when I came in with that lady?

HODSON [surprised] No, sir

BROADBENT Not any—er—? You may speak frankly

HODSON I didnt notice nothing, sir What sort of thing did you mean, sir?

BROADBENT Well—er—er—well, to put it plainly, was I drunk?

HODSON [amazed] No, sir

BROADBENT Quite sure?

HODSON Well, I should a said rather the opposite, sir Usually when youve been enjoying yourself, youre a bit hearty like Last night you seemed rather low, if anything

BROADBENT I certainly have no headache Did you try the pottine, Hodson?

HODSON I just took a mouthful, sir It tasted of peat oh! something horrid, sir The people here call peat turf Poteheen and strong porter is what they like, sir I'm sure I dont know how they can stand it Give me beer, I say

BROADBENT By the way, you told me I couldnt have porridge for breakfast, but Mr Doyle had some

HODSON Yes, sir Very sorry, sir They call it strabout, sir thats how it was They know no better, sir

BROADBENT All right I'll have some tomorrow

Hodson goes to the house When he opens the door he finds Nora and Aunt Judy on the threshold He stands aside to let them pass, with the air of a well trained servant oppressed by heavy trials Then he goes in Broadbent rises Aunt Judy goes to the table and collects the plates and cups on the tray Nora goes to the back of the rustic seat and looks out at the gate with the air of a woman accustomed to have nothing to do Larry returns from the shrubbery

BROADBENT Good morning, Miss Doyle

AUNT JUDY [thinking it absurdly late in the day for such a salutation] Oh, good morning [Before moving his plate] Have you done?

BROADBENT Quite, thank you You must excuse us for not waiting for you The country air tempted us to get up early

AUNT JUDY N d'ye call this airy, God help you?

LARRY Aunt Judy probably breakfasted about half past six

AUNT JUDY Whisht, you! draggin the parlor chairs out into the garden givin Mr Broadbent his death over his meals out here in the cold air [To Broadbent] Why d'ye put up with his foolishness, Mr Broadbent?

BROADBENT I assure you I like the open air

AUNT JUDY Ah galong! How can you like whats not natural? I hope you slept well

NORA Did anything wake yup with a thump at three o'clock? I thought the house was falling But then I'm a very light sleeper

LARRY I seem to recollect that one of the legs of the sofa in the parlor had a way of coming out unexpectedly eighteen years ago Was that it, Tom?

BROADBENT [hastily] Oh, it doesnt matter I was not hurt—at least—er—

AUNT JUDY Oh now what a shame! An I told Patsy Farril to put a nail in it

BROADBENT He did, Miss Doyle There was a nail, certainly

AUNT JUDY Dear oh dear!

An oldish peasant farmer, small, leathery, peat-faced, with a deep voice and a surliness that is meant to be aggressive, and is in effect pathetic—the voice of a man of hard life and many sorrows—comes in at the gate He is old enough to have perhaps worn a long tailed frieze coat and knee breeches in his time, but now he is dressed respectably in a black frock coat, tall hat, and pollard colored trousers, and his face is as clean as washing can make it, though that is not saying much, as the habit is recently acquired and not yet congenial

THE NEW-COMFR [at the gate] God save all here! [He comes a little way into the garden]

LARRY [patronizingly, speaking across the garden to him] Is that yourself, Matt Haffigan? Do you remember me?

MATTHEW [intentionally rude and blunt] No Who are you?

NORA Oh, I'm sure you remember him, Mr Haffigan

MATTHEW [grudgingly admitting it] I suppose he'll be young Lairy Doyle that was

LARRY Yes

MATTHEW [to Larry] I hear you done well in America

LARRY Fairly well

MATTHEW I suppose you saw me brother Andy out dheie

LARRY No It's such a big place that looking for a man there is like looking for a needle in a bundle of hay They tell me he's a great man out there

MATTHEW So he is, God be praised Wheres your father?

AUNT JUDY He's inside, in the office, Mr Haffigan, with Barney Doarn n Father Dempsey

Matthew, without wasting further words on the company, goes curtly into the house

LARRY [staring after him] Is anything wrong with old Matt?

NORA No He's the same as ever Why?

LARRY He's not the same to me He used to be very civil to Masther Larry a deal too civil, I used to think Now he's as surly and stand-off as a bear

AUNT JUDY Oh sure he's bought his farm in the Land Purchase He's independent now

NORA It's made a great change, Larry Youd harly know the old tenants now Youd think it was a liberty to speak t'dhem—some o dhem [She goes to the table, and helps to take off the cloth, which she and Aunt Judy fold up between them]

AUNT JUDY I wonder what he wants to see Corny for He hasnt been here since he paid the last of his old rent, and then he as good as threw it in Corny's face, I thought

LARRY No wonder! Of course they all hated us like the devil Ugh! [Moodily] Ive seen them in that office, telling my father what a fine boy I was, and plastering him with compliments, with your honor here and your honor there, when all the time their fingers were itching to be at his throat

AUNT JUDY Deedn why should they want to hurt poor Corny? It was he that got Matt the lease of his farm, and stood up for him as an industrious decent man

BROADBENT Was he industrious? Thats remarkable, you know, in an Irishman—

LARRY Industrious! That man's industry used to make me sick, even as a boy I tell you, an Irish peasant's industry is not human it's worse than the industry of a coral insect An Englishman has some sense about working he never does more than he can help—and hard enough to get him to do that without scamping it, but an Irishman will work as if he'd die the moment he stopped That man Matthew Haffigan and his brother Andy made a farm out of a patch of stones on the hillside cleared it and dug it with their own naked hands and bought their first spade out of their first crop of potatoes Talk of making two blades of wheat grow where one grew before! those two men made a whole field of wheat grow where not even a furze bush had ever got its head up between the stones

BROADBENT That was magnificent, you know Only a great race is capable of producing such men

LARRY Such fools, you mean! What good was it to them? The moment theyd done it, the landlord put a rent of £5 a year on them, and turned them out because they couldnt pay it

AUNT JUDY Why couldnt they pay as well as Billy Byrne that took it after them?

LARRY [angrily] You know very well that Billy Byrne never paid it He only offered it to get possession He never paid it

AUNT JUDY That was because Andy Haffigan hurt him with a brick so that he was never the same again Andy had to run away to America for it

BROADBENT [glowing with indignation] Who can blame him, Miss Doyle? Who can blame him?

LARRY [impatiently] Oh, rubbish! whats the good of the man thats starved out of a farm murdering the man thats starved into it? Would you have done such a thing?

BROADBENT Yes I—I—I—I— [stammering with fury] I should have shot the confounded landlord, and wrung the neck of the damned agent, and blown the farm up with dynamite, and Dublin Castle along with it

LARRY Oh yes youd have done great things, and a fat lot of good youd have got out of it, too! Thats an Englishman all over! make bad laws and give away all the land, and then, when your economic incompetence produces its natural and inevitable results, get virtuously indignant and kill the people that carry out your laws

AUNT JUDY Sure never mind him, Mr

Broadbent It doesn't matter, anyhow, because there's hardly any landlords left, and there'll soon be none at all

LARRY On the contrary, there'll soon be nothing else, and the Lord help Ireland then!

AUNT JUDY Ah, you're never satisfied, Larry [To Nora] Come on, alanna, an make the paste for the pie We can leave them to their talk They don't want us [she takes up the tray and goes into the house]

BROADBENT [rising and gallantly protesting] Oh, Miss Doyle! Really, really—

Nora following Aunt Judy with the rolled-up cloth in her hands, looks at him and strikes him dumb He watches her until she disappears, then comes to Larry and addresses him with sudden intensity

BROADBENT Larry

LARRY What is it?

BROADBENT I got drunk last night, and proposed to Miss Reilly

LARRY You hwat??" [He screams with laughter in the falsetto Irish register unused for that purpose in England]

BROADBENT What are you laughing at?

LARRY [stopping dead] I don't know That's the sort of thing an Irishman laughs at Has she accepted you?

BROADBENT I shall never forget that with the chivalry of her nation, though I was utterly at her mercy, she refused me

LARRY That was extremely improvident of her [Beginning to reflect] But look here when were you drunk? You were sober enough when you came back from the Round Tower with her

BROADBENT No, Larry, I was drunk, I am sorry to say I had two tumblers of punch She had to lead me home You must have noticed it

LARRY I did not

BROADBENT She did

LARRY May I ask how long it took you to come to business? You can hardly have known her for more than a couple of hours

BROADBENT I am afraid it was hardly a couple of minutes She was not here when I arrived, and I saw her for the first time at the tower

LARRY Well, you are a nice infant to be let loose in this country! Fancy the potcheen going to your head like that!

BROADBENT Not to my head, I think I have no headache, and I could speak distinctly No potcheen goes to the heart, not to the head What ought I to do?

LARRY Nothing What need you do?

BROADBENT There is rather a delicate moral question involved The point is, was I drunk enough not to be morally responsible for my proposal? Or was I sober enough to be bound to repeat it now that I am undoubtedly sober?

LARRY I should see a little more of her before deciding

BROADBENT No, no That would not be right That would not be fair I am either under a moral obligation or I am not I wish I knew how drunk I was

LARRY Well, you were evidently in a state of blithering sentimentality, anyhow

BROADBENT That is true, Larry I admit it Her voice has a most extraordinary effect on me That Irish voice!

LARRY [sympathetically] Yes, I know When I first went to London I very nearly proposed to walk out with a waitress in an Aerated Bread shop because her Whitechapel accent was so distinguished, so quaintly touching, so pretty—

BROADBENT [angrily] Miss Reilly is not a waitress, is she?

LARRY Oh, come! The waitress was a very nice girl

BROADBENT You think every Englishwoman an angel You really have coarse tastes in that way, Larry Miss Reilly is one of the finer types a type rare in England, except perhaps in the best of the aristocracy

LARRY Aristocracy be blowed! Do you know what Nora eats?

BROADBENT Eats! what do you mean?

LARRY Breakfast tea and bread-and-butter, with an occasional rasher, and an egg on special occasions say on her birthday Dinner in the middle of the day, one course and nothing else In the evening, tea and bread-and-butter again You compare her with your Englishwomen who wolf down from three to five meat meals a day, and naturally you find her a sylph The difference is not a difference of type it's the difference between the woman who eats not wisely but too well, and the woman who eats not wisely but too little

BROADBENT [furious] Larry you—you—you disgust me You are a damned fool [He sits down angrily on the rustic seat, which sustains the shock with difficulty]

LARRY Steady! stead-eee! [He laughs and seats himself on the table]

Cornelius Doyle, Father Dempsey, Barney Doran, and Matthew Haffigan come from the house Doran is a stout bodied, short armed, roundheaded, red haired man on the verge of middle age, of sanguine temperament, with an enormous capacity for derisive, obscene, blasphemous, or merely cruel and senseless fun, and a violent and impetuous intolerance of other temperaments and other opinions, all this representing energy and capacity wasted and demoralized by want of sufficient training and social pressure to force it into beneficent activity and build a character within, for Barney is by no means either stupid or weak. He is recklessly untidy as to his person, but the worst effects of his neglect are mitigated by a powdering of flour and mill dust, and his unbrushed clothes, made of a fashionable tailor's sackcloth, were evidently chosen regardless of expense for the sake of their appearance.

Matthew Haffigan, ill at ease, coasts the garden shyly on the shrubbery side until he anchors near the basket, where he feels least in the way. The priest comes to the table and slaps Larry on the shoulder. Larry, turning quickly, and recognizing Father Dempsey, alights from the table and shakes the priest's hand warmly. Doran comes down the garden between Father Dempsey and Matt, and Cornelius, on the other side of the table, turns to Broadbent, who rises genially.

CORNELIUS I think we all met last night

DORAN I hadn't that pleasure

CORNELIUS To be sure, Barney I forgot [To Broadbent, introducing Barney] Mr Doran He owns that fine mill you noticed from the car

BROADBENT [delighted with them all] Most happy, Mr Doran Very pleased indeed

Doran, not quite sure whether he is being courted or patronized, nods independently

DORAN Hows yourself, Larry?

LARRY Finely, thank you No need to ask you [Doran grins, and they shake hands]

CORNELIUS Give Father Dempsey a chair, Larry

Matthew Haffigan runs to the nearest end of the table and takes the chair from it, placing it near the basket, but Larry has already taken the chair from the other end and placed it in front of the table. Father Dempsey accepts that more central position.

CORNELIUS Sit down, Barney, will you, and you, Matt

Doran takes the chair Matt is still offering to the priest, and poor Matthew, outfaced by the miller, humbly turns the basket upside down and sits on it. Cornelius brings his own breakfast chair from the table and sits down on Father Dempsey's right. Broadbent resumes his seat on the rustic bench. Larry crosses to the bench and is about to sit down beside him when Broadbent holds him off nervously.

BROADBENT Do you think it will bear two, Larry?

LARRY Perhaps not. Don't move. I'll stand [He posts himself behind the bench]

They are all now seated, except Larry, and the session assumes a portentous air as if something important were coming.

CORNELIUS Praps you'll explain, Father Dempsey

FATHER DEMPSEY No, no go on, you the Church has no politics

CORNELIUS Were yever thinkin o goin into parliament at all, Larry?

LARRY Me!

FATHER DEMPSEY [encouragingly] Yes, you Hwy not?

LARRY I'm afraid my ideas would not be popular enough

CORNELIUS I don't know that. Do you, Barney?

DORAN There's too much blatherumskite in Irish politics a dale too much

LARRY But what about your present member? Is he going to retire?

CORNELIUS No I don't know that he is

LARRY [interrogatively] Well? then?

MATTHEW [breaking out with surly bitterness] We've had enough of his foolish talk agen lanlords. Hwat call has he to talk about the lan, that never was outside of a city office in his life?

CORNELIUS We're tired of him. He doesn't know hwere to stop. Every man can't own land, and some men must own it to employ them. It was all very well when solid men like Doran an Matt were kep from ownin land. But hwat man in his senses ever wanted to give land to Patsy Farrilan dhe like o him?

BROADBENT But surely Irish landlordism was accountable for what Mr Haffigan suffered

MATTHEW Never mind hwat I suffered I know what I suffered adhout you tellin me. But did I ever ask for more dhan the farm I made wid me own hans? tell me that, Corny Doyle, and you that knows. Was I fit for the responsibility or was I not? [Snarling angrily] at Cornelius] Am I to be compared to Patsy Farrill, that doesnt harly know his right hand from his left? What did he ever suffer, I'd like to know?

CORNELIUS Thats just what I say I wasnt comparin you to your disadvantage

MATTHEW [implacable] Then hwat did you mane be talkin about givin him lan?

DORAN Aisy, Matt, aisy Youre hke a bear with a sore baek

MATTHEW [trembling with rage] An who are you, to offer to taitech me manners?

FATHER DEMPSEY [admonitory] Now, now, now, Matt! none o dhat How often have I told you youre too ready to take offensee where none is meant? You dont understand Corny Doyle is saying just what you want to have said [To Cornelius] Go on, Mr Doyle, and never mind him

MATTHEW [rising] Well, if me lan is to be given to Patsy and his like, I'm goin oura dhis I—DORAN [with violent impatience] Arra who's goin to give your lan to Patsy, yowl fool ye?

FATHER DEMPSEY Aisy, Barney, aisy [Sternly, to Matt] I told you, Matthew Haffigan, that Corny Doyle was sayin nothin against you I'm sorry your priest's word is not good enough for you I'll go, sooner than stay to make you commit a sin against the Church Good morning, gentlemen [He rises They all rise, except Broadbent]

DORAN [to Matt] There! Sarve you dam well right, you cantankerous oul noodle

MATTHEW [appalled] Dont say dhat, Fadher Dempsey I never had a thought agen you or the Holy Church I know I'm a bit hasty when I think about the lan I a your pardon for it

FATHER DEMPSEY [resuming his seat with dignified reserve] Very well I'll overlook it this time [He sits down The others sit down, except Matthew Father Dempsey, about to ask Corny to proceed, remembers Matthew and turns to him, giving him just a crumb of graciousness] Sit down, Matt [Matthew, crushed, sits down in disgrace, and is silent, his eyes shifting piteously from one speaker to another in an intensely mistrustful effort to understand them] Go on, Mr Doyle We can make allowances Go on

CORNELIUS Well, you see how it is, Larry Round about here, weve got the land at last, and we want no more Government meddlin We want a new class o man in parliament one dhat knows dhat the farmer's the real backbone o the country, n doesnt care a snap of his fingers for the shoutn o the riff-raff in the towns, or for the foolishness of the laborers

DORAN Aye, an dhat can afford to live in London and pay his own way until Home Rule comes, instead o wantin subscriptions and the like

FATHER DEMPSEY Yes thats a good point, Barney When too much money goes to pohtics, it's the Church that has to starve for it A member of parhament ought to be a help to the Church instead of a burden on it

LARRY Heres a ehance for you, Tom What do you say?

BROADBENT [deprecatory, but important and smiling] Oh, I have no claim whatever to the seat Besides, I'm a Saxon DORAN A hwat?

BROADBENT A Saxon An Englishman

DORAN An Englishman Bedad I never heard it called dhat before

MATTHEW [cunningly] If I might make so bould, Fadher, I wouldnt say but an English Prodestn mightnt have a more independnt mind about the lan, an be less afeerd to spake out about it, dhan an Irish Catholic CORNELIUS But sure Larry's as good as English arnt you, Larry?

LARRY You may put me out of your head, father, once for all

CORNELIUS Arra why?

LARRY I have strong opinions which wouldnt suit you

DORAN [rallying him blatantly] Is it still Larry the bould Fenian?

LARRY No the bold Fenian is now an older and possibly foolisher man

CORNELIUS Hwat does it matter to us hwat your opinions are? You know that your father's bought his place here, just the same as Matt's farm n Barney's mill All we ask now is to be let alone Youve nothin against that, have you?

LARRY Certainly I have I dont belicve in lettin anybody or any thing alone

CORNELIUS [losing his temper] Arra what d'ye mean, you young fool! Here Ive got you the offer of a good seat in parhament, n you think yourself mighty smart to stand there and talk foolishness to me Will you take it or leave it?

LARRY Very well I'll take it with pleasure if youll give it to me

CORNELIUS [subsiding sulkily] Well, why couldnt you say so at once? It's a good job youve made up your mind at last

DORAN [suspiciously] Stop a bit stop a bit

MATTHEW [writhing between his dissatisfaction and his fear of the priest] It's not because he's your son that he's to get the sate Fadder Dempsey wouldnt you think well to ask him what he manes about the lan?

LARRY [coming down on Matt promptly] I'll tell you, Matt I always thought it was a stupid, lazy, good-for-nothing sort of thing to leave the land in the hands of the old landlords without calling them to a strict account for the use they made of it, and the condition of the people on it I could see for myself that they thought of nothing but what they could get out of it to spend in England, and that they mortgaged and mortgaged until hardly one of them owned his own property or could have afforded to keep it up decently if he'd wanted to But I tell you plump and plain, Matt, that if anybody thinks things will be any better now that the land is handed over to a lot of little men like you, without calling you to account either, theyre mistaken

MATTHEW [sullenly] What call have you to look down on me? I suppose you think youre everybody because your father was a land agent

LARRY What call have you to look down on Patsy Farrell? I suppose you think youre everybody because you own a few fields

MATTHEW Was Patsy Farrell ever ill used as I was ill used? tell me dhat

LARRY He will be, if ever he gets into your power as you were in the power of your old landlord Do you think, because youre poor and ignorant and half-crazy with toiling and moiling morning noon and night, that youll be any less greedy and oppressive to them that have no land at all than old Nick Lestrangle, who was an educated travelled gentleman that would not have been tempted as hard by a hundred pounds as youd be by five shillings? Nick was too high above Patsy Farrell to be jealous of him, but you, that are only one little step above him would die sooner than let him come up that step, and well you know it

MATTHEW [black with rage, in a low growl] Lemmy oura dhis [He tries to rise, but Doran catches his coat and drags him down again] I'm goin, I say [Raising his voice] Leggo me coat, Barney Doran DORAN Sit down, yowl omadhaun, you [Whispering] Dont you want to stay an vote agen him?

FATHER DEMPSEY [holding up his finger] Matt! [Matt subsides] Now, now, now! come, come! Hwats all dhis about Patsy Farrell? Hwy need you fall out about him?

LARRY Because it was by using Patsy's poverty to undersell England in the markets of the world that we drove England to ruin Ireland And she'll ruin us again the moment we lift our heads from the dust if we trade in cheap labor, and serve us right too! If I get into parliament, I'll try to get an Act to prevent any of you from giving Patsy less than a pound a week [they all start, hardly able to believe their ears] or working him harder than youd work a horse that cost you fifty guineas

DORAN Hwat!!!

CORNELIUS [aghast] A pound a—God save us! the boy's mad

Matthew, feeling that here is something quite beyond his powers, turns openmouthed to the priest, as if looking for nothing less than the summary excommunication of Larry

LARRY How is the man to marry and live a decent life on less?

FATHER DEMPSEY Man alive, hwere have you been living all these years? and hwat have you been dreaming of? Why, some o dhese honest men here cant make that much out o the land for dhemselves, much less give it to a laborer

LARRY [now thoroughly roused] Then let them make room for those who can Is Ireland never to have a chance? First she was given to the rich, and now that they have gorged on her flesh, her bones are to be flung to the poor, that can do nothing but suck the marrow out of her If we cant have men of honor own the land, lets have men of ability If we cant have men with ability, let us at least have men with capital Anybody's better than Matt, who has neither honor, nor ability, nor capital, nor anything but mere brute labor and greed in him, Heaven help him!

DORAN Well, we're not all foostherin our doddherers like Matt [Pleasantly, to the subject of this description] Are we, Matt?

LARRY For modern industrial purposes you might just as well be, Barney Youre all children the big world that I belong to has gone past you and left you Anyhow, we Irishmen were never made to be farmers, and we'll never do any good at it We're like DORAN [dazed] Hwat sort of a fella is he at all at all?

FATHER DEMPSEY He's a clever lad dheres the making of a man in him yet

MATTHEW [in consternation] D'ye mane to say dhat y'll put him into parliament to bring back Nick Lesthrange on me and to put tithes on me, and to rob me for the like o Patsy Farrll, because he's Corny Doyle's son?

DORAN [brutally] Arra hould your whisht who's goin to send him into parliament? Maybe youd like us to send you dhere to thrate dhem to a little o your anxiety about dhat dirty little podato patch o yours

MATTHEW [plaintively] Am I to be towld dhis afther all me sufferins?

DORAN Och, I'm tired o your sufferins Weve been hearin nothin else ever since we was chulldher but sufferins Hwen it wasnt yours it was somebody else's, and hwen it was nobody else's it was ould Irelan's How the divl are we to live on wan anodher's sufferins?

FATHER DEMPSEY Thats a thrue word, Barney Doarn, only your tongue's a little too famular wí dhe divl [To Matt] If youd think a little more o the sufferins of the blessed saints, Matt, an a little less o your own, youd find the way shorter from your farm to heaven [Matt is about to reply] Dhere now! dhats enough! we know you mean well, an I'm not angry with you

BROADBENT Surely, Mr Haffigan, you can see the simple explanation of all this My friend Larry Doyle is a most brilliant speaker but he's a Tory. an ingrained old-fashioned Tory

CORNELIUS N how d'ye make dhat out, if I might ask you, Mr Broadbent?

BROADBENT [collecting himself for a political deliverance] Well, you know, Mr Doyle, theres a strong dash of Toryism in the Irish character Larry himself says that the great Duke of Wellington was the most typical Irishman that ever lived Of course thats an absurd paradox but still theres a great deal of truth in it Now I am a Liberal You know the great principles of the Liberal Party Peace—

FATHER DEMPSEY [piously] Hear! hear!

BROADBENT [encouraged] Thank you Retrenchment— [he waits for further applause]

MATTHEW [timidly] What might rethrenchment mane now?

BROADBENT It means an immense reduction in the burden of the rates and taxes

MATTHEW [respectfully approving] Dhats right Dhats right sir

BROADBENT [perfunctorily] And, of course, Reform.

CORNELIUS

FATHER DEMPSEY } [conventionally] Of course

DORAN

MATTHEW [still suspicious] Hwat does Reform mane, sir? Does it mane altherin annythin dhats as it is now?

BROADBENT [impressively] It means, Mr Haffigan maintaining those reforms which have already been conferred on humanity by the Liberal Party, and trusting for future developments to the free activity of a free people on the basis of those reforms

DORAN Dhats right No more meddlin We're all right now. all we want is to be let alone

CORNELIUS Hwat about Home Rule?

BROADBENT [rising so as to address them more imposingly] I really cannot tell you what I feel about Home Rule without using the language of hyperbole

DORAN Savin Fadher Dempsey's presence, eh?

BROADBENT [not understanding him] Quite so—er—oh yes All I can say is that as an Englishman I blush for the Union It is the blackest stain on our national history I look forward to the time—and it cannot be far distant, gentlemen, because Humanity is looking forward to it too, and insisting on it with no uncertain voice—I look forward to the time when an Irish legislature shall arise once more on the emerald pasture of College Green, and the Union Jack—that detestable symbol of a decadent Imperialism—be replaced by a flag as green as the island over which it waves a flag on which we shall ask for England only a modest quartering in memory of our great party and of the immortal name of our grand old leader

DORAN [enthusiastically] Dhats the style, begob! [He smites his knee, and wírl's at Matt]

MATTHEW More power to you, sir!

BROADBENT I shall leave you now, gentlemen, to your deliberations I should like to have enlarged on the services rendered by the Liberal Party to the religious faith of the great majority of the people of Ireland, but I shall content myself with saying that in my opinion you should choose no representative who—no matter what his personal creed may be—is not an ardent supporter of freedom of conscience, and is not prepared to prove it by contributions, as lavish as his means will allow, to the great and beneficent work which you, Father Dempsey [Father Dempsey bows], are doing for the people of Rossculen. Nor should the lighter but still most important question of the sports of the people be forgotten. The local cricket club—

CORNELIUS The hwat!

DORAN Nobody plays bat n ball here, if dhats what you mane

BROADBENT Well, let us say quoits. I saw two men, I think, last night—but after all, these are questions of detail. The main thing is that your candidate, whoever he may be, shall be a man of some means, able to help the locality instead of burdening it. And if he were a countryman of my own, the moral effect on the House of Commons would be immense! tremendous! Pardon my saying these few words: nobody feels their impertinence more than I do. Good morning, gentlemen.

He turns impressively to the gate, and trots away, congratulating himself, with a little twist of his head and cock of his eye, on having done a good stroke of political business.

HAFFIGAN [anestruck] Good morning, sir.

THE REST Good morning [They watch him vacantly until he is out of earshot].

CORNELIUS Hwat d'ye think, Father Dempsey?

FATHER DEMPSEY [indulgently] Well, he hasnt much sense, God help him, but for the matter o that, neether has our present member.

DORAN Arra musha he's good enough for parliament: what is there to do there but gas a bit, an chivy the Government, an vote wi dh Irish party?

CORNELIUS [ruminatively] He's the queerest Englishman I ever met. When he opened the paper this mornin the first thing he saw was that an English expedition had been bet in a battle in Inja somewhere, an he was as pleased as Punch! Larry told him that if he'd been alive when the news o Waterloo came, he'd a died o grief over it. Bedad I dont think he's quite right in his head.

DORAN Divil a matther if he has plenty o money. He'll do for us right enough.

MATTHEW [deeply impressed by Broadbent, and unable to understand their levity concerning him] Did you mind what he said about re-threnehment? That was very good, I thought. FATHER DEMPSEY You might find out from Larry, Corny, what his means are. God forgive us all! it's poor work spoiling the Egyptians, though we have good warrant for it, so I'd like to know how much spoil there is before I commit meself [He rises. They all rise respectfully].

CORNELIUS [ruefully] I'd set me mind on Larry himself for the seat, but I suppose it eant be helped.

FATHER DEMPSEY [consoling him] Well, the boy's young yet, an he has a head on him. Goodbye, all [He goes out through the gate].

DORAN I must be goin, too [He directs Cornelius's attention to what is passing in the road]. Look at me bould Englishman shakin hans wid Father Dempsey for all the world like a candidate on election day. And look at Father Dempsey givin him a squeeze an a wink as much as to say It's all right, me boy. You watch him shakin hans with me too: he's waitn for me. I'll tell him he's as good as elected [He goes, chuckling mischievously].

CORNELIUS Come in with me, Matt. I think I'll sell you the pig after all. Come in an wet the bargain.

MATTHEW [instantly dropping into the old whine of the tenant] I'm afeerd I eant afford the price, sir [He follows Cornelius into the house].

Larry, newspaper still in hand, comes back through the shrubbery. Broadbent returns through the gate.

LARRY Well? What has happened?

BROADBENT [hugely self-satisfied] I think I've done the trick this time. I just gave them a bit of straight talk, and it went home. They were greatly impressed: everyone of those men believes in me and will vote for me when the question of selecting a candidate comes up. After all, whatever you say, Larry, they like an Englishman. They feel they can trust him, I suppose.

LARRY Oh! they've transferred the honor to you, have they?

BROADBENT [complacently] Well, it was a pretty obvious move, I should think. You know, these fellows have plenty of shrewdness in spite of their Irish oddity [Hodson comes from the house. Larry sits in Doran's chair and reads]. Oh, by the way, Hodson—

HODSON [coming between Broadbent and Larry] Yes, sir?

BROADBENT I want you to be rather particular as to how you treat the people here

HODSON I havnt treated any of em yet, sir If I was to accept all the treats they offer me I shouldnt be able to stand at this present moment sir

BROADBENT Oh well, dont be too stand-offish, you know, Hodson I should like you to be popular If it costs anything I'll make it up to you It doesnt matter if you get a bit upset at first theyll like you all the better for it

HODSON I'm sure youre very kind, sir, but it dont seem to matter to me whether they like me or not I'm not going to stand for parliament here, sir

BROADBENT Well, I am Now do you understand?

HODSON [waking up at once] Oh I beg your pardon sir I'm sure I understand, sir

CORNELIUS [appearing at the house door with Matt] Patsy'll drive the pig over this evenin, Matt. Goodbye. [He goes back into the house. Matt makes for the gate Broadbent stops him Hodson, pained by the derelict basket, picks it up and carries it away behind the house]

BROADBENT [beaming candidatorially] I must thank you very particularly Mr Haffigan, for your support this morning I value it because I know that the real heart of a nation is the class you represent the yeomanry.

MATTHEW [aghast] The yeomanry!!!

LARRY [looking up from his paper] Take care Tom! In Rosscullen a yeoman means a sort of Orange Bash-Bazouk In England Matt, they call a freehold farmer a yeoman

MATTHEW [huffily] I dont need to be instructed be you Larry Doyle Some people think no one knows anythin but dhemselves [To Broadbent, deferentially] Of course I know a gentleman like you would not compare me to the yeomanry Me own granfather was flogged in the sthreeets of Athenmullet be them when they put a gun in the thatch of his house an then went and found it there, bad cess to them!

BROADBENT [with sympathetic interest] Then you are not the first martyr of your family, Mr Haffigan?

MATTHEW They turned me out o the farm I made out of the stones o Little Rosscullen hill wid me own hans

BROADBENT. I have heard about it and my blood still boils at the thought [Calling] Hodson—

HODSON [behind the corner of the house] Yes, sir [He hurries forward]

BROADBENT Hodson this gentleman's sufferings should make every Englishman think It is want of thought rather than want of heart that allows such iniquities to disgrace society

HODSON [prosaically] Yes sir

MATTHEW Well I'll be gom Good mornin to you kindly, sir

BROADBENT You have some distance to go, Mr Haffigan will you allow me to drive you home?

MATTHEW Oh sure it'd be throublin your honor

BROADBENT I insist it will give me the greatest pleasure. I assure you My car is in the stable I can get it round in five minutes

MATTHEW Well, sir, if you wouldnt mind, we could bring the pig Ive just bought from Corny—

BROADBENT [with enthusiasm] Certainly, Mr Haffigan it will be quite delightful to drive with a pig in the car I shall feel quite like an Irishman Hodson stay with Mr Haffigan and give him a hand with the pig if necessary Come Larry; and help me [He rushes away through the shrubbery]

LARRY [throwing the paper ill-humoredly on the chair] Look here Tom! here, I say! confound it!— [he runs after him]

MATTHEW [glowering disdainfully at Hodson, and sitting down on Cornelius's chair as an act of social self-assertion] N are you the valley?

HODSON The valley? Oh I follow you yes I'm Mr Broadbent's valet

MATTHEW Ye have an aisy time of it you look purty sleek [With suppressed ferocity] Look at me! Do I look sleek?

HODSON [sadly] I wish I ad your ealth you look as ard as nails I suffer from an excess of uric acid

MATTHEW Musha what sort o disease is zhouragassid? Didjever suffer from injustice and starvation? Dhats the Irish disease It's aisy for you to talk o sufferin, an you livin on the fat o the land wid money wrung from us

HODSON [suddenly dropping the well-spoken valet and breaking out in his native cockney] Wots wrong with you aold chep? Ez ennybody been doin ennythink to you?

MATTHEW Anythin timmy! Didnt your

English masther say that the blood biled in him to hear the way they put a rint on me for the farm I made wid me own hans, and turned me out of it to give it to Billy Byrne?

HODSON Ow, Tom Broadbent's blad boils pretty easy over ennything that eppens aht of his aown cantry Downt you be taken in by my aowl men, Peddy

MATTHEW [indignantly] Paddy yourself! How dar you call me Paddy?

HODSON [unmoved] You jast keep your air on and listen to me You Awrish people are too well off thets wots the metter with you [With sudden passion] You talk of your rotten little fawm cause you mide it by chackin a few stowns dahn a ill! Well, wot prawee maw grenfawther, Oi should lawk to knaow, that fitted ap a fust clawss shop and built ap a fust clawss dripery business in Landon by sixty years work, and then was chacked aht of it on is ed at the end of is lease withaht a penny for his goodwill You talk of evictions! you that cawnt be moved until youve ran ap ighteen months rent Oi once ran ap four weeks in Lembeth wen Oi was aht of a job in winter They took the door off its inges and the winder aht of its seshes on me, an gev maw wawf pnoomownia Oi'm a widower nah [Between his teeth] Gawd! when Oi think of the things we Englishmen as to pat ap with, and eah you Awrish ahln abaht your silly little grievances, and see the wy you mike it worse for haz by the rotten wiges youll eam over and tike and the rotten plees youll sleep in, I jast feel that I could tike the aowl bloomin British awland and mike you a present of it, jast to let you fawnd aht wot reel awdshup's lawk

MATTHEW [starting up, more in scandalized incredulity than in anger] D'ye have the face to set up England agen Ireland for injustices an wrongs in disthress an sufferin?

HODSON [with intense disgust and contempt] Ow, chack it, Peddy Cheese it You danno wot awdshup is owier eah all you knaow is ah to alil abaht it You tike the biseuit at thiet, you do Oi'm a Owm Ruler, Oi em Do you know woy?

MATTHEW [equally contemptuous] D'ye know, yourself?

HODSON Yus Oi do It's because Oi want a little attention pide to my aown cantry, and thetll never be as long as your cheps are ollerin at Wesminster as if nowbody mettered but your own bloomin selves Send em beek to ell or C'naught, as good aowl English Cramwell said I'm jast sick of Awiland Let it gow Cat the cable Mike it a present to Germany to keep the aowl Kyzer busy for a wawl, and give poor aowl England a chawnee thets wot Oi sy MATTHEW [full of scorn for a man so ignorant as to be unable to pronounce the word Connaught, which practically rhymes with bonnet in Ireland, though in Hodson's dialect it rhymes with untaught] Take care we dont cut the cable ourselves some day, brd seran to you! An tell me dhis have yanny Coercion Acs in England? Have yanny Removable magisthruts? Have you Dublin Castle to suppress every newspaper dhat takes the part o your own counthry?

HODSON We can beyive ahrselves withaht sich things

MATTHEW Bedad youre right It'd ony be waste o time to muzzle a sheep Here! wheres me pig? God forgimmy for talkin to a poor ignorant crayeher like you!

HODSON [grinning with good-humored malice, too convinced of his own superiority to feel his withers wrung] Your pig'll ev a rare doin in that ear, Peddy Forty mawl an ahr dahn that rocky line will strawk it pretty pink, you bet

MATTHEW [scornfully] Hwy cant you tell a reasonable lie when youre about it? What horse can go forty mile an hour?

HODSON Orse! Wy, you silly aowl rotter, it's not a orse it's a mowtor Do you spowse Tom Broadbent ud gow himself to feteh a orse?

MATTHEW [in consternation] Holy Moses! dont tell me it's the ingine he wants to take me on HODSON Wot else?

MATTHEW Your sowl to Morris Kelly! why didnt you tell me that before? The divil an ingine he'll get me on this day [His ear catches an approaching teuf-teuf] Oh murder! it's comin aftlier me I hear the puff-puff of it [He runs away through the gate, much to Hodson's amusement The noise of the motor ceases, and Hodson, anticipating Broadbent's return, throws off the cockney and recomposes himself as a valet Broadbent and Larry come through the shrubbery Hodson moves aside to the gate]

BROADBENT Where is Mr Haffigan? Has he gone for the pig?

HODSON Bolted, sir? Afraid of the motor, sir

BROADBENT [much disappointed] Oh, thats very tiresome Did he leave any message?

HODSON He was in too great a hurry, sir Started to run home, sir, and left his pig behind him

BROADBENT [eagerly] Left the pig! Then it's all right The pig's the thing the pig will win over every Irish heart to me We'll take the pig home to Haffigan's farm in the motor it will have a tremendous effect Hodson!

HODSON Yes, sir?

BROADBENT Do you think you could collect a crowd to see the motor?

HODSON Well, I'll try, sir

BROADBENT Thank you, Hodson do

Hodson goes out through the gate

LARRY [desperately] Once more, Tom, will you listen to me?

BROADBENT Rubbish! I tell you it will be all right

LARRY Only this morning you confessed how surprised you were to find that the people here shewed no sense of humor

BROADBENT [suddenly very solemn] Yes their sense of humor is in abeyance I noticed it the moment we landed Think of that in a country where every man is a born humorist! Think of what it means! [Impressively] Larry we are in the presence of a great national grief

LARRY Whats to grieve them?

BROADBENT I divined it, Larry I saw it in their faces Ireland has never smiled since her hopes were buried in the grave of Gladstone

LARRY Oh, whats the use of talking to such a man? Now look here, Tom Be serious for a moment if you can BROADBENT [stupent] Serious! I!!!

LARRY Yes, you You say the Irish sense of humor is in abeyance Well, if you drive through Rosscullen in a motor car with Haffigan's pig, it wont stay in abeyance Now I warn you

BROADBENT [breezily] Why, so much the better! I shall enjoy the joke myself more than any of them [Shouting] Hallo, Patsy Farrell, where are you?

PATSY [appearing in the shrubbery] Here I am, your honor

BROADBENT Go and catch the pig and put it into the car we're going to take it to Mr Haffigan's [He gives Larry a slap on the shoulders that sends him staggering off through the gate, and follows him buoyantly, exclaiming]

Come on, you old croaker! I'll shew you how to win an Irish seat

PATSY [meditatively] Bedad, if dhat pig gets a howlt o the handle o the machine— [He shakes his head ominously and drifts away to the pigsty]

ACT IV

The parlor in Cornelius Doyle's house It communicates with the garden by a half glazed door The fireplace is at the other side of the room, opposite the door and windows, the architect not having been sensitive to draughts The table, rescued from the garden, is in the middle, and at it sits Keegan, the central figure in a rather crowded apartment Nora, sitting with her back to the fire at the end of the table, is playing backgammon across its corner with him, on his left hand Aunt Judy, a little further back, sits facing the fire knitting, with her feet on the fender A little to Keegan's right, in front of the table, and almost sitting on it, is Barney Doran Half a dozen friends of his, all men, are between him and the open door, supported by others outside In the corner behind them is the sofa, of mahogany and horsehair, made up as a bed for Broadbent Against the wall behind Keegan stands a mahogany sideboard A door leading to the interior of the house is near the fireplace, behind Aunt Judy There are chairs against the wall, one at each end of the sideboard Keegan's hat is on the one nearest the inner door, and his stick is leaning against it A third chair, also against the wall, is near the garden door

There is a strong contrast of emotional atmosphere between the two sides of the room Keegan is extraordinarily stern no game of backgammon could possibly make a man's face so grim Aunt Judy is quietly busy Nora is trying to ignore Doran and attend to her game

On the other hand Doran is reeling in an ecstasy of mischievous mirth which has infected all his friends They are screaming with laughter, doubled up, leaning on the furniture and against the walls, shouting, screeching, crying

AUNT JUDY [as the noise lulls for a moment] Arra hold your noise, Barney What is there to laugh at?

DORAN It got its fut into the little hweel— [he is overcome afresh, and the rest collapse again]

AUNT JUDY Ah, have some sense youre like a parcel o childher Nora hit him a thump on the back he'll have a fit

DORAN [with squeezed eyes, exsufflicate with cachinnation] Irens, he sez to dhem outside Doolan's I'm takin the gintleman that pays the rint for a dhrive

AUNT JUDY Who did he mean be that?

DORAN They call a pig that in England Thats their notion of a joke

AUNT JUDY Musha God help them if they can joke no better than that!

DORAN [with renewed symptoms] Thin—

AUNT JUDY Ah now dont be tellin it all over and settin yourself off again, Barney

NORA Youve told us three times, Mr Doran

DORAN Well but whin I think of it—!

AUNT JUDY Then dont think of it, alanna

DORAN Dhere was Patsy Farril in the back sate wi dhe pig between his knees, n me bould English boyoh in front at the machinery, n Larry Doyle in the road startin the injine wid a bed wineh At the first puff of it the pig lep out of its skin and bled Patsy's nose wi dhe ring in its snout [Roars of laughter Keegan glares at them] Before Broadbint knew hwere he was, the pig was up his back and over into his lap, and bedad the poor baste did credit to Corny's thraimin of it, for it put in the fourth speed wid its right crubeen as if it was enthered for the Gordn Bennett

NORA [reproachfully] And Larry in front of it and all! It's nothin to laugh at, Mr Doran

DORAN Bedad, Miss Reilly, Larry cleared six yards sideways at wan jump if he cleared an inch, and he'd a cleared seven if Doolan's granmother hadnt coteh him in her apern widhout intindin to [Immense merriment]

AUNT JUDY Ah, for shame, Barney! the poor old woman! An she was hurt before, too, when she slipped on the sturs

DORAN Bedad, maam, she's hurt behind now, for Larry bouled her over like a skittle [General delight at this typical stroke of Irish Rabelaisianism]

NORA It's well Mr Doyle wasnt killed

DORAN Faith it wasnt o Larry we were thunkin jus dhen, wi dhe pig takin the main sthreet o Rosseullen on market day at a mile a minnit Dh ony thing Broadbint could get at wi dhe pig in front of him was a fut brake, n the pig's tul was undher dhat, so that whin he thought he was putn non the brake he was ony squeezin the life out o the pig's tail The more he put the brake on the more the pig squealed n the faster he dhruv

AUNT JUDY Why couldnt he throw the pig out into the road?

DORAN Sure he couldnt stand up to it, because he was spanchelled-like between his seat and dhat thing like a wheel on top of a stick between his knees

AUNT JUDY Lord have merey on us!

NORA I dont know how you can laugh Do you Mr Keegan?

KEEGAN [grimly] Why not? There is danger, destruction, torment! What more do we need to make us merry? Go on, Barney the last drops of joy are not squeezed from the story yet Tell us again how our brother was torn asunder

DORAN [puzzled] Whose bruddher?

KEEGAN Mine

NORA He means the pig, Mr Doran You know his way

DORAN [rising gallantly to the occasion] Bedad I'm sorry for your poor bruddher, Misther Keegan, but I reecomend you to thry him wid a couple o fried eggs for your breakfast tomorrow It was a case of Exceelsior wi dhat ambitious baste, for not content wid jumpin from the back seat into the front wan, he jumped from the front wan into the road in front of the car And—

KEEGAN And everybody laughed!

NORA Dont go over that again, please, Mr Doran

DORAN Faith be the time the car went over the poor pig dhere was little left for me or anywan else to go over except wid a knife an fork

AUNT JUDY Why didnt Mr Broadbent stop the car when the pig was gone?

DORAN Stop the car! He might as well ha thried to stop a mad bull First it went wan way an made fireworks o Molly Ryan's crockery stall, an dhen it slewed round an ripped ten fut o wall out o the corner o the pound [With enormous enjoyment] Begob, it just tore the town in two and sent the whole dam market to blazes [Nora offended, rises]

KEEGAN [indignantly] Sir!

DORAN [quickly] Savin your presence, Miss Reilly, and Misther Keegan's Dhier! I wont say anuddher word

NORA I'm surprised at you, Mr Doran [She sits down again]

DORAN [reflectively] He has the devil's own luck, that Englishman, anny way, for hwen they picked him up he hadnt a scratch on him, barrn hwat the pig did to his cloes Patsy had two fingers out o jynt, but the smith pulled them sthaight for him Oh, you never heard such a hullabaloo as there was There was Molly cryin Me chaney, me beautiful chaney! n oul Matt shoutin Me pig, me pig! n the polus takin the number o the car, n not a man in the town able to speak for laughin—

KEEGAN [with intense emphasis] It is hell it is hell Nowhere else could such a scene be a burst of happiness for the people

Cornelius comes in hastily from the garden, pushing his way through the little crowd

CORNELIUS Whisht your laughin, boys! Here he is [He puts his hat on the sideboard, and goes to the fireplace, where he posts himself with his back to the chimneypiece]

AUNT JUDY Remember your behavior, now. Everybody becomes silent, solemn, concerned, sympathetic Broadbent enters, soiled and disordered as to his motoring coat immensely important and serious as to himself He makes his way to the end of the table nearest the garden door, whilst Larry, who accompanies him, throws his motoring coat on the sofa bed, and sits down, watching the proceedings

BROADBENT [taking off his leather cap with dignity and placing it on the table] I hope you have not been anxious about me

AUNT JUDY Deedn we have, Mr Broadbent It's a mercy you werent killed

DORAN Kilt! It's a mercy dheres two bones of you left houldin together How dijjescape at all at all? Well, I never thought I'd be so glad to see you safe and sound again Not a man in the town would say less [murmurs of kindly assent] Wont you come down to Doolan's and have a dhrop o brandy to take the shock off?

BROADBENT Youre all really too kind, but the shock has quite passed off

DORAN [joyally] Never mind Come along all the same and tell us about it over a frenly glass

BROADBENT May I say how deeply I feel the kindness with which I have been overwhelmed since my accident? I can truthfully declare that I am glad it happened, because it has brought out the kindness and sympathy of the Irish character to an extent I had no conception of

A young man, feeling that he must laugh or burst, hurries out Barney puts an iron constraint on his features

BROADBENT All I can say is that I wish I could drink the health of everyone of you

DORAN Dhen come an do it

BROADBENT [very solemnly] No I am a tee-totaller

AUNT JUDY [incredulously] Arra since when?

BROADBENT Since this morning, Miss Doyle I have had a lesson [he looks at Nora significantly] that I shall not forget It may be that total abstinence has already saved my life, for I was astonished at the steadiness of my nerves when death stared me in the face today So I will ask you to excuse me [He collects himself for a speech] Gentlemen I hope the gravity of the peril through which we have all passed—for I know that the danger to the bystanders was as great as to the occupants of the car—will prove an earnest of closer and more serious relations between us in the future We have had a somewhat agitating day a valuable and innocent animal has lost its life a public building has been wrecked an aged and infirm lady has suffered an impact for which I feel personally responsible, though my old friend Mr Laurence Doyle unfortunately incurred the first effects of her very natural resentment I greatly regret the damage to Mr Patrick Farrell's fingers, and I have of course taken care that he shall not suffer pecuniarily by his mishap [Murmurs of admiration at his magnanimity, and a voice "Youre a gentleman, sir"] I am glad to say that Patsy took it like an Irishman, and, far from expressing any vindictive feeling, declared his willingness to break all his fingers and toes for me on the same terms [subdued applause, and "More power to Patsy!"] Gentlemen I felt at home in Ireland from the first [rising excitement among his hearers] In every Irish breast I have found that spirit of liberty [A cheery voice "Hear Hear"], that instinctive mistrust of the Government [A small pious voice, with intense expression, "God bless you, sir!"], that love of independence [A defiant voice, "Thats it! Independence!"], that indignant sympathy with the cause of oppressed nationalities abroad [A threatening growl from all the ground-swell of patriotic passion] and with the resolute assertion of personal rights at home,

SEVERAL PRESENT. { Oh, sure youre welcome!
Sure it's only natural
Sure you might have been kilt which is all but extinct in my own country. If it were legally possible I should become a naturalized Irishman, and if ever it be my good fortune to represent an Irish constituency in parliament, it shall be my first care to introduce a Bill legalizing such an operation. I believe a large section of the Liberal party would avail themselves of it. [Momentary scepticism] I do. [Convulsive cheering] Gentlemen I have said enough. [Cries of "Go on"] No I have as yet no right to address you at all on political subjects, and we must not abuse the warm-hearted Irish hospitality of Miss Doyle by turning her sitting room into a public meeting.

DORAN [energetically] Three cheers for Tom Broadbent, the future member for Ross-cullen!

AUNT JUDY [waving a half knitted sock] Hip hip hurrahy!

The cheers are given with great heartiness, as it is by this time, for the more humorous spirits present, a question of vociferation or internal rupture

BROADBENT Thank you from the bottom of my heart, friends

NORA [whispering to Doran] Take them away, Mr Doran. [Doran nods]

DORAN Well, good evenin, Mr Broadbent, an may you never regret the day you wint drivin wid Haffigan's pig! [They shake hands] Good evenin, Miss Doyle

General handshaking, Broadbent shaking hands with everybody effusively. He accompanies them to the garden and can be heard outside saying Good-night in every inflexion known to parliamentary candidates, Nora, Aunt Judy, Keegan, Larry, and Cornelius are left in the parlor. Larry goes to the threshold and watches the scene in the garden

NORA It's a shame to make game of him like that. He's a gadle more good in him than Barney Doran.

CORNELIUS It's all up with his candidature. He'll be laughed out o' the town.

LARRY [turning quickly from the doornay] Oh no he wont. He's not an Irishman. He'll never know they're laughing at him, and while they're laughing he'll win the seat.

CORNELIUS But he cant prevent the story getting about.

LARRY He wont want to. He'll tell it himself as one of the most providential episodes in the history of England and Ireland.

AUNT JUDY Sure he wouldnt make a fool of himself like that.

LARRY Are you sure he's such a fool after all, Aunt Judy? Suppose you had a vote! which would you rather give it to? the man that told the story of Haffigan's pig Barney Doran's way or Broadbent's way?

AUNT JUDY Faith I wouldnt give it to a man at all. It's a few women they want in parliament to stop their foolish blather.

BROADBENT [bustling into the room, and taking off his damaged motoring overcoat, which he puts down on the sofa] Well, thats over. I must apologize for making a speech. Miss Doyle, but they like it, you know. Everything helps in electioneering.

Larry takes the chair near the door, draws it near the table, and sits astride it, with his elbows folded on the back.

AUNT JUDY I'd no notion you were such an orator, Mr Broadbent.

BROADBENT Oh, it's only a knack. One picks it up on the platform. It stokes up their enthusiasm.

AUNT JUDY Oh, I forgot. Youve not met Mr Keegan. Let me introjoosha.

BROADBENT [shaking hands effusively] Most happy to meet you, Mr Keegan. I have heard of you, though I have not had the pleasure of shaking your hand before. And now may I ask you—for I value no man's opinion more—what you think of my chances here.

KEEGAN [coldly] Your chances, sir, are excellent. You will get into parliament.

BROADBENT [delighted] I hope so. I think so. [Fluctuating] You really think so? You are sure you are not allowing your enthusiasm for our principles to get the better of your judgment?

KEEGAN I have no enthusiasm for your principles, sir. You will get into parliament because you want to get into it enough to be prepared to take the necessary steps to induce the people to vote for you. That is how people usually get into that fantastic assembly.

BROADBENT [puzzled] Of course. [Pause] Quite so. [Pause] Er—yes. [Buoyant again] I think they will vote for me. Eh? Yes?

AUNT JUDY Arra why shouldnt they? Look at the people they do vote for!

BROADBENT [encouraged] Thats true. Thats very true. When I see the windbags, the carpet-baggers, the charlatans, the—the—the fools and ignoramuses who corrupt the multitude by their wealth, or seduce them by spouting balderdash to them, I cannot help thinking that an Englishman with no humbug about him, who will talk straight common sense and take his stand on the solid ground of principle and public duty, must win his way with men of all classes

KEEGAN [quietly] Sir there was a time, in my ignorant youth, when I should have called you a hypocrite

BROADBENT [reddening] A hypocrite!

NORA [hastily] Oh I'm sure you don't think anything of the sort, Mr Keegan

BROADBENT [emphatically] Thank you, Miss Reilly thank you

CORNELIUS [gloomily] We all have to stretch it a bit in politics 'twas the use o' pretendin' we don't?

BROADBENT [stiffly] I hope I have said or done nothing that calls for any such observation, Mr Doyle If there is a vice I detest—or against which my whole public life has been a protest—it is the vice of hypocrisy I would almost rather be inconsistent than insincere

KEEGAN Do not be offended, sir I know that you are quite sincere There is a saying in the Scripture which runs—so far as the memory of an oldish man can carry the words—Let not the right side of your brain know what the left side doeth I learnt at Oxford that this is the secret of the Englishman's strange power of making the best of both worlds

BROADBENT Surely the text refers to our right and left hands I am somewhat surprised to hear a member of your Church quote so essentially Protestant a document as the Bible, but at least you might quote it accurately

LARRY Tom with the best intentions you're making an ass of yourself You don't understand Mr Keegan's peculiar vein of humour

BROADBENT [instantly recovering his confidence] Ah! it was only your delightful Irish humor, Mr Keegan Of course, of course How stupid of me! I'm so sorry [He pats Keegan consolingly on the back] John Bull's wits are still slow, you see Besides, calling me a hypocrite was too big a joke to swallow all at once, you know

KEEGAN You must also allow for the fact that I am mad

NORA Ah, don't talk like that, Mr Keegan

BROADBENT [encouragingly] Not at all, not at all Only a whimsical Irishman, eh?

LARRY Are you really mad, Mr Keegan?

AUNT JUDY [shocked] Oh, Larry, how could you ask him such a thing?

LARRY I don't think Mr Keegan minds [To Keegan] What's the true version of the story of that black man you confessed on his deathbed?

KEEGAN What story have you heard about that?

LARRY I am informed that when the devil came for the black heathen, he took off your head and turned it three times round before putting it on again, and that your head's been turned ever since NORA [reproachfully] Larry!

KEEGAN [blandly] That is not quite what occurred [He collects himself for a serious utterance they attend involuntarily] I heard that a black man was dying, and that the people were afraid to go near him When I went to the place I found an elderly Hindoo, who told me one of those tales of unmerited misfortune, of cruel ill luck, of relentless persecution by destiny, which sometimes wither the commonplaces of consolation on the lips of a priest But this man did not complain of his misfortunes They were brought upon him, he said, by sins committed in a former existence Then, without a word of comfort from me, he died with a clear-eyed resignation that my most earnest exhortations have rarely produced in a Christian, and left me sitting there by his bedside with the mystery of this world suddenly revealed to me

BROADBENT That is a remarkable tribute to the liberty of conscience enjoyed by the subjects of our Indian Empire

LARRY No doubt, but may we venture to ask what is the mystery of this world?

KEEGAN This world, sir, is very clearly a place of torment and penance, a place where the fool flourishes and the good and wise are hated and persecuted, a place where men and women torture one another in the name of love, where children are scourged and enslaved in the name of parental duty and education, where the weak in body are poisoned and mutilated in the name of healing, and the weak in character are put to the horrible torture of imprisonment, not for hours but for years, in the name of justice It is a place where the hardest toil is a welcome refuge from the horror and tedium of pleasure, and where charity and good works are done only for hire to ransom the souls of the spoiler and the sybarite Now, sir there is only one place of horror and torment known to my religion, and that place is hell Therefore it is plain to me that this earth of ours must be hell, and that we are all here, as the Indian revealed to me—perhaps he was sent to reveal it to me—to expiate crimes committed by us in a former existence

AUNT JUDY [awestruck] Heaven save us, what a thing to say!

CORNELIUS [sighing] It's a queer world thats certain

BROADBENT Your idea is a very clever one, Mr Keegan really most brilliant I should never have thought of it But it seems to me—if I may say so—that you are overlooking the fact that, of the evils you describe, some are absolutely necessary for the preservation of society, and others are encouraged only when the Tories are in office

LARRY I expect you were a Tory in a former existence, and that is why you are here

BROADBENT [with conviction] Never, Larry, never But leaving politics out of the question, I find the world quite good enough for me rather a jolly place, in fact KEEGAN [looking at him with quiet wonder] You are satisfied?

BROADBENT As a reasonable man, yes I see no evils in the world—except, of course, natural evils—that cannot be remedied by freedom, self-government, and English institutions I think so, not because I am an Englishman, but as a matter of common sense

KEEGAN You feel at home in the world, then?

BROADBENT Of course Dont you?

KEEGAN [from the very depths of his nature] No

BROADBENT [breezily] Try phosphorus pills I always take them when my brain is over-worked I'll give you the address in Oxford Street

KEEGAN [enigmatically rising] Miss Doyle my wandering fit has come on me will you excuse me?

AUNT JUDY To be sure you know you can come in n nout as you like

KEEGAN We can finish the game some other time, Miss Reilly [He goes for his hat and stick]

NORA No I'm out with you [she disarranges the pieces and rises] I was too wicked in a former existence to play backgammon with a good man like you

AUNT JUDY [whispering to her] Whisht, whisht, child! Dont set him back on that again

KEEGAN [to Nora] When I look at you, I think that perhaps Ireland is only purgatory, after all [He passes on to the garden door]

NORA Galong with you!

BROADBENT [whispering to Cornelius] Has he a vote?

CORNELIUS [nodding] Yes An theres lotsle vote the way he tells them

KEEGAN [at the garden door, with gentle gravity] Good evening, Mr Broadbent You have set me thinking Thank you

BROADBENT [delighted, hurrying across to him to shake hands] No, really? You find that contact with English ideas is stimulating, eh?

KEEGAN I am never tired of hearing you talk, Mr Broadbent

BROADBENT [modestly remonstrating] Oh come! come!

KEEGAN Yes, I assure you You are an extremely interesting man [He goes out]

BROADBENT [enthusiastically] What a nice chap! What an intelligent, broadminded character, considering his cloth! By the way, I'd better have a wash [He takes up his coat and cap, and leaves the room through the inner door]

Nora returns to her chair and shuts up the backgammon board

AUNT JUDY Keegan's very queer today He has his mad fit on him

CORNELIUS [horried and bitter] I wouldnt say but he's right after all It's a contrary world [To Larry] Why would you be such a fool as to let Broadbent take the seat in parliament from you?

LARRY [glancing at Nora] He will take more than that from me before he's done here

CORNELIUS I wish he'd never set foot in my house, bad luck to his fat face! D'ye think he'd lend me £300 on the farm, Larry? When I'm so hard up, it seems a waste o money not to mortgage it now it's me own

LARRY I can lend you £300 on it

CORNELIUS No, no, I wasnt putn in for that When I die and leave you the farm I should like to be able to feel that it was all me own, and not half yours to start with Now I'll take me orl Barney Doarn's going to ask Broadbent to lend him £500 on the mill to put in a new hweel, for the old one'll harly hol together An Haffigan cant sleep with covetn that corner o land at the foot of his medda that belongs to Doolan He'll have to mortgage to buy it I may as well be first as last D'ye think Broadbent'd len me a little?

LARRY I'm quite sure he will

CORNELIUS Is he as ready as that? Would he len me five hundred, d'ye think?

LARRY He'll lend you more than the land'll ever be worth to you so for Heaven's sake be prudent.

CORNELIUS [judicially] All right, all right, me son I'll be careful I'm goin into the office for a bit [He withdraws through the inner door, obviously to prepare his application to Broadbent].

AUNT JUDY [indignantly] As if he hadnt seen enough o borryin when he was an agent without beginnin borryin himself' [She rises] I'll borry him, so I will [She puts her knitting on the table and follows him out, with a resolute air that bodes trouble for Cornelius]

Larry and Nora are left together for the first time since his arrival. She looks at him with a smile that perishes as she sees him aimlessly rocking his chair and reflecting evidently not about her, with his lips pursed as if he were whistling. With a catch in her throat she takes up Aunt Judy's knitting, and makes a pretence of going on with it

NORA. I suppose it didnt seem very long to you

LARRY [starting] Eh? What didnt?

NORA The eighteen years youve been away

LARRY. Oh that! No it seems hardly more than a week. I ve been so busy—had so little time to think NORA Ive had nothin else to do bnt think.

LARRY That was very bad for you Why didnt you give it up? Why did you stay here?

NORA Because nobody sent for me to go anywhere else. I suppose Thats why.

LARRY Yes one does stick frightfully in the same place. unless some external force comes and routs one out [He yawns slightly, but as she loo's up quickly at him, he pulls himself together and rises with an air of waking up and setting to work cheerfully to make himself agreeable] And how have you been all this time?

NORA Quite well thank you

LARRY Thats right [Suddenly finding that he has nothing else to say and being ill at ease in consequence, he strolls about the room humming distractedly]

NORA [struggling with her tears] Is that all you have to say to me, Larry?

LARRY. Well what is there to say? You see, we know each other so well

NORA [a little consoled] Yes of course we do [He does not reply] I wonder you came back at all

LARRY I couldnt help it [She looks up affectionately] Tom made me [She looks down again quickly to conceal the effect of this blow. He whistles another stave, then resumes] I had a sort of dread of returning to Ireland I felt somehow that my luck would turn if I came back And now here I am, none the worse.

NORA Praps it's a little dull for you

LARRY No I havnt exhausted the interest of strolling about the old places and remembering and romancing about them

NORA [hopefully] Oh! You do remember the places, then?

LARRY. Of course They have associations

NORA [not doubting that the associations are with her] I suppose so

LARRY M'yes I can remember particular spots where I had long fits of thinking about the countries I meant to get to when I escaped from Ireland America and London, and sometimes Rome and the east

NORA [deeply mortified] Was that all you used to be thinking about?

LARRY Well, there was precious little else to think about here, my dear Nora except sometimes at sunset. when one got maudlin and called Ireland Erin, and imagined one was remembering the days of old and so forth [He whistles Let Erin Remember]

NORA. Did jever get a letter I wrote you last February?

LARRY Oh yes and I really intended to answer it. But I havnt had a moment, and I knew you wouldnt mind You see, I am so afraid of boring you by writing about affairs you dont understand and people you dont know! And yet what else have I to write about? I begin a letter, and then I tear it up again The fact is fond as we are of one another, Nora we have so little in common—I mean of course the things one can put in a letter—that correspondence is apt to become the hardest of hard work.

NORA Yes it's hard for me to know anything about you if you never tell me anything

LARRY [pettishly] Nora a man cant sit down and write his life day by day when he's tired enough with having lived it

NORA I'm not blaming you

LARRY [looking at her with some concern] You seem rather out of spirits [Going closer to her, anxiously and tenderly] You havnt got neur-algia, have you?

NORA No

LARRY [reassured] I get a touch of it sometimes when I am below par [Absently, again strolling about] Yes, yes [He gazes through the doorway at the Irish landscape, and sings, almost unconsciously, but very expressively, an air from Offenbach's Whittington]

[Nora, who has been at first touched by the tenderness of his singing, puts down her knitting at this very unexpected sentiment, and stares at him. He continues until the melody soars out of his range, when he trails off into whistling Let Erin Remember]

I'm afraid I'm boring you, Nora, though you're too kind to say so

NORA Are you wanting to get back to England already?

LARRY Not at all Not at all

NORA That's a queer song to sing to me if you're not

LARRY The song! Oh, it doesn't mean anything it's by a German Jew, like most English patriotic sentiment Never mind me, my dear go on with your work, and don't let me bore you

NORA [bitterly] Rosscullen isn't such a lively place that I am likely to be bored by you at our first talk together after eighteen years, though you don't seem to have much to say to me after all

LARRY Eighteen years is a devilish long time, Nora Now if it had been eighteen minutes, or even eighteen months, we should be able to pick up the interrupted thread, and chatter like two magpies But as it is, I have simply nothing to say, and you seem to have less

NORA I— [her tears choke her, but she keeps up appearances desperately]

LARRY [quite unconscious of his cruelty] In a week or so we shall be quite old friends again. Meanwhile, as I feel that I am not making myself particularly entertaining, I'll take myself off Tell Tom I've gone for a stroll over the hill

NORA You seem very fond of Tom, as you call him

LARRY [the triviality going suddenly out of his voice] Yes I'm fond of Tom

NORA Oh, well, don't let me keep you from him

LARRY I know quite well that my departure will be a relief. Rather a failure, this first meeting after eighteen years, eh? Well, never mind these great sentimental events always are failures, and now the worst of it's over anyhow [He goes out through the garden door]

Nora, left alone, struggles wildly to save herself from breaking down, and then drops her face on the table and gives way to a convulsion of crying. Her sobs shake her so that she can hear nothing, and she has no suspicion that she is no longer alone until her head and breast are raised by Broadbent, who, returning newly washed and combed through the inner door, has seen her condition, first with surprise and concern, and then with an emotional disturbance that quite upsets him

BROADBENT Miss Reilly, Miss Reilly. What's the matter? Don't cry. I can't stand it. You mustn't cry. [She makes a choked effort to speak, so painful that he continues with impulsive sympathy.] No, don't try to speak. It's all right now. Have your cry out. Never mind me. Trust me. [Gathering her to him, and babbling consolatorily.] Cry on my chest. The only really comfortable place for a woman to cry is a man's chest. A real man, a real friend. A good broad chest, eh? Not less than forty-two inches—no, don't fuss. Never mind the conventions. We're two friends, aren't we? Come now, come, come! It's all right and comfortable and happy now, isn't it?

NORA [through her tears] Let me go. I want my handkerchief.

BROADBENT [holding her with one arm and producing a large silk handkerchief from his breast pocket] Here's a handkerchief. Let me [he dabs her tears dry with it] Never mind your own. It's too small. It's one of those wretched little cambrie handkerchiefs—

NORA [sobbing] Indeed it's a common cotton one

BROADBENT Of course it's a common cotton one—silly little cotton one—not good enough for the dear eyes of Nora Cryna—

NORA [spluttering into a hysterical laugh and clutching him convulsively with her fingers while she tries to stifle her laughter against his collar bone] Oh dont make me laugh please dont make me laugh

BROADBENT [terrified] I didnt mean to, on my soul What is it? What is it?

NORA Nora Creena, Noia Creena

BROADBENT [patting her] Yes, yes, of course, Nora Creena, Nora acushla [he makes cush rhyme to plush]—

NORA Acushla [she makes cush rhyme to bush]

BROADBENT Oh, confound the language! Nora darling—my Nora—the Nora I love—

NORA [shocked into propriety] You mustnt talk like that to me

BROADBENT [suddenly becoming prodigiously solemn and letting her go] No, of course not I dont mean it At least I do mean it, but I know it's premature I had no right to take advantage of your being a little upset, but I lost my self-control for a moment

NORA [wondering at him] I think youre a very kind-hearted man, Mr Broadbent, but you seem to me to have no self-control at all [she turns her face away with a keen pang of shame and adds] no more than myself

BROADBENT [resolutely] Oh yes, I have you should see me when I am really roused then I have TREMENDOUS self-control Remember we have been alone together only once before, and then, I regret to say, I was in a disgusting state

NORA Ah no, Mr Broadbent you wernt disgusting

BROADBENT [mercilessly] Yes I was nothing can excuse it perfectly beastly It must have made a most unfavorable impression on you

NORA Oh, sure it's all right Say no more about that

BROADBENT I must, Miss Reilly it is my duty I shall not detain you long May I ask you to sit down [He indicates her chair with oppressive solemnity She sits down wondering He then, with the same portentous gravity, places a chair for himself near her, sits down, and proceeds to explain] First, Miss Reilly, may I say that I have tasted nothing of an alcoholic nature today

NORA It doesnt seem to make as much difference in you as it would in an Irishman, somehow

BROADBENT Perhaps not Perhaps not I never quite lose myself

NORA [consolingly] Well, anyhow, youre all right now

BROADBENT [fervently] Thank you, Miss Reilly I am Now we shall get along [Tenderly, lowering his voice] Nora I was in earnest last night [Nora moves as if to rise] No one moment You must not think I am going to press you for an answer before you have known me for 24 hours I am a reasonable man, I hope, and I am prepared to wait as long as you like, provided you will give me some small assurance that the answer will not be unfavorable

NORA How could I go back from it if I did? I sometimes think youre not quite right in your head, Mr Broadbent, you say such funny things

BROADBENT Yes I know I have a strong sense of humor which sometimes makes people doubt whether I am quite serious That is why I have always thought I should like to marry an Irishwoman She would always understand my jokes For instance, you would understand them, eh?

NORA [uneasily] Mr Broadbent I couldnt

BROADBENT [soothingly] Wait let me break this to you gently, Miss Reilly hear me out I daresay you have noticed that in speaking to you I have been putting a very strong constraint on myself, so as to avoid wounding your delicacy by too abrupt an avowal of my feelings Well, I feel now that the time has come to be open, to be frank, to be explicit Miss Reilly you have inspired in me a very strong attachment Perhaps, with a woman's intuition, you have already guessed that

NORA [rising distractedly] Why do you talk to me in that unfeeling nonsensical way?

BROADBENT [rising also, much astonished] Unfeeling! Nonsensical!

NORA Dont you know that you have said things to me that no man ought to say unless—unless— [she suddenly breaks down again and hides her face on the table as before] Oh, go away from me I wont get married at all what is it but heartbreak and disappointment?

BROADBENT [developing the most formidable symptoms of rage and grief] Do you mean to say that you are going to refuse me? that you dont care for me?

NORA [looking at him in consternation] Oh, dont take it to heart, Mr Br—

BROADBENT [flushed and almost choking] I dont want to be petted and blarneyed [With childish rage] I love you I want you for my wife [In despair] I cant help your refusing I'm helpless I can do nothing You have no right to ruin my whole life You—[a hysterical convulsion stops him]

NORA [almost awestruck] Youre not going to cry, are you? I never thought a man could cry Dont

BROADBENT I'm not crying I—I—I leave that sort of thing to your damned sentimental Irishmen You think I have no feeling because I am a plain unemotional Englishman, with no powers of expression

NORA I dont think you know the sort of man you are at all Whatever may be the matter with you, it's not want of feeling

BROADBENT [hurt and petulant] It's you who have no feeling Youre as heartless as Larry

NORA What do you expect me to do? Is it to throw meself at your head the minute the word is out o your mouth?

BROADBENT [striking his silly head with his fists] Oh, what a fool! what a brute I am! It's only your Irish deheacy of eourse, of course You mean Yes Eh? What? Yes? yes? yes?

NORA I think you might understand that though I might choose to be an old maid, I could never marry anybody but you now

BROADBENT [clasping her violently to his breast, with a crow of immense relief and triumph] Ah, thats right, thats right thats magnificent I knew you would see what a first-rate thing this will be for both of us

NORA [uncommoded and not at all enraptured by his ardor] Youre dreadfully strong, an a gradle too free with your strength An I never thought o whether it'd be a good thing for us or not But when you found me here that time, I let you be kind to me, and cried in your arms, because I was too wretched to think of anything but the comfort of it An how could I let any other man touch me after that?

BROADBENT [moved] Now thats very nice of you, Nora thats really most deheately womanly [he kisses her hand chivalrously]

NORA [looking earnestly and a little doubtfully at him] Surely if you let one woman cry on you like that youd never let another touch you

BROADBENT [conscientiously] One should not One ought not, my dear girl But the honest truth is, if a chap is at all a pleasant sort of chap, his chest becomes a fortification that has to stand many assaults at least it is so in England

NORA [curtly, much disgusted] Then youd better marry an Englishwoman

BROADBENT [making a wry face] No, no the Englishwoman is too prosaic for my taste, too material, too much of the animated beef-steak about her The ideal is what I like Now Larry's taste is just the opposite he likes em solid and bouncing and rather keen about him It's a very convenient differenece, for weve never been in love with the same woman

NORA An d'ye mean to tell me to me face that youve ever been in love before?

BROADBENT Lord! yes

NORA I'm not your first love!

BROADBENT First love is only a little foolishness and a lot of curiosity no really self-specting woman would take advantage of it No, my dear Nora Ive done with all that long ago Love affairs always end in rows We're not going to have any rows we're going to have a solid four-square home man and wife comfort and common sense And plenty of affection, eh [he puts his arm round her with confident proprietorship]

NORA [coldly, trying to get away] I dont want any other woman's leavings

BROADBENT [holding her] Nobody asked you to, maam I never asked any woman to marry me before

NORA [severely] Then why didnt you if youre an honorable man?

BROADBENT Well, to tell you the truth, they were mostly married already But never mind! there was nothing wrong Come! dont take a mean advantage of me After all, you must have had a fancy or two yourself, eh?

NORA [conscience-stricken] Yes I suppose Ive no right to be particular

BROADBENT [humbly] I know I'm not good enough for you, Nora But no man is, you know, when the woman is a really nice woman

NORA Oh, I'm no better than yourself I may as well tell you about it

BROADBENT No, no lets have no telling much better not I shant tell you anything dont you tell me anything Perfect confidence in one another and no tellings thats the way to avoid rows

NORA Dont think it was anything I need be ashamed of

BROADBENT I dont

NORA It was only that I'd never known anybody else that I could care for, and I was foolish enough once to think that Larry—

BROADBENT [disposing of the idea at once] Larry! Oh, that wouldnt have done at all, not at all You dont know Larry as I do, my dear He has absolutely no capacity for enjoyment he couldnt make any woman happy He's as clever as be-blowed, but life's too earthly for him he doesnt really care for anything or anybody

NORA Ive found that out

BROADBENT Of course you have No, my dear take my word for it, youre jolly well out of that There! [snugging her round against his breast] thats much more comfortable for you

NORA [with Irish peevishness] Ah, you mustnt go on like that I dont like it

BROADBENT [unabashed] Youll acquire the taste by degrees You mustnt mind me it's an absolute necessity of my nature that I should have somebody to hug occasionally Besides, it's good for you itll plump out your muscles and make em elastic and set up your figure

NORA Well, I'm sure! if this is English manners! Arnt you ashamed to talk about such things?

BROADBENT [in the highest feather] Not a bit By George, Nora, it's a tremendous thing to be able to enjoy oneself Lets go off for a walk out of this stuffy little room I want the open air to expand in, Come along Co-o-ome along [He puts her arm into his and sweeps her out into the garden as an equinoctial gale might sweep a dry leaf]

Later in the evening, the grasshopper is again enjoying the sunset by the great stone on the hill, but this time he enjoys neither the stimulus of Keegan's conversation nor the pleasure of terrifying Patsy Farrell He is alone until Nora and Broadbent come up the hill arm in arm Broadbent is still breezy and confident, but she has her head averted from him and is almost in tears

BROADBENT [stopping to snuff up the hillside air] Ah! I like this spot I like this view This would be a jolly good place for a hotel and a golf links Friday to Tuesday, railway ticket and hotel all inclusive I tell you, Nora, I'm going to develop this place [Looking at her] Hallo! Whats the matter? Tired?

NORA [unable to restrain her tears] I'm ashamed out o me life

BROADBENT [astonished] Ashamed! What of?

NORA Oh, how could you drag me all round the place like that, telling everybody that we're going to be married, and introducing me to the lowest of the low, and letting them shake hans with me, and encouraging them to make free with us? I little thought I should live to be shaken hans with be Doolan in broad daylight in the public street of Rosscullen

BROADBENT But my dear, Doolan's a publican a most influential man By the way, I asked him if his wife would be at home tomorrow He said she would, so you must take the motor car round and call on her

NORA [aghast] Is it me call on Doolan's wife!

BROADBENT. Yes, of course call on all their wives We must get a copy of the register and a supply of canvassing cards No use calling on people who havnt votes Youll be a great success as a canvasser Nora they call you the heiress, and theyll be flattered no end by your calling, especially as youve never cheapened yourself by speaking to them before—have you?

NORA [indignantly] Not likely, indeed

BROADBENT Well, we musnt be stiff and stand-off, you know We must be thoroughly democratic, and patronize everybody without distinction of class I tell you I'm a jolly lucky man, Nora Cryna I get engaged to the most delightful woman in Ireland, and it turns out that I couldnt have done a smarter stroke of electioneering

NORA An would you let me demean meself like that, just to get yourself into parliament?

BROADBENT [buoyantly] Aha! Wait til you find out what an exciting game electioneering is youll be mad to get me in Besides, youd like people to say that Tom Broadbent's wife had been the making of him? that she got him into parliament? into the Cabinet, perhaps, eh?

NORA God knows I dont grudge you me money! But to lower meself to the level of common people—

BROADBENT To a member's wife, Nora nobody is common provided he's on the register Come, my dear! it's all right do you think I'd let you do it if it wasnt? The best people do it Everybody does it

NORA [who has been biting her lip and looking over the hill, disconsolate and unconvinced] Well, praps you know best what they do in England. They must have very little respect for themselves. I think I'll go in now. I see Larry and Mr Keegan coming up the hill, and I'm not fit to talk to them.

BROADBENT Just wait and say something nice to Keegan. They tell me he controls nearly as many votes as Father Dempsey himself.

NORA You little know Peter Keegan. He'd see through me as if I was a pane o glass.

BROADBENT Oh, he wont like it any the less for that. What really flatters a man is that you think him worth flattering. Not that I would flatter any man. dont think that. I'll just go and meet him. [He goes down the hill with the eager forward look of a man about to greet a valued acquaintance. Nora dries her eyes, and turns to go as Larry strolls up the hill to her.]

LARRY Nora [She turns and looks at him hardly, without a word. He continues anxiously, in his most conciliatory tone] When I left you that time, I was just as wretched as you. I didnt rightly know what I wanted to say, and my tongue kept elacking to cover the loss I was at. Well, Ive been thinking ever since, and now I know what I ought to have said. Ive come back to say it.

NORA Youve come too late, then. You thought eighteen years was not long enough, and that you might keep me waiting a day longer. Well, you were mistaken. I'm engaged to your friend Mr Broadbent, and I'm done with you.

LARRY [naïvely] But that was the very thing I was going to advise you to do.

NORA [involuntarily] Oh you brute! to tell me that to me face!

LARRY [nervously relapsing into his most Irish manner] Nora, dear, dont you understand that I'm an Irishman, and he's an Englishman. He wants you, and he grabs you. I want you, and I quarrel with you and have to go on wanting you.

NORA So you may. Youd better go back to England to the animated beefsteaks youre so fond of.

LARRY [amazed] Nora! [Guessing where she got the metaphor] He's been talking about me, I see. Well, never mind. we must be friends, you and I. I dont want his marriage to you to be his divorcee from me.

NORA You care more for him than you ever did for me.

LARRY [with curt sincerity] Yes of course I do. why should I tell you lies about it? Nora Reilly was a person of very little consequence to me or anyone else outside this miserable little hole. But Mrs Tom Broadbent will be a person of very considerable consequence indeed. Play your new part well, and there will be no more neglect, no more loneliness, no more idle regrettings and vain-hopings in the evenings by the Round Tower, but real life and real work and real cares and real joys among real people. solid English life in London, the very centre of the world. You will find your work cut out for you keeping Tom's house and entertaining Tom's friends and getting Tom into parliament, but it will be worth the effort.

NORA You talk as if I was under an obligation to him for marrying me.

LARRY I talk as I think. Youve made a very good match, let me tell you.

NORA Indeed! Well, some people might say he's not done so badly himself.

LARRY If you mean that you will be a treasure to him, he thinks so now, and you can keep him thinking so if you like.

NORA I wasnt thinking o meself at all.

LARRY Were you thinking of your money, Nora?

NORA I didnt say so.

LARRY Your money will not pay your cook's wages in London.

NORA [flaming up] If thats true—and the more shame for you to throw it in me face if it is true—at all events itll make us independent, for if the worst comes to the worst, we can always come back here and live on it. An if I have to keep his house for him, at all events I can keep you out of it, for Ive done with you, and I wish I'd never seen you. So goodbye to you, Mister Larry Doyle. [She turns her back on him and goes home.]

LARRY [watching her as she goes] Goodbye. Goodbye. Oh, thats so Irish! Irish both of us to the backbone. Irish! Irish! Ir—

Broadbent arrives, conversing energetically with Keegan.

BROADBENT Nothing pays like a golfing hotel, if you hold the land instead of the shares, and if the furniture people stand in with you, and if you are a good man of business.

LARRY Nora's gone home.

BROADBENT [with conviction] You were right.

this morning Larry I must feed up Nora She's weak and it makes her fanciful Oh, by the way did I tell you that we're engaged?

LARRY She told me herself

BROADBENT [complacently] She's rather full of it as you may imagine Poor Nora! Well, Mr Keegan, as I said, I begin to see my way here I begin to see my way

KEEGAN [with a courteous inclination] The conquering Englishman, sir Within 24 hours of your arrival you have carried off our only heiress, and practically secured the parliamentary seat And you have promised me that when I come here in the evenings to meditate on my madness, to watch the shadow of the Round Tower lengthening in the sunset to break my heart uselessly in the curtained gloaming over the dead heart and blinded soul of the island of the saints, you will comfort me with the bustle of a great hotel and the sight of the little children carrying the golf clubs of your tourists as a preparation for the life to come

BROADBENT [quite touched, mutely offering him a cigar to console him, at which he smiles and shakes his head] Yes, Mr Keegan you're quite right There's poetry in everything, even [looking absently into the cigar case] in the most modern prosaic things, if you know how to extract it—[he extracts a cigar for himself and offers one to Larry, who takes it] If I was to be shot for it I couldn't extract it myself, but that's where you come in, you see [Roguishly waking up from his reverie and bustling Keegan goodhumoredly] And then I shall wake you up a bit That's where I come in eh? d'ye see? Eh? eh? [He pats him very pleasantly on the shoulder, half admiringly, half pityingly] Just so, just so [Coming back to business] By the way I believe I can do better than a light railway here There seems to be no question now that the motor boat has come to stay Well, look at your magnificent river there going to waste

KEEGAN [closing his eyes]

"Silent, O Moyle, be the roar of thy waters"

BROADBENT You know, the roar of a motor boat is quite pretty

KEEGAN Provided it does not drown the Angelus

BROADBENT [reassuringly] Oh no it won't do that not the least danger You know, a church bell can make a devil of a noise when it likes KEEGAN You have an answer for everything sir But your plans leave one question still unanswered how to get butter out of a dog's throat

BROADBENT Eh?

KEEGAN You cannot build your golf links and hotels in the air For that you must own our land And how will you drag our acres from the ferret's grip of Matthew Haffigan? How will you persuade Cornelius Doyle to forgo the pride of being a small landowner? How will Barney Doran's millrace agree with your motor boats? Will Doolan help you to get a license for your hotel?

BROADBENT My dear sir to all intents and purposes the syndicate I represent already owns half Rosscullen Doolan's is a tied house, and the brewers are in the syndicate As to Haffigan's farm and Doran's mill and Mr Doyle's place and half a dozen others, they will be mortgaged to me before a month is out

KEEGAN But pardon me, you will not lend them more on their land than the land is worth, so they will be able to pay you the interest

BROADBENT Ah, you are a poet, Mr Keegan, not a man of business

LARRY We will lend everyone of these men half as much again on their land as it is worth, or ever can be worth, to them

BROADBENT You forget, sir, that we, with our capital our knowledge, our organization, and may I say our English business habits, can make or lose ten pounds out of land that Haffigan, with all his industry could not make or lose ten shillings out of Doran's mill is a superannuated folly I shall want it for electric lighting

LARRY What is the use of giving land to such men? they are too small, too poor, too ignorant, too simpleminded to hold it against us you might as well give a dukedom to a crossing sweeper

BROADBENT Yes, Mr Keegan this place may have an industrial future, or it may have a residential future I can't tell yet, but it's not going to be a future in the hands of your Dorans and Haffigans, poor devils!

KEEGAN It may have no future at all Have you thought of that?

BROADBENT Oh, I'm not afraid of that I have faith in Ireland Great faith Mr Keegan.

KEEGAN And we have none only empty enthusiasms and patriotisms, and emptier memories and regrets Ah yes you have some excuse for believing that if there be any future, it will be yours, for our faith seems dead, and our hearts cold and eowed. An island of dreamers who wake up in your jails, of critics and cowards whom you buy and tame for your own service, of bold rogues who help you to plunder us that they may plunder you afterwards.

BROADBENT [a little impatient of this unbusinesslike view] Yes, yes, but you know you might say that of any country. The fact is, there are only two qualities in the world: efficiency and inefficiency, and only two sorts of people: the efficient and the inefficient. It doesn't matter whether they're English or Irish. I shall collar this place, not because I'm an Englishman and Haffigan and Co are Irishmen, but because they're duffers, and I know my way about.

KEEGAN Have you considered what is to become of Haffigan?

LARRY Oh, we'll employ him in some capacity or other, and probably pay him more than he makes for himself now.

BROADBENT [dubiously] Do you think so? No no. Haffigan's too old. It really doesn't pay now to take on men over forty even for unskilled labor, which I suppose is all Haffigan would be good for. No. Haffigan had better go to America, or into the Union, poor old chap! He's worked out, you know, you can see it.

KEEGAN Poor lost soul, so cunningly fenced in with invisible bars!

LARRY Haffigan doesn't matter much. He'll die presently.

BROADBENT [shocked] Oh come, Larry! Don't be unfeeling. It's hard on Haffigan. It's always hard on the inefficient.

LARRY Pah! what does it matter where an old and broken man spends his last days, or whether he has a million at the bank or only the workhouse dole? It's the young men, the able men, that matter. The real tragedy of Haffigan is the tragedy of his wasted youth, his stunted mind, his drudging over his clods and pigs until he has become a clod and a pig himself—until the soul within him has smouldered into nothing but a dull temper that hurts himself and all around him. I say let him die, and let us have no more of his like. And let young Ireland take care that it doesn't share his fate, instead of making another empty grievance of it. Let your syndicate come—

BROADBENT Your syndicate too, old chap. You have your bit of the stock.

LARRY Yes mine if you like. Well, our syndicate has no conscience. It has no more regard for your Haffigans and Doolans and Dorans than it has for a gang of Chinese coolies. It will use your patriotic blatherskite and balderdash to get parliamentary powers over you as cynically as it would bait a mousetrap with toasted cheese. It will plan, and organize, and find capital while you slave like bees for it and revenge yourselves by paying politicians and penny newspapers out of your small wages to write articles and report speeches against its wickedness and tyranny, and to crack up your own Irish heroism, just as Haffigan once paid a witch a penny to put a spell on Billy Byrne's cow. In the end it will grind the nonsense out of you, and grind strength and sense into you.

BROADBENT [out of patience] Why can't you say a simple thing simply, Larry, without all that Irish exaggeration and talky-talky? The syndicate is a perfectly respectable body of responsible men of good position. We'll take Ireland in hand, and by straightforward business habits teach it efficiency and self-help on sound Liberal principles. You agree with me, Mr Keegan, don't you?

KEEGAN Sir I may even vote for you.

BROADBENT [sincerely moved, shaking his hand warmly] You shall never regret it, Mr Keegan. I give you my word for that. I shall bring money here. I shall raise wages. I shall found public institutions: a library, a Polytechnic (undenominational, of course), a gymnasium, a cricket club, perhaps an art school. I shall make a Garden city of Roscullen. The round tower shall be thoroughly repaired and restored.

KEEGAN And our place of torment shall be as clean and orderly as the cleanest and most orderly place I know in Ireland, which is our poetically named Mountjoy prison. Well, perhaps I had better vote for an efficient devil that knows his own mind and his own business than for a foolish patriot who has no mind and no business.

BROADBENT [stiffly] Devil is rather a strong expression in that connection, Mr Keegan.

KEEGAN Not from a man who knows that this world is hell. But since the word offends you, let me soften it, and compare you simply to an ass [Larry whitens with anger].

BROADBENT [reddening] An ass!

KEEGAN [gently] You may take it without offence from a madman who calls the ass his brother—and a very honest useful and faithful brother too. The ass, sir, is the most efficient of beasts, matter-of-fact, hardy, friendly when you treat him as a fellow-creature, stubborn when you abuse him, ridiculous only in love, which sets him braying, and in politics, which move him to roll about in the public road and raise a dust about nothing. Can you deny these qualities and habits in yourself, sir?

BROADBENT [goodhumoredly] Well, yes, I'm afraid I do, you know.

KEEGAN Then perhaps you will confess to the ass's one fault.

BROADBENT Perhaps so. What is it?

KEEGAN That he wastes all his virtues—his efficiency, as you call it—in doing the will of his greedy masters instead of doing the will of Heaven that is in himself. He is efficient in the service of Mammon, mighty in mischief, skilful in ruin, heroic in destruction. But he comes to browse here without knowing that the soil his hoof touches is holy ground. Ireland, sir, for good or evil, is like no other place under heaven, and no man can touch its sod or breathe its air without becoming better or worse. It produces two kinds of men in strange perfection: saints and traitors. It is called the island of the saints, but indeed in these later years it might be more fitly called the island of the traitors, for our harvest of these is the fine flower of the world's crop of infamy. But the day may come when these islands shall live by the quality of their men rather than by the abundance of their minerals, and then we shall see.

LARRY Mr Keegan, if you are going to be sentimental about Ireland, I shall bid you good evening. We have had enough of that, and more than enough of cleverly proving that everybody who is not an Irishman is an ass. It is neither good sense nor good manners. It will not stop the syndicate, and it will not interest young Ireland so much as my friend's gospel of efficiency.

BROADBENT. Ah, yes, yes. efficiency is the thing. I don't in the least mind your chaff, Mr Keegan, but Larry's right on the main point. The world belongs to the efficient.

KEEGAN [with polished irony] I stand rebuked, gentlemen. But believe me, I do every justice to the efficiency of you and your syndicate.

You are both, I am told, thoroughly efficient civil engineers, and I have no doubt the golf links will be a triumph of your art. Mr Broadbent will get into parliament most efficiently, which is more than St Patrick could do if he were alive now. You may even build the hotel efficiently if you can find enough efficient masons, carpenters, and plumbers, which I rather doubt. [Dropping his irony, and beginning to fall into the attitude of the priest rebuking sin] When the hotel becomes insolvent [Broadbent takes his cigar out of his mouth, a little taken aback] your English business habits will secure the thorough efficiency of the liquidation. You will reorganize the scheme efficiently, you will liquidate its second bankruptcy efficiently. [Broadbent and Larry look quickly at one another, for this, unless the priest is an old financial hand, must be inspiration], you will get rid of its original shareholders efficiently after efficiently ruining them, and you will finally profit very efficiently by getting that hotel for a few shillings in the pound. [More and more sternly] Besides these efficient operations, you will foreclose your mortgages most efficiently [his rebuking forefinger goes up in spite of himself], you will drive Haffigan to America very efficiently, you will find a use for Barney Doran's foul mouth and bullying temper by employing him to slave-drive your laborers very efficiently, and [low and bitter] when at last this poor desolate countryside becomes a busy mint in which we shall all slave to make money for you with our Polytechnic to teach us how to do it efficiently, and our library to fuddle the few imaginations your distilleries will spare, and our repaired Round Tower with admission sixpence, and refreshments and penny-in-the-slot mutoscopes to make it interesting, then no doubt your English and American shareholders will spend all the money we make for them very efficiently in shooting and hunting, in operations for cancer and appendicitis, in gluttony and gambling, and you will devote what they save to fresh land development schemes. For four wicked centuries the world has dreamed this foolish dream of efficiency, and the end is not yet. But the end will come.

BROADBENT [seriously] Too true, Mr Keegan, only too true. And most eloquently put. It reminds me of poor Ruskin, a great man, you know. I sympathize. Believe me, I'm on your side Dont sneer, Larry I used to read a lot of Shelley years ago Let us be faithful to the dreams of our youth [he wafts a wreath of cigar smoke at large across the hull]

KEEGAN Come, Mr Doyle¹ is this English sentiment so much more efficient than our Irish sentiment, after all? Mr Broadbent spends his life inefficiently admiring the thoughts of great men, and efficiently serving the cupidity of base money hunters We spend our lives efficiently sneering at him and doing nothing Which of us has any right to reproach the other?

BROADBENT [coming down the hull again to Keegan's right hand] But you know, something must be done

KEEGAN Yes when we cease to do, we cease to live Well, what shall we do?

BROADBENT Why, what lies to our hand

KEEGAN Which is the making of golf links and hotels to bring idlers to a country which workers have left in millions because it is a hungry land, a naked land, an ignorant and oppressed land

BROADBENT But, hang it all, the idlers will bring money from England to Ireland!

KEEGAN Just as our idlers have for so many generations taken money from Ireland to England Has that saved England from poverty and degradation more horrible than we have ever dreamed of? When I went to England, sir, I hated England Now I pity it [Broadbent can hardly conceive an Irishman pitying England, but as Larry intervenes angrily, he gives it up and takes to the hull and his cigar again]

LARRY Much good your pity will do it!

KEEGAN In the accounts kept in heaven, Mr Doyle, a heart purified of hatred may be worth more than even a Land Development Syndicate of Anglicized Irishmen and Gladstonized Englishmen

LARRY Oh, in heaven, no doubt I have never been there Can you tell me where it is?

KEEGAN Could you have told me this morning where hell is? Yet you know now that it is here Do not despair of finding heaven it may be no further off

LARRY [ironically] On this holy ground, as you call it, eh?

KEEGAN [with fierce intensity] Yes, perhaps, even on this holy ground which such Irishmen as you have turned into a Land of Desolation

BROADBENT [coming between them] Take care! you will be quarrelling presently Oh, you Irishmen, you Irishmen! Toujours Ballyhooly, eh? [Larry, with a shrug, half comic, half impatient, turns away up the hull, but presently strolls back on Keegan's right Broadbent adds, confidentially to Keegan] Stick to the Englishman, Mr Keegan he has a bad name here, but at least he can forgive you for being an Irishman

KEEGAN Sir when you speak to me of English and Irish you forget that I am a Catholic My country is not Ireland nor England, but the whole mighty realm of my Church For me there are but two countries heaven and hell, but two conditions of men salvation and damnation Standing here between you the Englishman, so clever in your foolishness, and this Irishman, so foolish in his cleverness, I cannot in my ignorance be sure which of you is the more deeply damned, but I should be unfaithful to my calling if I opened the gates of my heart less widely to one than to the other

LARRY In either case it would be an impertinence, Mr Keegan, as your approval is not of the slightest consequence to us What use do you suppose all this drivel is to men with serious practical business in hand?

BROADBENT I dont agree with that, Larry I think these things cannot be said too often they keep up the moral tone of the community As you know, I claim the right to think for myself in religious matters in fact, I am ready to avow myself a bit of a—of a—well, I dont care who knows it—a bit of a Unitarian, but if the Church of England contained a few men like Mr Keegan, I should certainly join it

KEEGAN You do me too much honor, sir [With priestly humility to Larry] Mr Doyle I am to blame for having unintentionally set your mind somewhat on edge against me I beg your pardon

LARRY [unimpressed and hostile] I didnt stand on ceremony with you you neednt stand on it with me Fine manners and fine words are cheap in Ireland you can keep both for my friend here, who is still imposed on by them I know their value

KEEGAN You mean you dont know their value

LARRY [angrily] I mean what I say

KEEGAN [turning quietly to the Englishman] You see, Mr Broadbent, I only make the hearts of my countrymen harder when I preach to them the gates of hell still prevail against me I shall wish you good evening I am better alone, at the Round Tower, dreaming of heaven [He goes up the hill]

LARRY Aye, thats it! there you are! dreaming! dreaming! dreaming! dreaming!

KEEGAN [halting and turning to them for the last time] Every dream is a prophecy every jest is an earnest in the womb of Time

BROADBENT [reflectively] Once, when I was a small kid, I dreamt I was in heaven [They both stare at him] It was a sort of pale blue satin place, with all the pious old ladies in our congregation sitting as if they were at a service, and there was some awful person in the study at the other side of the hall I didnt enjoy it, you know What is it like in your dreams?

KEEGAN In my dreams it is a country where the State is the Church and the Church the people three in one and one in three It is a commonwealth in which work is play and play is life three in one and one in three

It is a temple in which the priest is the worshipper and the worshipper the worshipped three in one and one in three It is a godhead in which all life is human and all humanity divine three in one and one in three It is, in short, the dream of a madman [He goes away across the hill]

BROADBENT [looking after him affectionately] What a regular old Church and State Tory he is! He's a character he'll be an attraction here Really almost equal to Ruskin and Carlyle LARRY Yes, and much good they did with all their talk!

BROADBENT Oh tut, tut, Larry! They improved my mind they raised my tone enormously I feel sincerely obliged to Keegan he has made me feel a better man distinctly better [With sincere elevation] I feel now as I never did before that I am right in devoting my life to the cause of Ireland Come along and help me to choose the site for the hotel

XIII

HOW HE LIED TO HER HUSBAND

1904

It is eight o'clock in the evening The curtains are drawn and the lamps lighted in the drawing room of Her flat in Cromwell Road Her lover, a beautiful youth of eighteen, in evening dress and cape, with a bunch of flowers and an opera hat in his hands, comes in alone The door is near the corner, and as he appears in the doorway, he has the fireplace on the nearest wall to his right, and the grand piano along the opposite wall to his left Near the fireplace a small ornamental table has on it a hand mirror, a fan, a pair of long white gloves, and a little white woollen cloud to wrap a woman's head in On the other side of the room, near the piano, is a broad, square, softly upholstered stool The room is furnished in the most approved South Kensington fashion that is, it is as like a shop window as possible, and is intended to demonstrate the social position and spending powers of its owners, and not in the least to make them comfortable

He is, be it repeated, a very beautiful youth, moving as in a dream, walking as on air He puts his flowers down carefully on the table beside the fan, takes off his cape, and, as there is no room on the table for it, takes it to the piano, puts his hat on the cape, crosses to the hearth, looks at his watch, puts it up again, notices the things on the table, lights up as if he saw heaven opening before him, goes to the table and takes the cloud in both hands, nestling his nose into its softness and kissing it, kisses the gloves one after another, kisses the fan, gasps a long shuddering sigh of ecstasy, sits down on the stool and presses his hands to his eyes to shut out reality and dream a little, takes his hands down and shakes his head with a little smile of rebuke for his folly, catches sight of a speck of dust on his shoes and hastily and carefully brushes it off with his handkerchief, rises and takes the hand mirror from the table to make sure of his tie with the gravest anxiety, and is looking at his watch again when She comes in, much flustered As she is dressed for the theatre, has spoilt, petted ways, and wears many diamonds, she has an air of being a young and beautiful woman, but as a matter of hard fact, she is, dress and pretensions apart, a very ordinary South Kensington female of about 37, hopelessly inferior in physical and spiritual distinction to the beautiful youth, who hastily puts down the mirror as she enters

HE [kissing her hand] At last!

SHE Henry something dreadful has happened

HE Whats the matter?

SHE I have lost your poems

HE They were unworthy of you I will write you some more

SHE No, thank you Never any more poems for me Oh, how could I have been so mad! so rash! so imprudent!

HE Thank Heaven for your madness, your rashness, your imprudence!

SHE [impatently] Oh, be sensible, Henry Cant you see what a terrible thing this is for me? Suppose anybody finds these poems! what will they think?

HE They will think that a man once loved a woman more devotedly than ever man loved woman before But they will not know what man it was

SHE What good is that to me if everybody will know what woman it was?

HE But how will they know?

SHE How will they know! Why, my name is all over them my silly, unhappy name Oh, if I had only been christened Mary Jane, or Gladys Muriel, or Beatrice, or Francesca, or Gunevere, or something quite common! But Aurora! Aurora! I'm the only Aurora in London, and everybody knows it I believe I'm the only Aurora in the world And it's so horribly easy to rhyme to it! Oh, Henry, why didnt you try to restrain your feelings a little in common consideration for me? Why didnt you write with some little reserve?

HE Write poems to you with reserve! You ask me that!

SHE [with perfunctory tenderness] Yes, dear, of course it was very nice of you, and I know it was my own fault as much as yours I ought to have noticed that your verses ought never to have been addressed to a married woman

HE Ah, how I wish they had been addressed to an un-married woman! how I wish they had!

SHE Indeed you have no right to wish anything of the sort They are quite unfit for anybody but a married woman Thats just the difficulty What will my sisters-in-law think of them?

HE [painfully jarred] Have you got sisters-in-law?

SHE Yes, of course I have Do you suppose I am an angel?

HE [biting his lips] I do Heaven help me, I do—or I did—or [he almost chokes a sob]

SHE [softening and putting her hand caressingly on his shoulder] Listen to me, dear It's very nice of you to live with me in a dream, and to love me, and so on, but I cant help my husband having disagreeable relatives, can I?

HE [brightening up] Ah, of course they are your husband's relatives I forgot that Forgive me, Aurora [He takes her hand from his shoulder and kisses it She sits down on the stool He remains near the table, with his back to it, smiling fatuously down at her]

SHE The fact is, Teddy's got nothing but relatives He has eight sisters and six half-sisters, and ever so many brothers—but I dont mind his brothers Now if you only knew the least little thing about the world, Henry, youd know that in a large family, though the sisters quarrel with one another like mad all the time, yet let one of the brothers marry, and they all turn on their unfortunate sister-in-law and devote the rest of their lives with perfect unanimity to persuading him that his wife is unworthy of him They can do it to her very face without her knowing it, because they always have a lot of stupid low family jokes that nobody understands but themselves Half the time you cant tell what theyre talking about it just drives you wild There ought to be a law against a man's sister ever entering his house after he's married I'm as certain as that I'm sitting here that Georgina stole those poems out of my workbox

HE She will not understand them, I think

SHE Oh, wont she! She'll understand them only too well She'll understand more harm than ever was in them nasty vulgar-minded cat!

HE [going to her] Oh dont, dont think of people in that way Dont think of her at all [He takes her hand and sits down on the carpet at her feet] Aurora do you remember the evening when I sat here at your feet and read you those poems for the first time?

SHE I shouldnt have let you I see that now When I think of Georgina sitting there at Teddy's feet and reading them to him for the first time, I feel I shall just go distracted

HE Yes, you are right It will be a profanation

SHE Oh, I dont care about the profanation, but what will Teddy think? what will he do? [Suddenly throwing his head away from her knee] You dont seem to think a bit about Teddy [She jumps up, more and more agitated]

HE [supine on the floor, for she has thrown him off his balance] To me Teddy is nothing, and Georgina less than nothing

SHE Youll soon find out how much less than nothing she is If you think a woman cant do any harm because she's only a scandalmongering dowdy ragbag, youre greatly mistaken [She flounces about the room He gets up slowly and dusts his hands Suddenly she runs to him and throws herself into his arms] Henry help me Find a way out of this for me, and I'll bless you as long as you live Oh, how wretched I am! [She sobs on his breast]

HE And oh! how happy I am!

SHE [whisking herself abruptly away] Dont be selfish

HE [humbly] Yes I deserve that I think if I were going to the stake with you, I should still be so happy with you that I should forget your danger as utterly as my own

SHE [relenting and patting his hand fondly] Oh, you are a dear darling boy, Henry; but [throwing his hand away fretfully] youre no use I want somebody to tell me what to do

HE [with quiet conviction] Your heart will tell you at the right time I have thought deeply over this, and I know what we two must do, sooner or later

SHE No, Henry. I will do nothing improper, nothing dishonorable [She sits down plump on the stool and looks inflexible]

HE If you did, you would no longer be Aurora Our course is perfectly simple, perfectly straightforward, perfectly stainless and true We love one another I am not ashamed of that I am ready to go out and proclaim it to all London as simply as I will declare it to your husband when you see—as you soon will see—that this is the only way honorable enough for your feet to tread Let us go out together to our own house, this evening, without concealment and without shame Remember! we owe something to your husband We are his guests here he is an honorable man he has been kind to us he has perhaps loved you as well as his prosaic nature and his sordid commercial environment permitted We owe it to him in all honor not to let him learn the truth from the lips of a scandalmonger Let us go to him now quietly, hand in hand, bid him farewell, and walk out of the house without concealment or subterfuge, freely and honestly, in full honor and self-respect

SHE [staring at him] And where shall we go to?

HE We shall not depart by a hair's breadth from the ordinary natural current of our lives We were going to the theatre when the loss of the poems compelled us to take action at once We shall go to the theatre still, but we shall leave your diamonds here, for we cannot afford diamonds, and do not need them

SHE [fretfully] I have told you already that I hate diamonds, only Teddy insists on hanging me all over with them You need not preach simplicity to me

HE I never thought of doing so, dearest I know that these trivialities are nothing to you What was I saying?—oh yes Instead of coming back here from the theatre, you will come with me to my home—now and henceforth our home—and in due course of time, when you are divorced, we shall go through whatever idle legal ceremony you may desire I attach no importance to the law my love was not created in me by the law, nor can it be bound or loosed by it That is simple enough, and sweet enough, is it not? [He takes the flowers from the table] Here are flowers for you I have the tickets we will ask your husband to lend us the carriage to shew that there is no malice, no grudge, between us Come!

SHE Do you mean to say that you propose that we should walk right bang up to Teddy and tell him we're going away together?

HE Yes What can be simpler?

SHE And do you think for a moment he'd stand it? He'd just kill you

HE [coming to a sudden stop and speaking with considerable confidence] You dont understand these things, my darling how could you? I have followed the Greek ideal and not neglected the culture of my body Like all poets I have a passion for pugilism Your husband would make a tolerable second-rate heavy weight if he were in training and ten years younger As it is, he could, if strung up to a great effort by a burst of passion, give a good account of himself for perhaps fifteen seconds But I am active enough to keep out of his reach for fifteen seconds, and after that I should be simply all over him

SHE [rising and coming to him in consternation] What do you mean by all over him?

HE [gently] Dont ask me, dearest At all events, I swear to you that you need not be anxious about me

SHE And what about Teddy? Do you mean to tell me that you are going to beat Teddy before my face like a brutal prizefighter?

HE All this alarm is needless, dearest Believe me, nothing will happen Your husband knows that I am capable of defending myself Under such circumstances nothing ever does happen And of course I shall do nothing The man who once loved you is sacred to me

SHE [suspiciously] Doesnt he love me still? Has he told you anything?

HE No, no [He takes her tenderly in his arms] Dearest, dearest how agitated you are! how unlike yourself! All these worries belong to the lower plane Come up with me to the higher one The heights, the solitudes, the soul world!

SHE [avoiding his gaze] No stop it's no use, Mr Apjohn

HE [recoiling] Mr Apjohn!!!

SHE Excuse me I meant Henry, of course

HE How could you even think of me as Mr Apjohn? I never think of you as Mrs Bompas it is always Aurora, Aurora, Auro—

SHE Yes, yes thats all very well, Mr Apjohn [he is about to interrupt again but she wont have it] no it's no use Ive suddenly begun to think of you as Mr Apjohn, and it's ridiculous to go on calling you Henry I thought you were only a boy, a child, a dreamer I thought you would be too much afraid to do anything And now you want to beat Teddy and to break up my home and disgrace me and make a horrible scandal in the papers It's cruel, unmanly, cowardly

HE [with grave wonder] Are you afraid?

SHE Oh, of course I'm afraid So would you be if you had any common sense [She goes to the hearth, turning her back to him, and puts one tapping foot on the fender]

HE [watching her with great gravity] Perfect love casteth out fear That is why I am not afraid Mrs Bompas you do not love me

SHE [turning to him with a gasp of relief] Oh, thank you, thank you! You really can be very nice, Henry

HE Why do you thank me?

SHE [coming prettily to him from the fireplace] For calling me Mrs Bompas again I feel now that you are going to be reasonable and behave like a gentleman [He drops on the stool, covers his face with his hands, and groans] Whats the matter?

HE Once or twice in my life I have dreamed that I was exquisitely happy and blessed But oh! the misgiving at the first stir of consciousness! the stab of reality! the prison walls of the bedroom! the bitter, bitter disappointment of waking! And this time! oh, this time I thought I was awake

SHE Listen to me, Henry we really havnt time for all that sort of flapdoodle now [He starts to his feet as if she had pulled a trigger and straightened him by the release of a powerful spring, and goes past her with set teeth to the little table] Oh, take care you nearly hit me in the chin with the top of your head

HE [with fierce politeness] I beg your pardon What is it you want me to do? I am at your service I am ready to behave like a gentleman if you will be kind enough to explain exactly how

SHE [a little frightened] Thank you, Henry I was sure you would Youre not angry with me, are you?

HE Go on Go on quickly Give me something to think about, or I will—I will—[he suddenly snatches up her fan and is about to break it in his clenched fists]

SHE [running forward and catching at the fan, with loud lamentation] Dont break my fan—no, dont [He slowly relaxes his grip of it as she draws it anxiously out of his hands] No, really, thats a stupid trick I dont like that Youve no right to do that [She opens the fan, and finds that the sticks are disconnected] Oh, how could you be so inconsiderate?

HE I beg your pardon I will buy you a new one

SHE [querulously] You will never be able to match it And it was a particular favorite of mine

HE [shortly] Then you will have to do without it thats all

SHE Thats not a very nice thing to say after breaking my pet fan, I think

HE If you knew how near I was to breaking Teddy's pet wife and presenting him with the pieces, you would be thankful that you are alive instead of—of—of howling about fiveshillingsworth of ivory Damn your fan!

SHE Oh! Dont you dare swear in my presence One would think you were my husband

HE [again collapsing on the stool] This is some horrible dream What has become of you? You are not my Aurora

SHE Oh, well, if you come to that, what has become of you? Do you think I would ever have encouraged you if I had known you were such a little devil?

HE Dont drag me down—dont—dont Help me to find the way back to the heights

SHE [kneeling beside him and pleading] If you would only be reasonable, Henry If you would only remember that I am on the brink of ruin, and not go on calmly saying it's all quite simple

HE It seems so to me

SHE [jumping up distractedly] If you say that again I shall do something I'll be sorry for Here we are, standing on the edge of a frightful precipice No doubt it's quite simple to go over and have done with it But cant you suggest anything more agreeable?

HE I can suggest nothing now A chill black darkness has fallen I can see nothing but the ruins of our dream [He rises with a deep sigh]

SHE Cant you? Well, I can I can see Georgina rubbing those poems into Teddy [Facing him determinedly] And I tell you, Henry Apjohn, that you got me into this mess, and you must get me out of it again

HE [polite and hopeless] All I can say is that I am entirely at your service What do you wish me to do?

SHE Do you know anybody else named Aurora?

HE No

SHE Theres no use in saying No in that frozen pigheaded way You must know some Aurora or other somewhere

HE You said you were the only Aurora in the world And [lifting his clasped fists with a sudden return of his emotion] oh God! you were the only Aurora in the world for me [He turns away from her, hiding his face]

SHE [petting him] Yes, yes, dear of course It's very nice of you, and I appreciate it indeed I do, but it's not seasonable just at present Now just listen to me I suppose you know all those poems by heart

HE Yes, by heart [Raising his head and looking at her with a sudden suspicion] Dont you?

SHE Well, I never can remember verses, and besides, Ive been so busy that Ive not had time to read them all, though I intend to the very first moment I can get I promise you that most faithfully, Henry But now try and remember very particularly Does the name of Bompas occur in any of the poems?

HE [indignantly] No

SHE Youre quite sure?

HE Of course I am quite sure How could I use such a name in a poem?

SHE Well, I dont see why not It rhymes to rumpus, which seems appropriate enough at present, goodness knows! However, youre a poet, and you ought to know

HE What does it matter—now?

SHE It matters a lot, I can tell you If theres nothing about Bompas in the poems, we can say that they were written to some other Aurora, and that you shewed them to me because my name was Aurora too So youve got to invent another Aurora for the occasion

HE [very coldly] Oh, if you wish me to tell a lie—

SHE Surely, as a man of honor—as a gentleman, you wouldnt tell the truth would you?

HE Very well You have broken my spirit and desecrated my dreams I will lie and protest and stand on my honor oh, I will play the gentleman, never fear

SHE Yes, put it all on me, of course Dont be mean, Henry

HE [rousing himself with an effort] You are quite right, Mrs Bompas I beg your pardon You must excuse my temper I am having growing pains, I think

SHE Growing pains!

HE The process of growing from romantic boyhood into cynical maturity usually takes fifteen years When it is compressed into fifteen minutes, the pace is too fast, and growing pains are the result

SHE Oh, is this a time for cleverness? It's settled, isnt it, that youre going to be nice and good, and that youll brazen it out to Teddy that you have some other Aurora?

HE Yes I'm capable of anything now I should not have told him the truth by halves, and now I will not lie by halves I'll wallow in the honor of a gentleman

SHE Dearest boy, I knew you would I—Sh! [she rushes to the door, and holds it ajar, listening breathlessly]

HE What is it?

SHE [white with apprehension] It's Teddy I hear him tapping the new barometer He cant have anything serious on his mind or he wouldnt do that Perhaps Georgina hasnt said anything [She steals back to the hearth] Try and look as if there was nothing the matter Give me my gloves, quick [He hands them to her She pulls on one hastily and begins buttoning it with ostentatious unconcern] Go further away from me, quick [He walks doggedly away from her until the piano prevents his going farther] If I button my glove, and you were to hum a tune, dont you think that—

HE The tableau would be complete in its guiltiness For Heaven's sake, Mrs Bompas, let that glove alone you look like a pick-pocket

Her husband comes in a robust, thicknecked, well groomed city man, with a strong chin but a blithering eye and credulous mouth He has a momentous air, but shews no sign of displeasure rather the contrary

HER HUSBAND Hallo! I thought you two were at the theatre

SHE I felt anxious about you, Teddy Why didnt you come home to dinner?

HER HUSBAND I got a message from Georgina She wanted me to go to her

SHE Poor dear Georgina! I'm sorry I havnt been able to call on her this last week I hope theres nothing the matter with her

HER HUSBAND Nothing, except anxiety for my welfare—and yours [She steals a terrified look at Henry] By the way, Apjohn, I should like a word with you this evening, if Aurora can spare you for a moment

HE [formally] I am at your service

HER HUSBAND No hurry After the theatre will do

HE We have decided not to go

HER HUSBAND Indeed! Well, then, shall we adjourn to my snuggerly?

SHE You neednt move I shall go and lock up my diamonds since I'm not going to the theatre Give me my things

HER HUSBAND [as he hands her the cloud and the mirror] Well, we shall have more room here

HE [looking about him and shaking his shoulders loose] I think I should prefer plenty of room

HER HUSBAND So, if it's not disturbing you, Rory—?

SHE Not at all [She goes out]

When the two men are alone together, Bompas deliberately takes the poems from his breast pocket, looks at them reflectively, then looks at Henry, mutely inviting his attention Henry refuses to understand, doing his best to look unconcerned

HER HUSBAND Do these manuscripts seem at all familiar to you, may I ask?

HE Manuscripts?

HER HUSBAND Yes Would you like to look at them a little closer? [He proffers them under Henry's nose]

HE [as with a sudden illumination of glad surprise] Why, these are my poems!

HER HUSBAND So I gather

HE What a shame! Mrs Bompas has shewn them to you! You must think me an utter ass I wrote them years ago after reading Swinburne's Songs Before Sunrise Nothing would do me then but I must reel off a set of Songs to the Sunrise Aurora, you know the rosy fingered Aurora Theyre all about Aurora When Mrs Bompas told me her name was Aurora, I couldnt resist the temptation to lend them to her to read But I didnt bargain for your unsympathetic eyes

HER HUSBAND [grinning] Apjohn thats really very ready of you You are cut out for literature, and the day will come when Rory and I will be proud to have you about the house I have heard far thinner stories from much older men

HE [with an air of great surprise] Do you mean to imply that you dont believe me?

HER HUSBAND Do you expect me to believe you?

HE Why not? I dont understand

HER HUSBAND Come! Dont underrate your own cleverness, Apjohn I think you understand pretty well

HE I assure you I am quite at a loss Can you not be a little more explicit?

HER HUSBAND Dont overdo it, old chap However, I will just be so far explicit as to say that if you think these poems read as if they were addressed, not to a live woman, but to a shivering cold time of day at which you were never out of bed in your life, you hardly do justice to your own literary powers —which I admire and appreciate, mind you, as much as any man Come! own up You wrote those poems to my wife [An internal struggle prevents Henry from answering] Of course you did [He throws the poems on the table, and goes to the hearthrug, where he plants himself solidly, chuckling a little and waiting for the next move]

HE [formally and carefully] Mr Bompas I pledge you my word you are mistaken I need not tell you that Mrs Bompas is a lady of stainless honor, who has never cast an unworthy thought on me The fact that she has shewn you my poems—

HER HUSBAND That's not a fact I came by them without her knowledge She didn't shew them to me

HE Does not that prove their perfect innocence? She would have shewn them to you at once if she had taken your quite unfounded view of them

HER HUSBAND [shaken] Apjohn play fair Don't abuse your intellectual gifts Do you really mean that I am making a fool of myself?

HE [earnestly] Believe me, you are I assure you, on my honor as a gentleman, that I have never had the slightest feeling for Mrs Bompas beyond the ordinary esteem and regard of a pleasant acquaintance

HER HUSBAND [shortly shewing ill humor for the first time] Oh! Indeed! [He leaves his hearth and begins to approach Henry slowly, looking him up and down with growing resentment]

HE [hastening to improve the impression made by his mendacity] I should never have dreamt of writing poems to her The thing is absurd

HER HUSBAND [reddening ominously] Why is it absurd?

HE [shrugging his shoulders] Well, it happens that I do not admire Mrs Bompas—in that way

HER HUSBAND [breaking out in Henry's face] Let me tell you that Mrs Bompas has been admired by better men than you, you soapy headed little puppy, you

HE [much taken aback] There is no need to insult me like this I assure you, on my honor as a—

HER HUSBAND [too angry to tolerate a reply, and boring Henry more and more towards the piano] You don't admire Mrs Bompas! You would never dream of writing poems to Mrs Bompas! My wife's not good enough for you, isn't she? [Fiercely] Who are you, pray, that you should be so jolly superior?

HE Mr Bompas I can make allowances for your jealousy—

HER HUSBAND Jealousy! do you suppose I'm jealous of you? No, nor of ten like you But if you think I'll stand here and let you insult my wife in her own house, you're mistaken

HE [very uncomfortable with his back against the piano and Teddy standing over him threateningly] How can I convince you? Be reasonable I tell you my relations with Mrs Bompas are relations of perfect coldness—of indifference—

HER HUSBAND [scornfully] Say it again say it again You're proud of it, aren't you? Yah! you're not worth kicking

Henry suddenly executes the feat known to pugilists as slipping, and changes sides with Teddy, who is now between Henry and the piano

HE Look here I'm not going to stand this

HER HUSBAND Oh, you have some blood in your body after all! Good job!

HE This is ridiculous I assure you Mrs Bompas is quite—

HER HUSBAND What is Mrs Bompas to you, I'd like to know I'll tell you what Mrs Bompas is She's the smartest woman in the smartest set in South Kensington, and the handsomest, and the cleverest, and the most fetching to experienced men who know a good thing when they see it, whatever she may be to conceited penny-a-lining puppies who think nothing good enough for them It's admitted by the best people, and not to know it argues yourself unknown Three of our first actor-managers have offered her a hundred a week if she'll go on the stage when they start a repertory theatre, and I think they know what they're about as well as you The only member of the present Cabinet that you might call a handsome man has neglected the business of the country to dance with her, though he don't belong to our set as a regular thing One of the first professional poets in Bedford Park wrote a sonnet to her, worth all your amateur trash At Ascot last season the eldest son of a duke excused himself from calling on me on the ground that his feelings for Mrs Bompas were not consistent with his duty to me as host, and it did him honor and me too But [with gathering fury] she isn't good enough for you, it seems. You regard her with coldness, with indifference, and you have the cool cheek to tell me so to my face. For two pins I'd flatten your nose in to teach you manners. Introducing a fine woman to you is casting pearls before swine [yelling at him] before SWINE! d'ye hear?

HE [with a deplorable lack of polish] You call me a swine again and I'll land you one on the chin that'll make your head sing for a week.

HER HUSBAND [exploding] What!

He charges at Henry with bull-like fury. Henry places himself on guard in the manner of a well-taught boxer, and gets away smartly, but unfortunately forgets the stool which is just behind him. He falls backwards over it, unintentionally pushing it against the shins of Bompas, who falls forward over it. Mrs Bompas, with a scream, rushes into the room between the sprawling champions, and sits down on the floor in order to get her right arm round her husband's neck.

SHE You shant, Teddy, you shant. You will be killed, he is a prizefighter.

HER HUSBAND [vengefully] I'll prizefight him [He struggles vainly to free himself from her embrace].

SHE Henry, don't let him fight you. Promise me that you won't.

HE [ruefully] I have got a most frightful bump on the back of my head [He tries to rise].

SHE [reaching out her left hand to seize his coat tail, and pulling him down again, whilst keeping fast hold of Teddy with the other hand] Not until you have promised, not until you both have promised [Teddy tries to rise, she pulls him back again]. Teddy, you promise, don't you? Yes, yes. Be good, you promise.

HER HUSBAND I won't, unless he takes it back.

SHE He will, he does. You take it back, Henry?—yes.

HE [savagely] Yes, I take it back [She lets go his coat. He gets up. So does Teddy]. I take it all back, all, without reserve.

SHE [on the carpet] Is nobody going to help me up? [They each take a hand and pull her up]. Now won't you shake hands and be good?

HE [recklessly] I shall do nothing of the sort. I have steeped myself in lies for your sake, and the only reward I get is a lump on the back of my head the size of an apple.

Now I will go back to the straight path.

SHE Henry, for Heaven's sake—

HE It's no use. Your husband is a fool and a brute—

HER HUSBAND What's that you say?

HE I say you are a fool and a brute, and if you'll step outside with me I'll say it again [Teddy begins to take off his coat for combat]. Those poems were written to your wife, every word of them, and to nobody else [The scowl clears away from Bompas's countenance. Radiant, he replaces his coat]. I wrote them because I loved her. I thought her the most beautiful woman in the world, and I told her so over and over again. I adored her, do you hear? I told her that you were a sordid commercial chump, utterly unworthy of her, and so you are.

HER HUSBAND [so gratified, he can hardly believe his ears] You don't mean it!

HE Yes, I do mean it, and a lot more too. I asked Mrs Bompas to walk out of the house with me—to leave you—to get divorced from you and marry me. I begged and implored her to do it this very night. It was her refusal that ended everything between us [Looking very disparagingly at him]. What she can see in you, goodness only knows!

HER HUSBAND [beaming with remorse] My dear chap, why didn't you say so before? I apologize. Come! don't bear malice. Shake hands. Make him shake hands, Rory.

SHE For my sake, Henry. After all, he's my husband. Forgive him. Take his hand [Henry, dazed, lets her take his hand and place it in Teddy's].

HER HUSBAND [shaking it heartily] You've got to own that none of your literary heroines can touch my Rory [He turns to her and claps her with fond pride on the shoulder]. Eh, Rory? They can't resist you, none of 'em. Never knew a man yet that could hold out three days.

SHE Don't be foolish, Teddy. I hope you were not really hurt, Henry [She feels the back of his head. He flinches]. Oh, poor boy, what a bump! I must get some vinegar and brown paper [She goes to the bell and rings].

HER HUSBAND Will you do me a great favor, Apjohn. I hardly like to ask, but it would be a real kindness to us both.

HE What can I do?

HER HUSBAND [taking up the poems] Well, may I get these printed? It shall be done in the best style. The finest paper, sumptuous.

binding, everything first class Theyre beautiful poems I should like to shew them about a bit

SHE [running back from the bell, delighted with the idea, and coming between them] Oh Henry, if you wouldnt mind?

HE Oh, I dont mind I am past minding anything

HER HUSBAND What shall we call the volume? To Auroia, or something like that, eh?

HE I should call it How He Lied to Her Husband

THE END

MAJOR BARBARA

1905

It is after dinner in January 1906, in the library in Lady Britomart Undershaft's house in Wilton Crescent. A large and comfortable settee is in the middle of the room, upholstered in dark leather. A person sitting on it (it is vacant at present) would have, on his right, Lady Britomart's writing table, with the lady herself busy at it, a smaller writing table behind him on his left, the door behind him on Lady Britomart's side, and a window with a window seat directly on his left. Near the window is an armchair.

Lady Britomart is a woman of fifty or thereabouts, well dressed and yet careless of her dress, well bred and quite reckless of her breeding, well mannered and yet appallingly outspoken and indifferent to the opinion of her interlocutors, amiable and yet peremptory, arbitrary, and high-tempered to the last bearable degree, and withal a very typical managing matron of the upper class, treated as a naughty child until she grew into a scolding mother, and finally settling down with plenty of practical ability and worldly experience, limited in the oddest way with domestic and class limitations, conceiving the universe exactly as if it were a large house in Wilton Crescent, though handling her corner of it very effectively on that assumption, and being quite enlightened and liberal as to the books in the library, the pictures on the walls, the music in the portfolios, and the articles in the papers.

Her son, Stephen, comes in. He is a gravely correct young man under 25, taking himself very seriously, but still in some awe of his mother, from childish habit and bachelor shyness rather than from any weakness of character.

STEPHEN Whats the matter?

LADY BRITOMART Presently, Stephen

Stephen submissively walks to the settee and sits down. He takes up a Liberal weekly called The Speaker.

LADY BRITOMART Dont begin to read, Stephen I shall require all your attention.

STEPHEN It was only while I was waiting—

LADY BRITOMART Dont make excuses, Stephen [He puts down The Speaker] Now! [She finishes her writing, rises, and comes to the settee] I have not kept you waiting very long, I think.

STEPHEN Not at all, mother.

LADY BRITOMART Bring me my cushion [He takes the cushion from the chair at the desk and arranges it for her as she sits down on the settee] Sit down [He sits down and fiddles his tie nervously] Dont fiddle with your tie, Stephen there is nothing the matter with it.

STEPHEN I beg your pardon [He fiddles with his watch chain instead].

LADY BRITOMART Now are you attending to me, Stephen?

STEPHEN Of course, mother.

LADY BRITOMART No it's not of course I want something much more than your everyday matter-of-course attention. I am going to speak to you very seriously, Stephen I wish you would let that chain alone.

STEPHEN [hastily relinquishing the chain] Have I done anything to annoy you, mother? If so, it was quite unintentional.

LADY BRITOMART [astonished] Nonsense! [With some remorse] My poor boy, did you think I was angry with you?

STEPHEN What is it, then, mother? You are making me very uneasy.

LADY BRITOMART [squaring herself at him rather aggressively] Stephen may I ask how soon you intend to realize that you are a grown-up man, and that I am only a woman?

STEPHEN [amazed] Only a—

LADY BRITOMART Dont repeat my words, please it is a most aggravating habit You must learn to face life seriously, Stephen I really cannot bear the whole burden of our family affairs any longer You must advise me you must assume the responsibility

STEPHEN I!

LADY BRITOMART Yes, you, of course You were 24 last June Youve been at Harrow and Cambridge Youve been to India and Japan You must know a lot of things, now, unless you have wasted your time most scandalously Well, advise me

STEPHEN [much perplexed] You know I have never interfered in the household—

LADY BRITOMART No I should think not I dont want you to order the dinner

STEPHEN I mean in our family affairs

LADY BRITOMART Well, you must interfere now, for they are getting quite beyond me

STEPHEN [troubled] I have thought sometimes that perhaps I ought, but really, mother, I know so little about them, and what I do know is so painful! it is so impossible to mention some things to you— [he stops, ashamed]

LADY BRITOMART I suppose you mean your father

STEPHEN [almost inaudibly] Yes

LADY BRITOMART My dear we cant go on all our lives not mentioning him Of course you were quite right not to open the subject until I asked you to, but you are old enough now to be taken into my confidence, and to help me to deal with him about the girls

STEPHEN But the girls are all right They are engaged

LADY BRITOMART [complacently] Yes I have made a very good match for Sarah Charles Lomax will be a millionaire at 35 But that is ten years ahead, and in the meantime his trustees cannot under the terms of his father's will allow him more than £800 a year

STEPHEN But the will says also that if he increases his income by his own exertions, they may double the increase

LADY BRITOMART Charles Lomax's exertions are much more likely to decrease his income than to increase it Sarah will have to find at least another £800 a year for the next ten years, and even then they will be as poor as church mice And what about

Barbara? I thought Barbara was going to make the most brilliant career of all of you And what does she do? Joins the Salvation Army, discharges her maid, lives on a pound a week, and walks in one evening with a professor of Greek whom she has picked up in the street, and who pretends to be a Salvationist, and actually plays the big drum for her in public because he has fallen head over ears in love with her

STEPHEN I was certainly rather taken aback when I heard they were engaged Cusins is a very nice fellow, certainly nobody would ever guess that he was born in Australia, but—

LADY BRITOMART Oh, Adolphus Cusins will make a very good husband After all, nobody can say a word against Greek it stamps a man at once as an educated gentleman And my family, thank Heaven, is not a pig-headed Tory one We are Whigs, and believe in liberty Let snobbish people say what they please Barbara shall marry, not the man they like, but the man I like

STEPHEN Of course I was thinking only of his income However, he is not likely to be extravagant

LADY BRITOMART Dont be too sure of that, Stephen I know your quiet, simple, refined, poetic people like Adolphus quite content with the best of everything! They cost more than your extravagant people, who are always as mean as they are second rate No Barbara will need at least £2000 a year You see it means two additional households Besides, my dear, you must marry soon I dont approve of the present fashion of philandering bachelors and late marriages, and I am trying to arrange something for you

STEPHEN It's very good of you, mother, but perhaps I had better arrange that for myself

LADY BRITOMART Nonsense! you are much too young to begin matchmaking you would be taken in by some pretty little nobody Of course I dont mean that you are not to be consulted you know that as well as I do [Stephen closes his lips and is silent] Now dont sulk, Stephen

STEPHEN I am not sulking, mother What has all this got to do with—with—with my father?

LADY BRITOMART My dear Stephen where is the money to come from? It is easy enough for you and the other children to live on my income as long as we are in the same house, but I cant keep four families in four separate houses You know how poor my father is he has barely seven thousand a year now, and really, if he were not the Earl of Stevenage, he would have to give up society He can do nothing for us He says, naturally enough, that it is absurd that he should be asked to provide for the children of a man who is rolling in money You see, Stephen, your father must be fabulously wealthy, because there is always a war going on somewhere

STEPHEN You need not remind me of that, mother I have hardly ever opened a newspaper in my life without seeing our name in it The Undershaft torpedo! The Undershaft quick firers! The Undershaft ten inch! the Undershaft disappearing rampart gun! the Undershaft submarine! and now the Undershaft aerial battleship! At Harrow they called me the Woolwich Infant At Cambridge it was the same A little brute at King's who was always trying to get up revivals, spoilt my Bible—your first birthday present to me—by writing under my name, "Son and heir to Undershaft and Lazarus, Death and Destruction Dealers address, Christendom and Judea" But that was not so bad as the way I was kowtowed to everywhere because my father was making millions by selling cannons

LADY BRITOMART It is not only the cannons, but the war loans that Lazarus arranges under cover of giving credit for the cannons You know, Stephen, it's perfectly scandalous Those two men, Andrew Undershaft and Lazarus, positively have Europe under their thumbs That is why your father is able to behave as he does He is above the law Do you think Bismarck or Gladstone or Disraeli could have openly defied every social and moral obligation all their lives as your father has? They simply wouldnt have dared I asked Gladstone to take it up I asked The Times to take it up I asked the Lord Chamberlain to take it up But it was just like asking them to declare war on the Sultan They wouldnt They said they couldnt touch him I believe they were afraid

STEPHEN What could they do? He does not actually break the law

LADY BRITOMART Not break the law! He is always breaking the law He broke the law when he was born his parents were not married STEPHEN Mother! Is that true?

LADY BRITOMART Of course it's true that was why we separated

STEPHEN He married without letting you know this!

LADY BRITOMART [rather taken aback by this inference] Oh no To do Andrew justice, that was not the sort of thing he did Besides, you know the Undershaft motto Unashamed Everybody knew

STEPHEN But you said that was why you separated

LADY BRITOMART Yes, because he was not content with being a foundling himself he wanted to disinherit you for another foundling That was what I couldnt stand

STEPHEN [ashamed] Do you mean for—for—LADY BRITOMART Dont stammer, Stephen Speak distinctly

STEPHEN But this is so frightful to me, mother To have to speak to you about such things!

LADY BRITOMART It's not pleasant for me, either, especially if you are still so childish that you must make it worse by a display of embarrassment It is only in the middle classes, Stephen, that people get into a state of dumb helpless horror when they find that there are wicked people in the world In our class, we have to decide what is to be done with wicked people, and nothing should disturb our self-possession Now ask your question properly

STEPHEN Mother have you no consideration for me? For Heaven's sake either treat me as a child, as you always do, and tell me nothing at all, or tell me everything and let me take it as best I can

LADY BRITOMART Treat you as a child! What do you mean? It is most unkind and ungrateful of you to say such a thing You know I have never treated any of you as children I have always made you my companions and friends, and allowed you perfect freedom to do and say whatever you liked, so long as you liked what I could approve of

STEPHEN [desperately] I daresay we have been the very imperfect children of a very perfect mother, but I do beg you to let me alone for once, and tell me about this horrible business of my father wanting to set me aside for another son

LADY BRITOMART [amazed] Another son! I never said anything of the kind I never dreamt of such a thing This is what comes of interrupting me

STEPHEN But you said—

LADY BRITOMART [cutting him short] Now be a good boy, Stephen, and listen to me patiently The Undershafes are descended from a foundling in the parish of St Andrew Undershaft in the city That was long ago, in the reign of James the First Well, this foundling was adopted by an armorer and gun-maker In the course of time the foundling succeeded to the business, and from some notion of gratitude, or some vow or something, he adopted another foundling, and left the business to him And that foundling did the same Ever since that, the cannon business has always been left to an adopted foundling named Andrew Undershaft

STEPHEN But did they never marry? Were there no legitimate sons?

LADY BRITOMART Oh yes they married just as your father did, and they were rich enough to buy land for their own children and leave them well provided for But they always adopted and trained some foundling to succeed them in the business, and of course they always quarrelled with their wives furiously over it Your father was adopted in that way, and he pretends to consider himself bound to keep up the tradition and adopt somebody to leave the business to Of course I was not going to stand that There may have been some reason for it when the Undershafes could only marry women in their own class, whose sons were not fit to govern great estates But there could be no excuse for passing over my son

STEPHEN [dubiously] I am afraid I should make a poor hand of managing a cannon foundry

LADY BRITOMART Nonsense! you could easily get a manager and pay him a salary

STEPHEN My father evidently had no great opinion of my capacity

LADY BRITOMART Stuff, child! you were only a baby it had nothing to do with your capacity Andrew did it on principle, just as he did every perverse and wicked thing on principle When my father remonstrated, Andrew actually told him to his face that history tells us of only two successful institutions one the Undershaft firm, and the other the Roman Empire under the Antonines That was because the Antonine emperors all adopted their successors Such rubbish! The Stevenages are as good as the Antonines, I hope, and you are a Stevenage But that was Andrew all over There you have the man! Always clever and unanswerable when he was defending nonsense and wickedness always awkward and sullen when he had to behave sensibly and decently!

STEPHEN Then it was on my account that your home life was broken up, mother I am sorry

LADY BRITOMART Well, dear, there were other differences I really cannot bear an immoral man I am not a Pharisee, I hope, and I should not have minded his merely doing wrong things we are none of us perfect But your father didnt exactly do wrong things he said them and thought them that was what was so dreadful He really had a sort of religion of wrongness Just as one doesnt mind men practising immorality so long as they own that they are in the wrong by preaching morality, so I couldnt forgive Andrew for preaching immorality while he practised morality You would all have grown up without principles, without any knowledge of right and wrong, if he had been in the house You know, my dear, your father was a very attractive man in some ways Children did not dislike him, and he took advantage of it to put the wickedest ideas into their heads, and make them quite unmanageable I did not dislike him myself very far from it, but nothing can bridge over moral disagreement

STEPHEN All this simply bewilders me, mother People may differ about matters of opinion, or even about religion, but how can they differ about right and wrong? Right is right, and wrong is wrong, and if a man cannot distinguish them properly, he is either a fool or a rascal thats all

LADY BRITOMART [touched] Thats my own boy [she pats his cheek]! Your father never could answer that he used to laugh and get out of it under cover of some affectionate nonsense And now that you understand the situation, what do you advise me to do?

STEPHEN Well, what can you do?

LADY BRITOMART I must get the money somehow

STEPHEN We cannot take money from him I had rather go and live in some cheap place like Bedford Square or even Hampstead than take a farthing of his money

LADY BRITOMART But after all, Stephen, our present income comes from Andrew

STEPHEN [shocked] I never knew that

LADY BRITOMART Well, you surely didn't suppose your grandfather had anything to give me. The Stevenages could not do everything for you. We gave you social position. Andrew had to contribute something. He had a very good bargain, I think.

STEPHEN [bitterly] We are utterly dependent on him and his cannons, then?

LADY BRITOMART Certainly not the money is settled. But he provided it. So you see it is not a question of taking money from him or not; it is simply a question of how much I don't want any more for myself.

STEPHEN Nor do I.

LADY BRITOMART But Sarah does, and Barbara does. That is, Charles Lomax and Adolphus Cusins will cost them more. So I must put my pride in my pocket and ask for it, I suppose. That is your advice, Stephen, is it not?

STEPHEN No.

LADY BRITOMART [sharply] Stephen!

STEPHEN Of course if you are determined—

LADY BRITOMART I am not determined. I ask your advice, and I am waiting for it. I will not have all the responsibility thrown on my shoulders.

STEPHEN [obstinately] I would die sooner than ask him for another penny.

LADY BRITOMART [resignedly] You mean that I must ask him. Very well, Stephen, it shall be as you wish. You will be glad to know that your grandfather concurs. But he thinks I ought to ask Andrew to come here and see the girls. After all, he must have some natural affection for them.

STEPHEN Ask him here!"

LADY BRITOMART Do not repeat my words, Stephen. Where else can I ask him?

STEPHEN I never expected you to ask him at all.

LADY BRITOMART Now don't tease, Stephen. Come! you see that it is necessary that he should pay us a visit, don't you?

STEPHEN [reluctantly] I suppose so, if the girls cannot do without his money.

LADY BRITOMART Thank you, Stephen. I knew you would give me the right advice when it was properly explained to you. I have asked your father to come this evening [Stephen bounds from his seat]. Don't jump, Stephen; it fidgets me.

STEPHEN [in utter consternation] Do you mean to say that my father is coming here tonight—that he may be here at any moment?

LADY BRITOMART [looking at her watch] I said nine [He gasps. She rises]. Ring the bell, please [Stephen goes to the smaller writing table, presses a button on it, and sits at it with his elbows on the table and his head in his hands, outwitted and overwhelmed]. It is ten minutes to nine yet, and I have to prepare the girls. I asked Charles Lomax and Adolphus to dinner on purpose that they might be here. Andrew had better see them in case he should cherish any delusions as to their being capable of supporting their wives [The butler enters. Lady Britomart goes behind the settee to speak to him]. Morrison go up to the drawing room and tell everybody to come down here at once [Morrison withdraws. Lady Britomart turns to Stephen]. Now remember, Stephen, I shall need all your countenance and authority [He rises and tries to recover some vestige of these attributes]. Give me a chair, dear [He pushes a chair forward from the wall to where she stands, near the smaller writing table. She sits down, and he goes to the armchair, into which he throws himself]. I don't know how Barbara will take it. Ever since they made her a major in the Salvation Army she has developed a propensity to have her own way and order people about which quite crows me sometimes. It's not ladylike. I'm sure I don't know where she picked it up. Anyhow, Barbara shant bully me, but still it's just as well that your father should be here before she has time to refuse to meet him or make a fuss. Don't look nervous, Stephen; it will only encourage Barbara to make difficulties. I am nervous enough, goodness knows, but I don't shew it.

Sarah and Barbara come in with their respective young men, Charles Lomax and Adolphus Cusins. Sarah is slender, bored, and mundane. Barbara is robust, jollier, much more energetic. Sarah is fashionably dressed. Barbara is in Salvation Army uniform. Lomax, a young man about town, is like many other young men about town. He is afflicted with a frivolous sense of humor which plunges him at the most inopportune moments into paroxysms of imperfectly suppressed laughter. Cusins is a spectacled student, slight, thin haired, and sweet voiced, with a more complex form of Lomax's complaint. His sense of humor is intellectual and subtle, and is complicated by an appalling temper. The lifelong struggle of a benevolent temperament and a high conscience against impulses of inhuman ridicule and fierce impatience has set up a chronic strain which has visibly wrecked his constitution. He is a most implacable, determined, tenacious, intolerant person who by mere force of character presents himself as—and indeed actually is—considerate, gentle, explanatory, even mild and apologetic, capable possibly of murder, but not of cruelty or coarseness. By the operation of some instinct which is not merciful enough to blind him with the illusions of love, he is obstinately bent on marrying Barbara. Lomax likes Sarah and thinks it will be rather a lark to marry her. Consequently he has not attempted to resist Lady Britomart's arrangements to that end.

All four lool as if they had been having a good deal of fun in the drawing room. The girls enter first, leaving the swains outside. Sarah comes to the settee. Barbara comes in after her and stops at the door.

BARBARA Are Cholly and Dolly to come in?

LADY BRITOMART [forcibly] Barbara I will not have Charles called Cholly—the vulgarity of it positively makes me ill.

BARBARA It's all right, mother. Cholly is quite correct nowadays. Are they to come in?

LADY BRITOMART Yes, if they will behave themselves.

BARBARA [through the door] Come in, Dolly, and behave yourself.

Barbara comes to her mother's writing table. Cusins enters smiling, and wanders towards Lady Britomart.

SARAH [calling] Come in, Cholly. [Lomax enters, controlling his features very imperfectly, and places himself vaguely between Sarah and Barbara.]

LADY BRITOMART [peremptorily] Sit down, all of you. [They sit. Cusins crosses to the window and seats himself there. Lomax takes a chair. Barbara sits at the writing table and Sarah on the settee.] I don't in the least know what you are laughing at, Adolphus. I am surprised at you, though I expected nothing better from Charles Lomax.

CUSINS [in a remarkably gentle voice] Barbara has been trying to teach me the West Ham Salvation March.

LADY BRITOMART I see nothing to laugh at in that, nor should you if you are really converted.

CUSINS [sweetly] You were not present. It was really funny, I believe.

LOMAX Ripping.

LADY BRITOMART Be quiet, Charles. Now listen to me, children. Your father is coming here this evening.

General stupefaction. Lomax, Sarah, and Barbara rise. Sarah scared, and Barbara amused and expectant.

LOMAX [remonstrating] Oh I say!

LADY BRITOMART You are not called on to say anything, Charles.

SARAH Are you serious, mother?

LADY BRITOMART Of course I am serious. It is on your account, Sarah, and also on Charles's. [Silence. Sarah sits, with a shrug. Charles looks painfully unworthy.] I hope you are not going to object, Barbara.

BARBARA I! why should I? My father has a soul to be saved like anybody else. He's quite welcome as far as I am concerned. [She sits on the table, and softly whistles 'Onward, Christian Soldiers'.]

LOMAX [still remonstrant] But really, don't you know! Oh I say!

LADY BRITOMART [frigidly] What do you wish to convey, Charles?

LOMAX Well, you must admit that this is a bit thick.

LADY BRITOMART [turning with ominous suavity to Cusins] Adolphus, you are a professor of Greek. Can you translate Charles Lomax's remarks into reputable English for us?

CUSINS [cautiously] If I may say so, Lady Brit, I think Charles has rather happily expressed what we all feel. Homer, speaking of Autolycus, uses the same phrase πικνὸν δόμον ἐλθεῖν means a bit thick.

LOMAX [handsomely] Not that I mind, you know, if Sarah don't. [He sits.]

LADY BRITOMART [crushingly] Thank you. Have I your permission, Adolphus, to invite my own husband to my own house?

CUSINS [gallantly] You have my unhesitating support in everything you do.

LADY BRITOMART Tush! Sarah, have you nothing to say?

SARAH Do you mean that he is coming regularly to live here?

LADY BRITOMART Certainly not. The spare room is ready for him if he likes to stay for a day or two and see a little more of you, but there are limits.

SARAH Well, he can't eat us, I suppose. I dont mind

LOMAX [chuckling] I wonder how the old man will take it

LADY BRITOMART Much as the old woman will, no doubt Charles

LOMAX [abashed] I didnt mean—at least—

LADY BRITOMART You didnt think, Charles You never do, and the result is, you never mean anything And now please attend to me children Your father will be quite a stranger to us

LOMAX I suppose he hasnt seen Sarah since she was a little kid

LADY BRITOMART Not since she was a little kid, Charles, as you express it with that elegance of diction and refinement of thought that seem never to desert you Accordingly —er— [impatiently] Now I have forgotten what I was going to say That comes of your provoking me to be sarcastic, Charles Adolphus will you kindly tell me where I was

CUSINS [sweetly] You were saying that as Mr Undershaft has not seen his children since they were babies, he will form his opinion of the way you have brought them up from their behavior tonight, and that therefore you wish us all to be particularly careful to conduct ourselves well especially Charles

LADY BRITOMART [with emphatic approval] Precisely

LOMAX Look here, Dolly Lady Brit didnt say that

LADY BRITOMART [vehemently] I did, Charles Adolphus's recollection is perfectly correct It is most important that you should be good, and I do beg you for once not to pair off into opposite corners and giggle and whisper while I am speaking to your father.

BARBARA All right, mother We'll do you credit [She comes off the table, and sits in her chair with ladylike elegance]

LADY BRITOMART Remember, Charles, that Sarah will want to feel proud of you instead of ashamed of you.

LOMAX. Oh I say! theres nothing to be exactly proud of, dont you know

LADY BRITOMART Well try and look as if there was

Morrison pale and dismayed, breaks into the room in unconcealed disorder

MORRISON Might I speak a word to you, my lady?

LADY BRITOMART Nonsense! Shew him up

MORRISON Yes my lady [He goes]

LOMAX Does Morrison know who it is?

LADY BRITOMART Of course Morrison has always been with us

LOMAX It must be a regular corker for him, dont you know

LADY BRITOMART. Is this a moment to get on my nerves, Charles, with your outrageous expressions?

LOMAX But this is something out of the ordinary really—

MORRISON [at the door] The—er—Mr Undershaft [He retreats in confusion]

Andrew Undershaft comes in All rise Lady Britomart meets him in the middle of the room behind the settee

Andrew is, on the surface, a stoutish easy-going elderly man, with kindly patient manners and an engaging simplicity of character But he has a watchful deliberate waiting, listening face, and formidable reserves of power, both bodily and mental, in his capacious chest and long head His gentleness is partly that of a strong man who has learnt by experience that his natural grip hurts ordinary people unless he handles them very carefully, and partly the mellowness of age and success He is also a little shy in his present very delicate situation.

LADY BRITOMART Good evening, Andrew

UNDERSHAFT How d'ye do, my dear

LADY BRITOMART You look a good deal older

UNDERSHAFT [apologetically] I am somewhat older [Taking her hand with a touch of courtship] Time has stood still with you

LADY BRITOMART [throwing away his hand] Rubbish! This is your family

UNDERSHAFT [surprised] Is it so large? I am sorry to say my memory is failing very badly in some things [He offers his hand with paternal kindness to Lomax]

LOMAX [jerily shaking his hand] Ahdedoo

UNDERSHAFT I can see you are my eldest I am very glad to meet you again, my boy

LOMAX [remonstrating] No but look here dont you know— [Overcome] Oh I say!

LADY BRITOMART [recovering from momentary speechlessness] Andrew do you mean to say that you dont remember how many children you have?

UNDERSHAFT Well, I am afraid I— They have grown so much—er. Am I making any ridiculous mistake? I may as well confess I recollect only one son But so many things have happened since, of course—er—

LADY BRITOMART [decisively] Andrew you are talking nonsense Of course you have only one son

UNDERSHAFT Perhaps you will be good enough to introduce me, my dear

LADY BRITOMART That is Charles Lomax, who is engaged to Sarah

UNDERSHAFT My dear sir, I beg your pardon

LOMAX Not at all Delighted, I assure you

LADY BRITOMART This is Stephen

UNDERSHAFT [bowing] Happy to make your acquaintance, Mr Stephen Then [going to Cusins] you must be my son [Taking Cusins' hands in his] How are you, my young friend? [To Lady Britomart] He is very like you, my love

CUSINS You flatter me, Mr Undershaft My name is Cusins engaged to Barbara [Very explicitly] That is Major Barbara Undershaft, of the Salvation Army That is Sarah, your second daughter This is Stephen Undershaft, your son

UNDERSHAFT My dear Stephen, I beg your pardon

STEPHEN Not at all

UNDERSHAFT Mr Cusins I am much indebted to you for explaining so precisely [Turning to Sarah] Barbara, my dear—

SARAH [prompting him] Sarah

UNDERSHAFT Sarah, of course [They shake hands He goes over to Barbara] Barbara—I am right this time, I hope?

BARBARA Quite right [They shake hands]

LADY BRITOMART [resuming command] Sit down, all of you Sit down, Andrew [She comes forward and sits on the settee Cusins also brings his chair forward on her left Barbara and Stephen resume their seats Lomax gives his chair to Sarah and goes for another]

UNDERSHAFT Thank you, my love

LOMAX [conversationally, as he brings a chair forward between the writing table and the settee, and offers it to Undershaft] Takes you some time to find out exactly where you are, dont it?

UNDERSHAFT [accepting the chair, but remaining standing] That is not what embarrasses me, Mr Lomax My difficulty is that if I play the part of a father, I shall produce the effect of an intrusive stranger, and if I play the part of a discreet stranger I may appear a callous father

LADY BRITOMART There is no need for you to play any part at all, Andrew You had much better be sincere and natural UNDERSHAFT [submissively] Yes, my dear I daresay that will be best [He sits down comfortably] Well, here I am Now what can I do for you all?

LADY BRITOMART You need not do anything, Andrew You are one of the family You can sit with us and enjoy yourself

A painfully conscious pause Barbara makes a face at Lomax, whose too long suppressed mirth immediately explodes in agonised neighlings

LADY BRITOMART [outraged] Charles Lomax if you can behave yourself, behave yourself If not, leave the room

LOMAX I'm awfully sorry, Lady Brit, but really you know, upon my soul! [He sits on the settee between Lady Britomart and Undershaft, quite overcome]

BARBARA Why dont you laugh if you want to, Cholly? It's good for your inside

LADY BRITOMART Barbara you have had the education of a lady Please let your father see that, and dont talk like a street girl

UNDERSHAFT Never mind me, my dear As you know, I am not a gentleman, and I was never educated

LOMAX [encouragingly] Nobody'd know it, I assure you You look all right, you know

CUSINS Let me advise you to study Greek, Mr Undershaft Greek scholars are privileged men Few of them know Greek, and none of them know anything else, but their position is unchallengeable Other languages are the qualifications of waiters and commercial travellers Greek is to a man of position what the hallmark is to silver

BARBARA Dolly dont be insincere Cholly fetch your concertina and play something for us

LOMAX [jumps up eagerly, but checks himself to remark doubtfully to Undershaft] Perhaps that sort of thing isnt in your line, eh?

UNDERSHAFT I am particularly fond of music

LOMAX [delighted] Are you? Then I'll get it [He goes upstairs for the instrument]

UNDERSHAFT Do you play, Barbara?

BARBARA Only the tambourine But Cholly's teaching me the concertina

UNDERSHAFT Is Cholly also a member of the Salvation Army?

BARBARA No he says it's bad form to be a dissenter But I dont despair of Cholly I made him come yesterday to a meeting at the dock gates, and take the collection in his hat

UNDERSHAFT [looks whimsically at his wife]"

LADY BRITOMART It is not my doing, Andrew Barbara is old enough to take her own way She has no father to advise her

BARBARA Oh yes she has There are no orphans in the Salvation Army

UNDERSHAFT Your father there has a great many children and plenty of experience, eh?

BARBARA [looking at him with quick interest and nodding] Just so How did you come to understand that? [Lomax is heard at the door trying the concertina]

LADY BRITOMART Come in, Charles Play us something at once

LOMAX Righto! [He sits down in his former place, and preludes]

UNDERSHAFT One moment, Mr Lomax I am rather interested in the Salvation Army Its motto might be my own Blood and Fire

LOMAX [shocked] But not your sort of blood and fire, you know

UNDERSHAFT My sort of blood cleanses my sort of fire purifies

BARBARA So do ours Come down tomorrow to my shelter—the West Ham shelter—and see what we're doing We're going to march to a great meeting in the Assembly Hall at Mile End Come and see the shelter and then march with us it will do you a lot of good Can you play anything?

UNDERSHAFT In my youth I earned pennies, and even shillings occasionally, in the streets and in public house parlors by my natural talent for stepdancing Later on, I became a member of the Undershaft orchestral society and performed passably on the tenor trombone

LOMAX [scandalized—putting down the concertina] Oh I say!

BARBARA Many a sinner has played himself into heaven on the trombone, thanks to the Army

LOMAX [to Barbara, still rather shocked] Yes, but what about the cannon business, dont you know? [To Undershaft] Getting into heaven is not exactly in your line, is it?

LADY BRITOMART Charles!"

LOMAX Well, but it stands to reason dont it? The cannon business may be necessary and all that we cant get on without cannons, but it isnt right, you know On the other hand there may be a certain amount of tosh about the Salvation Army—I belong to the Established Church myself—but still you cant deny that it's religion, and you cant go against religion, can you? At least unless youre downright immoral, dont you know

UNDERSHAFT, You hardly appreciate my position, Mr Lomax—

LOMAX [hastily] I'm not saying anything against you personally—

UNDERSHAFT Quite so, quite so But consider for a moment Here I am, a profiteer in mutilation and murder I find myself in a specially amiable humor just now because, this morning, down at the foundry, we blew twenty-seven dummy soldiers into fragments with a gun which formerly destroyed only thirteen LOMAX [leniently] Well, the more destructive war becomes, the sooner it will be abolished, eh?

UNDERSHAFT Not at all The more destructive war becomes the more fascinating we find it No, Mr Lomax I am obliged to you for making the usual excuse for my trade, but I am not ashamed of it I am not one of those men who keep their morals and their business in water-tight compartments All the spare money my trade rivals spend on hospitals, cathedrals, and other receptacles for conscience money, I devote to experiments and researches in improved methods of destroying life and property I have always done so, and I always shall, Therefore your Christmas card moralities of peace on earth and goodwill among men are of no use to me Your Christianity, which enjoins you to resist not evil, and to turn the other cheek, would make me a bankrupt My morality,—my religion—must have a place for cannons and torpedoes in it

STEPHEN [coldly—almost sullenly] You speak as if there were half a dozen moralities and religions to choose from, instead of one true morality and one true religion

UNDERSHAFT For me there is only one true morality, but it might not fit you, as you do not manufacture aerial battleships There is only one true morality for every man, but every man has not the same true morality

LOMAX [overtaxed] Would you mind saying that again? I didnt quite follow it

CUSINS Its quite simple As Euripides says one man's meat is another man's poison morally as well as physically

UNDERSHAFT Precisely

LOMAX Oh, that! Yes, yes, yes True True

STEPHEN In other words, some men are honest and some are scoundrels

BARBARA Bosh! There are no scoundrels
UNDERSHAFT Indeed? Are there any good men?

BARBARA No Not one There are neither good men nor scoundrels there are just children of one Father, and the sooner they stop calling one another names the better You neednt talk to me I know them Ive had scores of them through my hands scoundrels, criminals, infidels, philanthropists, missionaries, county councillors, all sorts Theyre all just the same sort of sinner, and theres the same salvation ready for them all

UNDERSHAFT May I ask have you ever saved a maker of cannons?

BARBARA No Will you let me try?

UNDERSHAFT Well, I will make a bargain with you If I go to see you tomorrow in your Salvation Shelter, will you come the day after to see me in my cannon works?

BARBARA Take care It may end in your giving up the cannons for the sake of the Salvation Army

UNDERSHAFT Are you sure it will not end in your giving up the Salvation Army for the sake of the cannons?

BARBARA I will take my chance of that

UNDERSHAFT And I will take my chance of the other [They shake hands on it] Where is your shelter?

BARBARA In West Ham At the sign of the cross Ask anybody in Canning Town Where are your works?

UNDERSHAFT In Perivale St Andrews At the sign of the sword Ask anybody in Europe

LOMAX Hadnt I better play something?

BARBARA Yes Give us Onward, Christian Soldiers

LOMAX Well, thats rather a strong order to begin with, dont you know Suppose I sing Thourts passing hence, my brother Its much the same tune

BARBARA Its too melancholy You get saved, Cholly, and youll pass hence, my brother, without making such a fuss about it

LADY BRITOMART Really, Barbara, you go on as if religion were a pleasant subject Do have some sense of propriety

UNDERSHAFT I do not find it an unpleasant subject, my dear It is the only one that capable people really care for LADY BRITOMART [looking at her watch] Well, if you are determined to have it, I insist on having it in a proper and respectable way Charles ring for prayers

General amazement Stephen rises in dismay
LOMAX [rising] Oh I say!

UNDERSHAFT [rising] I am afraid I must be going

LADY BRITOMART You cannot go now, Andrew it would be most improper Sit down What will the servants think?

UNDERSHAFT My dear I have conscientious scruples May I suggest a compromise? If Barbara will conduct a little service in the drawing room, with Mr Lomax as organist, I will attend it willingly I will even take part, if a trombone can be procured

LADY BRITOMART Dont mock, Andrew

UNDERSHAFT [shocked—to Barbara] You dont think I am mocking, my love, I hope

BARBARA No, of course not, and it wouldnt matter if you were half the Army came to their first meeting for a lark [Rising] Come along [She throws her arm round her father and sneeps him out, calling to the others from the threshold] Come, Dolly Come, Cholly

Cusins rises

LADY BRITOMART I will not be disobeyed by everybody Adolphus sit down [He does not] Charles you may go You are not fit for prayers you cannot keep your countenance

LOMAX Oh I say! [He goes out]

LADY BRITOMART [continuing] But you, Adolphus, can behave yourself if you choose to I insist on your staying

CUSINS My dear Lady Brit there are things in the family prayer book that I couldnt bear to hear you say

LADY BRITOMART What things, pray?

CUSINS Well, you would have to say before all the servants that we have done things we ought not to have done, and left undone things we ought to have done, and that there is no health in us I cannot bear to hear you doing yourself such an injustice, and Barbara such an injustice As for myself, I flatly deny it I have done my best I shouldnt dare to marry Barbara—I couldnt look you in the face—if it were true So I must go to the drawing room

LADY BRITOMART [offended] Well, go [He starts for the door] And remember this, Adolphus [he turns to listen] I have a very strong suspicion that you went to the Salvation Army to worship Barbara and nothing else And I quite appreciate the very clever way in which you systematically humbug me I have found you out Take care Barbara doesnt Thats all

CUSINS [with unruffled sweetness] Dont tell on me [He steals out]

LADY BRITOMART Sarah if you want to go, go Anything's better than to sit there as if you wished you were a thousand miles away

SARAH [languidly] Very well, mamma [She goes]

Lady Britomart, with a sudden flounce, gives way to a little gust of tears

STEPHEN [going to her] Mother whats the matter?

LADY BRITOMART [smushing away her tears with her handkerchief] Nothing Foolishness You can go with him, too, if you like, and leave me with the servants

STEPHEN Oh, you mustnt think that, mother I—I dont like him

LADY BRITOMART The others do That is the injustice of a woman's lot A woman has to bring up her children, and that means to restrain them, to deny them things they want, to set them tasks, to punish them when they do wrong, to do all the unpleasant things And then the father, who has nothing to do but pet them and spoil them, comes in when all her work is done and steals their affection from her

STEPHEN He has not stolen our affection from you It is only curiosity

LADY BRITOMART [violently] I wont be consoled, Stephen There is nothing the matter with me [She rises and goes towards the door]

STEPHEN Where are you going, mother?

LADY BRITOMART To the drawing room, of course [She goes out Onward, Christian Soldiers, on the concertina, with tambourine accompaniment, is heard when the door opens] Are you coming, Stephen?

STEPHEN No Certainly not [She goes He sits down on the settee, with compressed lips and an expression of strong dislike]

ACT II

The yard of the West Ham shelter of the Salvation Army is a cold place on a January morning The building itself, an old warehouse, is newly whitewashed Its gabled end projects into the yard in the middle, with a door on the ground floor, and another in the loft above it without any balcony or ladder, but with a pulley rigged over it for hoisting sacks Those who come from this central gable end into the yard have the gateway leading to the street on their left, with a stone horse trough just beyond it, and, on the right, a penthouse shielding a table from the neather There are forms at the table, and on them are seated a man and a woman, both much down on their luck, finishing a meal of bread (one thick slice each, with margarine and golden syrup) and diluted milk

The man, a workman out of employment, is young, agile, a talker, a poser, sharp enough to be capable of anything in reason except honesty or altruistic considerations of any kind The woman is a commonplace old bundle of poverty and hard-worn humanity She looks sixty and probably is forty-five If they were rich people, gloved and muffed and well wrapped up in furs and overcoats, they would be numbed and miserable, for it is a grindingly cold raw January day, and a glance at the background of grimy warehouses and leaden sky visible over the white-washed walls of the yard would drive any idle rich person straight to the Mediterranean But these two, being no more troubled with visions of the Mediterranean than of the moon, and being compelled to keep more of their clothes in the pannshop, and less on their persons, in winter than in summer, are not depressed by the cold rather are they stung into vivacity, to which their meal has just now given an almost jolly turn The man takes a pull at his mug, and then gets up and moves about the yard with his hands deep in his pockets, occasionally breaking into a step-dance

THE WOMAN Feel better arter your meal, sir?

THE MAN No Call that a meal! Good enough for you, praps, but wot is it to me, an intelligent workin man?

THE WOMAN Workin man! Wot are you?

THE MAN Painter

THE WOMAN [sceptically] Yus, I dessay

THE MAN Yus, you dessay! I know Every loafer that cant do nothink calls isself a panter Well, I'm a real painter grainer, finisher, thirty-eight bob a week when I can get it

THE WOMAN Then why dont you go and get it?

THE MAN I'll tell you why Fust I'm intelligent—fffff! it's rotten cold here [he dances a step or two—yes intelligent beyond the station o life into which it has pleased the capitalists to call me, and they dont like a man that sees through em Second, an intelligent bein needs a doo share of appinness, so I drink somethink cruel when I get the chavnce Third, I stand by my class and do as little as I can so's to leave arf the job for me fellow workers Fourth, I'm fly enough to know wots inside the law and wots outside it, and inside it I do as the capitalists do pinch wot I can lay me ands on In a proper state of society I am sober, industrious and honest in Rome, so to speak, I do as the Romans do Wots the consequence? When trade is bad—and it's rotten bad just now—and the employers az to sack arf their men, they generally start on me

THE WOMAN Whats your name?

THE MAN Price Bronterre O'Brien Price Usually called Snobby Price, for short

THE WOMAN Snobby's a carpenter, aint it? You said you was a painter

PRICE Not that kind of snob, but the genteel sort I'm too uppish, owing to my intelligence, and my father being a Chartist and a reading, thinking man a stationer, too I'm none of your common hewers of wood and drawers of water, and dont you forget it [He returns to his seat at the table, and takes up his mug] Wots your name?

THE WOMAN Rummy Mitchens, sir

PRICE [quaffing the remains of his milk to her] Your elth, Miss Mitchens

RUMMY [correcting him] Missis Mitchens

PRICE Wot! Oh Rummy, Rummy! Respectable married woman, Rummy, gittin rescued by the Salvation Army by pretendin to be a bad un Same old game!

RUMMY What am I to do? I cant starve Them Salvation lasses is dear good girls, but the better you are, the worse they likes to think you were before they rescued you Why shouldnt they av a bit o credit, poor loves? theyre worn to rags by their work And where would they get the money to rescue us if we was to let on we're no worse than other people? You know what ladies and gentleman are PRICE Thievin swine! Wish I ad their job, Rummy, all the same Wot does Rummy stand for? Pet name praps?

RUMMY Short for Romola

PRICE For wot?

RUMMY Romola It was out of a new book Somebody me mother wanted me to grow up like

PRICE We're companions in misfortune, Rummy Both on us got names that nobody cawnt pronounce Consequently I'm Snobby and youre Rummy because Bill and Sally wasnt good enough for our parents Such is life!

RUMMY Who saved you, Mr Price? Was it Major Barbara?

PRICE No I come here on my own I'm goin to be Bronterre O'Brien Price, the converted painter I know wot they like I'll tell em how I blasphemed and gambled and wopped my poor old mother—

RUMMY [shocked] Used you to beat your mother?

PRICE Not likely She used to beat me No matter you come and listen to the converted painter, and youll hea how she was a pious woman that taught me me prayers at er knee, an how I used to come home drunk and drag her out o bed be er snow-white airs, an lam into er with the poker

RUMMY Thats whats so unfair to us women Your confessions is just as big lies as ours you dont tell what you really done no more than us, but you men can tell your lies right out at the meetins and be made much of for it, while the sort o confessions we az to make az to be wispered to one lady at a time It aint right, spite of all their piety

PRICE Right! Do you spose the Army 'd be allowed if it went and did right? Not much It combs our air and makes us good little blokes to be robbed and put upon But I'll play the game as good as any of em I'll see somebody struck by lightning, or hear a voice sayin "Snobby Price where will you spend eternity?" I'll av a time of it, I tell you

RUMMY You wont be let drink, though

PRICE I'll take it out in gorspellin, then I dont want to drink if I can get fun enough any other way

Jenny Hill, a pale, overwrought, pretty Salvation lass of 18, comes in through the yard gate, leading Peter Shirley, a half hardened, half worn-out elderly man, neak nuth hunger

JENNY [supporting him] Come! pluck up I'll get you something to eat Youll be all right then

PRICE [rising and hurrying officiously to take the old man off Jenny's hands] Poor old man! Cheer up, brother youll find rest and ppeace and appiness ere Hurry up with the food, miss e's fair done [Jenny hurries into the shelter] Ere, buck up, daddy! she's fetchin y'a thick slice o breadn treacle, an a mug o shyblue [He seats him at the corner of the table]

RUMMY [gaily] Keep up your old art! Never say die!

SHIRLEY I'm not an old man. I'm only 46 I'm as good as ever I was The grey patch come in my hair before I was thirty All it wants is three pennorth o hair dye am I to be turned on the streets to starve for it? Holy God! I've worked ten to twelve hours a day since I was thirteen, and paid my way all through, and now am I to be thrown into the gutter and my job given to a young man that can do it no better than me because I've black hair that goes white at the first change?

PRICE [cheerfully] No good jawrin about it You're only a jumped-up, jerked-off orspittle-turned-out incurable of an ole workin man who cares about you? Eh? Make the thievin swine give you a meal they've stole many a one from you Get a bit o your own back [Jenny returns with the usual meal] There you are, brother Awsk a blessin an tuck that into you

SHIRLEY [looking at it ravenously but not touching it, and crying like a child] I never took anything before.

JENNY [petting him] Come, come! the Lord sends it to you he wasnt above taking bread from his friends, and why should you be? Besides, when we find you a job you can pay us for it if you like.

SHIRLEY [eagerly] Yes, yes thats true I can pay you back. it's only a loan [Shivering] Oh Lord! oh Lord! [He turns to the table and attacks the meal ravenously]

JENNY Well, Rummy, are you more comfortable now?

RUMMY God bless you, lovey! you've fed my body and saved my soul. havnt you? [Jenny, touched, kisses her] Sit down and rest a bit you must be ready to drop

JENNY. I've been going hard since morning But theres more work than we can do I mustnt stop

RUMMY Try a prayer for just two minutes You'll work all the better after JENNY [her eyes lighting up] Oh isnt it wonderful how a few minutes prayer revives you! I was quite lightheaded at twelve o'clock, I was so tired but Major Barbara just sent me to pray for five minutes, and I was able to go as if I had only just begun [To Price] Did you have a piece of bread?

PRICE [with unction] Yes, miss, but I've got the piece that I value more. and thats the peace that passeth hall hannerstennin

RUMMY [ferently] Glory Hallelujah!

Bill Wal'er a rough customer of about 25, appears at the yard gate and looks malevolently at Jenny

JENNY That makes me so happy When you say that, I feel wicked for loitering here I must get to work again

She is hurrying to the shelter, when the newcomer moves quickly up to the door and intercepts her His manner is so threatening that she retreats as he comes at her truculently, driving her down the yard

BILL Aw knaow you You're the one that took way mav' gurl You're the one that set er agen me Well, I'm gowin to ev'er aht Not that Aw care a carse for er or you see? Bat Aw'll let er knaow, and Aw'll let you knaow. Aw'm gowing to give her a dom that'll teach er to cat awy from me Nah in wiv' you and tell er to cam aht afore Aw cam in and kick er aht Tell er Bill Walker wants er She'll knaow wot thet means, and if she keeps me witin it'll be worse You stop to jawr beck at me, and Aw'll stawt on you d'ye eah? Theres your wy. In you gov' [He takes her by the arm and slings her towards the door of the shelter She falls on her hand and knee Rummy helps her up again]

PRICE [rising, and venturing irresolutely towards Bill] Easy there, mate She aint dom you no arm.

BILL Oo are you callin mite? [Standing over him threateningly] You're gowin to stend ap for er, aw yer? Put ap your ends

RUMMY [running indignantly to him to scold him] Oh, you great brute— [He instantly swings his left hand back against her face She screams and reels back to the trough, where she sits down covering her bruised face with her hands and rocking herself and moaning with pain]

JENNY [going to her] Oh, God forgive you! How could you strike an old woman like that?

BILL [seizing her by the hair so violently that she also screams, and tearing her away from the old woman] You Gawd forgimme again an Aw'll Gawd forgive you one on the jawr thet'll stop you pryin for a week [Holding her and turring fiercely on Price] Ev' you enny-thing to sy agen it?

PRICE [intimidated] No, matey she aint anything to do with me

BILL Good job for you! Aw'd pat two meals into you and fawt you with one finger arter, you stawved cur [To Jenny] Nah are you gowin to fetch aht Mog Ebbjem, or em Aw to knock your fice off you and fetch her me-self?

JENNY [writhing in his grasp] Oh please someone go in and tell Major Barbara—[she screams again as he wrenches her head down, and Price and Rummy flee into the shelter]

BILL You want to gow in and tell you Major of me, do you?

JENNY Oh please dont drag my hair Let me go

BILL Do you or dont you? [She stifles a scream] Yus or nao?

JENNY God give me strength—

BILL [striking her with his fist in the face] Gow an shaw her thet, and tell her if she wants one lawk it to cam and interfere with me [Jenny, crying with pain, goes into the shed He goes to the form and addresses the old man] Eah finish your mess, an git aht o maw wy

SHIRLEY [springing up and facing him fiercely, with the mug in his hand] You take a liberty with me, and I'll smash you over the face with the mug and cut your eye out Aint you satisfied—young whelps like you—with taken the bread out o the mouths of your elders that have brought you up and slaved for you, but you must come shovin and cheekin and bullyin in here, where the bread o charity is sickening in our stummicks?

BILL [contemptuously, but backing a little] Wot good are you, you aold palsy mag? Wot good are you?

SHIRLEY As good as you and better I'll do a day's work agen you or any fat young soaker of your age Go and take my job at Horrockses, where I worked for ten year They want young men there they cant afford to keep men over forty-five Theyre very sorry—give you a character and happy to help you to get anything suited to your years—sure a steady man wont be long out of a job Well, let em try you They'll find the differ What do you know? Not as much as how to beeyave yourself—layin your dirty fist across the mouth of a respectable woman!

BILL Downt provok me to ly it acrost yours d'ye eah?

SHIRLEY [with blighting contempt] Yes you like an old man to hit, dont you, when youve finished with the women I ant seen you hit a young one yet

BILL [stung] You loy, you aold soup-kitchener, you There was a yang menn cah Did Aw offer to itt him or did Aw not?

SHIRLEY Was he starvin or was he not? Was he a man or only a crosseyed thief in a loafer? Would you hit my son-in-law's brother?

BILL Oo's ee?

SHIRLEY Todger Fairmile o Balls Pond Him that won £20 off the Japanese wrestler at the music hall by standin out 17 minutes 1 seconds agen him

BILL [sullenly] Aw'm nao music awl wrestler Ken he box?

SHIRLEY Yes an you cant

BILL Wot! Aw cawnt, cawnt Aw? Wots thet you sy [threatening him]?

SHIRLEY [not budging an inch] Will you box Todger Fairmile if I put him on to you? Say the word

BILL [subsiding with a slouch] Aw'll stend ap to enny menn alawv, if he was ten Todger Fairmawls But Aw dont set ap to be a perfeshnal

SHIRLEY [looking down on him with unfathomable disdain] You box! Slap an old woman with the back o your hand! You hadnt even the sense to hit her where a magistrate couldnt see the mark of it, you silly young lump of conceit and ignorance Hit a girl in the jaw and ony make her cry! If Todger Fairmile'd done it, she wouldnt a got up inside o ten minutes, no more than you would if he got on to you Yah! I'd set about you myself if I had a week's feedin in me instead o two months' starvation [He turns his back on him and sits down moodily at the table]

BILL [following him and stooping over him to drive the taunt in] You loy! youve the bread and treacle in you that you cam eah to beg

SHIRLEY [bursting into tears] Oh God! it's true I'm only an old pauper on the scrap heap [Furiously] But youll come to it yourself, and then youll know Youll come to it sooner than a teetotaller like me, fillin yourself with gin at this hour o the mornin!

BILL Aw'm nao gin drinker, you oald lawr, but wen Aw want to give my girl a bloomin good awdin Aw lawk to ev a bit o devil in me see? An cah Aw emm, talkin to a rotten aold blawter like you sted o givin her wot for [Working himself into a rage] Aw'm gowin in there to fetch her aht [He makes vengefully for the shelter door]

SHIRLEY Youre goin to the station on a stretcher, more likely, and theyll take the gin and the devil out of you there when they get you inside You mind what youre about the majo here is the Earl o Stevenage's granddaughter

BILL [checked] Garn'

SHIRLEY You'll see

BILL [his resolution oozing] Well, Aw aint dan nathin to ei

SHIRLEY Spose she said you did' who'd beheve you?

BILL [very uneasy, skulking back to the corner of the penthouse] Gavd' theres no jastice in this cantry To think wot them people can do! Aw'm as good as er

SHIRLEY Tell her so It's just what a fool like you would do

Barbara, brisk and businesslike, comes from the shelter with a note book, and addresses herself to Shirley Bill, cowed, sits down in the corner on a form, and turns his back on them

BARBARA Good morning

SHIRLEY [standing up and taking off his hat] Good morning, miss

BARBARA Sit down make yourself at home [He hesitates, but she puts a friendly hand on his shoulder and makes him obey] Now then! since youve made friends with us, we want to know all about you Names and addresses and trades

SHIRLEY Peter Shirley Fitter Chucked out two months ago because I was too old

BARBARA [not at all surprised] Youd pass still Why didnt you dye your hair?

SHIRLEY I did Me age come out at a coroner's inquest on me daughter

BARBARA Steady?

SHIRLEY Teetotaller Never out of a job before Good worker And sent to the knackers like an old horse!

BARBARA No matter if you did youi part God will do his

SHIRLEY [suddenly stubborn] My religion's no concern of anybody but myself

BARBARA [guessing] I know Secularist?

SHIRLEY [hotly] Did I offer to deny it?

BARBARA Why should you? My own father's a Secularist, I think Our Father—yours and mine—fulfils himself in many ways, and I daresay he knew what he was about when he made a Secularist of you So buck up, Peter! we can always find a job for a steady man like you [Shirley, disarmed and a little bewildered, touches his hat She turns from him to Bill] Whats your name?

BILL [insolently] Wots thet to you?

BARBARA [calmly making a note] Afraid to give his name Any trade?

BILL Oo's afride to give is nime? [Doggedly, with a sense of heroically defying the House of Lords in the person of Lord Stevenage] If you want to bring a chawge agen me, bring it [She waits unruffled] Moy nime's Bill Walker

BARBARA [as if the name were familiar trying to remember how] Bill Walker? [Recollecting] Oh, I know youre the man that Jenny Hill was praying for inside just now [She enters his name in her note book]

BILL Oo's Jenny Ill? And wot call as she to pry for me?

BARBARA I dont know Perhaps it was you that eut her lip

BILL [defiantly] Yus, it was me that cat her lip Aw aint afride o you

BARBARA How could you be, since youre not afraid of God? Youre a brave man, Mr Walker It takes some pluck to do our work here but none of us daie lift our hand against a girl like that, for fear of her Father in heaven

BILL [sullenly] I want nan o your kentin jawr I spowse you think Aw cam eah to beg from you, like this demmaged lot eah Not me Aw downt want your bread and sripe and ketlep Aw dont blieve in your Gawd, no more than you do yourself

BARBARA [sunnily apologetic and ladylike, as on a new footing with him] Oh, I beg your pardon for putting your name down, Mr Walker I didnt understand I'll strike it out

BILL [taking this as a slight, and deeply wounded by it] Eah! you let maw nime aown Aint it good enaff to be in your book?

BARBARA [considering] Well, you see, theres no use putting down your name unless I can do something for you, is there? Whats your trade?

BILL [still smarting] Thets nao concern o yours

BARBARA Just so [Very businesslike] I'll put you down as [writing] the man who—struck—poor hittle Jenny Hill—in the mouth

BILL [rising threateningly] See eah Awve ed enaff o this

BARBARA [quite sunny and fearless] What did you come to us for?

BILL Aw cam for maw gel, see? Aw cam to tike her aht o this and to brike er jawr for ei

BARBARA [complacently] You see I was right about your trade [Bill, on the point of retorting furiously, finds himself, to his great shame and terror, in danger of crying instead He sits down again suddenly] Whats her name?

BILL [dogged] Er nime's Mog Ebbijem thets wot er nime is

BARBARA Mog Habbjam! Oh, she's gone to Canning Town, to our barracks there

BILL [fortified by his resentment of Mog's perfidy] Is she? [Indictively] Then Aw'm gowin to Kennintahn arter her [He crosses to the gate, hesitates, finally comes back at Barbara] Are you loyin to me to git shat o me?

BARBARA I dont want to get shut of you I want to keep you here and save your soul Youd better stay youre going to have a bad time today, Bill

BILL Oo's gowin to give it to me? You, preps?

BARBARA Someone you dont believe in But youll be glad afterwards

BILL [slinking off] Aw'll gow to Kennintahn to be aht o reach o your tanguie [Suddenly turning on her with intense malice] And if Aw downt fawnd Mog there, Aw'll cam beck and do two years for you, selp me Gawd if Aw downt!

BARBARA [a shade kinder, if possible] It's no use, Bill She's got another bloke

BILL Wot!

BARBARA One of her own converts He fell in love with her when he saw her with her soul saved, and her face clean, and her hair washed

BILL [surprised] Wottud she wash it for, the caroty slat? It's red

BARBARA It's quite lovely now, because she wears a new look in her eyes with it It's a pity youre too late The new bloke has put your nose out of joint, Bill

BILL Aw'll put his nowse aht o joint for him Not that Aw care a carse for er, mawnd thet But Aw'll teach her to drop me as if Aw was dirt And Aw'll teach him to meddle with maw judy Wots iz bleedin nime?

BARBARA Sergeant Todger Fairmile

SHIRLEY [rising with grim joy] I'll go with him, miss I want to see them two meet I'll take him to the infirmary when it's over BILL [to Shirley, with undissembled misgiving] Is thet im you was spealun on?

SHIRLEY Thats him

BILL Im that wrastled in the music awl?

SHIRLEY The competitions at the National Sportin Club was worth nigh a hundred a year to him He's gev em up now for religion, so he's a bit fresh for want of the exercise he was accustomed to He'll be glad to see you Come along

BILL Wots is wight?

SHIRLEY Thirteen four [Bill's last hope

expires]

BARBARA Go and talk to him, Bill He'll convert you

SHIRLEY He'll convert your head into a mashed potato

BILL [sullenly] Aw aint afride of im Aw aint afride of ennybody Bat e can lick me She's dan me [He sits down moodily on the edge of the horse trough]

SHIRLEY You aint goin I thought not [He resumes his seat]

BARBARA [calling] Jenny!

JENNY [appearing at the shelter door with a plaster on the corner of her mouth] Yes, Major

BARBARA Send Rummy Mitchens out to clear away here

JENNY I think she's afraid

BARBARA [her resemblance to her mother flashing out for a moment] Nonsense! she must do as she's told

JENNY [calling into the shelter] Rummy the Major srys you must come

Jenny comes to Barbara, purposely keeping on the side next Bill, lest he should suppose that she shrank from him or bore malice

BARBARA Poor little Jenny! Are you tired? [Looking at the wounded cheek] Does it hurt?

JENNY No it's all right now It was nothing

BARBARA [critically] It was as hard as he could hit, I expect Poor Bill! You dont feel angry with him, do you?

JENNY Oh no, no, no indeed I dont, Major, bless his poor heart! [Barbara kisses her, and she runs away merrily into the shelter Bill writhes with an agonizing return of his new and alarming symptoms, but says nothing Rummy Mitchens comes from the shelter]

BARBARA [going to meet Rummy] Now, Rummy, bustle Take in those mugs and plates to be washed, and throw the crumbs about for the birds

Rummy takes the three plates and mugs, but Shirley takes back his mug from her, as there is still some milk left in it

RUMMY There aint any crumbs This aint a time to waste good bread on birds

PRICE [appearing at the shelter door] Gentleman come to see the shelter, Major Says he's your father

BARBARA All right Coming [Snobby goes back into the shelter, followed by Barbara]

RUMMY [stealing across to Bill and addressing him in a subdued voice, but with intense conviction] I'd av the lor of you, you flat cared pignosed potwalloper, if she'd let me Youre

no gentleman to hit a lady in the face [Bill, with greater things moving in him, takes no notice]

SHIRLEY [following her] Here! in with you and dont get yourself into more trouble by talking

RUMMY [with hauteur] I aint ad the pleasure o being hintroducted to you, as I can remember [She goes into the shelter with the plates]

SHIRLEY Thats the—

BILL [savagely] Downt you talk to me, d'ye eah? You lea me alown, or Aw'll do you a mischief Aw'm not dirt under your feet, ennywy

SHIRLEY [calmly] Dont you be afeerd You aint such prime company that you need expect to be sought after [He is about to go into the shelter when Barbara comes out, with Undershaft on her right]

BARBARA Oh there you are. Mr Shirley! [Between them] This is my father I told you he was a Secularist, didnt I? Perhaps youll be able to comfort one another

UNDERSHAFT [startled] A Secularist! Not the least in the world on the contrary, a confirmed mystic

BARBARA Sorry, I'm sure By the way, papa, what is your religion? in case I have to introduce you again

UNDERSHAFT My religion? Well, my dear, I am a Millionaire That is my religion

BARBARA Then I'm afraid you and Mr Shirley wont be able to comfort one another after all Youre not a Millionaire, are you Peter?

SHIRLEY No and proud of it

UNDERSHAFT [gravely] Poverty, my friend, is not a thing to be proud of SHIRLEY [angrily] Who made your millions for you? Me and my like Whats kep us poor? Keepin you rich I wouldnt have your conscience, not for all your income

UNDERSHAFT I wouldnt have your income not for all your conscience, Mr Shirley [He goes to the penthouse and sits down on a form]

BARBARA [stopping Shirley adroitly as he is about to retort] You wouldnt think he was my father, would you Peter? Will you go into the shelter and lend the lasses a hand for a while we're worked off our feet

SHIRLEY [bitterly] Yes I'm in their debt for a meal, aint I?

BARBARA Oh not because youre in their debt but for love of them, Peter, for love of them [He cannot understand, and is rather scandalized] There! dont stare at me In with you and give that conscience of yours a holiday [bustling him into the shelter]

SHIRLEY [as he goes in] Ah! it's a pity you never was trained to use your reason miss Youd have been a very taking lecturer on Secularism

Barbara turns to her father

UNDERSHAFT Never mind me, my dear Go about your work; and let me watch it for a while

BARBARA All right

UNDERSHAFT For instance whats the matter with that out-patient over there?

BARBARA [looking at Bill, whose attitude has never changed and whose expression of brooding wrath has deepened] Oh we shall cure him in no time Just watch [She goes over to Bill and waits He glances up at her and casts his eyes down again uneasy, but grimmer than ever] It would be nice to just stamp on Mog Habbyjam's face, wouldnt it, Bill?

BILL [starting up from the trough in consternation] It's a loy Aw never said so [She shakes her head] Oo taold you wot was in moy mawnd?

BARBARA Only your new friend

BILL Wot new friend?

BARBARA The devil, Bill When he gets round people they get miserable, just like you

BILL [with a heartbreaking attempt at devil-may-care cheerfulness] Aw aint miserable [He sits down again, and stretches his legs in an attempt to seem indifferent]

BARBARA Well, if youre happy, why dont you look happy as we do?

BILL [his legs curling back in spite of him] Aw'm eppy enaff, Aw tell you Woy cawnt you lea me alown? Wot ev I dan to you? Aw aint smashed your fice, ev Aw!

BARBARA [softly stroking his soul] It's not me thats getting at you, Bill

BILL Oo else is it?

BARBARA Somebody that doesnt intend you to smash women's faces, I suppose Somebody or something that wants to make a man of you

BILL [blustering] Mike a menn o me! Aint Aw a menn? eh? Oo sez Aw'm not a menn?

BARBARA Theres a man in you somewhere, I suppose But why did he let you hit poor little Jenny Hill? That wasnt very manly of him, was it?

BILL [tormented] Ev dan wiv it, Aw tell you

Chack it Aw'm sick o your Jenny Ill and er silly little fice

BARBARA Then why do you keep thinking about it? Why does it keep coming up against you in your mind? Youre not getting converted, are you?

BILL [with conviction] Not ME Not lawkly

BARBARA Thats right, Bill Hold out against it Put out your strength Dont lets get you cheap Todger Fairmile said he wrestled for three nights against his salvation harder than he ever wrestled with the Jap at the musie hall He gave in to the Jap when his arm was going to break But he didnt give in to his salvation until his heart was going to break Perhaps youll escape that You havnt any heart, have you?

BILL Wot d'ye mean? Woy aint Aw got a awt the sime as ennybody else?

BARBARA A man with a heart wouldnt have bashed poor little Jenny's face, would he?

BILL [almost crying] Ow, will you lea me alown? Ev Aw ever offered to meddle with you, that you cam neggin and provowkin me lawk this? [He writhes convulsively from his eyes to his toes]

BARBARA [with a steady soothing hand on his arm and a gentle voice that never lets him go] It's your soul thats hurting you, Bill, and not me Weve been through it all ourselves Come with us, Bill [He looks wildly round] To brave manhood on earth and eternal glory in heaven [He is on the point of breaking down] Come [A drum is heard in the shelter, and Bill, with a gasp, escapes from the spell as Barbara turns quickly Adolphus enters from the shelter with a big drum] Oh! there you are, Dolly Let me introduce a new friend of mine, Mr Bill Walker This is my bloke, Bill Mr Cusins [Cusins salutes with his drumstick]

BILL Gowin to merry im?

BARBARA Yes

BILL [fervently] Gawd elp im! Gaw-aw-aw-awd elp im!

BARBARA Why? Do you think he wont be happy with me?

BILL Awve aony ed to stend it for a mawmin c'll ev to stend it for a lawftawm

CUSINS That is a frightful reflection, Mr Walker But I cant tear myself away from her

BILL Well, Aw ken [To Barbara] Eah! do you knaow where Aw'm gowin to, and wot Aw'm gowin to do?

BARBARA Yes youre going to heaven, and youre coming back here before the week's out to tell me so

BILL You loy Aw'm gowin to Kennintahn, to spit in Todger Fairmaw's eye Aw beshed Jenny Ill's fice, an nar Aw'll git me aown fice beshed and cam beek and shaow it to er Ee'll itt me ardern Aw itt er Thatll mike us square [To Adolphus] Is thet fair or is it not? Youre a genlmm you oughte! knaow

BARBARA Two black eyes wont make one white one, Bill

BILL Aw didnt awst you Cawnt you never keep your mahth shat? Oy awst the genlmm

CUSINS [reflectively] Yes I think youre right, Mr Walker Yes I should do it It's curious its exactly what an ancient Greek would have done

BARBARA But what good will it do?

CUSINS Well, it will give Mr Fairmile some exercise, and it will satisfy Mr Walker's soul

BILL Rot! there aint nao sach a thung as a saoul Ah kn you tell wevver Awve a saoul or not? You never seen it

BARBARA Ive seen it hurting you when you went against it

BILL [with compressed aggravation] If you was maw gel and took the word aht o me mahth lawk thet, Aw'd give you sathink youd feel urtin, Aw would [To Adolphus] You tike maw tip, mite Stop er jawr, or youll doy afoah your tawm [With intense expression] Wore aht thets wot youll be wore aht [He goes away through the gate]

CUSINS [looking after him] I wonder!

BARBARA Dolly! [indignant, in her mother's manner]

CUSINS Yes, my dear, it's very wearing to be in love with you If it lasts, I quite think I shall die young

BARBARA Should you mind?

CUSINS Not at all [He is suddenly softened, and kisses her over the drum, evidently not for the first time, as people cannot kiss over a big drum without practice Undershaft coughs]

BARBARA It's all right, papa, weve not forgotten you Dolly explain the place to papa I havnt time [She goes busily into the shelter]

Undershaft and Adolphus now have the yard to themselves Undershaft, seated on a form, and still keenly attentive, looks hard at Adolphus Adolphus looks hard at him

UNDERSHAFT I fancy you guess something of what is in my mind, Mr Cusins [Cusins] flourishes his drumsticks as if in the act of beating a lively rataplan, but makes no sound] Exactly so But suppose Barbara finds you out!

CUSINS You know, I do not admit that I am imposing on Barbara I am quite genuinely interested in the views of the Salvation Army The fact is, I am a sort of collector of religions, and the curious thing is that I find I can believe them all By the way, have you any religion?

UNDERSHAFT Yes

CUSINS Anything out of the common?

UNDERSHAFT Only that there are two things necessary to Salvation

CUSINS [disappointed, but polite] Ah, the Church Catechism Charles Lomax also belongs to the Established Church

UNDERSHAFT The two things are—

CUSINS Baptism and—

UNDERSHAFT No Money and gunpowder

CUSINS [surprised, but interested] That is the general opinion of our governing classes The novelty is in hearing any man confess it

UNDERSHAFT Just so

CUSINS Excuse me is there any place in your religion for honor, justice, truth, love, mercy and so forth?

UNDERSHAFT Yes they are the graces and luxuries of a rich strong, and safe life

CUSINS Suppose one is forced to choose between them and money or gunpowder?

UNDERSHAFT Choose money and gunpowder, for without enough of both you cannot afford the others

CUSINS That is your religion?

UNDERSHAFT Yes

The cadence of this reply makes a full close in the conversation Cusins twists his face dubiously and contemplates Undershaft Undershaft contemplates him CUSINS Barbara wont stand that You will have to choose between your religion and Barbara.

UNDERSHAFT So will you, my friend She will find out that that drum of yours is hollow

CUSINS Father Undershaft you are mistaken I am a sincere Salvationist You do not understand the Salvation Army It is the army of joy, of love, of courage it has banished the fear and remorse and despair of the old hell-ridden evangelical sects it marches to fight the devil with trumpet and drum with music and dancing with banner and palm, as becomes a sally from heaven by its happy garrison It picks the waster out of the public house and makes a man of him it finds a worm wriggling in a back kitchen and lo! a woman! Men and women of rank too, sons and daughters of the Highest It takes the poor professor of Greek, the most artificial and self-suppressed of human creatures, from his meal of roots, and lets loose the rhapsodist in him, reveals the true worship of Dionysos to him, sends him down the public street drumming dithyrambs [he plays a thundering flourish on the drum]

UNDERSHAFT You will alarm the shelter

CUSINS Oh, they are accustomed to these sudden ecstasies However, if the drum worries you—[he pockets the drumsticks, unhooks the drum, and stands it on the ground opposite the gateway]

UNDERSHAFT Thank you

CUSINS You remember what Euripides says about your money and gunpowder?

UNDERSHAFT No

CUSINS [declaiming]

One and another

In money and guns may outpass his brother,
And men in their millions float and flow
And seethe with a million hopes as leaven,
And they win their will, or they miss their will,
And their hopes are dead or are pined for still,

But whoe'er can know

As the long days go

That to live is happy, has found his heaven

My translation what do you think of it?

UNDERSHAFT I think, my friend that if you wish to know, as the long days go, that to live is happy, you must first acquire money enough for a decent life, and power enough to be your own master

CUSINS You are damnably discouraging [He resumes his declamation]

Is it so hard a thing to see

That the spirit of God—whate'er it be—
The Law that abides and changes not, ages long,

The Eternal and Nature-born these things be strong?

What else is Wisdom? What of Man's endeavor

Or God's high grace so lovely and so great?
To stand from fear set free? to breathe and wait?

To hold a hand uplifted over Fate?

And shall not Barbara be loved for ever?

UNDERSHAFT Euripides mentions Barbara, does he?

CUSINS It is a fair translation The word means Loveliness

UNDERSHAFT May I ask—as Barbara's father—how much a year she is to be loved for ever on?

CUSINS As Barbara's father, that is more your affair than mine I can feed her by teaching Greek that is about all UNDERSHAFT Do you consider it a good match for her?

CUSINS [with polite obstinacy] Mr Undershaft I am in many ways a weak, timid, ineffectual person, and my health is far from satisfactory But whenever I feel that I must have anything, I get it, sooner or later I feel that way about Barbara I don't like marriage I feel intensely afraid of it, and I don't know what I shall do with Barbara or what she will do with me But I feel that I and nobody else must marry her Please regard that as settled—Not that I wish to be arbitrary, but why should I waste your time in discussing what is inevitable?

UNDERSHAFT You mean that you will stick at nothing not even the conversion of the Salvation Army to the worship of Dionysos

CUSINS The business of the Salvation Army is to save, not to wrangle about the name of the pathfinder Dionysos or another what does it matter?

UNDERSHAFT [rising and approaching him] Professor Cusins you are a young man after my own heart

CUSINS Mr Undershaft you are, as far as I am able to gather, a most infernal old rascal, but you appeal very strongly to my sense of ironic humor

Undershaft mutely offers his hand They shake UNDERSHAFT [suddenly concentrating himself] And now to business

CUSINS Pardon me We were discussing religion Why go back to such an uninteresting and unimportant subject as business?

UNDERSHAFT Religion is our business at present, because it is through religion alone that we can win Barbara CUSINS Have you, too, fallen in love with Barbara?

UNDERSHAFT Yes, with a father's love

CUSINS A father's love for a grown-up daughter is the most dangerous of all infatuations I apologize for mentioning my own pale, coy, mistrustful fancy in the same breath with it

UNDERSHAFT Keep to the point We have to win her, and we are neither of us Methodists

CUSINS That doesn't matter The power Barbara wields here—the power that wields Barbara herself—is not Calvinism, not Presbyterianism, not Methodism—

UNDERSHAFT Not Greek Paganism either eh?

CUSINS I admit that Barbara is quite original in her religion

UNDERSHAFT [triumphantly] Aha! Barbara Undershaft would be Her inspiration comes from within herself

CUSINS How do you suppose it got there?

UNDERSHAFT [in towering excitement] It is the Undershaft inheritance I shall hand on my torch to my daughter She shall make my converts and preach my gospel—

CUSINS What! Money and gunpowder!

UNDERSHAFT Yes, money and gunpowder Freedom and power Command of life and command of death

CUSINS [urbanely] trying to bring him down to earth] This is extremely interesting, Mr Undershaft Of course you know that you are mad

UNDERSHAFT [with redoubled force] And you?

CUSINS Oh, mad as a hatter You are welcome to my secret since I have discovered yours But I am astonished Can a madman make cannons?

UNDERSHAFT Would anyone else than a madman make them? And now [with surging energy] question for question Can a sane man translate Euripides?

CUSINS No

UNDERSHAFT [seizing him by the shoulder] Can a sane woman make a man of a waster or a woman of a worm?

CUSINS [reeling before the storm] Father Colossus—Mammoth Millionaire—

UNDERSHAFT [pressing him] Are there two mad people or three in this Salvation shelter today?

CUSINS You mean Barbara is as mad as we are?

UNDERSHAFT [pushing him lightly off and resuming his equanimity suddenly and completely] Pooh, Professor! let us call things by their proper names I am a millionaire, you are a poet, Barbara is a savior of souls What have we three to do with the common mob of slaves and idolaters? [He sits down again] with a shrug of contempt for the mob]

CUSINS Take care! Barbara is in love with the common people So am I Have you never felt the romance of that love?

UNDERSHAFT [cold and sardonic] Have you ever been in love with Poverty, like St Francis? Have you ever been in love with Dirt, like St Simeon? Have you ever been in love with disease and suffering, like our nurses and philanthropists? Such passions are not virtues, but the most unnatural of all the vices This love of the common people may please an earl's granddaughter and a university professor, but I have been a common man and a poor man, and it has no romance for me Leave it to the poor to pretend that poverty is a blessing leave it to the coward to make a religion of his cowardice by preaching humility we know better than that We three must stand together above the common people how else can we help their children to climb up beside us? Barbara must belong to us, not to the Salvation Army

CUSINS Well I can only say that if you think you will get her away from the Salvation Army by talking to her as you have been talking to me, you don't know Barbara

UNDERSHAFT My friend I never ask for what I can buy

CUSINS [in a white fury] Do I understand you to imply that you can buy Barbara?

UNDERSHAFT No but I can buy the Salvation Army

CUSINS Quite impossible

UNDERSHAFT You shall see All religious organizations exist by selling themselves to the rich

CUSINS Not the Army That is the Church of the poor

UNDERSHAFT All the more reason for buying it

CUSINS I don't think you quite know what the Army does for the poor

UNDERSHAFT Oh yes I do It draws their teeth that is enough for me as a man of business

CUSINS Nonsense! It makes them sober—

UNDERSHAFT I prefer sober workmen The profits are larger

CUSINS—honest—

UNDERSHAFT Honest workmen are the most economical

CUSINS—attached to their homes—

UNDERSHAFT So much the better they will put up with anything sooner than change their shop

CUSINS—happy—

UNDERSHAFT An invaluable 'safeguard' against revolution

CUSINS—unselfish—

UNDERSHAFT Indifferent to their own interests, which suits me exactly

CUSINS—with their thoughts on heavenly things—

UNDERSHAFT [rising] And not on Trade Unionism nor Socialism Excellent

CUSINS [revolted] You really are an infernal old rascal

UNDERSHAFT [indicating Peter Shirley, who has just come from the shelter and strolled dejectedly down the yard between them] And this is an honest man!

SHIRLEY Yes, and what av I got by it? [he passes on bitterly and sits on the form, in the corner of the penthouse]

Snobby Price beaming sanctimoniously, and Jenny Hill, with a tambourine full of coppers, come from the shelter and go to the drum, on which Jenny begins to count the money

UNDERSHAFT [replying to Shirley] Oh, your employers must have got a good deal by it from first to last [He sits on the table, with one foot on the side form Cusins, overwhelmed, sits down on the same form nearer the shelter Barbara comes from the shelter to the middle of the yard She is excited and a little overwrought]

BARBARA We've just had a splendid experience meeting at the other gate in Cripps's lane I've hardly ever seen them so much moved as they were by your confession, Mr Price

PRICE I could almost be glad of my past wickedness if I could believe that it would help to keep hatters straight

BARBARA So it will, Snobby How much, Jenny?

JENNY Four and tenpence, Major

BARBARA Oh Snobby, if you had given your poor mother just one more kick, we should have got the whole five shillings!

PRICE If she heard you say that, miss, she'd be sorry I didn't But I'm glad. Oh what a joy it will be to her when she hears I'm saved!

UNDERSHAFT Shall I contribute the odd twopence, Barbara? The millionaire's mite, eh? [He takes a couple of pennies from his pocket]

BARBARA How did you make that twopence?

UNDERSHAFT As usual, By selling cannons, torpedoes, submarines, and my new patent

Grand Duke hand grenade

BARBARA Put it back in your pocket You cant buy your salvation here for twopence you must work it out

UNDERSHAFT Is twopence not enough? I can afford a little more, if you press me

BARBARA Two million millions would not be enough There is bad blood on your hands, and nothing but good blood can cleanse them Money is no use Take it away [She turns to Cusins] Dolly you must write another letter for me to the papers [He makes a wry face] Yes I know you dont like it, but it must be done The starvation this winter is beating us everybody is unemployed The General says we must close this shelter if we cant get more money I force the collections at the meetings until I am ashamed dont I, Snobby?

PRICE It's a fair treat to see you work it, miss The way you got them up from three-and-six to four-and-ten with that hymn, penny by penny and verse by verse, was a caution Not a Cheap Jack on Mile End Waste could touch you at it

BARBARA Yes, but I wish we could do without it I am getting at last to think more of the collection than of the people's souls And what are those hatfuls of pence and half-pence? We want thousands' tens of thousands' hundreds of thousands' I want to convert people, not to be always begging for the Army in a way I'd die sooner than beg for myself

UNDERSHAFT [in profound irony] Genuine unselfishness is capable of anything, my dear

BARBARA [unsuspectingly, as she turns away to take the money from the drum and put it in a cash bag she carries] Yes, isnt it? [Undershaft looks sardonically at Cusins]

CUSINS [aside to Undershaft] Mephistopheles' Machiavelli!

BARBARA [tears coming into her eyes as she ties the bag and pockets it] How are we to feed them? I cant talk religion to a man with bodily hunger in his eyes [Almost breaking down] It's frightful

JENNY [running to her] Major, dear—

BARBARA [rebounding] No dont comfort me It will be all right We shall get the money

UNDERSHAFT How?

JENNY By praying for it, of course Mrs Baines says she prayed for it last night, and she has never prayed for it in vain never once [She goes to the gate and looks out into the street]

BARBARA [who has dried her eyes and regained her composure] By the way, dad, Mrs Baines has come to march with us to our big meeting this afternoon, and she is very anxious to meet you, for some reason or other Perhaps she'll convert you

UNDERSHAFT I shall be delighted, my dear JENNY [at the gate excitedly] Major! Major! heres that man back again

BARBARA What man?

JENNY The man that hit me Oh, I hope he's coming back to join us

Bill Walker, with frost on his jacket, comes through the gate, his hands deep in his pockets and his chin sunk between his shoulders, like a cleaned-out gambler He halts between Barbara and the drum

BARBARA Hullo, Bill! Back already!

BILL [gagging at her] Bin talkin ever sence, ev you?

BARBARA Pretty nearly Well, has Todger paid you out for poor Jenny's jaw?

BILL Nao e aint

BARBARA I thought your jacket looked a bit snowy

BILL Sao it is snaowy You want to knaow wherc the snaow eam from, downt you?

BARBARA Yes

BILL Well, it eam from orf the grahnd in Pawkinses Corner in Kennintahn It got rabbed orf be maw shaoulders sec?

BARBARA Pity you didnt rub some off with your knees, Bill! That would have done you a lot of good

BILL [with sour mirthless humor] Aw was sivin another menn's knees at the tawm E was kneelin on moy ed, e was

JENNY Who was kneeling on your head?

BILL Todger was E was pryin for me pryin camfortable wiv me as a cawpet Sow was Mog Sao was the aol bloomin meetin Mog she sez "Ow Lawd brike is stubborn sperrit, bat downt urt is dear art" Thet was wot she said "Downt urt is dear art" An er blowk—thirteen stun four!—kneelin wiv all is wight on me Fanny, aint it?

JENNY Oh no We're so sorry, Mr Walker

BARBARA [enjoying it frankly] Nonsense! of course it's funny Served you right, Bill! You must have done something to him first

BILL [doggedly] Aw did wot Aw said Aw'd do Aw spit in is eye E looks ap at the skoy and sez, "Ow that Aw should be fahnd worthy to be spit upon for the gospel's sike!" e sez, an Mog sez "Glaory Allelloohier!", an then e called me Braddher, an dahned me as if Aw was a kid and e was me mather worshin me a Setterda nawt Aw ednt jast nao shaow wiv im at all Arf the street pryed, an the tather arf larfed fit to split themselves [To Barbara] There! are you settisfawd nah?

BARBARA [her eyes dancing] Wish I'd been there Bill

BILL Yus youd a got in a hextra bit o talk on me wouldnt you?

JENNY I'm so sorry, Mr Walker

BILL [fiercely] Downt you gow bein sorry for me youve no call Listen eah Aw browk your jawr

JENNY No, it didnt hurt me indeed it didnt, except for a moment It was only that I was frightened

BILL Aw downt want to be forgive be you, or be ennybody Wot Aw did Aw'll py for Aw trawd to gat me aown jawr browk to settisfaw you—

JENNY [distressed] Oh no—

BILL [impatiently] Tell y'Aw did cawnt you listen to wots bein taold you? All Aw got be it was bein mude a sawt of in the publc street for me pines Well, if Aw cawnt settisfaw you one wy, Aw ken anather Listen eah! Aw ed two quid sived agen the frost, an Awve a pahnd of it left A mite o mawn last week ed words with the judy e's gowin to merry E give ei wot-for, an e's bin fawnd fifteen bob E ed a rawt to itt er cause they was gowin to be merrid, but Aw ednt nao rawt to itt you, sao put anather fawv bob on an call it a pahnd's worth [He produces a sovereign] Eahs the manney Tike it, and lets ev no more o your forgivin an pryin and your Mijor jawrin me Let wot Aw dan be dan an pide for, and let there be a end of it

JENNY Oh, I couldnt take it, Mr Walker But if you would give a shilling or two to poor Rummy Mitchens! you really did hurt her, and she's old

BILL [contemptuously] Not lawhly Aw'd give her anather as soon as look at er Let her ev the lawr o me as she threatened! She aint forgiven me not mach Wot Aw dan to er is not on me mawnd—wot she [indicating Barbara] mawt call on me conscience—no more than stickin a pig It's this Christian gime o yours that Aw wownt ev plyed agen me this bloomn forgivin an neggin an jawrin that mikes a menn thet sore that iz lawf's a burdn to im Aw wownt ev it, Aw tell you, sao tike your manney and stop thraowin your silly beshed fice hap agen me

JENNY Major may I take a little of it for the Army?

BARBARA No the Army is not to be bought We want your soul, Bill, and we'll take nothing less

BILL [batterly] Aw knaow Me an maw few shillins is not good enaff for you Youre a earl's grendorter, you are Nathink less than a anderd pahnd for you

UNDERSHAFT Come, Barbara! you could do a great deal of good with a hundred pounds If you will set this gentleman's mind at ease by taking his pound, I will give the other ninety-nine

Bill, dazed by such opulence, instinctively touches his cap

BARBARA Oh, youre too extravagant, papa Bill offers twenty pieces of silver All you need offer is the other ten That will make the standard price to buy anybody who's for sale I'm not, and the Army's not [To Bill] Youll never have another quiet moment, Bill, until you come round to us You cant stand out against your salvation

BILL [sullenly] Aw cawnt stend aht agen music awl wrastlers and awtful tangued women Awve offered to py Aw can do no more Tike it or leave it There it is [He throws the sovereign on the drum, and sits down on the horse-trough The coin fascinates Snobby Price, who takes an early opportunity of dropping his cap on it]

Mrs Baines comes from the shelter She is dressed as a Salvation Army Commissioner She is an earnest looking woman of about 40, with a caressing, urgent voice, and an appealing manner

BARBARA This is my father, Mrs Baines [Undershaft comes from the table, taking his hat off with marked civility] Try what you can do with him He wont listen to me, because he remembers what a fool I was when I was a baby [She leaves them together and chats with Jenny]

MRS BAINES Have you been shewn over the shelter, Mr Undershaft? You know the work we're doing, of course

UNDERSHAFT [very civilly] The whole nation knows it, Mrs Baines

MRS BAINES No, sir the whole nation does not know it, or we should not be crippled as we are for want of money to carry our work through the length and breadth of the land

Let me tell you that there would have been rioting this winter in London but for us

UNDERSHAFT You really think so?

MRS BAINES I know it I remember 1886, when you rich gentlemen hardened your hearts against the cry of the poor They broke the windows of your clubs in Pall Mall

UNDERSHAFT [gleaming with approval of their method] And the Mansion House Fund went up next day from thirty thousand pounds to seventy-nine thousand! I remember quite well

MRS BAINES Well, wont you help me to get at the people? They wont break windows then Come here, Price Let me shew you to this gentleman [Price comes to be inspected] Do you remember the window breaking?

PRICE My ole father thought it was the revolution, maam

MRS BAINES Would you break windows now?

PRICE Oh no, maam The windows of eaven av bin opened to me I know now that the rich man is a sinner like myself

RUMMY [appearing above at the loft door] Snobby Price!

SNOBBY Wot is it?

RUMMY Your mother's askin for you at the other gate in Cripps's Lane She's heard about your confession [Price turns pale]

MRS BAINES Go, Mr Price, and pray with her

JENNY You can go through the shelter, Snobby

PRICE [to Mrs Baines] I couldnt faee her now, maam, with all the weight of my sins fresh on me Tell her she'll find her son at ome, waitin for her in prayer [He skulks off through the gate, incidentally stealing the sovereign on his way out by picking up his cap from the drum]

MRS BAINES [with swimming eyes] You see how we take the anger and the bitterness against you out of their hearts, Mr Undershaft

UNDERSHAFT It is certainly most convenient and gratifying to all large employers of labor, Mrs Baines

MRS BAINES Barbara Jenny I have good news most wonderful news [Jenny runs to her] My prayers have been answered I told you they would, Jenny, didnt I?

JENNY Yes, yes

BARBARA [moving nearer to the drum] Have we got money enough to keep the shelter open?

MRS BAINES I hope we shall have enough to keep all the shelters open Lord Sæmundham has promised us five thousand pounds—

BARBARA Hooray!

JENNY Glory!

MRS BAINES —if—

BARBARA "If!" If what?

MRS BAINES —if five other gentlemen will give a thousand each to make it up to ten thousand

BARBARA Who is Lord Sæmundham? I never heard of him

UNDERSHAFT [who has pricked up his ears at the peer's name, and is now watching Barbara curiously] A new creation, my dear You have heard of Sir Horace Bodger?

BARBARA Bodger! Do you mean the distiller? Bodger's whisky!

UNDERSHAFT That is the man He is one of the greatest of our public benefactors He restored the cathedral at Hakington They made him a baronet for that He gave half a million to the funds of his party they made him a baron for that

SHIRLEY What will they give him for the five thousand?

UNDERSHAFT There is nothing left to give him So the five thousand, I should think, is to save his soul

MRS BAINES Heaven grant it may! Oh Mr Undershaft, you have some very rich friends Cant you help us towards the other five thousand? We are going to hold a great meeting this afternoon at the Assembly Hall in the Mile End Road If I could only announce that one gentleman had come forward to support Lord Sæmundham, others would follow Dont you know somebody? couldnt you? wouldnt you? [her eyes fill with tears] oh, think of those poor people, Mr Undershaft think of how much it means to them, and how little to a great man like you

UNDERSHAFT [sardonically gallant] Mrs Baines you are irresistible I cant disappoint you, and I cant deny myself the satisfaction of making Bodger pay up You shall have your five thousand pounds

MRS BAINES Thank God!

UNDERSHAFT You dont thank me?

MRS BAINES Oh sir, dont try to be cynical dont be ashamed of being a good man The Lord will bless you abundantly, and our prayers will be like a strong fortification round you all the days of your life [With a touch of caution] You will let me have the cheque to shew at the meeting, wont you? Jenny. go in and fetch a pen and ink [Jenny runs to the shelter door]

UNDERSHAFT Do not disturb Miss Hill I have a fountain pen [Jenny halts He sits at the table and writes the cheque Cusins rises to make room for him They all watch him silently]

BILL [cynically, aside to Barbara, his voice and accent horribly debased] Wot prawce selvytion nah?

BARBARA Stop [Undershaft stops writing they all turn to her in surprise] Mrs Baines are you really going to take this money?

MRS BAINES [astounded] Why not, dear?

BARBARA Why not! Do you know what my father is? Have you forgotten that Lord Saxmundham is Bodger the whisky man? Do you remember how we implored the County Council to stop him from writing Bodger's Whisky in letters of fire against the sky, so that the poor drunk-runed creatures on the Embankment could not wake up from their snatches of sleep without being reminded of their deadly thirst by that wicked sky sign? Do you know that the worst thing I have had to fight here is not the devil, but Bodger, Bodger, Bodger, with his whisky, his distilleries, and his tied houses? Are you going to make our shelter another tied house for him, and ask me to keep it?

BILL Rotten dranken whisky it is too

MRS BAINES Dear Barbara Lord Saxmundham has a soul to be saved like any of us If heaven has found the way to make a good use of his money, are we to set ourselves up against the answer to our prayers?

BARBARA I know he has a soul to be saved Let him come down here, and I'll do my best to help him to his salvation But he wants to send his cheque down to buy us, and go on being as wicked as ever

UNDERSHAFT [with a reasonableness which Cusins alone perceives to be ironical] My dear Barbara alcohol is a very necessary article It heals the sick—

BARBARA It does nothing of the sort

UNDERSHAFT Well, it assists the doctor that is perhaps a less questionable way of putting it It makes life bearable to millions of people who could not endure their existence if they were quite sober It enables Parliament to do things at eleven at night that no sane person would do at eleven in the morning Is it Bodger's fault that this inestimable gift is deplorably abused by less than one per cent of the poor? [He turns again to the table, signs the cheque, and crosses it]

MRS BAINES Barbara will there be less drinking or more if all those poor souls we are saving come tomorrow and find the doors of our shelters shut in their faces? Lord Saxmundham gives us the money to stop drinking—to take his own business from him

CUSINS [impishly] Pure self-sacrifice on Bodger's part, clearly! Bless dear Bodger! [Barbara almost breaks down as Adolphus, too, fails her]

UNDERSHAFT [tearing out the cheque and pocketing the book as he rises and goes past Cusins to Mrs Baines] I also, Mrs Baines, may claim a little disinterestedness Think of my business! think of the widows and orphans! the men and lads torn to pieces with shrapnel and poisoned with lyddite! [Mrs Baines shrinks, but he goes on remorselessly] the oceans of blood, not one drop of which is shed in a really just cause! the ravaged crops! the peaceful peasants forced, women and men, to till their fields under the fire of opposing armies on pain of starvation! the bad blood of the fierce little cowards at home who egg on others to fight for the gratification of their national vanity! All this makes money for me I am never richer, never busier than when the papers are full of it Well, it is your work to preach peace on earth and goodwill to men [Mrs Baines's face lights up again] Every convert you make is a vote against war [Her lips move in prayer] Yet I give you this money to help you to hasten my own commercial ruin [He gives her the cheque]

CUSINS [mounting the form in an ecstasy of mischief] The millennium will be inaugurated by the unselfishness of Undershaft and Bodger Oh be joyful! [He takes the drumsticks from his pockets and flourishes them]

MRS BAINES [taking the cheque] The longer I live the more proof I see that there is an Infinite Goodness that turns everything to the work of salvation sooner or later Who would have thought that any good could have come out of war and drink? And yet their profits are brought today to the feet of salvation to do its blessed work [She is affected to tears]

JENNY [running to Mrs Baines and throwing her arms round her] Oh dear! how blessed, how glorious it all is!

CUSINS [in a convulsion of irony] Let us seize this unspeakable moment Let us march to the great meeting at once Excuse me just an instant [He rushes into the shelter Jenny takes her tambourine from the drum head]

MRS BAINES Mr Undershaft have you ever seen a thousand people fall on their knees with one impulse and pray? Come with us to the meeting Barbara shall tell them that the Army is saved, and saved through you

CUSINS [returning impetuously from the shelter with a flag and a trombone, and coming between Mrs Baines and Undershaft] You shall carry the flag down the first street, Mrs Baines [he gives her the flag] Mr Undershaft is a gifted trombonist he shall intone an Olympian diapason to the West Ham Salvation March [Aside to Undershaft, as he forces the trombone on him] Blow, Machiavelli, blow

UNDERSHAFT [aside to him, as he takes the trombone] The trumpet in Zion! [Cusins rushes to the drum, which he takes up and puts on Undershaft continues, aloud] I will do my best I could vamp a bass if I knew the tune

CUSINS It is a wedding chorus from one of Donizetti's operas, but we have converted it We convert everything to good here, including Bodger You remember the chorus "For thee immense rejoicing—immenso giubilo—immenso giubilo" [With drum obbligato] Rum tum ti tum tum, tum tum ti ta—

BARBARA Dolly you are breaking my heart

CUSINS What is a broken heart more or less here? Dionysos Undershaft has descended I am possessed

MRS BAINES Come, Barbara I must have my dear Major to carry the flag with me

JENNY Ycs, yes, Major darling

CUSINS [snatches the tambourine out of Jenny's hand and mutely offers it to Barbara]

BARBARA [coming forward a little as she puts the offer behind her with a shudder, whilst Cusins recklessly tosses the tambourine back to Jenny and goes to the gate] I cant come

JENNY Not comel

MRS BAINES [with tears in her eyes] Barbara do you think I am wrong to take the money?

BARBARA [impulsively going to her and kissing her] No, no God help you, dear, you must you are saving the Army Go, and may you have a great meeting!

JENNY But arnt you coming?

BARBARA No [She begins taking off the silver S brooch from her collar]

MRS BAINES Barbara what are you doing?

JENNY Why are you taking your badge off?

You cant be going to leave us, Major

BARBARA [quietly] Father come here

UNDERSHAFT [coming to her] My dear! [seeing that she is going to pin the badge on his collar, he retreats to the penthouse in some alarm]

BARBARA [following him] Dont be frightened [She pins the badge on and steps back towards the table, shewing him to the others] There! It's not much for £5000, is it?

MRS BAINES Barbara if you wont come and pray with us, promise me you will pray for us

BARBARA I cant pray now Perhaps I shall never pray again

MRS BAINES Barbara!

JENNY Major!

BARBARA [almost delirious] I cant bear any more Quick march!

CUSINS [calling to the procession in the street outside] Off we go Play up, there! Im menso giubilo [He gives the time with his drum, and the band strikes up the march, which rapidly becomes more distant as the procession moves briskly away]

MRS BAINES I must go, dear Youre over-worked you will be all right tomorrow We'll never lose you Now Jenny step out with the old flag Blood and Fire! [She marches out through the gate with her flag]

JENNY Glory Hallelujah! [flourishing her tambourine and marching]

UNDERSHAFT [to Cusins, as he marches out past him easing the slide of his trombone] "My dueats and my daughter!"

CUSINS [following him out] Money and gun-powder!

BARBARA Drunkenness and Murder! My God why hast thou forsaken me?

She sinks on the form with her face buried in her hands The march passes away into silence Bill Walker steals across to her

BILL [taunting] Wot prawec selvytion nah?

SHIRLEY Dont you hit her when she's down

BILL She itt me wen aw wiz dahn Wāw shouldnt Aw git a bit o me aown beck?

BARBARA [raising her head] I didnt take your money, Bill [She crosses the yard to the gate and turns her back on the two men to hide her face from them]

BILL [sneering after her] Naow it warnt enaff for you [Turning to the drum he misses the money] Ellow! If you aint took it sammun else ez Weres it gorn? Bly me if Jenny Ill didnt tike it arter all!

RUMM [screaming at him from the loft] You lie, you dirty blackguard! Snobby Price pinched it off the drum when he took up his cap I was up here all the time an see im do it

BILL Wot! Stow! maw manney! Waw didnt you call thief on him, you silly aold macker you?

RUMVY To serve you aht for ittin me acrost the fice It's cost y'pahnd, that az [Raising a pæan of squalid triumph] I done you I'm even with you -I've ad it aht o y— [Bill snatches up Shirley's mug and hurls it at her She slams the loft door and vanishes The mug smashes against the door and falls in fragments]

BILL [beginning to chuckle] Tell us, aol menn, wot o'clock this mawmin was it wen im as they call Snobby Prawce was sived?

BARBARA [turning to him more composedly, and with unspoiled sweetness] About half past twelve, Bill And he pinched your pound at a quarter to two I know Well, you cant afford to lose it I'll send it to you

BILL [his voice and accent suddenly improving] Not if Aw wiz to stawve for it Aw aint to be boughd

SHIRLEY Aint you? Youd sell yourself to the devil for a pint o beer, ony there aint no devil to make the offer

BILL [unshamed] Sao Aw would, mite, and often ev, cheerful But she cawnt baw me [Approaching Barbara] You wanted mawsaoul, did you? Well, you aint got it

BARBARA. I nearly got it, Bill But weve sold it back to you for ten thousand pounds

SHIRLEY And dear at the money!

BARBARA No, Peter it was worth more than money.

BILL [salvationproof] It's nao good you cawnt get rahnd me nah Aw downt blieve in it, and Awve seen tody that Aw was rawt [Going] Sao long, aol soupkitchener! Ta ta, Mjor Earl's Grendorter! [Turning at the gate] Wot prawce selvytion nah? Snobby Prawce! Ha! ha!

BARBARA [offering her hand] Goodbye, Bill

BILL [taken aback, half plucks his cap off, then shoves it on again defiantly] Git aht [Barbara drops her hand, discouraged He has a twinge of remorse] But thets aw rawt, you knaow Nathink pasnl Naow mellice Sao long, Judy [He goes]

BARBARA No malice So long, Bill.

SHIRLEY [shaking his head] You make too much of him, miss, in your innocence

BARBARA [going to him] Peter I'm like you now Cleaned out, and lost my job

SHIRLEY Youve youth an hope Thats two better than me

BARBARA I'll get you a job, Peter Thats hope for you the youth will have to be enough for me [She counts her money] I have just enough left for two teas at Lockharts, a Rowton doss for you, and my tram and bus home [He frowns and rises with offended pride She takes his arm] Dont be proud, Peter it's sharing between friends And promise me youll talk to me and not let me cry [She draws him towards the gate]

SHIRLEY Well, I'm not accustomed to talk to the like of you—

BARBARA [urgently] Yes, yes you must talk to me Tell me about Tom Paine's books and Bradlaugh's lectures Come along

SHIRLEY Ah, if you would only read Tom Paine in the proper spint, miss! [They go out through the gate together]

ACT III

Next day after lunch Lady Britomart is writing in the library in Wilton Crescent Sarah is reading in the armchair near the window Barbara in ordinary fashionable dress, pale and brooding, is on the settee Charles Lomax enters He starts on seeing Barbara fashionably attired and in low spirits

LOMAX Youve left off your uniform!

Barbara says nothing, but an expression of pain passes over her face

LADY BRITOMART [warning him in low tones to be careful] Charles!

LOMAX [bending concerned, coming behind the settee and bending sympathetically over Barbara] I'm awfully sorry, Barbara You know I helped you all I could with the concertina and so forth [Momentously] Still, I have never shut my eyes to the fact that there is a certain amount of tosh about the Salvation Army Now the claims of the Church of England—

LADY BRITOMART Thats enough Charles Speak of something suited to your mental capacity

LOMAX But surely the Church of England is suited to all our capacities

BARBARA [pressing his hand] Thank you for your sympathy, Cholly Now go and spoon with Sarah LOMAX [dragging a chair from the writing table and seating himself affectionately by Sarah's side] How is my ownest today?

SARAH I wish you wouldnt tell Cholly to do things, Barbara He always comes straight and does them Cholly we're going to the works this afternoon

LOMAX What works?

SARAH The cannon works

LOMAX What! Your governor's shop!

SARAH Yes

LOMAX Oh I say!

Cusins enters in poor condition He also starts visibly when he sees Barbara without her uniform

BARBARA I expected you this morning, Dolly Didnt you guess that?

CUSINS [sitting down beside her] I'm sorry I have only just breakfasted

SARAH But weve just finished lunch

BARBARA Have you had one of your bad nights?

CUSINS No I had rather a good night in fact, one of the most remarkable nights I have ever passed

BARBARA The meeting?

CUSINS No after the meeting

LADY BRITOMART You should have gone to bed after the meeting What were you doing?

CUSINS Drinking

LADY BRITOMART { Adolphus!

SARAH { Dolly!

BARBARA { Dolly!

LOMAX { Oh I say!

LADY BRITOMART What were you drinking, may I ask?

CUSINS A most devilish kind of Spanish burgundy, warranted free from added alcohol a Temperance burgundy in fact Its richness in natural alcohol made any addition superfluous

BARBARA Are you joking, Dolly?

CUSINS [patiently] No I have been making a night of it with the nominal head of this household that is all

LADY BRITOMART Andrew made you drunk!

CUSINS No he only provided the wine I think it was Dionysos who made me drunk [To Barbara] I told you I was possessed

LADY BRITOMART Youre not sober yet Go home to bed at once

CUSINS I have never before ventured to reproach you, Lady Brit, but how could you marry the Prince of Darkness?

LADY BRITOMART It was much more excusable to marry him than to get drunk with him That is a new accomplishment of

Andrew's, by the way He usent to drink

CUSINS He doesnt now He only sat there and completed the wreck of my moral basis, the rout of my convictions, the purchase of my soul He cares for you, Barbara That is what makes him so dangerous to me

BARBARA That has nothing to do with it, Dolly There are larger loves and diviner dreams than the fireside ones You know that, dont you?

CUSINS Yes that is our understanding I know it I hold to it Unless he can win me on that holier ground he may amuse me for a while, but he can get no deeper hold, strong as he is

BARBARA Keep to that, and the end will be right Now tell me what happened at the meeting?

CUSINS It was an amazing meeting Mrs Baines almost died of emotion Jenny Hill simply gibbered with hysteria The Prince of Darkness played his trombone like a madman its brazen roarings were like the laughter of the damned 117 conversions took place then and there They prayed with the most touching sincerity and gratitude for Bodger, and for the anonymous donor of the £5000 Your father would not let his name be given

LOMAX That was rather fine of the old man, you know Most chaps would have wanted the advertisement

CUSINS He said all the charitable institutions would be down on him like kites on a battle field if he gave his name

LADY BRITOMART Thats Andrew all over He never does a proper thing without giving an improper reason for it

CUSINS He convinced me that I have all my life been doing improper things for proper reasons

LADY BRITOMART Adolphus now that Barbara has left the Salvation Army, you had better leave it too I will not have you playing that drum in the streets

CUSINS Your orders are already obeyed, Lady Brit

BARBARA Dolly were you ever really in earnest about it? Would you have joined if you had never seen me?

CUSINS [disingenuously] Well—er—well, possibly, as a collector of religions—

LOMAX [cunningly] Not as a drummer, though, you know You are a very clear-headed brainy chap, Dolly, and it must have been apparent to you that there is a certain amount of tosh about—

LADY BRITOMART Charles if you must drivel, drivel like a grown-up man and not like a schoolboy

LOMAX [out of countenance] Well, drivel is drivel, dont you know, whatever a man's age

LADY BRITOMART In good society in England, Charles, men drivel at all ages by repeating silly formulas with an air of wisdom. Schoolboys make their own formulas out of slang, like you. When they reach your age, and get political private secretaryships and things of that sort, they drop slang and get their formulas out of The Spectator or The Times. You had better confine yourself to The Times. You will find that there is a certain amount of tosh about The Times, but at least its language is reputable.

LOMAX [overwhelmed] You are so awfully strong-minded, Lady Brit—

LADY BRITOMART Rubbish! [Morrison comes in] What is it?

MORRISON If you please, my lady, Mr Undershaft has just drove up to the door.

LADY BRITOMART Well, let him in [Morrison hesitates] Whats the matter with you?

MORRISON Shall I announce him, my lady; or is he at home here, so to speak, my lady?

LADY BRITOMART Announce him

MORRISON Thank you, my lady. You wont mind my asking, I hope. The occasion is in a manner of speaking new to me.

LADY BRITOMART Quite right. Go and let him in.

MORRISON Thank you, my lady [He withdraws].

LADY BRITOMART Children go and get ready [Sarah and Barbara go upstairs for their out-of-door wraps]. Charles go and tell Stephen to come down here in five minutes; you will find him in the drawing room [Charles goes]. Adolphus tell them to send round the carriage in about fifteen minutes [Adolphus goes].

MORRISON [at the door] Mr Undershaft. Undershaft comes in. Morrison goes out.

UNDERSHAFT Alone! How fortunate!

LADY BRITOMART [rising] Dont be sentimental, Andrew. Sit down [She sits on the settee. He sits beside her, on her left. She comes to the point before he has time to breathe]. Sarah must have £800 a year until Charles Lomax comes into his property. Barbara will need more, and need it permanently, because Adolphus hasnt any property.

UNDERSHAFT [resignedly] Yes, my dear. I will see to it. Anything else? for yourself, for instance?

LADY BRITOMART I want to talk to you about Stephen.

UNDERSHAFT [rather wearily] Dont, my dear. Stephen doesnt interest me.

LADY BRITOMART He does interest me. He is our son.

UNDERSHAFT Do you really think so? He has induced us to bring him into the world, but he chose his parents very incongruously, I think. I see nothing of myself in him, and less of you.

LADY BRITOMART Andrew, Stephen is an excellent son, and a most steady, capable, high-minded young man. You are simply trying to find an excuse for disinheriting him.

UNDERSHAFT My dear Biddy, the Undershaft tradition disinherits him. It would be dishonest of me to leave the cannon foundry to my son.

LADY BRITOMART It would be most unnatural and improper of you to leave it to anyone else, Andrew. Do you suppose this wicked and immoral tradition can be kept up for ever? Do you pretend that Stephen could not carry on the foundry just as well as all the other sons of the big business houses?

UNDERSHAFT Yes, he could learn the office routine without understanding the business, like all the other sons, and the firm would go on by its own momentum until the real Undershaft—probably an Italian or a German—would invent a new method and cut him out.

LADY BRITOMART There is nothing that any Italian or German could do that Stephen could not do. And Stephen at least has breeding.

UNDERSHAFT The son of a foundling! Nonsense!

LADY BRITOMART My son, Andrew! And even you may have good blood in your veins for all you know.

UNDERSHAFT True. Probably I have. That is another argument in favor of a foundling.

LADY BRITOMART Andrew, dont be aggravating. And dont be wicked. At present you are both.

UNDERSHAFT This conversation is part of the Undershaft tradition, Biddy. Every Undershaft's wife has treated him to it ever since the house was founded It is mere waste of breath If the tradition be ever broken it will be for an abler man than Stephen

LADY BRITOMART [pouting] Then go away

UNDERSHAFT [deprecatory] Go away!

LADY BRITOMART Yes go away If you will do nothing for Stephen, you are not wanted here Go to your foundling, whoever he is, and look after him

UNDERSHAFT The fact is, Biddy—

LADY BRITOMART Dont call me Biddy I dont call you Andy

UNDERSHAFT I will not call my wife Britomart it is not good sense Seriously my love, the Undershaft tradition has landed me in a difficulty I am getting on in years, and my partner Lazarus has at last made a stand and insisted that the succession must be settled one way or the other, and of course he is quite right You see, I havnt found a fit successor yet

LADY BRITOMART [obstinately] There is Stephen

UNDERSHAFT Thats just it all the foundlings I can find are exactly like Stephen

LADY BRITOMART Andrew!

UNDERSHAFT I want a man with no relations and no schooling that is, a man who would be out of the running altogether if he were not a strong man And I cant find him Every blessed foundling nowadays is snapped up in his infancy by Barnardo homes, or School Board officers, or Boards of Guardians, and if he shews the least ability he is fastened on by schoolmasters, trained to win scholarships like a racehorse, crammed with secondhand ideas, drilled and disciplined in docility and what they call good taste, and lamed for life so that he is fit for nothing but teaching If you want to keep the foundry in the family, you had better find an eligible foundling and marry him to Barbara

LADY BRITOMART Ah! Barbara! Your pet! You would sacrifice Stephen to Barbara

UNDERSHAFT Cheerfully And you, my dear, would boil Barbara to make soup for Stephen

LADY BRITOMART Andrew this is not a question of our likings and dislikings it is a question of duty It is your duty to make Stephen your successor

UNDERSHAFT Just as much as it is your duty to submit to your husband Come, Biddy! these tricks of the governing class are of no use with me I am one of the governing class myself, and it is waste of time giving tracts to a missionary I have the power in this matter, and I am not to be humbugged into using it for your purposes

LADY BRITOMART Andrew you can talk my head off, but you cant change wrong into right And your tie is all on one side Put it straight

UNDERSHAFT [disconcerted] It wont stay unless it's pinned [he fumbles at it with childish grimaces]—

Stephen comes in

STEPHEN [at the door] I beg your pardon [about to retire]

LADY BRITOMART No come in, Stephen [Stephen comes forward to his mother's writing table]

UNDERSHAFT [not very cordially] Good afternoon

STEPHEN [coldly] Good afternoon

UNDERSHAFT [to Lady Britomart] He knows all about the tradition, I suppose?

LADY BRITOMART Yes [To Stephen] It is what I told you last night, Stephen

UNDERSHAFT [sulkily] I understand you want to come into the cannon business

STEPHEN I go into trade! Certainly not

UNDERSHAFT [opening his eyes, greatly eased in mind and manner] Oh! in that ease—

LADY BRITOMART Cannons are not trade, Stephen They are enterprise

STEPHEN I have no intention of becoming a man of business in any sense I have no capacity for business and no taste for it I intend to devote myself to politics

UNDERSHAFT [rising] My dear boy this is an immense relief to me And I trust it may prove an equally good thing for the country I was afraid you would consider yourself disparaged and slighted [He moves towards Stephen as if to shake hands with him]

LADY BRITOMART [rising and interposing] Stephen I cannot allow you to throw away an enormous property like this

STEPHEN [stiffly] Mother there must be an end of treating me as a child, if you please [Lady Britomart recoils, deeply wounded by his tone] Until last night I did not take your attitude seriously, because I did not think you meant it seriously But I find now that you left me in the dark as to matters which you should have explained to me years ago I am extremely hurt and offended Any further discussion of my intentions had better take place with my father, as between one man and another

LADY BRITOMART Stephen! [She sits down again, her eyes filling with tears]

UNDERSHAFT [with grave compassion] You see, my dear it is only the big men who can be treated as children

STEPHEN I am sorry, mother, that you have forced me—

UNDERSHAFT [stopping him] Yes, yes, yes, yes thats all right, Stephen She wont interfere with you any more your independence is achieved you have won your latchkey Dont rub it in, and above all, dont apologize [He resumes his seat] Now what about your future, as between one man and another—I beg your pardon, Biddy as between two men and a woman

LADY BRITOMART [who has pulled herself together strongly] I quite understand, Stephen By all means go your own way if you feel strong enough [Stephen sits down magisterially in the chair at the writing table with an air of affirming his majority]

UNDERSHAFT It is settled that you do not ask for the succession to the cannon business

STEPHEN I hope it is settled that I repudiate the cannon business

UNDERSHAFT Come, come! dont be so devilishly sulky it's boyish Freedom should be generous Besides, I owe you a fair start in life in exchange for disinheriting you You cant become prime minister all at once Havnt you a turn for something? What about literature, art, and so forth?

STEPHEN I have nothing of the artist about me, either in faculty or character, thank Heaven!

UNDERSHAFT A philosopher, perhaps? Eh?

STEPHEN I make no such ridiculous pretension

UNDERSHAFT Just so Well, there is the army, the navy, the Church, the Bar The Bar requires some ability What about the Bar?

STEPHEN I have not studied law And I am afraid I have not the necessary push—I believe that is the name barristers give to their vulgarity—for success in pleading UNDERSHAFT Rather a difficult case, Stephen Hardly anything left but the stage, is there? [Stephen makes an impatient movement] Well, come! is there anything you know or care for?

STEPHEN [rising and looking at him steadily]

I know the difference between right and wrong

UNDERSHAFT [hugely tickled] You dont say so! What! no capacity for business, no knowledge of law, no sympathy with art, no pretension to philosophy, only a simple knowledge of the secret that has puzzled all the philosophers, baffled all the lawyers, muddled all the men of business, and ruined most of the artists the secret of right and wrong Why, man, youre a genius, a master of masters, a god! At twentyfour, too!

STEPHEN [keeping his temper with difficulty] You are pleased to be facetious I pretend to nothing more than any honorable English gentleman claims as his birthright [he sits down angrily]

UNDERSHAFT Oh, thats everybody's birthright Look at poor little Jenny Hill, the Salvation lassie! she would think you were laughing at her if you asked her to stand up in the street and teach grammar or geography or mathematics or even drawing room dancing, but it never occurs to her to doubt that she can teach morals and religion You are all alike, you respectable people You cant tell me the bursting strain of a ten-inch gun, which is a very simple matter, but you all think you can tell me the bursting strain of a man under temptation You darent handle high explosives, but youre all ready to handle honesty and truth and justice and the whole duty of man, and kill one another at that game What a country! What a world!

LADY BRITOMART [uneasily] What do you think he had better do, Andrew?

UNDERSHAFT Oh, just what he wants to do He knows nothing, and he thinks he knows everything That points clearly to a political career Get him a private secretaryship to someone who can get him an Under Secretaryship, and then leave him alone He will find his natural and proper place in the end on the Treasury bench

STEPHEN [springing up again] I am sorry, sir, that you force me to forget the respect due to you as my father I am an Englishman, and I will not hear the Government of my country insulted [He thrusts his hands in his pockets, and walks angrily across to the window]

UNDERSHAFT [with a touch of brutality] The government of your country! I am the government of your country I, and Lazarus Do you suppose that you and half a dozen amateurs like you, sitting in a row in that foolish gabble shop, can govern Undershaft and Lazarus? No, my friend you will do what pays us You will make war when it suits us, and keep peace when it doesnt You will find out that trade requires certain measures when we have decided on those measures When I want anything to keep my dividends up, you will discover that my want is a national need When other people want something to keep my dividends down, you will call out the police and military And in return you shall have the support and applause of my newspapers, and the delight of imagining that you are a great statesman Government of your country! Be off with you, my boy, and play with your caueuses and leading articles and historie parties and great leaders and burning questions and the rest of your toys I am going back to my counting-house to pay the piper and call the tune

STEPHEN [actually smiling, and putting his hand on his father's shoulder with indulgent patronage] Really, my dear father, it is impossible to be angry with you You dont know how absurd all this sounds to me You are very properly proud of having been industrious enough to make money, and it is greatly to your credit that you have made so much of it But it has kept you in circles where you are valued for your money and deferred to for it, instead of in the doubtless very old-fashioned and behind-the-times public school and university where I formed my habits of mind It is natural for you to think that money governs England, but you must allow me to think I know better

UNDERSHAFT And what does govern England, pray?

STEPHEN Character, father, character

UNDERSHAFT Whose character? Yours or mine?

STEPHEN Neither yours nor mine, father, but the best elements in the English national character

UNDERSHAFT Stephen Ive found your profession for you Youre a born journalist I'll start you with a high-toned weekly review There!

Before Stephen can reply Sarah, Barbara, Lomax, and Cusins come in ready for talking Barbara crosses the room to the window and looks out Cusins drifts amiably to the armchair Lomax remains near the door, whilst Sarah comes to her mother

Stephen goes to the smaller writing table and busies himself with his letters

SARAH Go and get ready, mamma the carriage is waiting [Lady Britomart leaves the room]

UNDERSHAFT [to Sarah] Good day, my dear Good afternoon, Mr Lomax

LOMAX [vaguely] Ahdedoo

UNDERSHAFT [to Cusins] Quite well after last night, Euripides, eh?

CUSINS As well as can be expected

UNDERSHAFT Thats right [To Barbara] So you are coming to see my death and devastation factory, Barbara?

BARBARA [at the window] You came yesterday to see my salvation factory I promised you a return visit

LOMAX [coming forward between Sarah and Undershaft] Youll find it awfully interesting Ive been through the Woolwich Arsenal, and it gives you a ripping feeling of security, you know, to think of the lot of beggars we could kill if it came to fighting [To Undershaft, with sudden solemnity] Still, it must be rather an awful reflection for you, from the religious point of view as it were Youre getting on, you know, and all that

SARAH You dont mind Cholly's imbecility, papa, do you?

LOMAX [much taken aback] Oh I say!

UNDERSHAFT Mr Lomax looks at the matter in a very proper spirit, my dear

LOMAX Just so Thats all I meant, I assure you

SARAH Are you coming, Stephen?

STEPHEN Well, I am rather busy—er— [Magnanimously] Oh well, yes I'll come That is, if there is room for me

UNDERSHAFT I can take two with me in a little motor I am experimenting with for field use You wont mind its being rather unfashionable Its not painted yet, but its bullet proof

LOMAX [appalled at the prospect of confronting Wilton Crescent in an unpainted motor] Oh I say!

SARAH The carriage for me, thank you Barbara doesnt mind what she's seen in LOMAX I say, Dolly, old chap do you really mind the car being a guy? Because of course if you do I'll go in it Still—

CUSINS I prefer it

LOMAX Thanks awfully old man Come, my ownest [He hurries out to secure his seat in the carriage Sarah follows him]

CUSINS [moodily walking across to Lady Britomart's writing table] Why are we two coming to this Works Department of Hell? that is what I ask myself

BARBARA I have always thought of it as a sort of pit where lost creatures with blackened faces stirred up smoky fires and were driven and tormented by my father? Is it like that, dad?

UNDERSHAFT [scandalized] My dear! It is a spotlessly clean and beautiful hillside town

CUSINS With a Methodist chapel? Oh do say theres a Methodist chapel

UNDERSHAFT There are two a Primitive one and a sophisticated one There is even an Ethical Society, but it is not much patronized, as my men are all strongly religious In the High Explosives Sheds they object to the presence of Agnostics as unsafe

CUSINS And yet they dont object to you!

BARBARA Do they obey all your orders?

UNDERSHAFT I never give them any orders When I speak to one of them it is "Well, Jones, is the baby doing well? and has Mrs Jones made a good recovery?" "Nicely, thank you, sir" And thats all CUSINS But Jones has to be kept in order How do you maintain discipline among your men?

UNDERSHAFT I dont They do You see, the one thing Jones wont stand is any rebellion from the man under him, or any assertion of social equality between the wife of the man with 4 shillings a week less than himself, and Mrs Jones! Of course they all rebel against me, theoretically Practically, every man of them keeps the man just below him in his place I never meddle with them I never bully them I dont even bully Lazarus I say that certain things are to be done, but I dont order anybody to do them I dont say, mind you, that there is no ordering about and snubbing and even bullying The men snub the boys and order them about, the carmen snub the sweepers, the artisans snub the unskilled laborers, the foremen drive and bully both the laborers and artisans, the assistant engineers find fault with the foremen, the chief engineers drop on the assistants, the departmental managers worry the chiefs, and the clerks have tall hats and hymnbooks and keep up the social tone by refusing to associate on equal terms with anybody The result is a colossal profit, which comes to me

CUSINS [revolted] You really are a—well, what I was saying yesterday

BARBARA What was he saying yesterday?

UNDERSHAFT Never mind, my dear He thinks I have made you unhappy Have I?

BARBARA Do you think I can be happy in this vulgar silly dress? I! who have worn the uniform Do you understand what you have done to me? Yesterday I had a man's soul in my hand I set him in the way of life with his face to salvation But when we took your money he turned back to drunkenness and derision [With intense conviction] I will never forgive you that If I had a child, and you destroyed its body with your explosives—if you murdered Dolly with your horrible guns—I could forgive you if my forgiveness would open the gates of heaven to you But to take a human soul from me, and turn it into the soul of a wolf! that is worse than any murder UNDERSHAFT Does my daughter despair so easily? Can you strike a man to the heart and leave no mark on him?

BARBARA [her face lighting up] Oh, you are right he can never be lost now, where was my faith?

CUSINS Oh, clever clever devil!

BARBARA You may be a devil, but God speaks through you sometimes [She takes her father's hands and kisses them] You have given me back my happiness I feel it deep down now, though my spirit is troubled

UNDERSHAFT You have learnt something That always feels at first as if you had lost something

BARBARA Well, take me to the factory of death, and let me learn something more There must be some truth or other behind all this frightful irony Come, Dolly [She goes out]

CUSINS My guardian angel! [To Undershaft] Avaunt! [He follows Barbara]

STEPHEN [quietly, at the writing table] You must not mind Cusins, father He is a very amiable good fellow, but he is a Greek scholar and naturally a little eccentric

UNDERSHAFT Ah, quite so Thank you, Stephen Thank you [He goes out]

Stephen smiles patronizingly, buttons his coat responsibly; and crosses the room to the door Lady Britomart, dressed for out-of-doors, opens it before he reaches it She looks round for the others, looks at Stephen, and turns to go without a nord

STEPHEN [embarrassed] Mother—

LADY BRITOMART Dont be apologetic, Stephen And dont forget that you have outgrown your mother [She goes out]

Pervale St Andrews lies between two Middlesex hills, half climbing the northern one It is an almost smokeless town of white walls, roofs of narrow green slates or red tiles, tall trees, domes, campaniles, and slender chimney shafts, beautifully situated and beautiful in itself The best view of it is obtained from the crest of a slope about half a mile to the east, where the high explosives are dealt with The foundry lies hidden in the depths between, the tops of its chimneys sprouting like huge skittles into the middle distance Across the crest runs an emplacement of concrete, with a firestep, and a parapet which suggests a fortification, because there is a huge cannon of the obsolete Woolwich Infant pattern peering across it at the town The cannon is mounted on an experimental gun carriage possibly the original model of the Undershaft disappearing rampart gun alluded to by Stephen The firestep, being a convenient place to sit, is furnished here and there with straw disc cushions, and at one place there is the additional luxury of a fur rug

Barbara is standing on the firestep, looking over the parapet towards the town On her right is the cannon, on her left the end of a shed raised on piles, with a ladder of three or four steps up to the door, which opens outwards and has a little wooden landing at the threshold, with a fire bucket in the corner of the landing Several dummy soldiers, more or less mutilated, with straw protruding from their gashes, have been shoved out of the way under the landing A few others are nearly upright against the shed, and one has fallen forward and lies, like a grotesque corpse, on the emplacement The parapet stops short of the shed, leaving a gap which is the beginning of the path down the hill through the foundry to the town The rug is on the firestep near this gap Down on the emplacement behind the cannon is a trolley carrying a huge conical bombshell with a red band painted on it Further to the right is the door of an office, which, like the sheds, is of the lightest possible construction

Cusins arrives by the path from the town

BARBARA Well?

CUSINS Not a ray of hope Everything perfect! wonderful! real! It only needs a cathedral to be a heavenly city instead of a hellish one

BARBARA Have you found out whether they have done anything for old Peter Shirley?

CUSINS They have found him a job as gatekeeper and timekeeper He's frightfully miserable He calls the timekeeping brain-work, and says he isnt used to it, and his gate lodge is so splendid that he's ashamed to use the rooms, and skulks in the scullery

BARBARA Poor Peter!

Stephen arrives from the town He carries a fieldglass

STEPHEN [enthusiastically] Have you two seen the place? Why did you leave us?

CUSINS I wanted to see everything I was not intended to see, and Barbara wanted to make the men talk

STEPHEN Have you found anything discreditable?

CUSINS No They call him Dandy Andy and are proud of his being a cunning old rascal, but it's all horribly, frightfully, immorally, unanswerably perfect

Sarah arrives

SARAH Heavens! what a place! [She crosses to the trolley] Did you see the nursing home!?

[She sits down on the shell]

STEPHEN Did you see the libraries and schools!?

SARAH Did you see the ball room and the banqueting chamber in the Town Hall!?

STEPHEN Have you gone into the insurance fund, the pension fund, the building society, the various applications of co-operation!?

Undershaft comes from the office, with a sheaf of telegrams in his hand

UNDERSHAFT Well, have you seen everything? I'm sorry I was called away [Indicating the telegrams] Good news from Manchuria

STEPHEN Another Japanese victory?

UNDERSHAFT Oh, I dont know Which side wins does not concern us here No the good news is that the aerial battleship is a tremendous success At the first trial it has wiped out a fort with three hundred soldiers in it

CUSINS [from the platform] Dummy soldiers?

UNDERSHAFT [striding across to Stephen and kicking the prostrate dummy brutally out of his way] No the real thing

Cusins and Barbara exchange glances Then Cusins sits on the step and buries his face in his hands Barbara gravely lays her hand on his shoulder He looks up at her in whimsical desperation

UNDERSHAFT Well, Stephen, what do you think of the place?

STEPHEN Oh, magnificent A perfect triumph of modern industry Frankly, my dear father, I have been a fool I had no idea of what it all meant of the wonderful forethought, the power of organization, the administrative capacity, the financial genius, the colossal capital it represents I have been repeating to myself as I came through your streets "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than War" I have only one misgiving about it all

UNDERSHAFT Out with it

STEPHEN Well, I cannot help thinking that all this provision for every want of your workmen may sap their independence and weaken their sense of responsibility And greatly as we enjoyed our tea at that splendid restaurant—how they gave us all that luxury and cake and jam and cream for threepence I really cannot imagine!—still you must remember that restaurants break up home life Look at the continent, for instance! Are you sure so much pampering is really good for the men's characters?

UNDERSHAFT Well you see, my dear boy, when you are organizing civilization you have to make up your mind whether trouble and anxiety are good things or not If you decide that they are, then, I take it, you simply don't organize civilization, and there you are, with trouble and anxiety enough to make us all angels! But if you decide the other way, you may as well go through with it However, Stephen, our characters are safe here A sufficient dose of anxiety is always provided by the fact that we may be blown to smithereens at any moment

SARAH By the way, papa, where do you make the explosives?

UNDERSHAFT In separate little sheds, like that one When one of them blows up, it costs very little, and only the people quite close to it are killed

Stephen, who is quite close to it, looks at it rather scaredly, and moves away quickly to the cannon At the same moment the door of the shed is thrown abruptly open, and a foreman in overalls and list slippers comes out on the little landing and holds the door for Lomax, who appears in the doorway

LOMAX [with studied coolness] My good fellow you needn't get into a state of nerves Nothing's going to happen to you, and I suppose it wouldn't be the end of the world if anything did A little bit of British pluck is what you want, old chap [He descends and strolls across to Sarah]

UNDERSHAFT [to the foreman] Anything wrong, Bilton?

BILTON [with ironic calm] Gentleman walked into the high explosives shed and lit a cigaret, sir that's all UNDERSHAFT Ah, quite so [Going over to Lomax] Do you happen to remember what you did with the match?

LOMAX Oh come! I'm not a fool I took jolly good care to blow it out before I chucked it away

BILTON The top of it was red hot inside, sir

LOMAX Well, suppose it was! I didn't chuck it into any of your messes

UNDERSHAFT Think no more of it, Mr Lomax By the way, would you mind lending me your matches?

LOMAX [offering his box] Certainly

UNDERSHAFT Thanks [He pockets the matches]

LOMAX [lecturing to the company generally] You know, these high explosives don't go off like gunpowder, except when they're in a gun When they're spread loose, you can put a match to them without the least risk they just burn quietly like a bit of paper [Warming to the scientific interest of the subject] Did you know that, Undershaft? Have you ever tried?

UNDERSHAFT Not on a large scale, Mr Lomax Bilton will give you a sample of gun cotton when you are leaving if you ask him You can experiment with it at home [Bilton looks puzzled]

SARAH Bilton will do nothing of the sort, papa I suppose it's your business to blow up the Russians and Japs, but you might really stop short of blowing up poor Cholly [Bilton gives it up and retires into the shed]

LOMAX My ownest, there is no danger [He sits beside her on the shell]

Lady Britomart arrives from the town with a bouquet

LADY BRITOMART [impetuously] Andrew you shouldn't have let me see this place

UNDERSHAFT Why, my dear?

LADY BRITOMART Never mind why you shouldn't have that's all To think of all that [indicating the town] being yours! and that you have kept it to yourself all these years!

UNDERSHAFT It does not belong to me I belong to it It is the Undershaft inheritance

LADY BRITOMART It is not Your ridiculous cannons and that noisy banging foundry may be the Undershaft inheritance, but all that plate and linen, all that furniture and those houses and orchards and gardens belong to us They belong to me they are not a man's business I won't give them up You must be out of your senses to throw them all away, and if you persist in such folly, I will call in a doctor

UNDERSHAFT [stooping to smell the bouquet] Where did you get the flowers, my dear?

LADY BRITOMART Your men presented them to me in your William Morris Labor Church! CUSINS Oh! It needed only that A Labor Church! [he mounts the firestep distractedly, and leans with his elbows on the parapet, turning his back to them]

LADY BRITOMART Yes, with Morris's words in mosaic letters ten feet high round the dome NO MAN IS GOOD ENOUGH TO BE ANOTHER MAN'S MASTER The cynicism of it!

UNDERSHAFT It shocked the men at first, I am afraid But now they take no more notice of it than of the ten commandments in church

LADY BRITOMART Andrew you are trying to put me off the subject of the inheritance by profane jokes Well, you shant I dont ask it any longer for Stephen he has inherited far too much of your perversity to be fit for it But Barbara has rights as well as Stephen Why should not Adolphus succeed to the inheritance? I could manage the town for him and he can look after the cannons, if they are really necessary

UNDERSHAFT I should ask nothing better if Adolphus were a foundling He is exactly the sort of new blood that is wanted in English business But he's not a foundling, and theres an end of it [He makes for the office door]

CUSINS [turning to them] Not quite [They all turn and stare at him] I think—Mind! I am not committing myself in any way as to my future course—but I think the foundling difficulty can be got over [He jumps down to the emplacement]

UNDERSHAFT [coming back to him] What do you mean?

CUSINS Well, I have something to say which is in the nature of a confession

SARAH

BARBARA

STEPHEN

LOMAX Oh I say!

Confession!

CUSINS Yes, a confession Listen, all Until I met Barbara I thought myself in the main an honorable, truthful man, because I wanted the approval of my conscience more than I wanted anything else But the moment I saw Barbara, I wanted her far more than the approval of my conscience

LADY BRITOMART Adolphus!

CUSINS It is true You accused me yourself, Lady Brit, of joining the Army to worship Barbara, and so I did She bought my soul like a flower at a street corner, but she bought it for herself

UNDERSHAFT What! Not for Dionysos or another?

CUSINS Dionysos and all the others are in herself I adored what was divine in her, and was therefore a true worshipper But I was romantic about her too I thought she was a woman of the people, and that a marriage with a professor of Greek would be far beyond the wildest social ambitions of her rank

LADY BRITOMART Adolphus!!

LOMAX Oh I say!!!

CUSINS When I learnt the horrible truth—

LADY BRITOMART What do you mean by the horrible truth, pray?

CUSINS That she was enormously rich, that her grandfather was an earl, that her father was the Prince of Darkness—

UNDERSHAFT Chut!

CUSINS —and that I was only an adventurer trying to catch a rich wife, then I stooped to deceive her about my birth

BARBARA [rising] Dolly!

LADY BRITOMART Your birth! Now Adolphus, dont dare to make up a wicked story for the sake of these wretched cannons Remember I have seen photographs of your parents, and the Agent General for South Western Australia knows them personally and has assured me that they are most respectable married people

CUSINS So they are in Australia, but here they are outcasts Their marriage is legal in Australia, but not in England My mother is my father's deceased wife's sister, and in this island I am consequently a foundling [Sensation]

BARBARA Silly! [She climbs to the cannon, and leans, listening, in the angle it makes with the parapet]

CUSINS Is the subterfuge good enough, Machiavelli?

UNDERSHAFT [thoughtfully] Biddy this may be a way out of the difficulty

LADY BRITOMART Stuff! A man cant make cannons any the better for being his own cousin instead of his proper self [she sits down on the rug with a bounce that expresses her down-right contempt for their casuistry]

UNDERSHAFT [to Cusins] You are an educated man That is against the tradition

CUSINS Once in ten thousand times it happens that the schoolboy is a born master of what they try to teach him Greek has not destroyed my mind it has nourished it Besides, I did not learn it at an English public school

UNDERSHAFT Hm! Well, I cannot afford to be too particular you have cornered the foundling market Let it pass You are eligible, Euripides you are eligible

BARBARA Dolly yesterday morning, when Stephen told us all about the tradition, you became very silent, and you have been strange and excited ever since Were you thinking of your birth then?

CUSINS When the finger of Destiny suddenly points at a man in the middle of his breakfast, it makes him thoughtful UNDERSHAFT Aha! You have had your eye on the business, my young friend, have you?

CUSINS Take care! There is an abyss of moral horror between me and your accursed aerial battleships UNDERSHAFT Never mind the abyss for the present Let us settle the practical details and leave your final decision open You know that you will have to change your name Do you object to that?

CUSINS Would any man named Adolphus—any man called Dolly!—object to be called something else?

UNDERSHAFT Good Now, as to money! I propose to treat you handsomely from the beginning You shall start at a thousand a year

CUSINS [with sudden heat, his spectacles twinkling with mischief] A thousand! You dare offer a miserable thousand to the son-in-law of a millionaire! No, by Heavens, Machiavelli! you shall not cheat me You cannot do without me, and I can do without you I must have two thousand five hundred a year for two years At the end of that time, if I am a failure, I go But if I am a success, and stay on, you must give me the other five thousand

UNDERSHAFT What other five thousand?

CUSINS To make the two years up to five thousand a year The two thousand five hundred is only half pay in case I should turn out a failure The third year I must have ten per cent on the profits

UNDERSHAFT [taken aback] Ten per cent! Why, man, do you know what my profits are?

CUSINS Enormous, I hope otherwise I shall require twentyfive per cent

UNDERSHAFT But, Mr Cusins, this is a serious matter of business You are not bringing any capital into the concern

CUSINS What! no capital! Is my mastery of Greek no capital? Is my access to the subtlest thought, the loftiest poetry yet attained by humanity, no capital? My character! my intellect! my life! my career! what Barbara calls my soul! are these no capital? Say another word, and I double my salary

UNDERSHAFT Be reasonable—

CUSINS [peremptorily] Mr Undershaft you have my terms Take them or leave them

UNDERSHAFT [recovering himself] Very well I note your terms, and I offer you half CUSINS [disgusted] Half!

UNDERSHAFT [firmly] Half

CUSINS You call yourself a gentleman, and you offer me half!

UNDERSHAFT I do not call myself a gentleman, but I offer you half CUSINS This to your future partner! your successor! your son-in-law!

BARBARA You are selling your own soul, Dolly, not mine Leave me out of the bargain, please

UNDERSHAFT Come! I will go a step further for Barbara's sake I will give you three fifths, but that is my last word

CUSINS Done!

LOMAX Done in the eye! Why, I get only eight hundred, you know

CUSINS By the way, Mac, I am a classical scholar, not an arithmetical one Is three fifths more than half or less?

UNDERSHAFT More, of course

CUSINS I would have taken two hundred and fifty How you can succeed in business when you are willing to pay all that money to a University don who is obviously not worth a junior clerk's wages!—well! What will Lazarus say?

UNDERSHAFT Lazarus is a gentle romantic Jew who cares for nothing but string quartets and stalls at fashionable theatres. He will be blamed for your rapacity in money matters, poor fellow! as he has hitherto been blamed for mine. You are a shark of the first order, Euripides. So much the better for the firm!

BARBARA Is the bargain closed, Dolly? Does your soul belong to him now?

CUSINS No, the price is settled, that is all. The real tug of war is still to come. What about the moral question?

LADY BRITOMART There is no moral question in the matter at all, Adolphus. You must simply sell cannons and weapons to people whose cause is right and just, and refuse them to foreigners and criminals.

UNDERSHAFT [determinedly] No, none of that. You must keep the true faith of an Armorer, or you don't come in here.

CUSINS What on earth is the true faith of an Armorer?

UNDERSHAFT To give arms to all men who offer an honest price for them, without respect of persons or principles, to aristocrat and republican, to Nihilist and Tsar, to Capitalist and Socialist, to Protestant and Catholic, to burglar and policeman, to black man, white man and yellow man, to all sorts and conditions, all nationalities, all faiths, all follies, all causes and all crimes. The first Undershaft wrote up in his shop IF GOD GAVE THE HAND, LET NOT MAN WITHHOLD THE SWORD. The second wrote up ALL HAVE THE RIGHT TO FIGHT. NONE HAVE THE RIGHT TO JUDGE. The third wrote up TO MAN THE WEAPON TO HEAVEN THE VICTORY. The fourth had no literary turn, so he did not write up anything, but he sold cannons to Napoleon under the nose of George the Third. The fifth wrote up PEACE SHALL NOT PREVAIL SAVE WITH A SWORD IN HER HAND. The sixth, my master, was the best of all. He wrote up NOTHING IS EVER DONE IN THIS WORLD UNTIL MEN ARE PREPARED TO KILL ONE ANOTHER IF IT IS NOT DONE. After that, there was nothing left for the seventh to say. So he wrote up, simply, UNASHAMED.

CUSINS My good Machiavelli, I shall certainly write something up on the wall, only, as I shall write it in Greek, you won't be able to read it. But as to your Armorer's faith, if I take my neck out of the noose of my own morality, I am not going to put it into the noose of yours. I shall sell cannons to whom I please and refuse them to whom I please. So there!

UNDERSHAFT From the moment when you become Andrew Undershaft, you will never do as you please again. Don't come here lusting for power, young man.

CUSINS If power were my aim, I should not come here for it. You have no power.

UNDERSHAFT None of my own, certainly.

CUSINS I have more power than you, more will. You do not drive this place, it drives you. And what drives the place?

UNDERSHAFT [enigmatically] A will of which I am a part.

BARBARA [startled] Father! Do you know what you are saying, or are you laying a snare for my soul?

CUSINS Don't listen to his metaphysics, Barbara. The place is driven by the most rascally part of society, the money hunters, the pleasure hunters, the military promotion hunters, and he is their slave.

UNDERSHAFT Not necessarily. Remember the Armorer's Faith. I will take an order from a good man as cheerfully as from a bad one. If you good people prefer preaching and shirking to buying my weapons and fighting the rascals, don't blame me. I can make cannons. I cannot make courage and conviction. Bah! you tire me, Euripides, with your morality mongering. Ask Barbara, she understands. [He suddenly reaches up and takes Barbara's hands, looking powerfully into her eyes] Tell him, my love, what power really means.

BARBARA [hypnotized] Before I joined the Salvation Army, I was in my own power, and the consequence was that I never knew what to do with myself. When I joined it, I had not time enough for all the things I had to do.

UNDERSHAFT [approvingly] Just so. And why was that, do you suppose?

BARBARA Yesterday I should have said, because I was in the power of God. [She resumes her self-possession, withdrawing her hands from his with a power equal to his own] But you came and shewed me that I was in the power of Bodger and Undershaft. Today I feel—oh! how can I put it into words? Sarah, do you remember the earthquake at Cannes, when we were little children?—how little the surprise of the first shock mattered compared to the dread and horror of waiting for the second? That is how I feel in this place today I stood on the rock I thought eternal, and without a word of warning it reeled and crumbled under me I was safe with an infinite wisdom watching me, an army marching to Salvation with me, and in a moment, at a stroke of your pen in a cheque book, I stood alone, and the heavens were empty That was the first shock of the earthquake I am waiting for the second

UNDERSHAFT Come, come, my daughter! don't make too much of your little tinpot tragedy What do we do here when we spend years of work and thought and thousands of pounds of solid cash on a new gun or an aerial battleship that turns out just a hairsbreadth wrong after all? Scrap it Scrap it without wasting another hour or another pound on it Well, you have made for yourself something that you call a morality or a religion or what not It doesn't fit the facts Well, scrap it Scrap it and get one that does fit That is what is wrong with the world at present It scraps its obsolete steam engines and dynamos, but it won't scrap its old prejudices and its old moralities and its old religions and its old political constitutions What's the result? In machinery it does very well, but in morals and religion and politics it is working at a loss that brings it nearer bankruptcy every year Don't persist in that folly If your old religion broke down yesterday, get a newer and a better one for tomorrow

BARBARA Oh how gladly I would take a better one to my soul! But you offer me a worse one [Turning on him with sudden vehemence] Justify yourself shew me some light through the darkness of this dreadful place, with its beautifully clean workshops, and respectable workmen, and model homes

UNDERSHAFT Cleanliness and respectability do not need justification, Barbara they justify themselves I see no darkness here, no dreadfulness In your Salvation shelter I saw poverty, misery, cold, and hunger You gave them bread and treacle and dreams of heaven I give from thirty shillings a week to twelve thousand a year They find their own dreams, but I look after the drainage

BARBARA And their souls?

UNDERSHAFT I save their souls just as I saved yours

BARBARA [revolted] You saved my soul! What do you mean?

UNDERSHAFT I fed you and clothed you and housed you I took care that you should have money enough to live handsomely—more than enough, so that you could be wasteful, careless, generous That saved your soul from the seven deadly sins

BARBARA [bemuddled] The seven deadly sins!

UNDERSHAFT Yes, the deadly seven [Counting on his fingers] Food, clothing, firing, rent, taxes, respectability, and children Nothing can lift those seven millstones from Man's neck but money, and the spirit cannot soar until the millstones are lifted I lifted them from your spirit I enabled Barbara to become Major Barbara, and I saved her from the crime of poverty

CUSINS Do you call poverty a crime?

UNDERSHAFT The worst of crimes All the other crimes are virtues—beside it all the other dishonors are chivalry itself by comparison Poverty blights whole cities, spreads horrible pestilences, strikes dead the very souls of all who come within sight, sound, or smell of it What you call crime is nothing a murder here and a theft there, a blow now and a curse then what do they matter? they are only the accidents and illnesses of life there are not fifty genuine professional criminals in London But there are millions of poor people, abject people, dirty people, ill fed, ill clothed people They poison us morally and physically they kill the happiness of society they force us to do away with our own liberties and to organize unnatural cruelties for fear they should rise against us and drag us down into their abyss Only fools fear crime we all fear poverty, Pah! [turning on Barbara] you talk of your half-saved ruffian in West Ham you accuse me of dragging his soul back to perdition Well, bring him to me here, and I will drag his soul back again to salvation for you Not by words and dreams, but by thirty-eight shillings a week, a sound house in a handsome street, and a permanent job In three weeks he will have a fancy waistcoat, in three months a tall hat and a chapel sitting, before the end of the year he will shake hands with a duchess at a Primrose League meeting, and join the Conservative Party

BARBARA And will he be the better for that?

UNDERSHAFT You know he will Don't be a hypocrite, Barbara He will be better fed, better housed, better clothed, better behaved, and his children will be pounds heavier and bigger That will be better than an American cloth mattress in a shelter, chopping firewood, eating bread and treacle, and being forced to kneel down from time to time to thank heaven for it knee drill, I think you call it. It is cheap work converting starving men with a Bible in one hand and a slice of bread in the other. I will undertake to convert West Ham to Mahometanism on the same terms. Try your hand on my men: their souls are hungry because their bodies are full.

BARBARA And leave the east end to starve?

UNDERSHAFT [his energetic tone dropping into one of bitter and brooding remembrance] I was an east ender. I moralized and starved until one day I swore that I would be a full-fed free man at all costs, that nothing should stop me except a bullet, neither reason nor morals nor the lives of other men. I said "Thou shalt starve ere I starve", and with that word I became free and great. I was a dangerous man until I had my will: now I am a useful, beneficent, kindly person. That is the history of most self-made millionaires, I fancy. When it is the history of every Englishman we shall have an England worth living in.

LADY BRITOMART Stop making speeches, Andrew. This is not the place for them.

UNDERSHAFT [punctured] My dear I have no other means of conveying my ideas.

LADY BRITOMART Your ideas are nonsense. You got on because you were selfish and unscrupulous.

UNDERSHAFT Not at all. I had the strongest scruples about poverty and starvation. Your moralists are quite unscrupulous about both: they make virtues of them. I had rather be a thief than a pauper, I had rather be a murderer than a slave. I don't want to be either, but if you force the alternative on me, then, by Heaven, I'll choose the braver and more moral one. I hate poverty and slavery worse than any other crimes whatsoever. And let me tell you this: Poverty and slavery have stood up for centuries to your sermons and leading articles: they will not stand up to my machine guns. Don't preach at them: don't reason with them. Kill them.

BARBARA Killing. Is that your remedy for everything?

UNDERSHAFT It is the final test of conviction, the only lever strong enough to overturn a social system, the only way of saying Must. Let six hundred and seventy fools loose in the streets, and three policemen can scatter them. But huddle them together in a certain house in Westminster, and let them go through certain ceremonies and call themselves certain names until at last they get the courage to kill, and your six hundred and seventy fools become a government. Your pious mob fills up ballot papers and imagines it is governing its masters, but the ballot paper that really governs is the paper that has a bullet wrapped up in it.

CUSINS That is perhaps why, like most intelligent people, I never vote.

UNDERSHAFT Vote! Bah! When you vote, you only change the names of the cabinet. When you shoot, you pull down governments, inaugurate new epochs, abolish old orders and set up new. Is that historically true, Mr Learned Man, or is it not?

CUSINS It is historically true. I loathe having to admit it. I repudiate your sentiments. I abhor your nature. I defy you in every possible way. Still, it is true. But it ought not to be true.

UNDERSHAFT Ought! ought! ought! ought! ought! Are you going to spend your life saying ought, like the rest of our moralists? Turn your oughts into shalls, man. Come and make explosives with me. Whatever can blow men up can blow society up. The history of the world is the history of those who had courage enough to embrace this truth. Have you the courage to embrace it, Barbara?

LADY BRITOMART Barbara. I positively forbid you to listen to your father's abominable wickedness. And you, Adolphus, ought to know better than to go about saying that wrong things are true. What does it matter whether they are true if they are wrong?

UNDERSHAFT What does it matter whether they are wrong if they are true?

LADY BRITOMART [rising] Children come home instantly. Andrew, I am exceedingly sorry I allowed you to call on us. You are wickedder than ever. Come at once.

BARBARA [shaking her head] It's no use running away from wicked people, mamma.

LADY BRITOMART It is every use. It shews your disapprobation of them.

BARBARA It does not save them.

LADY BRITOMART I can see that you are going to disobey me. Sarah, are you coming home or are you not?

SARAH I daresay it's very wicked of papa to make cannons, but I don't think I shall cut him on that account

LOMAX [pouring oil on the troubled waters] The fact is, you know, there is a certain amount of tosh about this notion of wickedness. It doesn't work. You must look at facts. Not that I would say a word in favor of anything wrong, but then, you see, all sorts of chaps are always doing all sorts of things, and we have to fit them in somehow, don't you know? What I mean is that you can't go cutting everybody and that's about what it comes to [Their rapt attention to his eloquence makes him nervous]. Perhaps I don't make myself clear.

LADY BRITOMART You are lucidity itself, Charles. Because Andrew is successful and has plenty of money to give to Sarah, you will flatter him and encourage him in his wickedness.

LOMAX [unruffled] Well, where the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered, don't you know? [To Undershaft] Eh? What?

UNDERSHAFT Precisely. By the way, may I call you Charles?

LOMAX Delighted. Cholly is the usual ticket.

UNDERSHAFT [to Lady Britomart] Biddy—

LADY BRITOMART [violently] Don't dare call me Biddy. Charles Lomax, you are a fool. Adolphus Cusins, you are a Jesuit. Stephen, you are a prig. Barbara, you are a lunatic. Andrew, you are a vulgar tradesman. Now you all know my opinion, and my conscience is clear, at all events [she sits down with a vehemence that the rug fortunately softens].

UNDERSHAFT. My dear, you are the incarnation of morality [She snorts]. Your conscience is clear and your duty done when you have called everybody names. Come, Euripides! it is getting late and we all want to go home. Make up your mind.

CUSINS Understand this, you old demon—

LADY BRITOMART Adolphus!

UNDERSHAFT Let him alone, Biddy. Proceed, Euripides.

CUSINS You have me in a horrible dilemma. I want Barbara.

UNDERSHAFT Like all young men, you greatly exaggerate the difference between one young woman and another.

BARBARA Quite true, Dolly.

CUSINS I also want to avoid being a rascal.

UNDERSHAFT [with biting contempt] You lust for personal righteousness, for self-approval, for what you call a good conscience, for what Barbara calls salvation, for what I call patronizing people who are not so lucky as yourself.

CUSINS I do not. All the poet in me recoils from being a good man. But there are things in me that I must reckon with. Pity—

UNDERSHAFT Pity! The scavenger of misery.

CUSINS Well, love.

UNDERSHAFT I know. You love the needy and the outcast, you love the oppressed races, the negro, the Indian ryot, the underdog everywhere. Do you love the Japanese? Do you love the French? Do you love the English?

CUSINS No. Every true Englishman detests the English. We are the wickedest nation on earth, and our success is a moral horror.

UNDERSHAFT That is what comes of your gospel of love, is it?

CUSINS May I not love even my father-in-law?

UNDERSHAFT Who wants your love, man? By what right do you take the liberty of offering it to me? I will have your due heed and respect, or I will kill you. But your love! Damn your impertinence!

CUSINS [grinning] I may not be able to control my affections, Mac.

UNDERSHAFT You are fencing, Euripides. You are weakening. Your grip is slipping. Come! try your last weapon. Pity and love have broken in your hand. Forgiveness is still left.

CUSINS No. Forgiveness is a beggar's refuge. I am with you there. We must pay our debts.

UNDERSHAFT Well said. Come! you will suit me. Remember the words of Plato.

CUSINS [starting] Plato! You dare quote Plato to me!

UNDERSHAFT Plato says my friend, that society cannot be saved until either the Professors of Greek take to making gunpowder, or else the makers of gunpowder become Professors of Greek.

CUSINS Oh tempter, cunning tempter!

UNDERSHAFT Come! choose, man, choose.

CUSINS But perhaps Barbara will not marry me if I make the wrong choice.

BARBARA Perhaps not.

CUSINS [desperately perplexed] You hear!

BARBARA Father, do you love nobody?

UNDERSHAFT I love my best friend.

LADY BRITOMART And who is that, pray?

UNDERSHAFT My bravest enemy That is the man who keeps me up to the mark

CUSINS You know, the creature is really a sort of poet in his way Suppose he is a great man, after all!

UNDERSHAFT Suppose you stop talking and make up your mind, my young friend

CUSINS But you are driving me against my nature I hate war

UNDERSHAFT Hatred is the coward's revenge for being intimidated Dare you make war on war? Here are the means my friend Mr Lomax is sitting on them

LOMAX [springing up] Oh I say! You dont mean that this thing is loaded, do you? My ownest come off it

SARAH [sitting placidly on the shell] If I am to be blown up, the more thoroughly it is done the better Dont fuss, Cholly

LOMAX [to Undershaft, strongly remonstrant] Your own daughter, you know!

UNDERSHAFT So I see [To Cusins] Well, my friend, may we expect you here at six tomorrow morning?

CUSINS [firmly] Not on any account I will see the whole establishment blown up with its own dynamite before I will get up at five My hours are healthy, rational hours eleven to five

UNDERSHAFT Come when you please before a week you will come at six and stay until I turn you out for the sake of your health [Calling] Bilton! [He turns to Lady Britomart, who rises] My dear let us leave these two young people to themselves for a moment [Bilton comes from the shed] I am going to take you through the guncotton shed

BILTON [barring the way] You cant take anything explosive in here, sir

LADY BRITOMART What do you mean? Are you alluding to me?

BILTON [unmoved] No, maam Mr Undershaft has the other gentleman's matches in his pocket

LADY BRITOMART [abruptly] Oh! I beg your pardon [She goes into the shed]

UNDERSHAFT Quite right, Bilton, quite right here you are [He gives Bilton the box of matches] Come, Stephen Come, Charles Bring Sarah [He passes into the shed]

Bilton opens the box and deliberately drops the matches into the fire-bucket

LOMAX Oh I say! [Bilton stolidly hands him

the empty box] Infernal nonsense! Pure scientific ignorance! [He goes in]

SARAH Am I all right, Bilton?

BILTON Youll have to put on list slippers, miss thats all Weve got em inside [She goes in]

STEPHEN [very seriously to Cusins] Dolly, old fellow, think Think before you decide Do you feel that you are a sufficiently practical man? It is a huge undertaking, an enormous responsibility All this mass of business will be Greek to you

CUSINS Oh, I think it will be much less difficult than Greek

STEPHEN Well, I just want to say this before I leave you to yourselves Dont let anything I have said about right and wrong prejudice you against this great chance in life. I have satisfied myself that the business is one of the highest character and a credit to our country [Emotionally] I am very proud of my father I— [Unable to proceed, he presses Cusins' hand and goes hastily into the shed, followed by Bilton]

Barbara and Cusins, left alone together, look at one another silently

CUSINS Barbara I am going to accept this offer

BARBARA I thought you would

CUSINS You understand, dont you, that I had to decide without consulting you If I had thrown the burden of the choice on you, you would sooner or later have despised me for it

BARBARA Yes I did not want you to sell your soul for me any more than for this inheritance

CUSINS It is not the sale of my soul that troubles me I have sold it too often to care about that I have sold it for a professorship I have sold it for an income I have sold it to escape being imprisoned for refusing to pay taxes for hangmen's ropes and unjust wars and things that I abhor What is all human conduct but the daily and hourly sale of our souls for trifles? What I am now selling it for is neither money nor position nor comfort, but for reality and for power

BARBARA You know that you will have no power, and that he has none

CUSINS I know It is not for myself alone I want to make power for the world

BARBARA I want to make power for the world too, but it must be spiritual power

CUSINS I think all power is spiritual these cannons will not go off by themselves I have tried to make spiritual power by teaching Greek But the world can never be really touched by a dead language and a dead civilization The people must have power, and the people cannot have Greek Now the power that is made here can be wielded by all men

BARBARA Power to burn women's houses down and kill their sons and tear their husbands to pieces

CUSINS You cannot have power for good without having power for evil too Even mother's milk nourishes murderers as well as heroes This power which only tears men's bodies to pieces has never been so horribly abused as the intellectual power, the imaginative power, the poetic, religious power that can enslave men's souls As a teacher of Greek I gave the intellectual man weapons against the common man I now want to give the common man weapons against the intellectual man I love the common people I want to arm them against the lawyers, the doctors, the priests, the literary men, the professors, the artists, and the politicians, who, once in authority, are more disastrous and tyrannical than all the fools, rascals, and impostors I want a power simple enough for common men to use, yet strong enough to force the intellectual oligarchy to use its genius for the general good

BARBARA Is there no higher power than that [pointing to the shell]

CUSINS Yes, but that power can destroy the higher powers just as a tiger can destroy a man therefore Man must master that power first I admitted this when the Turks and Greeks were last at war My best pupil went out to fight for Hellas. My parting gift to him was not a copy of Plato's Republic, but a revolver and a hundred Undershaft cartridges The blood of every Turk he shot—if he shot any—is on my head as well as on Undershaft's That act committed me to this place for ever Your father's challenge has beaten me. Dare I make war on war? I dare I must I will And now, is it all over between us?

BARBARA [touched by his evident dread of her answer] Silly baby Dolly! How could it be?

CUSINS [overjoyed] Then you—you—you—Oh for my drum! [He flourishes imaginary drumsticks]

BARBARA [angered by his levity] Take care,

Dolly, take care Oh, if only I could get away from you and from father and from it all! if I could have the wings of a dove and fly away to heaven!

CUSINS And leave me!

BARBARA Yes, you, and all the other naughty mischievous children of men But I cant I was happy in the Salvation Army for a moment I escaped from the world into a paradise of enthusiasm and prayer and soul saving, but the moment our money ran short, it all came back to Bodger it was he who saved our people he, and the Prince of Darkness, my papa Undershaft and Bodger their hands stretch everywhere when we feed a starving fellow creature, it is with their bread, because there is no other bread when we tend the sick, it is in the hospitals they endow; if we turn from the churches they build, we must kneel on the stones of the streets they pave As long as that lasts, there is no getting away from them Turning our backs on Bodger and Undershaft is turning our backs on life

CUSINS I thought you were determined to turn your back on the wicked side of life

BARBARA There is no wicked side life is all one And I never wanted to shirk my share in whatever evil must be endured, whether it be sin or suffering I wish I could cure you of middle-class ideas, Dolly CUSINS [gasping] Middle class! A snub! A social snub to me! from the daughter of a foundling!

BARBARA That is why I have no class, Dolly I come straight out of the heart of the whole people If I were middle-class I should turn my back on my father's business, and we should both live in an artistic drawing room, with you reading the reviews in one corner, and I in the other at the piano, playing Schumann both very superior persons, and neither of us a bit of use Sooner than that, I would sweep out the guncotton shed, or be one of Bodger's barmaids Do you know what would have happened if you had refused papa's offer?

CUSINS I wonder!

BARBARA I should have given you up and married the man who accepted it. After all, my dear old mother has more sense than any of you I felt like her when I saw this place—felt that I must have it—that never, never, never could I let it go, only she thought it was the houses and the kitchen ranges and the linen and china, when it was really all the human souls to be saved not weak souls in starved bodies, sobbing with gratitude for a scrap of bread and treacle, but fullfed, quarrelsome, snobbish, uppish creatures, all standing on their little rights and dignities, and thinking that my father ought to be greatly obliged to them for making so much money for him—and so he ought That is where salvation is really wanted—My father shall never throw it in my teeth again that my converts were bribed with bread [She is transfigured] I have got rid of the bribe of bread I have got rid of the bribe of heaven Let God's work be done for its own sake the work he had to create us to do because it cannot be done except by living men and women When I die, let him be in my debt, not I in his, and let me forgive him as becomes a woman of my rank

CUSINS Then the way of life lies through the factory of death?

BARBARA Yes, through the raising of hell to heaven and of man to God, through the unveiling of an eternal light in the Valley of The Shadow [Seizing him with both hands] Oh, did you think my courage would never come back? did you believe that I was a deserter? that I, who have stood in the streets, and taken my people to my heart, and talked of the holiest and greatest things with them, could ever turn back and chatter foolishly to fashionable people about nothing in a drawing room? Never, never, never, never Major Barbara will die with the colors Oh! and I have my dear little Dolly still, and he has found me my place and my work Glory Hallelujah! [She kisses him]

CUSINS My dearest consider my delicate health I cannot stand as much happiness as you can

BARBARA Yes it is not easy work being in love with me, is it? But it's good for you [She runs to the shed, and calls, childlike] Mamma! Mamma! [Billon comes out of the shed, followed by Undershaft] I want Mamma UNDERSHAFT She is taking off her list slippers, dear [He passes on to Cusins] Well? What does she say?

CUSINS She has gone right up into the skies

LADY BRITOMART [coming from the shed and stopping on the steps, obstructing Sarah, who follows with Lomax] Barbara clutches like a baby at her mother's skirt! Barbara when will you learn to be independent and to act and think for yourself? I know as well as possible what that cry of "Mamma, Mamma," means Always running to me!

SARAH [touching Lady Britomart's ribs with her finger tips and imitating a bicycle horn] Pip! pip!

LADY BRITOMART [highly indignant] How dare you say Pip! pip! to me, Sarah? You are both very naughty children What do you want, Barbara?

BARBARA I want a house in the village to live in with Dolly [Dragging at the skirt] Come and tell me which one to take

UNDERSHAFT [to Cusins] Six o'clock tomorrow morning, Euripides

THE DOCTOR'S DILEMMA

A TRAGEDY (1906)

ACT I

On the 15th June 1903, in the early forenoon, a medical student, surname Redpenny, Christian name unknown and of no importance, sits at work in a doctor's consulting room He devils for the doctor by answering his letters, acting as his domestic laboratory assistant, and making himself indispensable generally, in return for unspecified advantages involved by intimate intercourse with a leader of his profession, and amounting to an informal apprenticeship and a temporary affiliation Redpenny is not proud, and will do anything he is asked without reservation of his personal dignity if he is asked in a fellow-creaturely way He is a wide-open-eyed, ready, credulous, friendly, hasty youth, with his hair and clothes in reluctant transition from the untidy boy to the tidy doctor cares, the preoccupations, the responsibilities, jealousies, and anxieties of personal beauty. She has the complexion of a never-washed gypsy, incurable by any detergent, and she has, not a regular beard and moustaches, which could at least be trimmed and waxed into a masculine presentableness, but a whole crop of small beards and moustaches, mostly springing from moles all over her face. She carries a duster and toddles about meddlesomely, spying out dust so diligently that whilst she is flicking off one speck she is already looking elsewhere for another. In conversation she has the same trick, hardly ever looking at the person she is addressing except when she is excited. She has only one manner, and that is the manner of an old family nurse to a child just after it has learnt to walk. She has used her ugliness to secure indulgences unattainable by Cleopatra or Fair Rosamund, and has the further great advantage over them that age increases her qualification instead of impairing it. Being an industrious, agreeable, and popular old soul, she is a walking sermon on the vanity of feminine prettiness. Just as Redpenny has no discovered Christian name, she has no discovered surname, and is known throughout the doctors' quarter between Cavendish Square and the Marylebone Road simply as Emmy.

The consulting room has two windows looking on Queen Anne Street. Between the two is a marble-topped console, with haunched gilt legs ending in sphinx claws. The huge pier-glass which surmounts it is mostly disabled from reflection by elaborate painting on its surface of palms, ferns, lilies, tulips, and sunflowers. The adjoining wall contains the fireplace, with two arm-chairs before it. As we happen to face the corner we see nothing of the other two walls. On the right of the fireplace, or rather on the right of any person facing the fireplace, is the door. On its left is the writing-table at which Redpenny sits. It is an untidy table, with a microscope, several test tubes, and a spirit lamp standing up through its litter of papers. There is a couch in the middle of the room, at right angles to the console, and parallel to the fireplace. A chair stands between the couch and the window. Another in the corner. Another at the other end of the windowed wall. The windows have green Venetian blinds and rep curtains, and there is a gasolier, but it is a convert to electric lighting. The wall paper and carpets are mostly green, coeval with the gasolier and the Venetian blinds. The house, in fact, was so well furnished in the middle of the XIXth century that it stands unaltered to this day and is still quite presentable.

EMMY [entering and immediately beginning to dust the couch] There's a lady bothering me to see the doctor.

REDPENNY [distracted by the interruption] Well, she can't see the doctor. Look here, what's the use of telling you that the doctor can't take any new patients, when the moment a knock comes to the door, in you bounce to ask whether he can see somebody?

EMMY Who asked you whether he could see somebody?

REDPENNY You did.

EMMY I said there's a lady bothering me to see the doctor. That isn't asking. It's telling.

REDPENNY Well, is the lady bothering you any reason for you to come bothering me when I'm busy?

EMMY Have you seen the papers?

REDPENNY No.

EMMY Not seen the birthday honors?

REDPENNY [beginning to swear] What the—

EMMY Now, now, ducky!

REDPENNY What do you suppose I care about the birthday honors? Get out of this with your chattering. Dr Ridgeon will be down before I have these letters ready. Get out.

EMMY Dr Ridgeon won't never be down any more, young man.

She detects dust on the console and is down on it immediately.

REDPENNY [jumping up and following her] What?

EMMY He's been made a knight. Mind you don't go Dr Ridgeoning him in them letters. Sir Colenso Ridgeon is to be his name now.

REDPENNY I'm jolly glad.

EMMY I never was so taken aback. I always thought his great discoveries was fudge (let alone the mess of them) with his drops of blood and tubes full of Maltese fever and the like. Now he'll have a rare laugh at me.

REDPENNY Serve you right! It was like your cheek to talk to him about science. [He returns to his table and resumes his writing]

EMMY Oh, I don't think much of science, and neither will you when you've lived as long with it as I have. What's on my mind is answering the door. Old Sir Patrick Cullen has been here already and left first congratulations—hadn't time to come up on his way to the hospital, but was determined to be first—coming back, he said. All the rest will be here too: the knocker will be going all day.

What I'm afraid of is that the doctor'll want a footman like all the rest, now that he's Sir Colenso. Mind, don't you go putting him up to it, ducky, for he'll never have any comfort with anybody but me to answer the door. I know who to let in and who to keep out. And that reminds me of the poor lady. I think he ought to see her. She's just the kind that puts him in a good temper. [She dusts Redpenny's papers]

REDPENNY I tell you he can't see anybody. Do go away, Emmy. How can I work with you dusting all over me like this?

EMMY I'm not hindering you working—if you call writing letters working. There goes the bell. [She looks out of the window] A doctor's carriage. That's more congratulations. [She is going out when Sir Colenso Ridgemon enters] Have you finished your two eggs, sonny?

RIDGEON Yes

EMMY Have you put on your clean vest?

RIDGEON Yes

EMMY That's my ducky diamond! Now keep yourself tidy and don't go messing about and dirtying your hands. The people are coming to congratulate you. [She goes out]

Sir Colenso Ridgemon is a man of fifty who has never shaken off his youth. He has the off-handed manner and the little audacities of address which a shy and sensitive man acquires in breaking himself in to intercourse with all sorts and conditions of men. His face is a good deal lined, his movements are slower than, for instance, Redpenny's, and his flaxen hair has lost its lustre, but in figure and manner he is more the young man than the titled physician. Even the lines in his face are those of overwork and restless scepticism, perhaps partly of curiosity and appetite, rather than that of age. Just at present the announcement of his knighthood in the morning papers makes him specially self-conscious, and consequently specially off-hand with Redpenny.

RIDGEON Have you seen the papers? You'll have to alter the name in the letters if you haven't.

REDPENNY Emmy has just told me. I'm awfully glad I—

RIDGEON Enough, young man, enough. You will soon get accustomed to it.

REDPENNY They ought to have done it years ago.

RIDGEON They would have, only they couldn't stand Emmy opening the door, I daresay.

EMMY [at the door, announcing] Dr Shoemaker. [She withdraws]

A middle-aged gentleman, well dressed, comes in with a friendly but propitiatory air, not quite sure of his reception. His combination of soft manners and responsive kindness, with a certain unseizable reserve and a familiar yet foreign chiselling of feature, reveal the Jew in this instance the handsome gentlemanly Jew, gone a little pigeon-breasted and stale after thirty, as handsome young Jews often do, but still decidedly good-looking.

THE GENTLEMAN Do you remember me? Schutzmacher. University College school and Belsize Avenue. Loony Schutzmacher, you know.

RIDGEON What! Loony! [He shakes hands cordially] Why, man, I thought you were dead long ago. Sit down. [Schutzmacher sits on the couch. Ridgemon on the chair between it and the window] Where have you been these thirty years?

SCHUTZMACHER In general practice, until a few months ago. I've retired.

RIDGEON Well done, Loony! I wish I could afford to retire. Was your practice in London?

SCHUTZMACHER No.

RIDGEON Fashionable coast practice, I suppose.

SCHUTZMACHER How could I afford to buy a fashionable practice? I hadn't a rap. I set up in a manufacturing town in the midlands in a little surgery at ten shillings a week.

RIDGEON And made your fortune?

SCHUTZMACHER Well, I'm pretty comfortable. I have a place in Hertfordshire besides our flat in town. If you ever want a quiet Saturday to Monday, I'll take you down in my motor at an hour's notice.

RIDGEON Just rolling in money! I wish you rich g p's would teach me how to make some. What's the secret of it?

SCHUTZMACHER Oh, in my case the secret was simple enough, though I suppose I should have got into trouble if it had attracted any notice. And I'm afraid you'll think it rather infra dig.

RIDGEON Oh, I have an open mind. What was the secret?

SCHUTZMACHER Well, the secret was just two words.

RIDGEON Not Consultation Free, was it?

SCHUTZMACHER [shocked] No, no. Really!

RIDGEON [apologetic] Of course not. I was only joking.

SCHUTZMACHER My two words were simply Cure Guaranteed

RIDGEON [admiring] Cure Guaranteed!

SCHUTZMACHER Guaranteed After all, thats what everybody wants from a doctor, isnt it?

RIDGEON My dear Loony, it was an inspiration Was it on the brass plate?

SCHUTZMACHER There was no brass plate
It was a shop window red, you know, with black lettering Doctor Leo Schutzmacher, L R C P M R C S Advice and medicine sixpence Cure Guaranteed

RIDGEON And the guarantee proved sound nine times out of ten, eh?

SCHUTZMACHER [rather hurt at so moderate an estimate] Oh, much oftener than that You see, most people get well all right if they are careful and you give them a little sensible advice And the medicine really did them good Parrish's Chemical Food phosphates, you know. One tablespoonful to a twelve-ounce bottle of water nothing better, no matter what the case is

RIDGEON Redpenny make a note of Par-rish's Chemical Food

SCHUTZMACHER I take it myself, you know, when I feel run down Goodbye You dont mind my calling, do you? Just to congratulate you

RIDGEON Delighted, my dear Loony
Come to lunch on Saturday next week Bring your motor and take me down to Hertford

SCHUTZMACHER I will We shall be delighted Thank you Goodbye [He goes out with Ridgeon, who returns immediately]

REDPENNY Old Paddy Cullen was here before you were up, to be the first to congratulate you

RIDGEON Indeed Who taught you to speak of Sir Patrick Cullen as old Paddy Cullen, you young ruffian?

REDPENNY You never call him anything else

RIDGEON Not now that I am Sir Colenso
Next thing, you fellows will be calling me old Colly Ridgeon

REDPENNY We do, at St Anne's

RIDGEON Yach! Thats what makes the medical student the most disgusting figure in modern civilization No veneration, no manners—no—

EMMY [at the door, announcing] Sir Patrick
Cullen [She retires]

Sir Patrick Cullen is more than twenty years *older than Ridgeon, not yet quite at the end of his tether, but near it and resigned to it His name, his plain, downright, sometimes rather arid common sense, his large build and stature, the absence of those odd moments of ceremonial servility by which an old English doctor sometimes shews you what the status of the profession was in England in his youth, and an occasional turn of speech, are Irish, but he has lived all his life in England and is thoroughly acclimatized His manner to Ridgeon, whom he likes, is whimsical and fatherly to others he is a little gruff and uninviting, apt to substitute more or less expressive grunts for articulate speech, and generally indisposed, at his age, to make much social effort

He shakes Ridgeon's hand and beams at him cordially and jocularly*

SIR PATRICK Well, young chap Is your hat too small for you, eh?

RIDGEON Much too small I owe it all to
you

SIR PATRICK Blarney, my boy Thank you all the same [He sits in one of the armchairs near the fireplace Ridgeon sits on the couch]
I've come to talk to you a bit [To Redpenny]
Young man get out

REDPENNY Certainly, Sir Patrick [He collects his papers and makes for the door]

SIR PATRICK Thank you Thats a good lad [Redpenny vanishes] They all put up with me, these young chaps, because I'm an old man, a real old man, not like you You're only beginning to give yourself the airs of age Did you ever see a boy cultivating a moustache?
Well, a middle-aged doctor cultivating a grey head is much the same sort of spectacle

RIDGEON Good Lord! yes I suppose so
And I thought that the days of my vanity were past Tell me at what age does a man leave off being a fool?

SIR PATRICK Remember the Frenchman who asked his grandmother at what age we get free from the temptations of love The old woman said she didnt know [Ridgeon laughs]
Well, I make you the same answer But the world's growing very interesting to me now, Colly

RIDGEON You keep up your interest in science, do you?

SIR PATRICK Lord! yes Modern science is a wonderful thing Look at your great discovery! Look at all the great discoveries!
Where are they leading to? Why, right back to my poor dear old father's ideas and discoveries He's been dead now over forty years Oh, it's very interesting

RIDGEON Well, there's nothing like progress, is there?

SIR PATRICK Don't misunderstand me, my boy I'm not belittling your discovery Most discoveries are made regularly every fifteen years, and it's fully a hundred and fifty since yours was made last That's something to be proud of But your discovery's not new It's only inoculation My father practised inoculation until it was made criminal in eighteen-forty That broke the poor old man's heart, Colly he died of it And now it turns out that my father was right after all You've brought us back to inoculation

RIDGEON I know nothing about smallpox My line is tuberculosis and typhoid and plague But of course the principle of all vaccines is the same

SIR PATRICK Tuberculosis? M-m-m-m! You've found out how to cure consumption, eh?

RIDGEON I believe so

SIR PATRICK Ah yes It's very interesting What is it the old cardinal says in Browning's play? "I have known four and twenty leaders of revolt" Well, I've known over thirty men that found out how to cure consumption Why do people go on dying of it, Colly? Devilment, I suppose There was my father's old friend George Boddington of Sutton Coldfield He discovered the open-air cure in eighteen-forty He was ruined and driven out of his practice for only opening the windows, and now we won't let a consumptive patient have as much as a roof over his head Oh, it's very very interesting to an old man

RIDGEON You old cynic, you don't believe a bit in my discovery

SIR PATRICK No, no I don't go quite so far as that, Colly But still, you remember Jane Marsh?

RIDGEON Jane Marsh? No

SIR PATRICK You don't!

RIDGEON No

SIR PATRICK You mean to tell me you don't remember the woman with the tuberculous ulcer on her arm?

RIDGEON [enlightened] Oh, your washer-woman's daughter Was her name Jane Marsh? I forgot

SIR PATRICK Perhaps you've forgotten also that you undertook to cure her with Koch's tuberculin

RIDGEON And instead of curing her, it rotted her arm right off Yes I remember

Poor Jane! However, she makes a good living out of that arm now by shewing it at medical lectures

SIR PATRICK Still, that wasn't quite what you intended, was it?

RIDGEON I took my chance of it

SIR PATRICK Jane did, you mean

RIDGEON Well, it's always the patient who has to take the chance when an experiment is necessary And we can find out nothing without experiment

SIR PATRICK What did you find out from Jane's case?

RIDGEON I found out that the inoculation that ought to cure sometimes kills

SIR PATRICK I could have told you that I've tried these modern inoculations a bit myself I've killed people with them; and I've cured people with them, but I gave them up because I never could tell which I was going to do

RIDGEON [taking a pamphlet from a drawer in the writing-table and handing it to him] Read that the next time you have an hour to spare, and you'll find out why

SIR PATRICK [grumbling and fumbling for his spectacles] Oh, bother your pamphlets! What's the practice of it? [Looking at the pamphlet] Opsonin? What the devil is opsonin?

RIDGEON Opsonin is what you butter the disease germs with to make your white blood corpuscles eat them [He sits down again on the couch]

SIR PATRICK That's not new I've heard this notion that the white corpuscles—what is it that's his name?—Metchnikoff—calls them?

RIDGEON Phagocytes

SIR PATRICK Aye, phagocytes yes, yes, yes Well, I heard this theory that the phagocytes eat up the disease germs years ago long before you came into fashion Besides, they don't always eat them

RIDGEON They do when you butter them with opsonin

SIR PATRICK Gammon

RIDGEON No it's not gammon What it comes to in practice is this The phagocytes won't eat the microbes unless the microbes are nicely buttered for them Well, the patient manufactures the butter for himself all right, but my discovery is that the manufacture of that butter, which I call opsonin, goes on in the system by ups and downs—Nature being always rhythmical, you know —and that what the inoculation does is to stimulate the ups or downs as the case may be. If we had inoculated Jane Marsh when her butter factory was on the up-grade, we should have cured her arm. But we got in on the down-grade and lost her arm for her. I call the up-grade the positive phase and the down-grade the negative phase. Everything depends on your inoculating at the right moment. Inoculate when the patient is in the negative phase and you kill; inoculate when the patient is in the positive phase and you cure.

SIR PATRICK And pray how are you to know whether the patient is in the positive or the negative phase?

RIDGEON Send a drop of the patient's blood to the laboratory at St Anne's, and in fifteen minutes I'll give you his opsonin index in figures. If the figure is one, inoculate and cure; if it's under point eight, inoculate and kill. That's my discovery, the most important that has been made since Harvey discovered the circulation of the blood. My tuberculosis patients don't die now.

SIR PATRICK And mine do when my inoculation catches them in the negative phase, as you call it. Eh?

RIDGEON Precisely. To inject a vaccine into a patient without first testing his opsonin is as near murder as a respectable practitioner can get. If I wanted to kill a man I should kill him that way.

EMMY [looking in] Will you see a lady that wants her husband's lungs cured?

RIDGEON [impatiently] No. Haven't I told you I will see nobody? [To Sir Patrick] I live in a state of siege ever since it got about that I'm a magician who can cure consumption with a drop of serum. [To Emmy] Don't come to me again about people who have no appointments. I tell you I can see nobody.

EMMY Well, I'll tell her to wait a bit.

RIDGEON [furious] You'll tell her I can't see her, and send her away, do you hear?

EMMY [unmoved] Well, will you see Mr Cutler Walpole? He don't want a cure; he only wants to congratulate you.

RIDGEON Of course. Shew him up. [She turns to go] Stop. [To Sir Patrick] I want two minutes more with you between ourselves. [To Emmy] Emmy, ask Mr Walpole to wait just two minutes while I finish a consultation.

EMMY Oh, he'll wait all right. He's talking to the poor lady. [She goes out]

SIR PATRICK Well? what is it?

RIDGEON Don't laugh at me. I want your advice.

SIR PATRICK Professional advice?

RIDGEON Yes. There's something the matter with me. I don't know what it is.

SIR PATRICK Neither do I. I suppose you've been sounded.

RIDGEON Yes, of course. There's nothing wrong with any of the organs, nothing special anyhow. But I have a curious aching. I don't know where I can't localize it. Sometimes I think it's my heart; sometimes I suspect my spine. It doesn't exactly hurt me, but it unsettles me completely. I feel that something is going to happen. And there are other symptoms. Scraps of tunes come into my head that seem to me very pretty, though they're quite commonplace.

SIR PATRICK Do you hear voices?

RIDGEON No.

SIR PATRICK I'm glad of that. When my patients tell me that they've made a greater discovery than Harvey, and that they hear voices, I lock them up.

RIDGEON You think I'm mad! That's just the suspicion that has come across me once or twice. Tell me the truth. I can bear it.

SIR PATRICK You're sure there are no voices?

RIDGEON Quite sure.

SIR PATRICK Then it's only foolishness.

RIDGEON Have you ever met anything like it before in your practice?

SIR PATRICK Oh, yes, often. It's very common between the ages of seventeen and twenty-two. It sometimes comes on again at forty or thereabouts. You're a bachelor, you see. It's not serious—if you're careful.

RIDGEON About my food?

SIR PATRICK No, about your behavior. There's nothing wrong with your spine, and there's nothing wrong with your heart; but there's something wrong with your common sense. You're not going to die, but you may be going to make a fool of yourself. So be careful.

RIDGEON I see you don't believe in my discovery. Well, sometimes I don't believe in it myself. Thank you all the same. Shall we have Walpole up?

SIR PATRICK Oh, have him up. [Ridgeon rings] He's a clever operator, is Walpole, though he's only one of your chloroform surgeons. In my early days, you made your man drunk, and the porters and students held him down, and you had to set your teeth and finish the job fast. Nowadays you work at your ease, and the pain doesn't come until afterwards, when you've taken your cheque and rolled up your bag and left the house. I tell you, Colly, chloroform has done a lot of mischief. It's enabled every fool to be a surgeon.

RIDGEON [to Emmy, who answers the bell] Shew Mr Walpole up.

EMMY He's talking to the lady.

RIDGEON [exasperated] Did I not tell you—
Emmy goes out without heeding him. He gives it up, with a shrug, and plants himself with his back to the console, leaning resignedly against it.

SIR PATRICK I know your Cutler Walpoles and their like. They've found out that a man's body's full of bits and scraps of old organs he has no mortal use for. Thanks to chloroform, you can cut half a dozen of them out without leaving him any the worse, except for the illness and the guineas it costs him. I knew the Walpoles well fifteen years ago. The father used to snip off the ends of people's uvulas for fifty guineas, and paint throats with caustic every day for a year at two guineas a time. His brother-in-law extirpated tonsils for two hundred guineas until he took up women's cases at double the fees. Cutler himself worked hard at anatomy to find something fresh to operate on, and at last he got hold of something he calls the nuciform sac, which he's made quite the fashion. People pay him five hundred guineas to cut it out. They might as well get their hair cut for all the difference it makes, but I suppose they feel important after it. You can't go out to dinner now without your neighbor bragging to you of some useless operation or other.

EMMY [announcing] Mr Cutler Walpole [She goes out].

Cutler Walpole is an energetic, unhesitating man of forty, with a cleanly modelled face, very decisive and symmetrical about the shortish, salient, rather pretty nose, and the three trimly turned corners made by his chin and jaws. In comparison with Ridgeon's delicate broken lines, and Sir Patrick's softly rugged aged ones, his face looks machine-made and beensaxed, but his scrutinizing, daring eyes give it life and force. He seems never at a loss, never in doubt. One feels that if he made a mistake he would make it thoroughly and firmly. He has neat, well-nourished hands, short arms, and is built for strength and compactness rather than for height. He is smartly dressed with a fancy waistcoat, a richly colored scarf secured by a handsome ring, ornaments on his watch chain, spats on his shoes, and a general air of the well-to-do sportsman about him. He goes straight across to Ridgeon and shakes hands with him.

WALPOLE My dear Ridgeon, best wishes! heartiest congratulations! You deserve it.

RIDGEON Thank you.

WALPOLE As a man, mind you. You deserve it as a man. The operation is simple rot, as any capable surgeon can tell you, but we're all delighted to see your personal qualities officially recognized. Sir Patrick, how are you? I sent you a paper lately about a little thing I invented—a new saw. For shoulder blades.

SIR PATRICK [meditatively] Yes, I got it. It's a good saw—a useful, handy instrument.

WALPOLE [confidently] I knew you'd see its points.

SIR PATRICK Yes, I remember that saw sixty-five years ago.

WALPOLE What!

SIR PATRICK It was called a cabinetmaker's jimmy then.

WALPOLE Get out! Nonsense! Cabinet-maker be—

RIDGEON Never mind him, Walpole. He's jealous.

WALPOLE By the way, I hope I'm not disturbing you two in anything private.

RIDGEON No, no. Sit down. I was only consulting him. I'm rather out of sorts. Overwork, I suppose.

WALPOLE [sniffily] I know what's the matter with you. I can see it in your complexion. I can feel it in the grip of your hand.

RIDGEON What is it?

WALPOLE Blood-poisoning.

RIDGEON Blood-poisoning! Impossible.

WALPOLE I tell you, blood-poisoning. Ninety-five per cent of the human race suffer from chronic blood-poisoning, and die of it. It's as simple as A B C. Your nuciform sac is full of decaying matter—undigested food and waste products—rank ptomaines. Now you take my advice, Ridgeon. Let me cut it out for you. You'll be another man afterwards.

SIR PATRICK Don't you like him as he is?

WALPOLE No, I don't. I don't like any man who hasn't a healthy circulation. I tell you this in an intelligently governed country people wouldnt be allowed to go about with nuciform sacs, making themselves centres of infection The operation ought to be compulsory it's ten times more important than vaccination

SIR PATRICK Have you had your own sac removed, may I ask?

WALPOLE [triumphantly] I havnt got one Look at me! Ive no symptoms I'm as sound as a bell About five per cent of the population havnt got any, and I'm one of the five per cent I'll give you an instance You know Mrs Jack Foljambe the smart Mrs Foljambe? I operated at Easter on her sister-in-law, Lady Gorran, and found she had the biggest sac I ever saw it held about two ounces Well, Mrs Foljambe had the right spirit—the genuine hygienic instinct She couldnt stand her sister-in-law being a clean, sound woman, and she simply a whited sepulchre So she insisted on my operating on her, too And by George, sir, she hadnt any sac at all Not a trace! Not a rudiment! I was so taken aback—so interested, that I forgot to take the sponges out, and was stitching them up inside her when the nurse missed them Somehow, I'd made sure she'd have an exceptionally large one [He sits down on the couch, squaring his shoulders and shooting his hands out of his cuffs as he sets his knuckles akimbo]

EMMY [looking in] Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington

A long and expectant pause follows this announcement All look to the door, but there is no Sir Ralph RIDGEON [at last] Where is he?

EMMY [looking back] Drat him, I thought he was following me He's stayed down to talk to that lady

RIDGEON [exploding] I told you to tell that lady—[Emmy vanishes]

WALPOLE [jumping up again] Oh, by the way, Ridgeon, that reminds me Ive been talking to that poor girl It's her husband, and she thinks it's a case of consumption the usual wrong diagnosis these damned general practitioners ought never to be allowed to touch a patient except under the orders of a consultant, She's been describing his symptoms to me, and the case is as plain as a pike-staff bad blood-poisoning Now she's poor She cant afford to have him operated on Well, you send him to me I'll do it for nothing Theres room for him in my nursing home I'll put him straight, and feed him up and make her happy I like making people happy [He goes to the chair near the window]

EMMY [looking in] Here he is

Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington wafts himself into the room He is a tall man, with a head like a tall and slender egg He has been in his time a slender man, but now, in his sixth decade, his waistcoat has filled out somewhat His fair eyebrows arch goodnaturedly and uncritically He has a most musical voice, his speech is a perpetual anthem, and he never tires of the sound of it He radiates an enormous self-satisfaction, cheering, reassuring, healing by the mere incompatibility of disease or anxiety with his welcome presence Even broken bones, it is said, have been known to unite at the sound of his voice, he is a born healer, as independent of mere treatment and skill as any Christian scientist When he expands into oratory or scientific exposition, he is as energetic as Walpole, but it is with a bland, voluminous, atmospheric energy, which envelops its subject and its audience, and makes interruption or inattention impossible, and imposes veneration and credulity on all but the strongest minds He is known in the medical world as B B, and the envy roused by his success in practice is softened by the conviction that he is, scientifically considered, a colossal humbug the fact being that, though he knows just as much (and just as little) as his contemporaries, the qualifications that pass muster in common men reveal their weakness when hung on his egregious personality

B B Aha! Sir Colenso Sir Colenso, eh? Welcome to the order of knighthood

RIDGEON [shaking hands] Thank you, B B

B B What! Sir Patrick! And how are we today? a little chilly? a little stiff? but hale and still the cleverest of us all [Sir Patrick grunts] What! Walpole! the absent-minded beggar eh?

WALPOLE What does that mean?

B B Have you forgotten the lovely opera singer I sent you to have that growth taken off her vocal cords?

WALPOLE [springing to his feet] Great heavens, man, you dont mean to say you sent her for a throat operation!

B B [archly] Aha! Ha ha! Aha! [trilling like a lark as he shakes his finger at Walpole] You removed her nuciform sac Well, well! force of habit! force of habit! Never mind, ne-e-ver mind She got back her voice after it, and thanks you the greatest surgeon alive, and so you are, so you are, so you are

WALPOLE [in a tragic whisper, intensely serious] Blood-poisoning I see I see [He sits down again]

SIR PATRICK And how is a certain distinguished family getting on under your care, Sir Ralph?

B B Our friend Ridgeon will be gratified to hear that I have tried his opsonin treatment on little Prince Henry with complete success

RIDGEON [startled and anxious] But how—

B B [continuing] I suspected typhoid the head gardener's boy had it, so I just called at St Anne's one day and got a tube of your very excellent serum You were out, unfortunately

RIDGEON I hope they explained to you carefully—

B B [waving away the absurd suggestion] Lord bless you, my dear fellow, I didn't need any explanations I'd left my wife in the carriage at the door, and I'd no time to be taught my business by your young chaps I know all about it I've handled these anti-toxins ever since they first came out

RIDGEON But they're not anti-toxins, and they're dangerous unless you use them at the right time

B B Of course they are Everything is dangerous unless you take it at the right time An apple at breakfast does you good an apple at bedtime upsets you for a week There are only two rules for anti-toxins First, don't be afraid of them second, inject them a quarter of an hour before meals, three times a day

RIDGEON [appalled] Great heavens, B B, no, no, no

B B [sneeping on irresistibly] Yes, yes, yes, Colly The proof of the pudding is in the eating, you know It was an immense success It acted like magic on the little prince Up went his temperature, off to bed I packed him, and in a week he was all right again, and absolutely immune from typhoid for the rest of his life The family were very nice about it their gratitude was quite touching, but I said they owed it all to you, Ridgeon, and I am glad to think that your knighthood is the result

RIDGEON I am deeply obliged to you [Overcome, he sits down on the chair near the couch]

B B Not at all, not at all Your own merit

Come! come! come! don't give way

RIDGEON It's nothing I was a little giddy, just now Overwork, I suppose

WALPOLE Blood-poisoning

B B Overwork! There's no such thing I do the work of ten men Am I giddy? No NO If you're not well, you have a disease It may be a slight one, but it's a disease And what is a disease? The lodgment in the system of a pathogenic germ, and the multiplication of that germ What is the remedy? A very simple one Find the germ and kill it

SIR PATRICK Suppose there's no germ?

B B Impossible, Sir Patrick there must be a germ else how could the patient be ill?

SIR PATRICK Can you shew me the germ of overwork?

B B No, but why? Why? Because, my dear Sir Patrick, though the germ is there, it's invisible Nature has given it no danger signal for us These germs—these bacilli—are translucent bodies, like glass, like water To make them visible you must stain them Well, my dear Paddy, do what you will, some of them won't stain They won't take cochineal they won't take methylene blue they won't take gentian violet they won't take any coloring matter Consequently, though we know, as scientific men, that they exist, we cannot see them But can you disprove their existence? Can you conceive the disease existing without them? Can you, for instance, shew me a case of diphtheria without the bacillus?

SIR PATRICK No, but I'll shew you the same bacillus, without the disease, in your own throat

B B No, not the same, Sir Patrick It is an entirely different bacillus, only the two are, unfortunately, so exactly alike that you cannot see the difference You must understand, my dear Sir Patrick, that every one of these interesting little creatures has an imitator Just as men imitate each other, germs imitate each other There is the genuine diphtheria bacillus discovered by Loeffler, and there is the pseudo-bacillus, exactly like it, which you could find, as you say, in my own throat

SIR PATRICK And how do you tell one from the other?

B B Well, obviously, if the bacillus is the genuine Loeffler, you have diphtheria, and if it's the pseudo-bacillus, you're quite well Nothing simpler Science is always simple and always profound It is only the half truths that are dangerous Ignorant faddists pick up some superficial information about germs, and they write to the papers and try to discredit science They dupe and mislead many honest and worthy people But science has a perfect answer to them on every point

A little learning is a dangerous thing

Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring I mean no disrespect to your generation, Sir Patrick some of you old stagers did marvels through sheer professional intuition and clinical experience, but when I think of the average men of your day, ignorantly bleeding and cupping and purging, and scattering germs over their patients from their clothes and instruments, and contrast all that with the scientific certainty and simplicity of my treatment of the little prince the other day, I can't help being proud of my own generation the men who were trained on the germ theory, the veterans of the great struggle over Evolution in the seventies We may have our faults, but at least we are men of science That is why I am taking up your treatment, Ridgeon, and pushing it It's scientific [He sits down on the chair near the couch]

EMMY [at the door, announcing] Dr Blenkinsop

Dr Blenkinsop is in very different case from the others He is clearly not a prosperous man He is flabby and shabby, cheaply fed and cheaply clothed He has the lines made by a conscience between his eyes, and the lines made by continual money worries all over his face, cut all the deeper as he has seen better days, and hails his well-to-do colleagues as their contemporary and old hospital friend, though even in this he has to struggle with the diffidence of poverty and relegation to the poorer middle class

RIDGEON How are you, Blenkinsop?

BLINKINSOP I've come to offer my humble congratulations Oh dear! all the great guns are before me

B B [patronizing, but charming] How d'ye do, Blenkinsop? How d'ye do?

BLINKINSOP And Sir Patrick, too! [Sir Patrick grunts]

RIDGEON You've met Walpole, of course?

WALPOLE How d'ye do?

BLINKINSOP It's the first time I've had that honor In my poor little practice there are no chances of meeting you great men I know nobody but the St Anne's men of my own day [To Ridgeon] And so you're Sir Colenso How does it feel?

RIDGEON Foolish at first Don't take any notice of it

BLINKINSOP I'm ashamed to say I haven't a notion what your great discovery is, but I congratulate you all the same for the sake of old times

B B [shocked] But, my dear Blenkinsop, you used to be rather keen on science

BLINKINSOP Ah, I used to be a lot of things I used to have two or three decent suits of clothes, and flannels to go up the river on Sundays Look at me now this is my best, and it must last till Christmas What can I do? I've never opened a book since I was qualified thirty years ago I used to read the medical papers at first, but you know how soon a man drops that, besides, I can't afford them, and what are they after all but trade papers, full of advertisements? I've forgotten all my science what's the use of my pretending I haven't? But I have great experience clinical experience, and bedside experience is the main thing, isn't it?

B B No doubt, always provided, mind you, that you have a sound scientific theory to correlate your observations at the bedside Mere experience by itself is nothing If I take my dog to the bedside with me, he sees what I see But he learns nothing from it Why? Because he's not a scientific dog

WALPOLE It amuses me to hear you physicians and general practitioners talking about clinical experience What do you see at the bedside but the outside of the patient? Well it isn't his outside that's wrong, except perhaps in skin cases What you want is a daily familiarity with people's insides, and that you can only get at the operating table I know what I'm talking about I've been a surgeon and a consultant for twenty years, and I've never known a general practitioner right in his diagnosis yet Bring them a perfectly simple case, and they diagnose cancer, and arthritis, and appendicitis, and every other ills, when any really experienced surgeon can see that it's a plain case of blood-poisoning

BLINKINSOP Ah, it's easy for you gentlemen to talk, but what would you say if you had my practice? Except for the workmen's clubs, my patients are all clerks and shopmen They daren't be ill they can't afford it And when they break down, what can I do for them? You can send your people to St Montz or to Egypt, or recommend horse exercise or motoring or champagne jelly or complete change and rest for six months I might as well order my people a slice of the moon And the worst of it is, I'm too poor to keep well myself on the cooking I have to put up with I've such a wretched digestion, and I look it How am I to inspire confidence? [He sits disconsolately on the couch]

RIDGEON [restlessly] Dont, Blenkinsop it's too painful The most tragic thing in the world is a sick doctor WALPOLE Yes, by George it's like a bald-headed man trying to sell a hair restorer Thank God I'm a surgeon!

B B [sunnily] I am never sick Never had a day's illness in my life Thats what enables me to sympathize with my patients

WALPOLE [interested] What! you're never ill!

B B Never

WALPOLE Thats interesting I believe you have no nuciform sac If you ever do feel at all queer, I should very much like to have a look

B B Thank you, my dear fellow, but I'm too busy just now

RIDGEON I was just telling them when you came in, Blenkinsop, that I have worked myself out of sorts

BLENKINSOP Well, it seems presumptuous of me to offer a prescription to a great man like you, but still I have great experience, and if I might recommend a pound of ripe greengages every day half an hour before lunch, I'm sure you'd find a benefit They're very cheap

RIDGEON What do you say to that, B B?

B B [encouragingly] Very sensible, Blenkinsop very sensible indeed I'm delighted to see that you disapprove of drugs

SIR PATRICK [grunts]

B B [archly] Aha! Haha! Did I hear from the fireside armchair the how-wow of the old school defending its drugs? Ah, believe me, Paddy, the world would be healthier if every chemist's shop in England were demolished Look at the papers! full of scandalous advertisements of patent medicines! a huge commercial system of quackery and poison Well, whose fault is it? Ours, I say, ours We set the example We spread the superstition We taught the people to believe in bottles of doctor's stuff, and now they buy it at the stores instead of consulting a medical man

WALPOLE Quite true I've not prescribed a drug for the last fifteen years

B B Drugs can only repress symptoms they cannot eradicate disease The true remedy for all diseases is Nature's remedy Nature and Science are at one, Sir Patrick, believe me, though you were taught differently Nature has provided, in the white corpuscles as you call them—in the phagocytes as we call them—a natural means of devouring and destroying all disease germs There is at bottom only one genuinely scientific treatment for all diseases, and that is to stimulate the phagocytes Stimulate the phagocytes Drugs are a delusion Find the germ of the disease, prepare from it a suitable anti-toxin, inject it three times a day quarter of an hour before meals, and what is the result? The phagocytes are stimulated, they devour the disease, and the patient recovers—unless, of course, he's too far gone That, I take it, is the essence of Ridgeon's discovery

SIR PATRICK [dreamily] As I sit here, I seem to hear my poor old father talking again

B B [rising in incredulous amazement] Your father! But, Lord bless my soul, Paddy, your father must have been an older man than you

SIR PATRICK Word for word almost, he said what you say No more drugs Nothing but inoculation

B B [almost contemptuously] Inoculation! Do you mean smallpox inoculation?

SIR PATRICK Yes In the privacy of our family circle, sir, my father used to declare his belief that smallpox inoculation was good not only for smallpox, but for all fevers

B B [suddenly rising to the new idea with immense interest and excitement] What! Ridgeon did you hear that? Sir Patrick I am more struck by what you have just told me than I can well express Your father, sir, anticipated a discovery of my own Listen, Walpole Blenkinsop attend one moment You will all be intensely interested in this I was put on the track by accident I had a typhoid case and a tetanus case side by side in the hospital a beadle and a city missionary Think of what that meant for them, poor fellows! Can a beadle be dignified with typhoid? Can a missionary be eloquent with lockjaw? No NO Well I got some typhoid anti-toxin from Ridgeon and a tube of Muldooley's anti-tetanus serum But the missionary jerked all my things off the table in one of his paroxysms, and in replacing them I put Ridgeon's tube where Muldooley's ought to have been. The consequence was that I inoculated the typhoid case for tetanus and the tetanus case for typhoid [The doctors look greatly concerned B B, undamped, smiles triumphantly] Well, they recovered. THEY RECOVERED. Except for a touch of St Vitus's dance the missionary's as well today as ever, and the beadle's ten times the man he was.

BLENKINSOP I've known things like that happen. They can't be explained.

B B [severely] Blenkinsop there is nothing that cannot be explained by science. What did I do? Did I fold my hands helplessly and say that the case could not be explained? By no means. I sat down and used my brains. I thought the case out on scientific principles. I asked myself why didn't the missionary die of typhoid on top of tetanus, and the beadle of tetanus on top of typhoid? There's a problem for you, Ridgeon. Think, Sir Patrick. Reflect, Blenkinsop. Look at it without prejudice, Walpole. What is the real work of the anti-toxin? Simply to stimulate the phagocytes. Very well. But so long as you stimulate the phagocytes, what does it matter which particular sort of serum you use for the purpose? Haha! Eh? Do you see? Do you grasp it? Ever since that I've used all sorts of anti-toxins absolutely indiscriminately, with perfectly satisfactory results. I inoculated the little prince with your stuff, Ridgeon, because I wanted to give you a lift, but two years ago I tried the experiment of treating a scarlet fever case with a sample of hydrophobia serum from the Pasteur Institute, and it answered capitally. It stimulated the phagocytes, and the phagocytes did the rest. That is why Sir Patrick's father found that inoculation cured all fevers. It stimulated the phagocytes [He throws himself into his chair, exhausted with the triumph of his demonstration, and beams magnificently on them].

EMMY [looking in] Mr Walpole your motor's come for you, and it's frightening Sir Patrick's horses, so come along quick.

WALPOLE [rising] Goodbye, Ridgeon.

RIDGEON Goodbye, and many thanks.

B B You see my point, Walpole?

EMMY He can't wait, Sir Ralph. The carriage will be into the area if he don't come.

WALPOLE I'm coming [To B B] There's nothing in your point. Phagocytosis is pure rot. The cases are all blood-poisoning, and the knife is the real remedy. Bye-bye, Sir Paddy. Happy to have met you, Mr Blenkinsop. Now, Emmy [He goes out, followed by Emmy].

B B [sadly] Walpole has no intellect. A mere surgeon. Wonderful operator, but, after all, what is operating? Only manual labor. Brain—BRAIN remains master of the situation. The nuciform sac is utter nonsense. There's no such organ. It's a mere accidental kink in the membrane, occurring in perhaps two-and-a-half per cent of the population. Of course I'm glad for Walpole's sake that the operation is fashionable, for he's a dear good fellow, and after all, as I always tell people, the operation will do them no harm indeed. I've known the nervous shake-up and the fortnight in bed do people a lot of good after a hard London season, but still it's a shocking fraud [Rising]. Well, I must be toddling. Goodbye, Paddy [Sir Patrick grunts], good-bye, good-bye. Goodbye, my dear Blenkinsop, goodbye! Goodbye, Ridgeon. Don't fret about your health; you know what to do if your liver is sluggish, a little mercury never does any harm. If you feel restless, try bromide. If that doesn't answer a stimulant, you know a little phosphorus and strychnine. If you can't sleep, trional, trional, trional—

SIR PATRICK [dryly] But no drugs, Colly, remember that.

B B [firmly] Certainly not. Quite right, Sir Patrick. As temporary expedients, of course, but as treatment, no, no. Keep away from the chemist's shop, my dear Ridgeon, whatever you do.

RIDGEON [going to the door with him] I will. And thank you for the knighthood. Goodbye.

B B [stopping at the door, with the beam in his eye twinkling a little] By the way, who's your patient?

RIDGEON Who?

B B Downstairs. Charming woman. Tuberculous husband.

RIDGEON Is she there still?

EMMY [looking in] Come on, Sir Ralph. Your wife's waiting in the carriage.

B B [suddenly sobered] Oh! Goodbye [He goes out almost precipitately].

RIDGEON Emmy is that woman there still? If so, tell her once for all that I can't and won't see her. Do you hear?

EMMY Oh, she ain't in a hurry. She doesn't mind how long she waits [She goes out].

BLINKINSOP I must be off, too every half-hour I spend away from my work costs me eighteenpence Goodbye, Sir Patrick

SIR PATRICK Goodbye Goodbye

RIDGEON Come to lunch with me some day this week

BLINKINSOP I cant afford it, dear boy, and it would put me off my own food for a week Thank you all the same

RIDGEON [uneasy at Blinkinsop's poverty] Can I do nothing for you?

BLINKINSOP Well, if you have an old frock-coat to spare? you see, what would be an old one for you would be a new one for me, so remember me the next time you turn out your wardrobe Goodbye [He hurries out]

RIDGEON [looking after him] Poor chap! [Turning to Sir Patrick] So thats why they made me a knight! And thats the medical profession!

SIR PATRICK And a very good profession, too, my lad When you know as much as I know of the ignorance and superstition of the patients, youll wonder that we're half as good as we are

RIDGEON We're not a profession we're a conspiracy

SIR PATRICK All professions are conspiracies against the laity And we cant all be geniuses like you Every fool can get ill, but every fool cant be a good doctor there are not enough good ones to go round And for all you know, Bloomfield Bonington kills less people than you do

RIDGEON Oh, very likely But he really ought to know the difference between a vaccine and an anti-toxin Stimulate the phagocytes! The vaccine doesnt affect the phagocytes at all He's all wrong hopelessly, dangerously wrong To put a tube of serum into his hands is murder simple murder

EMMY [returning] Now, Sir Patrick How long more are you going to keep them horses standing in the draught?

SIR PATRICK Whats that to you, you old catamaran?

EMMY Come, come, now! none of your temper to me And it's time for Colly to get to his work

RIDGEON Behave yourself, Emmy Get out

EMMY Oh, I learnt how to behave myself before I learnt you to do it I know what doctors are sitting talking together about themselves when they ought to be with their poor patients And I know what horses are,

Sir Patrick I was brought up in the country Now be good and come along

SIR PATRICK [rising] Very well, very well, very well Goodbye, Colly [He pats Ridgeon on the shoulder and goes out, turning for a moment at the door to look meditatively at Emmy and say with grave conviction] You are an ugly old devil, and no mistake

EMMY [highly indignant, calling after him] Youre no beauty yourself [To Ridgeon, much flustered] Theyve no manners, they think they can say what they like to me, and you set them on, you do I'll teach them their places Here now are you going to see that poor thing or are you not?

RIDGEON I tell you for the fiftieth time I wont see anybody Send her away

EMMY Oh, I'm tired of being told to send her away What good will that do her?

RIDGEON Must I get angry with you, Emmy

EMMY [coaxing] Come now just see her for a minute to please me theres a good boy She's given me half-a-crown She thinks it's life and death to her husband for her to see you

RIDGEON Values her husband's life at half-a-crown!

EMMY Well, it's all she can afford, poor lamb Them others think nothing of half-a-sovereign just to talk about themselves to you, the sluts! Besides, she'll put you in a good temper for the day, because it's a good deed to see her, and she's the sort that gets round you

RIDGEON Well, she hasnt done so badly For half-a-crown she's had a consultation with Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington and Cutler Walpole Thats six guineas' worth to start with I daresay she's consulted Blinkinsop too thats another eighteenpence

EMMY Then youll see her for me, wont you?

RIDGEON Oh, send her up and be hanged [Emmy trots out, satisfied, Ridgeon calls] Redpenny!

REDPENNY [appearing at the door] What is it?

RIDGEON Theres a patient coming up If she hasnt gone in five minutes, come in with an urgent call from the hospital for me You understand she's to have a strong hint to go

REDPENNY Right O! [He vanishes]

Ridgeon goes to the glass, and arranges his tie a little

EMMY [announcing] Mrs Doobidad [Ridgeon

leaves the glass and goes to the writing-table]

The lady comes in Emmy goes out and shuts the door Ridgeon who has put on an impenetrable and rather distant professional manner, turns to the lady and invites her by a gesture, to sit down on the couch

Mrs Dubedat is beyond all demur an arrestingly good-looking young woman She has something of the grace and romance of a wild creature, with a good deal of the elegance and dignity of a fine lady Ridgeon, who is extremely susceptible to the beauty of women instinctively assumes the defensive at once and hardens his manner still more He has an impression that she is very well dressed, but she has a figure on which any dress would look well, and carries herself with the unaffected distinction of a woman who has never in her life suffered from those doubts and fears as to her social position which spoil the manners of most muddling people She is tall, slender and strong, has dark hair, dressed so as to look like hair and not like a bird's nest or a pantaloons wig (fashion wavering just then between these two models), has unexpectedly narrow, subtle, dark-fringed eyes that alter her expression disturbingly when she is excited and flashes them wide open, is softly impetuous in her speech and swift in her movements, and is just now in mortal anxiety She carries a portfolio

MRS DUBEDAT [in low urgent tones] Doctor—

RIDGEON [curtly] Wait Before you begin let me tell you at once that I can do nothing for you My hands are full I sent you that message by my old servant You would not take that answer

MRS DUBEDAT How could I?

RIDGEON You bribed her

MRS DUBEDAT I—

RIDGEON That doesn't matter She coaxed me to see you Well, you must take it from me now that with all the good will in the world, I cannot undertake another case

MRS DUBEDAT Doctor you must save my husband You must When I explain to you, you will see that you must It is not an ordinary case, not like any other case He is not like anybody else in the world oh, believe me, he is not I can prove it to you [fingering her portfolio] I have brought some things to shew you And you can save him the papers say you can RIDGEON What's the matter? Tuberculosis?

RIDGEON Yes you needn't tell me about that.

MRS DUBEDAT You can cure him, if only you will It is true that you can, isn't it? [In great distress] Oh, tell me, please RIDGEON [warningly] You are going to be quiet and self-possessed, aren't you?

MRS DUBEDAT Yes I beg your pardon I know I shouldn't— [Giving way again] Oh, please, say that you can, and then I shall be all right

RIDGEON [huffily] I am not a curemonger if you want cures, you must go to the people who sell them [Recovering himself, ashamed of the tone of his own voice] But I have at the hospital ten tuberculous patients whose lives I believe I can save

MRS DUBEDAT Thank God!

RIDGEON Wait a moment Try to think of those ten patients as ten shipwrecked men on a raft—a raft that is barely large enough to save them—that will not support one more Another head bobs up through the waves at the side Another man begs to be taken aboard He implores the captain of the raft to save him But the captain can only do that by pushing one of his ten off the raft and drowning him to make room for the new comer That is what you are asking me to do

MRS DUBEDAT But how can that be? I don't understand Surely—

RIDGEON You must take my word for it that it is so My laboratory, my staff, and myself are working at full pressure We are doing our utmost The treatment is a new one It takes time means, and skill, and there is not enough for another case Our ten cases are already chosen cases Do you understand what I mean by chosen?

MRS DUBEDAT Chosen No I can't understand

RIDGEON [sternly] You must understand You've got to understand and to face it In every single one of those ten cases I have had to consider, not only whether the man could be saved, but whether he was worth saving There were fifty cases to choose from, and forty had to be condemned to death Some of the forty had young wives and helpless children If the hardness of their cases could have saved them they would have been saved ten times over I've no doubt your case is a hard one I can see the tears in your eyes [she hastily wipes her eyes] I know that you have a torrent of entreaties ready for me the moment I stop speaking, but it's no use.

You must go to another doctor

MRS DUBEDAT But can you give me the name of another doctor who understands your secret?

RIDGEON I have no secret I am not a quack

MRS DUBEDAT I beg your pardon I didn't mean to say anything wrong I don't understand how to speak to you Oh pray don't be offended

RIDGEON [again a little ashamed] There! there! never mind [He relaxes and sits down] After all, I'm talking nonsense I daresay I am a quack, a quack with a qualification But my discovery is not patented

MRS DUBEDAT Then can any doctor cure my husband? Oh, why don't they do it? I have tried so many I have spent so much If only you would give me the name of another doctor

RIDGEON Every man in this street is a doctor But outside myself and the handful of men I am training at St Anne's, there is nobody as yet who has mastered the opsonin treatment And we are full up? I'm sorry, but that is all I can say [Rising] Good morning

MRS DUBEDAT [suddenly and desperately taking some drawings from her portfolio] Doctor look at these You understand drawings you have good ones in your waiting-room Look at them They are his work

RIDGEON It's no use my looking [He looks, all the same] Hallo! [He takes one to the window and studies it] Yes this is the real thing Yes, yes [He looks at another and returns to her] These are very clever They're unfinished, aren't they?

MRS DUBEDAT He gets tired so soon But you see, don't you, what a genius he is? You see that he is worth saving Oh, doctor, I married him just to help him to begin I had money enough to tide him over the hard years at the beginning—to enable him to follow his inspiration until his genius was recognized And I was useful to him as a model his drawings of me sold quite quickly

RIDGEON Have you got one?

MRS DUBEDAT [producing another] Only this one It was the first RIDGEON [devouring it with his eyes] That's a wonderful drawing Why is it called Jennifer?

MRS DUBEDAT My name is Jennifer

RIDGEON A strange name

MRS DUBEDAT Not in Cornwall I am Cornish It's only what you call Guinevere

RIDGEON [repeating the names with a certain pleasure in them] Guinevere Jennifer [Looking again at the drawing] Yes it's really a wonderful drawing Excuse me, but may I ask is it for sale? I'll buy it

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, take it It's my own he gave it to me Take it Take them all Take everything, ask anything, but save him You can you will you must

REDPENNY [entering with every sign of alarm] They've just telephoned from the hospital that you're to come instantly—a patient on the point of death The carnage is waiting RIDGEON [intolerantly] Oh, nonsense get out [Greatly annoyed] What do you mean by interrupting me like this?

REDPENNY But—

RIDGEON Chut! can't you see I'm engaged? Be off

Redpenny, bewildered, vanishes

MRS DUBEDAT [rising] Doctor one instant only before you go—

RIDGEON Sit down It's nothing

MRS DUBEDAT But the patient He said he was dying

RIDGEON Oh, he's dead by this time Never mind Sit down

MRS DUBEDAT [sitting down and breaking down] Oh, you none of you care You see people die every day

RIDGEON [petting her] Nonsense! it's nothing I told him to come in and say that I thought I should want to get rid of you

MRS DUBEDAT [shocked at the falsehood] Oh!

RIDGEON [continuing] Don't look so bewildered there's nobody dying

MRS DUBEDAT My husband is

RIDGEON [pulling himself together] Ah, yes I had forgotten your husband Mrs Dubedat you are asking me to do a very serious thing?

MRS DUBEDAT I am asking you to save the life of a great man

RIDGEON You are asking me to kill another man for his sake, for as surely as I undertake another case, I shall have to hand back one of the old ones to the ordinary treatment Well I don't shrink from that I have had to do it before, and I will do it again if you can convince me that his life is more important than the worst life I am now saving But you must convince me first

MRS DUBEDAT He made those drawings, and they are not the best—nothing like the best, only I did not bring the really best so few people like them He is twenty-three his whole life is before him Wont you let me bring him to you? wont you speak to him? wont you see for yourself?

RIDGEON Is he well enough to come to a dinner at the Star and Garter at Richmond?

MRS DUBEDAT Oh yes Why?

RIDGEON I'll tell you I am inviting all my old friends to a dinner to celebrate my knighthood—youve seen about it in the papers, havnt you?

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, oh yes That was how I found out about you

RIDGEON It will be a doctors' dinner, and it was to have been a bachelors' dinner I'm a bachelor Now if you will entertain for me, and bring your husband, he will meet me, and he will meet some of the most eminent men in my profession Sir Patrick Cullen, Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington, Cutler Walpole, and others I can put the case to them, and your husband will have to stand or fall by what we think of him Will you come?

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, of course I will come Oh, thank you, thank you And may I bring some of his drawings—the really good ones?

RIDGEON Yes I will let you know the date in the course of tomorrow Leave me your address

MRS DUBEDAT Thank you again and again You have made me so happy I know you will admire him and like him This is my address [She gives him her card]

RIDGEON Thank you [He rings]

MRS DUBEDAT [embarrassed] May I—is there—should I—I mean— [she blushes and stops in confusion]

RIDGEON Whats the matter?

MRS DUBEDAT Your fee for this consultation?

RIDGEON Oh, I forgot that Shall we say a beautiful drawing of his favorite model for the whole treatment, including the cure?

MRS DUBEDAT You are very generous Thank you I know you will cure him Good-bye

RIDGEON I will Goodbye [They shake hands] By the way, you know, dont you, that tuberculosis is catching You take every precaution, I hope

MRS DUBEDAT I am not likely to forget it They treat us like lepers at the hotels

EMMY [at the door] Well, deary have you got round him?

RIDGEON Yes Attend to the door and hold your tongue

EMMY Thats a good boy [She goes out with Mrs Dubedat]

RIDGEON [alone] Consultation free Cure guaranteed [He heaves a great sigh]

ACT II

After dinner on the terrace at the Star and Garter, Richmond Cloudless summer night, nothing disturbs the stillness except from time to time the long trajectory of a distant train and the measured clucking of oars coming up from the Thames in the valley below The dinner is over, and three of the eight chairs are empty Sir Patrick with his back to the ven, is at the head of the square table with Ridgeon The two chairs opposite them are empty On their right come, first, a vacant chair, and then one very fully occupied by B B, who bask's blissfully in the moonbeams On their left, Schutzmacher and Walpole The entrance to the hotel is on their right behind B B The five men are silently enjoying their coffee and cigars, full of food, and not altogether void of wine

Mrs Dubedat, wrapped up for departure, comes in They rise, except Sir Patrick, but she takes one of the vacant places at the foot of the table, next B B, and they sit down again

MRS DUBEDAT [as she enters] Louis will be here presently He is shewing Dr Blenkinsop how to work the telephone [She sits] Oh, I am so sorry we have to go It seems such a shame, this beautiful night And we have enjoyed ourselves so much

RIDGEON I dont believe another half-hour would do Mr Dubedat a bit of harm

SIR PATRICK Come now, Colly, come! come! none of that You take your man home, Mrs Dubedat, and get him to bed before eleven

B B Yes, yes Bed before eleven Quite right, quite right Sorry to lose you, my dear lady, but Sir Patrick's orders are the laws of—er—of Tyre and Sidon

WALPOLE Let me take you home in my motor

SIR PATRICK No You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Walpole Your motor will take Mr and Mrs Dubedat to the station, and quite far enough too for an open carriage at night

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, I am sure the train is best

RIDGEON Well, Mrs Dubedat, we have had a most enjoyable evening

WALPOLE } { Most enjoyable
B B } { Delightful Charming Unforgettable

MRS DUBEDAT [with a touch of shy anxiety] What did you think of Louis? Or am I wrong to ask?

RIDGEON Wrong! Why, we are all charmed with him

WALPOLE Delighted

B B Most happy to have met him A privilege, a real privilege

SIR PATRICK [grunts]

MRS DUBEDAT [quickly] Sir Patrick are you uneasy about him?

SIR PATRICK [discreetly] I admire his drawings greatly, ma'am

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, but I meant—

RIDGEON You shall go away quite happy He's worth saving He must and shall be saved

Mrs Dubedat rises and gasps with delight, relief, and gratitude They all rise except Sir Patrick and Schutzmacher, and come reassuringly to her

B B Certainly, certainly

WALPOLE There's no real difficulty, if only you know what to do

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, how can I ever thank you! From this night I can begin to be happy at last You don't know what I feel

She sits down in tears They crowd about her to console her

B B My dear lady come come! come come! [very persuasively] come come!

WALPOLE Don't mind us Have a good cry

RIDGEON No don't cry Your husband had better not know that we've been talking about him

MRS DUBEDAT [quickly pulling herself together] No, of course not Please don't mind me What a glorious thing it must be to be a doctor! [They laugh] Don't laugh You don't know what you've done for me I never knew until now how deadly afraid I was—how I had come to dread the worst I never dared let myself know But now the relief has come now I know

Louis Dubedat comes from the hotel, in his overcoat, his throat wrapped in a shawl He is a slim young man of 23, physically still a stripling, and pretty, though not effeminate He has turquoise blue eyes, and a trick of looking you straight in the face with them, which, combined with a frank smile, is very engaging Although he is all nerves, and very observant and quick of apprehension, he is not in the least shy He is younger than Jennifer, but he patronizes her as a matter of course The doctors do not put him out in the least neither Sir Patrick's years nor Bloomfield Bonington's majesty have the smallest apparent effect on him he is as natural as a cat he moves among men as most men move among things, though he is intentionally making himself agreeable to them on this occasion Like all people who can be depended on to take care of themselves, he is welcome company, and his artist's power of appealing to the imagination gains him credit for all sorts of qualities and powers, whether he possesses them or not

LOUIS [pulling on his gloves behind Ridgeon's chair] Now, Jinny-Gwinny the motor has come round

RIDGEON Why do you let him spoil your beautiful name like that, Mrs Dubedat?

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, on grand occasions I am Jennifer

B B You are a bachelor you do not understand these things, Ridgeon Look at me [They look] I also have two names In moments of domestic worry, I am simple Ralph When the sun shines in the home, I am Beedle-Deedle-Dumkins Such is married life! Mr Dubedat may I ask you to do me a favor before you go Will you sign your name to this menu card, under the sketch you have made of me?

WALPOLE Yes, and mine too, if you will be so good

LOUIS Certainly [He sits down and signs the cards]

MRS DUBEDAT Wont you sign Dr Schutzmacher's for him, Louis?

LOUIS I don't think Dr Schutzmacher is pleased with his portrait I'll tear it up [He reaches across the table for Schutzmacher's menu card, and is about to tear it Schutzmacher makes no sign]

RIDGEON No, no if Loony doesn't want it, I do

LOUIS I'll sign it for you with pleasure [He signs and hands it to Ridgeon] I've just been making a little note of the river tonight it will work up into something good [he shows a pocket sketch-book] I think I'll call it the Silver Danube

B B Ah, charming, charming

WALPOLE Very sweet You're a nailer at pastel

Louis coughs, first out of modesty, then from tuberculosis

SIR PATRICK Now then Mr Dubedat you've had enough of the night air Take him home, ma'am

MRS DUBEDAT Yes Come, Louis

RIDGEON Never fear Never mind I'll make that cough all right

B B We will stimulate the phagocytes [With tender effusion, shaking her hand] Goodnight, Mrs Dubedat Goodnight Goodnight

WALPOLE If the phagocytes fail, come to me I'll put you right

LOUIS Goodnight, Sir Patrick Happy to have met you

SIR PATRICK 'Night [half a grunt]

MRS DUBEDAT Goodnight Sir Patrick

SIR PATRICK Cover yourself well up Don't think your lungs are made of iron because they're better than his Goodnight

MRS DUBEDAT Thank you Thank you Nothing hurts me Goodnight

Louis goes out through the hotel without noticing Schutzmacher Mrs Dubedat hesitates, then bows to him Schutzmacher rises and bows formally, German fashion She goes out attended by Ridgeon The rest resume their seats, ruminating or smoking quietly

B B [harmoniously] Dee-lightful couple! Charming woman! Gifted lad! Remarkable talent! Graceful outlines! Perfect evening! Great success! Interesting case! Glorious night! Exquisite scenery! Capital dinner! Stimulating conversation! Restful outing! Good wine! Happy ending! Touching gratitude! Lucky Ridgeon—

RIDGEON [returning] Whats that? Calling me, B B? [He goes back to his seat next Sir Patrick]

B B No, no Only congratulating you on a most successful evening! Enchanting woman! Thorough breeding! Gentle nature! Refined—

Blenkinsop comes from the hotel and takes the empty chair next Ridgeon

BLENKINSOP I'm so sorry to have left you like this, Ridgeon, but it was a telephone message from the police They've found half a milkman at our level crossing with a prescription of mine in its pocket Wheres Mr Dubedat?

RIDGEON Gone

BLENKINSOP [rising very pale] Gone!

RIDGEON Just this moment—

BLENKINSOP Perhaps I could overtake him — [he rushes into the hotel]

WALPOLE [calling after him] He's in the motor, man, miles off You cant— [giving it up] No use

RIDGEON They're really very nice people I confess I was afraid the husband would turn out an appalling bounder But he's almost as charming in his way as she is in hers And theres no mistake about his being a genius It's something to have got a case really worth saving Somebody else will have to go, but at all events it will be easy to find a worse man

SIR PATRICK How do you know?

RIDGEON Come now, Sir Paddy, no growling Have something more to drink.

SIR PATRICK No, thank you

WALPOLE Do you see anything wrong with Dubedat, B B?

B B Oh, a charming young fellow Besides, after all what could be wrong with him? Look at him What could be wrong with him?

SIR PATRICK There are two things that can be wrong with any man One of them is a cheque The other is a woman Until you know that a man's sound on these two points, you know nothing about him

B B Ah, cynic, cynic!

WALPOLE He's all right as to the cheque, for a while at all events He talked to me quite frankly before dinner as to the pressure of money difficulties on an artist He says he has no vices and is very economical but that theres one extravagance he cant afford and yet cant resist, and that is dressing his wife prettily So I said, bang plump out, "Let me lend you twenty pounds, and pay me when your ship comes home" He was really very nice about it. He took it like a man, and it was a pleasure to see how happy it made him, poor chap

B B [who has listened to Walpole with growing perturbation] But—but—but—when was this, may I ask?

WALPOLE When I joined you that time down by the river

B B But, my dear Walpole, he had just borrowed ten pounds from me

WALPOLE What!

SIR PATRICK [grunts]

B B [indulgently] Well, well, it was really hardly borrowing, for he said heaven only knew when he could pay me I couldn't refuse It appears that Mrs Dubedat has taken a sort of fancy to me—

WALPOLE [quickly] No it was to me

B B Certainly not Your name was never mentioned between us He is so wrapped up in his work that he has to leave her a good deal alone and the poor innocent young fellow—he has of course no idea of my position or how busy I am—actually wanted me to call occasionally and talk to her

WALPOLE Exactly what he said to me!

B B Pooh! Pooh pooh! Really, I must say [Much disturbed, he rises and goes up to the balustrade, contemplating the landscape vexedly]

WALPOLE Look here, Ridgeon! this is beginning to look serious

Blenkinsop, very anxious and wretched, but trying to look unconcerned, comes back

RIDGEON Well, did you catch him?

BLENKINSOP No Excuse my running away like that [He sits down at the foot of the table, next Bloomfield Bonington's chair]

WALPOLE Anything the matter?

BLENKINSOP Oh no A trifle—something ridiculous It can't be helped Never mind

RIDGEON Was it anything about Dubedat?

BLENKINSOP [almost breaking down] I ought to keep it to myself, I know I can't tell you, Ridgeon, how ashamed I am of dragging my miserable poverty to your dinner after all your kindness It's not that you won't ask me again, but it's so humiliating And I did so look forward to one evening in my dress clothes (they're still presentable, you see) with all my troubles left behind, just like old times

RIDGEON But what has happened?

BLENKINSOP Oh, nothing It's too ridiculous I had just scraped up four shillings for this little outing, and it cost me one-and-fourpence to get here Well, Dubedat asked me to lend him half-a-crown to tip the chambermaid of the room his wife left her wraps in, and for the cloakroom He said he only wanted it for five minutes, as she had his purse So of course I lent it to him And he's forgotten to pay me I've just twopence to get back with

RIDGEON Oh, never mind that—

BLENKINSOP [stopping him resolutely] No I know what you're going to say, but I won't take it I've never borrowed a penny, and I never will I've nothing left but my friends, and I won't sell them If none of you were to be able to meet me without being afraid that my civility was leading up to the loan of five shillings, there would be an end of everything for me I'll take your old clothes, Colly, sooner than disgrace you by talking to you in the street in my own, but I won't borrow money I'll train it as far as the twopence will take me, and I'll tramp the rest

WALPOLE You'll do the whole distance in my motor [They are all greatly relieved, and Walpole hastens to get away from the painful subject by adding] Did he get anything out of you, Mr Schutzmacher?

SCHUTZMACHER [shakes his head in a most expressive negative]

WALPOLE You didn't appreciate his drawing, I think

SCHUTZMACHER Oh yes I did I should have liked very much to have kept the sketch and got it autographed

B B But why didn't you?

SCHUTZMACHER Well, the fact is, when I joined Dubedat after his conversation with Mr Walpole, he said that the Jews were the only people who knew anything about art, and that though he had to put up with your Philistine twaddle as he called it, it was what I said about the drawings that really pleased him He also said that his wife was greatly struck with my knowledge, and that she always admired Jews Then he asked me to advance him £50 on the security of the drawings

B B

WALPOLE

BLENKINSOP

SIR PATRICK

[All exclaiming together]
 { No, no Positively!
 Seriously!
 What! Another fifty!
 Think of that!
 [grunts] }

SCHUTZMACHER Of course I couldn't lend money to a stranger like that

B B I envy you the power to say No, Mr Schutzmacher Of course, I knew I oughtn't to lend money to a young fellow in that way, but I simply hadn't the nerve to refuse I couldn't very well, you know, could I?

SCHUTZMACHER I don't understand that I felt that I couldn't very well lend it

WALPOLE What did he say?

SCHUTZMACHER Well, he made a very uncalled-for remark about a Jew not understanding the feelings of a gentleman I must say you Gentiles are very hard to please You say we are no gentlemen when we lend money, and when we refuse to lend it you say just the same I didn't mean to behave badly As I told him, I might have lent it to him if he had been a Jew himself

SIR PATRICK [with a grunt] And what did he say to that?

SCHUTZMACHER Oh, he began trying to persuade me that he was one of the chosen people—that his artistic faculty shewed it, and that his name was as foreign as my own. He said he didnt really want £50, that he was only joking, that all he wanted was a couple of sovereigns.

B B No, no, Mr Schutzmacher. You invented that last touch. Seriously, now?

SCHUTZMACHER No. You cant improve on Nature in telling stories about gentlemen like Mr Dubedat.

BLENKINSOP You certainly do stand by one another, you chosen people, Mr Schutzmacher.

SCHUTZMACHER Not at all. Personally, I like Englishmen better than Jews, and always associate with them. Thats only natural, because, as I am a Jew, theres nothing interesting in a Jew to me, whereas there is always something interesting and foreign in an Englishman. But in money matters it's quite different. You see, when an Englishman borrows, all he knows or cares is that he wants money, and he'll sign anything to get it, without in the least understanding it, or intending to carry out the agreement if it turns out badly for him. In fact, he thinks you a cad if you ask him to carry it out under such circumstances. Just like the Merchant of Venice, you know. But if a Jew makes an agreement, he means to keep it and expects you to keep it. If he wants money for a time, he borrows it and knows he must pay it at the end of the time. If he knows he cant pay, he begs it as a gift.

RIDGEON Come, Loony! do you mean to say that Jews are never rogues and thieves?

SCHUTZMACHER Oh, not at all. But I was not talking of criminals. I was comparing honest Englishmen with honest Jews.

One of the hotel maids, a pretty, fair-haired woman of about 25, comes from the hotel, rather furtively. She accosts Ridgeon.

THE MAID I beg your pardon, sir—

RIDGEON Eh?

THE MAID I beg pardon, sir. It's not about the hotel. I'm not allowed to be on the terrace, and I should be discharged if I were seen speaking to you, unless you were kind enough to say you called me to ask whether the motor has come back from the station yet.

WALPOLE Has it?

THE MAID Yes, sir.

RIDGEON Well, what do you want?

THE MAID Would you mind, sir, giving me the address of the gentleman that was with you at dinner?

RIDGEON [sharply] Yes, of course I should mind very much. You have no right to ask.

THE MAID Yes, sir, I know it looks like that. But what am I to do?

SIR PATRICK Whats the matter with you?

THE MAID Nothing, sir. I want the address thats all.

B B You mean the young gentleman?

THE MAID Yes, sir, that went to catch the train with the woman he brought with him.

RIDGEON The woman! Do you mean the lady who dined here? the gentleman's wife?

THE MAID Dont believe them, sir. She cant be his wife. I'm his wife.

B B } [in amazed remonstrance] My good girl!

RIDGEON } You his wife!

WALPOLE } What! whats that? Oh, this is getting perfectly fascinating, Ridgeon.

THE MAID I could run upstairs and get you my marriage lines in a minute, sir, if you doubt my word. He's Mr Louis Dubedat, isnt he?

RIDGEON Yes.

THE MAID Well, sir, you may believe me or not, but I'm the lawful Mrs Dubedat.

SIR PATRICK And why arnt you living with your husband?

THE MAID We couldnt afford it, sir. I had thirty pounds saved, and we spent it all on our honeymoon in three weeks, and a lot more that he borrowed. Then I had to go back into service, and he went to London to get work at his drawing, and he never wrote me a line or sent me an address. I never saw nor heard of him again until I caught sight of him from the window going off in the motor with that woman.

SIR PATRICK Well, thats two wives to start with.

B B Now upon my soul I dont want to be uncharitable, but really I'm beginning to suspect that our young friend is rather careless.

SIR PATRICK Beginning to think! How long will it take you, man, to find out that he's a damned young blackguard?

BLENKINSOP Oh, thats severe, Sir Patrick, very severe. Of course it's bigamy, but still he's very young, and she's very pretty Mr Walpole may I sponge on you for another of those nice cigarets of yours? [He changes his seat for the one next Walpole]

WALPOLE Certainly [He feels in his pockets] Oh bother! Where—? [Suddenly remembering] I say I recollect now I passed my cigaret case to Dubedat and he didnt return it It was a gold one

THE MAID He didnt mean any harm he never thinks about things like that, sir I'll get it back for you, sir, if youll tell me where to find him

RIDGEON What am I to do? Shall I give her the address or not?

SIR PATRICK Give her your own address, and then we'll see [To the maid] Youll have to be content with that for the present, my girl [Ridgeon gives her his card] Whats your name?

THE MAID Minnie Tinwell, sir

SIR PATRICK Well, you write him a letter to care of this gentleman, and it will be sent on Now be off with you

THE MAID Thank you, sir I'm sure you wouldnt see me wronged Thank you all, gentlemen, and excuse the liberty

She goes into the hotel They watch her in silence

RIDGEON [when she is gone] Do you realize, you chaps, that we have promised Mrs Dubedat to save this fellow's life?

BLENKINSOP Whats the matter with him?

RIDGEON Tuberculosis

BLENKINSOP [interested] And can you cure that?

RIDGEON I believe so

BLENKINSOP Then I wish youd cure me My right lung is touched, I'm sorry to say

RIDGEON

SIR PATRICK
WALPOLE

What! your lung is going!

My dear Blenkinsop, what do you tell me? [full of concern for Blenkinsop, he comes back from the balustrade]

Eh? Eh? whats that? Hullo! you mustnt neglect this, you know

BLENKINSOP [putting his fingers in his ears] No, no it's no use I know what youre going to say Ive said it often to others I cant afford to take care of myself, and theres an end of it If a fortnight's holiday would save my life, I'd have to die I shall get on as others have to get on We cant all go to St Moritz or to Egypt, you know, Sir Ralph Dont talk about it

Embarrassed silence

SIR PATRICK [grunts and looks hard at Ridgeon]

SCHUTZMACHER [looking at his watch and rising] I must go It's been a very pleasant evening, Colly You might let me have my portrait if you dont mind I'll send Mr Dubedat that couple of sovereigns for it

RIDGEON [giving him the menu card] Oh dont do that, Loony I dont think he'd like that

SCHUTZMACHER Well, of course I shant if you feel that way about it But I dont think you understand Dubedat However, perhaps thats because I'm a Jew Goodnight, Dr Blenkinsop [shaking hands]

BLENKINSOP Goodnight, sir—I mean—Goodnight

SCHUTZMACHER [having his hand to the rest] Goodnight, everybody

WALPOLE

SIR PATRICK

RIDGEON

} Goodnight

B B repeats the salutation several times, in varied musical tones Schutzmacher goes out

SIR PATRICK It's time for us all to move [He rises and comes between Blenkinsop and Walpole Ridgeon also rises] Mr Walpole take Blenkinsop home he's had enough of the open air cure for tonight Have you a thick overcoat to wear in the motor, Dr Blenkinsop?

BLENKINSOP Oh, theyll give me some brown paper in the hotel, and a few thicknesses of brown paper across the chest are better than any fur coat

WALPOLE Well, come along Goodnight, Colly Youre coming with us, arnt you, B B?

B B Yes I'm coming [Walpole and Blenkinsop go into the hotel] Goodnight, my dear Ridgeon [shaking hands affectionately] Dont let us lose sight of your interesting patient and his very charming wife We must not judge him too hastily, you know [With unction] Goodooooooooodnight, Paddy Bless you, dear old chap [Sir Patrick utters a formidable grunt B B laughs and pats him indulgently on the shoulder] Goodnight Goodnight Goodnight Goodnight Goodnight [He goodnights]

himself into the hotel]

The others have meanwhile gone without ceremony Ridgeon and Sir Patrick are left alone together Ridgeon, deep in thought, comes down to Sir Patrick

SIR PATRICK Well, Mr Savior of Lives which is it to be? that honest decent man Blenkinsop, or that rotten blackguard of an artist, eh?

RIDGEON It's not an easy case to judge, is it? Blenkinsop's an honest decent man, but is he any use? Dubedat's a rotten blackguard, but he's a genuine source of pretty and pleasant and good things

SIR PATRICK What will he be a source of for that poor innocent wife of his, when she finds him out?

RIDGEON That's true Her life will be a hell

SIR PATRICK And tell me this Suppose you had this choice put before you either to go through life and find all the pictures bad but all the men and women good, or to go through life and find all the pictures good and all the men and women rotten Which would you choose?

RIDGEON That's a devilishly difficult question, Paddy The pictures are so agreeable, and the good people so infernally disagreeable and mischievous, that I really cant undertake to say offhand which I should prefer to do without

SIR PATRICK Come come! none of your cleverness with me I'm too old for it Blenkinsop isnt that sort of good man, and you know it

RIDGEON It would be simpler if Blenkinsop could paint Dubedat's pictures

SIR PATRICK It would be simpler still if Dubedat had some of Blenkinsop's honesty The world isnt going to be made simple for you, my lad you must take it as it is Youve to hold the scales between Blenkinsop and Dubedat Hold them fairly

RIDGEON Well, I'll be as fair as I can I'll put into one scale all the pounds Dubedat has borrowed, and into the other all the half-crowns that Blenkinsop hasnt borrowed

SIR PATRICK And youll take out of Dubedat's scale all the faith he has destroyed and the honor he has lost, and youll put into Blenkinsop's scale all the faith he has justified and the honor he has created

RIDGEON Come come, Paddy! none of your claptrap with me I'm too sceptical for it I'm not at all convinced that the world

wouldnt be a better world if everybody behaved as Dubedat does than it is now that everybody behaves as Blenkinsop does

SIR PATRICK Then why dont you behave as Dubedat does?

RIDGEON Ah, that beats me That's the experimental test Still, it's a dilemma It's a dilemma You see theres a complication we havnt mentioned

SIR PATRICK Whats that?

RIDGEON Well, if I let Blenkinsop die, at least nobody can say I did it because I wanted to marry his widow

SIR PATRICK Eh! Whats that?

RIDGEON Now if I let Dubedat die, I'll marry his widow

SIR PATRICK Perhaps she wont have you, you know

RIDGEON [with a self-assured shake of the head] I've a pretty good flair for that sort of thing I know when a woman is interested in me She is

SIR PATRICK Well, sometimes a man knows best, and sometimes he knows worst Youd much better cure them both

RIDGEON I cant I'm at my limit I can squeeze in one more case, but not two I must choose

SIR PATRICK Well, you must choose as if she didnt exist thats clear

RIDGEON Is that clear to you? Mind it's not clear to me She troubles my judgment

SIR PATRICK To me, it's a plain choice between a man and a lot of pictures

RIDGEON It's easier to replace a dead man than a good picture

SIR PATRICK Colly when you live in an age that runs to pictures and statues and plays and brass bands because its men and women are not good enough to comfort its poor aching soul, you should thank Providence that you belong to a profession which is a high and great profession because its business is to heal and mend men and women

RIDGEON In short, as a member of a high and great profession, I'm to kill my patient

SIR PATRICK Dont talk wicked nonsense You cant kill him But you can leave him in other hands

RIDGEON In B B's, for instance eh? [looking at him significantly]

SIR PATRICK [demurely facing his look] Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington is a very eminent physician

RIDGEON He is

SIR PATRICK I'm going for my hat
Ridgeon strikes the bell as Sir Patrick makes for the hotel. A waiter comes RIDGEON [to the waiter] My bill, please
 WAITER Yes, sir
 He goes for it

ACT III

In Dubedat's studio, Viewed from the large window the outer door is in the wall on the left at the near end. The door leading to the inner rooms is in the opposite wall, at the far end. The facing wall has neither window nor door. The plaster on all the walls is uncovered and undecorated, except by scrawlings of charcoal sketches and memoranda. There is a studio throne (a chair on a dais) a little to the left, opposite the inner door, and an easel to the right, opposite the outer door, with a dilapidated chair at it. Near the easel and against the wall is a bare wooden table with bottles and jars of oil and medium, paint-smudged rags, tubes of color, brushes, charcoal, a small lay figure, a little and spirit-lamp, and other odds and ends. By the table is a sofa, littered with draning blocks, sketch-books, loose sheets of paper, newspapers, books, and more smudged rags. Next the outer door is an umbrella and hatstand, occupied partly by Louis' hats and cloak and muffler, and partly by odds and ends of costumes. There is an old piano stool on the near side of this door. In the corner near the inner door is a little tea-table. A lay figure, in a cardinal's robe and hat, with an hour-glass in one hand and a scythe slung on its back, smiles with inane malice at Louis, who, in a milkman's smock much smudged with color, is painting a piece of brocade which he has draped about his wife. She is sitting on the throne, not interested in the painting, and appealing to him very anxiously about another matter.

MRS DUBEDAT Promise

LOUIS [putting on a touch of paint with notable skill and care and answering quite perfunctorily] I promise, my darling

MRS DUBEDAT When you want money, you will always come to me

LOUIS But it's so sordid, dearest I hate money I can't keep always bothering you for money, money, money. That's what drives me sometimes to ask other people, though I hate doing it

MRS DUBEDAT It is far better to ask me, dear. It gives people a wrong idea of you

LOUIS But I want to spare your little fortune, and raise money on my own work

Dont be unhappy, love I can easily earn enough to pay it all back I shall have a one-man-show next season, and then there will be no more money troubles [Putting down his palette] There! I mustn't do any more on that until it's bone-dry, so you may come down

MRS DUBEDAT [throwing off the drapery as she steps down, and revealing a plain frock of tussore silk] But you have promised, remember, seriously and faithfully, never to borrow again until you have first asked me

LOUIS Seriously and faithfully [Embracing her] Ah, my love, how right you are! how much it means to me to have you by me to guard me against living too much in the skies. On my solemn oath, from this moment forth I will never borrow another penny

MRS DUBEDAT [delighted] Ah, that's right. Does his wicked worrying wife torment him and drag him down from the clouds [She kisses him] And now, dear, won't you finish those drawings for Maclean?

LOUIS Oh, they don't matter. I've got nearly all the money from him in advance

MRS DUBEDAT But, dearest, that is just the reason why you should finish them. He asked me the other day whether you really intended to finish them

LOUIS Confound his impudence! What the devil does he take me for? Now that just destroys all my interest in the beastly job. I've a good mind to throw up the commission, and pay him back his money

MRS DUBEDAT We can't afford that, dear. You had better finish the drawings and have done with them. I think it is a mistake to accept money in advance

LOUIS But how are we to live?

MRS DUBEDAT Well, Louis, it is getting hard enough as it is, now that they are all refusing to pay except on delivery

LOUIS Damn those fellows! they think of nothing and care for nothing but their wretched money

MRS DUBEDAT Still, if they pay us, they ought to have what they pay for

LOUIS [coaxing] There now that's enough lecturing for today. I've promised to be good, haven't I?

MRS DUBEDAT [putting her arms round his neck] You know that I hate lecturing, and that I don't for a moment misunderstand you, dear, don't you?

LOUIS [fondly] I know I know I'm a wretch and you're an angel. Oh, if only I were strong enough to work steadily, I'd make my darling's house a temple, and her shrine a chapel more beautiful than was ever imagined I cant pass the shops without wrestling with the temptation to go in and order all the really good things they have for you.

MRS DUBEDAT I want nothing but you, dear [She gives him a caress, to which he responds so passionately that she disengages herself] There! be good now remember that the doctors are coming this morning Isnt it extraordinarily kind of them, Louis, to insist on coming? all of them, to consult about you?

LOUIS [coolly] Oh, I daresay they think it will be a feather in their cap to cure a rising artist They wouldnt come if it didnt amuse them, anyhow [Someone knocks at the door] I say it's not time yet, is it?

MRS DUBEDAT No, not quite yet

LOUIS [opening the door and finding Ridgeon there] Hello, Ridgeon Delighted to see you Come in

MRS DUBEDAT [shaking hands] It's so good of you to come, doctor

LOUIS Excuse this place, wont you? It's only a studio, you know theres no real convenience for living here But we pig along somehow, thanks to Jennifer MRS DUBEDAT Now I'll run away Perhaps later on, when youre finished with Louis, I may come in and hear the verdict [Ridgeon bows rather constrainedly] Would you rather I didn't?

RIDGEON Not at all Not at all

Mrs Dubedat looks at him, a little puzzled by his formal manner, then goes into the inner room

LOUIS [flippantly] I say dont look so grave Theres nothing awful going to happen, is there?

RIDGEON No

LOUIS Thats all right Poor Jennifer has been looking forward to your visit more than you can imagine Shes taken quite a fancy to you, Ridgeon The poor girl has nobody to talk to I'm always painting [Taking up a sketch] Theres a little sketch I made of her yesterday

RIDGEON She shewed it to me a fortnight ago when she first called on me

LOUIS [quite unabashed] Oh! did she? Good Lord! how time does fly! I could have sworn I'd only just finished it It's hard for her here, seeing me piling up drawings and nothing coming in for them Of course I shall sell them next year fast enough, after my one-man-show; but while the grass grows the steed starves I hate to have her coming to me for money, and having none to give her But what can I do?

RIDGEON I understood that Mrs Dubedat had some property of her own

LOUIS Oh yes, a little, but how could a man with any decency of feeling touch that? Suppose I did, what would she have to live on if I died? I'm not insured cant afford the premiums [Picking out another drawing] How do you like that?

RIDGEON [putting it aside] I have not come here today to look at your drawings I have more serious and pressing business with you

LOUIS You want to sound my wretched lung [With impulsive candor] My dear Ridgeon I'll be frank with you Whats the matter in this house isnt lungs but bills It doesnt matter about me, but Jennifer has actually to economise in the matter of food Youve made us feel that we can treat you as a friend Will you lend us a hundred and fifty pounds?

RIDGEON No

LOUIS [surprised] Why not?

RIDGEON I am not a rich man, and I want every penny I can spare and more for my researches

LOUIS You mean youd want the money back again

RIDGEON I presume peoplesometimes have that in view when they lend money

LOUIS [after a moment's reflection] Well, I can manage that for you I'll give you a cheque—or see here theres no reason why you shouldnt have your bit too I'll give you a cheque for two hundred RIDGEON Why not cash the cheque at once without troubling me?

LOUIS Bless you! they wouldnt cash it I'm overdrawn as it is No the way to work it is this I'll postdate the cheque next October In October Jennifer's dividends come in Well, you present the cheque It will be returned marked "refer to drawer" or some rubbish of that sort Then you can take it to Jennifer, and hint that if the cheque isnt taken up at once I shall be put in prison She'll pay you like a shot Youll clear £50, and youll do me a real service, for I do want the money very badly, old chap, I assure you

RIDGEON [staring at him] You see no objection to the transaction, and you anticipate none from me!

LOUIS Well, what objection can there be?

It's quite safe I can convince you about the dividends

RIDGEON I mean on the score of its being—shall I say dishonorable?

LOUIS Well, of course I shouldn't suggest it if I didn't want the money

RIDGEON Indeed! Well, you will have to find some other means of getting it

LOUIS Do you mean that you refuse?

RIDGEON Do I mean—! [letting his indignation loose] Of course I refuse, man What do you take me for? How dare you make such a proposal to me?

LOUIS Why not?

RIDGEON Faugh! You would not understand me if I tried to explain Now, once for all, I will not lend you a farthing I should be glad to help your wife, but lending you money is no service to her

LOUIS Oh well, if you're in earnest about helping her, I'll tell you what you might do You might get your patients to buy some of my things, or to give me a few portrait commissions

RIDGEON My patients call me in as a physician, not as a commercial traveller

A knock at the door Louis goes unconcernedly to open it, pursuing the subject as he goes

LOUIS But you must have great influence with them You must know such lots of things about them—private things that they wouldn't like to have known They wouldn't dare to refuse you

RIDGEON [exploding] Well, upon my—

Louis opens the door, and admits Sir Patrick, Sir Ralph, and Walpole

RIDGEON [proceeding furiously] Walpole I've been here hardly ten minutes, and already he's tried to borrow £150 from me Then he proposed that I should get the money for him by blackmailing his wife, and you've just interrupted him in the act of suggesting that I should blackmail my patients into sitting to him for their portraits

LOUIS Well, Ridgeon, if this is what you call being an honorable man! I spoke to you in confidence

SIR PATRICK We're all going to speak to you in confidence, young man

WALPOLE [hanging his hat on the only peg left vacant on the hat-stand] We shall make ourselves at home for half an hour, Dubedat Don't be alarmed you're a most fascinating chap, and we love you.

LOUIS Oh, all right, all right Sit down—anywhere you can Take this chair, Sir Patrick [indicating the one on the throne] Up-z-z-z! [helping him up Sir Patrick grunts and enthrones himself] Here you are, B B [Sir Ralph glares at the familiarity, but Louis, quite undisturbed, puts a big book and a sofa cushion on the dais, on Sir Patrick's right, and B B sits down, under protest] Let me take your hat [He takes B B's hat unceremoniously, and substitutes it for the cardinal's hat on the head of the lay figure, thereby ingeniously destroying the dignity of the conclave He then drags the piano stool from the wall and offers it to Walpole] You don't mind this, Walpole, do you? [Walpole accepts the stool, and puts his hand into his pocket for his cigaret case Missing it, he is reminded of his loss] WALPOLE By the way, I'll trouble you for my cigaret case, if you don't mind?

LOUIS What cigaret case?

WALPOLE The gold one I lent you at the Star and Garter

LOUIS [surprised] Was that yours?

WALPOLE Yes

LOUIS I'm awfully sorry, old chap I wondered whose it was I'm sorry to say this is all that's left of it [He hitches up his smock, produces a card from his waistcoat pocket, and hands it to Walpole]

WALPOLE A pawn ticket!

LOUIS [reassuringly] It's quite safe he can't sell it for a year, you know I say, my dear Walpole, I am sorry [He places his hand ingenuously on Walpole's shoulder and looks frankly at him]

WALPOLE [sinking on the stool with a gasp] Don't mention it. It adds to your fascination

RIDGEON [who has been standing near the easel] Before we go any further, you have a debt to pay, Mr Dubedat

LOUIS I have a precious lot of debts to pay, Ridgeon I'll fetch you a chair [He makes for the inner door]

RIDGEON [stopping him] You shall not leave the room until you pay it It's a small one, and pay it you must and shall I don't so much mind your borrowing £10 from one of my guests and £20 from the other—

WALPOLE I walked into it, you know I offered it

RIDGEON —they could afford it But to clean poor Blenkinsop out of his last half-crown was damnable I intend to give him that half-crown and to be in a position to pledge him my word that you paid it. I'll have that out of you, at all events

B B Quite right Ridgeon Quite right
Come, young man! down with the dust Pay up

LOUIS Oh you neednt make such a fuss about it. Of course I'll pay it I had no idea the poor fellow was hard up I'm as shocked as any of you about it. [Putting his hand into his pocket] Here you are [Finding his pocket empty] Oh, I say I havnt any money on me just at present Walpole would you mind lending me half-a-crown just to settle this.

WALPOLE Lend you half— [his voice faints away]

LOUIS Well if you dont. Blenkinsop wont get it for I havnt a rap you may search my pockets if you like

WALPOLE Thats conclusive [He produces half-a-crown]

LOUIS [passing it to Ridgeon] There! I'm really glad thats settled it was the only thing that was on my conscience Now I hope youre all satisfied

SIR PATRICK. Not quite Mr Dubedat. Do you happen to know a young woman named Minnie Tinwell?

LOUIS Minnie! I should think I do and Minnie knows me too She's a really nice good girl, considering her station Whats become of her?

WALPOLE It's no use bluffing. Dubedat
Weve seen Minnie's marriage lines

LOUIS [coolly] Indeed? Have you seen Jennifer's?

RIDGEON [rising in irrepressible rage] Do you dare insinuate that Mrs Dubedat is living with you without being married to you?

LOUIS Why not?

B B [echoing him in] Why not!

SIR PATRICK [various tones of] Why not!

RIDGEON [scandalized] Why not!

WALPOLE [amazement] Why not!

LOUIS Yes why not? Lots of people do it just as good people as you Why dont you learn to think, instead of bleating and baah-ing like a lot of sheep when you come up against anything youre not accustomed to?
[Contemplating their amazed faces with a chuckle] I say I should like to draw the lot of you now you do look jolly foolish. Especially you Ridgeon I had you that time, you know.

RIDGEON How, pray?

LOUIS Well you set up to appreciate Jennifer you know. And you despise me, dont you?

RIDGEON [curtly] I loathe you. [He sits down again on the sofa]

LOUIS Just so And yet you believe that Jennifer is a bad lot because you think I told you so

RIDGEON Were you lying?

LOUIS No, but you were smelling out a scandal instead of keeping your mind clean and wholesome I can just play with people like you. I only asked you had you seen Jennifer's marriage lines, and you concluded straight away that she hadnt got any You dont know a lady when you see one

B B [majestically] What do you mean by that may I ask?

LOUIS Now, I'm only an immoral artist, but if youd told me that Jennifer wasnt married I'd have had the gentlemanly feeling and artistic instinct to say that she carried her marriage certificate in her face and in her character But you are all moral men and Jennifer is only an artist's wife—probably a model; and morality consists in suspecting other people of not being legally married Arnt you ashamed of yourselves? Can one of you look me in the face after it?

WALPOLE It's very hard to look you in the face, Dubedat; you have such a dazzling cheek. What about Minnie Tinwell, eh?

LOUIS Minnie Tinwell is a young woman who has had three weeks of glorious happiness in her poor little life which is more than most girls in her position get I can tell you Ask her whether she'd take it back if she could She's got her name into history, that girl My little sketches of her will be fought for by collectors at Christie's She'll have a page in my biography Pretty good, that, for a still-room maid at a seaside hotel, I think.
What have you fellows done for her to compare with that?

RIDGEON We havnt trapped her into a mock marriage and deserted her

LOUIS No you wouldnt have the pluck.
But dont fuss yourselves I didnt desert little Minnie We spent all our money—

WALPOLE All her money. Thirty pounds

LOUIS I said all our money hers and mine too Her thirty pounds didnt last three days
I had to borrow four times as much to spend on her But I didnt grudge it, and she didnt grudge her few pounds either, the brave little lassie When we were cleaned out, we'd had enough of it you can hardly suppose that we were fit company for longer than that I an artist, and she quite out of art and literature and refined living and everything else. There was no desertion, no misunderstanding, no police court or divorce court sensation for you moral chaps to lick your lips over at breakfast. We just said, Well, the money's gone, we've had a good time that can never be taken from us, so kiss, part good friends, and she back to service, and I back to my studio and my Jennifer, both the better and happier for our holiday.

WALPOLE Quite a little poem, by George!

B B If you had been scientifically trained, Mr Dubedat, you would know how very seldom an actual case bears out a principle. In medical practice a man may die when, scientifically speaking, he ought to have lived. I have actually known a man die of a disease from which he was, scientifically speaking, immune. But that does not affect the fundamental truth of science. In just the same way, in moral cases, a man's behaviour may be quite harmless and even beneficial, when he is morally behaving like a scoundrel. And he may do great harm when he is morally acting on the highest principles. But that does not affect the fundamental truth of morality.

SIR PATRICK And it doesn't affect the criminal law on the subject of bigamy.

LOUIS Oh bigamy! bigamy! bigamy! What a fascination anything connected with the police has for you all, you moralists! I've proved to you that you were utterly wrong on the moral point, now I'm going to shew you that you're utterly wrong on the legal point; and I hope it will be a lesson to you not to be so jolly cocksure next time.

WALPOLE Rot! You were married already when you married her, and that settles it.

LOUIS Does it? Why can't you think? How do you know she wasn't married already too?

B B

RIDGEON

WALPOLE

SIR PATRICK

[all crying out together] Walpole! Ridgeon! This is beyond everything! Well, damn me! You young rascal!

LOUIS [ignoring their outcry] She was married to the steward of a liner. He cleared out and left her, and she thought, poor girl, that it was the law that if you hadn't heard of your husband for three years you might marry again. So as she was a thoroughly respectable girl and refused to have anything to say to me unless we were married I went through the ceremony to please her and to preserve her self-respect.

RIDGEON Did you tell her you were already married?

LOUIS Of course not. Don't you see that if she had known, she wouldn't have considered herself my wife? You don't seem to understand, somehow.

SIR PATRICK You let her risk imprisonment in her ignorance of the law?

LOUIS Well, I risked imprisonment for her sake. I could have been had up for it just as much as she. But when a man makes a sacrifice of that sort for a woman, he doesn't go and brag about it to her, at least, not if he's a gentleman.

WALPOLE What are we to do with this daisy!

LOUIS [impatiently] Oh, go and do whatever the devil you please. Put Minnie in prison. Put me in prison. Kill Jennifer with the disgrace of it all. And then, when you've done all the mischief you can, go to church and feel good about it. [He sits down pettishly on the old chair at the easel, and takes up a sketching block, on which he begins to draw.]

WALPOLE He's got us.

SIR PATRICK [grimly] He has.

B B But is he to be allowed to defy the criminal law of the land?

SIR PATRICK The criminal law is no use to decent people. It only helps blackguards to blackmail their families. What are we family doctors doing half our time but conspiring with the family solicitor to keep some rascal out of jail and some family out of disgrace?

B B But at least it will punish him.

SIR PATRICK Oh yes, it'll punish him. It'll punish not only him but everybody connected with him, innocent and guilty alike. It'll throw his board and lodging on our rates and taxes for a couple of years, and then turn him loose on us a more dangerous blackguard than ever. It'll put the girl in prison and ruin her, it'll lay his wife's life waste. You may put the criminal law out of your head once for all, it's only fit for fools and savages.

LOUIS Would you mind turning your face a little more this way, Sir Patrick. [Sir Patrick turns indignantly and glares at him.] Oh, that's too much.

SIR PATRICK Put down your foolish pencil, man, and think of your position. You can defy the laws made by men, but there are other laws to reckon with. Do you know that you're going to die?

LOUIS We're all going to die arnt we?

WALPOLE We're not all going to die in six months

LOUIS How do you know?

This for B B is the last straw He completely loses his temper and begins to walk excitedly about

B B Upon my soul, I will not stand this It is in questionable taste under any circumstances or in any company to harp on the subject of death, but it is a dastardly advantage to take of a medical man [Thundering at Dubedat] I will not allow it, do you hear?

LOUIS Well, I didnt begin it you chaps did It's always the way with the inartistic professions when they're beaten in argument they fall back on intimidation I never knew a lawyer yet who didnt threaten to put me in prison sooner or later I never knew a parson who didnt threaten me with damnation And now you threaten me with death With all your tall talk you've only one real trump in your hand and thats Intimidation Well, I'm not a coward, so it's no use with me

B B [advancing upon him] I'll tell you what you are, sir You're a scoundrel

LOUIS Oh, I dont mind you calling me a scoundrel a bit It's only a word a word that you dont know the meaning of What is a scoundrel?

B B You are a scoundrel, sir

LOUIS Just so What is a scoundrel? I am. What am I? A scoundrel It's just arguing in a circle And you imagine you're a man of science!

B B I—I—I—I have a good mind to take you by the scruff of your neck, you infamous rascal, and give you a sound thrashing

LOUIS I wish you would Youd pay me something handsome to keep it out of court afterwards [B B, baffled, flings away from him with a snort] Have you any more civilities to address to me in my own house? I should like to get them over before my wife comes back [He resumes his sketching]

RIDGEON My mind's made up When the law breaks down, honest men must find a remedy for themselves I will not lift a finger to save this reptile

B B That is the word I was trying to remember Reptile WALPOLE I cant help rather liking you, Dubedat But you certainly are a thorough-going specimen.

SIR PATRICK You know our opinion of you now, at all events

LOUIS [patiently putting down his pencil] Look here All this is no good You dont understand You imagine that I'm simply an ordinary criminal

WALPOLE Not an ordinary one, Dubedat Do yourself justice

LOUIS Well, you're on the wrong tack altogether I'm not a criminal All your moralizings have no value for me I dont believe in morality I'm a disciple of Bernard Shaw

SIR PATRICK } [puzzled] Eh?

B B } [raising his hand as if the subject were now disposed of] Thats enough I wish to hear no more

LOUIS Of course I havnt the ridiculous vanity to set up to be exactly a Superman, but still, it's an ideal that I strive towards just as any other man strives towards his ideal

B B [intolerant] Dont trouble to explain I now understand you perfectly Say no more, please When a man pretends to discuss science, morals, and religion, and then avows himself a follower of a notorious and avowed antivaccinationist, there is nothing more to be said [Suddenly putting in an effusive saving clause in parenthesis to Ridgeon] Not, my dear Ridgeon, that I believe in vaccination in the popular sense any more than you do I neednt tell you that But there are things that place a man socially, and antivaccination is one of them [He resumes his seat on the dais]

SIR PATRICK Bernard Shaw? I never heard of him. He's a Methodist preacher, I suppose

LOUIS [scandalized] No, no He's the most advanced man now living he isnt anything

SIR PATRICK I assure you, young man, my father learnt the doctrine of deliverance from sin from John Wesley's own lips before you or Mr Shaw were born It used to be very popular as an excuse for putting sand in sugar and water in milk You're a sound Methodist, my lad, only you dont know it

LOUIS [seriously annoyed for the first time] It's an intellectual insult I dont believe theres such a thing as sin

SIR PATRICK Well, sir, there are people who dont believe theres such a thing as disease either They call themselves Christian Scientists, I believe Theyll just suit your complaint We can do nothing for you [He rises] Good afternoon to you

LOUIS [running to him piteously] Oh dont get up, Sir Patrick Dont go Please dont I didnt mean to shock you, on my word Do sit down again Give me another chance Two minutes more thats all I ask

SIR PATRICK [surprised by this sign of grace, and a little touched] Well— [He sits down]—

LOUIS [gratefully] Thanks awfully

SIR PATRICK [continuing]— I dont mind giving you two minutes more But dont address yourself to me, for Ive retired from practice, and I dont pretend to be able to cure your complaint Your life is in the hands of these gentlemen

RIDGEON Not in mine My hands are full I have no time and no means available for this case

SIR PATRICK What do you say, Mr Walpole?

WALPOLE Oh, I'll take him in hand I dont mind I feel perfectly convinced that this is not a moral case at all it's a physical one Theres something abnormal about his brain That means, probably, some morbid condition affecting the spinal cord And that means the circulation In short, it's clear to me that he's suffering from an obscure form of blood-poisoning, which is almost certainly due to an accumulation of ptomaines in the nuciform sac I'll remove the sac—

LOUIS [changing color] Do you mean, operate on me? Ugh! No, thank you

WALPOLE Never fear you wont feel anything Youll be under an anæsthetic, of course And it will be extraordinarily interesting

LOUIS Oh, well, if it would interest you, and if it wont hurt, thats another matter How much will you give me to let you do it?

WALPOLE [rising indignantly] How much! What do you mean?

LOUIS Well, you dont expect me to let you cut me up for nothing, do you?

WALPOLE Will you paint my portrait for nothing?

LOUIS No, but I'll give you the portrait when it's painted, and you can sell it afterwards for perhaps double the money But I cant sell my nuciform sac when youve cut it out

WALPOLE Ridgeon did you ever hear anything like this! [To Louis] Well, you can keep your nuciform sac, and your tubercular lung, and your diseased brain Ive done with you One would think I was not conferring a favor on the fellow! [He returns to his stool in high

dudgeon]

SIR PATRICK That leaves only one medical man who has not withdrawn from your case, Mr Dubedat You have nobody left to appeal to now but Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington

WALPOLE If I were you, B B, I shouldnt touch him with a pair of tongs Let him take his lungs to the Brompton Hospital They wont cure him, but theyll teach him manners

B B My weakness is that I have never been able to say No, even to the most thoroughly undeserving people Besides, I am bound to say that I dont think it is possible in medical practice to go into the question of the value of the lives we save Just consider, Ridgeon Let me put it to you, Paddy Clear your mind of cant, Walpole

WALPOLE [indignantly] My mind is perfectly clear of cant

B B Quite so Well now, look at my practice It is what I suppose you would call a fashionable practice, a smart practice, a practice among the best people You ask me to go into the question of whether my patients are of any use either to themselves or anyone else Well, if you apply any scientific test known to me, you will achieve a reductio ad absurdum You will be driven to the conclusion that the majority of them would be, as my friend Mr J M Barrie has tersely phrased it, better dead Better dead There are exceptions, no doubt For instance, there is the court, an essentially social-democratic institution, supported out of public funds by the public because the public wants it and likes it My court patients are hard-working people who give satisfaction, undoubtedly Then I have a duke or two whose estates are probably better managed than they would be in public hands But as to most of the rest, if I once began to argue about them, unquestionably the verdict would be, Better dead When they actually do die, I sometimes have to offer that consolation, thinly disguised, to the family [Lulled by the cadences of his own voice, he becomes drowsier and drowsier] The fact that they spend money so extravagantly on medical attendance really would not justify me in wasting my talents—such as they are—in keeping them alive After all, if my fees are high, I have to spend heavily My own tastes are simple a camp bed, a couple of rooms, a crust, a bottle of wine, and I am happy and contented My wife's tastes are perhaps more luxurious, but even she deplores an expenditure the sole object of which is to maintain the state my patients require from their medical attendant The—er—er—er— [suddenly waking up] I have lost the thread of these remarks What was I talking about Ridgeon?

RIDGEON About Dubedat

B B Ah yes Precisely Thank you Dubedat, of course Well, what is our friend Dubedat? A vicious and ignorant young man with a talent for drawing

LOUIS Thank you. Don't mind me

B B But then what are many of my patients? Vicious and ignorant young men without a talent for anything If I were to stop to argue about their merits I should have to give up three-quarters of my practice Therefore I have made it a rule not so to argue Now as an honorable man having made that rule as to paying patients, can I make an exception as to a patient who, far from being a paying patient, may more fitly be described as a borrowing patient. No I say No Mr Dubedat your moral character is nothing to me I look at you from a purely scientific point of view To me you are simply a field of battle in which an invading army of tubercle bacilli struggles with a patriotic force of phagocytes Having made a promise to your wife which my principles will not allow me to break to stimulate those phagocytes, I will stimulate them And I take no further responsibility [He flings himself back in his seat exhausted]

SIR PATRICK Well Mr Dubedat, as Sir Ralph has very kindly offered to take charge of your case, and as the two minutes I promised you are up, I must ask you to excuse me [He rises]

LOUIS Oh certainly. I've quite done with you [Rising and holding up the sketch block] There! While you've been talking I've been doing What is there left of your moralizing? Only a little carbonic acid gas which makes the room unhealthy What is there left of my work? That Look at it [Ridgeon rises to look at it]

SIR PATRICK [who has come down to him from the throne] You young rascal, was it drawing me you were?

LOUIS Of course What else?

SIR PATRICK [takes the drawing from him and grunts approvingly] That's rather good Don't you think so, Colly?

RIDGEON Yes So good that I should like to have it

SIR PATRICK Thank you, but I should like to have it myself What d'ye think, Walpole?

WALPOLE [rising and coming over to look] No, by Jove I must have this

LOUIS I wish I could afford to give it to you, Sir Patrick But I'd pay five guineas sooner than part with it

RIDGEON Oh, for that matter, I will give you six for it

WALPOLE Ten

LOUIS I think Sir Patrick is morally entitled to it, as he sat for it May I send it to your house, Sir Patrick, for twelve guineas?

SIR PATRICK Twelve guineas! Not if you were President of the Royal Academy, young man. [He gives him back the drawing decisively and turns away, taking up his hat]

LOUIS [to B B] Would you like to take it at twelve Sir Ralph?

B B [coming between Louis and Walpole] Twelve guineas? Thank you I'll take it at that [He takes it and presents it to Sir Patrick] Accept it from me, Paddy, and may you long be spared to contemplate it

SIR PATRICK Thank you [He puts the drawing into his hat]

B B I needn't settle with you now, Mr Dubedat my fees will come to more than that [He also retrieves his hat]

LOUIS [indignantly] Well of all the mean— [words fail him]! I'd let myself be shot sooner than do a thing like that I consider you've stolen that drawing

SIR PATRICK [drily] So we've converted you to a belief in morality after all, eh?

LOUIS Yah! [To Walpole] I'll do another one for you, Walpole, if you'll let me have the ten you promised

WALPOLE Very good I'll pay on delivery

LOUIS Oh! What do you take me for? Have you no confidence in my honor?

WALPOLE None whatever.

LOUIS Oh well, of course if you feel that way you can't help it Before you go Sir Patrick, let me fetch Jennifer I know she'd like to see you, if you don't mind. [He goes to the inner door] And now, before she comes in, one word You've all been talking here pretty freely about me—in my own house too I don't mind that I'm a man and can take care of myself But when Jennifer comes in, please remember that she's a lady, and that you are supposed to be gentlemen.

[He goes out]

WALPOLE Well!!! [He gives the situation up as indescribable, and goes for his hat]

RIDGEON Damn his impudence!

B B I shouldn't be at all surprised to learn that he's well connected. Whenever I meet dignity and self-possession without any discoverable basis, I diagnose good family.

RIDGEON Diagnose artistic genius, B B. That's what saves his self-respect.

SIR PATRICK The world is made like that. The decent fellows are always being lectured and put out of countenance by the snobs.

B B [altogether refusing to accept this] I am not out of countenance. I should like, by Jupiter, to see the man who could put me out of countenance. [Jennifer comes in] Ah, Mrs Dubedat! And how are we today?

MRS DUBEDAT [shaking hands with him] Thank you all so much for coming. [She shakes Walpole's hand] Thank you, Sir Patrick [she shakes Sir Patrick's]. Oh, life has been worth living since I have known you. Since Richmond I have not known a moment's fear. And it used to be nothing but fear. Wont you sit down and tell me the result of the consultation.

WALPOLE I'll go, if you don't mind, Mrs Dubedat. I have an appointment. Before I go, let me say that I am quite agreed with my colleagues here as to the character of the case. As to the cause and the remedy, that's not my business. I'm only a surgeon, and these gentlemen are physicians and will advise you. I may have my own views. In fact I have them, and they are perfectly well known to my colleagues. If I am needed—and needed I shall be finally—they know where to find me, and I am always at your service. So for today, goodbye. [He goes out, leaving Jennifer much puzzled by his unexpected withdrawal and formal manner]

SIR PATRICK I also will ask you to excuse me, Mrs Dubedat.

RIDGEON [anxiously] Are you going?

SIR PATRICK Yes. I can be of no use here, and I must be getting back. As you know, ma'am, I'm not in practice now, and I shall not be in charge of the case. It rests between Sir Colenso Ridgeon and Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington. They know my opinion. Good afternoon to you, ma'am. [He bows and makes for the door]

MRS DUBEDAT [detaining him] There's nothing wrong, is there? You don't think Louis is worse, do you?

SIR PATRICK No, he's not worse. Just the same as at Richmond.

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, thank you. You frightened me. Excuse me.

SIR PATRICK Don't mention it, ma'am. [He goes out]

B B Now, Mrs Dubedat, if I am to take the patient in hand—

MRS DUBEDAT [apprehensively, with a glance at Ridgeon] You! But I thought that Sir Colenso—

B B [beaming with the conviction that he is giving her a most gratifying surprise] My dear lady, your husband shall have Me.

MRS DUBEDAT But—

B B Not a word. It is a pleasure to me, for your sake. Sir Colenso Ridgeon will be in his proper place, in the bacteriological laboratory. I shall be in my proper place, at the bedside. Your husband shall be treated exactly as if he were a member of the royal family. [Mrs Dubedat uneasy, again is about to protest] No gratitude. It would embarrass me, I assure you. Now, may I ask whether you are particularly tied to these apartments. Of course, the motor has annihilated distance, but I confess that if you were rather nearer to me, it would be a little more convenient.

MRS DUBEDAT You see, this studio and flat are self-contained. I have suffered so much in lodgings. The servants are so frightfully dishonest.

B B Ah! Are they? Are they? Dear me!

MRS DUBEDAT I was never accustomed to lock things up. And I missed so many small sums. At last a dreadful thing happened. I missed a five-pound note. It was traced to the housemaid, and she actually said Louis had given it to her. And he wouldn't let me do anything. He is so sensitive that these things drive him mad.

B B Ah—hm—ha—yes—say no more, Mrs Dubedat. You shall not move. If the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must come to the mountain. Now I must be off. I will write and make an appointment. We shall begin stimulating the phagocytes on—on—probably on Tuesday next, but I will let you know. Depend on me, don't fret, eat regularly, sleep well, keep your spirits up, keep the patient cheerful, hope for the best, no tonic like a charming woman, no medicine like cheerfulness, no resource like science goodbye, goodbye, goodbye [Having shaken hands—she being too overwhelmed to speak—he goes out, stopping to say to Ridgeon] On Tuesday morning send me down a tube of some really stiff anti-toxin Any kind will do Dont forget Goodbye, Colly [He goes out]

RIDGEON You look quite discouraged again. [She is almost in tears] Whats the matter? Are you disappointed?

MRS DUBEDAT I know I ought to be very grateful Believe me, I am very grateful But—but—

RIDGEON Well?

MRS DUBEDAT I had set my heart on your curing Louis

RIDGEON Well. Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington—

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, I know, I know It is a great privilege to have him But oh, I wish it had been you I know it's unreasonable, I cant explain, but I had such a strong instinct that you would cure him I dont—I cant feel the same about Sir Ralph You promised me Why did you give Louis up?

RIDGEON I explained to you I cannot take another case

MRS DUBEDAT But at Richmond?

RIDGEON At Richmond I thought I could make room for one more case But my old friend Dr Blenkinsop claimed that place His lung is attacked.

MRS DUBEDAT [attaching no importance whatever to Blenkinsop] Do you mean that elderly man—that rather silly—

RIDGEON [sternly] I mean the gentleman that dined with us an excellent and honest man, whose life is as valuable as anyone else's I have arranged that I shall take his case, and that Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonington shall take Mr Dubedat's

MRS DUBEDAT [turning indignantly on him] I see what it is Oh! it is envious, mean, cruel. And I thought that you would be above such a thing

RIDGEON What do you mean?

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, do you think I dont know? do you think it has never happened before? Why does everybody turn against him? Can you not forgive him for being superior to you? for being cleverer? for being braver? for being a great artist?

RIDGEON Yes I can forgive him for all that

MRS DUBEDAT Well, have you anything to say against him? I have challenged everyone who has turned against him—challenged them face to face to tell me any wrong thing he has done, any ignoble thought he has uttered They have always confessed that they could not tell me one I challenge you now What do you accuse him of?

RIDGEON I am like all the rest Face to face, I cannot tell you one thing against him.

MRS DUBEDAT [not satisfied] But your manner is changed And you have broken your promise to me to make room for him as your patient

RIDGEON I think you are a little unreasonable You have had the very best medical advice in London for him, and his case has been taken in hand by a leader of the profession Surely—

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, it is so cruel to keep telling me that It seems all right, and it puts me in the wrong But I am not in the wrong. I have faith in you, and I have no faith in the others We have seen so many doctors I have come to know at last when they are only talking and can do nothing It is different with you I feel that you know You must listen to me, doctor [With sudden misgiving] Am I offending you by calling you doctor instead of remembering your title?

RIDGEON Nonsense I am a doctor But mind you dont call Walpole one

MRS DUBEDAT I dont care about Mr Walpole it is you who must befriend me Oh, will you please sit down and listen to me just for a few minutes [He assents with a grave inclination, and sits on the sofa She sits on the easel chair] Thank you I wont keep you long, but I must tell you the whole truth Listen I know Louis as nobody else in the world knows him or ever can know him I am his wife I know he has little faults impatience sensitiveness, even little selfishnesses that are too trivial for him to notice I know that he sometimes shocks people about money because he is so utterly above it, and cant understand the value ordinary people set on it Tell me did he—did he borrow any money from you?

RIDGEON He asked me for some—once

MRS DUBEDAT [tears again in her eyes] Oh, I am so sorry—so sorry But he will never do it again I pledge you my word for that He has given me his promise here in this room just before you came, and he is incapable of breaking his word That was his only real weakness, and now it is conquered and done with foi ever

RIDGEON Was that really his only weakness?

MRS DUBEDAT He is perhaps sometimes weak about women, because they adore him so, and are always laying traps for him. And of course when he says he doesn't believe in morality, ordinary pious people think he must be wicked. You can understand, can't you, how all this starts a great deal of gossip about him, and gets repeated until even good friends get set against him?

RIDGEON Yes I understand

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, if you only knew the other side of him as I do! Do you know, doctor, that if Louis dishonored himself by a really bad action, I should kill myself

RIDGEON Come! don't exaggerate

MRS DUBEDAT I should. You don't understand that, you east country people

RIDGEON You did not see much of the world in Cornwall, did you?

MRS DUBEDAT [naïvely] Oh yes I saw a great deal every day of the beauty of the world—more than you ever see here in London. But I saw very few people, if that is what you mean. I was an only child

RIDGEON That explains a good deal

MRS DUBEDAT I had a great many dreams, but at last they all came to one dream

RIDGEON [with half a sigh] Yes, the usual dream

MRS DUBEDAT [surprised] Is it usual?

RIDGEON As I guess. You haven't yet told me what it was

MRS DUBEDAT I didn't want to waste myself. I could do nothing myself, but I had a little property and I could help with it. I had even a little beauty. Don't think me vain for knowing it. I knew that men of genius always had a terrible struggle with poverty and neglect at first. My dream was to save one of them from that, and bring some charm and happiness into his life. I prayed Heaven to send me one. I firmly believe that Louis was guided to me in answer to my prayer. He was no more like the other men I had met than the Thames Embankment is like our Cornish coasts. He saw everything that I saw, and drew it for me. He understood everything. He came to me like a child. Only fancy, doctor, he never even wanted to marry me. He never thought of the things other men think of! I had to propose it myself. Then he said he had no money. When I told him I had some, he said "Oh, all right", just like a boy. He is still like that, quite unspoiled, a man in his thoughts, a great poet and artist in his dreams, and a child in his ways. I gave him myself and all that I had that he might grow to his full height with plenty of sunshine. If I lost faith in him, it would mean the wreck and failure of my life. I should go back to Cornwall and die. I could shew you the very cliff I should jump off. You must cure him. You must make him quite well again for me. I know that you can do it and that nobody else can. I implore you not to refuse what I am going to ask you to do. Take Louis yourself and let Sir Ralph cure Dr. Blenkinsop.

RIDGEON [slowly] Mrs. Dubedat, do you really believe in my knowledge and skill as you say you do?

MRS DUBEDAT Absolutely. I do not give my trust by halves.

RIDGEON I know that. Well, I am going to test you—hard. Will you believe me when I tell you that I understand what you have just told me, that I have no desire but to serve you in the most faithful friendship, and that your hero must be preserved to you?

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, forgive me. Forgive what I said. You will preserve him to me.

RIDGEON At all hazards. [She kisses his hand. He rises hastily.] No, you have not heard the rest. [She rises too.] You must believe me when I tell you that the one chance of preserving the hero lies in Louis being in the care of Sir Ralph.

MRS DUBEDAT [firmly] You say so. I have no more doubt. I believe you. Thank you.

RIDGEON Goodbye. [She takes his hand.] I hope this will be a lasting friendship.

MRS DUBEDAT It will. My friendships end only with death.

RIDGEON Death ends everything, doesn't it? Goodbye.

With a sigh and a look of pity at her which she does not understand, he goes

ACT IV

The studio. The easel is pushed back to the wall. Cardinal Death, holding his scythe and hour-glass like a sceptre and globe, sits on the throne. On the hat-stand hang the hats of Sir Patrick and Bloomfield Bonington. Walpole, just come in, is hanging up his beside them. There is a knock. He opens the door and finds Ridgeon there.

WALPOLE Hallo Ridgeon!

They come into the middle of the room together taking off their gloves

RIDGEON Whats the matter? Have you been sent for, too

WALPOLE Weve all been sent for Ive only just come. I havnt seen him yet The charwoman says that old Paddy Cullen has been here with B B for the last half-hour [Sir Patrick with bad news in his face, enters from the inner room] Well whats up?

SIR PATRICK Go in and see B B is in there with him.

Walpole goes Ridgeon is about to follow him, but Sir Patrick stops him with a look RIDGEON What has happened?

SIR PATRICK. Do you remember Jane Marsh's arm?

RIDGEON Is that whats happened?

SIR PATRICK Thats whats happened His lung has gone like Jane's arm I never saw such a case He has got through three months galloping consumption in three days

RIDGEON. B B got in on the negative phase.

SIR PATRICK Negative or positive. the lad's done for He wont last out the afternoon. He'll go suddenly. Ive often seen it

RIDGEON So long as he goes before his wife finds him out. I dont care I fully expected this

SIR PATRICK [dryly] Its a little hard on a lad to be killed because his wife has too high an opinion of him. Fortunately few of us are in any danger of that.

Sir Ralph comes from the inner room and hastens between them humanely concerned, but professionally elate and communicative

B B Ah here you are, Ridgeon. Paddy's told you of course.

RIDGEON Yes

B B Its an enormously interesting case You know Colly by Jupiter. if I didnt know as a matter of scientific fact that I'd been stimulating the phagocytes I should say I'd been stimulating the other things What is the explanation of it Sir Patrick? How do you account for it Ridgeon? Have we overstimulated the phagocytes? Have they not only eaten up the bacilli but attacked and destroyed the red corpuscles as well? a possibility suggested by the patient's pallor. Nay. have they finally begun to prey on the lungs themselves? Or on one another? I shall write a paper about this case

Walpole comes back, very serious, even shocked He comes between B B and Ridgeon

WALPOLE Whew! B B youve done it this time.

B B What do you mean?

WALPOLE Killed him The worst case of neglected blood-poisoning I ever saw Its too late now to do anything He'd die under the anæsthetic

B B [offended] Killed! Really Walpole if your monomania were not well known, I should take such an expression very seriously

SIR PATRICK. Come come! When youve both killed as many people as I have in my time youll feel humble enough about it Come and look at him. Colly.

Ridgeon and Sir Patrick go into the inner room

WALPOLE I apologize B B But it's blood-poisoning

B B [recovering his irresistible good nature] My dear Walpole everything is blood-poisoning But upon my soul I shall not use any of that stuff of Ridgeon's again. What made me so sensitive about what you said just now is that strictly between ourselves, Ridgeon has cooked our young friend's goose

Jennifer, worried and distressed but always gentle comes between them from the inner room She wears a nurse's apron

MRS DUBEDAT Sir Ralph. what am I to do? That man who insisted on seeing me. and sent in word that his business was important to Louis, is a newspaper man. A paragraph appeared in the paper this morning saying that Louis is seriously ill, and this man wants to interview him about it. How can people be so brutally callous?

WALPOLE [moving vengefully towards the door] You just leave me to deal with him!

MRS DUBEDAT [stopping him] But Louis insists on seeing him he almost began to cry about it. And he says he cant bear his room any longer He says he wants to [she struggles with a sob]-to die in his studio Sir Patrick says let him have his way it can do no harm What shall we do?

B B [encouragingly] Why follow Sir Patrick's excellent advice of course As he says it can do him no harm and it will no doubt do him good—a great deal of good He will be much the better for it

MRS DUBEDAT [a little cheered] Will you bring the man up here Mr Walpole and tell him that he may see Louis, but that he mustnt

THE DOCTOR'S DILEMMA

exhaust him by talking? [Walpole nods and goes out by the outer door] Sir Ralph dont be angry with me, but Louis will die if he stays here I must take him to Cornwall He will recover there

B B [brightening nonderfully, as if Dubedat were already saved] Cornwall! The very place for him! Wonderful for the lungs Stupid of me not to think of it before You are his best physician after all, dear lady An inspiration! Cornwall of course, yes, yes, yes

MRS DUBEDAT [comforted and touched] You are so kind, Sir Ralph But dont give me much hope or I shall cry, and Louis cant bear that

B B [gently putting his protecting arm round her shoulders] Then let us come back to him and help to carry him in Cornwall! of course, of course The very thing! [They go together into the bedroom]

Walpole returns with The Newspaper Man, a cheerful, affable young man who is disabled for ordinary business pursuits by a congenital erroneousness which renders him incapable of describing accurately anything he sees, or understanding or reporting accurately anything he hears As the only employment in which these defects do not matter is journalism (for a newspaper, not having to act on its descriptions and reports, but only to sell them to idly curious people, has nothing but honor to lose by inaccuracy and unveracity), he has perforce become a journalist, and has to keep up an air of high spirits through a daily struggle with his own illiteracy and the precariousness of his employment He has a note-book, and occasionally attempts to make a note, but as he cannot write shorthand, and does not write with ease in any hand, he generally gives it up as a bad job before he succeeds in finishing a sentence

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [looking round and making indecisive attempts at notes] This is the studio, I suppose

WALPOLE Yes

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [wittily] Where he has his models, eh?

WALPOLE [grimly irresponsible] No doubt

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Cubicle, you said it was?

WALPOLE Yes, tubercle

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Which way do you spell it is it c-u-b-i-c-a-l or c-l-e?

WALPOLE Tubercle, man, not cubical

[Spelling it for him] T-u-b-e-r-c-l-e

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Oh! tubercle Some disease, I suppose I thought he had consumption Are you one of the family or the doctor?

WALPOLE I'm neither one nor the other I am Mister Cutler Walpole Put that down Then put down Sir Colenso Ridgeon

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Pigeon?

WALPOLE Ridgeon [Contemptuously snatching his book] Here youd better let me write the names down for you youre sure to get them wrong That comes of belonging to an illiterate profession, with no qualifications and no public register [He writes the particulars]

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Oh, I say you have got your knife into us, havnt you?

WALPOLE [vindicatively] I wish I had I'd make a better man of you Now attend [Shewing him the book] These are the names of the three doctors This is the patient This is the address This is the name of the disease [He shuts the book with a snap which makes the journalist blink, and returns it to him] Mr Dubedat will be brought in here presently He wants to see you because he doesnt know how bad he is We'll allow you to wait a few minutes to humor him, but if you talk to him, you go

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [interested] Is he as bad as that? I am in luck today Would you like me to photograph you? [He takes out a camera] Could you have a lancet in your hand?

WALPOLE Put it up If you want my photograph you can get it in Baker Street in any of the series of celebrities

THE NEWSPAPER MAN But theyll want to be paid If you wouldnt mind [fingering the camera]—?

WALPOLE I would Put it up, I tell you Sit down there and be quiet

The Newspaper Man quickly sits down on the piano stool as Dubedat, in an invalid's chair, is wheeled in by Mrs Dubedat and Sir Ralph They place the chair between the dais and the sofa, where the easel stood before Louis is not changed as a robust man would be, and he is not scared His eyes look larger, and he is so weak physically that he can hardly move, lying on his cushions with complete languor, but his mind is active it is making the most of his condition, finding voluptuousness in languor and drama in death They are all impressed, in spite of themselves, except Ridgeon, who is implacable B B is entirely sympathetic and forgiving Ridgeon follows the chair with a tray of milk and stimulants Sir Patrick, who accompanies him, takes the tea-table from the corner and places it behind the chair for the tray B B takes the easel chair and places it for Jennifer at Dubedat's side, next the dais, from which the lay figure ogles the dying artist B B then returns to Dubedat's left Jennifer sits Walpole sits down on the edge of the dais Ridgeon stands near him

LOUIS [blissfully] That's happiness To be in a studio! Happiness!

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, dear Sir Patrick says you may stay here as long as you like

LOUIS Jennifer

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, my darling

LOUIS Is the newspaper man here?

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [glibly] Yes, Mr Dubedat I'm here, at your service I represent the press I thought you might like to let us have a few words about—about—er—well, a few words on your illness, and your plans for the season

LOUIS My plans for the season are very simple I'm going to die

MRS DUBEDAT [tortured] Louis—dearest—

LOUIS My darling I'm very weak and tired Dont put on me the horrible strain of pretending that I dont know Ive been lying there listening to the doctors—laughing to myself They know Dearest dont cry It makes you ugly, and I cant bear that [She dries her eyes and recovers herself with a proud effort] I want you to promise me something

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, yes you know I will [Imploringly] Only, my love, my love, dont talk it will waste your strength

LOUIS No it will only use it up Ridgeon give me something to keep me going for a few minutes—not one of your confounded anti-toxins if you dont mind I have some things to say before I go

RIDGEON [looking at Sir Patrick] I suppose it can do no harm? [He pours out some spirit, and is about to add soda water when Sir Patrick corrects him]

SIR PATRICK In milk Dont set him coughing

LOUIS [after drinking] Jennifer

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, dear

LOUIS If theres one thing I hate more than another, it's a widow Promise me that you'll never be a widow.

MRS DUBEDAT My dear, what do you mean?

LOUIS I want you to look beautiful I want people to see in your eyes that you were married to me The people in Italy used to point at Dante and say "There goes the man who has been in hell" I want them to point at you and say "There goes a woman who has been in heaven" It has been heaven, darling, hasnt it—sometimes?

MRS DUBEDAT Oh yes, yes Always, always

LOUIS If you wear black and cry, people will say "Look at that miserable woman her husband made her miserable"

MRS DUBEDAT No, never You are the light and the blessing of my life I never lived until I knew you

LOUIS [his eyes glistening] Then you must always wear beautiful dresses and splendid magic jewels Think of all the wonderful pictures I shall never paint [She wins a terrible victory over a sob] Well, you must be transfigured with all the beauty of those pictures Men must get such dreams from seeing you as they never could get from any daubing with paints and brushes Painters must paint you as they never painted any mortal woman before There must be a great tradition of beauty, a great atmosphere of wonder and romance That is what men must always think of when they think of me That is the sort of immortality I want You can make that for me, Jennifer There are lots of things you dont understand that every woman in the street understands, but you can understand that and do it as nobody else can Promise me that immortality Promise me you will not make a little hell of crape and crying and undertaker's horrors and withering flowers and all that vulgar rubbish

MRS DUBEDAT I promise But all that is far off, dear You are to come to Cornwall with me and get well Sir Ralph says so

LOUIS Poor old B B!

B B [affected to tears, turns away and whispers to Sir Patrick] Poor fellow! Brain going

LOUIS Sir Patrick's there, isnt he?

SIR PATRICK Yes, yes I'm here

LOUIS Sit down, wont you? It's a shame to keep you standing about.

SIR PATRICK Yes, yes Thank you All right

LOUIS Jennifer

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, dear

LOUIS [with a strange look of delight] Do you remember the burning bush?

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, yes Oh, my dear, how it strains my heart to remember it now!

LOUIS Does it? It fills me with joy Tell them about it

MRS DUBEDAT It was nothing—only that once in my old Cornish home we lit the first fire of the winter, and when we looked through the window we saw the flames dancing in a bush in the garden

LOUIS Such a color! Garnet color Waving like silk Liquid lovely flame flowing up through the bay leaves, and not burning them Well, I shall be a flame like that I'm sorry to disappoint the poor little worms, but the last of me shall be the flame in the burning bush Whenever you see the flame, Jennifer, that will be me Promise me that I shall be burnt

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, if I might be with you, Louis!

LOUIS No you must always be in the garden when the bush flames You are my hold on the world you are my immortality Promise

MRS DUBEDAT I'm listening I shall not forget You know that I promise

LOUIS Well, that's about all, except that you are to hang my pictures at the one-man show I can trust your eye You won't let anyone else touch them

MRS DUBEDAT You can trust me

LOUIS Then there's nothing more to worry about, is there? Give me some more of that milk I'm fearfully tired, but if I stop talking I shan't begin again [Sir Ralph gives him a drink He takes it and looks up quaintly] I say, B B, do you think anything would stop you talking?

B B [almost unmanned] He confuses me with you, Paddy Poor fellow! Poor fellow!

LOUIS [musings] I used to be awfully afraid of death, but now it's come I have no fear, and I'm perfectly happy Jennifer

MRS DUBEDAT Yes, dear?

LOUIS I'll tell you a secret I used to think that our marriage was all an affectation, and that I'd break loose and run away some day But now that I'm going to be broken loose whether I like it or not, I'm perfectly fond of you, and perfectly satisfied because I'm going to live as part of you and not as my troublesome self

MRS DUBEDAT [heartbroken] Stay with me, Louis Oh, don't leave me, dearest

LOUIS Not that I'm selfish With all my faults I don't think I've ever been really selfish No artist can Art is too large for that You will marry again, Jennifer

MRS DUBEDAT Oh, how can you, Louis?

LOUIS [insisting childishly] Yes, because people who have found marriage happy always marry again Ah, I shan't be jealous [Slyly] But don't talk to the other fellow too much about me he won't like it [Almost chuckling] I shall be your lover all the time, but it will be a secret from him, poor devil!

SIR PATRICK Come! you've talked enough Try to rest awhile

LOUIS [wearily] Yes I'm fearfully tired, but I shall have a long rest presently I have something to say to you fellows You're all there, aren't you? I'm too weak to see anything but Jennifer's bosom That promises rest

RIDGEON We are all here

LOUIS [startled] That voice sounded devilish Take care, Ridgeon my ears hear things that other people's ears can't I've been thinking—thinking I'm cleverer than you imagine

SIR PATRICK [whispering to Ridgeon] You've got on his nerves, Colly Slip out quietly

RIDGEON [apart to Sir Patrick] Would you deprive the dying actor of his audience?

LOUIS [his face lighting up faintly with mischievous glee] I heard that, Ridgeon That was good Jennifer, dear be kind to Ridgeon always, because he was the last man who amused me

RIDGEON [relentless] Was I?

LOUIS But it's not true It's you who are still on the stage I'm half way home already

MRS DUBEDAT [to Ridgeon] What did you say?

LOUIS [answering for him] Nothing, dear Only one of those little secrets that men keep among themselves Well, all you chaps have thought pretty hard things of me, and said them

B B [quite overcome] No, no, Dubedat Not at all

LOUIS Yes, you have I know what you all think of me Don't imagine I'm sore about it I forgive you

WALPOLE [involuntarily] Well, damn me! [Ashamed] I beg your pardon

LOUIS That was old Walpole, I know Don't grieve, Walpole I'm perfectly happy I'm not in pain I don't want to live I've escaped from myself I'm in heaven, immortal in the heart of my beautiful Jennifer I'm not afraid, and not ashamed [Reflectively, puzzling it out for himself weakly] I know that in an accidental sort of way, struggling through the unreal part of life, I haven't always been able to live up to my ideal But in my own real world I have never done anything wrong, never denied my faith, never been untrue to myself I've been threatened and blackmailed and insulted and starved But I've played the game I've fought the good fight And now it's all over, there's an indescribable peace [He feebly folds his hands and utters his creed] I believe in Michael Angelo, Velasquez, and Rembrandt, in the might of design, the mystery of color, the redemption of all things by Beauty everlasting, and the message of Art that has made these hands blessed Amen Amen [He closes his eyes and lies still]

MRS DUBEDAT [breathless] Louis are you—
Walpole rises and comes quickly to see whether he is dead

LOUIS Not yet, dear Very nearly, but not yet I should like to rest my head on your bosom, only it would tire you

MRS DUBEDAT No, no, no, darling how could you tire me? [She lifts him so that he lies in her bosom]

LOUIS That's good That's real

MRS DUBEDAT Dont spare me, dear Indeed indeed you will not tire me Lean on me with all your weight

LOUIS [with a sudden half return of his normal strength and comfort] Jinny Gwinny I think I shall recover after all [Sir Patrick looks significantly at Ridgeon, mutely warning him that this is the end]

MRS DUBEDAT [hopefully] Yes, yes you shall

LOUIS Because I suddenly want to sleep Just an ordinary sleep

MRS DUBEDAT [rocking him] Yes, dear Sleep [He seems to go to sleep Walpole makes another movement She protests] Sh-sh please dont disturb him [His lips move] What-did you say, dear? [In great distress] I cant listen without moving him [His lips move again Walpole bends down and listens]

WALPOLE He wants to know is the newspaper man here

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [excited, for he has been enjoying himself enormously] Yes, Mr Dubedat Here I am

Walpole raises his hand warningly to silence him Sir Ralph sits down quietly on the sofa and frankly buries his face in his handkerchief

MRS DUBEDAT [with great relief] Oh thats right, dear dont spare me I can with all your weight on me Now you are really resting

Sir Patrick quickly comes forward and feels

Louis's pulse, then takes him by the shoulders

SIR PATRICK Let me put him back on the pillow, maam He will be better so

MRS DUBEDAT [piteously] Oh no, please, please, doctor He is not tiring me, and he will be so hurt when he wakes if he finds I have put him away

SIR PATRICK He will never wake again [He takes the body from her and replaces it in the chair Ridgeon, unmoved, lets down the back and makes a bier of it]

MRS DUBEDAT [who has unexpectedly sprung to her feet, and stands dry-eyed and stately] Was that death?

WALPOLE Yes

MRS DUBEDAT [with complete dignity] Will you wait for me a moment I will come back [She goes out]

WALPOLE Ought we to follow her? Is she in her right senses?

SIR PATRICK [with quiet conviction] Yes She's all right Leave her alone She'll come back

RIDGEON [callously] Let us get this thing out of the way before she comes

B B [rising, shocked] My dear Colly! The poor lad! He died splendidly

SIR PATRICK Aye! that is how the wicked die

For there are no bands in their death,
But their strength is firm

They are not in trouble as other men
No matter it's not for us to judge He's in another world now

WALPOLE Borrowing his first five-pound note there, probably

RIDGEON I said the other day that the most tragic thing in the world is a sick doctor I was wrong The most tragic thing in the world is a man of genius who is not also a man of honor

Ridgeon and Walpole wheel the chair into the recess

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [to Sir Ralph] I thought it shewed a very nice feeling, his being so particular about his wife going into proper mourning for him and making her promise never to marry again

B B [impressively] Mrs Dubedat is not in a position to carry the interview any further Neither are we

SIR PATRICK Good afternoon to you

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Mrs Dubedat said she was coming back

B B After you have gone

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Do you think she would give me a few words on How It Feels to be a Widow? Rather a good title for an article, isn't it?

B B Young man if you wait until Mrs Dubedat comes back, you will be able to write an article on How It Feels to be Turned Out of the House

THE NEWSPAPER MAN [unconvinced] You think she'd rather not—

B B [cutting him short] Good day to you [Giving him a visiting-card] Mind you get my name correctly Good day

THE NEWSPAPER MAN Good day Thank you [Vaguely trying to read the card] Mr—

B B No, not Mister This is your hat, I think [giving it to him] Gloves? No, of course no gloves Good day to you [He edges him out at last, shuts the door on him, and returns to Sir Patrick as Ridgeon and Walpole come back from the recess, Walpole crossing the room to the hat-stand, and Ridgeon coming between Sir Ralph and Sir Patrick] Poor fellow! Poor young fellow! How well he died! I feel a better man, really

SIR PATRICK When you're as old as I am, you'll know that it matters very little how a man dies What matters is, how he lives Every fool that runs his nose against a bullet is a hero nowadays, because he dies for his country Why don't he live for it to some purpose?

B B No, please, Paddy don't be hard on the poor lad Not now, not now After all, was he so bad? He had only two failings money and women Well, let us be honest Tell the truth, Paddy Don't be hypocritical, Ridgeon Throw off the mask, Walpole Are these two matters so well arranged at present that a disregard of the usual arrangements indicates real depravity?

WALPOLE I don't mind his disregarding the usual arrangements Confound the usual arrangements! To a man of science they're beneath contempt both as to money and women What I mind is his disregarding everything except his own pocket and his own fancy He didn't disregard the usual arrangements when they paid him Did he give us his pictures for nothing? Do you suppose he'd have hesitated to blackmail me if I'd compromised myself with his wife? Not he

SIR PATRICK Don't waste your time wrangling over him A blackguard's a blackguard, an honest man's an honest man, and neither of them will ever be at a loss for a religion or a morality to prove that their ways are the right ways It's the same with nations, the same with professions, the same all the world over and always will be

B B Ah, well, perhaps, perhaps, perhaps Still, de mortuis nil nisi bonum He died extremely well, remarkably well He has set us an example let us endeavor to follow it rather than harp on the weaknesses that have perished with him I think it is Shakespeare who says that the good that most men do lives after them the evil lies interred with their bones Yes interred with their bones Believe me, Paddy, we are all mortal It is the common lot, Ridgeon Say what you will, Walpole, Nature's debt must be paid If tis not today, 'twill be tomorrow

Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow After life's fitful fever they sleep well And like this insubstantial bourne from which No traveller returns

Leave not a wrack behind

Walpole is about to speak, but B B, suddenly and vehemently proceeding, extinguishes him

Out, out, brief candle For nothing canst thou to damnation add, The readiness is all

WALPOLE [gently, for B B's feeling, absurdly expressed as it is, is too sincere and humane to be ridiculed] Yes, B B Death makes people go on like that I don't know why it should, but it does By the way, what are we going to do? Ought we to clear out, or had we better wait and see whether Mrs Dubedat will come back?

SIR PATRICK I think we'd better go We can tell the charwoman what to do

They take their hats and go to the door

MRS DUBEDAT [coming from the inner room wonderfully and beautifully dressed, and radiant, carrying a great piece of purple silk, handsomely embroidered, over her arm] I'm so sorry to have kept you waiting

SIR PATRICK	[amazed, all together in a confused murmur]	Don't mention it, madam
B B		Not at all, not at all
RIDGEON		By no means
WALPOLE		It doesn't matter in the least

MRS DUBEDAT [coming to them] I felt that I must shake hands with his friends once before we part today We have shared together a great privilege and a great happiness I dont think we can ever think of ourselves as ordinary people again. We have had a wonderful experience, and that gives us a common faith. a common ideal, that nobody else can quite have. Life will always be beautiful to us. death will always be beautiful to us. May we shake hands on that?

SIR PATRICK [shaking hands] Remember all letters had better be left to your solicitor. Let him open everything and settle everything. Thats the law, you know.

MRS DUBEDAT Oh thank you I didnt know [Sir Patrick goes]

WALPOLE Goodbye I blame myself I should have insisted on operating [He goes]

B B I will send the proper people they will know what to do you shall have no trouble. Goodbye my dear lady [He goes]

RIDGEON Goodbye [He offers his hand]

MRS DUBEDAT [drawing back with gentle majesty] I said his friends Sir Colenso [He bows and goes]

She unfolds the great piece of silk and goes into the recess to cover her dead

ACT V

One of the smaller Bond Street Picture Galleries. The entrance is from a picture shop. Nearly in the middle of the gallery there is a writing-table, at which the Secretary fashionably dressed sits with his back to the entrance, correcting catalogue proofs. Some copies of a new book are on the desk also the Secretary's shining hat and a couple of magnifying glasses. At the side, on his left, a little behind him, is a small door marked PRIVATE. Near the same side is a cushioned bench parallel to the walls which are covered with Dubedat's works. Two screens also covered with drawings, stand near the corners right and left of the entrance.

Jennifer beautifully dressed and apparently very happy and prosperous, comes into the gallery through the private door.

JENNIFER Have the catalogues come yet, Mr Danby?

THE SECRETARY Not yet.

JENNIFER What a shame! It's a quarter past the private view will begin in less than half an hour.

THE SECRETARY. I think I'd better run over to the printers to hurry them up.

JENNIFER Oh if you would be so good Mr Danby I'll take your place while youre away.

THE SECRETARY If anyone should come before the time dont take any notice. The commissioner wont let anyone through unless he knows him. We have a few people who like to come before the crowd—people who really buy and of course we're glad to see them. Have you seen the notices in Brush and Crayon and in The Easel?

JENNIFER [indignantly] Yes most disgraceful. They write quite patronizingly, as if they were Mr Dubedat's superiors. After all the cigars and sandwiches they had from us on the press day and all they drank, I really think it is infamous that they should write like that. I hope you have not sent them tickets for today.

THE SECRETARY Oh, they wont come again theres no lunch today. The advance copies of your book have come. [He indicates the new books]

JENNIFER [pouncing on a copy, wildly excited] Give it to me. Oh! excuse me a moment [she runs away with it through the private door]

The Secretary takes a murmur from his drawer and smartens himself before going out. Ridgeon comes in.

RIDGEON Good morning. May I look round, as usual before the doors open?

THE SECRETARY Certainly, Sir Colenso. I'm sorry the catalogues have not come. I'm just going to see about them. Heres my own list if you dont mind.

RIDGEON. Thanks. Whats this? [He takes up one of the new books]

THE SECRETARY Thats just come in. An advance copy of Mrs Dubedat's Life of her late husband.

RIDGEON [reading the title] The Story of a King of Men By His Wife. [He looks at the portrait frontispiece] Ay there he is. You knew him here. I suppose.

THE SECRETARY Oh, we knew him. Better than she did. Sir Colenso in some ways perhaps.

RIDGEON So did I. [They look significantly at one another] I'll take a look round.

The Secretary puts on the shining hat and goes out. Ridgeon begins looking at the pictures. Presently he comes back to the table for a magnifying glass, and scrutinizes a drawing very closely. He sighs, shakes his head as if constrained to admit the extraordinary fascination and merit of the work; then marks the Secretary's list. Proceeding with his survey he disappears behind the screen. Jennifer comes back with her book. A look round satisfies her that she is alone She seats herself at the table and admires the memoir—her first printed book—to her heart's content Ridgeon reappears, face to the wall, scrutinizing the drawings After using his glass again, he steps back to get a more distant view of one of the larger pictures She hastily closes the book at the sound, looks round, recognizes him, and stares, petrified He takes a further step back which brings him nearer to her

RIDGEON [shaking his head as before, ejaculates] Clever brute! [She flushes as though he had struck her He turns to put the glass down on the desk, and finds himself face to face with her intent gaze] I beg your pardon I thought I was alone

JENNIFER [controlling herself, and speaking steadily and meaningly] I am glad we have met, Sir Colenso Ridgeon I met Dr Blenkinsop yesterday I congratulate you on a wonderful cure

RIDGEON [can find no words makes an embarrassed gesture of assent after a moment's silence, and puts down the glass and the Secretary's list on the table]

JENNIFER He looked the picture of health and strength and prosperity [She looks for a moment at the walls, contrasting Blenkinsop's fortune with the artist's fate]

RIDGEON [in low tones, still embarrassed] He has been fortunate

JENNIFER Very fortunate His life has been spared

RIDGEON I mean that he has been made a Medical Officer of Health He cured the Chairman of the Borough Council very successfully JENNIFER With your medicines?

RIDGEON No I believe it was with a pound of ripe greengages

JENNIFER [with deep gravity] Funny!

RIDGEON Yes Life does not cease to be funny when people die any more than it ceases to be serious when people laugh

JENNIFER Dr Blenkinsop said one very strange thing to me

RIDGEON What was that?

JENNIFER He said that private practice in medicine ought to be put down by law When I asked him why, he said that private doctors were ignorant licensed murderers

RIDGEON That is what the public doctor always thinks of the private doctor Well, Blenkinsop ought to know He was a private doctor long enough himself Come! you have talked at me long enough Talk to me You have something to reproach me with There is reproach in your face, in your voice you are full of it Out with it

JENNIFER It is too late for reproaches now When I turned and saw you just now, I wondered how you could come here coolly to look at his pictures You answered the question To you, he was only a clever brute

RIDGEON [quivering] Oh, dont You know I did not know you were here

JENNIFER [raising her head a little with a quite gentle impulse of pride] You think it only mattered because I heard it As if it could touch me, or touch him! Dont you see that what is really dreadful is that to you living things have no souls

RIDGEON [with a sceptical shrug] The soul is an organ I have not come across in the course of my anatomical work

JENNIFER You know you would not dare to say such a silly thing as that to anybody but a woman whose mind you despise If you dissected me you could not find my conscience Do you think I have got none?

RIDGEON I have met people who had none

JENNIFER Clever brutes? Do you know, doctor, that some of the dearest and most faithful friends I ever had were only brutes! You would have vivisected them The dearest and greatest of all my friends had a sort of beauty and affectionateness that only animals have I hope you may never feel what I felt when I had to put him into the hands of men who defend the torture of animals because they are only brutes

RIDGEON Well, did you find us so very cruel, after all? They tell me that though you have dropped me, you stay for weeks with the Bloomfield Boningtons and the Walpoles I think it must be true, because they never mention you to me now

JENNIFER The animals in Sir Ralph's house are like spoiled children When Mr Walpole had to take a splinter out of the mastiff's paw, I had to hold the poor dog myself, and Mr Walpole had to turn Sir Ralph out of the room And Mrs Walpole has to tell the gardener not to kill wasps when Mr Walpole is looking But there are doctors who are naturally cruel, and there are others who get used to cruelty and are callous about it They blind themselves to the souls of animals, and that blinds them to the souls of men and women You made a dreadful mistake about

LOUIS but you would not have made it if you had not trained yourself to make the same mistake about dogs You saw nothing in them but dumb brutes, and so you could see nothing in him but a clever brute

RIDGEON [with sudden resolution] I made no mistake whatever about him

JENNIFER Oh, doctor!

RIDGEON [obstinately] I made no mistake whatever about him

JENNIFER Have you forgotten that he died?

RIDGEON [with a sweep of his hand towards the pictures] He is not dead He is there [Taking up the book] And there

JENNIFER [springing up with blazing eyes] Put that down How dare you touch it?

Ridgeon, amazed at the fierceness of the outburst, puts it down with a deprecatory shrug She takes it up and looks at it as if he had profaned a relic

RIDGEON I am very sorry I see I had better go

JENNIFER [putting the book down] I beg your pardon I—I forgot myself But it is not yet—it is a private copy

RIDGEON But for me it would have been a very different book

JENNIFER But for you it would have been a longer one

RIDGEON You know then that I killed him?

JENNIFER [suddenly moved and softened] Oh, doctor, if you acknowledge that—if you have confessed it to yourself—if you realize what you have done, then there is forgiveness I trusted in your strength instinctively at first, then I thought I had mistaken callousness for strength Can you blame me? But if it was really strength—if it was only such a mistake as we all make sometimes—it will make me so happy to be friends with you again

RIDGEON I tell you I made no mistake I cured Blenkinsop was there any mistake there?

JENNIFER He recovered Oh, don't be foolishly proud, doctor Confess to a failure, and save our friendship Remember, Sir Ralph gave Louis your medicine, and it made him worse

RIDGEON I can't be your friend on false pretences Something has got me by the throat the truth must come out I used that medicine myself on Blenkinsop It did not make him worse It is a dangerous medicine it cured Blenkinsop it killed Louis Dubedat When I handle it, it cures When another man handles it, it kills—sometimes

JENNIFER [naively not yet taking it all in] Then why did you let Sir Ralph give it to Louis?

RIDGEON I'm going to tell you I did it because I was in love with you

JENNIFER [innocently surprised] In lo—You! an elderly man!

RIDGEON [thunderstruck, raising his fists to heaven] Dubedat thou art avenged! [He drops his hands and collapses on the bench] I never thought of that. I suppose I appear to you a ridiculous old fogey.

JENNIFER But surely—I did not mean to offend you, indeed—but you must be at least twenty years older than I am

RIDGEON Oh, quite More, perhaps In twenty years you will understand how little difference that makes

JENNIFER But even so, how could you think that I—his wife—could ever think of you—

RIDGEON [stopping her with a nervous waving of his fingers] Yes, yes, yes, yes I quite understand you needn't rub it in

JENNIFER But—oh, it is only dawning on me now—I was so surprised at first—do you dare to tell me that it was to gratify a miserable jealousy that you deliberately—oh! oh! you murdered him

RIDGEON I think I did It really comes to that

Thou shalt not kill but needst not strive Officially to keep alive

I suppose—yes I killed him

JENNIFER And you tell me that! to my face! callously! You are not afraid!

RIDGEON I am a doctor I have nothing to fear It is not an indictable offence to call in B B Perhaps it ought to be, but it isn't

JENNIFER I did not mean that I meant afraid of my taking the law into my own hands, and killing you

RIDGEON I am so hopelessly idiotic about you that I should not mind it a bit You would always remember me if you did that

JENNIFER I shall remember you always as a little man who tried to kill a great one

RIDGEON Pardon me I succeeded

JENNIFER [with quiet conviction] No Doctors think they hold the keys of life and death, but it is not their will that is fulfilled I dont believe you made any difference at all

RIDGEON Perhaps not But I intended to

JENNIFER [looking at him amazedly not without pity] And you tried to destroy that wonderful and beautiful life merely because you grudged him a woman whom you could never have expected to care for you!

RIDGEON Who kissed my hands Who believed in me Who told me her friendship lasted until death

JENNIFER And whom you were betraying

RIDGEON No Whom I was saving

JENNIFER [gently] Pray, doctor, from what?

RIDGEON From making a terrible discovery From having your life laid waste

JENNIFER How?

RIDGEON No matter I have saved you I have been the best friend you ever had You are happy You are well His works are an imperishable joy and pride for you

JENNIFER And you think that is your doing Oh doctor, doctor! Sir Patrick is right you do think you are a little god How can you be so silly? You did not paint those pictures which are my imperishable joy and pride you did not speak the words that will always be heavenly music in my ears I listen to them now whenever I am tired or sad That is why I am always happy

RIDGEON Yes, now that he is dead Were you always happy when he was alive?

JENNIFER [wounded] Oh, you are cruel, cruel When he was alive I did not know the greatness of my blessing I worried meanly about little things I was unkind to him I was unworthy of him

RIDGEON [laughing bitterly] Ha!

JENNIFER Dont insult me dont blaspheme [She snatches up the book and presses it to her heart in a paroxysm of remorse, exclaiming] Oh, my King of Men!

RIDGEON King of Men! Oh, this is too monstrous, too grotesque We cruel doctors have kept the secret from you faithfully, but it is like all secrets it will not keep itself The buried truth germinates and breaks through to the light

JENNIFER What truth?

RIDGEON What truth! Why, that Louis Dubedat, King of Men, was the most entire and perfect scoundrel, the most miraculously mean rascal, the most callously selfish black-guard that ever made a wife miserable

JENNIFER [unshaken calm and lovely] He made his wife the happiest woman in the world, doctor

RIDGEON No by all thats true on earth, he made his widow the happiest woman in the world, but it was I who made her a widow And her happiness is my justification and my reward Now you know what I did and what I thought of him Be as angry with me as you like at least you know me as I really am If you ever come to care for an elderly man, you will know what you are caring for

JENNIFER [kind and quiet] I am not angry with you any more, Sir Colenso I knew quite well that you did not like Louis, but it is not your fault you dont understand that is all You never could have believed in him It is just like your not believing in my religion it is a sort of sixth sense that you have not got And [with a gentle reassuring movement towards him] dont think that you have shocked me so dreadfully I know quite well what you mean by his selfishness He sacrificed everything for his art In a certain sense he had even to sacrifice everybody—

RIDGEON Everybody except himself By keeping that back he lost the right to sacrifice you, and gave me the right to sacrifice him Which I did

JENNIFER [shaking her head, pitying his error] He was one of the men who know what women know that self-sacrifice is vain and cowardly

RIDGEON Yes, when the sacrifice is rejected and thrown away Not when it becomes the food of godhead

JENNIFER I dont understand that And I cant argue with you you are clever enough to puzzle me, but not to shake me You are so utterly, so wildly wrong, so incapable of appreciating Louis—

RIDGEON Oh! [taking up the Secretary's list] I have marked five pictures as sold to me

JENNIFER They will not be sold to you Louis' creditors insisted on selling them, but this is my birthday, and they were all bought in for me this morning by my husband

RIDGEON By whom?!!!

JENNIFER By my husband

RIDGEON [gabbling and stuttering] What husband? Whose husband? Which husband? Whom? how? what? Do you mean to say that you have married again?

JENNIFER Do you forget that Louis disliked widows, and that people who have married happily once always marry again?

RIDGEON Then I have committed a purely disinterested murder!

The Secretary returns with a pile of catalogues

THE SECRETARY Just got the first batch of catalogues in time The doors are open

JENNIFER [to Ridgeon, politely] So glad you like the pictures, Sir Colenso Good morning

RIDGEON Good morning [He goes towards the door, hesitates, turns to say something more, gives it up as a bad job, and goes]

GETTING MARRIED

A DISQUISITORY PLAY (1908)

On a fine morning in the spring of 1908 the Norman kitchen in the Palace of the Bishop of Chelsea looks very spacious and clean and handsome and healthy

The Bishop is lucky enough to have a XII century palace The palace itself has been lucky enough to escape being carved up into XV century Gothic, or shaved into XVIII century ashlar, or "restored" by a XIX century builder and a Victorian architect with a deep sense of the umbrella-like gentlemanliness of XIV century vaulting The present occupant, A Chelsea, unofficially Alfred Bridgenorth, appreciates Norman work He has, by adroit complaints of the discomfort of the place, induced the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to give him some money to spend on it, and with this he has got rid of the wall papers, the paint the partitions, the exquisitely planed and moulded casings with which the Victorian cabinet-makers enclosed and hid the huge black beams of hewn oak, and of all the other expedients of his predecessors to make themselves feel at home and respectable in a Norman fortress It is a house built to last for ever The walls and beams are big enough to carry the toner of Babel, as if the builders, anticipating our modern ideas and instinctively defying them, had resolved to shew how much material they could lavish on a house built for the glory of God, instead of keeping a competitive eye on the advantage of sending in the lonest tender, and scientifically calculating how little material would be enough to prevent the whole affair from tumbling down by its own weight

The kitchen is the Bishop's favorite room This is not at all because he is a man of humble mind, but because the kitchen is one of the finest rooms in the house The Bishop has neither the income nor the appetite to have his cooking done there The windows, high up in the wall, look north and south The north window is the largest, and if we look into the kitchen through it we see facing us the south wall with small Norman windows and an open door near the corner to the left Through this door we have a glimpse of the garden, and of a garden chair in the sunshine In the right-hand corner is an entrance to a vaulted circular chamber with a winding stair leading up through a toner to the upper floors of the palace In the wall to our right is the immense fireplace, with its huge spit like a baby crane, and a collection of old iron and brass instruments which pass as the original furniture of the fire, though as a matter of fact they have been picked up from time to time by the Bishop at secondhand shops In the near end of the left-hand wall a small Norman door gives access to the Bishop's study, formerly a scullery Farther along, a great oak chest stands against the wall Across the middle of the kitchen is a big timber table surrounded by eleven stout rush-bottomed chairs four on the far side, three on the near side, and two at each end There is a big chair with railed back and sides on the hearth On the floor is a drugget of thick fibre matting The only other piece of furniture is a clock with a wooden dial about as large as the bottom of a washtub, the weights, chains, and pendulum being of corresponding magnitude, but the Bishop has long since abandoned the attempt to keep it going It hangs above the oak chest

The kitchen is occupied at present by the Bishop's lady, Mrs Bridgenorth, who is talking to Mr William Collins, the greengrocer He is in evening dress, though it is early forenoon Mrs Bridgenorth is a quiet happy-looking woman of fifty or thereabouts, placid, gentle, and humorous, with delicate features and fine grey hair with many white threads She is dressed as for some festivity, but she is taking things easily as she sits in the big chair by the hearth, reading The Times

Collins is an elderly man with a rather youthful waist His muttonchop whiskers have a coquettish touch of Dundreary at their lower ends He is an affable man, with those perfect manners which can be acquired only in keeping a shop for the sale of necessaries of life to ladies whose social position is so unquestionable that they are not anxious about it He is a reassuring man, with a vigilant grey eye, and the power of saying anything he likes to you without offence, because his tone always implies that he does it with your kind permission Withal by no means servile rather gallant and compassionate, but never without a conscientious recognition, on public grounds, of social distinctions He is at the oak chest counting a pile of napkins

Mrs Bridgenorth reads placidly Collins counts a blackbird sings in the garden Mrs Bridgenorth puts The Times down in her lap and considers Collins for a moment

MRS BRIDGENORTH Do you never feel nervous on these occasions, Collins?

COLLINS Lord bless you, no, maam It would be a joke, after marrying five of your daughters, if I was to get nervous over marrying the last of them

MRS BRIDGENORTH I have always said you were a wonderful man, Collins

COLLINS [almost blushing] Oh, maam!

MRS BRIDGENORTH Yes I never could arrange anything—a wedding or even a dinner—without some hitch or other

COLLINS Why should you give yourself the trouble, maam? Send for the greengrocer, maam that's the secret of easy housekeeping Bless you, it's his business It pays him and you, let alone the pleasure in a house like this [Mrs Bridgenorth bows in acknowledgment of the compliment] They joke about the greengrocer, just as they joke about the mother-in-law But they cant get on without both

MRS BRIDGENORTH What a bond between us, Collins!

COLLINS Bless you, maam, theres all sorts of bonds between all sorts of people You are a very affable lady, maam, for a Bishop's lady I have known Bishops' ladies that would fairly provoke you to up and cheek them, but nobody would ever forget himself and his place with you, maam

MRS BRIDGENORTH Collins you are a flatterer You will superintend the breakfast yourself as usual, of course, wont you?

COLLINS Yes, yes, bless you, maam, of course I always do Them fashionable caterers send down such people as I never did set eyes on Dukes you would take them for You see the relatives shaking hands with them and asking them about the family—actually ladies saying "Where have we met before?" and all sorts of confusion That's my secret in business, maam You can always spot me as the greengrocer It's a fortune to me in these days, when you cant hardly tell who anyone is or isnt [He goes out through the door, and immediately returns for a moment to announce] The General, maam

Mrs Bridgenorth rises to receive her brother-in-law, who enters resplendent in full-dress uniform, with many medals and orders General Bridgenorth is a well set up man of fifty, with large brave nostrils, an iron mouth, faithful dog's eyes, and much natural simplicity and dignity of character He is ignorant, stupid, and prejudiced, having been carefully trained to be so, and it is not always possible to be patient with him when his unquestionably good intentions become actively mischievous, but one blames society, not himself, for this He would be no worse a man than Collins, had he enjoyed Collins's social opportunities He comes to the hearth, where Mrs Bridgenorth is standing with her back to the fireplace

MRS BRIDGENORTH Good morning, Boxer [They shake hands] Another nece to give away This is the last of them

THE GENERAL [very gloomy] Yes, Alice Nothing for the old warrior uncle to do but give away brides to luckier men than himself Has—[he chokes] has your sister come yet?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Why do you always call Lesbia my sister? Dont you know that it annoys her more than any of the rest of your tricks?

THE GENERAL Tricks! Ha! Well, I'll try to break myself of it, but I think she might bear with me in a little thing like that She knows that her name sticks in my throat Better call her your sister than try to call her L— [he almost breaks down] L— well, call her by her name and make a fool of myself by crying [He sits down at the near end of the table]

MRS BRIDGENORTH [going to him and rallying him] Oh come, Boxer! Really, really! We are no longer boys and guls You cant keep up a broken heart all your life It must be nearly twenty years since she refused you And you know that it's not because she dislikes you but only that she's not a marrying woman

THE GENERAL It's no use I love her still And I cant help telling her so whenever we meet though I know it makes her avoid me [He all but neeps]

MRS BRIDGENORTH What does she say when you tell her?

THE GENERAL Only that she wonders when I am going to grow out of it I know now that I sh^{ll} never grow out of it

MRS BRIDGENORTH Perhaps you would if you married her I believe youre better as you are, Boxer

THE GENERAL I'm a miserable man I'm really sorry to be a ridiculous old bore Alice, but when I come to this house for a wedding—to these scenes—to—to—recollections of the past—always to give the bride to somebody else and never to have my bride given to me—[he rises abruptly] May I go into the garden and smoke it off?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Do Boxer

Collins returns with the wedding cake

MRS BRIDGENORTH Oh, heres the cake I believe it's the same one we had for Florence's wedding

THE GENERAL I cant bear it [he hurries out through the garden door]

COLLINS [putting the cake on the table] Well, look at that, maam! Aint it odd that after all the weddings he's given away at, the General cant stand the sight of a wedding cake yet It always seems to give him the same shock

MRS BRIDGENORTH Well, it's his last shock. You have married the whole family now, Collins [She takes up The Times again and resumes her seat]

COLLINS Except your sister, maam A fine character of a lady maam, is Miss Grantham I have an ambition to arrange her wedding breakfast

MRS BRIDGENORTH She wont marry, Collins

COLLINS Bless you, maam they all say that You and me said it, I'll lay I did, anyhow

MRS BRIDGENORTH No marriage came natural to me I should have thought it did to you too

COLLINS [pensive] No, maam it didnt come natural My wife had to break me into it It came natural to her she's what you might call a regular old hen Always wants to have her family within sight of her Wouldnt go to bed unless she knew they was all safe at home and the door locked, and the lights out Always wants her luggage in the carriage with her Always goes and makes the engine driver promise her to be careful She's a born wife and mother, maam Thats why my children all ran away from home

MRS BRIDGENORTH Did you ever feel inclined to run away, Collins?

COLLINS Oh yes maam, yes very often But when it came to the point I couldnt bear to hurt her feelings She's a sensitive, affectionate, anxious soul, and she was never brought up to know what freedom is to some people You see, family life is all the life she knows she's like a bird born in a cage, that would die if you let it loose in the woods When I thought how little it was to a man of my easy temper to put up with her, and how deep it would hurt her to think it was because I didnt care for her, I always put off running away til next time, and so in the end I never ran away at all I daresay it was good for me to be took such care of, but it cut me off from all my old friends something dreadful, maam especially the women, maam She never gave them a chance she didnt indeed She never understood that married people should take holidays from one another if they are to keep at all fresh Not that I ever got tired of her, maam, but my' how I used to get tired of home life sometimes I used to catch myself envying my brother George I positively did, maam

MRS BRIDGENORTH George was a bachelor then, I suppose?

COLLINS Bless you no, maam He married a very fine figure of a woman, but she was that changeable and what you might call susceptible, you would not believe She didnt seem to have any control over herself when she fell in love She would mope for a couple of days crying about nothing, and then she would up and say—no matter who was there to hear her—"I must go to him, George", and away she would go from her home and her husband without with-your-leave or by-your-leave

MRS BRIDGENORTH But do you mean that she did this more than once? That she came back?

COLLINS Bless you, maam, she done it five times to my own knowledge, and then George gave up telling us about it, he got so used to it

MRS BRIDGENORTH But did he always take her back?

COLLINS Well, what could he do, maam? Three times out of four the men would bring her back the same evening and no harm done. Other times they'd run away from her. What could any man with a heart do but comfort her when she came back crying at the way they dodged her when she threw herself at their heads, pretending they was too noble to accept the sacrifice she was making. George told her again and again that if she'd only stay at home and hold off a bit they'd be at her feet all day long. She got sensible at last and took his advice. George always liked change of company.

MRS BRIDGENORTH What an odious woman, Collins! Dont you think so?

COLLINS [judicially] Well, many ladies with a domestic turn thought so and said so, maam. But I will say for Mrs George that the variety of experience made her wonderful interesting. Thats where the flighty ones score off the steady ones, maam. Look at my old woman! She's never known any man but me, and she cant properly know me, because she dont know other men to compare me with. Of course she knows her parents in--well, in the way one does know one's parents not knowing half their lives as you might say, or ever thinking that they was ever young, and she knew her children as children, and never thought of them as independent human beings til they ran away and nigh broke her heart for a week or two. But Mrs George she came to know a lot about men of all sorts and ages, for the older she got the younger she liked em, and it certainly made her interesting, and gave her a lot of sense. I have often taken her advice on things when my own poor old woman wouldnt have been a bit of use to me.

MRS BRIDGENORTH I hope you dont tell your wife that you go elsewhere for advice.

COLLINS Lord bless you, maam, I'm that fond of my old Matilda that I never tell her anything at all for fear of hurting her feelings. You see, she's such an out-and-out wife and mother that she's hardly a responsible human being out of her house, except when she's marketing.

MRS BRIDGENORTH Does she approve of Mrs George?

COLLINS Oh, Mrs George gets round her. Mrs George can get round anybody if she wants to. And then Mrs George is very particular about religion. And she's a clairvoyant!

MRS BRIDGENORTH [surprised] A clairvoyant!

COLLINS [calm] Oh yes, maam, yes. All you have to do is to mesmerize her a bit, and off she goes into a trance, and says the most wonderful things! not things about herself, but as if it was the whole human race giving you a bit of its mind. Oh, wonderful, maam, I assure you. You couldnt think of a game that Mrs George isnt up to.

Lesbia Grantham comes in through the tower. She is a tall, handsome, slender lady in her prime that is, between 36 and 55. She has what is called a well-bred air, dressing very carefully to produce that effect without the least regard for the latest fashions, sure of herself, very terrifying to the young and shy, fastidious to the ends of her long finger-tips, and tolerant and amused rather than sympathetic.

LESBIA Good morning, dear big sister.

MRS BRIDGENORTH Good morning, dear little sister. [They kiss]

LESBIA Good morning, Collins. How well you are looking! And how young! [She turns the middle chair away from the table and sits down]

COLLINS Thats only my professional habit at a wedding, Miss. You should see me at a political dinner. I look nigh seventy. [Looking at his watch] Time's getting along, maam. May I send up word from you to Miss Edith to hurry a bit with her dressing?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Do, Collins.

Collins goes out through the tower, taking the cake with him.

LESBIA Dear old Collins! Has he told you any stories this morning?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Yes. You were just late for a particularly thrilling invention of his.

LESBIA About Mrs George?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Yes. He says she's a clairvoyant.

LESBIA I wonder whether he really invented Mrs George, or stole her out of some book.

MRS BRIDGENORTH I wonder!

LESBIA Wheres the Barmecide?

MRS BRIDGENORTH In the study, working away at his new book. He thinks no more now of having a daughter married than of having an egg for breakfast.

The General, soothed by smoking, comes in from the garden.

THE GENERAL [with resolute bonhomie] Ah, Lesbia! How do you do? [They shake hands, and he takes the chair on her right]

Mrs Bridgenorth goes out through the door

LESBIA How are you, Boxer? You look almost as gorgeous as the wedding cake

THE GENERAL I make a point of appearing in uniform whenever I take part in any ceremony, as a lesson to the subalterns. It is not the custom in England, but it ought to be LESBIA You look very fine, Boxer. What a frightful lot of bravery all these medals must represent!

THE GENERAL No, Lesbia. They represent despair and cowardice. I won all the early ones by trying to get killed. You know why

LESBIA But you had a charmed life?

THE GENERAL Yes, a charmed life. Bayonets bent on my buckles. Bullets passed through me and left no trace—that's the worst of modern bullets. I've never been hit by a dum-dum. When I was only a company officer I had at least the right to expose myself to death in the field. Now I'm a General even that resource is cut off [Persuasively drawing his chair nearer to her]. Listen to me, Lesbia. For the tenth and last time—

LESBIA [interrupting] On Florence's wedding morning, two years ago, you said "For the ninth and last time."

THE GENERAL We are two years older, Lesbia. I'm fifty, you are—

LESBIA Yes, I know. It's no use, Boxer. When will you be old enough to take no for an answer?

THE GENERAL Never, Lesbia, never. You have never given me a real reason for refusing me yet. I once thought it was somebody else. There were lots of fellows after you, but now they've all given it up and married [Bending still nearer to her]. Lesbia, tell me your secret. Why—LESBIA [sniffing disgustedly] Oh! You've been smoking [She rises and goes to the chair on the hearth]. Keep away, you wretch.

THE GENERAL But for that pipe, I could not have faced you without breaking down. It has soothed me and nerved me.

LESBIA [sitting down with The Times in her hand] Well, it has nerved me to tell you why I'm going to be an old maid.

THE GENERAL [impulsively approaching her] Don't say that, Lesbia. It's not natural, it's not right, it's—

LESBIA [fanning him off] No, no closer, Boxer, please [He retreats, discouraged]. It may not be natural, but it happens all the same. You'll find plenty of women like me, if you care to look for them—women with lots of character and good looks and money and offers, who won't and don't get married. Can't you guess why?

THE GENERAL I can understand when there is another

LESBIA Yes, but there isn't another. Besides, do you suppose I think, at my time of life, that the difference between one decent sort of man and another is worth bothering about?

THE GENERAL The heart has its preferences, Lesbia. One image, and one only, gets indelibly—

LESBIA Yes. Excuse my interrupting you so often, but your sentiments are so correct that I always know what you are going to say before you finish. You see, Boxer, everybody is not like you. You are a sentimental noodle. You don't see women as they really are. You don't see me as I really am. Now I do see men as they really are. I see you as you really are.

THE GENERAL [murmuring] No, don't say that, Lesbia.

LESBIA I'm a regular old maid. I'm very particular about my belongings. I like to have my own house, and to have it to myself. I have a very keen sense of beauty and fitness and cleanliness and order. I am proud of my independence and jealous for it. I have a sufficiently well-stocked mind to be very good company for myself if I have plenty of books and music. The one thing I never could stand is a great lot of a man smoking all over my house and going to sleep in his chair after dinner, and untidy everything. Ugh!

THE GENERAL But love—

LESBIA Oh, love! Have you no imagination? Do you think I have never been in love with wonderful men? heroes! archangels! princes! sages! even fascinating rascals! and had the strangest adventures with them? Do you know what it is to look at a mere real man after that? a man with his boots in every corner, and the smell of his tobacco in every curtain?

THE GENERAL [somewhat dazed] Well, but—excuse my mentioning it—don't you want children?

LESBIA I ought to have children. I should be a good mother to children. I believe it would pay the country very well to pay me very well to have children But the country tells me that I cant have a child in my house without a man in it too, so I tell the country that it will have to do without my children If I am to be a mother, I really cannot have a man bothering me to be a wife at the same time

THE GENERAL My dear Lesbia you know I dont wish to be impertinent, but these are not correct views for an English lady to express

LESBIA That is why I dont express them, except to gentlemen who wont take any other answer The difficulty, you see, is that I really am an English lady, and am particularly proud of being one

THE GENERAL I'm sure of that, Lesbia quite sure of it I never meant—

LESBIA [rising impatiently] Oh, my dear Boxer, do please try to think of something else than whether you have offended me, and whether you are doing the correct thing as an English gentleman You are faultless, and very dull [She shakes her shoulders intolerantly and walks across to the other side of the kitchen]

THE GENERAL [moodily] Ha! thats whats the matter with me Not clever A poor silly soldier man

LESBIA The whole matter is very simple As I say, I am an English lady, by which I mean that I have been trained to do without what I cant have on honorable terms, no matter what it is

THE GENERAL I really dont understand you, Lesbia

LESBIA [turning on him] Then why on earth do you want to marry a woman you dont understand?

THE GENERAL I dont know I suppose I love you

LESBIA Well, Boxer, you can love me as much as you like, provided you look happy about it and dont bore me But you cant marry me, and thats all about it

THE GENERAL It's so frightfully difficult to argue the matter fairly with you without wounding your delicacy by overstepping the bounds of good taste But surely there are calls of nature—

LESBIA Dont be ridiculous, Boxer

THE GENERAL Well how am I to express it? Hang it all, Lesbia, dont you want a husband?

LESBIA No I want children, and I want to devote myself entirely to my children, and not to their father The law will not allow me to do that, so I have made up my mind to have neither husband nor children

THE GENERAL But, great Heavens, the natural appetites—

LESBIA As I said before, an English lady is not the slave of her appetites That is what an English gentleman seems incapable of understanding [She sits down at the end of the table, near the study door]

THE GENERAL [huffily] Oh well, if you refuse, you refuse I shall not ask you again I'm sorry I returned to the subject [He retires to the hearth and plants himself there, wounded and lofty]

LESBIA Dont be cross, Boxer

THE GENERAL I'm not cross, only wounded, Lesbia And when you talk like that, I dont feel convinced I only feel utterly at a loss

LESBIA Well, you know our family rule When at a loss consult the greengrocer [Opportunely Collins comes in through the tower] Here he is

COLLINS Sorry to be so much in and out, Miss I thought Mrs Bridgenorth was here The table is ready now for the breakfast, if she would like to see it

LESBIA If you are satisfied, Collins, I am sure she will be

THE GENERAL By the way, Collins I thought theyd made you an alderman

COLLINS So they have, General

THE GENERAL Then wheres your gown?

COLLINS I dont wear it in private life, General

THE GENERAL Why? Are you ashamed of it?

COLLINS No, General To tell you the truth, I take a pride in it I cant help it

THE GENERAL Attention, Collins Come here [Collins comes to him] Do you see my uniform—all my medals?

COLLINS Yes, General They strike the eye, as it were

THE GENERAL They are meant to Very well Now you know, dont you, that your services to the community as a greengrocer are as important and as dignified as mine as a soldier?

COLLINS I'm sure it's very honorable of you to say so, General

THE GENERAL [emphatically] You know also, dont you, that any man who can see anything ridiculous, or unmanly, or unbecoming in your work or in your civic robes is not a gentleman, but a jumping, bounding, snorting cad?

COLLINS Well, strictly between ourselves, that is my opinion, General

THE GENERAL Then why not dignify my niece's wedding by wearing your robes?

COLLINS A bargain's a bargain, General Mrs Bridgenorth sent for the greengrocer, not for the alderman It's just as unpleasant to get more than you bargain for as to get less

THE GENERAL I'm sure she will agree with me I attach importance to this as an affirmation of solidarity in the service of the community The Bishop's apron, my uniform, your robes the Church, the Army, and the Municipality

COLLINS [retiring] Very well, General [He turns dubiously to Lesbia on his way to the tower] I wonder what my wife will say, Miss?

THE GENERAL What! Is your wife ashamed of your robes?

COLLINS No, sir, not ashamed of them But she grudged the money for them, and she will be afraid of my sleeves getting into the gravy

Mrs Bridgenorth, her placidity quite upset, comes in with a letter, hurries past Collins, and comes between Lesbia and the General

MRS BRIDGENORTH Lesbia Boxer heres a pretty mess!

Collins goes out discreetly

THE GENERAL Whats the matter?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Reginald's in London, and wants to come to the wedding

THE GENERAL [stupended] Well, dash my buttons!

LESBIA Oh, all right, let him come

THE GENERAL Let him come! Why, the decree has not been made absolute yet Is he to walk in here to Edith's wedding, reeking from the Divorce Court?

MRS BRIDGENORTH [weezily sitting down in the middle chair] It's too bad No I cant forgive him, Lesbia, really A man of Reginald's age, with a young wife—the best of girls, and as pretty as she can be—to go off with a common woman from the streets! Ugh!

LESBIA You must make allowances What can you expect? Reginald was always weak He was brought up to be weak The family property was all mortgaged when he inherited it He had to struggle along in constant money difficulties, hustled by his solicitors, morally bullied by the Barmecide, and physically bullied by Boxer, while they two were fighting their own way and getting well trained You know very well he couldnt afford to marry until the mortgages were cleared and he was over fifty And then of course he made a fool of himself marrying a child like Leo

THE GENERAL But to hit her! Absolutely to hit her! He knocked her down—knocked her flat down on a flowerbed in the presence of his gardener He! the head of the family! the man that stands before the Barmecide and myself as Bridgenorth of Bridgenorth! to beat his wife and go off with a low woman and be divorced for it in the face of all England! in the face of my uniform and Alfred's apron! I can never forget what I felt it was only the King's personal request—virtually a command—that stopped me from resigning my commission I'd cut Reginald dead if I met him in the street

MRS BRIDGENORTH Besides, Leo's coming Theyd meet It's impossible, Lesbia

LESBIA Oh, I forgot that That settles it He mustnt come

THE GENERAL Of course he mustnt You tell him that if he enters this house, I'll leave it, and so will every decent man and woman in it

COLLINS [returning for a moment to announce] Mr Reginald, maam [He withdraws when Reginald enters]

THE GENERAL [beside himself] Well, dash my buttons!

Reginald is just the man Lesbia has described He is hardened and tough physically, and hasty and boyish in his manner and speech, belonging as he does to the large class of English gentlemen of property (solicitor-managed) who have never developed intellectually since their school-days He is a muddled, rebellious, hasty, untidy, forgetful, always late sort of man, who very evidently needs the care of a capable woman, and has never been lucky or attractive enough to get it All the same, a likeable man, from whom nobody apprehends any malice nor expects any achievement In everything but years he is younger than his brother the General

REGINALD [coming forward between the General and Mrs Bridgenorth] Alice it's no use I cant stay away from Edith's wedding Good morning, Lesbia How are you, Boxer? [He offers the General his hand]

THE GENERAL [with crushing stiffness] I was just telling Alice, sir, that if you entered this house, I should leave it

REGINALD Well, dont let me detain you, old chap When you start calling people Sir, youre not particularly good company

LESBIA Dont you two begin to quarrel That wont improve the situation

MRS BRIDGENORTH I think you might have waited until you got my answer, Rejy

REGINALD It's so jolly easy to say No in a letter Wont you let me stay?

MRS BRIDGENORTH How can I? Leo's coming

REGINALD Well, she wont mind

THE GENERAL Wont mind!!!!

LESBIA Dont talk nonsense, Rejy, and be off with you

THE GENERAL [with biting sarcasm] At school you had a theory that women liked being knocked down, I remember

REGINALD Youre a nice, chivalrous, brotherly sort of swine, you are

THE GENERAL Mr Bridgenorth are you going to leave this house or am I?

REGINALD You are, I hope [He emphasizes his intention to stay by sitting down]

THE GENERAL Alice will you allow me to be driven from Edith's wedding by this—

LESBIA [warningly] Boxer!

THE GENERAL —by this Respondent? Is Edith to be given away by him?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Certainly not Reginald you were not asked to come, and I have asked you to go You know how fond I am of Leo, and you know what she would feel if she came in and found you here

COLLINS [again appearing in the tower] Mrs Reginald, maam

LESBIA	{ No, no Ask her to— Oh how unfortunate! Well, dash my buttons! } } [All three clamoring together]
MRS BRIDGE-NORTH
THE GENERAL

It is too late Leo is already in the kitchen Collins goes out, mutely abandoning a situation which he deplores but has been unable to save

Leo is very pretty, very youthful, very restless, and consequently very charming to people who are touched by youth and beauty, as well as to those who regard young women as more or less appetizing lollipops, and dont regard old women at all Coldly studied, Leo's restlessness is much less lovable than the kittenishness which comes from a rich and fresh vitality She is a born fusser about herself and everybody else for whom she feels responsible, and her vanity causes her to exaggerate her responsibilities officiously All her fussing is about little things, but she often calls them by big names, such as Art, the Divine Spark, the world, motherhood, good breeding, the Universe, the Creator, or anything else that happens to strike her imagination as sounding intellectually important She has more than common imagination and no more than common conception and penetration, so that she is always on the high horse about words and always in the perambulator about things Considering herself clever, thoughtful and superior to ordinary weaknesses and prejudices, she recklessly attaches herself to clever men on that understanding, with the result that they are first delighted, then exasperated, and finally bored When marrying Reginald she told her friends that there was a great deal in him which needed bringing out If she were a middle-aged man she would be the terror of his club Being a pretty young woman, she is forgiven everything, proving that "Tout comprendre, c'est tout pardonner" is an error, the fact being that the secret of forgiving everything is to understand nothing

She runs in fussily, full of her own importance, and swoops on Lesbia, who is much less disposed to spoil her than Mrs Bridgenorth is But Leo affects a special intimacy with Lesbia, as of two thinkers among the Philistines

LEO [to Lesbia, kissing her] Good morning [Coming to Mrs Bridgenorth] How do, Alice? [Passing on towards the hearth] Why so gloomy, General? [Reginald rises between her and the General] Oh, Rejy! What will the King's Proctor say?

REGINALD Damn the King's Proctor!

LEO Naughty Well, I suppose I must kiss you, but dont any of you tell [She kisses him They can hardly believe their eyes] Have you kept all your promises?

REGINALD Oh, dont begin bothering about those—

LEO [insisting] Have? You? Kept? Your? Promises? Have you rubbed your head with the lotion every night

REGINALD Yes yes Nearly every night

LEO Nearly! I know what that means Have you worn your liver pad?

THE GENERAL [solemnly] Leo forgiveness is one of the most beautiful traits in a woman's nature, but there are things that should not be forgiven to a man When a man knocks a woman down [Leo gives a little shriek of laughter and collapses on a chair next Mrs

REGINALD [sardonically] The man that would raise his hand to a woman, save in the way of kindness, is unworthy the name of Bridgenorth [He sits down at the end of the table nearest the hearth]

THE GENERAL [much huffed] Oh, well, if Leo does not mind, of course I have no more to say. But I think you might out of consideration for the family, beat your wife in private and not in the presence of the gardener.

REGINALD [out of patience] Whats the good of beating your wife unless theres a witness to prove it afterwards? You dont suppose a man beats his wife for the fun of it, do you? How could she have got her divorce if I hadnt beaten her? Nice state of things, that!

THE GENERAL [gasping] Do you mean to tell me that you did it in cold blood? simply to get rid of your wife?

REGINALD No, I didnt. I did it to get her rid of me. What would you do if you were fool enough to marry a woman thirty years younger than yourself, and then found that she didnt care for you, and was in love with a young fellow with a face like a mushroom?

LEO He has not [Bursting into tears] And you are most unkind to say I didnt care for you. Nobody could have been fonder of you.

REGINALD A nice way of shewing your fondness! I had to go out and dig that flower bed all over with my own hands to soften it. I had to pick all the stones out of it. And then she complained that I hadnt done it properly, because she got a worm down her neck. I had to go to Brighton with a poor creature who took a fancy to me on the way down, and got conscientious scruples about committing perjury after dinner. I had to put her down in the hotel book as Mrs Reginald Bridgenorth. Leo's name! Do you know what that feels like to a decent man? Do you know what a decent man feels about his wife's name? How would you like to go into a hotel before all the waiters and people with— with that on your arm? Not that it was the poor girl's fault, of course, only she started crying because I couldnt stand her touching me, and now she keeps writing to me. And then I'm held up in the public court for cruelty and adultery, and turned away from Edith's wedding by Alice, and lectured by you! a bachelor, and a precious green one at that. What do you know about it?

THE GENERAL Am I to understand that the whole case was one of collusion?

REGINALD Of course it was. Half the cases are collusions. What are people to do? [The General, passing his hand dazedly over his bewildered brow, sinks into the railed chair] And what do you take me for, that you should have the cheek to pretend to believe all that rot about my knocking Leo about and leaving her for—for a—a— Ugh! you should have seen her.

THE GENERAL This is perfectly astonishing to me. Why did you do it? Why did Leo allow it?

REGINALD Youd better ask her.

LEO [still in tears] I'm sure I never thought it would be so horrid for Rejy. I offered honorably to do it myself, and let him divorce me, but he wouldnt. And he said himself that it was the only way to do it—that it was the law that he should do it that way. I never saw that hateful creature until that day in Court. If he had only shewn her to me before, I should never have allowed it.

MRS BRIDGENORTH You did all this for Leo's sake, Rejy?

REGINALD [with an unbearable sense of injury] I shouldnt mind a bit if it were for Leo's sake. But to have to do it to make room for that mushroom-faced serpent—!

THE GENERAL [jumping up] What right had he to be made room for? Are you in your senses? What right?

REGINALD The right of being a young man, suitable to a young woman. I had no right at my age to marry Leo. She knew no more about life than a child.

LEO I knew a great deal more about it than a great baby like you. I'm sure I dont know how youll get on with no one to take care of you. I often lie awake at night thinking about it. And now youve made me thoroughly miserable.

REGINALD Serve you right! [She sneeps] There dont get into a tantrum, Leo?

LESBIA May one ask who is the mushroom-faced serpent?

LEO He isnt.

REGINALD Sinjon Hotchkiss, of course.

MRS BRIDGENORTH Sinjon Hotchkiss! Why, he's coming to the wedding!

REGINALD What! In that case I'm off [he makes for the door]

GETTING MARRIED

LEO

THE GENERAL

MRS BRIDGENORTH

LESBIA

[all four rushing after him and capturing him on the threshold]

[seizing him] No you shant You promised to be nice to him No, dont go, old chap Not from Edith's wedding

Oh, do stay, Rejy I shall really be hurt if you desert us

Better stay, Reginald You must meet him sooner or later

REGINALD A moment ago, when I wanted to stay, you were all shoving me out of the house Now that I want to go, you wont let me

MRS BRIDGENORTH I shall send a note to Mr Hotchkiss not to come

LEO [weeping again] Oh, Alice! [She comes back to her chair, heartbroken]

REGINALD [out of patience] Oh well, let her have her way Let her have her mushroom

Let him come Let them all come He crosses the kitchen to the oak chest and sits sulkily on it Mrs Bridgenorth shrugs her shoulders and sits at the table in Reginald's neighborhood listening in placid helplessness

Lesbia, out of patience with Leo's tears, goes into the garden and sits there near the door, snuffing up the open air in her relief from the domestic stuffiness of Reginald's affairs

LEO It's so cruel of you to go on pretending that I dont care for you, Rejy

REGINALD [bitterly] She explained to me that it was only that she had exhausted my conversation

THE GENERAL [coming paternally to Leo] My dear girl all the conversation in the world has been exhausted long ago Heaven knows I have exhausted the conversation of the British Army these thirty years, but I dont leave it on that account

LEO It's not that Ive exhausted it, but he will keep on repeating it when I want to read or go to sleep And Sinjon amuses me He's so clever

THE GENERAL [stung] Ha! The old complaint You all want genuses to marry This demand for clever men is ridiculous Somebody must marry the plam, honest, stupid fellows Have you thought of that?

LEO But there are such lots of stupid women to marry Why do they want to marry us? Besides, Rejy knows that I'm quite fond of him I like him because he wants me, and I like Sinjon because I want him I feel that I have a duty to Rejy

THE GENERAL Precisely you have

LEO And, of course, Sinjon has the same duty to me

THE GENERAL Tut, tut!

LEO Oh, how silly the law is! Why cant I marry them both?

THE GENERAL [shocked] Leo!

LEO Well, I love them both I should like to marry a lot of men I should like to have Rejy for every day, and Sinjon for concerts and theatres and going out in the evenings, and some great austere saint for about once a year at the end of the season, and some perfectly blithering idiot of a boy to be quite wicked with I so seldom feel wicked, and, when I do, it's such a pity to waste it merely because it's too silly to confess to a real grown-up man

REGINALD This is the kind of thing, you know—[Helplessly] Well, there it is!

THE GENERAL [decisively] Alice this is a job for the Barmecide He's a Bishop it's his duty to talk to Leo I can stand a good deal, but when it comes to flat polygamy and polyandry, we ought to do something

MRS BRIDGENORTH [going to the study door] Do come here a moment, Alfred We're in a difficulty

THE BISHOP [within] Ask Collins I'm busy

MRS BRIDGENORTH Collins wont do It's something very serious Do come just a moment, dear [When she hears him coming she takes a chair at the nearest end of the table]

The Bishop comes out of his study He is still a slim active man, spare of flesh, and younger by temperament than his brothers He has a delicate skin, fine hands, a salient nose with chin to match, a short beard which accentuates his sharp chin by bristling forward, clever humorous eyes, not without a glint of mischief in them, ready bright speech, and the ways of a successful man who is always interested in himself and generally rather well pleased with himself When Lesbia hears his voice she turns her chair towards him, and presently rises and stands in the doorway listening to the conversation

THE BISHOP [going to Leo] Good morning, my dear Hullo! Youve brought Reginald with you Thats very nice of you Have you reconciled them, Bover?

THE GENERAL Reconciled them! Why, man, the whole divorce was a put-up job She wants to marry some fellow named Hotch kiss

REGINALD A fellow with a face like—

LEO You shant, Rejy He has a very fine face

MRS BRIDGENORTH And now she says she wants to marry both of them, and a lot of other people as well

LEO I didnt say I wanted to marry them I only said I should like to marry them

THE BISHOP Quite a nice distinction, Leo

LEO Just occasionally, you know

THE BISHOP [sitting down cosily beside her] Quite so Sometimes a poet, sometimes a Bishop, sometimes a fairy prince, sometimes somebody quite indescribable, and sometimes nobody at all

LEO Yes thats just it How did you know?

THE BISHOP Oh, I should say most imaginative and cultivated young women feel like that I wouldnt give a rap for one who didnt Shakespear pointed out long ago that a woman wanted a Sunday husband as well as a weekday one But, as usual, he didnt follow up the idea

THE GENERAL [aghast] Am I to understand—

THE BISHOP [cutting him short] Now, Boxer, am I the Bishop or are you?

THE GENERAL [sulkily] You

THE BISHOP Then dont ask me are you to understand "Yours not to reason why yours but to do and die"—

THE GENERAL Oh, very well go on I'm not clever Only a silly soldier man Ha! Go on [He throws himself into the railed chair, as one prepared for the worst]

MRS BRIDGENORTH Alfred dont tease Boxer

THE BISHOP If we are going to discuss ethical questions we must begin by giving the devil fair play Boxer never does England never does We always assume that the devil is guilty and we wont allow him to prove his innocence, because it would be against public morals if he succeeded We used to do the same with prisoners accused of high treason And the consequence is that we overreach ourselves, and the devil gets the better of us after all Perhaps thats what most of us intend him to do

THE GENERAL Alfred we asked you here to preach to Leo You are preaching at me instead I am not conscious of having said or done anything that calls for that unsolicited attention

THE BISHOP But poor little Leo has only told the simple truth, whilst you, Boxer, are striking moral attitudes

THE GENERAL I suppose thats an epigram I dont understand epigrams I'm only a silly soldier man Ha! But I can put a plain question Is Leo to be encouraged to be a polygamist?

THE BISHOP Remember the British Empire, Boxer Youre a British General, you know

THE GENERAL What has that to do with polygamy?

THE BISHOP Well, the great majority of our fellow-subjects are polygamists I cant as a British Bishop insult them by speaking disrespectfully of polygamy It's a very interesting question Many very interesting men have been polygamists Solomon, Mahomet, and our friend the Duke of—of—hm! I never can remember his name

THE GENERAL It would become you better, Alfred, to send that silly girl back to her husband and her duty than to talk clever and mock at your religion "What God hath joined together let not man put asunder" Remember that

THE BISHOP Dont be afraid, Boxer What God hath joined together no man ever shall put asunder God will take care of that [To Leo] By the way, who was it that joined you and Reginald, my dear?

LEO It was that awful little curate that afterwards drank, and travelled first class with a third-class ticket, and then tried to go on the stage But they wouldnt have him He called himself Egerton Fotheringay

THE BISHOP Well, whom Egerton Fotheringay hath joined, let Sir Gorell Barnes put asunder by all means

THE GENERAL I may be a silly soldier man, but I call this blasphemy

THE BISHOP [gravely] Better for me to take the name of Mr Egerton Fotheringay in earnest than for you to take a higher name in vain

LESBIA Cant you three brothers ever meet without quarrelling?

THE BISHOP [mildly] This is not quarrelling, Lesbia it's only English family life Good morning

LEO You know, Bishop, it's very dear of you to take my part, but I'm not sure that I'm not a little shocked

THE BISHOP Then I think Ive been a little more successful than Boxer in getting you into a proper frame of mind

THE GENERAL [snorting] Ha!

LEO Not a bit, for now I'm going to shock you worse than ever I think Solomon was an old beast

THE BISHOP Precisely what you ought to think of him, my dear Dont apologize

THE GENERAL [more shocked] Well, but hang it! Solomon was in the Bible And, after all, Solomon was Solomon

LEO And I stick to it I still want to have a lot of interesting men to know quite intimately—to say everything I think of to them, and have them say everything they think of to me

THE BISHOP So you shall, my dear, if you are lucky But you know you neednt marry them all Think of all the buttons you would have to sew on Besides, nothing is more dreadful than a husband who keeps telling you everything he thinks, and always wants to know what you think

LEO [struck by this] Well, thats very true of Rejgy in fact, thats why I had to divorce him

THE BISHOP [condoling] Yes he repeats himself dreadfully, doesnt he?

REGINALD Look here, Alfred If I have my faults, let her find them out for herself without your help

THE BISHOP She has found them all out already, Reginald

LEO [a little huffily] After all, there are worse men than Reginald I daresay he's not so clever as you, but still he's not such a fool as you seem to think him!

THE BISHOP Quite right, dear stand up for your husband I hope you will always stand up for all your husbands [He rises and goes to the hearth, where he stands complacently with his back to the fireplace, beaming at them all as at a roomful of children]

LEO Please dont talk as if I wanted to marry a whole regiment For me there can never be more than two I shall never love anybody but Rejgy and Sinjon

REGINALD A man with a face like a—

LEO I wont have it, Rejgy It's disgusting

THE BISHOP You see, my dear, youll exhaust Sinjon's conversation too in a week or so A man is like a phonograph with half-a-dozen records You soon get tired of them all, and yet you have to sit at table whilst he reels them off to every new visitor In the end you have to be content with his common humanity, and when you come down to that, you find out about men what a great English poet of my acquaintance used to say about women that they all taste alike Marry whom you please at the end of a month he'll be Reginald over again It wasnt worth changing indeed it wasnt

LEO Then it's a mistake to get married

THE BISHOP It is, my dear, but it's a much bigger mistake not to get married

THE GENERAL [rising] Ha! You hear that, Lesbia? [He joins her at the garden door]

LESBIA Thats only an epigram, Boxer

THE GENERAL Sound sense, Lesbia When a man talks rot, thats epigram when he talks sense, then I agree with him

REGINALD [coming off the oak chest and looking at his watch] It's getting late Wheres Edith? Hasnt she got into her veil and orange blossoms yet?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Do go and hurry her, Lesbia

LESBIA [going out through the tinner] Come with me, Lco

LEO [following Lesbia out] Yes, certainly

The Bishop goes over to his wife and sits down, taking her hand and kissing it by way of beginning a conversation with her

THE BISHOP Alice Ive had another letter from the mysterious lady who cant spell I like that woman's letters Theres an intensity of passion in them that fascinates me

MRS BRIDGENORTH Do you mean Incognita Appassionata?

THE BISHOP Yes

THE GENERAL [turning abruptly he has been looking out into the garden] Do you mean to say that women write love-letters to you?

THE BISHOP Of course

THE GENERAL They never do to me

THE BISHOP The Army doesnt attract women the Church does

REGINALD Do you consider it right to let them? They may be married women, you know

THE BISHOP They always are This one is [To Mrs Bridgenorth] Dont you think her letters are quite the best love-letters I get? [To the two men] Poor Alice has to read my love-letters aloud to me at breakfast, when theyre worth it

MRS BRIDGENORTH There really is something fascinating about Incognita She never gives her address Thats a good sign

THE GENERAL Mf! No assignations, you mean?

THE BISHOP Oh yes she began the correspondence by making a very curious but very natural assignation She wants me to meet her in heaven I hope I shall

THE GENERAL Well, I must say I hope not, Alfred I hope not

MRS BRIDGENORTH She says she is happily married, and that love is a necessary of life to her but that she must have, high above all her lovers—

THE BISHOP She has several apparently—

MRS BRIDGENORTH —some great man who will never know her, never touch her, as she is on earth, but whom she can meet in heaven when she has risen above all the everyday vulgarities of earthly love

THE BISHOP [rising] Excellent Very good for her, and no trouble to me Everybody ought to have one of these idealizations, like Dante's Beatrice [He clasps his hands behind him, and strolls to the hearth and back, singing]

Lesbia appears in the toner, rather perturbed

LESBIA Alice will you come upstairs? Edith is not dressed

MRS BRIDGENORTH [rising] Not dressed! Does she know what hour it is?

LESBIA She has locked herself into her room, reading

The Bishop's song ceases he stops dead in his stroll

THE GENERAL Reading!

THE BISHOP What is she reading?

LESBIA Some pamphlet that came by the eleven o'clock post She wont come out She wont open the door And she says she doesnt know whether she's going to be married or not til she's finished the pamphlet Did you ever hear such a thing? Do come and speak to her

MRS BRIDGENORTH Alfred you had better go

THE BISHOP Try Collins

LESBIA Weve tried Collins already He got all that Ive told you out of her through the keyhole Come, Alice [She vanishes Mrs Bridgenorth hurries after her]

THE BISHOP This means a delay I shall go back to my work [he makes for the study door]

REGINALD What are you working at now?

THE BISHOP [stopping] A chapter in my history of marriage I'm just at the Roman business, you know

THE GENERAL [coming from the garden door to the chair Mrs Bridgenorth has just left, and sitting down] Not more Ritualism, I hope, Alfred?

THE BISHOP Oh no I mean ancient Rome [He seats himself on the edge of the table] Ive just come to the period when the propertied classes refused to get married and went in for marriage settlements instead A few of the oldest families stuck to the marriage tradition so as to keep up the supply of vestal virgins, who had to be legitimate, but nobody else dreamt of getting married It's all very interesting, because we're coming to that here in England, except that as we dont require any vestal virgins, nobody will get married at all, except the poor, perhaps

THE GENERAL You take it devilishly coolly Reginald do you think the Barmecide's quite sane?

REGINALD No worse than ever he was

THE GENERAL [to the Bishop] Do you mean to say you believe such a thing will ever happen in England as that respectable people will give up being married?

THE BISHOP In England especially they will In other countries the introduction of reasonable divorce laws will save the situation, but in England we always let an institution strain itself until it breaks Ive told our last four Prime Ministers that if they didnt make our marriage laws reasonable there would be a strike against marriage, and that it would begin among the propertied classes, where no Government would dare to interfere with it

REGINALD What did they say to that?

THE BISHOP The usual thing Quite agreed with me, but were sure that they were the only sensible men in the world and that the least hint of marriage reform would lose them the next election And then lost it all the same on cordite, on drink, on Chinese labor in South Africa, on all sorts of trumpery

REGINALD [lurching across the kitchen towards the hearth with his hands in his pockets] It's no use they wont listen to our sort [Turning on them] Of course they have to make you a Bishop and Boxer a General, because, after all, their blessed rabble of snobs and cads and half-starved shopkeepers cant do government work, and the bounders and week-enders are too lazy and vulgar Theyd simply rot without us, but what do they ever do for us? what attention do they ever pay to what we say and what we want? I take it that we Bridgenorths are a pretty typical English family of the sort that has always set things straight and stuck up for the right to think and believe according to our conscience. But nowadays we are expected to dress and eat as the week-end bounders do, and to think and believe as the converted cannibals of Central Africa do, and to lie down and let every snob and every cad and every half-penny journalist walk over us. Why, theres not a newspaper in England today that represents what I call solid Bridgenorth opinion and tradition. Half of them read as if they were published at the nearest mothers' meeting, and the other half at the nearest motor garage. Do you call these chaps gentlemen? Do you call them Englishmen? I dont [He throws himself disgustedly into the nearest chair].

THE GENERAL [excited by Reginald's eloquence] Do you see my uniform? What did Collins say? It strikes the eye. It was meant to. I put it on expressly to give the modern army bounder a smack in the eye. Somebody has to set a right example by beginning. Well, let it be a Bridgenorth. I believe in family blood and tradition, by George.

THE BISHOP [musings] I wonder who will begin the stand against marriage. It must come some day. I was married myself before I'd thought about it, and even if I had thought about it I was too much in love with Alice to let anything stand in the way. But, you know, Ive seen one of our daughters after another—Ethel, Jane, Fanny, and Christina and Florence—go out at that door in their veils and orange blossoms, and Ive always wondered whether theyd have gone quietly if theyd known what they were doing. Ive a horrible misgiving about that pamphlet. All progress means war with Society. Heaven forbid that Edith should be one of the combatants!

St John Hotchkiss comes into the tower ushered by Collins. He is a very smart young gentleman of twenty-nine or thereabouts, correct in dress to the last thread of his collar, but too much pre-occupied with his ideas to be embarrassed by any concern as to his appearance. He talks about himself with energetic gaiety. He talks to other people with a sweet forbearance (implying a kindly consideration for their stupidity) which infuriates those whom he does not succeed in amusing. They either lose their tempers with him or try in vain to snub him

COLLINS [announcing] Mr Hotchkiss [He withdraws].

HOTCHKISS [clapping Reginald gaily on the shoulder as he passes him] Tootle loo, Rejy.

REGINALD [curtly, without rising or turning his head] Morning.

HOTCHKISS Good morning, Bishop.

THE BISHOP [coming off the table] What on earth are you doing here, Sinjon? You belong to the bridegroom's party. Youve no business here until after the ceremony.

HOTCHKISS Yes, I know thats just it. May I have a word with you in private? Rejy or any of the family wont matter, but—[he glances at the General, who has risen rather stiffly, as he strongly disapproves of the part played by Hotchkiss in Reginald's domestic affairs]

THE BISHOP All right, Sinjon. This is our brother, General Bridgenorth. [He goes to the hearth and posts himself there, with his hands clasped behind him]

HOTCHKISS Oh, good! [He turns to the General, and takes out a card-case] As you are in the service, allow me to introduce myself. Read my card, please. [He presents his card to the astomished General]

THE GENERAL [reading] "Mr St John Hotchkiss, the Celebrated Coward, late Lieutenant in the 165th Fusiliers."

REGINALD [with a chuckle] He was sent back from South Africa because he funked an order to attack, and spoiled his commanding officer's plan.

THE GENERAL [very gravely] I remember the case now. I had forgotten the name. I'll not refuse your acquaintance, Mr Hotchkiss, partly because youre my brother's guest, and partly because Ive seen too much active service not to know that every man's nerve plays him false at one time or another, and that some very honorable men should never go into action at all, because theyre not built that way. But if I were you I should not use that visiting card. No doubt it's an honorable trait in your character that you dont wish any man to give you his hand in ignorance of your disgrace, but you had better allow us to forget. We wish to forget. It isnt your disgrace alone—it's a disgrace to the army and to all of us. Pardon my plain speaking.

HOTCHKISS [sunnily] My dear General, I dont know what fear means in the military sense of the word. Ive fought seven duels.

with the sabre in Italy and Austria, and one with pistols in France, without turning a hair There was no other way in which I could vindicate my motives in refusing to make that attack at Smutsfontein I dont pretend to be a brave man I'm afraid of wasps I'm afraid of cats In spite of the voice of reason, I'm afraid of ghosts, and twice I've fled across Europe from false alarms of cholera But afraid to fight I am not [He turns gaily to Reginald and slaps him on the shoulder] Eh, Rejji? [Reginald grunts]

THE GENERAL Then why did you not do your duty at Smutsfontein?

HOTCHKISS I did my duty—my higher duty If I had made that attack, my commanding officer's plan would have been successful, and he would have been promoted Now I happen to think that the British Army should be commanded by gentlemen, and by gentlemen alone This man was not a gentleman I sacrificed my military career—I faced disgrace and social ostracism—rather than give that man his chance

THE GENERAL [generously indignant] Your commanding officer, sir, was my friend Major Billiter

HOTCHKISS Precisely What a name!

THE GENERAL And pray, sir, on what ground do you dare allege that Major Billiter is not a gentleman?

HOTCHKISS By an infallible sign one of those trifles that stamp a man He eats rice pudding with a spoon

THE GENERAL [very angry] Confound you, I eat rice pudding with a spoon Now!

HOTCHKISS Oh, so do I, frequently But there are ways of doing these things Billiter's way was unmistakeable

THE GENERAL Well, I'll tell you something now When I thought you were only a coward, I pitied you, and would have done what I could to help you back to your place in Society—

HOTCHKISS [interrupting him] Thank you I havnt lost it My motives have been fully appreciated I was made an honorary member of two of the smartest clubs in London when the truth came out

THE GENERAL Well, sir, those clubs consist of snobs and you are a jumping, bounding, prancing, snorting snob yourself

THE BISHOP [amused but hospitably remonstrant] My dear Boxer!

HOTCHKISS [delighted] How kind of you to say so, General! You're quite right I am a snob Why not? The whole strength of England lies in the fact that the enormous majority of the English people are snobs They insult poverty They despise vulgarity They love nobility They admire exclusiveness They will not obey a man risen from the ranks They never trust one of their own class I agree with them I share their instincts In my undergraduate days I was a Republican—a Socialist I tried hard to feel toward a common man as I do towards a duke I couldn't Neither can you Well, why should we be ashamed of this aspiration towards what is above us? Why dont I say that an honest man's the noblest work of God? Because I dont think so If he's not a gentleman, I dont care whether he's honest or not I shouldn't let his son marry my daughter And thats the test, mind Thats the test You feel as I do You are a snob in fact I am a snob, not only in fact, but on principle I shall go down in history, not as the first snob, but as the first avowed champion of English snobbery, and its first martyr in the army The navy boasts two such martyrs in Captains Kirby and Wade, who were shot for refusing to fight under Admiral Benbow, a promoted cabin boy I have always envied them their glory

THE GENERAL As a British General, sir, I have to inform you that if any officer under my command violated the sacred equality of our profession by putting a single jot of his duty or his risk on the shoulders of the humblest drummer boy, I'd shoot him with my own hand

HOTCHKISS That sentiment is not your equality, General, but your superiority Ask the Bishop [He seats himself on the edge of the table]

THE BISHOP I cant support you, Sinjon My profession also compels me to turn my back on snobbery You see, I have to do such a terribly democratic thing to every child that is brought to me Without distinction of class I have to confer on it a rank so high and awful that all the grades in Debrett and Burke seem like the medals they give children in Infant Schools in comparison I'm not allowed to make any class distinction They are all soldiers and servants, not officers and masters

HOTCHKISS Ah, you're quoting the Baptism service That's not a bit real, you know If I may say so, you would both feel so much more at peace with yourselves if you would acknowledge and confess your real convictions You know you don't really think a Bishop the equal of a curate, or a lieutenant in a line regiment the equal of a general

THE BISHOP Of course I do I was a curate myself

THE GENERAL And I was a lieutenant in a line regiment

REGINALD And I was nothing But we're all our own and one another's equals, aren't we? So perhaps when you've quite done talking about yourselves, we shall get to whatever business Sinjon came about HOTCHKISS [coming off the table hastily] Oh! true, my dear fellow I beg a thousand pardons It's about the wedding!

THE GENERAL What about the wedding?

HOTCHKISS Well, we can't get our man up to the scratch Cecil has locked himself in his room and won't see or speak to anyone I went up to his room and banged at the door I told him I should look through the keyhole if he didn't answer I looked through the keyhole He was sitting on his bed, reading a book [Reginald rises in consternation The General recoils] I told him not to be an ass, and so forth He said he was not going to budge until he had finished the book I asked him did he know what time it was, and whether he happened to recollect that he had a rather important appointment to marry Edith He said the sooner I stopped interrupting him, the sooner he'd be ready Then he stuffed his fingers in his ears, turned over on his elbows, and buried himself in his beastly book I couldn't get another word out of him, so I thought I'd better come here and warn you

REGINALD This looks to me like a practical joke They've arranged it between them

THE BISHOP No Edith has no sense of humor And I've never seen a man in a jocular mood on his wedding morning

Collins appears in the tower, ushering in the bridegroom, a young gentleman with good looks of the serious kind, somewhat careworn by an exacting conscience, and just now distracted by insoluble problems of conduct

COLLINS [announcing] Mr Cecil Sykes [He retires]

HOTCHKISS Look here, Cecil this is all wrong You've no business here until after the wedding Hang it, man! you're the bridegroom

SYKES [coming to the Bishop, and addressing him with dogged desperation] I've come here to say this When I proposed to Edith I was in utter ignorance of what I was letting myself in for legally Having given my word, I will stand to it You have me at your mercy marry me if you insist But take notice that I protest [He sits down distractedly in the railed chair]

REGINALD

THE BISHOP

{ What the devil do you mean by this? What the—

[Both highly incensed] Confound your impertinence, what do you—

{ Easy, Rej Easy, old man Steady, steady, steady [Reginald subsides into his chair Hotchkiss sits on his right, appeasing him]

{ No, please, Rej Control yourself, Boxer, I beg you

THE GENERAL I tell you I can't control myself I've been controlling myself for the last half-hour until I feel like bursting [He sits down furiously at the end of the table next the study]

SYKES [pointing to the simmering Reginald and the boiling General] That's just it, Bishop Edith is her uncle's niece She can't control herself any more than they can And she's a Bishop's daughter That means that she's engaged in social work of all sorts organizing shop assistants and sweated work girls and all that When her blood boils about it (and it boils at least once a week) she doesn't care what she says

REGINALD Well you knew that when you proposed to her

SYKES Yes, but I didn't know that when we were married I should be legally responsible if she libelled anybody, though all her property is protected against me as if I were the lowest thief and cadger This morning somebody sent me Belfort Bax's essays on Men's Wrongs, and they have been a perfect eye-opener to me Bishop I'm not thinking of myself I would face anything for Edith But my mother and sisters are wholly dependent on my property I'd rather have to cut off an inch from my right arm than a hundred a year from my mother's income I owe everything to her care of me

Edith, in dressing-jacket and petticoat, comes in through the tower, swiftly and determinedly pamphlet in hand principles up in arms. more of a bishop than her father yet as much a gentlewoman as her mother She is the typical spoilt child of a clerical household almost as terrible a product as the typical spoilt child of a Bohemian household that is, all her childish affectations of conscientious scruple and religious impulse have been applauded and deferred to until she has become an ethical snob of the first water Her father's sense of humor and her mother's placid balance have done something to save her humanity, but her impetuous temper and energetic will, unrestrained by any touch of humor or scepticism, carry everything before them Imperious and dogmatic, she takes command of the party at once

EDITH [standing behind Cecil's chair] Cecil I heard your voice. I must speak to you very particularly Papa go away. Go away everybody

THE BISHOP [crossing to the study door] I think there can be no doubt that Edith wishes us to retire Come [He stands in the doorway, waiting for them to follow]

SYKES That's it, you see It's just this outspokenness that makes my position hard, much as I admire her for it

EDITH Do you want me to flatter and be untruthful?

SYKES No, not exactly that

EDITH Does anybody want me to flatter and be untruthful?

HOTCHKISS Well, since you ask me I do Surely, it's the very first qualification for tolerable social intercourse

THE GENERAL [markedly] I hope you will always tell me the truth, my darling, at all events

EDITH [complacently coming to the fireplace] You can depend on me for that, Uncle Boxer

HOTCHKISS Are you sure you have any adequate idea of what the truth about a military man really is?

REGINALD [aggressively] Whats the truth about you, I wonder?

HOTCHKISS Oh, quite unfit for publication in its entirety If Miss Bridgenorth begins telling it, I shall have to leave the room

REGINALD I'm not at all surprised to hear it [Rising] But whats it got to do with our business here today? Is it you thats going to be married or is it Edith?

HOTCHKISS I'm so sorry I get so interested in myself that I thrust myself into the front of every discussion in the most insufferable way [Reginald, with an exclamation of disgust crosses the kitchen towards the study door] But my dear Rejgy are you quite sure that Miss Bridgenorth is going to be married? Are you, Miss Bridgenorth?

Before Edith has time to answer her mother returns with Leo and Lesbia

LEO Yes, here she is, of course I told you I heard her dash downstairs [She comes to the end of the table next the fireplace]

MRS BRIDGENORTH [transfixed in the middle of the kitchen] And Cecil!

LESBIA And Sinjon!

THE BISHOP Edith wishes to speak to Cecil [Mrs Bridgerorth comes to him Lesbia goes into the garden, as before] Let us go into my study

LEO But she must come and dress Look at the hour!

MRS BRIDGENORTH Come, Leo dear [Leo follows her reluctantly They are about to go into the study with the Bishop]

HOTCHKISS Do you know, Miss Bridgenorth, I should most awfully like to hear what you have to say to poor Cecil REGINALD [scandalized] Well!

EDITH Who is poor Cecil, pray?

HOTCHKISS One always calls a man that on his wedding morning I dont know why. I'm his best man, you know Dont you think it gives me a certain right to be present in Cecil's interest?

THE GENERAL [gravely] There is such a thing as delicacy, Mr Hotchkiss

HOTCHKISS There is such a thing as curiosity. General

THE GENERAL [furious] Delicacy is thrown away here, Alfred. Edith you had better take Sykes into the study

The group at the study door breaks up The General flings himself into the last chair on the long side of the table, near the garden door Leo sits at the end, next him, and Mrs Bridgenorth next Leo Reginald returns to the oak chest to be near Leo, and the Bishop goes to his wife and stands by her

HOTCHKISS [to Edith] Of course I'll go if you wish me to But Cecil's objection to go through with it was so entirely on public grounds—

EDITH [with quick suspicion] His objection?

SYKES Sinjon you have no right to say that I expressly said that I'm ready to go through with it

EDITH Cecil do you mean to say that you have been raising difficulties about our marriage?

SYKES I raise no difficulty But I do beg you to be careful what you say about people You must remember, my dear, that when we are married I shall be responsible for everything you say Only last week you said on a public platform that Slattox and Chinnery were scoundrels They could have got a thousand pounds damages apiece from me for that if we'd been married at the time

EDITH [austerely] I never said anything of the sort I never stoop to mere vituperation what would my girls say of me if I did? I chose my words most carefully I said they were tyrants, liars, and thieves, and so they are Slattox is even worse

HOTCHKISS I'm afraid that would be at least five thousand pounds

SYKES If it were only myself, I shouldn't care But my mother and sisters! I've no right to sacrifice them

EDITH You needn't be alarmed I'm not going to be married

ALL THE REST Not!

SYKES [in consternation] Edith! Are you throwing me over?

EDITH How can I? you have been beforehand with me

SYKES On my honor, no All I said was that I didn't know the law when I asked you to be my wife

EDITH And you wouldn't have asked me if you had Is that it?

SYKES No I should have asked you for my sake to be a little more careful—not to run me uselessly

EDITH You think the truth useless?

HOTCHKISS Much worse than useless, I assure you. Frequently most mischievous

EDITH Sinjon hold your tongue You are a chatterbox and a fool!

MRS BRIDGENORTH } [shocked] { Edith!

THE BISHOP } { My love!

HOTCHKISS [mildly] I shall not take an action, Cecil

EDITH [to Hotchkiss] Sorry, but you are old enough to know better [To the others] And now since there is to be no wedding, we had better get back to our work Mamma will you tell Collins to cut up the wedding cake into thirty-three pieces for the club girls My not getting married is no reason why they should be disappointed [She turns to go]

HOTCHKISS [gallantly] If you'll allow me to take Cecil's place, Miss Bridgenorth—

LEO Sinjon!

HOTCHKISS Oh, I forgot I beg your pardon. [To Edith, apologetically] A prior engagement

EDITH What! You and Leo! I thought so Well, hadn't you two better get married at once? I don't approve of long engagements The breakfast's ready the cake's ready everything's ready I'll lend Leo my veil and things

THE BISHOP I'm afraid they must wait until the decree is made absolute, my dear And the license is not transferable

EDITH Oh well, it can't be helped Is there anything else before I go off to the Club?

SYKES You don't seem much disappointed, Edith I can't help saying that much EDITH And you can't help looking enormously relieved, Cecil We shan't be any worse friends, shall we?

SYKES [distractedly] Of course not Still—I'm perfectly ready—at least—if it were not for my mother—Oh, I don't know what to do I've been so fond of you, and when the worry of the wedding was over I should have been so fond of you again—

EDITH [petting him] Come, come! don't make a scene, dear You're quite right I don't think a woman doing public work ought to get married unless her husband feels about it as she does I don't blame you at all for throwing me over

REGINALD [bouncing off the chest, and passing behind the General to the other end of the table] No dash it! I'm not going to stand this Why is the man always to be put in the wrong? Be honest, Edith Why weren't you dressed? Were you going to throw him over? If you were, take your fair share of the blame, and don't put it all on him

HOTCHKISS [sweetly] Would it not be better—

REGINALD [violently] Now look here, Hotchkiss Who asked you to cut in? Is your name Edith? Am I your uncle?

HOTCHKISS I wish you were I should like to have an uncle Reginald

REGINALD Yah! Sykes are you ready to marry Edith or are you not?

SYKES I've already said that I'm quite ready A promise is a promise

REGINALD We dont want to know whether a promise is a promise or not Cant you answer yes or no without spoiling it and setting Hotchkiss here grinning like a Cheshire cat? If she puts on her veil and goes to Church, will you marry her?

SYKES Certainly Yes

REGINALD Thats all right Now, Edie, put on your veil and off with you to Church The bridegroom's waiting [He sits down at the table]

EDITH Is it understood that Slattox and Chinnery are hars and thieves, and that I hope by next Wednesday to have in my hands conclusive evidence that Slattox is something much worse?

SYKES I made no conditions as to that when I proposed to you, and now I cant go back I hope Providence will spare my poor mother I say again I'm ready to marry you

EDITH Then I think you shew great weakness of character, and instead of taking advantage of it I shall set you a better example I want to know is this true [She produces a pamphlet and takes it to the Bishop, then sits down between Hotchkiss and her mother]

THE BISHOP [reading the ttle] Do you know what you are going to do? By a woman who has done it May I ask, my dear, what she did?

EDITH She got married When she had three children—the eldest only four years old—her husband committed a murder, and then attempted to commit suicide, but only succeeded in disfiguring himself Instead of hanging him, they sent him to penal servitude for life, for the sake, they said, of his wife and infant children And she could not get a divorce from that horrible murderer They would not even keep him imprisoned for life For twenty years she had to live singly, bringing up her children by her own work, and knowing that just when they were grown up and beginning life, this dreadful creature would be let out to disgrace them all, and prevent the two girls getting decently married, and drive the son out of the country perhaps Is that really the law? Am I to understand that if Cecil commits a murder, or forges, or steals, or becomes an atheist, I cant get divorced from him?

THE BISHOP Yes, my dear That is so You must take him for better for worse

EDITH Then I most certainly refuse to enter into any such wicked contract What sort of servants? what sort of friends? what sort of Prime Ministers should we have if we took them for better for worse for all their lives? We should simply encourage them in every sort of wickedness Surely my husband's conduct is of more importance to me than Mr Balfour's or Mr Asquith's If I had known the law I would never have consented I dont believe any woman would if she realized what she was doing

SYKES But I'm not going to commit murder

EDITH How do you know? Ive sometimes wanted to murder Slattox Have you never wanted to murder somebody, Uncle Rejy?

REGINALD [at Hotchkiss, with intense expression] Yes

LEO Rejy!

REGINALD I said yes, and I mean yes There was one night, Hotchkiss, when I jolly nearly shot you and Leo and finished up with myself, and thats the truth

LEO [suddenly whimpering] Oh Rejy [she runs to him and kisses him]

REGINALD [wrathfully] Be off [She returns weeping to her seat]

MRS BRIDGENORTH [petting Leo, but speaking to the company at large] But isnt all this great nonsense? What likelihood is there of any of us committing a crime?

HOTCHKISS Oh yes, I assure you I went into the matter once very carefully, and I found that things I have actually done—things that everybody does, I imagine—would expose me, if I were found out and prosecuted, to ten years penal servitude, two years hard labor, and the loss of all civil rights Not counting that I'm a private trustee, and, like all private trustees, a fraudulent one Otherwise, the widow for whom I am trustee would starve occasionally, and the children get no education And I'm probably as honest a man as any here

THE GENERAL [outraged] Do you imply that I have been guilty of conduct that would expose me to penal servitude?

HOTCHKISS I should think it quite likely But of course I dont know

MRS BRIDGENORTH But bless me! marriage is not a question of law, is it? Have you children no affection for oneanother? Surely thats enough?

HOTCHKISS If it's enough, why get married

MRS BRIDGENORTH Stuff, Sinjon! Of course people must get married [Uneasily] Alfred why dont you say something? Surely youre not going to let this go on?

THE GENERAL Ive been waiting for the last twenty minutes, Alfred, in amazement! in stupefaction! to hear you put a stop to all this We look to you it's your place, your office, your duty Exert your authority at once

THE BISHOP You must give the devil fair play, Boxer Until you have heard and weighed his case you have no right to condemn him I'm sorry you have been kept waiting twenty minutes, but I myself have waited twenty years for this to happen Ive often wrestled with the temptation to pray that it might not happen in my own household Perhaps it was a presentiment that it might become a part of our old Bridgenorth burden that made me warn our Governments so earnestly that unless the law of marriage were first made human it could never become divine

MRS BRIDGENORTH Oh, do be sensible about this People must get married What would you have said if Cecil's parents had not been married?

THE BISHOP They were not, my dear

REGINALD

LEO

MRS BRIDGENORTH

Hallo!

What d'ye mean?

Eh?

Not married!

What!

SYKES [rising in amazement] What on earth do you mean, Bishop? My parents were married

HOTCHKISS You cant remember, Cecil

SYKES Well, I never asked my mother to shew me her marriage lines, if thats what you mean What man ever has? I never suspected—I never knew—Are you joking? Or have we all gone mad?

THE BISHOP Dont be alarmed, Cecil Let me explain Your parents were not Anglicans You were not, I think, Anglican yourself until your second year at Oxford They were Positivists They went through the Positivist ceremony at Newton Hall in Fetter Lane after entering into the civil contract before the Registrar of the West Strand District I ask you, as an Anglican Catholic, was that a marriage?

SYKES [overwhelmed] Great Heavens, no! a thousand times no I never thought of that

I'm a child of sin [He collapses into the railed chair]

THE BISHOP Oh, come, come! You are no more a child of sin than any Jew, or Mahometan, or Nonconformist, or anyone else born outside the Church But you see how it affects my view of the situation To me there is only one marriage that is holy the Church's sacrament of marriage Outside that, I can recognize no distinction between one civil contract and another There was a time when all marriages were made in Heaven But because the Church was unwise and would not make its ordinances reasonable, its power over men and women was taken away from it, and marriages gave place to contracts at a registry office And now that our Governments refuse to make these contracts reasonable, those whom we in our blindness drove out of the Church will be driven out of the registry office, and we shall have the history of Ancient Rome repeated We shall be joined by our solicitors for seven, fourteen, or twenty-one years—or perhaps months Deeds of partnership will replace the old vows

THE GENERAL Would you, a Bishop, approve of such partnerships?

THE BISHOP Do you think that I, a Bishop, approve of the Deceased Wife's Sister Act? That did not prevent its becoming law

THE GENERAL But when the Government sounded you as to whether youd marry a man to his deceased wife's sister you very naturally and properly told them youd see them damned first

THE BISHOP [horrified] No, no, really, Boxer! You must not—

THE GENERAL [impatiently] Oh, of course I dont mean that you used those words But that was the meaning and the spirit of it

THE BISHOP Not the spirit, Boxer, I protest But never mind that The point is that State marriage is already divorced from Church marriage The relations between Leo and Rejny and Sinjon are perfectly legal, but do you expect me, as a Bishop, to approve of them?

THE GENERAL I dont defend Reginald He should have kicked you out of the house, Mr Hotchkiss

REGINALD [rising] How could I kick him out of the house? He's stronger than me he could have kicked me out if it came to that He did kick me out what else was it but kicking out, to take my wife's affections from me and establish himself in my place? [He comes to the hearth]

HOTCHKISS. I protest, Reginald, I said all that a man could to prevent the smash

REGINALD Oh, I know you did I don't blame you people don't do these things to one another they happen and they can't be helped What was I to do? I was old she was young I was dull he was brilliant I had a face like a walnut he had a face like a mushroom I was as glad to have him in the house as she was he amused me And we were a couple of fools he gave us good advice—told us what to do when we didn't know She found out that I wasn't any use to her and he was, so she nabbed him and gave me the chuck

LEO If you don't stop talking in that disgraceful way about our married life, I'll leave the room and never speak to you again

REGINALD You're not going to speak to me again, anyhow, are you? Do you suppose I'm going to visit you when you marry him?

HOTCHKISS I hope so Surely you're not going to be vindictive, Rejgy Besides, you'll have all the advantages I formerly enjoyed You'll be the visitor, the relief, the new face, the fresh news, the hopeless attachment I shall only be the husband

REGINALD [savagely] Will you tell me this, any of you? how is it that we always get talking about Hotchkiss when our business is about Edith? [He fumes up the kitchen to the tower and back to his chair]

MRS BRIDGENORTH Will somebody tell me how the world is to get on if nobody is to get married?

SYKES Will somebody tell me what an honorable man and a sincere Anglican is to propose to a woman whom he loves and who loves him and won't marry him?

LEO Will somebody tell me how I'm to arrange to take care of Rejgy when I'm married to Sinjon Rejgy must not be allowed to marry anyone else, especially that odious nasty creature that told all those wicked lies about him in Court

HOTCHKISS Let us draw up the first English partnership deed

LEO For shame, Sinjon!

THE BISHOP Somebody must begin, my dear I've a very strong suspicion that when it is drawn up it will be so much worse than the existing law that you will all prefer getting married We shall therefore be doing the greatest possible service to morality by just trying how the new system would work

LESBIA [suddenly reminding them of her forgotten presence as she stands thoughtfully in the garden doornay] I've been thinking

THE BISHOP [to Hotchkiss] Nothing like making people think is there, Sinjon?

LESBIA [coming to the table, on the General's left] A woman has no right to refuse motherhood That is clear, after the statistics given in The Times by Mr Sidney Webb

THE GENERAL Mr Webb has nothing to do with it It is the Voice of Nature

LESBIA But if she is an English lady it is her right and her duty to stand out for honorable conditions If we can agree on the conditions, I am willing to enter into an alliance with Boxer

The General staggers to his feet, momentarily stupent and speechless

EDITH [rising] And I with Cecil

LEO [rising] And I with Rejgy and St John

THE GENERAL [aghast] An alliance! Do you mean a—a—a—

REGINALD She only means bigamy, as I understand her

THE GENERAL Alfred how long more are you going to stand there and countenance this lunacy? Is it a horrible dream or am I awake? In the name of common sense and sanity, let us get back to real life—

Collins comes in through the tower, in alderman's robes The ladies who are standing sit down hastily, and look as unconcerned as possible

COLLINS Sorry to hurry you, my lord, but the Church has been full this hour past, and the organist has played all the wedding music in Lohengrin three times over

THE GENERAL The very man we want Alfred I'm not equal to this crisis You are not equal to it The Army has failed The Church has failed I shall put aside all idle social distinctions and appeal to the Municipality

MRS BRIDGENORTH Do, Boxer He is sure to get us out of this difficulty

Collins, a little puzzled, comes forward affably to Hotchkiss's left HOTCHKISS [rising, impressed by the aldermanic gown] I've not had the pleasure Will you introduce me?

COLLINS [confidentially] All right, sir Only the greengrocer, sir, in charge of the wedding

breakfast Mr Alderman Collins, sir, when I'm in my gown

HOTCHKISS [staggered] Very pleased indeed [he sits down again]

THE BISHOP Personally I value the counsel of my old friend, Mr Alderman Collins, very highly If Edith and Cecil will allow him—

EDITH Collins has known me from my childhood I'm sure he will agree with me

COLLINS Yes, miss you may depend on me for that Might I ask what the difficulty is?

EDITH Simply this Do you expect me to get married in the existing state of the law?

SYKES [rising and coming to Collins's left elbow] I put it to you as a sensible man is it any worse for her than for me?

REGINALD [leaving his place and thrusting himself between Collins and Sykes, who returns to his chair] That's not the point Let this be understood, Mr Collins It's not the man who is backing out it's the woman [He posts himself on the hearth]

LESBIA We do not admit that, Collins The women are perfectly ready to make a reasonable arrangement

LEO With both men

THE GENERAL The case is now before you, Mr Collins And I put it to you as one man to another did you ever hear such crazy nonsense?

MRS BRIDGENORTH The world must go on, mustn't it, Collins?

COLLINS [snatching at this, the first intelligible proposition he has heard] Oh, the world will go on, ma'am don't you be afraid of that It ain't so easy to stop it as the earnest kind of people think

EDITH I knew you would agree with me, Collins Thank you

HOTCHKISS Have you the least idea of what they are talking about, Mr Alderman?

COLLINS Oh, that's all right, sir The particulars don't matter I never read the report of a Committee after all, what can they say that you don't know? You pick it up as they go on talking [He goes to the corner of the table and speaks across it to the company] Well, my Lord and Miss Edith and Madam and Gentlemen, it's like this Marriage is tolerable enough in its way if you're easygoing and don't expect too much from it But it doesn't bear thinking about The great thing is to get the young people tied up before they know what they're letting themselves in for

There's Miss Lesbia now She waited till she started thinking about it, and then it was all over If you once start arguing, Miss Edith and Mr Sykes, you'll never get married Go and get married first you'll have plenty of arguing afterwards, miss, believe me

HOTCHKISS Your warning comes too late They've started arguing already

THE GENERAL But you don't take in the full—well, I don't wish to exaggerate, but the only word I can find is the full horror of the situation These ladies not only refuse our honorable offers, but as I understand it—and I'm sure I beg your pardon most heartily, Lesbia, if I'm wrong, as I hope I am—they actually call on us to enter into—I'm sorry to use the expression, but what can I say?—into ALLIANCES with them under contracts to be drawn up by our confounded solicitors

COLLINS Dear me, General that's something new when the parties belong to the same class

THE BISHOP Not new, Collins The Romans did it

COLLINS Yes they would, them Romans When you're in Rome do as the Romans do, is an old saying But we're not in Rome at present, my lord

THE BISHOP We have got into many of their ways What do you think of the contract system, Collins?

COLLINS Well, my lord, when there's a question of a contract, I always say, shew it to me on paper If it's to be talk, let it be talk, but if it's to be a contract, down with it in black and white, and then we shall know what we're about HOTCHKISS Quite right, Mr Alderman Let us draft it at once May I go into the study for writing materials, Bishop?

THE BISHOP Do, Sirjon

Hotchkiss goes into the library

COLLINS If I might point out a difficulty, my lord—

THE BISHOP Certainly [He goes to the fourth chair from the General's left, but before sitting down, courteously points to the chair at the end of the table next the hearth] Won't you sit down, Mr Alderman? [Collins, very appreciative of the Bishop's distinguished consideration, sits down The Bishop then takes his seat]

COLLINS We are at present six men to four ladies That's not fair

REGINALD Not fair to the men, you mean

LEO Oh! Rejny has said something clever!

Can I be mistaken in him?

Hotchkiss comes back with a blotter and some paper. He takes the vacant place in the middle of the table between Lesbia and the Bishop.

COLLINS I tell you the truth, my lord and ladies and gentlemen I don't trust my judgment on this subject. There's a certain lady that I always consult on delicate points like this. She has a very exceptional experience, and a wonderful temperament and instinct in affairs of the heart.

HOTCHKISS Excuse me, Mr Alderman. I'm a snob, and I warn you that there's no use consulting anyone who will not advise us frankly on class lines. Marriage is good enough for the lower classes; they have facilities for desertion that are denied to us. What is the social position of this lady?

COLLINS The highest in the borough, sir. She is the Mayoress. But you need not stand in awe of her, sir. She is my sister-in-law. [To the Bishop] I've often spoken of her to your lady, my lord. [To Mrs Bridgenorth] Mrs George, ma'am.

MRS BRIDGENORTH [startled] Do you mean to say, Collins, that Mrs George is a real person?

COLLINS [equally startled] Didn't you believe in her, ma'am?

MRS BRIDGENORTH Never for a moment.

THE BISHOP We always thought that Mrs George was too good to be true. I still don't believe in her, Collins. You must produce her if you are to convince me.

COLLINS [overwhelmed] Well, I'm so taken aback by this that—Well I never! Why! she's at the church at this moment, waiting to see the wedding.

THE BISHOP Then produce her. [Collins shakes his head] Come, Collins! confess. There's no such person.

COLLINS There is, my lord; there is, I assure you. You ask George. It's true I can't produce her, but you can, my lord.

THE BISHOP, I!

COLLINS Yes, my lord, you. For some reason that I never could make out, she has forbidden me to talk about you, or to let her meet you. I've asked her to come here of a wedding morning to help with the flowers or the like, and she has always refused. But if you order her to come as her Bishop, she'll come. She has some very strange fancies, has Mrs George. Send your ring to her, my lord—the official ring—send it by some very stylish gentleman—perhaps Mr Hotchkiss here would be good enough to take it—and she'll come.

THE BISHOP [taking off his ring and handing it to Hotchkiss] Oblige me by undertaking the mission.

HOTCHKISS But how am I to know the lady?

COLLINS She has gone to the church in state, sir, and will be attended by a Beadle with a mace. He will point her out to you, and he will take the front seat of the carriage on the way back.

HOTCHKISS No, by heavens! Forgive me, Bishop, but you are asking too much. I ran away from the Boers because I was a snob. I ran away from the Beadle for the same reason. I absolutely decline the mission.

THE GENERAL [rising impressively] Be good enough to give me that ring, Mr Hotchkiss.

HOTCHKISS With pleasure. [He hands it to him]

THE GENERAL I shall have great pleasure, Mr Alderman, in waiting on the Mayoress with the Bishop's orders, and I shall be proud to return with municipal honors. [He stalks out gallantly, Collins rising for a moment to bow to him with marked dignity]

REGINALD Boxer is rather a fine old jossler in his way.

HOTCHKISS His uniform gives him an unfair advantage. He will take all the attention off the Beadle.

COLLINS I think it would be as well, my lord, to go on with the contract while we're waiting. The truth is, we shall none of us have much of a look-in when Mrs George comes, so we had better finish the writing part of the business before she arrives.

HOTCHKISS I think I have the preliminaries down all right. [Reading] 'Memorandum of Agreement made this day of blank blank between blank blank of blank blank in the County of blank, Esquire, hereinafter called the Gentleman, of the one part, and blank blank of blank in the County of blank, hereinafter called the Lady, of the other part whereby it is declared and agreed as follows.'

LEO [rising] You might remember your manners, Sinjon. The lady comes first. [She goes behind him and stoops to look at the draft over his shoulder]

HOTCHKISS To be sure. I beg your pardon. [He alters the draft]

LEO And you have got only one lady and one gentleman There ought to be two gentlemen

COLLINS Oh, thats a mere matter of form, maam Any number of ladics or gentlemen can be put in

LEO Not any number of ladies Only one lady Besides, that creature wasnt a lady

REGINALD You shut your head, Leo This is a general sort of contract for everybody it's not your contract

LEO Then what use is it to me?

HOTCHKISS You will get some hints from it for your own contract

EDITH I hope there will be no hunting Let us have the plain straightforward truth and nothing but the truth

COLLINS Yes, yes, miss it will be all right Theres nothing underhand, I assure you It's a model agreement, as it were

EDITH [unconvinced] I hope so

HOTCHKISS What is the first clause in an agreement, usually? You know, Mr Alderman

COLLINS [at a loss] Well, sir, the Town Clerk always sees to that Ive got out of the habit of thinking for myself in these little matters Perhaps his lordship knows

THE BISHOP I'm sorry to say I dont But Soames will know Alice where is Soames?

HOTCHKISS He's in there [pointing to the study]

THE BISHOP [to his wife] Coax him to join us, my love [Mrs Bridgenorth goes into the study] Soames is my chaplain, Mr Collins The great difficulty about Bishops in the Church of England to-day is that the affairs of the diocese make it necessary that a Bishop should be before everything a man of business, capable of sticking to his desk for sixteen hours a day But the result of having Bishops of this sort is that the spiritual interests of the Church, and its influence on the souls and imaginations of the people, very soon begin to go rapidly to the devil—

EDITH [shocked] Papa!

THE BISHOP I am speaking technically, not in Boxer's manner Indeed the Bishops themselves went so far in that direction that they gained a reputation for being spiritually the stupidest men in the country and commercially the sharpest I found a way out of this difficulty Soames was my solicitor I found that Soames, though a very capable man of business, had a romantic secret history His father was an eminent Nonconformist divine who habitually spoke of the Church of England as The Scarlet Woman Soames became secretly converted to Anglicanism at the age of fifteen He longed to take holy orders, but didnt dare to, because his father had a weak heart and habitually threatened to drop dead if anybody hurt his feelings You may have noticed that people with weak hearts are the tyrants of English family life So poor Soames had to become a solicitor When his father died—by a curious stroke of poetic justice he died of scarlet fever, and was found to have had a perfectly sound heart—I ordained Soames and made him my chaplain He is now quite happy He is a celibate, fasts strictly on Fridays and throughout Lent, wears a cassock and biretta, and has more legal business to do than ever he had in his old office in Ely Place And he sets me free for the spiritual and scholarly pursuits proper to a Bishop

MRS BRIDGENORTH [coming back from the study with a knitting basket] Here he is [She resumes her seat, and knits]

Soames comes in in cassock and biretta He salutes the company by blessing them with two fingers

HOTCHKISS Take my place, Mr Soames [He gives up his chair to him, and retires to the oak chest, on which he seats himself]

THE BISHOP No longer Mr Soames, Sinjon Father Anthony

SOAMES [taking his seat] I was christened Olver Cromwell Soames My father had no right to do it I have taken the name of Anthony When you become parents, young gentlemen, be very careful not to label a helpless child with views which it may come to hold in abhorrence

THE BISHOP Has Alice explained to you the nature of the document we are drafting?

SOAMES She has indeed

LESBIA That sounds as if you disapproved

SOAMES It is not for me to approve or disapprove I do the work that comes to my hand from my ecclesiastical superior

THE BISHOP Dont be uncharitable, Anthony You must give us your best advice

SOAMES My advice to you all is to do your duty by taking the Christian vows of celibacy and poverty The Church was founded to put an end to marriage and to put an end to property

MRS BRIDGENORTH But how could the world go on, Anthony?

SOAMES Do your duty and see Doing your duty is your business keeping the world going is in higher hands

LESBIA Anthony youre impossible

SOAMES [taking up his pen] You wont take my advice I didnt expect you would Well, I await your instructions

REGINALD We got stuck on the first clause What should we begin with?

SOAMES It is usual to begin with the term of the contract

EDITH What does that mean?

SOAMES The term of years for which it is to hold good

LEO But this is a marriage contract

SOAMES Is the marriage to be for a year, a week, or a day?

REGINALD Come, I say, Anthony! Youre worse than any of us A day!

SOAMES Off the path is off the path An inch or a mile what does it matter?

LEO If the marriage is not to be for ever, I'll have nothing to do with it I call it immoral to have a marriage for a term of years If the people dont like it they can get divorced

REGINALD It ought to be for just as long as the two people like Thats what I say

COLLINS They may not agree on the point, sir It's often fast with one and loose with the other

LESBIA I should say for as long as the man behaves himself

THE BISHOP Suppose the woman doesnt behave herself?

MRS BRIDGENORTH The woman may have lost all her chances of a good marriage with anybody else She should not be cast adrift

REGINALD So may the man! What about his home?

LEO The wife ought to keep an eye on him, and see that he is comfortable and takes care of himself properly The other man wont want her all the time

LESBIA There may not be another man

LEO Then why on earth should she leave him?

LESBIA Because she wants to

LEO Oh, if people are going to be let do what they want to, then I call it simple immorality [She goes indignantly to the oak chest, and perches herself on it close beside Hotchkiss]

REGINALD [watching them sourly] You do it yourself, dont you?

LEO Oh, thats quite different Dont make foolish witticisms, Rejy

THE BISHOP We dont seem to be getting on What do you say, Mr Alderman?

COLLINS Well my lord, you see people do persist in talking as if marriages was all of one sort But theres almost as many different sorts of marriages as theres different sorts of people Theres the young things that marry for love, not knowing what theyre doing, and the old things that marry for money and comfort and companionship Theres the people that marry for children Theres the people that dont intend to have children and that arnt fit to have them Theres the people that marry because theyre so much run after by the other sex that they have to put a stop to it somehow Theres the people that want to try a new experience, and the people that want to have done with experiences How are you to please them all? Why, youll want half a dozen different sorts of contract

THE BISHOP Well, if so, let us draw them all up Let us face it

REGINALD Why should we be held together whether we like it or not? Thats the question thats at the bottom of it all

MRS BRIDGENORTH Because of the children, Rejy

COLLINS But even then, maam, why should we be held together when thats all over—when the girls are married and the boys out in the world and in business for themselves? When thats done with, the real work of the marriage is done with If the two like to stay together, let them stay together But if not, let them part, as old people in the work-houses do Theyve had enough of one another Theyve found one another out Why should they be tied together to sit there grudging and hating and spiting one another like so many do? Put it twenty years from the birth of the youngest child

SOAMES How if there be no children?

COLLINS Let em take one another on liking.

MRS BRIDGENORTH Collins!

LEO You wicked old man!

THE BISHOP [remonstrating] My dear, my dear!

LESBIA And what is a woman to live on, pray, when she is no longer liked, as you call it?

SOAMES [with sardonic formality] It is proposed that the term of the agreement be twenty years from the birth of the youngest child when there are children Any amendment?

LEO I protest It must be for life It would not be a marriage at all if it were not for life

SOAMES Mrs Reginald Bridgenorth proposes life Any seconder?

LEO Dont be soulless, Anthony

LESBIA I have a very important amendment If there are any children, the man must be cleared completely out of the house for two years on each occasion At such times he is superfluous, importunate, and ridiculous

COLLINS But where is he to go, miss?

LESBIA He can go where he likes as long as he does not bother the mother

REGINALD And is she to be left lonely—

LESBIA Lonely! With her child The poor woman would be only too glad to have a moment to herself Dont be absurd, Rejy

REGINALD The father is to be a wandering wretched outcast, living at his club, and seeing nobody but his friends' wives!

LESBIA [ironically] Poor fellow!

HOTCHKISS The friends' wives are perhaps the solution of the problem You see, their husbands will also be outcasts, and the poor ladies will occasionally pine for male society

LESBIA There is no reason why a mother should not have male society What she clearly should not have is a husband

SOAMES Anything else, Miss Grantham?

LESBIA Yes I must have my own separate house, or my own separate part of a house Boxer smokes I cant endure tobacco Boxer believes that an open window means death from cold and exposure to the night air I must have fresh air always We can be friends, but we cant live together, and that must be put in the agreement

EDITH Ive no objection to smoking, and as to opening the windows, Cecil will of course have to do what is best for his health

THE BISHOP Who is to be the judge of that, my dear? You or he?

EDITH Neither of us We must do what the doctor orders

REGINALD Doctor be—!

LEO [admonitorily] Rejy!

REGINALD [to Soames] You take my tip, Anthony Put a clause into that agreement that the doctor is to have no say in the job It's bad enough for the two people to be married to one another without their both being married to the doctor as well

LESBIA That reminds me of something very important Boxer believes in vaccination I do not There must be a clause that I am to decide on such questions as I think best

LEO [to the Bishop] Baptism is nearly as important as vaccination isnt it?

THE BISHOP It used to be considered so, my dear

LEO Well, Sinjon scoffs at it he says that godfathers are ridiculous I must be allowed to decide

REGINALD Theyll be his children as well as yours, you know

LEO Dont be indelicate, Rejy

EDITH You are forgetting the very important matter of money

COLLINS Ah! Money! Now we're coming to it!

EDITH When I'm married I shall have practically no money except what I shall earn

THE BISHOP I'm sorry, Cecil A Bishop's daughter is a poor man's daughter

SYKES But surely you dont imagine that I'm going to let Edith work when we're married I'm not a rich man, but Ive enough to spare her that, and when my mother dies—

EDITH What nonsense! Of course I shall work when I'm married I shall keep your house

SYKES Oh, that!

REGINALD You call that work?

EDITH Dont you? Leo used to do it for nothing, so no doubt you thought it wasnt work at all Does your present housekeeper do it for nothing?

REGINALD But it will be part of your duty as a wife

EDITH Not under this contract I'll not have it so If I'm to keep the house, I shall expect Cecil to pay me at least as well as he would pay a hired housekeeper I'll not go begging to him every time I want a new dress or a cab fare, as so many women have to do

SYKES You know very well I would grudge you nothing, Edie

EDITH Then dont grudge me my self-respect and independence I insist on it in fairness to you, Cecil, because in this way there will be a fund belonging solely to me, and if Slatto\ takes an action against you for anything I say, you can pay the damages and stop the interest out of my salary

SOAMES You forget that under this contract he will not be liable, because you will not be his wife in law

EDITH Nonsense! Of course I shall be his wife

COLLINS [his curiosity roused] Is Slattox taking an action against you, miss? Slattox is on the Council with me. Could I settle it?

EDITH He has not taken an action, but Cecil says he will

COLLINS What for, miss, if I may ask?

EDITH Slattox is a liar and a thief, and it is my duty to expose him

COLLINS You surprise me, miss. Of course Slattox is in a manner of speaking a liar. If I may say so without offence, we're all liars, if it was only to spare one another's feelings. But I shouldn't call Slattox a thief. He's not all that he should be, perhaps, but he pays his way

EDITH If that is only your nice way of saying that Slattox is entirely unfit to have two hundred girls in his power as absolute slaves, then I shall say that too about him at the very next public meeting I address. He steals their wages under pretence of fining them. He steals their food under pretence of buying it for them. He lies when he denies having done it. And he does other things, as you evidently know, Collins. Therefore I give you notice that I shall expose him before all England without the least regard to the consequences to myself

SYKES Or to me?

EDITH I take equal risks. Suppose you felt it to be your duty to shoot Slattox, what would become of me and the children? I'm sure I don't want anybody to be shot, not even Slattox, but if the public never will take any notice of even the most crying evil until somebody is shot, what are people to do but shoot somebody?

SOAMES [inexorably] I'm waiting for my instructions as to the term of the agreement

REGINALD [impatiently, leaving the hearth and going behind Soames] It's no good talking all over the shop like this. We shall be here all day. I propose that the agreement holds good until the parties are divorced

SOAMES They can't be divorced. They will not be married

REGINALD But if they can't be divorced, then this will be worse than marriage

MRS BRIDGENORTH Of course it will. Do stop this nonsense. Why, who are the children to belong to?

LESBIA We have already settled that they are to belong to the mother

REGINALD No. I'm dashed if you have. I'll fight for the ownership of my own children tooth and nail, and so will a good many other fellows, I can tell you

EDITH It seems to me that they should be divided between the parents. If Cecil wishes any of the children to be his exclusively, he should pay me a certain sum for the risk and trouble of bringing them into the world, say a thousand pounds apiece. The interest on this could go towards the support of the child as long as we live together. But the principal would be my property. In that way, if Cecil took the child away from me, I should at least be paid for what it had cost me

MRS BRIDGENORTH [putting down her knitting in amazement] Edith! Who ever heard of such a thing!

EDITH Well, how else do you propose to settle it?

THE BISHOP There is such a thing as a favorite child. What about the youngest child — the Benjamin — the child of its parents' matured strength and charity, always better treated and better loved than the unfortunate eldest children of their youthful ignorance and wilfulness? Which parent is to own the youngest child, payment or no payment?

COLLINS There's a third party, my lord. There's the child itself. My wife is so fond of her children that they can't call their lives their own. They all run away from home to escape from her. A child hasn't a grown-up person's appetite for affection. A little of it goes a long way with them, and they like a good imitation of it better than the real thing, as every nurse knows

SOAMES Are you sure that any of us, young or old, like the real thing as well as we like an artistic imitation of it? Is not the real thing accursed? Are not the best beloved always the good actors rather than the true sufferers? Is not love always falsified in novels and plays to make it endurable? I have noticed in myself a great delight in pictures of the Saints and of Our Lady, but when I fall under that most terrible curse of the priest's lot, the curse of Joseph pursued by the wife of Potiphar, I am invariably repelled and terrified

HOTCHKISS Are you now speaking as a saint, Father Anthony, or as a solicitor?

SOAMES There is no difference There is not one Christian rule for solicitors and another for saints Their hearts are alike, and their way of salvation is along the same road

THE BISHOP But "few there be that find it" Can you find it for us, Anthony?

SOAMES It lies broad before you It is the way to destruction that is narrow and tortuous Marriage is an abomination which the Church was founded to cast out and replace by the communion of saints I learnt that from every marriage settlement I drew up as a solicitor no less than from inspired revelation You have set yourselves here to put your sin before you in black and white, and you cant agree upon or endure one article of it

SYKES It's certainly rather odd that the whole thing seems to fall to pieces the moment you touch it

THE BISHOP You see, when you give the devil fair play he loses his case He has not been able to produce even the first clause of a working agreement, so I'm afraid we cant wait for him any longer

LESBIA Then the community will have to do without my children

EDITH And Cecil will have to do without me

LEO [getting off the chest] And I positively will not marry Sinjon if he is not clever enough to make some provision for my looking after Rejgy [She leaves Hotchkiss, and goes back to her chair at the end of the table behind Mrs Bridgenorth]

MRS BRIDGENORTH And the world will come to an end with this generation, I suppose

COLLINS Cant nothing be done, my lord?

THE BISHOP You can make divorce reasonable and decent that is all

LESBIA Thank you for nothing If you will only make marriage reasonable and decent, you can do as you like about divorce I have not stated my deepest objection to marriage, and I dont intend to There are certain rights I will not give any person over me

REGINALD Well, I think it jolly hard that a man should support his wife for years, and lose the chance of getting a really good wife, and then have her refuse to be a wife to him

LESBIA I'm not going to discuss it with you, Rejgy If your sense of personal honor doesnt make you understand, nothing will

SOAMES [implacably] I'm still awaiting my instructions

They look at one another, each waiting for one of the others to suggest something Silence

REGINALD [blankly] I suppose, after all, marriage is better than—well, than the usual alternative

SOAMES [turning fiercely on him] What right have you to say so? You know that the sins that are wasting and maddening this unhappy nation are those committed in wedlock

COLLINS Well, the single ones cant afford to indulge their affections the same as married people

SOAMES Away with it all, I say You have your Master's commandments Obey them

HOTCHKISS [rising and leaning on the back of the chair left vacant by the General] I really must point out to you, Father Anthony, that the early Christian rules of life were not made to last, because the early Christians did not believe that the world itself was going to last Now we know that we shall have to go through with it We have found that there are millions of years behind us, and we know that there are millions before us Mrs Bridgenorth's question remains unanswered How is the world to go on? You say that that is not our business—that it is the business of Providence But the modern Christian view is that we are here to do the business of Providence and nothing else The question is, how? Am I not to use my reason to find out why? Isnt that what my reason is for? Well, all my reason tells me at present is that you are an impracticable lunatic

SOAMES Does that help?

HOTCHKISS No

SOAMES Then pray for light

HOTCHKISS No I am a snob, not a beggar [He sits down in the General's chair]

COLLINS We dont seem to be getting on, do we? Miss Edith you and Mr Sykes had better go off to church and settle the right and wrong of it afterwards Itll ease your minds, believe me I speak from experience You will burn your boats, as one might say

SOAMES We should never burn our boats It is death in life

COLLINS Well, Father, I will say for you that you have views of your own and are not afraid to out with them But some of us are of a more cheerful disposition On the Borough Council now, you would be in a minority of one You must take human nature as it is SOAMES Upon what compulsion must I? I'll take divine nature as it is. I'll not hold a candle to the devil.

THE BISHOP That's a very unchristian way of treating the devil.

REGINALD Well, we don't seem to be getting any further, do we?

THE BISHOP Will you give it up and get married, Edith?

EDITH No. What I propose seems to me quite reasonable.

THE BISHOP And you, Lesbia?

LESBIA Never.

MRS BRIDGENORTH Never is a long word, Lesbia. Don't say it.

LESBIA [with a flash of temper] Don't pity me, Alice, please. As I said before, I am an English lady quite prepared to do without anything I can't have on honorable conditions.

SOAMES [after a silence expressive of utter deadlock] I am still awaiting my instructions.

REGINALD Well, we don't seem to be getting along, do we?

LEO [out of patience] You said that before, Rejky. Do not repeat yourself.

REGINALD Oh, bother! [He goes to the garden door and looks out gloomily].

SOAMES [rising with the paper in his hands] Psha! [He tears it in pieces] So much for your contract!

THE VOICE OF THE BEADLE By your leave there gentlemen. Make way for the Mayoress. Way for the worshipful the Mayoress, my lords and gentlemen. [He comes in through the tower in cocked hat and gold-braided overcoat bearing the borough mace, and posts himself at the entrance] By your leave, gentlemen, way for the worshipful the Mayoress.

COLLINS [moving back towards the hall] Mrs George, my lord.

Mrs George is every inch a Mayoress in point of stylish dressing, and she does it very well indeed. There is nothing quiet about Mrs George, she is not afraid of colors, and knows how to make the most of them. Not at all a lady in Lesbia's use of the term as a class label. She proclaims herself to the first glance as the triumphant, pampered, wilful intensely alive woman who has always been rich among poor people. In a historical museum she would explain Edward the Fourth's taste for shopkeepers' wives. Her age, which is certainly 40, and might be 50, is carried off by her vitality, her resilient figure, and her confident carriage. So far, a remarkably well-preserved woman. But her beauty is wrecked, like an ageless landscape ravaged by long and fierce war. Her eyes are alive, arresting, and haunting, and there is still a turn of delicate beauty and pride in her indomitable chin, but her cheeks are wasted and lined, her mouth writhen and piteous. The whole face is a battle-field of the passions, quite deplorable until she speaks, when an alert sense of fun rejuvenates her in a moment, and makes her company irresistible.

All rise except Soames, who sits down. Leo joins Reginald at the garden door. Mrs Bridgenorth hurries to the tower to receive her guest, and gets as far as Soames's chair when Mrs George appears. Hotchkiss, apparently recognizing her, recoils in consternation to the study door at the furthest corner of the room from her.

MRS GEORGE [coming straight to the Bishop with the ring in her hand] Here is your ring, my lord, and here am I. It's your doing, remember not mine.

THE BISHOP Good of you to come.

MRS BRIDGENORTH How do you do, Mrs Collins?

MRS GEORGE [going to her past the Bishop, and gazing intently at her] Are you his wife?

MRS BRIDGENORTH The Bishop's wife? Yes.

MRS GEORGE What a destiny! And you look like any other woman!

MRS BRIDGENORTH [introducing Lesbia] My sister, Miss Grantham.

MRS GEORGE So strangely mixed up with the story of the General's life?

THE BISHOP You know the story of his life, then?

MRS GEORGE Not all. We reached the house before he brought it up to the present day. But enough to know the part played in it by Miss Grantham.

MRS BRIDGENORTH [introducing Leo] Mrs Reginald Bridgenorth.

REGINALD The late Mrs Reginald Bridgenorth.

LEO Hold your tongue, Rejky. At least have the decency to wait until the decree is made absolute.

MRS GEORGE [to Leo] Well, you've more time to get married again than he has, haven't you?

MRS BRIDGENORTH [introducing Hotchkiss] Mr St John Hotchkiss.

Hotchkiss, still far aloof by the study door, bows.

MRS GEORGE What! That! [She makes a half tour of the kitchen and ends right in front of him] Young man, do you remember coming into my shop and telling me that my husband's coals were out of place in your cellar, as Nature evidently intended them for the roof?

HOTCHKISS I remember that deplorable impertinence with shame and confusion You were kind enough to answer that Mr Collins was looking out for a clever young man to write advertisements, and that I could take the job if I liked

MRS GEORGE It's still open [She turns to Edith]

MRS BRIDGENORTH My daughter Edith [She comes towards the study door to make the introduction]

MRS GEORGE The bride! [Looking at Edith's dressing jacket] You're not going to get married like that, are you?

THE BISHOP [coming round the table to Edith's left] That's just what we are discussing Will you be so good as to join us and allow us the benefit of your wisdom and experience?

MRS GEORGE Do you want the Beadle as well? He's a married man

They all turn involuntarily and contemplate the Beadle, who sustains their gaze with dignity

THE BISHOP We think there are already too many men to be quite fair to the women

MRS GEORGE Right, my lord [She goes back to the tower and addresses the Beadle] Take away that bauble, Joseph Wait for me wherever you find yourself most comfortable in the neighbourhood [The Beadle withdraws] She notices Collins for the first time

Hullo, Bill you've got em all on too Go and hunt up a drink for Joseph there's a dear [Collins goes out] She looks at Soames's cassock and biretta What! Another uniform! Are you the sexton? [He rises]

THE BISHOP My chaplain, Father Anthony

MRS GEORGE Oh Lord! [To Soames, coaxingly] You don't mind, do you?

SOAMES I mind nothing but my duties

THE BISHOP You know everybody now, I think

MRS GEORGE [turning to the railed chair] Who's this?

THE BISHOP Oh, I beg your pardon, Cecil Mr Sykes The bridegroom

MRS GEORGE [to Sykes] Adorned for the sacrifice, aren't you?

SYKES It seems doubtful whether there is going to be any sacrifice

MRS GEORGE Well, I want to talk to the women first Shall we go upstairs and look at the presents and dresses?

MRS BRIDGENORTH If you wish, certainly REGINALD But the men want to hear what you have to say too

MRS GEORGE I'll talk to them afterwards one by one

HOTCHKISS [to himself] Great heavens!

MRS BRIDGENORTH This way, Mrs Collins [She leads the way out through the tower, followed by Mrs George, Lesbia, Leo, and Edith]

THE BISHOP Shall we try to get through the last batch of letters whilst they are away, Soames?

SOAMES Yes, certainly [To Hotchkiss, who is in his way] Excuse me

The Bishop and Soames go into the study, disturbing Hotchkiss, who, plunged in a strange reverie, has forgotten where he is Awakened by Soames, he stares distractedly, then, with sudden resolution, goes swiftly to the middle of the kitchen

HOTCHKISS Cecil Rejy [Startled by his urgency, they hurry to him] I'm frightfully sorry to desert on this day, but I must bolt This time it really is pure cowardice I can't help it

REGINALD What are you afraid of?

HOTCHKISS I don't know Listen to me I was a young fool living by myself in London I ordered my first ton of coals from that woman's husband At that time I did not know that it is not true economy to buy the lowest priced article I thought all coals were alike, and tried the thirteen shilling kind because it seemed cheap It proved unexpectedly inferior to the family Silkstone, and in the irritation into which the first scuttle threw me, I called at the shop and made an idiot of myself as she described

SYKES Well, suppose you did! Laugh at it, man

HOTCHKISS At that, yes But there was something worse Judge of my horror when, calling on the coal merchant to make a trifling complaint at finding my grate acting as a battery of quick-firing guns, and being confronted by his vulgar wife, I felt in her presence an extraordinary sensation of unrest, of emotion, of unsatisfied need I'll not disgust you with details of the madness and folly that followed that meeting But it went as far as this that I actually found myself prowling past the shop at night under a sort of desperate necessity to be near some place where she had been A hideous temptation to kiss the doorstep because her foot had pressed it made me realize how mad I was I tore myself away from London by a supreme effort, but I was on the point of returning like a needle to the lodestone when the outbreak of the war saved me On the field of battle the infatuation wore off The Billiter affair made a new man of me I felt that I had left the follies and puerilities of the old days behind me for ever But half-an-hour ago—when the Bishop sent off that ring—a sudden grip at the base of my heart filled me with a nameless terror—me, the fearless! I recognized its cause when she walked into the room Cecil this woman is a harpy, a siren, a mermaid, a vampire There is only one chance for me flight, instant precipitate flight Make my excuses Forget me Farewell [He makes for the door and is confronted by Mrs George entering] Too late I'm lost [He turns back and throws himself desperately into the chair nearest the study door, that being the furthest away from her]

MRS GEORGE [coming to the hearth and addressing Reginald] Mr Bridgenorth will you oblige me by leaving me with this young man I want to talk to him like a mother, on your business

REGINALD Do, maam He needs it badly Come along, Sykes [He goes into the study]

SYKES [looks irresolutely at Hotchkiss]—?

HOTCHKISS Too late you cant save me now, Cecil Go

Sykes goes into the study Mrs George strolls across to Hotchkiss and contemplates him curiously

HOTCHKISS Useless to prolong this agony [Rising] Fatal woman—if woman you are indeed and not a fiend in human form—

MRS GEORGE Is this out of a book? Or is it your usual society small talk?

HOTCHKISS [recklessly] Jibes are useless the force that is sweeping me away will not spare you I must know the worst at once What was your father?

MRS GEORGE A licensed victualler who married his bairmaid You would call him a publican, most likely HOTCHKISS Then you are a woman totally beneath me Do you deny it? Do you set up any sort of pretence to be my equal in rank, in age, or in culture?

MRS GEORGE Have you eaten anything that has disagreed with you?

HOTCHKISS [nothingly] Inferior!

MRS GEORGE Thank you Anything else?

HOTCHKISS This I love you My intentions are not honorable [She shews no dismay] Scream Ring the bell Have me turned out of the house

MRS GEORGE [with sudden depth of feeling] Oh, if you could restore to this wasted exhausted heart one ray of the passion that once welled up at the glance—at the touch of a lover! It's you who would scream then, young man Do you see this face, once fresh and rosy like your own, now scared and riven by a hundred burnt-out fires?

HOTCHKISS [wildly] Slate fires Thirteen shillings a ton Fires that shoot out destructive meteors, blinding and burning, sending men into the streets to make fools of themselves

MRS GEORGE You seem to have got it pretty bad, Sinjon

HOTCHKISS Dont dare call me Sinjon

MRS GEORGE My name is Zenobia Alexandrina You may call me Polly for short

HOTCHKISS Your name is Ashtoreth—Durga—there is no name yet invented malign enough for you

MRS GEORGE [sitting down comfortably] Come! Do you really think youre better suited to that young saucebox than her husband? You enjoyed her company when you were only the friend of the family—when there was the husband there to shew off against and to take all the responsibility Are you sure youll enjoy it as much when you are the husband? She isnt clever, you know She's only silly-clever HOTCHKISS [uneasily leaning against the table and holding on to it to control his nervous movements] Need you tell me? fiend that you are!

MRS GEORGE You amused the husband, didnt you?

HOTCHKISS He has more real sense of humor than she He's better bred That was not my fault

MRS GEORGE My husband has a sense of humor too

HOTCHKISS The coal merchant?—I mean the slate merchant

MRS GEORGE [appreciatively] He would just love to hear you talk He's been dull lately for want of a change of company and a bit of fresh fun

HOTCHKISS [flinging a chair opposite her and sitting down with an overdone attempt at studied insolence] And pray what is your wretched husband's vulgar conviviality to me?

MRS GEORGE You love me?

HOTCHKISS I loathe you

MRS GEORGE It's the same thing

HOTCHKISS Then I'm lost

MRS GEORGE You may come and see me if you promise to amuse George

HOTCHKISS I'll insult him, sneer at him, wipe my boots on him

MRS GEORGE No you wont, dear boy You'll be a perfect gentleman

HOTCHKISS [beaten, appealing to her mercy]
Zenobia—

MRS GEORGE Polly, please

HOTCHKISS Mrs Collins—

MRS GEORGE Sir?

HOTCHKISS Something stronger than my reason and common sense is holding my hands and tearing me along I make no attempt to deny that it can drag me where you please and make me do what you like But at least let me know your soul as you seem to know mine Do you love this absurd coal merchant

MRS GEORGE Call him George

HOTCHKISS Do you love your Jorjy Porjy?

MRS GEORGE Oh, I dont know that I love him He's my husband, you know But if I got anxious about George's health, and I thought it would nourish him, I would fry you with onions for his breakfast and think nothing of it George and I are good friends George belongs to me Other men may come and go, but George goes on for ever

HOTCHKISS Yes a husband soon becomes nothing but a habit Listen I suppose this detestable fascination you have for me is love

MRS GEORGE Any sort of feeling for a woman is called love nowadays

HOTCHKISS Do you love me?

MRS GEORGE [promptly] My love is not quite so cheap an article as that, my lad I wouldn't cross the street to have another look at you—not yet I'm not starving for love like the robins in winter, as the good ladies you're accustomed to are You'll have to be very clever, and very good, and very real, if you are to interest me If George takes a fancy to you, and you amuse him enough, I'll just tolerate you coming in and out occasionally for—well, say a month If you can make a friend of me in that time so much the better for you If you can touch my poor dying heart even for an instant, I'll bless you, and never forget you You may try—if George takes to you

HOTCHKISS I'm to come on liking for the month?

MRS GEORGE On condition that you drop Mrs Reginald

HOTCHKISS But she wont drop me Do you suppose I ever wanted to marry her? I was a homeless bachelor, and I felt quite happy at their house as their friend Leo was an amusing little devil, but I liked Reginald much more than I liked her She didnt understand One day she came to me and told me that the inevitable had happened I had tact enough not to ask her what the inevitable was, and I gathered presently that she had told Reginald that their marriage was a mistake and that she loved me and could no longer see me breaking my heart for her in suffering silence What could I say? What could I do? What can I say now? What can I do now?

MRS GEORGE Tell her that the habit of falling in love with other men's wives is growing on you, and that I'm your latest HOTCHKISS What! Throw her over when she has thrown Reginald over for me!

MRS GEORGE [rising] You wont then? Very well Sorry we shant meet again I should have liked to see more of you for George's sake Goodbye [she moves away from him towards the hearth]

HOTCHKISS [appealing] Zenobia—

MRS GEORGE I thought I had made a difficult conquest Now I see you are only one of those poor petticoat-hunting creatures that any woman can pick up Not for me, thank you [Inexorable, she turns towards the tower to go]

HOTCHKISS [following] Dont be an ass, Polly

MRS GEORGE [stopping] Thats better

HOTCHKISS Cant you see that I maynt throw Leo over just because I should be only too glad to It would be dishonorable

MRS GEORGE Will you be happy if you marry her?

HOTCHKISS No, great heavens, NO!

MRS GEORGE Will she be happy when she finds you out?

HOTCHKISS She's incapable of happiness But she's not incapable of the pleasure of holding a man against his will

MRS GEORGE Right, young man You will tell her, please, that you love me before everybody, mind, the very next time you see her

HOTCHKISS But—

MRS GEORGE Those are my orders, Sinjon I cant have you marry another woman until George is tired of you

HOTCHKISS Oh, if only I didnt selfishly want to obey you!

The General comes in from the garden Mrs George goes half way to the garden door to speak to him Hotchkiss posts himself on the hearth

MRS GEORGE Where have you been all this time?

THE GENERAL I'm afraid my nerves were a little upset by our conversation I just went into the garden and had a smoke I'm all right now [he strolls down to the study door and presently takes a chair at that end of the big table]

MRS GEORGE A smoke! Why, you said she couldnt bear it

THE GENERAL Good heavens! I forgot! It's such a natural thing to do, somehow

Lesbia comes in through the tower

MRS GEORGE He's been smoking again

LESBIA So my nose tells me [She goes to the end of the table nearest the hearth, and sits down]

THE GENERAL Lesbia I'm very sorry But if I gave it up, I should become so melancholy and irritable that you would be the first to implore me to take to it again

MRS GEORGE Thats true Women drive their husbands into all sorts of wickedness to keep them in good humor Sinjon be off with you this doesnt concern you

LESBIA Please dont disturb yourself, Sinjon Boxer's broken heart has been worn on his sleeve too long for any pretence of privacy

THE GENERAL You are cruel, Lesbia devilishly cruel [He sits down, wounded]

LESBIA You are vulgar. Boxer

HOTCHKISS In what way? I ask, as an expert in vulgarity

LESBIA In two ways First, he talks as if the only thing of any importance in life was which particular woman he shall marry Second, he has no self-control

THE GENERAL Women are not all the same to me, Lesbia

MRS GEORGE Why should they be, pray? Women are all different it's the men who are all the same Besides, what does Miss Grantham know about either men or women? She's got too much self-control

LESBIA [widening her eyes and lifting her chin

haughtily] And pray how does that prevent me from knowing as much about men and women as people who have no self-control?

MRS GEORGE Because it frightens people into behaving themselves before you, and then how can you tell what they really are? Look at me! I was a spoilt child My brothers and sisters were well brought up, like all children of respectable publicans So should I have been if I hadnt been the youngest ten years younger than my youngest brother My parents were tired of doing their duty by their children by that time, and they spoilt me for all they were worth - I never knew what it was to want money or anything that money could buy When I wanted my own way, I had nothing to do but scream for it til I got it When I was annoyed I didnt control myself I scratched and called names Did you ever, after you were grown up, pull a grown-up woman's hair? Did you ever bite a grown-up man? Did you ever call both of them every name you could lay your tongue to?

LESBIA [shivering with disgust] No

MRS GEORGE Well, I did I know what a woman is like when her hair's pulled I know what a man is like when he's bit I know what theyre both like when you tell them what you really feel about them And thats how I know more of the world than you

LESBIA The Chinese know what a man is like when he is cut into a thousand pieces, or boiled in oil That sort of knowledge is of no use to me I'm afraid we shall never get on with one another, Mrs George I live like a fencer, always on guard I like to be confronted with people who are always on guard I hate sloppy people, slovenly people, people who cant sit up straight, sentimental people!

MRS GEORGE Oh, sentimental your grandmother! You dont learn to hold your own in the world by standing on guard, but by attacking, and getting well hammered yourself

LESBIA I'm not a prize-fighter, Mrs Collins If I cant get a thing without the indignity of fighting for it, I do without it

MRS GEORGE Do you? Does it strike you that if we were all as clever as you at doing without, there wouldnt be much to live for, would there?

THE GENERAL I'm afraid, Lesbia, the things you do without are the things you dont want

LESBIA [surprised at his wit] Thats not bad for the silly soldier man Yes, Boxer the truth is, I dont want you enough to make the very unreasonable sacrifices required by marriage And yet that is exactly why I ought to be married Just because I have the qualities my country wants most I shall go barren to my grave, whilst the women who have neither the strength to resist marriage nor the intelligence to understand its infinite dishonor will make the England of the future [She rises and walks towards the study]

THE GENERAL [as she is about to pass him] Well, I shall not ask you again, Lesbia

LESBIA Thank you, Boxer [She passes on to the study door]

MRS GEORGE Youre quite done with him, are you?

LESBIA As far as marriage is concerned, yes The field is clear for you, Mrs George [She goes into the study]

The General buries his face in his hands Mrs George comes round the table to him

MRS GEORGE [sympathetically] She's a nice woman, that And a sort of beauty about her too, different from anyone else

THE GENERAL [overwhelmed] Oh Mrs Collins, thank you, thank you a thousand times [He rises effusively] You have thawed the long-frozen springs [he kisses her hand], forgive me, and thank you bless you—[he again takes refuge in the garden, choked with emotion]

MRS GEORGE [looking after him triumphantly] Just caught the dear old warrior on the bounce, eh?

HOTCHKISS Unfaithful to me already!

MRS GEORGE I'm not your property, young man dont you think it [She goes over to him and faces him] You understand that? [He suddenly snatches her into his arms and kisses her] Oh! You dare do that again, you young blackguard, and I'll jab one of these chairs in your face [she seizes one and holds it in readiness] Now you shall not see me for another month

HOTCHKISS [deliberately] I shall pay my first visit to your husband this afternoon

MRS GEORGE Youll see what he'll say to you when I tell him what youve just done

HOTCHKISS What can he say? What dare he say?

MRS GEORGE Suppose he kicks you out of the house?

HOTCHKISS How can he? Ive fought seven duels with sabres Ive muscles of iron Nothing hurts me not even broken bones Fighting is absolutely uninteresting to me because it doesnt frighten me or amuse me, and I always win Your husband is in all these respects an average man, probably He will be horribly afraid of me, and if under the stimulus of your presence, and for your sake, and because it is the right thing to do among vulgar people, he were to attack me, I should simply defeat him and humiliate him [he gradually gets his hands on the chair and takes it from her, as his words go home phrase by phrase] Sooner than expose him to that, you would suffer a thousand stolen kisses, wouldnt you?

MRS GEORGE [in utter consternation] You young viper!

HOTCHKISS Ha ha! You are in my power That is one of the oversights of your code of honor for husbands the man who can bully them can insult their wives with impunity Tell him if you dare If I choose to take ten kisses, how will you prevent me?

MRS GEORGE You come within reach of me and I'll not leave a hair on your head

HOTCHKISS [catching her wrists dexterously] Ive got your hands

MRS GEORGE Youve not got my teeth Let go, or I'll bite I will, I tell you Let go

HOTCHKISS Bite away I shall taste quite as nice as George

MRS GEORGE You beast Let me go Do you call yourself a gentleman, to use your brute strength against a woman?

HOTCHKISS You are stronger than me in every way but this Do you think I will give up my one advantage? Promise youll receive me when I call this afternoon

MRS GEORGE After what youve just done? Not if it was to save my life

HOTCHKISS I'll amuse George.

MRS GEORGE He wont be in

HOTCHKISS [taken aback] Do you mean that we should be alone?

MRS GEORGE [snatching away her hands triumphantly as his grasp relaxes] Aha! Thats cooled you, has it?

HOTCHKISS [anxiously] When will George be at home?

MRS GEORGE It wont matter to you whether he's at home or not The door will be slammed in your face whenever you call

HOTCHKISS No servant in London is strong enough to close a door that I mean to keep open You cant escape me If you persist, I'll go into the coal trade, make George's acquaintance on the coal exchange and coax him to take me home with him to make your acquaintance

MRS GEORGE We have no use for you, young man neither George nor I [she sails away from him and sits down at the end of the table near the study door]

HOTCHKISS [following her and taking the next chair round the corner of the table] Yes you have George cant fight for you I can

MRS GEORGE [turning to face him] You bully You low bully

HOTCHKISS You have courage and fascination I have courage and a pair of fists We're both bulhes, Polly

MRS GEORGE You have a mischievous tongue Thats enough to keep you out of my house

HOTCHKISS It must be rather a house of cards A word from me to George—just the right word, said in the right way—and down comes your house

MRS GEORGE Thats why I'll die sooner than let you into it

HOTCHKISS Then as surely as you live, I enter the coal trade tomorrow George's taste for amusing company will deliver him into my hands Before a month passes your home will be at my mercy

MRS GEORGE [rising, at bay] Do you think I'll let myself be driven into a trap like this?

HOTCHKISS You are in it already Marriage is a trap You are married Any man who has the power to spoil your marriage has the power to spoil your life I have that power over you

MRS GEORGE [desperate] You mean it?

HOTCHKISS I do

MRS GEORGE [resolutely] Well, spoil my marriage and be—

HOTCHKISS [springing up] Polly!

MRS GEORGE Sooner than be your slave I'd face any unhappiness

HOTCHKISS What! Even for George?

MRS GEORGE There must be honor between me and George, happiness or no happiness Do your worst HOTCHKISS [admiring her] Are you really game Polly? Dare you defy me?

MRS GEORGE If you ask me another question I shant be able to keep my hands off you [she dashes distractedly past him to the other end of the table, her fingers crissing]

HOTCHKISS That settles it Polly I adore you we were born for one another As I happen to be a gentleman, I'll never do anything to annoy or injure you except that I reserve the right to give you a black eye if you bite me, but youll never get rid of me now to the end of your life

MRS GEORGE I shall get rid of you if the beadle has to brain you with the mace for it [she makes for the tower]

HOTCHKISS [running between the table and the oak chest and across to the tower to cut her off] You shant

MRS GEORGE [panting] Shant I though?

HOTCHKISS No you shant I have one card left to play that youve forgotten Why were you so unlike yourself when you spoke to the Bishop?

MRS GEORGE [agitated beyond measure] Stop Not that You shall respect that if you respect nothing else I forbid you [He kneels at her feet] What are you doing? Get up dont be a fool

HOTCHKISS Polly I ask you on my knees to let me make George's acquaintance in his home this afternoon, and I shall remain on my knees til the Bishop comes in and sees us What will he think of you then?

MRS GEORGE [beside herself] Wheres the poker?

She rushes to the fireplace, seizes the poker, and makes for Hotchkiss, who flies to the study door The Bishop enters just then and finds himself between them, narrowly escaping a blow from the poker

THE BISHOP Dont hit him, Mrs Collins He is my guest!

Mrs George throws down the poker, collapses into the nearest chair, and bursts into tears The Bishop goes to her and pats her consolingly on the shoulder She shudders all through at his touch

THE BISHOP Come! you are in the house of your friends Can we help you?

MRS GEORGE [to Hotchkiss, pointing to the study] Go in there, you Youre not wanted here

HOTCHKISS You understand, Bishop, that Mrs Collins is not to blame for this scene I'm afraid Ive been rather irritating

THE BISHOP I can quite believe it, Sinjon Hotchkiss goes into the study

THE BISHOP [turning to Mrs George with great kindness of manner] I'm sorry you have been worried [he sits down on her left] Never mind him A little pluck, a little gaiety of heart, a little prayer, and youll be laughing at him

MRS GEORGE Never fear I have all that

It was as much my fault as his, and I should have put him in his place with a clip of that poker on the side of his head if you hadn't come in

THE BISHOP You might have put him in his coffin that way, Mrs Collins. And I should have been very sorry, because we are all fond of Sinjon

MRS GEORGE Yes, it's your duty to rebuke me. But do you think I don't know?

THE BISHOP I don't rebuke you. Who am I that I should rebuke you? Besides, I know there are discussions in which the poker is the only possible argument

MRS GEORGE My lord, be earnest with me. I'm a very funny woman, I daresay, but I come from the same workshop as you. I heard you say that yourself years ago

THE BISHOP Quite so, but then I'm a very funny Bishop. Since we are both funny people, let us not forget that humor is a divine attribute

MRS GEORGE I know nothing about divine attributes or whatever you call them, but I can feel when I am being belittled. It was from you that I learnt first to respect myself. It was through you that I came to be able to walk safely through many wild and wilful paths. Don't go back on your own teaching

THE BISHOP I'm not a teacher, only a fellow-traveller of whom you asked the way. I pointed ahead—ahead of myself as well as of you

MRS GEORGE [rising and standing over him almost threateningly] As I'm a living woman this day, if I find you out to be a fraud, I'll kill myself

THE BISHOP What! Kill yourself for finding out something! For becoming a wiser and therefore a better woman! What a bad reason!

MRS GEORGE I have sometimes thought of killing you, and then killing myself

THE BISHOP Why on earth should you kill yourself—not to mention me?

MRS GEORGE So that we might keep our assignation in Heaven

THE BISHOP [rising and facing her, breathless] Mrs Collins! You are Incognita Appassionata!

MRS GEORGE You read my letters, then? [With a sigh of grateful relief, she sits down quietly, and says] Thank you

THE BISHOP [remorsefully] And I have broken the spell by making you come here [sitting down again]. Can you ever forgive me?

MRS GEORGE You couldn't know that it was only the coal merchant's wife, could you?

THE BISHOP Why do you say only the coal merchant's wife?

MRS GEORGE Many people would laugh at it

THE BISHOP Poor people! It's so hard to know the right place to laugh, isn't it?

MRS GEORGE I didn't mean to make you think the letters were from a fine lady. I wrote on cheap paper, and I never could spell

THE BISHOP Neither could I. So that told me nothing

MRS GEORGE One thing I should like you to know

THE BISHOP Yes?

MRS GEORGE We didn't cheat your friend. They were as good as we could do at thirteen shillings a ton

THE BISHOP That's important. Thank you for telling me

MRS GEORGE I have something else to say, but will you please ask somebody to come and stay here while we talk? [He rises and turns to the study door] Not a woman, if you don't mind [Henods understandingly and passes on] Not a man either

THE BISHOP [stopping] Not a man and not a woman! We have no children left, Mrs Collins. They are all grown up and married

MRS GEORGE That other clergyman would do

THE BISHOP What! The sexton?

MRS GEORGE Yes. He didn't mind my calling him that, did he? It was only my ignorance

THE BISHOP, Not at all [He opens the study door and calls] Soames! Anthony! [To Mrs George] Call him. Father, he likes it [Soames appears at the study door] Mrs Collins wishes you to join us, Anthony

Soames looks puzzled

MRS GEORGE You don't mind, Dad, do you? [As this greeting visibly gives him a shock that hardly bears out the Bishop's advice, she says anxiously] That was what you told me to call him, wasn't it?

SOAMES I am called Father Anthony, Mrs Collins. But it does not matter what you call me [He comes in, and walks past her to the hearth]

THE BISHOP Mrs Collins has something to say to me that she wants you to hear

SOAMES I am listening

THE BISHOP [going back to his seat next her]

Now

MRS GEORGE My lord you should never have married

SOAMES This woman is inspired Listen to her, my lord

THE BISHOP [taken aback by the directness of the attack] I married because I was so much in love with Alice that all the difficulties and doubts and dangers of marriage seemed to me the merest moonshine

MRS GEORGE Yes it's mean to let poor young things in for so much while they're in that state Would you marry now that you know better if you were a widower?

THE BISHOP I'm old now It wouldn't matter.

MRS GEORGE But would you if it did matter?

THE BISHOP. I think I should marry again lest anyone should imagine I had found marriage unhappy with Alice SOAMES [sternly] Are you fonder of your wife than of your salvation?

THE BISHOP Oh, very much When you meet a man who is very particular about his salvation, look out for a woman who is very particular about her character, and marry them to one another they'll make a perfect pair I advise you to fall in love, Anthony

SOAMES [with horror] I'll

THE BISHOP Yes you! think of what it would do for you For her sake you would come to care unselfishly and diligently for money instead of being selfishly and lazily indifferent to it For her sake you would come to care in the same way for preferment For her sake you would come to care for your health, your appearance, the good opinion of your fellow creatures, and all the really important things that make men work and strive instead of mooning and nursing their salvation

SOAMES In one word, for the sake of one deadly sin I should come to care for all the others

THE BISHOP Saint Anthony! Tempt him, Mrs Collins tempt him

MRS GEORGE [rising and looking strangely before her] Take care, my lord you still have the power to make me obey your commands, And do you Mr Sexton, beware of an empty heart.

THE BISHOP Yes Nature abhors a vacuum, Anthony I would not dare go about with an empty heart why, the first girl I met would fly into it by mere atmospheric pressure

Alice keeps them out now Mrs Collins knows

MRS GEORGE [a faint convulsion passing like a wave over her] I know more than either of you One of you has not yet exhausted his first love the other has not yet reached it But I—I—[she reels and is again convulsed]

THE BISHOP [saving her from falling] What's the matter? Are you ill, Mrs Collins? [He gets her back into her chair] Soames there's a glass of water in the study—quick [Soames hurries to the study door]

MRS GEORGE No [Soames stops] Don't call Don't bring anyone Can't you hear anything?

THE BISHOP Nothing unusual [He sits by her, watching her with intense surprise and interest]

MRS GEORGE No music?

SOAMES No [He steals to the end of the table and sits on her right, equally interested]

MRS GEORGE Do you see nothing—not a great light?

THE BISHOP We are still walking in darkness

MRS GEORGE Put your hand on my forehead the hand with the ring [He does so Her eyes close]

SOAMES [inspired to prophesy] There was a certain woman, the wife of a coal merchant, which had been a great sinner—

The Bishop startled takes his hand away Mrs George's eyes open vividly as she interrupts Soames

MRS GEORGE You prophesy falsely, Anthony never in all my life have I done anything that was not ordained for me [More quietly] I've been myself I've not been afraid of myself And at last I have escaped from myself, and am become a voice for them that are afraid to speak and a cry for the hearts that break in silence

SOAMES [whispering] Is she inspired?

THE BISHOP Marvellous Hush

MRS GEORGE I have earned the right to speak I have dared I have gone through I have not fallen withered in the fire I have come at last out beyond, to the back of God-speed

THE BISHOP And what do you see there, at the back of Godspeed?

SOAMES [hungrily] Give us your message

MRS GEORGE [with intensely sad reproach] When you loved me I gave you the whole sun and stars to play with I gave you eternity in a single moment, strength of the mountains in one clasp of your arms, and the volume of all the seas in one impulse of your souls. A moment only, but was it not enough? Were you not paid then for all the rest of your struggle on earth? Must I mend your clothes and sweep your floors as well? Was it not enough? I paid the price without bargaining. I bore the children without flinching, was that a reason for heaping fresh burdens on me? I carried the child in my arms, must I carry the father too? When I opened the gates of paradise, were you blind? was it nothing to you? When all the stars sang in your ears and all the winds swept you into the heart of heaven, were you deaf? were you dull? was I no more to you than a bone to a dog? Was it not enough? We spent eternity together, and you ask me for a little lifetime more. We possessed all the universe together, and you ask me to give you my scanty wages as well. I have given you the greatest of all things, and you ask me to give you little things. I gave you your own soul, you ask me for my body as a plaything. Was it not enough? Was it not enough?

SOAMES Do you understand this, my lord?

THE BISHOP I have that advantage over you, Anthony, thanks to Alice [He takes Mrs George's hand]. Your hand is very cold. Can you come down to earth? Do you remember who I am, and who you are?

MRS GEORGE It was enough for me. I did not ask to meet you—to touch you—[the Bishop quickly releases her hand]. When you spoke to my soul years ago from your pulpit, you opened the doors of my salvation to me, and now they stand open for ever. It was enough. I have asked you for nothing since. I ask you for nothing now. I have lived, it is enough. I have had my wages, and I am ready for my work. I thank you and bless you and leave you. You are happier in that than I am, for when I do for men what you did for me, I have no thanks, and no blessing. I am their prey, and there is no rest from their loving and no mercy from their loathing.

THE BISHOP You must take us as we are, Mrs Collins.

SOAMES No. Take us as we are capable of becoming.

MRS GEORGE Take me as I am. I ask no more. [She turns her head to the study door and cries]. Yes, come in, come in.

Hotchkiss comes softly in from the study

HOTCHKISS Will you be so kind as to tell me whether I am dreaming? In there I have heard Mrs Collins saying the strangest things, and not a syllable from you two.

SOAMES My lord, is this possession by the devil?

THE BISHOP Or the ecstasy of a saint?

HOTCHKISS Or the convulsion of the pythoness on the tripod?

THE BISHOP May not the three be one?

MRS GEORGE [troubled] You are paining and tiring me with idle questions. You are dragging me back to myself. You are tormenting me with your evil dreams of saints and devils and—what was it?—[striving to fathom it] the pythoness—the pythoness—[giving it up]. I don't understand. I am a woman, a human creature like yourselves. Will you not take me as I am?

SOAMES Yes, but shall we take you and burn you?

THE BISHOP Or take you and canonize you?

HOTCHKISS [gaily] Or take you as a matter of course? [Swiftly to the Bishop] We must get her out of this, it's dangerous. [Aloud to her] May I suggest that you shall be Anthony's devil and the Bishop's saint and my adored Polly? [Slipping behind her, he picks up her hand from her lap and kisses it over her shoulder].

MRS GEORGE [waking] What was that? Who kissed my hand? [To the Bishop, eagerly] Was it you? [He shakes his head. She is mortified]. I beg your pardon.

THE BISHOP Not at all. I'm not repudiating that honor. Allow me. [he kisses her hand].

MRS GEORGE Thank you for that. It was not the sexton, was it?

SOAMES I!

HOTCHKISS It was I, Polly, your ever faithful.

MRS GEORGE [turning and seeing him] Let me catch you doing it again, that's all. How do you come there? I sent you away. [With great energy, becoming quite herself again]. What the goodness gracious has been happening?

HOTCHKISS As far as I can make out, you have been having a very charming and eloquent sort of fit.

MRS GEORGE [delighted] What! My second sight! [To the Bishop] Oh, how I have prayed that it might come to me if ever I met you! And now it has come. How stunning! You may believe every word I said. I can't remember it now, but it was something that was just bursting to be said, and so it laid hold of me and said itself. That's how it is, you see.

Edith and Cecil Sykes come in through the tower She has her hat on Leo follows They have evidently been out together Sykes, with an unnatural air, half foolish, half rakish, as if he had lost all his self-respect and were determined not to let it prey on his spirits, throws himself into a chair at the end of the table near the hearth and thrusts his hands into his pockets, like Hogarth's Rake, without waiting for Edith to sit down, She sits in the railed chair Leo takes the chair nearest the tower on the long side of the table, brooding, with closed lips

THE BISHOP Have you been out, my dear?

EDITH Yes

THE BISHOP With Cecil?

EDITH Yes

THE BISHOP Have you come to an understanding?

No reply Blank silence

SYKES You had better tell them, Edie

EDITH Tell them yourself

The General comes in from the garden

THE GENERAL [coming forward to the table] Can anybody oblige me with some tobacco? I've finished mine, and my nerves are still far from settled

THE BISHOP Wait a moment, Boyer Cecil has something important to tell us

SYKES We've done it That's all

HOTCHKISS Done what, Cecil?

SYKES Well, what do you suppose?

EDITH Got married, of course

THE GENERAL Married! Who gave you away?

SYKES [jerking his head towards the tower] This gentleman did [Seeing that they do not understand, he looks round and sees that there is no one there] Oh! I thought he came in with us He's gone downstairs, I suppose The Beadle

THE GENERAL The Beadle! What the devil did he do that for?

SYKES Oh, I don't know I didn't make any bargain with him [To Mrs George] How much ought I to give him, Mrs Collins?

MRS GEORGE Five shillings [To the Bishop] I want to rest for a moment there! in your study I saw it here [she touches her forehead]

THE BISHOP [opening the study door for her] By all means Turn my brother out if he disturbs you Soames bring the letters out here

SYKES He won't be offended at my offering it, will he?

MRS GEORGE Not he! He touches children with the mace to cure them of ringworm for fourpence apiece [She goes into the study Soames follows her]

THE GENERAL Well, Edith, I'm a little disappointed, I must say However, I'm glad it was done by somebody in a public uniform

Mrs Bridgenorth and Lesbia come in through the tower Mrs Bridgenorth makes for the Bishop He goes to her, and they meet near the oak chest Lesbia comes between Sykes and Edith

THE BISHOP Alice, my love, they're married

MRS BRIDGENORTH [placidly] Oh, well, that's all right Better tell Collins

Soames comes back from the study with his writing materials He seats himself at the nearest end of the table and goes on with his work Hotchkiss sits down in the next chair round the table corner, with his back to him

LESBIA You have both given in, have you?

EDITH Not at all We have provided for everything

SOAMES How?

EDITH Before going to the church, we went to the office of that insurance company—what's its name, Cecil?

SYKES The British Family Insurance Corporation It insures you against poor relations and all sorts of family contingencies

EDITH It has consented to insure Cecil against libel actions brought against him on my account It will give us specially low terms because I am a Bishop's daughter

SYKES And I have given Edie my solemn word that if I ever commit a crime I'll knock her down before a witness and go off to Brighton with another lady

LESBIA That's what you call providing for everything! [She goes to the middle of the table on the garden side and sits down]

LEO Do make him see that there are no worms before he knocks you down, Edith Wheres Rejgy?

REGINALD [coming in from the study] Here Whats the matter?

LEO [springing up and flouncing round to him] Whats the matter! You may well ask While Edie and Cecil were at the insurance office I took a taxi and went off to your lodgings, and a nice mess I found everything in Your clothes are in a disgraceful state Your liverpad has been made into a kettle-holder You're no more fit to be left to yourself than a one-year-old baby

REGINALD Oh, I can't be bothered looking after things like that I'm all right

LEO You're not you're a disgrace You never consider that you're a disgrace to me you think only of yourself You must come home with me and be taken proper care of my conscience will not allow me to let you live like a pig [She arranges his necktie] You must stay with me until I marry Sinjon, and then we can adopt you or something

REGINALD [breaking loose from her and stamping off past Hotchkiss towards the hearth] No, I'm dashed if I'll be adopted by Sinjon You can adopt him if you like

HOTCHKISS [rising] I suggest that that would really be the better plan, Leo I've a confession to make to you I'm not the man you took me for Your objection to Rejgy was that he had low tastes

REGINALD [turning] Was it? by George!

LEO I said slovenly habits I never thought he had really low tastes until I saw that woman in court How he could have chosen such a creature and let her write to him after—

REGINALD Is this fair? I never—

HOTCHKISS Of course you didn't, Rejgy Don't be silly, Leo It's I who really have low tastes

LEO You!

HOTCHKISS I've fallen in love with a coal merchant's wife I adore her I would rather have one of her boot-laces than a lock of your hair [He folds his arms and stands like a rock]

REGINALD You damned scoundrel, how dare you throw my wife over like that before my face? [He seems on the point of assaulting Hotchkiss when Leo gets between them and draws Reginald away towards the study door]

LEO Don't take any notice of him, Rejgy Go at once and get that odious decree demolished or annulled or whatever it is Tell Sir Gorell Barnes that I have changed my mind [To Hotchkiss] I might have known that you were too clever to be really a gentleman [She takes Reginald away to the oak chest and seats him there He chuckles Hotchkiss resumes his seat, brooding]

THE BISHOP All the problems appear to be solving themselves

LESBIA Except mine

THE GENERAL But, my dear Lesbia, you see what has happened here today [Coming a little nearer and bending his face towards hers] Now I put it to you, does it not shew you the folly of not marrying?

LESBIA No I can't say it does And [rising]

you have been smoking again

THE GENERAL You drive me to it, Lesbia I can't help it

LESBIA [standing behind her chair with her hands on the back of it and looking radiant] Well, I won't scold you today I feel in particularly good humor just now

THE GENERAL May I ask why, Lesbia?

LESBIA [drawing a large breath] To think that after all the dangers of the morning I am still unmarried! still independent! still my own mistress! still a glorious strong-minded old maid of old England!

Soames silently springs up and makes a long stretch from his end of the table to shake her hand across it

THE GENERAL Do you find any real happiness in being your own mistress? Would it not be more generous—would you not be happier as someone else's mistress—

LESBIA Boxer!

THE GENERAL [rising, horrified] No, no, you must know, my dear Lesbia, that I was not using the word in its improper sense I am sometimes unfortunate in my choice of expressions, but you know what I mean I feel sure you would be happier as my wife

LESBIA I daresay I should, in a frosty sort of way But I prefer my dignity and my independence I'm afraid I think this rage for happiness rather vulgar

THE GENERAL Oh, very well, Lesbia I shall not ask you again [He sits down huffily]

LESBIA You will, Boxer, but it will be no use [She also sits down again and puts her hand almost affectionately on his] Some day I hope to make a friend of you, and then we shall get on very nicely

THE GENERAL [starting up again] Ha! I think you are hard, Lesbia I shall make a fool of myself if I remain here Alice I shall go into the garden for a while

COLLINS [appearing in the tower] I think everything is in order now, ma'am

THE GENERAL [going to him] Oh, by the way, could you oblige me—[the rest of the sentence is lost in a whisper]

COLLINS Certainly, General [He takes out a tobacco pouch and hands it to the General, who takes it and goes into the garden]

LESBIA I don't believe there's a man in England who really and truly loves his wife as much as he loves his pipe

THE BISHOP By the way, what has happened to the wedding party?

SYKES I dont know There wasnt a soul in the church when we were married except the pew opener and the curate who did the job

EDITH They had all gone home

MRS BRIDGENORTH But the bridesmaids?

COLLINS Me and the beadle have been all over the place in a couple of taves, maam, and weve collected them all They were a good deal disappointed on account of their dresses, and thought it all rather irregular, but theyve agreed to come to the breakfast The truth is, theyre wild with curiosity to know how it all happened The organist held on until the organ was nigh worn out, and himself worse than the organ He asked me particularly to tell you, my lord, that he held back Mendelssohn til the very last, but when that was gone he thought he might as well go too So he played God Save The King and cleared out the church He's coming to the breakfast to explain

LEO Please remember, Collins, that there is no truth whatever in the rumor that I am separated from my husband, or that there is, or ever has been, anything between me and Mr Hotchkiss

COLLINS Bless you, maam! one could always see that [To Mrs Bridgenorth] Will you receive here or in the hall, maam?

MRS BRIDGENORTH In the hall Alfred you and Boxer must go there and be ready to keep the first arrivals talking til we come We have to dress Edith Come, Lesbia come, Leo we must all help Now, Edith [Lesbia, Leo, and Edith go out through the tower] Collins we shall want you when Miss Edith's dressed to look over her veil and things and see that theyre all right

COLLINS Yes, maam Anything you would like mentioned about Miss Lesbia, maam?

MRS BRIDGENORTH No She wont have the General I think you may take that as final

COLLINS What a pity, maam! A fine lady wasted, maam [They shake their heads sadly, and Mrs Bridgenorth goes out through the tower]

THE BISHOP I'm going to the hall, Collins, to receive Rejyy go and tell Boxer, and come both of you to help with the small talk Come, Cecil [He goes out through the tower, followed by Sykes]

REGINALD [to Hotchkiss] Youve always talked a precious lot about behaving like a gentleman Well, if you think youve behaved like a gentleman to Leo, youre mistaken And I shall have to take her part, remember that

HOTCHKISS I understand Your doors are closed to me

REGINALD [quckly] Oh no Dont be hasty I think I should like you to drop in after a while, you know She gets so cross and upset when theres nobody to liven up the house a bit

HOTCHKISS I'll do my best

REGINALD [relieved] Righto You dont mind, old chap, do you?

HOTCHKISS It's Fate Ive touched coal, and my hands are black, but theyre clean So long, Rejyy [They shake hands, and Reginald goes into the garden to collect Boxer]

COLLINS Excuse me, sir, but do you stay to breakfast? Your name is on one of the covers, and I should like to change it if youre not remaining

HOTCHKISS How do I know? Is my destiny any longer in my own hands? Go ask SHE WHO MUST BE OBEYED

COLLINS [awestruck] Has Mrs George taken a fancy to you, sir?

HOTCHKISS Would she had! Worse, man, worse Ive taken a fancy to Mrs George

COLLINS Dont despair, sir if George likes your conversation youll find their house a very pleasant one lvelier than Mr Reginald's was, I daresay

HOTCHKISS [calling] Polly

COLLINS [promptly] Oh, if it's come to Polly already, sir, I should say you were all right

Mrs George appears at the door of the study

HOTCHKISS Your brother-in-law wishes to know whether I'm to stay for the wedding breakfast Tell him

MRS GEORGE He stays, Bill, if he chooses to behave himself

HOTCHKISS [to Collins] May I, as a friend of the family, have the privilege of calling you Bill?

COLLINS With pleasure, sir, I'm sure, sir

HOTCHKISS My own pet name in the bosom of my family is Sonny

MRS GEORGE Why didnt you tell me that before? Sonny is just the name I wanted for you [She pats his cheek familiarly he rises abruptly and goes to the hearth, where he throws himself moodily into the railed chair] Bill I'm not going into the hall until there are enough people there to make a proper little court for me Send the Beadle for me when you think it looks good enough

COLLINS Right, maam [He goes out through the tower]

Mrs George, left alone with Hotchkiss and Soames, suddenly puts her hands on Soames's shoulders and bends over him]

MRS GEORGE The Bishop said I was to tempt you, Anthony

SOAMES [without looking round] Woman go away

MRS GEORGE Anthony

"When other lips and other hearts

Their tale of love shall tell

HOTCHKISS [sardonically]

In language whose excess imparts

The power they feel so well

MRS GEORGE

Though hollow hearts may wear a mask

Twould break your own to see,

In such a moment I but ask

That you'll remember me "

And you will, Anthony I shall put my spell on you

SOAMES Do you think that a man who has sung the Magnificat and adored the Queen of Heaven has any ears for such trash as that or any eyes for such trash as you—saving your poor little soul's presence Go home to your duties, woman

MRS GEORGE [highly approving his fortune] Anthony I adopt you as my father That's the talk! Give me a man whose whole life doesn't hang on some scrubby woman in the next street, and I'll never let him go [she slaps him heartily on the back]

SOAMES That's enough You have another man to talk to I'm busy

MRS GEORGE [leaving Soames and going a step or two nearer Hotchkiss] Why aren't you like him, Sonny? Why do you hang on to a scrubby woman in the next street?

HOTCHKISS [thoughtfully] I must apologize to Billiter

MRS GEORGE Who is Billiter?

HOTCHKISS A man who eats rice pudding with a spoon I've been eating rice pudding with a spoon ever since I saw you first [He rises] We all eat our rice pudding with a spoon, don't we, Soames?

SOAMES We are members of one another There is no need to refer to me In the first place, I'm busy in the second, you'll find it all in the Church Catechism, which contains most of the new discoveries with which the age is bursting Of course you should apologize to Billiter He is your equal He will go to the same heaven if he behaves himself and to the same hell if he doesn't

MRS GEORGE [sitting down] And so will my husband the coal merchant

HOTCHKISS If I were your husband's superior here I should be his superior in heaven or hell equality lies deeper than that The coal merchant and I are in love with the same woman That settles the question for me for ever [He prowls across the kitchen to the garden door, deep in thought]

SOAMES Psha!

MRS GEORGE You don't believe in women, do you, Anthony? He might as well say that he and George both like fried fish

HOTCHKISS I do not like fried fish Don't be low, Polly

SOAMES Woman do not presume to accuse me of unbelief And do you, Hotchkiss, not despise this woman's soul because she speaks of fried fish Some of the victims of the Miraculous Draught of Fishes were fried And I eat fried fish every Friday and like it You are as ingrained a snob as ever

HOTCHKISS [impatiently] My dear Anthony I find you merely ridiculous as a preacher, because you keep referring me to places and documents and alleged occurrences in which, as a matter of fact, I don't believe I don't believe in anything but my own will and my own pride and honor Your fishes and your catechisms and all the rest of it make a charming poem which you call your faith It fits you to perfection, but it doesn't fit me I happen, like Napoleon, to prefer Mahometanism [Mrs George, associating Mahometanism with polygamy, looks at him with quick suspicion] I believe the whole British Empire will adopt a reformed Mahometanism before the end of the century The character of Mahomet is congenial to me I admire him, and share his views of life to a considerable extent That beats you, you see, Soames Religion is a great force the only real motive force in the world, but what you fellows don't understand is that you must get at a man through his own religion and not through yours Instead of facing that fact, you persist in trying to convert all men to your own little sect, so that you can use it against them afterwards You are all missionaries and proselytizers trying to uproot the native religion from your neighbor's flowerbeds and plant your own in its place You would rather let a child perish in ignorance than have it taught by a rival sectary You talk to me of the quintessential equality of coal merchants and British officers, and yet you cant see the quintessential equality of all the religions Who are you, anyhow, that you should know better than Mahomet or Confucius or any of the other Johnnies who have been on this job since the world existed?

MRS GEORGE [admiring his eloquence] George will like you, Sonny You should hear him talking about the Church

SOAMES Very well, then go to your doom, both of you There is only one religion for me that which my soul knows to be true, but even irreligion has one tenet, and that is the sacredness of marriage You two are on the verge of deadly sin Do you deny that?

HOTCHKISS You forget, Anthony the marriage itself is the deadly sin according to you

SOAMES The question is not now what I believe, but what you believe Take the vows with me, and give up that woman if you have the strength and the light But if you are still in the grip of this world, at least respect its institutions Do you believe in marriage or do you not?

HOTCHKISS My soul is utterly free from any such superstition I solemnly declare that between this woman, as you impolitely call her, and me, I see no barrier that my conscience bids me respect I loathe the whole marriage morality of the middle classes with all my instincts If I were an eighteenth century marquis I could not feel more free with regard to a Parisian citizen's wife than I do with regard to Polly I despise all this domestic purity business as the lowest depth of narrow, selfish, sensual, wife-grabbing vulgarity

MRS GEORGE [rising promptly] Oh, indeed They youre not coming home with me, young man I'm sorry for it's refreshing to have met once in my life a man who wasnt frightened by my wedding ring, but I'm looking out for a friend and not for a French marquis, so youre not coming home with me

HOTCHKISS [inexorably] Yes, I am

MRS GEORGE No

HOTCHKISS Yes Think again You know your set pretty well, I suppose, your petty tradesmen's set You know all its scandals and hypocrisies, its jealousies and squabbles, its hundreds of divorce cases that never come into court, as well as its tens that do

MRS GEORGE We're not angels I know a few scandals, but most of us are too dull to be anything but good.

HOTCHKISS Then you must have noticed that just as all murderers judging by their edifying remarks on the scaffold, seem to be devout Christians, so all libertines, both male and female, are invariably people overflowing with domestic sentimentality and professions of respect for the conventions they violate in secret

MRS GEORGE Well, you dont expect them to give themselves away, do you?

HOTCHKISS They are people of sentiment, not of honor Now, I'm not a man of sentiment, but a man of honor I know well what will happen to me when once I cross the threshold of your husband's house and break bread with him This marriage bond which I despise will bind me as it never seems to bind the people who believe in it, and whose chief amusement it is to go to the theatres where it is laughed at Soames youre a Communist, arnt you?

SOAMES I am a Christian That obliges me to be a Communist

HOTCHKISS And you believe that many of our landed estates were stolen from the Church by Henry the eighth?

SOAMES I do not merely believe that I know it as a lawyer

HOTCHKISS Would you steal a turnip from one of the landlords of those stolen lands?

SOAMES [fencing with the question] They have no right to their lands

HOTCHKISS Thats not what I ask you Would you steal a turnip from one of the fields they have no right to?

SOAMES I do not like turnips

HOTCHKISS As you are a lawyer, answer me

SOAMES I admit that I should probably not do so I should perhaps be wrong not to steal the turnip I cant defend my reluctance to do so, but I think I should not do so I know I should not do so

HOTCHKISS Neither shall I be able to steal George's wife I have stretched out my hand for that forbidden fruit before, and I know that my hand will always come back empty To disbelieve in marriage is easy to love a married woman is easy but to betray a comrade, to be disloyal to a host, to break the covenant of bread and salt, is impossible You may take me home with you, Polly you have nothing to fear

MRS GEORGE And nothing to hope?

HOTCHKISS Since you put it in that more than kind way, Polly, absolutely nothing

MRS GEORGE Hm! Like most men, you think you know everything a woman wants, dont you? But the thing one wants most has nothing to do with marriage at all Perhaps Anthony here has a glimmering of it Eh, Anthony?

SOAMES Christian fellowship?

MRS GEORGE You call it that, do you?

SOAMES What do you call it?

COLLINS [appearing in the tower with the Beadle] Now, Polly, the hall's full, and theyre waiting for you

THE BEADLE Make way there, gentlemen, please Way for the worshipful the Mayoress If you please, my lords and gentlemen By your leave, ladies and gentlemen way for the Mayoress

Mrs George takes Hotchkiss's arm, and goes out, preceded by the Beadle

Soames resumes his writing tranquilly

THE END

THE SHEWING-UP OF BLANCO POSNET

A SERMON IN CRUDE MELODRAMA (1909)

A number of women are sitting together in a big room not unlike an old English tithe barn in its timbered construction, but with windows high up next the roof. It is furnished as a courthouse, with the floor raised next the walls, and on this raised flooring a seat for the Sheriff, a rough jury box on his right, and a bar to put prisoners to on his left. In the well in the middle is a table with benches round it. A few other benches are in disorder round the room. The autumn sun is shining warmly through the windows and the open door. The women, whose dress and speech are those of pioneers of civilization in a territory of the United States of America, are seated round the table and on the benches, shucking nuts. The conversation is at its height.

BABSY [a bumptious young slattern, with some good looks] I say that a man that would steal a horse would do anything

LOTTIE [a sentimental girl, neat and clean] Well, I never should look at it in that way I do think killing a man is worse any day than stealing a horse

HANNAH [elderly and wise] I dont say it's right to kill a man. In a place like this, where every man has to have a revolver, and where theres so much to try people's tempers, the men get to be a deal too free with one another in the way of shooting. God knows it's hard enough to have to bring a boy into the world and nurse him up to be a man only to have him brought home to you on a shutter, perhaps for nothing, or only just to shew that the man that killed him wasnt afraid of him. But men are like children when they get a gun in their hands theyre not content til theyve used it on somebody

JESSIE [a good-natured but sharp-tongued, hoity-toity young woman, Babsy's rival in good looks and her superior in tidiness] They shoot for the love of it. Look at them at a lynching. Theyre not content to hang the man, but directly the poor creature is swung up they all shoot him full of holes, wasting their cartridges that cost solid money, and pretending they do it in horror of his wickedness, though half of them would have a rope round their own necks if all they did was known. Let alone the mess it makes

LOTTIE I wish we could get more civilized. I dont like all this lynching and shooting. I dont believe any of us like it, if the truth were known

BABSY Our Sheriff is a real strong man. You want a strong man for a rough lot like our people here. He aint afraid to shoot and he aint afraid to hang. Lueky for us quiet ones, too

JESSIE Oh, dont talk to me. I know what men are. Of course he aint afraid to shoot and he aint afraid to hang. Wheres the risk in that with the law on his side and the whole crowd at his back longing for the lynching as if it was a spree? Would one of them own to it or let him own to it if they lynched the wrong man? Not them. What they call justice in this place is nothing but a breaking out of the devil thats in all of us. What I want to see is a Sheriff that ant afraid not to shoot and not to hang

EMMA [a sneak who sides with Babsy or Jessie according to the fortune of war] Well, I must say it does sicken me to see Sheriff Kemp putting down his foot, as he calls it Why dont he put it down on his wife? She wants it worse than half the men he lynches He and his Vigilance Committee, indeed!

BABSY [incensed] Oh, well! if people are going to take the part of horse-thieves against the Sheriff—?

JESSIE Who's taking the part of horse-thieves against the Sheriff?

BABSY You are Wattle your own horse is stolen and youll know better I had an uncle that died of thirst in the sage brush because a negro stole his horse But they caught him and burned him, and serve him right, too

EMMA I have known a chuld that was born crooked because its mother had to do a horse's work that was stolen

BABSY There! You hear that? I say stealing a horse is ten times worse than killing a man And if the Vigilance Committee ever gets hold of you, youd better have killed twenty men than as much as stole a saddle or bridle, much less a horse

Elder Daniels comes in

ELDER DANIELS Sorry to disturb you, ladies, but the Vigilance Committee has taken a prisoner and they want the room to try him in

JESSIE But they cant try him til Sheriff Kemp comes back from the wharf

ELDER DANIELS Yes, but we have to keep the prisoner here til he comes BABSY. What do you want to put him here for? Cant you tie him up in the Sheriff's stable?

ELDER DANIELS He has a soul to be saved, almost like the rest of us I am bound to try to put some religion into him before he goes into his Maker's presence after the trial

HANNAH What has he done Mr Daniels?

ELDER DANIELS Stole a horse

BABSY And are we to be turned out of the town hall for a horse-thief? Aint a stable good enough for his religion?

ELDER DANIELS It may be good enough for his Babsy, but, by your leave, it is not good enough for mine While I am Elder here, I shall umbly endeavor to keep up the dignity of Him I serve to the best of my small ability So I must ask you to be good enough to clear out

Allow me [He takes the sack of husks and puts it out of the way against the panels of the jury box]

THE WOMEN [murmuring] Thats always the way Just as we'd settled down to work. What harm are we doing? Well it is tresome Let them finish the job themselves Oh dear, oh dear! We cant have a minute to ourselves Shoving us out like that!

HANNAH Whose horse was it, Mr Daniels?

ELDER DANIELS [returning to move the other sack] I am sorry to say it was the Sheriff's horse—the one he loaned to young Strapper Strapper loaned it to me; and the thief stole it, thinking it was mine If it had been mine, I'd have forgiven him cheerfully I'm sure I hoped he would get away, for he had two hours start of the Vigilance Committee But they caught him [He disposes of the other sack also]

JESSIE It cant have been much of a horse if they caught him with two hours start

ELDER DANIELS [coming back to the centre of the group] The strange thing is that he wasnt on the horse when they took him He was walking, and of course he denies that he ever had the horse The Sheriff's brother wanted to tie him up and lash him til he confessed what he'd done with it, but I couldnt allow that it's not the law

BABSY Law! What right has a horse-thief to any law? Law is thrown away on a brute like that

ELDER DANIELS Dont say that, Babsy No man should be made to confess by cruelty until religion has been tried and failed Please God I'll get the whereabouts of the horse from him if youll be so good as to clear out from this [Disturbance] They are bringing him in Now ladies! please, please

They rise reluctantly Hannah, Jessie, and Lotie retreat to the Sheriff's bench, shepherded by Daniels, but the other women crowd forward behind Babsy and Emma to see the prisoner

Blanco Posnet is brought in by Strapper Kemp, the Sheriff's brother, and a cross-eyed man called Squanty Others follow Blanco is evidently a blackguard It would be necessary to clean him to make a close guess at his age, but he is under forty, and an upturned, red moustache, and the arrangement of his hair in a crest on his brow, proclaim the dandy in spite of his intense disreputableness He carries his head high, and has a fairly resolute mouth, though the fire of incipient delirium tremens is in his eye

His arms are bound with a rope with a long end, which Squinty holds. They release him when he enters, and he stretches himself and lounges across the courthouse in front of the women. Strapper and the men remain between him and the door.

BABSY [spitting at him as he passes her] Horse-thief! horse-thief!

OTHERS You will hang for it, do you hear? And serve you right. Serve you right. That will teach you. I wouldn't wait to try you. Lynch him straight off, the varmint. Yes, yes. Tell the boys. Lynch him.

BLANCO [mocking] "Angels ever bright and fair—"

BABSY You call me an angel, and I'll smack your dirty face for you.

BLANCO "Take, oh take me to your care."

EMMA There won't be any angels where you're going to.

OTHERS Aha! Devils, more likely. And too good company for a horse-thief.

ALL Horse-thief! Horse-thief! Horse-thief!

BLANCO Do women make the law here, or men? Drive these heifers out.

THE WOMEN Oh! [They rush at him, vituperating, screaming passionately, tearing at him. Lottie puts her fingers in her ears and runs out. Hannah follows, shaking her head. Blanco is thrown down.] Oh, did you hear what he called us? You foul-mouthed brute! You har! How dare you put such a name to a decent woman? Let me get at him. You coward! Oh, he struck me. Did you see that? Lynch him! Pete, will you stand by and hear me called names by a skunk like that? Burn him. Burn him! That's what I'd do with him. Aye, burn him!

THE MEN [pulling the women away from Blanco, and getting them out partly by violence and partly by coaxing] Here! come out of this. Let him alone. Clear the courthouse. Come on now. Out with you. Now, Sally, out you go. Let go my hair, or I'll twist your arm out. Ah, would you? Now, then, get along. You know you must go. What's the use of scratching like that? Now, ladies, ladies, ladies. How would you like it if you were going to be hanged?

At last the women are pushed out, leaving Elder Daniels, the Sheriff's brother Strapper Kemp, and a few others with Blanco. Strapper is a lad just turning into a man, strong, selfish, sully, and determined.

BLANCO [sitting up and tidying himself]—

Oh woman, in our hours of ease,

Uncertain, coy, and hard to please—

Is my face scratched? I can feel their damned claws all over me still. Am I bleeding? [He sits on the nearest bench.]

ELDER DANIELS Nothing to hurt. They've drawn a drop or two under your left eye.

STRAPPER Lucky for you to have an eye left in your head.

BLANCO [wiping the blood off]—

When pain and anguish wring the brow,

A ministering angel thou.

Go out to them, Strapper Kemp, and tell them about your big brother's little horse that some wicked man stole. Go and cry in your mammy's lap.

STRAPPER [furious] You jounce me any more about that horse, Blanco Posnet, and I'll—I'll—

BLANCO You'll scratch my face, won't you? Yah! Your brother's the Sheriff, ain't he?

STRAPPER Yes, he is. He hangs horse-thieves.

BLANCO [with calm conviction] He's a rotten Sheriff. Oh, a rotten Sheriff. If he did his first duty he'd hang himself. This is a rotten town. Your fathers came here on a false alarm of gold-digging, and when the gold didn't pan out, they lived by licking their young into habits of honest industry.

STRAPPER If I hadn't promised Elder Daniels here to give him a chance to keep you out of Hell, I'd take the job of twisting your neck off the hands of the Vigilance Committee.

BLANCO [with infinite scorn] You and your rotten Elder, and your rotten Vigilance Committee!

STRAPPER They're sound enough to hang a horse-thief, anyhow.

BLANCO Any fool can hang the wisest man in the country. Nothing he likes better. But you can't hang me.

STRAPPER Can't we?

BLANCO No, you can't. I left the town this morning before sunrise, because it's a rotten town, and I couldn't bear to see it in the light. Your brother's horse did the same, as any sensible horse would. Instead of going to look for the horse, you went looking for me. That was a rotten thing to do, because the horse belonged to your brother—or to the man he stole it from—and I don't belong to him. Well, you found me, but you didn't find the horse. If I had took the horse, I'd have been on the horse Would I have taken all that time to get to where I did if I'd a horse to carry me?

STRAPPER I dont believe you started not for two hours after you say you did.

BLANCO Who cares what you believe or dont believe? Is a man worth six of you to be hanged because youve lost your big brother's horse, and youll want to kill somebody to relieve your rotten feelings when he licks you for it? Not likely Til you can find a witness that saw me with that horse you cant touch me, and you know it

STRAPPER Is that the law, Elder?

ELDER DANIELS The Sheriff knows the law I wouldnt say for sure, but I think it would be more seemly to have a witness Go and round one up, Strapper, and leave me here alone to wrestle with his poor blinded soul

STRAPPER I'll get a witness all right enough I know the road he took, and I'll ask at every house within sight of it for a mile out Come, boys

Strapper goes out with the others, leaving Blanco and Elder Daniels together Blanco rises and strolls over to the Elder, surveying him with extreme disparagement

BLANCO Well, brother? Well, Boozy Posnet, alias Elder Daniels? Well, thief? Well, drunkard?

ELDER DANIELS It's no good, Blanco Theyll never believe we're brothers

BLANCO Never fear Do you suppose I want to claim you? Do you suppose I'm proud of you? You're a rotten brother, Boozy Posnet All you ever did when I owned you was to borrow money from me to get drunk with Now you lend money and sell drink to other people I was ashamed of you before, and I'm worse ashamed of you now I wont have you for a brother Heaven gave you to me, but I return the blessing without thanks So be easy I shant blab [He turns his back on him and sits down]

ELDER DANIELS I tell you they wouldnt believe you, so what does it matter to me whether you blab or not? Talk sense, Blanco theres no time for your foolery now, for youll be a dead man an hour after the Sheriff comes back What possessed you to steal that horse?

BLANCO I didnt steal it I distrained on it for what you owed me I thought it was yours I was a fool to think that you owned anything but other people's property You laid your hands on everything father and mother had when they died I never asked you for a fair share I never asked you for all the money I'd lent you from time to time I asked you for mother's old necklace with the hair locket in it You wouldnt give me that you wouldnt give me anything So as you refused me my due I took it, just to give you a lesson

ELDER DANIELS Why didnt you take the necklace if you must steal something? They wouldnt have hanged you for that

BLANCO Perhaps I'd rather be hanged for stealing a horse than let off for a damned piece of sentimentality

ELDER DANIELS Oh, Blanco, Blanco spiritual pride has been your ruin If youd only done like me, youd be a free and respectable man this day instead of laying there with a rope round your neck.

BLANCO [turning on him] Done like you! What do you mean? Drink like you, eh? Well, Ive done some of that lately I see things

ELDER DANIELS Too late, Blanco too late [Convulsively] Oh, why didnt you drink as I used to? Why didnt you drink as I was led to by the Lord for my good, until the time came for me to give it up? It was drink that saved my character when I was a young man, and it was the want of it that spoiled yours Tell me this Did I ever get drunk when I was working?

BLANCO No, but then you never worked when you had money enough to get drunk

ELDER DANIELS That just shews the wisdom of Providence and the Lord's mercy God fulfils himself in many ways ways we little think of when we try to set up our own short-sighted laws against his Word When does the Devil catch hold of a man? Not when he's working and not when he's drunk, but when he's idle and sober. Our own natures tell us to drink when we have nothing else to do Look at you and me! When we'd both earned a pocketful of money, what did we do? Went on the spree, naturally But I was humble minded I did as the rest did I gave my money in at the drink-shop, and I said, "Fire me out when I have drunk it all up" Did you ever see me sober while it lasted?

BLANCO No; and you looked so disgusting that I wonder it didnt set me against drink for the rest of my life

ELDER DANIELS That was your spiritual pride, Blanco You never reflected that when I was drunk I was in a state of innocence Temptations and bad company and evil thoughts passed by me like the summer wind as you might say I was too drunk to notice them When the money was gone, and they fired me out, I was fired out like gold out of the furnace, with my character unspoiled and unspotted, and when I went back to work, the work kept me steady Can you say as much, Blanco? Did your holidays leave your character unspoiled? Oh, no, no It was theatres it was gambling it was evil company it was reading vain romances it was women, Blanco, women it was wrong thoughts and gnawing discontent It ended in your becoming a rambler and a gambler it is going to end this evening on the gallows tree Oh, what a lesson against spiritual pride! Oh, what a— [Blanco throws his hat at him]

BLANCO Stow it, Boozy Sling it Cut it Cheese it Shut up "Shake not the dying sinner's sand"

ELDER DANIELS Aye there you go, with your scraps of lustful poetry But you cant deny what I tell you Why, do you think I would put my soul in peril by selling drink if I thought it did no good, as them silly temperance reformers make out, flying in the face of the natural tastes implanted in us all for a good purpose? Not if I was to starve for it tomorrow But I know better I tell you, Blanco, what keeps America today the purest of the nations is that when she's not working she's too drunk to hear the voice of the tempter

BLANCO Dont deceive yourself, Boozy You sell drink because you make a bigger profit out of it than you can by selling tea And you gave up drink yourself because when you got that fit at Edwardstown the doctor told you youd die the next time, and that frightened you off it

ELDER DANIELS [fervently] Oh thank God selling drink pays me! And thank God He sent me that fit as a warning that my drinking time was past and gone, and that He needed me for another service!

BLANCO Take care, Boozy He hasnt finished with you yet He always has a trick up His sleeve—

ELDER DANIELS Oh, is that the way to speak of the ruler of the universe—the great and almighty God?

BLANCO He's a sly one He's a mean one

He hes low for you He plays cat and mouse with you He lets you run loose until you think youre shut of Him, and then, when you least expect it, He's got you

ELDER DANIELS Speak more respectful, Blanco—more reverent

BLANCO [springing up and coming at him] Reverent! Who taught you your reverent cant? Not your Bible It says He cometh like a thief in the night—aye, like a thief—a horse-thief—

ELDER DANIELS [shocked] Oh!

BLANCO [overbearing him] And it's true Thats how He caught me and put my neck into the halter To spite me because I had no use for Him—because I lived my own life in my own way, and would have no truck with His "Dont do this," and "You mustnt do that," and "Youll go to Hell if you do the other" I gave Him the go-bye and did without Him all these years But He caught me out at last The laugh is with Him as far as hanging me goes [He thrusts his hands into his pockets and lounges moodily away from Daniels, to the table, where he sits facing the jury box]

ELDER DANIELS Dont dare to put your theft on Him, man It was the Devil tempted you to steal the horse

BLANCO Not a bit of it Neither God nor Devil tempted me to take the horse I took it on my own He had a cleverer trick than that ready for me [He takes his hands out of his pockets and clenches his fists] Gosh! When I think that I might have been safe and fifty miles away by now with that horse, and here I am waiting to be hung up and filled with lead! What came to me? What made me such a fool? Thats what I want to know Thats the great secret

ELDER DANIELS [at the opposite side of the table] Blanco the great secret now is, what did you do with the horse?

BLANCO [striking the table with his fist] May my lips be blighted like my soul if ever I tell that to you or any mortal man! They may roast me alive or cut me to ribbons, but Strapper Kemp shall never have the laugh on me over that job Let them hang me Let them shoot So long as they are shooting a man and not a snivelling skunk and softy, I can stand up to them and take all they can give me—game

ELDER DANIELS Dont be headstrong, Blanco Whats the use? [slyly] They might let up on you if you put Strapper in the way of getting his brother's horse back

BLANCO Not they Hanging's too big a treat for them to give up a fair chance I've done it myself I've yelled with the dirtiest of them when a man no worse than myself was swung up I've emptied my revolver into him, and persuaded myself that he deserved it and that I was doing justice with strong stern men Well, my turn's come now Let the men I yelled at and shot at look up out of Hell and see the boys yelling and shooting at me as I swing up

ELDER DANIELS Well, even if you want to be hanged is that any reason why Strapper shouldn't have his horse? I tell you I'm responsible to him for it [Bending over the table and coaxing him] Act like a brother, Blanco tell me what you done with it

BLANCO [shortly, getting up and leaving the table] Never you mind what I done with it I was done out of it let that be enough for you

ELDER DANIELS [following him] Then why don't you put us on to the man that done you out of it?

BLANCO Because he'd be too clever for you, just as he was too clever for me

ELDER DANIELS Make your mind easy about that, Blanco He won't be too clever for the boys and Sheriff Kemp if you put them on his trail

BLANCO Yes, he will It wasn't a man

ELDER DANIELS Then what was it?

BLANCO [pointing upward] Him

ELDER DANIELS Oh what a way to utter His holy name!

BLANCO He done me out of it He meant to pay off old scores by bringing me here He means to win the deal and you can't stop Him Well, He's made a fool of me, but He can't frighten me I'm not going to beg off I'll fight off if I get a chance I'll lie off if they can't get a witness against me But back down I never will, not if all the hosts of heaven come to snivel at me in white surplices and offer me my life in exchange for an umble and a contrite heart

ELDER DANIELS You're not in your right mind, Blanco I'll tell em you're mad I believe they'll let you off on that [He makes for the door]

BLANCO [seizing him, with horror in his eyes] Don't go don't leave me alone do you hear?

ELDER DANIELS Has your conscience brought you to this that you're afraid to be left alone in broad daylight, like a child in the dark

BLANCO I'm afraid of Him and His tricks When I have you to raise the devil in me—when I have people to shew off before and keep me game, I'm all right, but I've lost my nerve for being alone since this morning It's when you're alone that He takes His advantage He might turn my head again He might send people to me—not real people perhaps [Shivering] By God, I don't believe that woman and the child were real I don't I never noticed them til they were at my elbow

ELDER DANIELS What woman and what child? What are you talking about? Have you been drinking too hard?

BLANCO Never you mind You've got to stay with me that's all, or else send someone else—someone rottener than yourself—to keep the devil in me Strapper Kemp will do Or a few of those scratching devils of women

Strapper Kemp comes back

ELDER DANIELS [to Strapper] He's gone off his head

STRAPPER Fov'ing, more likely. [Going past Daniels and talking to Blanco nose to nose] It's no good we hang madmen here, and a good job too!

BLANCO I feel safe with you, Strapper You're one of the rottenest

STRAPPER You know you're done, and that you may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb So talk away I've got my witness, and I'll trouble you not to make a move towards her when she comes in to identify you

BLANCO [retreating in terror] A woman? She ain't real neither is the child

ELDER DANIELS He's raving about a woman and a child I tell you he's gone off his chump

STRAPPER [calling to those without] Shew the lady in there

Feemy Evans comes in She is a young woman of 23 or 24, with impudent manners, battered good looks, and dirty-fine dress

ELDER DANIELS Morning, Feemy

FEEMY Morning, Elder [She passes on and slips her arm familiarly through Strapper's]

STRAPPER Ever see him before, Feemy?

FEEMY That's the little lot that was on your horse this morning, Strapper Not a doubt of it

BLANCO [implacably contemptuous] Go home and wash yourself, you slut

FEEMY [reddening, and disengaging her arm]

from Strapper's] I'm clean enough to hang you, anyway [Going over to him threateningly] You're no true American man, to insult a woman like that BLANCO A woman! Oh Lord! You saw me on a horse, did you?

FEEMY Yes, I did

BLANCO Got up early on purpose to do it, didn't you?

FEEMY. No I didn't I stayed up late on a spree

BLANCO I was on a horse, was I?

FEEMY Yes you were, and if you deny it you're a liar

BLANCO [to Strapper] She saw a man on a horse when she was too drunk to tell which was the man and which was the horse—

FEEMY [breaking in] You lie I wasn't drunk—at least not as drunk as that

BLANCO [ignoring the interruption]—and you found a man without a horse Is a man on a horse the same as a man on foot? Yah! Take your witness away Who's going to believe her? Throw her out on the dump You've got to find that horse before you get a rope round my neck [He turns away from her contemptuously, and sits at the table with his back to the jury box]

FEEMY [following him] I'll hang you, you dirty horse-thief, or not a man in this camp will ever get a word or a look from me again You're just trash that's what you are White trash

BLANCO And what are you, darling? What are you? You're a worse danger to a town like this than ten horse-thieves

FEEMY Mr Kemp will you stand by and hear me insulted in that low way? [To Blanco, spitefully] I'll see you swung up and I'll see you cut down I'll see you high and I'll see you low, as dangerous as I am [He laughs] Oh you needn't try to brazen it out You'll look white enough before the boys are done with you

BLANCO You do me good, Feemy Stay by me to the end, won't you? Hold my hand to the last, and I'll die game [He puts out his hand she strikes savagely at it, but he withdraws it in time and laughs at her discomfiture]

FEEMY You—

ELDER DANIELS Never mind him, Feemy he's not right in his head today [She receives the assurance with contemptuous incredulity, and sits down on the step of the Sheriff's dais]

Sheriff Kemp comes in a stout man, with large flat ears, and a neck thicker than his head

ELDER DANIELS Morning Sheriff

THE SHERIFF Morning, Elder [Passing on] Morning, Strapper [Passing on] Morning, Miss Evans [Stopping between Strapper and Blanco] Is this the prisoner?

BLANCO [rising] That's so Morning, Sheriff

THE SHERIFF Morning You know, I suppose, that if you've stole a horse and the jury find against you, you won't have any time to settle your affairs Consequently, if you feel guilty, you'd better settle 'em now

BLANCO Affairs be damned! I've got none

THE SHERIFF Well, are you in a proper state of mind? Has the Elder talked to you?

BLANCO He has And I say it's against the law It's torture that's what it is

ELDER DANIELS He's not accountable He's out of his mind, Sheriff He's not fit to go into the presence of his Maker

THE SHERIFF You are a merciful man, Elder, but you won't take the boys with you there [To Blanco] If it comes to hanging you, you'd better for your own sake be hanged in a proper state of mind than in an improper one But it won't make any difference to us make no mistake about that

BLANCO Lord keep me wicked till I die! Now I've said my little prayer I'm ready Not that I'm guilty, mind you, but this is a rotten town, dead certain to do the wrong thing

THE SHERIFF You won't be asked to live long in it, I guess [To Strapper] Got the witness all right, Strapper?

STRAPPER Yes, got everything

BLANCO Except the horse

THE SHERIFF What's that? Aint you got the horse?

STRAPPER No. He traded it before we overtook him, I guess But Feemy saw him on it

FEEMY She did

STRAPPER Shall I call in the boys?

BLANCO Just a moment, Sheriff A good appearance is everything in a low-class place like this [He takes out a pocket comb and mirror, and retires towards the dais to arrange his hair]

ELDER DANIELS Oh, think of your immortal soul, man, not of your foolish face

BLANCO I can't change my soul, Elder it changes me—sometimes Feemy I'm too pale Let me rub my cheek against yours, darling

FEEMY You lie my color's my own, such as it is And a pretty color you'll be when you're hung white and shot red

BLANCO Aint she spiteful, Sheriff?

THE SHERIFF Time's wasted on you [To Strapper] Go and see if the boys are ready Some of them were short of cartridges, and went down to the store to buy them They may as well have their fun, and it'll be shorter for him

STRAPPER Young Jack has brought a boxful up They're all ready

THE SHERIFF [going to the dais and addressing Blanco] Your place is at the bar there Take it [Blanco bows ironically and goes to the bar] Miss Evans you'd best sit at the table [She does so, at the corner nearest the bar The Elder takes the opposite corner The Sheriff takes his chair] All ready, Strapper

STRAPPER [at the door] All in to begin

The crowd comes in and fills the court Babsy, Jessie, and Emma come to the Sheriff's right, Hannah and Lottie to his left

THE SHERIFF Silence there The jury will take their places as usual [They do so]

BLANCO I challenge this jury, Sheriff

THE FOREMAN Do you, by Gosh?

THE SHERIFF On what ground?

BLANCO On the general ground that it's a rotten jury [Laughter]

THE SHERIFF That's not a lawful ground of challenge

THE FOREMAN It's a lawful ground for me to shoot yonder skunk at sight, first time I meet him, if he survives this trial

BLANCO I challenge the Foreman because he's prejudiced

THE FOREMAN I say you lie We mean to hang you, Blanco Posnet, but you will be hanged fair

THE JURY Hear, hear!

STRAPPER [to the Sheriff] George this is rot How can you get an unprejudiced jury if the prisoner starts by telling them they're all rotten? If there's any prejudice against him he has himself to thank for it

THE BOYS That's so Of course he has Insulting the court! Challenge be jiggered! Gag him

NESTOR [a juryman with a long white beard, drunk, the oldest man present] Besides, Sheriff, I go so far as to say that the man that is not prejudiced against a horse-thief is not fit to sit on a jury in this town

THE BOYS Right Bully for you, Nestor! That's the straight truth Of course he aint Hear, hear!

THE SHERIFF That is no doubt true, old man Still, you must get as unprejudiced as you can The critter has a right to his chance, such as he is So now go right ahead If the prisoner don't like this jury, he should have stole a horse in another town, for this is all the jury he'll get here

THE FOREMAN That's so, Blanco Posnet

THE SHERIFF [To Blanco] Don't you be uneasy You will get justice here It may be rough justice, but it is justice

BLANCO What is justice?

THE SHERIFF Hanging horse-thieves is justice, so now you know Now then we've wasted enough time Hustle with your witness there, will you?

BLANCO [indignantly bringing down his fist on the bar] Swear the jury A rotten Sheriff you are not to know that the jury's got to be sworn

THE FOREMAN [galled] Be sworn for you! Not likely What do you say, old son?

NESTOR [deliberately and solemnly] I say GUILTY!!!

THE BOYS [tumultuously rushing at Blanco] That's it Guilty, guilty Take him out and hang him He's found guilty Fetch a rope Up with him [They are about to drag him from the bar]

THE SHERIFF [rising, pistol in hand] Hands off that man Hands off him, I say, Squinty, or I drop you, and would if you were my own son [Dead silence] I'm Sheriff here, and it's for me to say when he may lawfully be hanged [They release him]

BLANCO As the actor says in the play, "a Daniel come to judgment" Rotten actor he was, too

THE SHERIFF Elder Daniels is come to judgment all right, my lad Elder the floor is yours [The Elder rises] Give your evidence The truth and the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God

ELDER DANIELS Sheriff let me off this I didn't ought to swear away this man's life He and I are, in a manner of speaking, brothers

THE SHERIFF It does you credit, Elder every man here will acknowledge it But religion is one thing law is another In religion we're all brothers In law we cut our brother off when he steals horses

THE FOREMAN Besides, you needn't hang him, you know There's plenty of willing hands to take that job off your conscience

So rip ahead, old son

STRAPPER You're accountable to me for the horse until you clear yourself, Elder remember that

BLANCO Out with it, you fool

ELDER DANIELS You might own up, Blanco, as far as my evidence goes Everybody knows I borrowed one of the Sheriff's horses from Strapper because my own's gone lame Everybody knows you arrived in the town yesterday and put up in my house Everybody knows that in the morning the horse was gone and you were gone

BLANCO [in a forensic manner] Sheriff the Elder, though known to you and to all here as no brother of mine and the rottenest har in this town, is speaking the truth for the first time in his life as far as what he says about me is concerned As to the horse, I say nothing, except that it was the rottenest horse you ever tried to sell

THE SHERIFF How do you know it was a rotten horse if you didn't steal it?

BLANCO I don't know of my own knowledge I only argue that if the horse had been worth its keep you wouldn't have lent it to Strapper, and Strapper wouldn't have lent it to this eloquent and venerable ram [Suppressed laughter] And now I ask him this [To the Elder] Did we or did we not have a quarrel last evening about a certain article that was left by my mother, and that I considered I had a right to more than you? And did you say one word to me about the horse not belonging to you?

ELDER DANIELS Why should I? We never said a word about the horse at all How was I to know what it was in your mind to do?

BLANCO Bear witness all that I had a right to take a horse from him without stealing to make up for what he denied me I am no thief But you haven't proved yet that I took the horse Strapper Kemp had I the horse when you took me or had I not?

STRAPPER No, nor you hadn't a railway train neither But Feemy Evans saw you pass on the horse at four o'clock twenty-five miles from the spot where I took you at seven on the road to Pony Harbor Did you walk twenty-five miles in three hours? That so, Feemy? ch?

FEEMY That's so At four I saw him [To Blanco] That's done for you

THE SHERIFF You say you saw him on my horse?

FEEMY I did

BLANCO And I ate it, I suppose, before Strapper fetched up with me [Suddenly and dramatically] Sheriff I accuse Feemy of immoral relations with Strapper

FEEMY Oh you liar!

BLANCO I accuse the fair Euphemia of immoral relations with every man in this town, including yourself, Sheriff I say this is a conspiracy to kill me between Feemy and Strapper because I wouldn't touch Feemy with a pair of tongs I say you daren't hang any white man on the word of a woman of bad character I stand on the honor and virtue of my American manhood I say that she's not had the oath, and that you daren't for the honor of the town give her the oath because her lips would blaspheme the holy Bible if they touched it I say that's the law, and if you are a proper United States Sheriff and not a low-down lyncher, you'll hold up the law and not let it be dragged in the mud by your brother's kept woman

Great excitement among the women The men much puzzled

JESSIE That's right She didn't ought to be let kiss the Book

EMMA How could the like of her tell the truth?

BABSY It would be an insult to every respectable woman here to believe her

FEEMY It's easy to be respectable with nobody ever offering you a chance to be anything else

THE WOMEN [clamoring all together] Shut up, you hussy You're a disgrace How dare you open your lips to answer your betters? Hold your tongue and learn your place, miss You painted slut! Whip her out of the town!

THE SHERIFF Silence Do you hear Silence [The clamor ceases] Did anyone else see the prisoner with the horse?

FEEMY [passionately] Aint I good enough?

BABSY No You're dirt that's what you are

FEEMY And you—

THE SHERIFF Silence This trial is a man's job, and if the women forget their sex they can go out or be put out Strapper and Miss Evans you can't have it two ways You can run straight, or you can run gay, so to speak, but you can't run both ways together There is also a strong feeling among the men of this town that a line should be drawn between those that are straight wives and mothers and those that are, in the words of the Book of Books, taking the primrose path We dont wish to be hard on any woman, and most of us have a personal regard for Miss Evans for the sake of old times, but theres no getting out of the fact that she has private reasons for wishing to oblige Strapper, and that—if she will excuse my saying so—she is not what I might call morally particular as to what she does to oblige him Therefore I ask the prisoner not to drive us to give Miss Evans the oath I ask him to tell us fair and square, as a man who has but a few moments between him and eternity, what he done with my horse

THE BOYS Hear, hear! Thats right Thats fair. That does it Now Blanco Own up

BLANCO Sheriff you touch me home This is a rotten world, but there is still one thing in it that remains sacred even to the rottenest of us, and that is a horse

THE BOYS Good Well said, Blanco Thats straight

BLANCO You have a right to your horse, Sheriff, and if I could put you in the way of getting it back, I would. But if I had that horse I shouldnt be here As I hope to be saved, Sheriff—or rather as I hope to be damned, for I have no taste for pious company and no talent for playing the harp—I know no more of that horse's whereabouts than you do yourself

STRAPPER Who did you trade him to?

BLANCO I did not trade him I got nothing for him or by him I stand here with a rope round my neck for the want of him When you took me, did I fight like a thief or run like a thief, and was there any sign of a horse on me or near me?

STRAPPER You were looking at a rainbow like a damned silly fool instead of keeping your wits about you, and we stole up on you and had you tight before you could draw a bead on us

THE SHERIFF That dont sound like good sense What would he look at a rainbow for?

BLANCO I'll tell you Sheriff I was looking at it because there was something written on it?

SHERIFF How do you mean written on it?

BLANCO The words were "Ive got the cinch on you this time Blanco Posnet" Yes, Sheriff, I saw those words in green on the red streak of the rainbow, and as I saw them

I felt Strapper's grab on my arm and Squinty's on my pistol

THE FOREMAN He's shammin mad thats what he is Aint it about time to give a verdict and have a bit of fun, Sheriff?

THE BOYS Yes, lets have a verdict We're wasting the whole afternoon Cut it short

THE SHERIFF [making up his mind] Swear Feemy Evans, Elder She dont need to touch the Book Let her say the words

FEEMY Worse people than me has kissed that Book. What wrong Ive done, most of you went shares in Ive to live, havnt I? same as the rest of you However, it makes no odds to me, I guess the truth is the truth and a lie is a lie, on the Book or off it

BABSY Do as youre told Who are you, to be let talk about it?

THE SHERIFF Silence there I tell you Sail ahead Elder

ELDER DANIELS Feemy Evans do you swear to tell the truth and the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God

FEEMY I do, so help me—

SHERIFF Thats enough Now, on your oath, did you see the prisoner on my horse this morning on the road to Pony Harbor?

FEEMY On my oath— [Disturbance and cronding at the door]

AT THE DOOR Now then, now then! Where are you shovin to? Whats up? Order in court Chuck him out Silence You cant come in here Keep back.

Strapper rushes to the door and forces his way out

SHERIFF [savagely] Whats this noise? Cant you keep quiet there? Is this a Sheriff's court or is it a saloon?

BLANCO Dont interrupt a lady in the act of hanging a gentleman Wheres your manners?

FEEMY I'll hang you, Blanco Posnet I will I wouldnt for fifty dollars I hadnt seen you this morning I'll teach you to be civil to me next time, for all I'm not good enough to kiss the Book

BLANCO Lord keep me wicked till I die! I'm game for anything while youre spitting dirt at me, Feemy

RENEWED TUMULT AT THE DOOR Here, whats this? Fire them out Not me Who are you that I should get out of your way? Oh stow it Well, she cant come in What woman? What horse? Whats the good of shoving like that? Who says? No! you dont say!

THE SHERIFF Gentlemen of the Vigilance Committee clear that doorway Out with them in the name of the law

STRAPPER [without] Hold hard, George [At the door] Theyve got the horse [He comes in, followed by Waggoner Jo, an elderly carter, who crosses the court to the jury side Strapper pushes his nay to the Sheriff and speaks privately to him]

THE BOYS What! No! Got the horse! Sheriff's horse! Who took it, then? Where? Get out Yes it is, sure I tell you it is It's the horse all right enough Rot Go and look By Gum!

THE SHERIFF [to Strapper] You dont say!

STRAPPER It's hcre, I tell you

WAGGONER JO It's here all right enough, Sheriff

STRAPPER And theyve got the thief too

ELDER DANIELS Then it aint Blanco

STRAPPER No it's a woman [Blanco yells and covers his eyes with his hands]

THE WHOLE CROWD A woman!

THE SHERIFF Well, fetch her in [Strapper goes out The Sheriff continues, to Feemy] And what do you mean, you lying jade, by putting up this story on us about Blanco?

FEEMY I ant put up no story on you This is a plant you see if it isnt

Strapper returns with a woman Her expression of intense grief silences them as they crane over one another's heads to see her Strapper takes her to the corner of the table The Elder moves up to make room for her

BLANCO [terrified] Sheriff that woman aint real You take care That woman will make you do what you never intended Thats the rainbow woman Thats the woman that brought me to this

THE SHERIFF Shut your mouth, will you Youve got the horrors [To the woman] Now you Who are you? and what are you doing with a horse that doesnt belong to you?

THE WOMAN I took it to save my child's life I thought it would get me to a doctor in time The child was choking with croup

BLANCO [strangling, and trying to laugh] A little choker thats the word for him His choking wasnt real wait and see mine [He feels his neck with a sob]

THE SHERIFF Wheres the child?

STRAPPER On Pug Jackson's bench in his shed He's makin a coffin for it

BLANCO [with a horrible convulsion of the throat—frantically] Dead! The little Judas kid! The child I gave my life for! [He breaks into hideous laughter]

THE SHERIFF [Jarred beyond endurance by the sound] Hold your noise, will you? Shove his neckerchief into his mouth if he dont stop [To the woman] Dont you mind him, maam he's mad with drink and devilment I suppose theres no fake about this, Strapper Who found her?

WAGGONER JO I did, Sheriff Theres no fake about it I came on her on the track round by Red Mountain She was settin on the ground with the dead body on her lap, stupid-like The horse was grazin on the other side o the road

THE SHERIFF [puzzled] Well, this is blamed queer [To the woman] What call had you to take the horse from Elder Daniels' stable to find a doctor? Theres a doctor in the very next house

BLANCO [mopping his dabbled red crest and trying to be ironically gay] Story simply wont wash, my angel You got it from the man that stole the horse He gave it to you because he was a softy and went to bits when you played off the sick kid on him Well, I guess that clears me I'm not that sort Catch me putting my neck in a noose for anybody's kid!

THE FOREMAN Dont you go putting her up to what to say She said she took it

THE WOMAN Yes I took it from a man that met me I thought God sent him to me I rode here joyfully thinking so all the time to myself Then I noticed that the child was like lead in my arms God would never have been so cruel as to send me the horse to disappoint me like that

BLANCO Just what He would do

STRAPPER We aint got nothin to do with that This is the man, aint he? [pointing to Blanco]

THE WOMAN [pulling herself together after looking scaredly at Blanco, and then at the Sheriff and at the jury] No

THE FOREMAN You he

THE SHERIFF Youve got to tell us the truth Thats the law, you know

THE WOMAN The man looked a bad man He cursed me, and he cursed the child God forgive him! But something came over him I was desperate I put the child in his arms, and it got its little fingers down his neck and called him Daddy and tried to kiss him, for it was not right in its head with the fever

He said it was a little Judas kid, and that it was betraying him with a kiss and that he'd swing for it And then he gave me the horse, and went away crying and laughing and singing dreadful dirty wicked words to hymn tunes like as if he had seven devils in him

STRAPPER She's lying Give her the oath, George

THE SHERIFF Go easy there You're a smart boy, Strapper, but you're not Sheriff yet This is my job You just wait I submit that we're in a difficulty here If Blanco was the man the lady cant as a white woman, give him away She oughtnt to be put in the position of having either to give him away or commit perjury On the other hand we dont want a horse-thief to get off through a lady's delicacy

THE FOREMAN No we dont, and we dont intend he shall Not while I am foreman of this jury

BLANCO [with intense expression] A rotten foreman! Oh, what a rotten foreman!

THE SHERIFF Shut up will you Providence shows us a way out here Two women saw Blanco with a horse One has a delicacy about saying so The other will excuse me saying that delicacy is not her strongest hold She can give the necessary witness Feemy Evans you've taken the oath You saw the man that took the horse

FEEMY I did And he was a low-down rotten drunken lying hound that would go further to hurt a woman any day than to help her And if he ever did a good action it was because he was too drunk to know what he was doing So it's no harm to hang him She said he cursed her and went away blaspheming and singing things that were not fit for the child to hear

BLANCO [troubled] I didnt mean them for the child to hear, you venomous devil

THE SHERIFF All thats got nothing to do with us The question you have to answer is, was that man Blanco Posnet?

THE WOMAN No I say no I swear it Sheriff dont hang that man oh dont You may hang me instead if you like Ive nothing to live for now You darent take her word against mine She never had a child I can see it in her face

FEEMY [stung to the quick] I can hang him in spite of you, anyhow Much good your child is to you now, lying there on Pug Jackson's bench!

BLANCO [rushing at her with a shriek] I'll twist your heart out of you for that [They seize him before he can reach her]

FEEMY [mocking him as he struggles to get at her] Ha, ha, Blanco Posnet You cant touch me, and I can hang you Ha, ha! Oh, I'll do for you I'll twist your heart and I'll twist your neck [He is dragged back to the bar and leans on it, gasping and exhausted] Give me the oath again, Elder I'll settle him And do you [to the noman] take your sickly face away from in front of me

STRAPPER Just turn your back on her there, will you?

THE WOMAN God knows I dont want to see her commit murder [She folds her shawl over her head]

THE SHERIFF Now, Miss Evans cut it short Was the prisoner the man you saw this morning or was he not? Yes or no

FEEMY [a little hysterically] I'll tell you fast enough Dont think I'm a softy

THE SHERIFF [losing patience] Here we've had enough of this You tell the truth, Feemy Evans, and let us have no more of your lip Was the prisoner the man or was he not? On your oath?

FEEMY On my oath as I'm a living woman — [finching] Oh God! he felt the little child's hands on his neck—I cant [bursting into a flood of tears and scolding at the other noman] It's you with your snivelling face that has put me off it [Desperately] No it wasnt him I only said it out of spite because he insulted me May I be struck dead if I ever saw him with the horse!

Everybody draws a long breath Dead silence

BLANCO [whispering at her] Softy! Cry-baby! Landed like me! Doing what you never intended! [Taking up his hat and speaking in his ordinary tone] I presume I may go now, Sheriff

STRAPPER Here, hold hard

THE FOREMAN Not if we know it, you dont

THE BOYS [barring the way to the door] You stay where you are Stop a bit, stop a bit Dont you be in such a hurry Dont let him go Not much

Blanco stands motionless, his eye fixed, thinking hard, and apparently deaf to what is going on

THE SHERIFF [rising solemnly] Silence there Wait a bit I take it that if the Sheriff is satisfied and the owner of the horse is satisfied, theres no more to be said I have had to remark on former occasions that what is wrong with this court is that theres too many Sheriffs in it Today there is going to be one, and only one, and that one is your humble servant I call that to the notice of the Foreman of the jury, and also to the notice of young Strapper I am also the owner of the horse Does any man say I am not? [Silence] Very well, then In my opinion, to commandeering a horse for the purpose of getting a dying child to a doctor is not stealing, provided, as in the present case, that the horse is returned safe and sound I rule that there has been no theft

NESTOR That aint the law

THE SHERIFF I fine you a dollar for contempt of court, and will collect it myself off you as you leave the building And as the boys have been disappointed of their natural sport, I shall give them a little fun by standing outside the door and taking up a collection for the bereaved mother of the late kid that shewed up Blanco Posnet

THE BOYS A collection Oh, I say! Calls that sport? Is this a mothers' meeting? Well, I'll be jiggered! Where does the sport come in?

THE SHERIFF [continuing] The sport comes in, my friends, not so much in contributing as in seeing others fork out Thus each contributes to the general enjoyment, and all contribute to his Blanco Posnet you go free under the protection of the Vigilance Committee for just long enough to get you out of this town, which is not a healthy place for you As you are in a hurry, I'll sell you the horse at a reasonable figure Now, boys, let nobody go out till I get to the door The court is adjourned [He goes out]

STRAPPER [to Feemy, as he goes to the door] I'm done with you Do you hear? I'm done with you [He goes out sulkily]

FEEMY [calling after him] As if I cared about a stungy brat like you! Go back to the freckled maypole you left for me youve been fretting for her long enough

THE FOREMAN [To Blanco, on his way out] A man like you makes me sick Just sick [Blanco makes no sign The Foreman spits disgustedly, and follows Strapper out The Jurymen leave the box, except Nestor, who collapses in a drunken sleep]

BLANCO [Suddenly rushing from the bar to the table and jumping up on it] Boys, I'm going to preach you a sermon on the moral of this day's proceedings

THE BOYS [crowding round him] Yes lets have a sermon Go ahead, Blanco Silence for Elder Blanco Tune the organ Let us pray

NESTOR [staggering out of his sleep] Never hold up your head in this town again I'm done with you

BLANCO [pointing inexorably to Nestor] Drunk in church Disturbing the preacher Hand him out

THE BOYS [chivvying Nestor out] Now, Nestor, outside Outside, Nestor Out you go Get your subscription ready for the Sheriff Skiddoo, Nestor

NESTOR Afraid to be hanged! Afraid to be hanged! [At the door] Coward! [He is thrown out]

BLANCO Dearly beloved brethren—

A BOY Same to you, Blanco [Laughter]

BLANCO And many of them Boys this is a rotten world

ANOTHER BOY Lord have mercy on us, miserable sinners [More laughter]

BLANCO [Forcibly] No thats where youre wrong Dont flatter yourselves that youre miserable sinners Am I a miserable sinner? No I'm a fraud and a failure I started in to be a bad man like the rest of you You all started in to be bad men or you wouldnt be in this jumped-up, jerked-off, hospital-turned-out camp that calls itself a town I took the broad path because I thought I was a man and not a snivelling canting turning-the-other-cheek apprentice angel serving his time in a vale of tears They talked Christianity to us on Sundays, but when they really meant business they told us never to take a blow without giving it back, and to get dollars When they talked the golden rule to me, I just looked at them as if they werent there, and spat But when they told me to try to live my life so that I could always look my fellowman straight in the eye and tell him to go to hell, that fetched me

THE BOYS Quite right Good Bully for you, Blanco, old son Right good sense too Aha-a-ah!

BLANCO Yes, but whats come of it all? Am I a real bad man? a man of game and grit? a man that does what he likes and goes over or through other people to his own gain? or am I a snivelling cry-baby that let a horse his life depended on be took from him by a woman, and then sat on the grass looking at the rainbow and let himself be took like a hare in a trap by Strapper Kemp a lad whose back I or any grown man here could break against his knee? I'm a rottener fraud and failure than the Elder here And you're all as rotten as me, or you'd have lynched me

A BOY Anything to oblige you, Blanco

ANOTHER We can do it yet if you feel really bad about it

BLANCO No the devil's gone out of you We're all frauds There's none of us real good and none of us real bad

ELDER DANIELS There is One above, Blanco

BLANCO What do you know about Him? you that always talk as if He never did anything without asking your rotten leave first? Why did the child die? Tell me that if you can He can't have wanted to kill the child Why did He make me go soft on the child if He was going hard on it Himself? Why should He go hard on the innocent kid and go soft on a rotten thing like me? Why did I go soft myself? Why did the Sheriff go soft? Why did Feemy go soft? What's this game that upsets our game? For seems to me there's two games been played Our game is a rotten game that makes me feel I'm dirt and that you're all as rotten dirt as me T'other game may be a silly game, but it ain't rotten When the Sheriff played it he stopped being rotten When Feemy played it the paint nearly dropped off her face When I played it I cursed myself for a fool, but I lost the rotten feel all the same

ELDER DANIELS It was the Lord speaking to your soul, Blanco

BLANCO Oh yes you know all about the Lord, don't you? You're in the Lord's confidence He wouldn't for the world do anything to shock you, would He, Boozy dear? Yah! What about the croup? It was early days when He made the croup, I guess It was the best He could think of then, but when it turned out wrong on His hands He made you and me to fight the croup for him You bet He didn't make us for nothing, and He wouldn't have made us at all if He could have done His work without us By Gum, that must be what we're for! He'd never have made us to be rotten drunken blackguards like me, and good-for-nothing rips like Feemy He made me because He had a job for me He let me run loose til the job was ready, and then I had to come along and do it, hanging or no hanging And I tell you it didn't feel rotten it felt bully, just bully Anyhow, I got the rotten feel off me for a minute of my life, and I'll go through fire to get it off me again Look here! which of you will marry Feemy Evans?

THE BOYS [uproarously] Who speaks first? Who'll marry Feemy? Come along, Jack. Now's your chance, Peter Pass along a husband for Feemy Oh my! Feemy!

FEEMY [shortly] Keep your tongue off me, will you?

BLANCO Feemy was a rose of the broad path, wasn't she? You all thought her the champion bad woman of this district Well, she's a failure as a bad woman, and I'm a failure as a bad man So let Brother Daniels marry us to keep all the rottenness in the family What do you say, Feemy?

FEEMY Thank you, but when I marry I'll marry a man that could do a decent action without surprising himself out of his senses You're like a child with a new toy you and your bit of human kindness!

THE WOMAN How many would have done it with their life at stake?

FEEMY Oh well, if you're so much taken with him, marry him yourself You'd be what people call a good wife to him, wouldn't you?

THE WOMAN I was a good wife to the child's father I don't think any woman wants to be a good wife twice in her life I want somebody to be a good husband to me now

BLANCO Any offer, gentlemen, on that understanding? [The boys shake their heads] Oh, it's a rotten game, our game Here's a real good woman, and she's had enough of it, finding that it only led to being put upon HANNAH Well, if there was nothing wrong in the world there wouldn't be anything left for us to do, would there?

ELDER DANIELS Be of good cheer, brothers Seek the path

BLANCO No No more paths No more broad and narrow No more good and bad There's no good and bad, but by Jiminy, gents, there's a rotten game, and there's a great game I played the rotten game, but the great game was played on me, and now I'm for the great game every time Amen Gentlemen let us adjourn to the saloon I stand the drinks [He jumps down from the table]

THE BOYS Right you are, Blanco Drinks round Come along, boys Blanco's standing Right along to the Elder's Hurrah! [They rush out, dragging the Elder with them]

BLANCO [to Feemy, offering his hand] Shake, Feemy

FEEMY Get along, you blackguard BLANCO It's come over me again, same as when the kid touched me, same as when you swore a lie to save my neck

FEEMY Oh well, here [They shake hands]

MISALLIANCE

1910

Johnny Tarleton, an ordinary young business man of thirty or less, is taking his weekly Friday to Tuesday in the house of his father, John Tarleton, who has made a great deal of money out of Tarleton's Underwear. The house is in Surrey, on the slope of Hindhead, and Johnny, reckoning, novel in hand, in a swinging chair with a little awning above it, is enshrined in a spacious half hemisphere of glass which forms a pavilion commanding the garden, and, beyond it, a barren but lovely landscape of hill profile with fir trees, commons of bracken and gorse, and wonderful cloud pictures.

The glass pavilion springs from a bridge-like arch in the wall of the house, through which one comes into a big hall with tiled flooring, which suggests that the proprietor's notion of domestic luxury is founded on the lounges of week-end hotels. The arch is not quite in the centre of the wall. There is more wall to Johnny's right than to his left, and this space is occupied by a hat rack and umbrella stand in which tennis rackets, white parasols, caps, Panama hats, and other summery articles are bestoned. Just through the arch at this corner stands a new portable Turkish bath, recently unpacked, with its crate beside it, and on the crate the drawn nails and the hammer used in unpacking. Near the crate are open boxes of garden games: bowls and croquet. Nearly in the middle of the glass wall of the pavilion is a door giving on the garden, with a couple of steps to surmount the hot-water pipes which skirt the glass. At intervals round the pavilion are marble pillars with specimens of Viennese pottery on them, very flamboyant in colour and florid in design. Between them are folded garden chairs slung anyhow against the pipes. In the side walls are two doors: one near the hat stand, leading to the interior of the house, the other on the opposite side and at the other end, leading to the vestibule.

There is no solid furniture except a sideboard which stands against the wall between the vestibule door and the pavilion, a small writing table with blotter, rack for telegram forms and stationery, and a wastepaper basket, standing out in the hall near the sideboard, and a lady's worktable, with two chairs at it, towards the other side of the lounge. The writing table has also two chairs at it. On the sideboard there is a tantalus, liqueur bottles, a syphon, a glass jug of lemonade, tumblers, and every convenience for casual drinking. Also a plate of sponge cakes, and a highly ornate punchbowl in the same style as the ceramic display in the pavilion. Wicker chairs and little bamboo tables with ash trays and boxes of matches on them are scattered in all directions. In the pavilion, which is flooded with sunshine, is the elaborate patent swing seat and awning in which Johnny reclines with his novel. There are two wicker chairs right and left of him.

Bentley Summerhays, one of those smallish, thinskinnyed youths, who from 17 to 70 retain unaltered the mental airs of the later and the physical appearance of the earlier age, appears in the garden and comes through the glass door into the pavilion. He is unmistakably a grade above Johnny socially, and though he looks sensitive enough, his assurance and his high voice are a little exasperating.

JOHNNY Hallo! Wheres your luggage?

BENTLEY I left it at the station. I've walked up from Haslemere. [He goes to the hat stand and hangs up his hat]

JOHNNY [shortly] Oh! And whos to fetch it?

BENTLEY Dont know. Dont care. Providence, probably. If not, your mother will have it fetched.

JOHNNY Not her business, exactly, is it?

BENTLEY [returning to the pavilion] Of course not Thats why one loves her for doing it Look here chuck away your silly week-end novel, and talk to a chap After a week in that filthy office my brain is simply blue-mouldy Lets argue about something intellectual [He throws himself into the wicker chair on Johnny's right]

JOHNNY [straightening up in the swing with a yell of protest] No Now seriously, Bunny, Ive come down here to have a pleasant week-end, and I'm not going to stand your confounded arguments If you want to argue, get out of this and go over to the Congregationalist minister's Hes a nailer at arguing He likes it

BENTLEY You cant argue with a person when his livelihood depends on his not letting you convert him And would you mind not calling me Bunny? My name is Bentley Summerhays, which you please

JOHNNY Whats the matter with Bunny?

BENTLEY It puts me in a false position Have you ever considered the fact that I was an afterthought?

JOHNNY An afterthought? What do you mean by that?

BENTLEY I—

JOHNNY No, stop I dont want to know It's only a dodge to start an argument

BENTLEY Dont be afraid it wont overtax your brain My father was 44 when I was born My mother was 41 There was twelve years between me and the next eldest I was unexpected I was probably unintentional My brothers and sisters are not the least like me Theyre the regular thing that you always get in the first batch from young parents quite pleasant, ordinary, do-the-regular-thing sort all body and no brains, like you

JOHNNY Thank you

BENTLEY Dont mention it, old chap Now I'm different By the time I was born, the old couple knew something So I came out all brains and no more body than is absolutely necessary I am really a good deal older than you, though you were born ten years sooner Everybody feels that when they hear us talk, consequently, though it's quite natural to hear me calling you Johnny, it sounds ridiculous and unbecoming for you to call me Bunny [He rises]

JOHNNY Does it, by George? You stop me doing it if you can thats all

BENTLEY If you go on doing it after Ive asked you not, youll feel an awful swine [He strolls away carelessly to the sideboard with his eye on the sponge-cakes] At least I should, but I suppose youre not so particular

JOHNNY [rising vengefully and following Bentley, who is forced to turn and listen] I'll tell you what it is, my boy you want a good talking to, and I'm going to give it to you If you think that because your father's a K C B, and you want to marry my sister, you can make yourself as nasty as you please and say what you like, youre mistaken Let me tell you that except Hypatia, not one person in this house is in favor of her marrying you, and I dont believe shes happy about it herself The match isnt settled yet dont forget that Youre on trial in the office because the Governor isnt giving his daughter money for an idle man to live on her Youre on trial here because my mother thinks a girl should know what a man is like in the house before shē marries him Thats been going on for two months now, and whats the result? Youve got yourself thoroughly disliked in the office, and youre getting yourself thoroughly disliked here, all through your bad manners and your conceit, and the damned impudence you think clever

BENTLEY [deeply wounded and trying hard to control himself] Thats enough, thank you You dont suppose, I hope, that I should have come down if I had known that that was how you all feel about me [He makes for the vestibule door]

JOHNNY [collaring him] No you dont run away I'm going to have this out with you Sit down d'y' hear? [Bentley attempts to go with dignity Johnny slings him into a chair at the writing table, where he sits, bitterly humiliated, but afraid to speak lest he should burst into tears] Thats the advantage of having more body than brains, you see it enables me to teach you manners, and I'm going to do it too Youre a spoilt young pup, and you need a jolly good licking And if youre not careful youll get it I'll see to that next time you call me a swine

BENTLEY I didnt call you a swine But [bursting into a fury of tears] you are a swine youre a beast youre a brute youre a cad youre a liar youre a bully I should like to wring your damned neck for you

JOHNNY [with a derisive laugh] Try it, my son [Bentley gives an inarticulate sob of rage] Fighting isnt in your line Youre too small, and youre too childsh I always suspected that your cleverness wouldnt come to very much when it was brought up against something solid some decent chap's fist, for instance

BENTLEY I hope your beastly fist may come up against a mad bull or a prize-fighter's nose, or something solidier than me I dont care about your fist, but if everybody here dislikes me— [he is checked by a sob] Well, I dont care [Trying to recover himself] I'm sorry I intruded I didnt know [Breaking down again] Oh you beast! you pig! Swine, swine, swine, swine, swine! Now!

JOHNNY All right, my lad, all right Shlug your mud as hard as you please it wont stick to me What I want to know is this How is it that your father, who I suppose is the strongest man England has produced in our time—

BENTLEY You got that out of your half-penny paper A lot you know about him!

JOHNNY I dont set up to be able to do anything but admire him and appreciate him and be proud of him as an Englishman If it wasnt for my respect for him, I wouldnt have stood your cheek for two days, let alone two months But what I cant understand is why he didnt lek it out of you when you were a kid For twenty-five years he kept a place twice as big as England in order a place full of seditious coffee-colored heathens and pestilential white agitators in the middle of a lot of savage tribes And yet he couldnt keep you in order I dont set up to be half the man your father undoubtedly is, but, by George, it's lucky for you you were not my son I dont hold with my own father's views about corporal punishment being wrong It's necessary for some people, and I'd have tried it on you until you first learnt to howl and then to behave yourself

BENTLEY [contemptuously] Yes behavior wouldnt come naturally to your son, would it?

JOHNNY [stung into sudden violence] Now you keep a civil tongue in your head I'll stand none of your snobbery I'm just as proud of Tarleton's Underwear as you are of your father's title and his K C B, and all the rest of it My father began in a little hole of a shop in Leeds no bigger than our pantry down the passage there He—

BENTLEY Oh yes I know Ive read it 'The Romance of Business, or The Story of Tarleton's Underwear Please Take One!" I took one the day after I first met Hypatia I went and bought half a dozen unshrinkable vests for her sake

JOHNNY Well did they shrink?

BENTLEY Oh, dont be a fool

JOHNNY Never mind whether I'm a fool or not Did they shrink? Thats the point Were they worth the money?

BENTLEY I couldnt wear them do you think my skin's as thick as your customers' hides? I'd as soon have dressed myself in a nutmeg grater

JOHNNY Pity your father didnt give your thin skin a jolly good lacing with a cane!

BENTLEY Pity you havnt got more than one idea! If you want to know, they did try that on me once, when I was a small kid A silly governess did it I yelled fit to bring down the house, and went into convulsions and brain fever and that sort of thing for three weeks So the old girl got the sack, and serve her right! After that, I was let do what I liked My father didnt want me to grow up a broken-spirited spamel, which is your idea of a man, I suppose

JOHNNY Jolly good thing for you that my father made you come into the office and shew what you were made of And it didnt come to much let me tell you that When the Governor asked me where I thought we ought to put you, I said "Make him the Office Boy" The Governor said you were too green And so you were

BENTLEY I daresay So would you be pretty green if you were shoved into my father's set I picked up your silly business in a fortnight Youve been at it ten years, and you havnt picked it up yet

JOHNNY Dont talk rot, child You know you simply make me pity you

BENTLEY "Romance of Business" indeed! The real romance of Tarleton's business is the story that you understand anything about it You never could explain any mortal thing about it to me when I asked you "See what was done the last time" that was the beginning and the end of your wisdom Youre nothing but a turnspit

JOHNNY A what!

BENTLEY A turnspit If your father hadnt made a roasting jack for you to turn, youd be earning twenty-four shillings a week behind a counter

JOHNNY If you dont take that back and apologize for your bad manners, I'll give you as good a hiding as ever—

BENTLEY Help! Johnny's beating me! Oh! Murder! [He throws himself on the ground, uttering piercing yells]

JOHNNY Dont be a fool Stop that noise, will you? I'm not going to touch you Sh—sh—

Hypatia rushes in through the inner door, followed by Mrs Tarleton, and throws herself on her knees by Bentley Mrs Tarleton, whose knees are stiffer, bends over him and tries to lift him Mrs Tarleton is a shrewd and motherly old lady who has been pretty in her time, and is still very pleasant and likeable and unaffected Hypatia is a typical English girl of a sort never called typical that is, she has an opaque white skin, black hair, large dark eyes with black brows and lashes, curved lips swift glances and movements that flash out of a waiting stillness, boundless energy and audacity held in leash

HYPATIA [pouncing on Bentley with no very gentle hand] Bentley whats the matter? Dont cry like that whats the use? Whats happened?

MRS TARLETON Are you ill, child? [They get him up] There, there, pet! It's all right dont cry [they put him into a chair] there! there! there! Johnny will go for the doctor, and he'll give you something nice to make it well HYPATIA What has happened, Johnny?

MRS TARLETON Was it a wasp?

BENTLEY [impatiently] Wasp be dashed!

MRS TARLETON Oh Bunny! that was a naughty word

BENTLEY Yes, I know I beg your pardon [He rises, and extricates himself from them] Thats all right Johnny frightened me You know how easy it is to hurt me, and I'm too small to defend myself against Johnny

MRS TARLETON Johnny how often have I told you that you must not bully the little ones I thought youd outgrown all that

HYPATIA [angrily] I do declare, mamma, that Johnny's brutality makes it impossible to live in the house with him

JOHNNY [deeply hurt] It's fourteen years, mother, since you had that row with me for licking Robert and giving Hypatia a black eye because she bit me. I promised you then that I'd never raise my hand to one of them again, and Ive never broken my word And now because this young whelp begins to cry out before he's hurt, you treat me as if I were a brute and a savage

MRS TARLETON No dear, not a savage, but you know you mustnt call our visitor naughty names

BENTLEY Oh, let him alone—

JOHNNY [fiercely] Dont you interfere between my mother and me d'y' hear?

HYPATIA Johnny's lost his temper, mother We'd better go Come, Bentley

MRS TARLETON Yes that will be best [To Bentley] Johnny doesnt mean any harm, dear he'll be himself presently Come

The two ladies go out through the inner door with Bentley, who turns derisively at the door to cock a snook at Johnny as he goes out

Johnny, left alone, clenches his fists and grinds his teeth, but can find no relief in that way for his rage After choking and stamping for a moment, he makes for the vestibule door It opens before he reaches it, and Lord Summerhays comes in Johnny glares at him, speechless Lord Summerhays takes in the situation, and quickly takes the punchbowl from the sideboard and offers it to Johnny

LORD SUMMERHAYS Smash it Dont hesitate it's an ugly thing Smash it hard [Johnny, with a stifled yell, dashes it in pieces, and then sits down and mops his brow] Feel better now? [Johnny nods] I know only one person alive who could drive me to the point of having either to break china or commit murder, and that person is my son Bentley Was it he? [Johnny nods again, not yet able to speak] As the car stopped I heard a yell which is only too familiar to me It generally means that some infuriated person is trying to thrash Bentley Nobody has ever succeeded, though almost everybody has tried [He seats himself comfortably close to the writing table, and sets to work to collect the fragments of the punchbowl in the wastepaper basket whilst Johnny, with diminishing difficulty collects himself] Bentley is a problem which I confess I have never been able to solve He was born to be a great success at the age of fifty Most Englishmen of his class seem to be born to be great successes at the age of twenty-four at most. The domestic problem for me is how to endure Bentley until he is fifty The problem for the nation is how to get itself governed by men whose growth is arrested when they are little more than college lads Bentley doesnt really mean to be offensive You can always make him cry by telling him you dont like him Only, he cries so loud that the experiment should be made in the open air in the middle of Salisbury Plain if possible. He has a hard and penetrating intellect and a remarkable power of looking facts in the face, but unfortunately, being very young, he has no idea of how very little of that sort of thing most of us can stand. On the other hand, he is frightfully sensitive and even affectionate, so that he probably gets as much as he gives in the way of hurt feelings. You'll excuse me rambling on like this about my son.

JOHNNY [who has pulled himself together] You did it on purpose. I wasn't quite myself. I needed a moment to pull round. Thank you.

LORD SUMMERHAYS Not at all. Is your father at home?

JOHNNY No. He's opening one of his free libraries. That's another nice little penny gone. He's mad on reading. He promised another free library last week. It's ruinous. It'll hit you as well as me when Bunny marries Hypatia. When all Hypatia's money is thrown away on libraries, where will Bunny come in? Can't you stop him?

LORD SUMMERHAYS I'm afraid not. He's a perfect whirlwind. Indefatigable at public work. Wonderful man, I think.

JOHNNY Oh, public work! He does too much of it. It's really a sort of laziness, getting away from your own serious business to amuse yourself with other people's. Mind, I don't say there isn't another side to it. It has its value as an advertisement. It makes useful acquaintances and leads to valuable business connections. But it takes his mind off the main chance, and he overdoes it.

LORD SUMMERHAYS The danger of public business is that it never ends. A man may kill himself at it.

JOHNNY Or he can spend more on it than it brings him in. That's how I look at it. What I say is that everybody's business is nobody's business. I hope I'm not a hard man, nor a narrow man, nor unwilling to pay reasonable taxes, and subscribe in reason to deserving charities, and even serve on a jury in my turn, and no man can say I ever refused to help a friend out of a difficulty when he was worth helping. But when you ask me to go beyond that, I tell you frankly I don't see it. I never did see it, even when I was only a boy, and had to pretend to take in all the ideas the Governor fed me up with. I didn't see it, and I don't see it.

LORD SUMMERHAYS There is certainly no business reason why you should take more than your share of the world's work.

JOHNNY So I say. It's really a great encouragement to me to find you agree with me. For of course if nobody agrees with you, how are you to know that you're not a fool?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Quite so.

JOHNNY I wish you'd talk to him about it. It's no use my saying anything. I'm a child to him still. I have no influence. Besides, you know how to handle men. See how you handled me when I was making a fool of myself about Bunny!

LORD SUMMERHAYS Not at all.

JOHNNY Oh yes, I was. I know I was. Well, if my blessed father had come in, he'd have told me to control myself. As if I was losing my temper on purpose!

Bentley returns, newly washed. He beams when he sees his father, and comes affectionately behind him and pats him on the shoulders.

BENTLEY Hel-lo, commander! have you come? I've been making a filthy silly ass of myself here. I'm awfully sorry, Johnny, old chap. I beg your pardon. Why don't you kick me when I go on like that?

LORD SUMMERHAYS As we came through Godalming I thought I heard some yelling—

BENTLEY I should think you did. Johnny was rather rough on me, though. He told me nobody here liked me, and I was silly enough to believe him.

LORD SUMMERHAYS And all the women have been kissing you and pitying you ever since to stop your crying, I suppose. Baby!

BENTLEY I did cry. But I always feel good after crying. It relieves my wretched nerves. I feel perfectly jolly now.

LORD SUMMERHAYS Not at all ashamed of yourself, for instance?

BENTLEY If I started being ashamed of myself I shouldn't have time for anything else all my life. I say I feel very fit and spry. Let's all go down and meet the Grand Cham [He goes to the hatstand and takes down his hat].

LORD SUMMERHAYS Does Mr Tarleton like to be called the Grand Cham, do you think, Bentley?

BENTLEY Well, he thinks he's too modest for it. He calls himself Plain John. But you can't call him that in his own office. Besides, it doesn't suit him. It's not flamboyant enough.

JOHNNY Flam what?

BENTLEY Flamboyant. Let's go and meet him. He's telephoned from Guildford to say

hes on the road The dear old son is always telephoning or telegraphing he thinks hes hustling along like anything when hes only sending unnecessary messages

LORD SUMMERHAYS Thank you I should prefer a quiet afternoon

BENTLEY Right o' I shant press Johnny hes had enough of me for one week-end [He goes out through the pavilion into the grounds]

JOHNNY Not a bad idea, that

LORD SUMMERHAYS What?

JOHNNY Going to meet the Governor You know you wouldnt think it, but the Governor likes Bunny rather And Bunny is cultivating it I shouldnt be surprised if he thought he could squeeze me out one of these days

LORD SUMMERHAYS You dont say so! Young rascal! I want to consult you about him, if you dont mind Shall we stroll over to the Gibbet? Bentley is too fast for me as a walking companion, but I should like a short turn

JOHNNY [rising eagerly, highly flattered] Right you are Thatll suit me down to the ground [He takes a Panama and stick from the hat stand]

Mrs Tarleton and Hypatia come back just as the two men are going out Hypatia salutes Summerhays from a distance with an enigmatic lift of her eyelids in his direction and a demure nod before she sits down at the worktable and busies herself with her needle Mrs Tarleton, hospitably fussy, goes over to him

MRS TARLETON Oh, Lord Summerhays, I didnt know you were here Wont you have some tea?

LORD SUMMERHAYS No, thank you I'm not allowed tea And I'm ashamed to say Ive knocked over your beautiful punch-bowl You must let me replace it

MRS TARLETON Oh, it doesnt matter I'm only too glad to be rid of it The shopman told me it was in the best taste, but when my poor old nurse Martha got cataract, Bunny said it was a merciful provision of Nature to prevent her seeing our china

LORD SUMMERHAYS [gravely] That was exceedingly rude of Bentley, Mrs Tarleton I hope you told him so

MRS TARLETON Oh, bless you! I dont care what he says, so long as he says it to me and not before visitors

JOHNNY We're going out for a stroll, mother

MRS TARLETON All right dont let us keep you Never mind about that crock I'll get the girl to come and take the pieces away [Recollecting herself] There! Ive done it again!

JOHNNY Done what?

MRS TARLETON Called her the girl You know, Lord Summerhays, it's a funny thing, but now I'm getting old, I'm dropping back into all the ways John and I had when we had barely a hundred a year You should have known me when I was forty! I talked like a duchess, and if Johnny or Hypatia let slip a word that was like old times, I was down on them like anything And now I'm beginning to do it myself at every turn

LORD SUMMERHAYS There comes a time when all that seems to matter so little Even queens drop the mask when they reach our time of life

MRS TARLETON Let you alone for giving a thing a pretty turn! Youre a humbug, you know, Lord Summerhays John doesnt know it, and Johnny doesnt know it, but you and I know it, dont we? Now thats something that even you cant answer, so be off with you for your walk without another word

Lord Summerhays smiles, bows, and goes out through the vestibule door, followed by Johnny Mrs Tarleton sits down at the worktable and takes out her darning materials and one of her husband's socks Hypatia is at the other side of the table, on her mother's right They chat as they work

HYPATIA I wonder whether they laugh at us when they are by themselves!

MRS TARLETON Who?

HYPATIA Bentley and his father and all the toffs in their set

MRS TARLETON Oh, thats only their way I used to think that the aristocracy were a nasty sneering lot, and that they were laughing at me and John Theyre always giggling and pretending not to care much about anything But you get used to it theyre the same to one another and to everybody Besides, what does it matter what they think? It's far worse when theyre civil, because that always means that they want you to lend them money, and you must never do that, Hypatia, because they never pay How can they? They dont make anything, you see Of course, if you can make up your mind to regard it as a gift, thats different, but then they generally ask you again, and you may as well say no first as last You neednt be afraid of the aristocracy, dear theyre only human creatures like ourselves after all,

and you'll hold your own with them easy enough

HYPATIA Oh, I'm not a bit afraid of them, I assure you

MRS TARLETON Well, no, not afraid of them, exactly, but you've got to pick up their ways. You know, dear, I never quite agreed with your father's notion of keeping clear of them, and sending you to a school that was so expensive that they couldn't afford to send their daughters there, so that all the girls belonged to big business families like ourselves. It takes all sorts to make a world, and I wanted you to see a little of all sorts. When you marry Bunny, and go among the women of his father's set, they'll shock you at first.

HYPATIA [incredulously] How?

MRS TARLETON Well, the things they talk about.

HYPATIA Oh! scandalmongering?

MRS TARLETON Oh no, we all do that, that's only human nature. But you know they've no notion of decency. I shall never forget the first day I spent with a marchioness, two duchesses, and no end of Ladies. This and That. Of course it was only a committee they'd put me on to get a big subscription out of John. I'd never heard such talk in my life. The things they mentioned! And it was the marchioness that started it.

HYPATIA What sort of things?

MRS TARLETON Drainage! She'd tried three systems in her castle, and she was going to do away with them all and try another. I didn't know which way to look when she began talking about it. I thought they'd all have got up and gone out of the room. But not a bit of it, if you please. They were all just as bad as she. They all had systems, and each of them swore by her own system. I sat there with my cheeks burning until one of the duchesses, thinking I looked out of it, I suppose, asked me what system I had. I said I was sure I knew nothing about such things, and hadn't we better change the subject. Then the fat was in the fire, I can tell you. There was a regular terror of a countess with an anaerobic system, and she told me, downright brutally, that I'd better learn something about them before my children died of diphtheria. That was just two months after I'd buried poor little Bobby, and that was the very thing he died of, poor little lamb! I burst out crying. I couldn't help it. It was as good as telling me I'd killed my own child. I had to go away, but before I was out of the door one of the duchesses—quite a young woman—began talking about what sour milk did in her inside and how she expected to live to be over a hundred if she took it regularly. And me listening to her, that had never dared to think that a duchess could have anything so common as an inside! I shouldn't have minded if it had been children's insides. We have to talk about them. But grown-up people! I was glad to get away that time.

HYPATIA There was a physiology and hygiene class started at school, but of course none of our girls were let attend it.

MRS TARLETON If it had been an aristocratic school plenty would have attended it. That's what they're like. They've nasty minds. With really nice good women a thing is either decent or indecent, and if it's indecent, we just don't mention it or pretend to know about it, and there's an end of it. But all the aristocracy cares about is whether it can get any good out of the thing. They're what Johnny calls cynical-like. And of course nobody can say a word to them for it. They're so high up that they can do and say what they like.

HYPATIA Well, I think they might leave the drains to their husbands, I shouldn't think much of a man that left such things to me.

MRS TARLETON Oh, don't think that, dear, whatever you do. I never let on about it to you, but it's me that takes care of the drainage here. After what that countess said to me I wasn't going to lose another child nor trust John. And I don't want my grandchildren to die any more than my children.

HYPATIA Do you think Bentley will ever be as big a man as his father? I don't mean clever. I mean big and strong.

MRS TARLETON Not he. He's overbred, like one of those expensive little dogs. I like a bit of a mongrel myself, whether it's a man or a dog. They're the best for everyday. But we all have our tastes. What's one woman's meat is another woman's poison. Bunny's a dear little fellow, but I never could have fancied him for a husband when I was your age.

HYPATIA Yes, but he has some brains. He's not like all the rest. One can't have everything.

MRS TARLETON Oh, you're quite right, dear. Quite right. It's a great thing to have brains. Look what it's done for your father! That's the reason I never said a word when you jilted poor Jerry Mackintosh

HYPATIA [excusing herself] I really couldnt stick it out with Jerry, mother I know you liked him, and nobody can deny that he's a splendid animal—

MRS TARLETON [shocked] Hypatia! How can you! The things that girls say nowadays!

HYPATIA Well what else can you call him? If I'd been deaf or he'd been dumb, I could have married him But living with father, I've got accustomed to cleverness Jerry would drive me mad you know very well he's a fool even Johnny thinks him a fool

MRS TARLETON [up in arms at once in defence of her boy] Now dont begin about my Johnny You know it annoys me Johnny's as clever as anybody else in his own way I dont say he's as clever as you in some ways, but he's a man, at all events, and not a little squirt of a thing like your Bunny

HYPATIA Oh, I say nothing against your darling we all know Johnny's perfection

MRS TARLETON Dont be cross, dearie You let Johnny alone, and I'll let Bunny alone I'm just as bad as you There!

HYPATIA Oh, I dont mind your saying that about Bentley It's true He is a little squirt of a thing I wish he wasnt But who else is there? Think of all the other chances I've had! Not one of them has as much brains in his whole body as Bentley has in his little finger Besides, they've no distinction It's as much as I can do to tell one from the other They wouldnt even have money if they werent the sons of their fathers, like Johnny Whats a girl to do? I never met anybody like Bentley before He may be small, but he's the best of the bunch you cant deny that

MRS TARLETON [with a sigh] Well, my pet, if you fancy him, theres no more to be said

A pause follows this remark the two women sitting silently

HYPATIA Mother, do you think marriage is as much a question of fancy as it used to be in your time and father's?

MRS TARLETON Oh, it wasnt much fancy with me, dear your father just wouldnt take no for an answer, and I was only too glad to be his wife instead of his shop-girl Still, it's curious, but I had more choice than you in a way, because, you see, I was poor, and there are so many more poor men than rich ones that I might have had more of a pick, as you might say, if John hadnt suited me

HYPATIA I can imagine all sorts of men I could fall in love with, but I never seem to meet them The real ones are too small, like Bunny, or too silly like Jerry. Of course one can get into a state about any man fall in love with him if you like to call it that But who would risk marrying a man for love? I shouldnt I remember three girls at school who agreed that the one man you should never marry was the man you were in love with, because it would make a perfect slave of you Theres a sort of instinct against it, I think, thats just as strong as the other instinct One of them, to my certain knowledge, refused a man she was in love with, and married another who was in love with her, and it turned out very well.

MRS TARLETON Does all that mean that youre not in love with Bunny?

HYPATIA Oh, how could anybody be in love with Bunny? I like him to kiss me just as I like a baby to kiss me I'm fond of him, and he never bores me, and I see that he's very clever, but I'm not what you call gone about him, if thats what you mean

MRS TARLETON Then why need you marry him?

HYPATIA What better can I do? I must marry somebody, I suppose Ive realized that since I was twentythree I always used to take it as a matter of course that I should be married before I was twenty

BENTLEY'S VOICE [in the garden] Youve got to keep yourself fresh to look at these things with an open mind

JOHN TARLETON'S VOICE Quite right, quite right I always say so

MRS TARLETON Theres your father, and Bunny with him

BENTLEY Keep young Keep your eye on me Thats the tip for you

Bentley and Mr Tarleton (an immense and genial veteran of trade) come into view and enter the pavilion

JOHN TARLETON You think youre young, do you? You think I'm old? [energetically shaking off his motoring coat and hanging it up with his cap]

BENTLEY [helping him with the coat] Of course youre old Look at your face and look at mine What you call your youth is nothing but your levity Why do we get on so well together? Because I'm a young cub and youre an old jossler [He throws a cushion at Hypatia's feet and sits down on it with his back against her knees]

TARLETON Old! Thats all you know about it, my lad How do, Patsy! [Hypatia kisses him] How is my Chickabiddy? [He kisses Mrs Tarleton's hand and poses expansively in the middle of the picture] Look at me! Look at these wrinkles, these grey hairs, this repulsive mask that you call old age! What is it? [Vehemently] I ask you, what is it?

BENTLEY Jolly nice and venerable, old man Dont be discouraged

TARLETON Nice? Not a bit of it Venerable? Venerable be blowed! Read your Darwin, my boy Read your Weismann [He goes to the sideboard for a drink of lemonade]

MRS TARLETON For shame, John! Tell him to read his Bible

TARLETON [manipulating the syphon] Whats the use of telling children to read the Bible when you know they wont I was kept away from the Bible for forty years by being told to read it when I was young Then I picked it up one evening in a hotel in Sunderland when I had left all my papers in the train, and I found it wasnt half bad [He drinks, and puts down the glass with a smack of enjoyment] Better than most halfpenny papers, anyhow, if only you could make people believe it [He sits down by the writing-table, near his wife] But if you want to understand old age scientifically, read Darwin and Weismann Of course if you want to understand it romantically, read about Solomon

MRS TARLETON Have you had tea, John?

TARLETON Yes Dont interrupt me when I'm improving the boy's mind Where was I? This repulsive mask—Yes [Explosively] What is death?

MRS TARLETON John!

HYPATIA Death is a rather unpleasant subject, papa

TARLETON Not a bit Not scientifically Scientifically it's a delightful subject You think death's natural Well, it isnt You read Weismann There wasnt any death to start with You go look in any ditch outside and you'll find swimming about there as fresh as paint some of the identical little live cells that Adam christened in the Garden of Eden But if big things like us didnt die, we'd crowd one another off the face of the globe Nothing survived, sir, except the sort of people that had the sense and good manners to die and make room for the fresh supplies And so death was introduced by Natural Selection

You get it out of your head, my lad, that I'm going to die because I'm wearing out or decaying Theres no such thing as decay to a vital man I shall clear out, but I shant decay

BENTLEY And what about the wrinkles and the almond tree and the grasshopper that becomes a burden and the desire that fails?

TARLETON Does it? by George! No, sir it spiritualizes As to your grasshopper, I can carry an elephant

MRS TARLETON You do say such things, Bunny! What does he mean by the almond tree?

TARLETON He means my white hairs the repulsive mask That, my boy, is another invention of Natural Selection to disgust young women with me, and give the lads a turn

MRS TARLETON John I wont have it Thats a forbidden subject

TARLETON They talk of the wickedness and vanity of women painting their faces and wearing auburn wigs at fifty But why shouldnt they? Why should a woman allow Nature to put a false mask of age on her when she knows that she's as young as ever? Why should she look in the glass and see a wrinkled he when a touch of fine art will shew her a glorious truth? The wrinkles are a dodge to repel young men Suppose she doesnt want to repel young men! Suppose she likes them!

MRS TARLETON Bunny take Hypatia out into the grounds for a walk theres a good boy John has got one of his naughty fits this evening

HYPATIA Oh, never mind me I'm used to him

BENTLEY I'm not I never heard such conversation I cant believe my ears And mind you, this is the man who objected to my marrying his daughter on the ground that a marriage between a member of the great and good middle class with one of the vicious and corrupt aristocracy would be a misalliance A misalliance, if you please! This is the man I've adopted as a father!

TARLETON Eh? Whats that? Adopted me as a father, have you?

BENTLEY Yes Thats an idea of mine I knew a chap named Joey Percival at Oxford (you know I was two months at Balliol before I was sent down for telling the old woman who was head of that silly college what I jolly well thought of him He would have been glad to have me back, too, at the end of six months, but I wouldn't go. I just let him want, and serve him right! Well, Joey was a most awfully clever fellow, and so nice! I asked him what made such a difference between him and all the other pups—they were pups, if you like. He told me it was very simple: they had only one father apiece, and he had three.

MRS TARLETON Don't talk nonsense, child. How could that be?

BENTLEY Oh, very simple. His father—

TARLETON Which father?

BENTLEY The first one, the regulation natural chap. He kept a tame philosopher in the house, a sort of Coleridge or Herbert Spencer kind of card, you know. That was the second father. Then his mother was an Italian princess, and she had an Italian priest always about. He was supposed to take charge of her conscience, but from what I could make out she jolly well took charge of his. The whole three of them took charge of Joey's conscience. He used to hear them arguing like mad about everything. You see, the philosopher was a freethinker, and always believed the latest thing. The priest didn't believe anything, because it was sure to get him into trouble with someone or another. And the natural father kept an open mind and believed whatever paid him best. Between the lot of them Joey got cultivated no end. He said if he could only have had three mothers as well, he'd have backed himself against Napoleon.

TARLETON [impressed] That's an idea. That's a most interesting idea, a most important idea.

MRS TARLETON You always were one for ideas, John.

TARLETON You're right. Chickabiddy. What do I tell Johnny when he brags about Tarleton's Underwear? It's not the underwear. The underwear be hanged! Anybody can make underwear. Anybody can sell underwear. Tarleton's Ideas: that's what's done it. I've often thought of putting that up over the shop.

BENTLEY Take me into partnership when you do, old man. I'm wasted on the underwear, but I shall come in strong on the ideas.

TARLETON You be a good boy, and perhaps I will.

MRS TARLETON [scenting a plot against her beloved Johnny] Now, John, you promised—

TARLETON Yes, yes. All right, Chickabiddy. Don't fuss. Your precious Johnny shan't be interfered with. [Bouncing up too energetic to sit still] But I'm getting sick of that old shop. Thirty-five years I've had of it, same blessed old stairs to go up and down every day, same old lot, same old game. Sorry I ever started it now. I'll chuck it and try something else, something that will give a scope to all my faculties.

HYPATIA There's money in underwear; there's none in wild-cat ideas.

TARLETON There's money in me, madam, no matter what I go into.

MRS TARLETON Don't boast, John. Don't tempt Providence.

TARLETON Rats! You don't understand Providence. Providence likes to be tempted. That's the secret of the successful man. Read Browning's Natural theology on an island, eh? Caliban was afraid to tempt Providence; that was why he was never able to get even with Prospero. What did Prospero do? Prospero didn't even tempt Providence; he was Providence. That's one of Tarleton's ideas; and don't you forget it.

BENTLEY You are full of beef today, old man.

TARLETON Beef be blowed! Joy of life. Read Ibsen. [He goes into the pavilion to relieve his restlessness, and stares out with his hands thrust deep in his pockets].

HYPATIA [thoughtful] Bentley couldn't you invite your friend Mr Percival down here?

BENTLEY Not if I know it. You'd throw me over the moment you set eyes on him.

MRS TARLETON Oh, Bunny! For shame!

BENTLEY Well, who'd marry me, d'you suppose, if they could get my brains with a full-sized body? No, thank you. I shall take jolly good care to keep Joey out of this until Hypatia is past praying for.

Johnny and Lord Summerhays return through the pavilion from their stroll.

TARLETON Welcome! welcome! Why have you stayed away so long?

LORD SUMMERHAYS [shaking hands] Yes, I should have come sooner. But I'm still rather lost in England. [Johnny takes his hat and hangs it up beside his own] Thank you. [Johnny returns to his snoring and his novel] Lord Summerhays comes to the writing table. The fact is that as I've nothing to do, I never have time to go anywhere. [He sits down next Mrs Tarleton].

TARLETON [following him and sitting down on] his left] Paradox, paradox. Good Paradoxes are the only truths. Read Chesterton. But there's lots for you to do here. You have a genius for government. You learnt your job out there in Jinghiskahn. Well, we want to be governed here in England. Govern us.

LORD SUMMERHAYS. Ah yes, my friend, but in Jinghiskahn you have to govern the right way. If you don't, you go under and come home. Here everything has to be done the wrong way, to suit governors who understand nothing but partridge shooting (our English native princes, in fact) and voters who don't know what they're voting about. I don't understand these democratic games, and I'm afraid I'm too old to learn. What can I do but sit in the window of my club, which consists mostly of retired Indian Civil servants? We look on at the muddle and the folly and amateurishness, and we ask each other where a single fortnight of it would have landed us.

TARLETON. Very true. Still, Democracy's all right, you know. Read Mill. Read Jefferson.

LORD SUMMERHAYS. Yes. Democracy reads well, but it doesn't act well, like some people's plays. No, no, my friend Tarleton, to make Democracy work, you need an aristocratic democracy. To make Aristocracy work, you need a democratic aristocracy. You've got neither, and there's an end of it.

TARLETON. Still, you know, the superman may come. The superman's an idea. I believe in ideas. Read What's His Name.

LORD SUMMERHAYS. Reading is a dangerous amusement, Tarleton. I wish I could persuade your free library people of that.

TARLETON. Why, man, it's the beginning of education.

LORD SUMMERHAYS. On the contrary, it's the end of it. How can you dare teach a man to read until you've taught him everything else first?

JOHNNY [intercepting his father's reply by coming out of the swing and taking the floor]. Leave it at that. That's good sense. Anybody on for a game of tennis?

BENTLEY. Oh, let's have some more improving conversation. Wouldn't you rather, Johnny?

JOHNNY. If you ask me, no.

TARLETON. Johnny, you don't cultivate your mind. You don't read.

JOHNNY [coming between his mother and Lord Summerhays, book in hand]. Yes I do. I bet you what you like that, page for page, I read more than you, though I don't talk about it so much. Only, I don't read the same books. I like a book with a plot in it. You like a book with nothing in it but some idea that the chap that writes it keeps worrying, like a cat chasing its own tail. I can stand a little of it, just as I can stand watching the cat for two minutes, say, when I've nothing better to do. But a man soon gets fed up with that sort of thing. The fact is, you look on an author as a sort of god. I look on him as a man that I pay to do a certain thing for me. I pay him to amuse me and to take me out of myself and make me forget.

TARLETON. No. Wrong principle. You want to remember. Read Kipling. "Lest we forget."

JOHNNY. If Kipling wants to remember, let him remember. If he had to run Tarleton's Underwear, he'd be jolly glad to forget. As he has a much softer job, and wants to keep himself before the public, his cry is, "Don't you forget the sort of things I'm rather clever at writing about." Well, I don't blame him. It's his business. I should do the same in his place. But what he wants and what I want are two different things. I want to forget, and I pay another man to make me forget. If I buy a book or go to the theatre, I want to forget the shop and forget myself from the moment I go in to the moment I come out. That's what I pay my money for. And if I find that the author's simply getting at me the whole time, I consider that he's obtained my money under false pretences. I'm not a morbid crank. I'm a natural man, and, as such, I don't like being got at. If a man in my employment did it, I should sack him. If a member of my club did it, I should cut him. If he went too far with it, I should bring his conduct before the committee. I might even punch his head, if it came to that. Well, who and what is an author that he should be privileged to take liberties that are not allowed to other men?

MRS TARLETON. You see, John! What have I always told you? Johnny has as much to say for himself as anybody when he likes.

JOHNNY. I'm no fool, mother, whatever some people may fancy. I don't set up to have as many ideas as the Governor, but what ideas I have are consecutive, at all events. I can think as well as talk.

BENTLEY [to Tarleton, chuckling]. Had you been glad to have me back, too at the end of six months; but I wouldn't go I just let him want, and serve him right! Well, Joey was a most awfully clever fellow, and so nice! there, old man, hadn't he? You are rather all over the shop with your ideas, ain't you?

JOHNNY [handsomely] I'm not saying anything against you, Governor. But I do say that the time has come for sane, healthy, unpretending men like me to make a stand against this conspiracy of the writing and talking and artistic lot to put us in the back row. It isn't a fact that we're inferior to them; it's a put-up job, and it's they that have put the job up. It's we that run the country for them and all the thanks we get is to be told we're Philistines and vulgar tradesmen and sordid city men and so forth, and that they're all angels of light and leading. The time has come to assert ourselves and put a stop to their stuck-up nonsense. Perhaps if we had nothing better to do than talking or writing, we could do it better than they. Anyhow, they're the failures and refuse of business (hardly a man of them that didn't begin in an office) and we're the successes of it. Thank God I haven't failed yet at anything, and I don't believe I should fail at literature if it would pay me to turn my hand to it.

BENTLEY. Hear, hear!

MRS TARLETON Fancy you writing a book, Johnny! Do you think he could, Lord Summerhays?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Why not? As a matter of fact all the really prosperous authors I have met since my return to England have been very like him.

TARLETON [again impressed] That's an idea. That's a new idea. I believe I ought to have made Johnny an author. I've never said so before for fear of hurting his feelings because after all the lad can't help it, but I've never thought Johnny worth tuppence as a man of business.

JOHNNY [sarcastic] Oh! You think you've always kept that to yourself, do you, Governor? I know your opinion of me as well as you know it yourself. It takes one man of business to appreciate another and you aren't, and you never have been, a real man of business. I know where Tarleton's would have been three or four times if it hadn't been for me. [With a snort and a nod to emphasize the implied warning he retreats to the Turkish bath, and lolls against it with an air of good-humoured indifference]

TARLETON Well, who denies it? You're quite right, my boy. I don't mind confessing to you all that the circumstances that condemned me to keep a shop are the biggest tragedy in modern life. I ought to have been a writer. I'm essentially a man of ideas. When I was a young man I sometimes used to pray that I might fail, so that I should be justified in giving up business and doing something something first-class. But it was no good. I couldn't fail. I said to myself that if I could only once go to my Chickabiddy here and shew her a chartered accountant's statement proving that I'd made £20 less than last year, I could ask her to let me chance Johnny's and Hypatia's future by going into literature. But it was no good. First it was £250 more than last year. Then it was £700. Then it was £2000. Then I saw it was no use. Prometheus was chained to his rock, read Shelley, read Mrs Browning. Well, well, it was not to be. [He rises solemnly] Lord Summerhays, I ask you to excuse me for a few moments. There are times when a man needs to meditate in solitude on his destiny. A chord is touched, and he sees the drama of his life as a spectator sees a play. Laugh if you feel inclined, no man sees the comic side of it more than I. In the theatre of life everyone may be amused except the actor. [Brightening] There's an idea in this, an idea for a picture. What a pity young Bentley is not a painter! Tarleton meditating on his destiny. Not in a toga. Not in the trappings of the tragedian or the philosopher. In plain coat and trousers, a man like any other man. And beneath that coat and trousers a human soul. Tarleton's Underwear! [He goes out gravely into the vestibule]

MRS TARLETON [fondly] I suppose it's a wife's partiality, Lord Summerhays, but I do think John is really great. I'm sure he was meant to be a king. My father looked down on John, because he was a rate collector and John kept a shop. It hurt his pride to have to borrow money so often from John, and he used to console himself by saying, "After all he's only a linen draper." But at last one day he said to me, "John is a king."

BENTLEY How much did he borrow on that occasion?

LORD SUMMERHAYS [sharply] Bentley!

MRS TARLETON Oh, don't scold the child; he'd have to say something like that if it was to be his last word on earth. Besides, he's quite right, my poor father had asked for his usual five pounds, and John gave him a hundred in his big way. Just like a king.

LORD SUMMERHAYS Not at all I had five kings to manage in Jinghiskahn, and I think you do your husband some injustice, Mrs Tarleton They pretended to like me because I kept their brothers from murdering them, but I didnt like them And I like Tarleton

MRS TARLETON Everybody does I really must go and make the cook do him a Welsh rabbit He expects one on special occasions [She goes to the inner door] Johnny when he comes back ask him where we're to put that new Turkish bath Turkish baths are his latest [She goes out]

JOHNNY [coming forward again] Now that the Governor has given himself away, and the old lady's gone, I'll tell you something, Lord Summerhays If you study men who've made an enormous pile in business without being keen on money, you'll find that they all have a slate off The Governor's a wonderful man, but he's not quite all there, you know If you notice, he's different from me, and whatever my failings may be, I'm a sane man Erratic thats what he is And the danger is that some day he'll give the whole show away

LORD SUMMERHAYS Giving the show away is a method like any other method Keeping it to yourself is only another method I should keep an open mind about it

JOHNNY Has it ever occurred to you that a man with an open mind must be a bit of a scoundrel? If you ask me, I like a man who makes up his mind once for all as to whats right and whats wrong and then sticks to it At all events you know where to have him

LORD SUMMERHAYS That may not be his object

BENTLEY He may want to have you, old chap

JOHNNY Well, let him If a member of my club wants to steal my umbrella, he knows where to find it If a man put up for the club who had an open mind on the subject of property in umbrellas, I should blackball him An open mind is all very well in clever talky-talky, but in conduct and in business give me solid ground

LORD SUMMERHAYS Yes the quicksands make life difficult Still, there they are It's no use pretending they're rocks

JOHNNY I dont know You can draw a line and make other chaps toe it Thats what I call morality

LORD SUMMERHAYS Very true But you dont make any progress when youre toeing a line

HYPATIA [suddenly, as if she could bear no more of it] Bentley do go and play tennis with Johnny You must take exercise

LORD SUMMERHAYS Do, my boy, do [To Johnny] Take him out and make him skip about

BENTLEY [rising reluctantly] I promised you two inches more round my chest this summer I tried exercises with an indiarubber expander, but I wasnt strong enough instead of my expanding it, it crumpled me up Come along, Johnny

JOHNNY Do you no end of good, young chap [He goes out with Bentley through the pavilion]

Hypatia throws aside her work with an enormous sigh of relief

LORD SUMMERHAYS At last!

HYPATIA At last Oh, if I might only have a holiday in an asylum for the dumb How I envy the animals! They cant talk If Johnny could only put back his ears or wag his tail instead of laying down the law, how much better it would be! We should know when he was cross and when he was pleased, and thats all we know now, with all his talk It never stops talk, talk, talk, talk Thats my life All the day I listen to mamma talking, at dinner I listen to papa talking, and when papa stops for breath I listen to Johnny talking

LORD SUMMERHAYS You make me feel very guilty I talk too, I'm afraid

HYPATIA Oh, I dont mind that, because your talk is a novelty But it must have been dreadful for your daughters

LORD SUMMERHAYS I suppose so

HYPATIA If parents would only realize how they bore their children! Three or four times in the last half hour Ive been on the point of screaming

LORD SUMMERHAYS Were we very dull?

HYPATIA Not at all you were very clever Thats whats so hard to bear, because it makes it so difficult to avoid listening You see, I'm young, and I do so want something to happen My mother tells me that when I'm her age, I shall be only too glad that nothing's happened, but I'm not her age, so what good is that to me? Theres my father in the garden, meditating on his destiny All very well for him he's had a destiny to meditate on, but I havnt had any destiny yet Everything's happened to him nothing's happened to me Thats why this unending talk is so madden-ingly uninteresting to me

LORD SUMMERHAYS It would be worse if we sat in silence

HYPATIA No it wouldnt If you all sat in silence, as if you were waiting for something to happen, then there would be hope even if nothing did happen But this eternal cackle, cackle, cackle about things in general is only fit for old, old, OLD people I suppose it means something to them theyve had their fling All I listen for is some sign of it ending in something, but just when it seems to be coming to a point, Johnny or papa just starts another hare, and it all begins over again, and I realize that it's never going to lead anywhere and never going to stop Thats when I want to scream I wonder how you can stand it

LORD SUMMERHAYS Well, I'm old and gar-rulous myself, you see Besides, I'm not here of my own free will, exactly I came because you ordered me to come

HYPATIA Didnt you want to come?

LORD SUMMERHAYS My dear after thirty years of managing other people's business, men lose the habit of considering what they want or dont want

HYPATIA Oh, dont begin to talk about what men do, and about thirty years experience If you cant get off that subject, youd better send for Johnny and papa and begin it all over again

LORD SUMMERHAYS I'm sorry I beg your pardon

HYPATIA I asked you didnt you want to come?

LORD SUMMERHAYS I did not stop to consider whether I wanted or not, because when I read your letter I knew I had to come

HYPATIA Why?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Oh come, Miss Tarleton!
Really! really! Dont force me to call you a blackmailer to your face You have me in your power, and I do what you tell me very obediently Dont ask me to pretend I do it of my own free will

HYPATIA I dont know what a blackmailer is I havnt even that much experience

LORD SUMMERHAYS A blackmailer, my dear young lady, is a person who knows a disgraceful secret in the life of another person, and extorts money from that other person by threatening to make his secret public unless the money is paid

HYPATIA I havnt asked you for money

LORD SUMMERHAYS No, but you asked me to come down here and talk to you, and you mentioned casually that if I didnt youd have nobody to talk about me to but Bentley
That was a threat, was it not?

HYPATIA Well, I wanted you to come

LORD SUMMERHAYS In spite of my age and my unfortunate talkativeness?

HYPATIA I like talking to you I can let myself go with you I can say things to you
I cant say to other people

LORD SUMMERHAYS I wonder why?

HYPATIA Well, you are the only really clever, grown-up, high-class, experienced man I know who has given himself away to me by making an utter fool of himself with me You cant wrap yourself up in your toga after that You cant give yourself airs with me

LORD SUMMERHAYS You mean you can tell
Bentley about me if I do

HYPATIA Even if there wasnt any Bentley even if you didnt care (and I really dont see why you should care so much), still, we never could be on conventional terms with one another again Besides, Ive got a feeling for you almost a ghastly sort of love for you

LORD SUMMERHAYS [shrinking] I beg you—no, please

HYPATIA Oh, it's nothing at all flattering, and, of course, nothing wrong, as I suppose youd call it

LORD SUMMERHAYS Please believe that I know that When men of my age—

HYPATIA [impatiently] Oh, do talk about yourself when you mean yourself, and not about men of your age

LORD SUMMERHAYS I'll put it as bluntly as I can When, as you say, I made an utter fool of myself, believe me, I made a poetic fool of myself I was seduced, not by appetites which, thank Heaven, Ive long outlived not even by the desire of second childhood for a child companion, but by the innocent impulse to place the delicacy and wisdom and spirituality of my age at the affectionate service of your youth for a few years, at the end of which you would be a grown, strong, formed—widow Alas, my dear, the delicacy of age reckoned, as usual, without the derision and cruelty of youth
You told me that you didnt want to be an old man's nurse, and that you didnt want to have undersized children like Bentley It served me right I dont reproach you I was an old fool But how you can imagine, after that, that I can suspect you of the smallest feeling for me except the inevitable feeling of early youth for late age, or imagine that I have any feeling for you except one of shrinking humiliation, I cant understand

HYPATIA I dont blame you for falling in love with me I shall be grateful to you all my life for it, because that was the first time that anything really interesting happened to me

LORD SUMMERHAYS Do you mean to tell me that nothing of that kind had ever happened before? that no man had ever—

HYPATIA Oh, lots Thats part of the routine of life here the very dullest part of it The young man who comes a-courting is as familiar an incident in my life as coffee for breakfast Of course, he's too much of a gentleman to misbehave himself, and I'm too much of a lady to let him, and he's shy and sheepish, and I'm correct and self-possessed, and at last, when I can bear it no longer, I either frighten him off or give him a chance of proposing, just to see how he'll do it, and refuse him because he does it in the same silly way as all the rest You dont call that an event in one's life, do you? With you it was different I should as soon have expected the North Pole to fall in love with me as you You know I'm only a linen-draper's daughter when all's said I was afraid of you you, a great man! a lord! and older than my father And then, what a situation it was! Just think of it! I was engaged to your son, and you knew nothing about it He was afraid to tell you he brought you down here because he thought if he could throw us together I could get round you because I was such a ripping girl We arranged it all he and I We got Papa and Mamma and Johnny out of the way splendidly, and then Bentley took himself off, and left us—you and me!—to take a walk through the heather and admire the scenery of Hind-head You never dreamt that it was all a plan that what made me so nice was the way I was playing up to my destiny as the sweet girl that was to make your boy happy And then! and then! [She rises to dance and clap her hands in her glee]

LORD SUMMERHAYS [shuddering] Stop, stop Can no woman understand a man's delicacy?

HYPATIA [revelling in the recollection] And then—ha, ha!—you proposed You! A father! For your son's girl!

LORD SUMMERHAYS Stop, I tell you Dont profane what you dont understand

HYPATIA That was something happening at last with a vengeance It was splendid It was my first peep behind the scenes If I'd been seventeen I should have fallen in love with you Even as it is, I feel quite differently towards you from what I do towards other old men So [offering her hand] you may kiss my hand if that will be any fun for you

LORD SUMMERHAYS [rising and recoiling to the table, deeply revolted] No, no, no How dare you? [She laughs mischievously] How callous youth is! How coarse! How cynical! How ruthlessly cruel!

HYPATIA Stuff! It's only that youre tired of a great many things Ive never tried

LORD SUMMERHAYS It's not alone that Ive not forgotten the brutality of my own boyhood But do try to learn, glorious young beast that you are, that age is squeamish, sentimental, fastidious If you cant understand my holier feelings, at least you know the bodily infirmities of the old You know that I darent eat all the rich things you gobble up at every meal, that I cant bear the noise and racket and clatter that affect you no more than they affect a stone Well, my soul is like that too Spare it be gentle with it [he involuntarily puts out his hands to plead, she takes them with a laugh] If you could possibly think of me as half an angel and half an invalid, we should get on much better together

HYPATIA We get on very well, I think Nobody else ever called me a glorious young beast I like that Glorious young beast expresses exactly what I like to be

LORD SUMMERHAYS [extricating his hands and sitting down] Where on earth did you get these morbid tastes? You seem to have been well brought up in a normal, healthy, respectable, middle-class family Yet you go on like the most unwholesome product of the rankest Bohemianism

HYPATIA Thats just it I'm fed up with—

LORD SUMMERHAYS Horrible expression Dont

HYPATIA Oh, I daresay it's vulgar, but theres no other word for it I'm fed up with nice things with respectability, with propriety! When a woman has nothing to do, money and respectability mean that nothing is ever allowed to happen to her I dont want to be good, and I dont want to be bad I just dont want to be bothered about either good or bad I want to be an active verb

LORD SUMMERHAYS An active verb? Oh, I see An active verb signifies to be, to do, or to suffer

HYPATIA Just so how clever of you! I want to be, I want to do, and I'm game to suffer if it costs that But stick here doing nothing but being good and nice and ladylike I simply wont Stay down here with us for a week, and I'll shew you what it means shew it to you going on day after day, year after year, lifetime after lifetime

LORD SUMMERHAYS Shew me what?

HYPATIA Girls withering into ladies Ladies withering into old maids Nursing old women Running errands for old men Good for nothing else at last Oh, you cant imagine the fiendish selfishness of the old people and the maudlin sacrifice of the young It's more unbearable than any poverty more horrible than any regular-right-down wickedness Oh, home! home! parents! family! duty! how I loathe them! How I'd like to see them all blown to bits! The poor escape The wicked escape Well, I cant be poor we're rolling in money it's no use pretending we're not But I can be wicked, and I'm quite prepared to be

LORD SUMMERHAYS You think that easy?

HYPATIA Well, isnt it? Being a man, you ought to know

LORD SUMMERHAYS It requires some natural talent, which can no doubt be cultivated It's not really easy to be anything out of the common

HYPATIA Anyhow, I mean to make a fight for living

LORD SUMMERHAYS Living your own life, I believe the Suffragist phrase is

HYPATIA Living any life Living, instead of withering without even a gardener to snip you off when youre rotten

LORD SUMMERHAYS Ive lived an active life, but Ive withered all the same

HYPATIA No youve worn out thats quite different And youve some life in you yet or you wouldnt have fallen in love with me You can never imagine how delighted I was to find that instead of being the correct sort of big panjandrum you were supposed to be, you were really an old rip like papa

LORD SUMMERHAYS No, no not about your father I really cant bear it And if you must say these terrible things these heart-wounding shameful things, at least find something prettier to call me than an old rip

HYPATIA Well, what would you call a man proposing to a girl who might be—

LORD SUMMERHAYS His daughter yes, I know

HYPATIA I was going to say his granddaughter

LORD SUMMERHAYS You always have one more blow to get in

HYPATIA Youre too sensitive Did you ever make mud pies when you were a kid—beg pardon a child

LORD SUMMERHAYS I hope not

HYPATIA It's a dirty job, but Johnny and I were vulgar enough to like it I like young people because theyre not too afraid of dirt to live Ive grown out of the mud pies, but I like slang, and I like bustling you up by saying things that shock you, and I'd rather put up with swearing and smoking than with dull respectability, and there are lots of things that would just shrivel you up that I think rather jolly Now!

LORD SUMMERHAYS Ive not the slightest doubt of it Dont insist

HYPATIA It's not your ideal, is it?

LORD SUMMERHAYS No

HYPATIA Shall I tell you why? Your ideal is an old woman I daresay she's got a young face, but she's an old woman Old, old, old Squeamish Cant stand up to things Cant enjoy things not real things Always on the shrink

LORD SUMMERHAYS On the shrink! Detestable expression

HYPATIA Bah! you cant stand even a little thing like that What good are you? Oh, what good are you?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Dont ask me I dont know I dont know

Tarleton returns from the vestibule Hypatia sits down demurely

HYPATIA Well, papa have you meditated on your destiny?

TARLETON [puzzled] What? Oh! my destiny Gad, I forgot all about it Jock started a rabbit and put it clean out of my head Besides, why should I give way to morbid introspection? It's a sign of madness Read Lombroso [To Lord Summerhays] Well, Summerhays, has my little girl been entertaining

you?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Yes She is a wonderful entertainer

TARLETON I think my idea of bringing up a young girl has been rather a success Dont you listen to this, Patsy it might make you concerted She's never been treated like a child I always said the same thing to her mother Let her read what she likes Let her do what she likes Let her go where she likes Eh, Patsy?

HYPATIA Oh yes, if there had only been anything for me to do, any place for me to go, anything I wanted to read

TARLETON There, you see! She's not satisfied Restless Wants things to happen Wants adventures to drop out of the sky

HYPATIA [gathering up her work] If youre going to talk about me and my education, I'm off

TARLETON Well, well, off with you [To Lord Summerhays] She's active, like me She actually wanted me to put her into the shop

HYPATIA Well, they tell me that the girls there have adventures sometimes [She goes out through the inner door]

TARLETON She had me there, though she doesnt know it, poor innocent lamb! Public scandal exaggerates enormously, of course, but moralize as you will, superabundant vitality is a physical fact that cant be talked away [He sits down between the writing table and the sideboard] Difficult question this, of bringing up children Between ourselves, it has beaten me I never was so surprised in my life as when I came to know Johnny as a man of business and found out what he was really like How did you manage with your sons?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Well, I really hadnt time to be a father thats the plain truth of the matter Their poor dear mother did the usual thing while they were with us Then of course Eton, Oxford, the usual routine of their class I saw very little of them, and thought very little about them how could I? with a whole province on my hands They and I are—acquaintances Not, perhaps, quite ordinary acquaintances theres a sort of—er—I should almost call it a sort of remorse about the way we shake hands (when we do shake hands) which means, I suppose, that we're sorry we dont care more for one another, and I'm afraid we dont meet oftener than we can help We put each other too much out of countenance It's really a very difficult relation To my mind not altogether a natural one

TARLETON [impressed, as usual] Thats an idea, certainly I dont think anybody has ever written about that

LORD SUMMERHAYS Bentley is the only one who was really my son in any serious sense He was completely spoilt When he was sent to a preparatory school he simply yelled until he was sent home Eton was out of the question, but we managed to tutor him into Oxford No use he was sent down By that time my work was over, and I saw a good deal of him But I could do nothing with him—except look on I should have thought your case was quite different You keep up the middle-class tradition the day school and the business training instead of the university I believe in the day school part of it At all events, you know your own children

TARLETON Do we? I'm not so sure of it Fact is, my dear Summerhays, once childhood is over, once the little animal has got past the stage at which it acquires what you might call a sense of decency, it's all up with the relation between parent and child You cant get over the fearful shyness of it

LORD SUMMERHAYS Shyness?

TARLETON Yes shyness Read Dickens

LORD SUMMERHAYS [surprised] Dickens! Of all authors, Charles Dickens! Are you serious?

TARLETON I dont mean his books Read his letters to his family Read any man's letters to his children Theyre not human Theyre not about himself or themselves Theyre about hotels, scenery, about the weather, about getting wet and losing the tram and what he saw on the road and all that Not a word about himself Forced Shy Duty letters All fit to be published that says everything I tell you theres a wall ten feet thick and ten miles high between parent and child I know what I'm talking about Ive girls in my employment girls and young men I had ideas on the subject I used to go to the parents and tell them not to let their children go out into the world without instruction in the dangers and temptations they were going to be thrown into What did every one of the mothers say to me? "Oh, sir, how could I speak of such things to my own daughter?" The men said I was quite right, but they didnt do it, any more than

I'd been able to do it myself to Johnny. I had to leave books in his way and I felt just awful when I did it. Believe me Summerhays, the relation between the young and the old should be an innocent relation. It should be something they could talk about. Well the relation between parent and child may be an affectionate relation. It may be a useful relation. It may be a necessary relation. But it can never be an innocent relation. You'd die rather than allude to it. Depend on it, in a thousand years it'll be considered bad form to know who your father and mother are. Embarrassing. Better hand Bentley over to me. I can look him in the face and talk to him as man to man. You can have Johnny.

LORD SUMMERHAYS Thank you. I've lived so long in a country where a man may have fifty sons who are no more to him than a regiment of soldiers that I'm afraid I've lost the English feeling about it.

TARLETON [restless again] You mean Jinghiskahn. Ah yes. Good thing the empire Educates us. Opens our minds. Knocks the Bible out of us. And civilizes the other chaps.

LORD SUMMERHAYS Yes it civilizes them. And it uncivilizes us. Their gain. Our loss. Tarleton believe me, our loss.

TARLETON Well why not? Averages out the human race. Makes the nigger half an Englishman. Makes the Englishman half a nigger.

LORD SUMMERHAYS Speaking as the unfortunate Englishman in question I don't like the process. If I had my life to live over again I'd stay at home and supercivilize myself.

TARLETON Nonsense! don't be selfish. Think how you've improved the other chaps. Look at the Spanish empire! Bad job for Spain but splendid for South America. Look at what the Romans did for Britain! They burst up and had to clear out, but think of all they taught us! They were the making of us. I believe there was a Roman camp on Hindhead. I'll shew it to you tomorrow. That's the good side of Imperialism. It's unselfish. I despise the Little Englanders. They're always thinking about England. Smallminded. I'm for the Parliament of man, the federation of the world. Read Tennyson [He settles down again] Then there's the great food question.

LORD SUMMERHAYS [apprehensively] Need we go into that this afternoon?

TARLETON No. but I wish you'd tell the Chickabiddy that the Jinghiskahns eat no end of toasted cheese, and that it's the secret of their amazing health and long life!

LORD SUMMERHAYS Unfortunately they are neither healthy nor long-lived. And they don't eat toasted cheese.

TARLETON There you are! They would be if they ate it. Anyhow say what you like, provided the moral is a Welsh rabbit for my supper.

LORD SUMMERHAYS British morality in a nutshell!

TARLETON [hugely amused] Yes. Ha ha! Awful hypocrites ain't we?

They are interrupted by excited cries from the grounds.

HYPATIA { Papa! Mamma! Come out as fast as you can. Quick. Quick.

BENTLEY { Hello governor! Come out. An aeroplane. Look look.

TARLETON [starting up] Aeroplane! Did he say an aeroplane?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Aeroplane! [A shadow falls on the pavilion, and some of the glass at the top is shattered and falls on the floor.]

Tarleton and Lord Summerhays rush out through the pavilion into the garden.

HYPATIA { Take care. Take care of the chimney.

BENTLEY { Come this side. It's coming right where you're standing.

TARLETON { Hallo! where the devil are you coming? you'll have my roof off.

LORD SUMMERHAYS He's lost control.

MRS TARLETON Look look Hypatia. There are two people in it.

BENTLEY They've cleared it. Well steered!

TARLETON { Yes but they're coming slam into the greenhouse.

LORD SUMMERHAYS { Look out for the glass.

MRS TARLETON { They'll break all the glass. They'll spoil all the grapes.

BENTLEY { Mind where you're coming. He'll save it.

No they're down.

An appalling crash of breaking glass is heard. Everybody shrieks.

MRS TARLETON { Oh, are they killed?
John are they killed?
LORD SUMMERHAYS { Are you hurt? Is anything broken? Can you stand?
HYPATIA { Oh, you must be hurt
Are you sure? Shall I get you some water? Or some wine?
TARLETON { Are you all right? Sure you wont have some brandy just to take off the shock

THE AVIATOR No, thank you Quite right
Not a scratch I assure you I'm all right

BENTLEY What luck! And what a smash!
You are a lucky chap, I can tell you

The Aviator and Tarleton come in through the pavilion, followed by Lord Summerhays and Bentley, the Aviator on Tarleton's right Bentley passes the Aviator and turns to have an admiring look at him Lord Summerhays overtakes Tarleton less pointedly on the opposite side with the same object

THE AVIATOR I'm really very sorry I'm afraid Ive knocked your vinery into a cocked hat [Effusively] You dont mind, do you?

TARLETON Not a bit Come in and have some tea Stay to dinner Stay over the weekend All my life Ive wanted to fly

THE AVIATOR [taking off his goggles] Youre really moie than kind

BENTLEY Why, it's Joey Percival

PERCIVAL Hallo, Ben! That you?

TARLETON What! The man with three fathers!

PERCIVAL Oh! has Ben been talking about me?

TARLETON Consider yourself as one of the family—if you will do me the honor And your friend too Wheres your friend?

PERCIVAL Oh, by the way! before he comes in let me explain I dont know him

TARLETON Eh?

PERCIVAL Havnt even looked at him I'm trying to make a club record with a passenger The club supplied the passenger He just got in, and Ive been too busy handling the aeroplane to look at him I havnt said a word to him, and I cant answer for him socially, but he's an ideal passenger for a flyer
He saved me from a smash

LORD SUMMERHAYS I saw it It was extraordinary When you were thrown out he held on to the top bar with one hand You came past him in the air, going straight for the glass He caught you and turned you off into the flower bed, and then lighted beside you like a bird

PERCIVAL How he kept his head I cant imagine Frankly, I didnt

The Passenger, also begoggled, comes in through the pavilion with Johnny and the two ladies The Passenger comes between Percival and Tarleton, Mrs Tarleton between Lord Sum-merhays and her husband, Hypatia between Percival and Bentley, and Johnny to Bentley's right

TARLETON Just discussing your prowess, my dear sir Magnificent Youll stay to dinner Youll stay the night Stay over the week The Chickabiddy will be delighted

MRS TARLETON Wont you take off your goggles and have some tea?

The passenger begins to remove the goggles

TARLETON Do Have a wash Johnny take the gentleman to your room I'll look after Mr Percival They must—

By this time the passenger has got the goggles off, and stands revealed as a remarkably good-looking woman

MRS TARLETON { Well I never!!!

BENTLEY { [in a whisper] Oh,

I say!

JOHNNY { By George!

LORD SUMMERHAYS { A lady!

HYPATIA { A woman!

TARLETON { [to Percival] You never told me—

PERCIVAL { I hadnt the least idea—

All together

An embarrassed pause

PERCIVAL I assure you if I'd had the faintest notion that my passenger was a lady
I shouldnt have left you to shift for yourself in that selfish way

LORD SUMMERHAYS The lady seems to have shifted for both very effectually, sir

PERCIVAL Saved my life I admit it most gratefully

TARLETON I must apologize, madam, for having offered you the civilities appropriate to the opposite sex And yet, why opposite?
We are all human males and females of the same species When the dress is the same the distinction vanishes I'm proud to receive in my house a lady of evident refinement and distinction Allow me to introduce myself Tarleton John Tarleton (seeing conjecture in the passenger's eye)—yes, yes Tarleton's Underwear My wife, Mrs Tarleton you'll excuse me for having in what I had taken to be a confidence between man and man alluded to her as the Chickabiddy My daughter Hypatia, who has always wanted some adventure to drop out of the sky, and is now, I hope, satisfied at last Lord Summerhays a man known wherever the British flag waves His son Bentley, engaged to Hypatia Mr Joseph Percival, the promising son of three highly intellectual fathers

HYPATIA [startled] Bentley's friend? [Bentley nods]

TARLETON [continuing, to the passenger] May I now ask to be allowed the pleasure of knowing your name?

THE PASSENGER My name is Lina Szczepanowska [pronouncing it Sh-Chepanovska]

PERCIVAL Sh—I beg your pardon?

LINA Szczepanowska

PERCIVAL [dubiously] Thank you

TARLETON [very politely] Would you mind saying it again?

LINA Say fish

TARLETON Fish

LINA Say church

TARLETON Church

LINA Say fish church

TARLETON [remonstrating] But it's not good sense

LINA [inexorable] Say fish church

TARLETON Fish church

LINA Again

TARLETON No, but—[resigning himself] fish church

LINA Now say Szczepanowska

TARLETON Szczepanowska Got it, by Gad [A sibilant whispering becomes audible they are all saying Sh-ch to themselves] Szczepanowska! Not an English name, is it?

LINA Polish I'm a Pole

TARLETON [dithyrambically] Ah yes What other nation, madame, could have produced your magical personality? Your countrywomen have always appealed to our imagination Women of Destiny! beautiful! musical! passionate! tragic! You will be at home here my own temperament is pre-eminently Polish Wont you sit down?

The group breaks up Johnny and Bentley hurry to the pavilion and fetch the two wicker chairs Johnny gives his to Lina Hypatia and Percival take the chairs at the worktable Lord Summerhays gives the chair at the vestibule end of the writing table to Mrs Tarleton, and Bentley replaces it with a wicker chair, which Lord Summerhays takes Johnny remains standing behind the worktable, Bentley behind his father

MRS TARLETON [to Lina] Have some tea now, wont you?

LINA I never drink tea

TARLETON [sitting down at the end of the writing table nearest Lina] Bad thing to aeroplane on, I should imagine Too jumpy Been up much?

LINA Not in an aeroplane I've parachuted, but that's child's play

MRS TARLETON But arnt you very foolish to run such a dreadful risk?

LINA You cant live without running risks

MRS TARLETON Oh, what a thing to say! Didnt you know you might have been killed?

LINA That was why I went up

HYPATIA Of course Cant you understand the fascination of the thing? the novelty! the daring! the sense of something happening!

LINA Oh no It's too tame a business for that I went up for family reasons

TARLETON Eh? What? Family reasons?

MRS TARLETON I hope it wasnt to spite your mother?

PERCIVAL [quickly] Or your husband?

LINA I'm not married And why should I want to spite my mother?

HYPATIA [aside to Percival] That was clever of you, Mr Percival

PERCIVAL What?

HYPATIA To find out

TARLETON I'm in a difficulty I cant understand a lady going up in an aeroplane for family reasons It's rude to be curious and ask questions, but then it's inhuman to be indifferent, as if you didnt care

LINA I'll tell you with pleasure For the last hundred and fifty years, not a single day has passed without some member of my family risking his life—or her life It's a point of honor with us to keep up that tradition Usually several of us do it, but it happens that just at this moment it is being kept up by one of my brothers only Early this morning I got a telegram from him to say that there had been a fire, and that he could do nothing for the rest of the week Fortunately I had an invitation from the Aerial League to see this gentleman try to break the passenger record I appealed to the President of the League to let me save the honor of my family He arranged it for me

TARLETON Oh, I must be dreaming This is stark raving nonsense

LINA [quietly] You are quite awake, sir

JOHNNY We cant all be dreaming the same thing, Governor

TARLETON Of course not, you duffer, but then I'm dreaming you as well as the lady

MRS TARLETON Dont be silly, John The lady is only joking, I'm sure [To Lina] I suppose your luggage is in the aeroplane

PERCIVAL Luggage was out of the question If I stay to dinner I'm afraid I cant change unless youll lend me some clothes

MRS TARLETON Do you mean neither of you?

PERCIVAL I'm afraid so

MRS TARLETON Oh well, never mind Hypatia will lend the lady a gown

LINA Thank you I'm quite comfortable as I am I am not accustomed to gowns they hamper me and make me feel ridiculous, so if you dont mind I shall not change

MRS TARLETON Well, I'm beginning to think I'm doing a bit of dreaming myself

HYPATIA [impatiently] Oh, it's all right, mamma Johnny look after Mr Percival [To Lina, rising] Come with me

Lina follows her to the inner door They all rise

JOHNNY [to Percival] I'll shew you

PERCIVAL Thank you

Lina goes out with Hypatia, and Percival with Johnny

MRS TARLETON Well, this is a nice thing to happen! And look at the greenhouse! Itll cost thirty pounds to mend it People have no right to do such things And you invited them to dinner too! What sort of woman is that to have in our house when you know that all Hindhead will be calling on us to see that aeroplane? Bunny come with me and help me to get all the people out of the grounds I declare they came running as if theyd sprung up out of the earth [she makes for the inner door]

TARLETON No dont you trouble, Chickabiddy I'll tackle em

MRS TARLETON Indeed youll do nothing of the kind youll stay here quietly with Lord Summerhays Youd invite them all to dinner Come, Bunny [She goes out, followed by Bentley Lord Summerhays sits down again]

TARLETON Singularly beautiful woman, Summerhays What do you make of her? She must be a princess Whats this family of warriors and statesmen that risk their lives every day?

LORD SUMMERHAYS They are evidently not warriors and statesmen, or they wouldnt do that

TARLETON Well, then, what the devil are they?

LORD SUMMERHAYS I think I know The last time I saw that lady, she did something I should not have thought possible

TARLETON What was that?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Well, she walked backwards along a taut wire without a balancing pole and turned a somersault in the middle I remember that her name was Lina, and that the other name was foreign, though I dont recollect it

TARLETON Szcz! You couldnt have forgotten that if youd heard it

LORD SUMMERHAYS I didnt hear it I only saw it on a program But it's clear she's an acrobat It explains how she saved Percival And it accounts for her family pride

TARLETON An acrobat, eh? Good! good! good! Summerhays that brings her within reach Thats better than a princess I steeled this evergreen heart of mine when I thought she was a princess Now I shall let it be touched She is accessible Good

LORD SUMMERHAYS I hope you are not serious Remember you have a family You have a position You are not in your first youth

TARLETON No matter

Theres magic in the night

When the heart is young

My heart is young Besides, I'm a married man, not a widower like you A married man can do anything he likes if his wife dont mind A widower cant be too careful Not that I would have you think me an unprincipled man or a bad husband I'm not But Ive a superabundance of vitality Read Pepys' Diary

LORD SUMMERHAYS The woman is your guest, Tarleton

TARLETON Well, is she? A woman I bring into my house is my guest A woman you bring into my house is my guest But a woman who drops bang down out of the sky into my greenhouse and smashes every blessed pane of glass in it must take her chance

LORD SUMMERHAYS Still, you know that my name must not be associated with any scandal You'll be careful, wont you?

TARLETON Oh Lord, yes! Yes, yes, yes, yes, yes I was only joking, of course.

Mrs Tarleton comes back through the inner door

MRS TARLETON Well I never! John I dont think that young woman's right in her head Do you know what she's just asked for?

TARLETON Champagne?

MRS TARLETON No She wants a Bible and six oranges

TARLETON What?

MRS TARLETON A Bible and six oranges

TARLETON I understand the oranges she's doing an orange cure of some sort But what on earth does she want the Bible for?

MRS TARLETON I'm sure I cant imagine She cant be right in her head

LORD SUMMERHAYS Perhaps she wants to read it

MRS TARLETON By why should she? on a weekday at all events What would you advise me to do, Lord Summerhays?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Well, is there a Bible in the house?

TARLETON Stacks of em Theres the family Bible, and the Doré Bible, and the parallel revised version Bible, and the Doves Press Bible and Johnny's Bible and Bobby's Bible and Patsy's Bible and the Chickabiddy's Bible and my Bible, and I daresay the servants could raise a few more between them Let her have the lot

MRS TARLETON Dont talk like that before Lord Summerhays, John

LORD SUMMERHAYS It doesnt matter, Mrs Tarleton in Jinghaskahn it was a punishable offence to expose a Bible for sale The empire has no religion

Lina comes in She has left her cap in Hypatia's room, but has made no other change She stops just inside the door, holding it open, evidently not intending to stay

LINA Oh, Mrs Tarleton, shall I be making myself very troublesome if I ask for a music-stand in my room as well?

TARLETON Not at all You can have the piano if you like Or the gramophone Have the gramophone?

LINA No, thank you no music

MRS TARLETON [going towards her] Do you think it's good for you to eat so many oranges? Arnt you afraid of getting jaundice?

LINA Not in the least But billiard balls will do quite as well

MRS TARLETON But you cant eat billiard balls, child!

TARLETON Get em, Chickabiddy I understand [He imitates a juggler tossing up balls] Eh?

LINA [going to him, past his wife] Just so

TARLETON Billiard balls and cues? Plates, knives, and forks? Two paraffin lamps and a hatstand?

LINA No that is popular low-class business In our family we touch nothing but classical work Anybody can do lamps and hatstands I can do silver bullets That is really hard [She passes on to Lord Summerhays, and looks gravely down at him as he sits by the writing table]

MRS TARLETON Well, I'm sure I dont know what youre talking about, and I only hope you know yourselves However, you shall have what you want, of course [She goes out through the inner door]

LORD SUMMERHAYS Will you forgive my curiosity? What is the Bible for?

LINA To quiet my soul

LORD SUMMERHAYS [with a sigh] Ah, yes, yes It no longer quiets mine, I am sorry to say.

LINA That is because you do not know how to read it Put it up before you on a stand, and open it at the Psalms When you can read them and understand them, quite quietly and happily, and keep six balls in the air all the time, you are in perfect condition, and you'll never make a mistake that evening If you find you cant do that, then go and pray until you can And be very careful that evening

LORD SUMMERHAYS Is that the usual form of test in your profession?

LINA Nothing that we Szczepanowskis do is usual, my lord

LORD SUMMERHAYS Are you all so wonderful?

LINA It is our profession to be wonderful

LORD SUMMERHAYS Do you never condescend to do as common people do? For instance, do you not pray as common people pray?

LINA Common people do not pray, my lord they only beg

LORD SUMMERHAYS You never ask for anything?

LINA No

LORD SUMMERHAYS Then why do you pray?

LINA To remind myself that I have a soul

TARLETON [nalking about] True Fine Good

Beautiful All this damned materialism what good is it to anybody? I've got a soul don't tell me I haven't Cut me up and you can't find it Cut up a steam engine and you can't find the steam But, by George, it makes the engine go Say what you will, Summerhays, the divine spark is a fact

LORD SUMMERHAYS Have I denied it?

TARLETON Our whole civilization is a denial of it Read Walt Whitman

LORD SUMMERHAYS I shall go to the billiard room and get the balls for you

LINA Thank you

Lord Summerhays goes out through the vestibule door

TARLETON [going to her] Listen to me [She turns quickly] What you said just now was beautiful You touch chords You appeal to the poetry in a man You inspire him Come now! You're a woman of the world you're independent you must have driven lots of men crazy You know the sort of man I am, don't you? See through me at a glance, eh?

LINA Yes [She sits down quietly in the chair Lord Summerhays has just left]

TARLETON Good Well, do you like me? Don't misunderstand me I'm perfectly aware that you're not going to fall in love at first sight with a ridiculous old shopkeeper I can't help that ridiculous old shopkeeper I have to carry him about with me whether I like it or not I have to pay for his clothes, though I hate the cut of them especially the waistcoat I have to look at him in the glass while I'm shaving I loathe him because he's a living he My soul's not like that it's like yours I want to make a fool of myself About you Will you let me?

LINA [very calm] How much will you pay?

TARLETON Nothing But I'll throw as many sovereigns as you like into the sea to shew you that I'm in earnest

LINA Are those your usual terms?

TARLETON No I never made that bid before

LINA [producing a dainty little book and preparing to write in it] What did you say your name was?

TARLETON John Tarleton The great John Tarleton of Tarleton's Underwear

LINA [writing] T-a-r-l-e-t-o-n Er—? [She looks up at him inquiringly]

TARLETON [promptly] Fifty-eight

LINA Thank you I keep a list of all my offers I like to know what I'm considered worth

TARLETON Let me look

LINA [offering the book to him] It's in Polish

TARLETON That's no good Is mine the lowest offer?

LINA No the highest

TARLETON What do most of them come to? Diamonds? Motor cars? Furs? Villa at Monte Carlo?

LINA Oh yes all that And sometimes the devotion of a lifetime

TARLETON Fancy that! A young man offering a woman his old age as a temptation!

LINA By the way, you did not say how long

TARLETON Until you get tired of me

LINA Or until you get tired of me?

TARLETON I never get tired I never go on long enough for that But when it becomes so grand, so inspiring that I feel that everything must be an anti-climax after that, then I run away

LINA Does she let you go without a struggle?

TARLETON Yes Glad to get rid of me When love takes a man as it takes me—when it makes him great—it frightens a woman

LINA The lady here is your wife, isn't she? Don't you care for her?

TARLETON Yes And mind! she comes first always I reserve her dignity even when I sacrifice my own You'll respect that point of honor, won't you?

LINA Only a point of honor?

TARLETON [impulsively] No, by God! a point of affection as well

LINA [smiling pleased with him] Shake hands, old pal [she rises and offers him her hand frankly]

TARLETON [giving his hand rather dolefully] Thanks That means no, doesn't it?

LINA It means something that will last longer than yes I like you I admit you to my friendship What a pity you were not trained when you were young! You'd be young still TARLETON I suppose, to an athlete like you, I'm pretty awful, eh?

LINA Shocking

TARLETON Too much crumb Wrinkles Yellow patches that won't come off Short wind I know I'm ashamed of myself I could do nothing on the high rope

LINA Oh yes I could put you in a wheel-barrow and run you along, two hundred feet up

TARLETON [shuddering] Ugh! Well, I'd do even that for you Read The Master Builder

LINA Have you learnt everything from books?

TARLETON Well, have you learnt everything from the flying trapeze?

LINA On the flying trapeze there is often another woman, and her life is in your hands every night and your life in hers

TARLETON Lina I'm going to make a fool of myself I'm going to cry [he crumples into the nearest chair]

LINA Pray instead dont cry Why should you cry? Youre not the first Ive said no to TARLETON If you had said yes, should I have been the first then?

LINA What right have you to ask? Have I asked am I the first?

TARLETON Youre right a vulgar question To a man like me, everybody is the first Life renews itself

LINA The youngest child is the sweetest

TARLETON Dont probe too deep, Lina It hurts

LINA You must get out of the habit of thinking that these things matter so much It's linendraperish

TARLETON Youre quite right Ive often said so All the same, it does matter, for I want to cry. [He buries his face in his arms on the nooktable and sobs]

LINA [going to him] O la la! [She slaps him vigorously but not unkindly, on the shoulder] Courage, old pal, courage! Have you a gymnasium here?

TARLETON Theres a trapeze and bars and things in the billiard room

LINA Come You need a few exercises I'll teach you how to stop crying [She takes his arm and leads him off into the vestibule]

A young man, cheaply dressed and strange in manner, appears in the garden, steals to the pavilion door, and looks in Seeing that there is nobody, he enters cautiously until he has come far enough to see into the hatstand corner He draws a revolver, and examines it, apparently to make sure that it is loaded Then his attention is caught by the Turkish bath He looks down the lunette, and opens the panels

HYPATIA [calling in the garden] Mr Percival! Mr Percival! Where are you?

The young man makes for the door, but sees Percival coming He turns and bolts into the Turkish bath, which he closes upon himself just in time to escape being caught by Percival, who runs in through the pavilion bareheaded He also, it appears, is in search of a hiding-place, for he stops and turns between the two tables to take a survey of the room, then runs into the corner between the end of the sideboard and the wall Hypatia, excited, mischievous, her eyes glowing, runs in, precisely on his trail, turns at the same spot, and discovers him just as he makes a dash for the pavilion door She flies back and intercepts him

HYPATIA Aha! Arnt you glad Ive caught you?

PERCIVAL [illhumoredly turning away from her and coming towards the writing table] No I'm not Confound it, what sort of girl are you? What sort of house is this? Must I throw all good manners to the winds?

HYPATIA [following him] Do, do, do, do, do This is the house of a respectable shopkeeper, enormously rich This is the respectable shopkeeper's daughter, tired of good manners [Slipping her left hand into his right] Come, handsome young man, and play with the respectable shopkeeper's daughter

PERCIVAL [withdrawing quickly from her touch] No, no dont you know you mustnt go on like this with a perfect stranger?

HYPATIA Dropped down from the sky Dont you know that you must always go on like this when you get the chance? You must come to the top of the hill and chase me through the bracken You may kiss me if you catch me

PERCIVAL I shall do nothing of the sort

HYPATIA Yes, you will you cant help yourself Come along [She seizes his sleeve] Fool, fool come along Dont you want to?

PERCIVAL No certainly not I should never be forgiven if I did it

HYPATIA Youll never forgive yourself if you dont

PERCIVAL Nonsense Youre engaged to Ben Ben's my friend What do you take me for?

HYPATIA Ben's old Ben was born old Theyre all old here, except you and me and the man-woman or woman-man or whatever you call her that came with you They never do anything they only discuss whether what other people do is right Come and give them something to discuss

PERCIVAL I will do nothing incorrect

HYPATIA Oh, dont be afraid, little boy youll get nothing but a kiss, and I'll fight like the devil to keep you from getting that But we must play on the hill and race through the heather

PERCIVAL Why?

HYPATIA Because we want to, handsome young man

PERCIVAL But if everybody went on in this way—

HYPATIA How happy! oh how happy the world would be!

PERCIVAL But the consequences may be serious

HYPATIA Nothing is worth doing unless the consequences may be serious My father says so, and I'm my father's daughter

PERCIVAL I'm the son of three fathers I mistrust these wild impulses

HYPATIA Take care You're letting the moment slip I feel the first chill of the wave of prudence Save me

PERCIVAL Really, Miss Tarleton! [She strikes him across the face] Damn you! [Recovering himself, horrified at his lapse] I beg your pardon, but since we've both forgotten ourselves, you'll please allow me to leave the house [He turns towards the inner door, having left his cap in the bedroom]

HYPATIA [standing in his way] Are you ashamed of having said "Damn you" to me?

PERCIVAL I had no right to say it I'm very much ashamed of it I have already begged your pardon

HYPATIA And you're not ashamed of having said "Really, Miss Tarleton!"

PERCIVAL Why should I?

HYPATIA O man, man! mean, stupid, cowardly, selfish masculine male man! You ought to have been a governess I was expelled from school for saying that the very next person that said "Really, Miss Tarleton!" to me, I would strike across the face You were the next

PERCIVAL I had no intention of being offensive Surely there is nothing that can wound any lady in— [He hesitates, not quite convinced] At least—er—I really didn't mean to be disagreeable

HYPATIA Liar

PERCIVAL Of course if you're going to insult me, I am quite helpless You're a woman you can say what you like

HYPATIA And you can only say what you dare Poor wretch it isn't much [He bites his lip, and sits down, very much annoyed] Really, Mr Percival! You sit down in the presence of a lady and leave her standing [He rises hastily] Ha, ha! Really, Mr Percival! Oh really, really, really, really, really, Mr Percival! How do you like it? Wouldn't you rather I damned you?

PERCIVAL Miss Tarleton—

HYPATIA [caressingly] Hypatia, Joey Patsy, if you like

PERCIVAL Look here this is no good You want to do what you like?

HYPATIA Don't you!

PERCIVAL No I've been too well brought up I've argued all through this thing, and I tell you I'm not prepared to cast off the social bond It's like a corset it's a support to the figure even if it does squeeze and deform it a bit I want to be free

HYPATIA Well, I'm tempting you to be free

PERCIVAL Not at all Freedom, my good girl, means being able to count on how other people will behave If every man who dislikes me is to throw a handful of mud in my face, and every woman who likes me is to behave like Potiphar's wife, then I shall be a slave the slave of uncertainty the slave of fear the worst of all slaveries How would you like it if every laborer you met in the road were to make love to you? No Give me the blessed protection of a good stiff conventionality among thoroughly well-brought up ladies and gentlemen

HYPATIA Another talker! Men like conventions because men made them I didn't make them I don't like them I won't keep them Now, what will you do?

PERCIVAL Bolt [He runs out through the pavilion]

HYPATIA I'll catch you [She dashes off in pursuit]

During this conversation the head of the scandalized man in the Turkish bath has repeatedly risen from the lunette, with a strong expression of moral shock It vanishes abruptly as the two turn towards it in their flight At the same moment Tarleton comes back through the vestibule door, exhausted by severe and unaccustomed exercise

TARLETON [looking after the flying figures with amazement] Hallo, Patsy what's up? Another aeroplane? [They are far too pre-occupied to hear him, and he is left staring after them as they rush away through the garden He goes to the pavilion door and looks up, but the heavens are empty His exhaustion disables him from further inquiry He dabs his brow with his handkerchief, and nalks stiffly to the nearest comenient support, which happens to be the Turkish bath He props himself upon it with his elbow, and covers his eyes with his hand for a moment After a fen sighing breaths he feels a little better, and uncovers his eyes The man's head rises from the lunette a few irches from his nose He recoils from the bath with a violent start Oh Lord! My brain's gone [Calling piteously] Chickabiddy! [He staggers down to the writng table]

THE MAN [coming out of the bath, pistol in hand] Another sound, and youre a dead man

TARLETON [braced] Am I? Well, youre a live one thats one comfort I thought you were a ghost [He sits donn, quite undisturbed by the pistol] Who are you, and what the devil were you doing in my new Turkish bath?

THE MAN [with tragic intensity] I am the son of Lucinda Titmus

TARLETON [the name conveying nothing to him] Indeed? And how is she? Quite well, I hope, eh?

THE MAN She is dead Dead, my God! and you are alive

TARLETON [unimpressed by the tragedy but sympathetic] Oh! Lost your mother? Thats sad I'm sorry But we cant all have the luck to die before our mothers, and be nursed out of the world by the hands that nursed us into it

THE MAN Much you care, damn you!

TARLETON Oh dont cut up rough Face it like a man You see I didnt know your mother, but Ive no doubt she was an excellent woman

THE MAN Not know her! Do you dare to stand there by her open grave and deny that you knew her?

TARLETON [trying to recollect] What did you say her name was?

THE MAN Lucinda Titmus

TARLETON Well, I ought to remember a rum name like that if I ever heard it But I dont Have you a photograph or anything?

THE MAN Forgotten even the name of your victim!

TARLETON Oh! she was my victim, was she?

THE MAN She was And you shall see her face again before you die, dead as she is I have a photograph

TARLETON Good.

THE MAN Ive two photographs

TARLETON Still better Treasure the mother's pictures Good boy!

THE MAN One of them as you knew her The other as she became when you flung her aside, and she withered into an old woman

TARLETON She'd have done that anyhow, my lad We all grow old Look at me! [Seeing that the man is embarrassed by his pistol in fumbling for the photographs with his left hand in his breast pocket] Let me hold the gun for you

THE MAN [retreating to the norktable] Stand back Do you take me for a fool?

TARLETON Well, youre a little upset, naturally It does you credit

THE MAN Look here, upon this picture and on this [He holds out the two photographs like a hand at cards, and points to them with the pistol]

TARLETON Good Read Shakespear he has a word for every occasion [He takes the photographs, one in each hand, and looks from one to the other, pleased and interested, but without any sign of recognition] What a pretty gril! Very pretty I can imagine myself falling in love with her when I was your age I wasnt a bad-looking young fellow myself in those days [Looking at the other] Curious that we should both have gone the same way

THE MAN You and she the same way! What do you mean?

TARLETON Both got stout, I mean

THE MAN. Would you have had her deny herself food?

TARLETON No it wouldnt have been any use It's constitutional No matter how little you eat you put on flesh if youre made that way [He resumes his study of the earlier photograph]

THE MAN Is that all the feeling that rises in you at the sight of the face you once knew so well?

TARLETON [too much absorbed in the portrait to heed him] Funny that I cant remember! Let this be a lesson to you, young man I could go into court tomorrow and swear I never saw that face before in my life if it wasnt for that brooch [pointing to the photograph] Have you got that brooch, by the way? [The man again resorts to his breast pocket] You seem to carry the whole family property in that pocket

THE MAN [producing a brooch] Here it is to prove my bona fides

TARLETON [pensively putting the photographs on the table and taking the brooch] I bought that brooch in Cheapside from a man with a yellow wig and a cast in his left eye I've never set eyes on him from that day to this And yet I remember that man, and I can't remember your mother

THE MAN Monster! Without conscience! without even memory! You left her to her shame—

TARLETON [throwing the brooch on the table and rising pepperily] Come, come, young man! none of that Respect the romance of your mother's youth Don't you start throwing stones at her I don't recall her features just at this moment, but I've no doubt she was kind to me and we were happy together If you have a word to say against her, take yourself out of my house and say it elsewhere

THE MAN What sort of a joker are you? Are you trying to put me in the wrong, when you have to answer to me for a crime that would make every honest man spit at you as you passed in the street if I were to make it known?

TARLETON You read a good deal, don't you?

THE MAN What if I do? What has that to do with your infamy and my mother's doom?

TARLETON There, you see! Doom! That's not good sense, but it's literature Now it happens that I'm a tremendous reader always was When I was your age I read books of that sort by the bushel the Doom sort, you know It's odd, isn't it, that you and I should be like one another in that respect? Can you account for it in any way?

THE MAN No What are you driving at?

TARLETON Well, do you know who your father was?

THE MAN I see what you mean now You dare set up to be my father! Thank heaven I've not a drop of your vile blood in my veins

TARLETON [sitting down again with a shrug] Well, if you won't be civil, there's no pleasure in talking to you, is there? What do you want? Money?

THE MAN How dare you insult me?

TARLETON Well, what do you want?

THE MAN Justice

TARLETON You're quite sure that's all?

THE MAN It's enough for me

TARLETON A modest sort of demand, isn't it? Nobody ever had it since the world began, fortunately for themselves, but you must have it, must you? Well, you've come to the wrong shop for it you'll get no justice here we don't keep it Human nature is what we stock

THE MAN Human nature! Debauchery! gluttony! selfishness! robbery of the poor! Is that what you call human nature?

TARLETON No that's what you call it Come, my lad! What's the matter with you? You don't look starved, and you've a decent suit of clothes

THE MAN Forty-two shillings

TARLETON They can do you a very decent suit for forty-two shillings Have you paid for it?

THE MAN Do you take me for a thief? And do you suppose I can get credit like you?

TARLETON Then you were able to lay your hand on forty-two shillings Judging from your conversational style, I should think you must spend at least a shilling a week on romantic literature

THE MAN Where would I get a shilling a week to spend on books when I can hardly keep myself decent? I get books at the Free Library

TARLETON [springing to his feet] What!!!

THE MAN [recoiling before his vehemence] The Free Library There's no harm in that TARLETON Ingrate! I supply you with free books, and the use you make of them is to persuade yourself that it's a fine thing to shoot me [He throws himself doggedly back into his chair] I'll never give another penny to a Free Library

THE MAN You'll never give another penny to anything This is the end for you and me

TARLETON Pooh! Come, come, man! talk business What's wrong? Are you out of employment?

THE MAN No This is my Saturday afternoon Don't flatter yourself that I'm a loafer or a criminal I'm a cashier, and I defy you to say that my cash has ever been a farthing wrong I've a right to call you to account because my hands are clean TARLETON Well, call away What have I to account for? Had you a hard time with your mother? Why didn't she ask me for money?

THE MAN She'd have died first Besides, who wanted your money? Do you suppose we lived in the gutter? My father mayn't have been in as large a way as you, but he was better connected, and his shop was as respectable as yours

TARLETON I suppose your mother brought him a little capital

THE MAN I don't know What's that got to do with you?

TARLETON Well, you say she and I knew one another and parted. She must have had something off me then you know. One doesn't get out of these things for nothing. Hang it, young man, do you suppose I've no heart? Of course she had her due and she found a husband with it, and set him up in business with it and brought you up respectably, so what the devil have you to complain of?

THE MAN Are women to be ruined with impunity?

TARLETON I haven't ruined any woman that I'm aware of. I've been the making of you and your mother.

THE MAN Oh, I'm a fool to listen to you and argue with you. I came here to kill you and then kill myself.

TARLETON Begin with yourself, if you don't mind. I've a good deal of business to do still before I die. Haven't you?

THE MAN No. That's just it. I've no business to do. Do you know what my life is? I spend my days from nine to six—nine hours of daylight and fresh air—in a stuffy little den counting another man's money. I've an intellect, a mind and a brain and a soul and the use he makes of them is to fix them on his tuppences and his eighteenpences and his two pound seventeen and tenpences and see how much they come to at the end of the day and take care that no one steals them. I enter and enter, and add and add, and take money and give change and fill cheques and stamp receipts, and not a penny of that money is my own. Not one of those transactions has the smallest interest for me or anyone else in the world but him and even he couldn't stand it if he had to do it all himself. And I'm envied, aye, envied for the variety and liveliness of my job, by the poor devil of a bookkeeper that has to copy all my entries over again. Fifty thousand entries a year that poor wretch makes, and not ten out of the fifty thousand ever has to be referred to again and when all the figures are counted up and the balance sheet made out, the boss isn't a penny the richer than he'd be if bookkeeping had never been invented. Of all the damnable waste of human life that ever was invented, clerking is the very worst.

TARLETON Why not join the territorials?

THE MAN Because the boss won't let me. He hasn't the sense to see that it would pay him to get some cheap soldiering out of me. How can a man tied to a desk from nine to six be anything—be even a man let alone a soldier? But I'll teach him and you a lesson. I've had enough of living a dog's life and despising myself for it. I've had enough of being talked down to by hogs like you and wearing my life out for a salary that wouldn't keep you in cigars. You'll never believe that a clerk's a man until one of us makes an example of one of you.

TARLETON Despotism tempered by assassination, eh?

THE MAN Yes. That's what they do in Russia. Well, a business office is Russia as far as the clerks are concerned. So don't you take it so coolly. You think I'm not going to do it, but I am.

TARLETON [rising and facing him] Come, now, as man to man! It's not my fault that you're poorer than I am, and it's not your fault that I'm richer than you. And if you could undo all that passed between me and your mother, you wouldn't undo it, and neither would she. But you're sick of your slavery, and you want to be the hero of a romance and to get into the papers. Eh? A son revenges his mother's shame. Villain weltering in his gore. Mother look down from heaven and receive your unhappy son's last sigh.

THE MAN Oh, rot! do you think I read novelettes? And do you suppose I believe such superstitions as heaven? I go to church because the boss told me I'd get the sack if I didn't. Free England! Ha! [Lina appears at the pavilion door, and comes swiftly and noiselessly forward on seeing the man with a pistol in his hand]

TARLETON You're afraid of getting the sack, but you're not afraid to shoot yourself.

THE MAN Damn you! you're trying to keep me talking until somebody comes. [He raises the pistol desperately, but not very resolutely]

LINA [at his right elbow] Somebody has come.

THE MAN [turning on her] Stand off! I'll shoot you if you lay a hand on me. I will, by God.

LINA You can't cover me with that pistol. Try.

He tries, presenting the pistol at her face. She moves round him in the opposite direction to the hands of a clock with a light dancing step. He finds it impossible to cover her with the pistol. She is always too far to his left. Tarleton behind him, grips his wrist and drags his arm straight up, so that the pistol points to the ceiling. As he tries to turn on his assailant, Lina grips his other wrist

LINA Please stop I cant bear to twist anyone's wrist, but I must if you dont let the pistol go

THE MAN [letting Tarleton take it from him] All right I'm done Couldnt even do that job decently Thats a clerk all over Very well send for your damned police and make an end of it I'm accustomed to prison from nine to six I daresay I can stand it from six to nine as well

TARLETON Dont swear Thats a lady [He throws the pistol on the writing table]

THE MAN [looking at Lina in amazement] Beaten by a female! It needed only this [He collapses in the chair near the worktable, and hides his face They cannot help pitying him]

LINA Old pal dont call the police Lend him a bicycle and let him get away

THE MAN I cant ride a bicycle I never could afford one I'm not even that much good TARLETON If I gave you a hundred pound note now to go and have a good spree with, I wonder would you know how to set about it Do you ever take a holiday?

THE MAN Take! I got four days last August

TARLETON What did you do?

THE MAN I did a cheap trip to Folkestone I spent sevenpence on dropping pennies into silly automatic machines and peepshows of rowdy girls having a jolly time I spent a penny on the lift and fourpence on refreshments That cleaned me out The rest of the time I was so miserable that I was glad to get back to the office Now you know

LINA Come to the gymnasium I'll teach you how to make a man of yourself [The man is about to rise irresolutely, from the mere habit of doing what he is told, when Tarleton stops him]

TARLETON Young man dont Youve tried to shoot me, but I'm not vindictive I draw the line at putting a man on the rack If you want every joint in your body stretched until it's an agony to live—until you have an unnatural feeling that all your muscles are singing and laughing with pain—then go to the gymnasium with that lady But you'll be more comfortable in jail

LINA [greatly amused] Was that why you went away, old pal? Was that the telegram you said you had forgotten to send?

Mrs Tarleton comes in hastily through the inner door

MRS TARLETON [on the steps] Is anything the matter, John? Nurse says she heard you calling me a quarter of an hour ago, and that your voice sounded as if you were ill [She comes between Tarleton and the man] Is anything the matter?

TARLETON This is the son of an old friend of mine Mr—er—Mr Gunner [To the man, who rises awkwardly] My wife

MRS TARLETON Good evening to you

GUNNER Er—[He is too nervous to speak, and makes a shambling bow]

Bentley looks in at the pavilion door, very peevish, and too preoccupied with his own affairs to pay any attention to those of the company

BENTLEY I say has anybody seen Hypatia? She promised to come out with me, and I cant find her anywhere And wheres Joey?

GUNNER [suddenly breaking out aggressively, being incapable of any middle way between submissiveness and violence] I can tell you where Hypatia is I can tell you where Joey is And I say it's a scandal and an infamy If people only knew what goes on in this so-called respectable house it would be put a stop to These are the morals of our pious capitalist class! This is your rotten bourgeoisie! This—

MRS TARLETON Dont you dare use such language in company I wont allow it

TARLETON All right, Chickabiddy it's not bad language it's only Socialism

MRS TARLETON Well, I wont have any Socialism in my house

TARLETON [to Gunner] You hear what Mrs Tarleton says Well, in this house everybody does what she says or out they go GUNNER Do you suppose I want to stay? Do you think I would breathe this polluted atmosphere a moment longer than I could help?

BENTLEY [running forward between Lina and Gunner] But what did you mean by what you said about Miss Tarleton and Mr Percival, you beastly rotter, you?

GUNNER [to Tarleton] Oh! is Hypatia your daughter? And Joey is Mister Percival, is he? One of your set, I suppose One of the smart set! One of the bridge-playing, eighty-horse-power, week-ender set! One of the johnnies I slave for! Well, Joey has more decency than your daughter, anyhow The women are the worst I never believed it til I saw it with my own eyes Well, it wont last for ever The writing is on the wall Rome fell Babylon fell Hindhead's turn will come

MRS TARLETON [naively looking at the wall for the writing] Whatever are you talking about, young man?

GUNNER I know what I'm talking about I went into that Turkish bath a boy I came out a man

MRS TARLETON Good gracious! he's mad [To Lina] Did John make him take a Turkish bath?

LINA No He doesn't need Turkish baths he needs to put on a little flesh I don't understand what it's all about I found him trying to shoot Mr Tarleton

MRS TARLETON [with a scream] Oh! and John encouraging him, I'll be bound! Bunny you go for the police [To Gunner] I'll teach you to come into my house and shoot my husband

GUNNER Teach away I never asked to be let off I'm ashamed to be free instead of taking my part with the rest Women—beautiful women of noble birth—are going to prison for their opinions Girl students in Russia go to the gallows, let themselves be cut in pieces with the knout, or driven through the frozen snows of Siberia, sooner than stand looking on tamely at the world being made a hell for the toiling millions If you were not all skunks and cowards you'd be suffering with them instead of battenning here on the plunder of the poor

MRS TARLETON [much vexed] Oh, did you ever hear such silly nonsense? Bunny go and tell the gardener to send over one of his men to Grayshott for the police

GUNNER I'll go with him I intend to give myself up I'm going to expose what I've seen here, no matter what the consequences may be to my miserable self

TARLETON Stop You stay where you are, Ben Chickabiddy you've never had the police in If you had you'd not be in a hurry to have them in again Now, young man cut the cackle, and tell us, as short as you can, what did you see?

GUNNER I can't tell you in the presence of ladies

MRS TARLETON Oh, you are tiresome As if it mattered to anyone what you saw Me! A married woman that might be your mother [To Lina] And I'm sure you're not particular, if you'll excuse my saying so TARLETON Out with it What did you see?

GUNNER. I saw your daughter with my own eyes—oh well, never mind what I saw

BENTLEY [almost crying with anxiety] You beastly rotter I'll get Joey to give you such a hiding—

TARLETON You can't leave it at that, you know What did you see my daughter doing?

GUNNER After all, why shouldn't she do it? The Russian students do it Women should be as free as men I'm a fool I'm so full of your bourgeois morality that I let myself be shocked by the application of my own revolutionary principles If she likes the man why shouldn't she tell him so?

MRS TARLETON I do wonder at you, John, letting him talk like this before everybody [Turning rather tartly to Lina] Would you mind going away to the drawing room just for a few minutes, Miss Chipenoska This is a private family matter, if you don't mind

LINA I should have gone before, Mrs Tarleton if there had been anyone to protect Mr Tarleton and the young gentleman [She goes out through the inner door]

GUNNER There you are! It's all of a piece here The men effeminate, the women unsexed—

TARLETON Don't begin again, old chap Keep it for Trafalgar Square

HYPATIA'S VOICE OUTSIDE No, no [She breaks off in a stifled half laugh, half scream, and is seen darting across the garden with Percival in hot pursuit Immediately afterwards she appears again, and runs into the pavilion Finding it full of people, including a stranger, she stops, but Percival, flushed and reckless, rushes in and seizes her before he, too, realizes that they are not alone He releases her in confusion]

Dead silence They are all afraid to look at one another except Mrs Tarleton, who stares sternly at Hypatia Hypatia is the first to recover her presence of mind

HYPATIA Excuse me rushing in like this Mr Percival has been chasing me down the hill

GUNNER Who chased him up it? Don't be ashamed Be fearless Be truthful

TARLETON Gunner will you go to Paris for a fortnight? I'll pay your expenses

HYPATIA What do you mean?

GUNNER There was a silent witness in the Turkish bath

TARLETON I found him hiding there Whatever went on here, he saw and heard That's what he means

PERCIVAL [sternly approaching Gunner, and speaking with deep but contained indignation] Am I to understand you as daring to put forward the monstrous and blackguardly lie that this lady behaved improperly in my presence?

GUNNER [turning white] You know what I saw and heard

Hypatia, with a gleam of triumph in her eyes, slips noiselessly into the swing chair, and natches Percival and Gunner, swinging slightly, but otherwise motionless

PERCIVAL I hope it is not necessary for me to assure you all that there is not one word of truth—not one grain of substance—in this rascally calumny, which no man with a spark of decent feeling would have uttered even if he had been ignorant enough to believe it Miss Tarleton's conduct, since I have had the honor of knowing her, has been, I need hardly say, in every respect beyond reproach [To Gunner] As for you, sir, you'll have the goodness to come out with me immediately I have some business with you which can't be settled in Mrs Tarleton's presence or in her house

GUNNER [painfully frightened] Why should I go out with you?

PERCIVAL Because I intend that you shall

GUNNER I won't be bullied by you [Percival makes a threatening step towards him] Police! [He tries to bolt, but Percival seizes him] Leave me go, will you? What right have you to lay hands on me?

TARLETON Let him run for it, Mr Percival He's very poor company We shall be well rid of him Let him go

PERCIVAL Not until he has taken back and made the fullest apology for the abominable lie he has told He shall do that, or he shall defend himself as best he can against the most thorough thrashing I'm capable of giving him [Releasing Gunner, but facing him ominously] Take your choice Which is it to be?

GUNNER Give me a fair chance Go and stick at a desk from nine to six for a month, and let me have your grub and your sport and your lessons in boxing, and I'll fight you fast enough You know I'm no good or you darent bully me like this

PERCIVAL You should have thought of that before you attacked a lady with a dastardly slander I'm waiting for your decision I'm rather in a hurry, please

GUNNER I never said anything against the lady

MRS TARLETON	}	Oh, listen to that!
BENTLEY		What a har!
HYPATIA		Oh!
TARLETON		Oh, come!

PERCIVAL We'll have it in writing if you don't mind [Pointing to the writing table] Sit down, and take that pen in your hand [Gunner looks irresolutely a little way round, then obeys] Now write "I," whatever your name is—

GUNNER [after a vain attempt] I can't My hand's shaking too much You see it's no use I'm doing my best I can't

PERCIVAL Mr Summerhays will write it you can sign it

BENTLEY [insolently to Gunner] Get up [Gunner obeys, and Bentley, shouldering him aside towards Percival, takes his place and prepares to write]

PERCIVAL What's your name?

GUNNER John Brown

TARLETON Oh come! Couldn't you make it Horace Smith? or Algernon Robinson?

GUNNER [agitatedly] But my name is John Brown There are really John Browns How can I help it if my name's a common one?

BENTLEY Shew us a letter addressed to you

GUNNER How can I? I never get any letters I'm only a clerk I can shew you J B on my handkerchief [He takes out a not very clean one]

BENTLEY [with disgust] Oh, put it up again Let it go at John Brown

PERCIVAL Where do you live?

GUNNER 4 Chesterfield Parade, Kentish Town, N W

PERCIVAL [dictating] I, John Brown, of 4 Chesterfield Parade, Kentish Town, do hereby voluntarily confess that on the 31st May 1909 I—[To Tarleton] What did he do exactly?

TARLETON [dictating]—I trespassed on the land of John Tarleton at Hindhead, and effected an unlawful entry into his house, where I secreted myself in a portable Turkish bath—

BENTLEY Go slow, old man Just a moment, "Turkish bath"—yes?

TARLETON [continuing]—with a pistol, with which I threatened to take the life of the said John Tarleton—

MRS TARLETON Oh, John! You might have been killed

TARLETON —and was prevented from doing so only by the timely arrival of the celebrated Miss Lina Szczepanowska

MRS TARLETON Is she celebrated? [Apologetically] I never dreamt—

BENTLEY Look here I'm awfully sorry, but I can't spell Szczepanowska

PERCIVAL I think it's S, z, c, z—Better say the Polish lady

BENTLEY [writing] "the Polish lady"?

TARLETON [to Percival] Now it's your turn

PERCIVAL [dictating] I further confess that I was guilty of uttering an abominable calumny concerning Miss Hypatia Tarleton, for which there was not a shred of foundation

Impressive silence whilst Bentley writes

BENTLEY "foundation"?

PERCIVAL I apologize most humbly to the lady and her family for my conduct— [he waits for Bentley to write]

BENTLEY "conduct"?

PERCIVAL —and I promise Mr Tarleton not to repeat it, and to amend my life—

BENTLEY "amend my life"?

PERCIVAL —and to do what in me lies to prove worthy of his kindness in giving me another chance—

BENTLEY "another chance"?

PERCIVAL —and refraining from delivering me up to the punishment I so richly deserve

BENTLEY "richly deserve"

PERCIVAL [to Hypatia] Does that satisfy you, Miss Tarleton?

HYPATIA Yes that will teach him to tell lies next time

BENTLEY [rising to make place for Gunner and handing him the pen] You mean it will teach him to tell the truth next time

TARLETON Ahem! Do you, Patsy?

PERCIVAL Be good enough to sign [Gunner sits down helplessly and dips the pen in the ink] I hope what you are signing is no mere form of words to you, and that you not only say you are sorry, but that you are sorry

Lord Summerhays and Johnny come in through the pavilion door

MRS TARLETON Stop Mr Percival I think, on Hypatia's account, Lord Summerhays ought to be told about this

Lord Summerhays, wondering what the matter is, comes forward between Percival and Lana Johnny stops beside Hypatia

PERCIVAL Certainly

TARLETON [uneasily] Take my advice and cut it short Get rid of him

MRS TARLETON Hypatia ought to have her character cleared

TARLETON You let well alone, Chuckabiddy Most of our characters will bear a little careful dusting, but they won't bear scouring Patsy is jolly well out of it What does it matter, anyhow?

PERCIVAL Mr Tarleton we have already said either too much or not enough Lord Summerhays will you be kind enough to witness the declaration this man has just signed?

GUNNER I haven't yet. Am I to sign now?

PERCIVAL Of course [Gunner, who is now incapable of doing anything on his own initiative, signs] Now stand up and read your declaration to this gentleman [Gunner makes a vague movement and looks stupidly round Percival adds peremptorily] Now, please

GUNNER [rising apprehensively and reading without punctuation in a hardly audible voice, like a very sick man] I John Brown of 4 Chesterfield Parade Kentish Town do hereby voluntarily confess that on the 31st May 1909 I trespassed on the land of John Tarleton at Hindhead and effected an unlawful entry into his house where I secreted myself in a portable Turkish bath with a pistol with which I threatened to take the life of the said John Tarleton and was prevented from doing so only by the timely arrival of the Polish lady I further confess that I was guilty of uttering an abominable calumny concerning Miss Hypatia Tarleton for which there was not a shred of foundation I apologize most humbly to the lady and her family for my conduct and I promise Mr Tarleton not to repeat it and to amend my life and to do what in me lies to prove worthy of his kindness in giving me another chance and refraining from delivering me up to the punishment I so richly deserve

A short and painful silence follows Then Percival speaks

PERCIVAL Do you consider that sufficient, Lord Summerhays?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Oh quite, quite

PERCIVAL [to Hypatia] Lord Summerhays would probably like to hear you say that you are satisfied, Miss Tarleton

HYPATIA [coming out of the swing, and advancing between Percival and Lord Summerhays] I must say that you have behaved like a perfect gentleman, Mr Percival

PERCIVAL [first bowing to Hypatia, and then turning with cold contempt to Gunner, who is standing helpless] We need not trouble you any further [Gunner turns vaguely towards the pavilion]

JOHNNY [with less refined offensiveness, pointing to the pavilion] That's your way The gardener will shew you the shortest way into the road Go the shortest way

GUNNER [oppressed and disconcerted, hardly knows how to get out of the room] Yes, sir I— [He turns again, appealing to Tarleton] Maynt I have my mother's photographs back again? [Mrs Tarleton pricks up her ears]

TARLETON Eh? What? Oh, the photographs! Yes, yes, yes take them [Gunner takes them from the table, and is creeping away, when Mrs Tarleton puts out her hand and stops him]

MRS TARLETON What's this, John? What were you doing with his mother's photographs?

TARLETON Nothing, nothing Never mind, Chuckabiddy it's all right

MRS TARLETON [snatching the photographs from Gunner's irresolute fingers, and recognizing them at a glance] Lucy Titmus! Oh John, John!

TARLETON [grimly, to Gunner] Young man you're a fool, but you've just put the lid on this job in a masterly manner I knew you would I told you all to let well alone You wouldn't, and now you must take the consequences—or rather I must take them

MRS TARLETON [maternally] Are you Lucy's son?

GUNNER Yes!

MRS TARLETON And why didn't you come to me? I didn't turn my back on your mother when she came to me in her trouble Didn't you know that?

GUNNER No She never talked to me about anything

TARLETON How could she talk to her own son? Shy, Summerhays, shy Parent and child Shy [He sits down at the end of the writing table nearest the sideboard like a man resigned to anything that fate may have in store for him]

MRS TARLETON Then how did you find out?

GUNNER From her papers after she died

MRS TARLETON [shocked] Is Lucy dead? And I never knew! [With an effusion of tenderness] And you here being treated like that, poor orphan, with nobody to take your part! Tear up that foolish paper, child, and sit down and make friends with me

JOHNNY { Hallo, mother this is all very well, you know—
PERCIVAL { But may I point out, Mrs Tarleton, that—

BENTLEY { Do you mean that after what he said of—

HYPATIA { Oh, look here, mamma this is really—

MRS TARLETON Will you please speak one at a time?

Silence

PERCIVAL [in a very gentlemanly manner] Will you allow me to remind you, Mrs Tarleton, that this man has uttered a most serious and disgraceful falsehood concerning Miss Tarleton and myself?

MRS TARLETON I don't believe a word of it If the poor lad was there in the Turkish bath, who has a better right to say what was going on here than he has? You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Patsy, and so ought you too, Mr Percival, for encouraging her [Hypatia retreats to the pavilion, and exchanges grimaces with Johnny, shamelessly enjoying Percival's sudden reverse They know their mother]

PERCIVAL [gasping] Mrs Tarleton I give you my word of honor—

MRS TARLETON Oh, go along with you and your word of honor Do you think I'm a fool? I wonder you can look the lad in the face after bullying him and making him sign those wicked lies, and all the time you carrying on with my daughter before you'd been half an hour in my house Fie, for shame!

PERCIVAL Lord Summerhays I appeal to you Have I done the correct thing or not?

LORD SUMMERHAYS You've done your best, Mr Percival But the correct thing depends for its success on everybody playing the game very strictly As a single-handed game, it's impossible

BENTLEY [suddenly breaking out lamentably] Joey have you taken Hypatia away from me?

LORD SUMMERHAYS [severely] Bentley! Bentley! Control yourself, sir

TARLETON Come, Mr Percival! the shutters are up on the gentlemanly business Try the truth

PERCIVAL I am in a wretched position If I tell the truth nobody will believe me

TARLETON Oh yes they will The truth makes everybody believe it

PERCIVAL It also makes everybody pretend not to believe it Mrs Tarleton you're not playing the game

MRS TARLETON I dont think youve behaved at all nicely Mr Percival

BENTLEY I wouldnt have played you such a dirty trick, Joey [Struggling with a sob] You beast

LORD SUMMERHAYS Bentley you must control yourself Let me say at the same time, Mr Percival that my son seems to have been mistaken in regarding you either as his friend or as a gentleman

PERCIVAL Miss Tarleton I'm suffering this for your sake I ask you just to say that I am not to blame Just that and nothing more

HYPATIA [gloating mischievously over his distress] You chased me through the heather and kissed me You shouldnt have done that if you were not in earnest

PERCIVAL Oh, this is really the limit [Turning desperately to Gunner] Sir I appeal to you As a gentleman! as a man of honor! as a man bound to stand by another man! You were in that Turkish bath You saw how it began Could any man have behaved more correctly than I did? Is there a shadow of foundation for the accusations brought against me?

GUNNER [sorely perplexed] Well, what do you want me to say?

JOHNNY He has said what he had to say already, hasnt he? Read that paper

GUNNER When I tell the truth, you make me go back on it And now you want me to go back on myself! What is a man to do?

PERCIVAL [patiently] Please try to get your mind clear, Mr Brown I pointed out to you that you could not as a gentleman, disparage a lady's character You agree with me, I hope

GUNNER Yes that sounds all right

PERCIVAL But youre also bound to tell the truth Surely youll not deny that

GUNNER Who's denying it? I say nothing against it

PERCIVAL Of course not Well I ask you to tell the truth simply and unaffectedly Did you witness any improper conduct on my part when you were in the bath?

GUNNER No sir

JOHNNY { Then what do you mean by saying that—

HYPATIA { Do you mean to say that I—

BENTLEY { Oh you are a rotter Youre afraid—

TARLETON [rising] Stop [Silence] Leave it at that. Enough said You keep quiet,

Johnny Mr Percival youre whitewashed So are you, Patsy Honors are easy Lets drop the subject The next thing to do is to open a subscription to start this young man on a ranch in some far country thats accustomed to be in a disturbed state He—

MRS TARLETON Now stop joking the poor lad John I wont have it He's been worried to death between you all [To Gunner] Have you had your tea?

GUNNER Tea? No it's too early I'm all right only I had no dinner I didnt think I'd want it I didnt think I'd be alive

MRS TARLETON Oh, what a thing to say! You mustnt talk like that

JOHNNY He's out of his mind He thinks it's past dinnertime

MRS TARLETON Oh, youve no sense Johnny He calls his lunch his dinner and has his tea at half-past six Havnt you, dear?

GUNNER [timidly] Hasnt everybody?

JOHNNY [laughing] Well, by George, thats not bad

MRS TARLETON Now dont be rude, Johnny. you know I dont like it [To Gunner] A cup of tea will pick you up

GUNNER I'd rather not I'm all right

TARLETON [going to the sideboard] Here! try a mouthful of sloe gin

GUNNER No, thanks I'm a teetotaler I cant touch alcohol in any form

TARLETON Nonsense! This isnt alcohol Sloe gin Vegetarian, you know

GUNNER [hesitating] Is it a fruit beverage?

TARLETON Of course it is Fruit beverage Here you are [He gives him a glass of sloe gin]

GUNNER [going to the sideboard] Thanks [He begins to drink it confidently, but the first mouthful startles and almost chokes him] It's rather hot

TARLETON Do you good Dont be afraid of it

MRS TARLETON [going to him] Sip it, dear Dont be in a hurry

Gunner sips slowly, each sip making his eyes water

JOHNNY [coming forward into the place left vacant by Gunner's visit to the sideboard] Well, now that the gentleman has been attended to, I should like to know where we are It may be a vulgar business habit, but I confess I like to know where I am

TARLETON I dont Wherever you are, youre there anyhow I tell you again, leave it at that

BENTLEY I want to know too Hypatia's engaged to me

HYPATIA Bentley if you insult me again if you say another word, I'll leave the house and not enter it until you leave it

JOHNNY Put that in your pipe and smoke it, my boy

BENTLEY [inarticulate with fury and suppressed tears] Oh! Beasts! Brutes!

MRS TARLETON Now dont hurt his feelings, poor little lamb!

LORD SUMMERHAYS [very sternly] Bentley you are not behaving well You had better leave us until you have recovered yourself

Bentley goes out in disgrace, but gets no further than half way to the pavilion door, when, with a wild sob, he throws himself on the floor and begins to yell

MRS TARLETON [running to him] Oh, poor child, poor child! Dont cry, duckie he didnt mean it dont cry

LORD SUMMERHAYS Stop that infernal noise, sir do you hear? Stop it instantly

JOHNNY Thats the game he tried on me There you are! Now, mother! Now, Patsy! You see for yourselves

HYPATIA [covering her ears] Oh you little wretch! Stop him, Mr Percival Kick him

TARLETON Steady on, steady on Easy, Bunny, easy

LINA [appearing at the door] Leave him to me, Mrs Tarleton [Clear and authoritative] Stand clear, please

She quickly lifts the upper half of Bentley from the ground, dives under him, rises with his body hanging across her shoulders, and runs out with him

BENTLEY [in scared, sobered, humble tones as he is borne off] What are you doing? Let me down Please, Miss Szezepanowska— [they pass out of hearing]

An anestruck silence falls on the company as they speculate on Bentley's fate

JOHNNY I wonder what she's going to do with him

HYPATIA Spank him, I hope Spank him hard

LORD SUMMERHAYS I hope so I hope so Tarleton I'm beyond measure humiliated and annoyed by my son's behavior in your house I had better take him home

TARLETON Not at all not at all Now, Chickabiddy as Miss Lina has taken away Ben, suppose you take away Mr Brown for a while

GUNNER [with unexpected aggressiveness] My name isnt Brown [They stare at him he meets their stare defiantly, pugnacious with sloe gin, drains the last drop from his glass, throws it on the sideboard, and advances to the writing table] My name's Baker Julius Baker Mister Baker If any man doubts it, I'm ready for him

MRS TARLETON John you shouldnt have given him that sloe gin It's gone to his head

GUNNER Dont you think it Fruit beverages dont go to the head, and what matter if they did? I say nothing to you, maam I regard you with respect and affection [Lachrymously] You were very good to my mother my poor mother! [Relapsing into his daring mood] But I say my name's Baker, and I'm not to be treated as a child or made a slave of by any man Baker is my name Did you think I was going to give you my real name? Not likely! Not me!

TARLETON So you thought of John Brown That was clever of you

GUNNER Clever! Yes we're not all such fools as you think we clerks It was the bookkeeper put me up to that It's the only name that nobody gives as a false name, he said Clever, eh? I should think so

MRS TARLETON Come now, Julius—

GUNNER [reassuring her gravely] Dont you be alarmed, maam I know what is due to you as a lady and to myself as a gentleman I regard you with respect and affection If you had been my mother, as you ought to have been, I should have had more chance But you shall have no cause to be ashamed of me The strength of a chain is no greater than its weakest link, but the greatness of a poet is the greatness of his greatest moment Shakespear used to get drunk Frederick the Great ran away from a battle But it was what they could rise to, not what they could sink to, that made them great They werent good always, but they were good on their day Well, on my day—on my day, mind you—I'm good for something too I know that Ive made a silly exhibition of myself here I know I didnt rise to the occasion I know that if youd been my mother, youd have been ashamed of me I lost my presence of mind I was a contemptible coward. But [slapping himself on the chest] I'm not the man I was then This is my day I've seen the tenth possessor of a foolish face carried out kicking and screaming by a woman [To Percival] You crowed pretty big over me You hypnotized me But when you were put through the fire yourself, you were found wanting I tell you straight I don't give a damn for you

MRS TARLETON No that's naughty You shouldn't say that before me

GUNNER I would cut my tongue out sooner than say anything vulgar in your presence, for I regard you with respect and affection I was not swearing I was affirming my manhood

MRS TARLETON What an idea! What puts all these things into your head?

GUNNER Oh, don't think, because I'm only a clerk, that I'm not one of the intellectuals I'm a reading man, a thinking man I read in a book—a high class six shilling book—this precept Affirm your manhood It appealed to me I've always remembered it I believe in it I feel I must do it to recover your respect after my cowardly behavior Therefore I affirm it in your presence I tell that man who insulted me that I don't give a damn for him And neither do I TARLETON I say, Summerhays did you have chaps of this sort in Jinghiskahn?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Oh yes they exist everywhere they are a most serious modern problem

GUNNER Yes You're right [Concededly] I'm a problem And I tell you that when we clerks realize that we're problems! well, look out that's all

LORD SUMMERHAYS [suavely, to Gunner] You read a great deal, you say?

GUNNER I've read more than any man in this room, if the truth were known, I expect That's what's going to smash up your Capitalism The problems are beginning to read Ha! We're free to do that here in England. What would you do with me in Jinghiskahn if you had me there?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Well, since you ask me so directly, I'll tell you I should take advantage of the fact that you have neither sense enough nor strength enough to know how to behave yourself in a difficulty of any sort I should warn an intelligent and ambitious policeman that you are a troublesome person

The intelligent and ambitious policeman would take an early opportunity of upsetting your temper by ordering you to move on, and treading on your heels until you were provoked into obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duty Any trifle of that sort would be sufficient to make a man like you lose your self-possession and put yourself in the wrong You would then be charged and imprisoned until things quieted down

GUNNER And you call that justice!

LORD SUMMERHAYS No Justice was not my business I had to govern a province, and I took the necessary steps to maintain order in it Men are not governed by justice, but by law or persuasion When they refuse to be governed by law or persuasion, they have to be governed by force or fraud, or both I used both when law and persuasion failed me Every ruler of men since the world began has done so, even when he has hated both fraud and force as heartily as I do It is as well that you should know this, my young friend, so that you may recognize in time that anarchism is a game at which the police can beat you What have you to say to that?

GUNNER What have I to say to it! Well, I call it scandalous that's what I have to say to it

LORD SUMMERHAYS Precisely that's all anybody has to say to it, except the British public, which pretends not to believe it And now let me ask you a sympathetic personal question Havn't you a headache?

GUNNER Well, since you ask me, I have I've over-excited myself

MRS TARLETON Poor lad! No wonder, after all you've gone through! You want to eat a little and to lie down You come with me I want you to tell me about your poor dear mother and about yourself Come along with me [She leads the way to the inner door]

GUNNER [following her obediently] Thank you kindly, madam [She goes out Before passing out after her, he partly closes the door and lingers for a moment to whisper] Mind I'm not knuckling down to any man here I knuckle down to Mrs Tarleton because she's a woman in a thousand I affirm my manhood all the same Understand I don't give a damn for the lot of you [He hurries out, rather afraid of the consequences of this defiance, which has provoked Johnny to an impatient movement towards him]

HYPATIA Thank goodness he's gone! Oh, what a bore! WHAT a bore!!! Talk! talk! talk!

TARLETON Patsy it's no good We're going to talk And we're going to talk about you

JOHNNY It's no use shirking it, Pat We'd better know where we are

LORD SUMMERHAYS Come, Miss Tarleton Wont you sit down? I'm very tired of standing [Hypatia comes from the pavilion and takes a chair at the worktable Lord Summerhays takes the opposite chair, on her right Percival takes the chair Johnny placed for Lina on her arrival Tarleton sits down at the end of the writing table Johnny remains standing Lord Summerhays continues, with a sigh of relief at being seated] We shall now get the change of subject we are all pining for JOHNNY [puzzled] Whats that?

LORD SUMMERHAYS The great question The question that men and women will spend hours over without complaining The question that occupies all the novel readers and all the playgoers The question they never get tired of.

JOHNNY But what question?

LORD SUMMERHAYS The question which particular young man some young woman will mate with

PERCIVAL As if it mattered!

HYPATIA [sharply] Whats that you said?

PERCIVAL I said As if it mattered

HYPATIA I call that ungentlemanly

PERCIVAL Do you care about that? you who are so magnificently unladylike!

JOHNNY Look here, Mr Percival youre not supposed to insult my sister

HYPATIA Oh, shut up, Johnny I can take care of myself Dont you interfere

JOHNNY Oh, very well If you choose to give yourself away like that—to allow a man to call you unladylike and then to be unladylike, Ive nothing more to say

HYPATIA I think Mr Percival is most ungentlemanly, but I wont be protected I'll not have my affairs interfered with by men on pretence of protecting me I'm not your baby If I interfered between you and a woman, you would soon tell me to mind my own business

TARLETON Children dont squabble Read Dr Watts Behave yourselves

JOHNNY Ive nothing more to say, and as I dont seem to be wanted here, I shall take myself off [He goes out with affected calm through the pavilion]

TARLETON Summerhays a family is an awful thing, an impossible thing Cat and dog Patsy I'm ashamed of you

HYPATIA I'll make it up with Johnny afterwards, but I really cant have him here sticking his clumsy hoof into my affairs

LORD SUMMERHAYS The question is, Mr Percival, are you really a gentleman, or are you not?

PERCIVAL Was Napoleon really a gentleman or was he not? He made the lady get out of the way of the porter and said, "Respect the burden, madam" That was behaving like a very fine gentleman, but he kicked Volney for saying that what France wanted was the Bourbons back again That was behaving rather like a navy Now I, like Napoleon, am not all one piece On occasion, as you have all seen, I can behave like a gentleman On occasion, I can behave with a brutal simplicity which Miss Tarleton herself could hardly surpass TARLETON Gentleman or no gentleman, Patsy what are your intentions?

HYPATIA My intentions! Surely it's the gentleman who should be asked his intentions

TARLETON Come now, Patsy! none of that nonsense Has Mr Percival said anything to you that I ought to know or that Bentley ought to know? Have you said anything to Mr Percival?

HYPATIA Mr Percival chased me through the heather and kissed me

LORD SUMMERHAYS As a gentleman, Mr Percival, what do you say to that?

PERCIVAL As a gentleman, I do not kiss and tell As a mere man a mere cad, if you like, I say that I did so at Miss Tarleton's own suggestion

HYPATIA Beast!

PERCIVAL I dont deny that I enjoyed it But I did not initiate it And I began by running away

TARLETON So Patsy can run faster than you, can she?

PERCIVAL Yes, when she is in pursuit of me She runs faster and faster I run slower and slower And these woods of yours are full of magic There was a confounded fern owl Did you ever hear the churr of a fern owl? Did you ever hear it create a sudden silence by ceasing? Did you ever hear it call its mate by striking its wings together twice and whistling that single note that no nightingale can imitate? That is what happened in the woods when I was running away So I turned, and the pursuer became the pursued

HYPATIA I had to fight like a wild cat

LORD SUMMERHAYS Please dont tell us this It's not fit for old people to hear

TARLETON Come how did it end?

HYPATIA It's not ended yet

TARLETON How is it going to end?

HYPATIA Ask him

TARLETON How is it going to end, Mr Percival?

PERCIVAL I cant afford to marry, Mr Tarleton I've only a thousand a year until my father dies Two people cant possibly live on that

TARLETON Oh cant they? When I married, I should have been jolly glad to have felt sure of the quarter of it

PERCIVAL No doubt, but I am not a cheap person, Mr Tarleton I was brought up in a household which cost at least seven or eight times that, and I am in constant money difficulties because I simply dont know how to live on the thousand a year scale As to ask a woman to share my degrading poverty, it's out of the question Besides, I'm rather young to marry I'm only 28

HYPATIA Papa buy the brute for me

LORD SUMMERHAYS [shrinking] My dear Miss Tarleton dont be so naughty I know how delightful it is to shock an old man, but there is a point at which it becomes barbarous Dont Please dont HYPATIA Shall I tell Papa about you?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Tarleton I had better tell you that I once asked your daughter to become my widow

TARLETON [to Hypatia] Why didnt you accept him, you young idiot?

LORD SUMMERHAYS I was too old

TARLETON All this has been going on under my nose, I suppose You run after young men, and old men run after you And I'm the last person in the world to hear of it

HYPATIA How could I tell you?

LORD SUMMERHAYS Parents and children, Tarleton

TARLETON Oh, the gulf that lies between them! the impassable, eternal gulf! And so I'm to buy the brute for you eh?

HYPATIA If you please, papa

TARLETON Whats the price, Mr Percival?

PERCIVAL We might do with another fifteen hundred if my father would contribute But I should like more

TARLETON It's purely a question of money with you, is it?

PERCIVAL [after a moment's consideration] Practically yes it turns on that

TARLETON I thought you might have some sort of preference for Patsy, you know

PERCIVAL Well, but does that matter, do you think? Patsy fascinates me, no doubt I apparently fascinate Patsy But, believe me, all that is not worth considering One of my three fathers (the priest) has married hundreds of couples couples selected by one another, couples selected by the parents, couples forced to marry one another by circumstances of one kind or another, and he assures me that if marriages were made by putting all the men's names into one sack and the women's names into another, and having them taken out by a blindfolded child like lottery numbers, there would be just as high a percentage of happy marriages as we have here in England He said Cupid was nothing but the blindfolded child pretty idea that, I think! I shall have as good a chance with Patsy as with anyone else Mind I'm not bigoted about it I'm not a doctrinaire not the slave of a theory You and Lord Summerhays are experienced married men If you can tell me of any trustworthy method of selecting a wife, I shall be happy to make use of it I await your suggestions [He looks with polite attention to Lord Summerhays, who, having nothing to say, avoids his eye He looks to Tarleton, who purses his lips glumly and rattles his money in his pockets without a word] Apparently neither of you has anything to suggest Then Patsy will do as well as another, provided the money is forthcoming

HYPATIA Oh, you beauty! you beauty!

TARLETON When I married Patsy's mother, I was in love with her

PERCIVAL For the first time?

TARLETON Yes for the first time

PERCIVAL For the last time?

LORD SUMMERHAYS [revolted] Sir you are in the presence of his daughter

HYPATIA Oh, dont mind me I dont care I'm accustomed to Papa's adventures

TARLETON [blushing painfully] Patsy, my child that was not—not delicate

HYPATIA Well, papa, you've never shewn any delicacy in talking to me about my conduct, and I really dont see why I shouldnt talk to you about yours It's such nonsense! Do you think young people dont know?

LORD SUMMERHAYS I'm sure they dont feel Tarleton this is too horrible, too brutal If neither of these young people have any—any—any—

PERCIVAL Shall we say paternal sentimentality? I'm extremely sorry to shock you, but you must remember that Ive been educated to discuss human affairs with three fathers simultaneously I'm an adult person Patsy is an adult person You do not inspire me with veneration Apparently you do not inspire Patsy with veneration That may surprise you It may pain you I'm sorry It cant be helped What about the money?

TARLETON You dont inspire me with generosity, young man

HYPATIA [laughing with genuine amusement] He had you there, Joey

TARLETON I havnt been a bad father to you, Patsy

HYPATIA I dont say you have, dear If only I could persuade you Ive grown up, we should get along perfectly TARLETON Do you remember Bill Burt?

HYPATIA Why?

TARLETON [to the others] Bill Burt was a laborer here I was going to sack him for kicking his father He said his father had kicked him until he was big enough to kick back Patsy begged him off I asked that man what it felt like the first time he kicked his father, and found that it was just like kicking any other man He laughed and said that it was the old man that knew what it felt like Think of that, Summerhays! think of that!

HYPATIA I havnt kicked you, papa

TARLETON Youve kicked me harder than Bill Burt ever kicked

LORD SUMMERHAYS It's no use, Tarleton Spare yourself Do you seriously expect these young people, at their age, to sympathize with what this gentleman calls your paternal sentimentality?

TARLETON [rustfully] Is it nothing to you but paternal sentimentality, Patsy?

HYPATIA Well, I greatly prefer your superabundant vitality, papa

TARLETON [violently] Hold your tongue, you young devil The young are all alike hard, coarse, shallow, cruel, selfish, dirty-minded You can clear out of my house as soon as you can coax him to take you, and the sooner the better [To Percival] I think you said your price was fifteen hundred a year Take it And I wish you joy of your bargain

PERCIVAL If you wish to know who I am—

TARLETON I dont care a tinker's curse who you are or what you are Youre willing to take that girl off my hands for fifteen hundred a year thats all that concerns me Tell her who you are if you like it's her affair, not mine

HYPATIA Dont answer him, Joey it wont last Lord Summerhays, I'm sorry about Bentley, but Joey's the only man for me

LORD SUMMERHAYS It may—

HYPATIA Please dont say it may break your poor boy's heart It's much more likely to break yours

LORD SUMMERHAYS Oh!

TARLETON [springing to his feet] Leave the room Do you hear leave the room

PERCIVAL Arnt we getting a little cross? Dont be angry, Mr Tarleton Read Marcus Aurelius

TARLETON Dont you dare make fun of me Take your aeroplane out of my vinery and yourself out of my house

PERCIVAL [rising, to Hypatia] I'm afraid I shall have to dine at the Beacon, Patsy

HYPATIA [rising] Do I dine with you

TARLETON Did you hear me tell you to leave the room?

HYPATIA I did [To Percival] You see what living with one's parents means, Joey It means living in a house where you can be ordered to leave the room Ive got to obey it's his house, not mine

TARLETON Who pays for it? Go and support yourself as I did if you want to be independent HYPATIA I wanted to and you wouldnt let me How can I support myself when I'm a prisoner?

TARLETON Hold your tongue

HYPATIA Keep your temper

PERCIVAL [coming between them] Lord Summerhays youll join me, I'm sure, in pointing out to both father and daughter that they have now reached that very common stage in family life at which anything but a blow would be an anticlimax Do you seriously want to beat Patsy, Mr Tarleton?

TARLETON Yes I want to thrash the life out of her If she doesnt get out of my reach, I'll do it [He sits down and grasps the writing table to restrain himself]

HYPATIA [coolly going to him and leaning with her breast on his writhing shoulders] Oh, if you want to beat me just to relieve your feelings—just really and truly for the fun of it and the satisfaction of it, beat away I don't grudge you that

TARLETON [almost in hysterics] I used to think that this sort of thing went on in other families but that it never could happen in ours. And now—[He is broken with emotion, and continues lamentably] I can't say the right thing I can't do the right thing I don't know what is the right thing I'm beaten, and she knows it. Summerhays tell me what to do.

LORD SUMMERHAYS When my council in Jinghiskahn reached the point of coming to blows, I used to adjourn the sitting. Let us postpone the discussion. Wait until Monday we shall have Sunday to quiet down in. Believe me, I'm not making fun of you, but I think there's something in this young gentleman's advice. Read something.

TARLETON I'll read King Lear.

HYPATIA Don't. I'm very sorry, dear.

TARLETON You're not. You're laughing at me. Serve me right! Parents and children! No man should know his own child. No child should know its own father. Let the family be rooted out of civilization! Let the human race be brought up in institutions!

HYPATIA Oh yes. How jolly! You and I might be friends then, and Joey could stay to dinner.

TARLETON Let him stay to dinner. Let him stay to breakfast. Let him spend his life here. Don't you say I drove him out. Don't you say I drove you out.

PERCIVAL I really have no right to inflict myself on you. Dropping in as I did—

TARLETON Out of the sky. Ha! Dropping in. The new sport of aviation. You just see a nice house, drop in, scoop up the man's daughter, and off with you again.

Bentley comes back, with his shoulders hanging as if he too had been exercised to the last pitch of fatigue. He is very sad. They stare at him as he gropes to Percival's chair.

BENTLEY I'm sorry for making a fool of myself. I beg your pardon Hypatia. I'm awfully sorry, but I've made up my mind that I'll never marry. [He sits down in deep depression]

HYPATIA [running to him] How nice of you, Bentley! Of course you guessed I wanted to marry Joey. What did the Polish lady do to you?

BENTLEY [turning his head away] I'd rather not speak of her, if you don't mind.

HYPATIA You've fallen in love with her. [She laughs]

BENTLEY It's beastly of you to laugh.

LORD SUMMERHAYS You are not the first to fall today under the lash of that young lady's terrible derision, Bentley.

Lina, her cap on and her goggles in her hand, comes impetuously through the inner door.

LINA [on the steps] Mr Percival can we get that aeroplane started again? [She comes down and runs to the pavilion door] I must get out of this into the air right up into the blue.

PERCIVAL Impossible. The frame's twisted. The petrol has given out. That's what brought us down. And how can we get a clear run to start with among these woods?

LINA [snooping back through the middle of the pavilion] We can straighten the frame. We can buy petrol at the Beacon. With a few laborers we can get her out on to the Portsmouth Road and start her along that.

TARLETON [rising] But why do you want to leave us, Miss Szcz?

LINA Old pal this is a stuffy house. You seem to think of nothing but making love. All the conversation here is about love-making. All the pictures are about love-making. The eyes of all of you are sheep's eyes. You are steeped in it, soaked in it, the very texts on the walls of your bedrooms are the ones about love. It is disgusting. It is not healthy. Your women are kept idle and dressed up for no other purpose than to be made love to. I have not been here an hour, and already everybody makes love to me as if because I am a woman it were my profession to be made love to. First you, old pal I forgave you because you were nice about your wife.

HYPATIA Oh! oh! oh! Oh, papa!

LINA Then you, Lord Summerhays, come to me, and all you have to say is to ask me not to mention that you made love to me in Vienna two years ago. I forgave you because I thought you were an ambassador, and all ambassadors make love and are very nice and useful to people who travel. Then this young gentleman. He is engaged to this young lady, but no matter for that he makes love to me because I carry him off in my arms when he cries. All these I bore in silence. But now comes your Johnny and tells me I'm a ripping fine woman, and asks me to marry him.

I, Lina Szczepanowska, MARRY him!!!! I do not mind this boy he is a child he loves me I should have to give him money and take care of him that would be foolish, but honorable I do not mind you, old pal you are what you call an old—ouf' but you do not offer to buy me you say until we are tired—until you are so happy that you dare not ask for more That is foolish too, at your age, but it is an adventure it is not dishonorable I do not mind Lord Summerhays it was in Vienna they had been toasting him at a great banquet he was not sober That is bad for the health, but it is not dishonorable But your Johnny! Oh, your Johnny! with his marriage He will do the straight thing by me He will give me a home, a position He tells me I must know that my present position is not one for a nice woman This to me, Lina Szczepanowska! I am an honest woman I earn my living I am a free woman I live in my own house I am a woman of the world I have thousands of friends every night crowds of people applaud me, delight in me, buy my picture, pay hard-earned money to see me I am strong I am skilful I am brave I am independent I am unbought I am all that a woman ought to be, and in my family there has not been a single drunkard for four generations And this Englishman! this linen-draper! he dares to ask me to come and live with him in this rrrrrrabbit hutch, and take my bread from his hand, and ask him for pocket money, and wear soft clothes, and be his woman! his wife! Sooner than that, I would stoop to the lowest depths of my profession I would stuff lions with food and pretend to tame them I would deceive honest people's eyes with conjuring tricks instead of real feats of strength and skill I would be a clown and set bad examples of conduct to little children I would sink yet lower and be an actress or an opera singer, imperilling my soul by the wicked lie of pretending to be somebody else All this I would do sooner than take my bread from the hand of a man and make him the master of my body and soul And so you may tell your Johnny to buy an Englishwoman he shall not buy Lina Szczepanowska, and I will not stay in the house where such dishonor is offered me Adieu. [She turns precipitately to go, but is faced in the pavilion doorway by Johnny, who comes in slowly, his hands in his pockets, meditating deeply]

JOHNNY [confidentially to Lina] You wont mention our little conversation, Miss Shepanoska It'll do no good, and I'd rather you didnt

TARLETON Weve just heard about it, Johnny

JOHNNY [shortly, but without ill-temper] Oh is that so?

HYPATIA The cat's out of the bag, Johnny, about everybody They were all beforehand with you papa, Lord Summerhays, Bentley and all Dont you let them laugh at you

JOHNNY [a grin slowly overspreading his countenance] Well, theres no use my pretending to be surprised at you, Governor, is there? I hope you got it as hot as I did Mind, Miss Shepanoska it wasnt lost on me I'm a thinking man I kept my temper Youll admit that

LINA [frankly] Oh yes I do not quarrel You are what is called a chump, but you are not a bad sort of chump

JOHNNY Thank you Well, if a chump may have an opinion, I should put it at this You make, I suppose, ten pounds a night off your own bat, Miss Lina?

LINA [scornfully] Ten pounds a night! I have made ten pounds a minute

JOHNNY [with increased respect] Have you indeed? I didnt know youll excuse my mistake, I hope But the principle is the same Now I trust you wont be offended at what I'm going to say, but Ive thought about this and watched it in daily experience, and you may take it from me that the moment a woman becomes pecuniarily independent, she gets hold of the wrong end of the stick in moral questions

LINA Indeed! And what do you conclude from that, Mister Johnny?

JOHNNY Well, obviously, that independence for women is wrong and shouldnt be allowed For their own good, you know And for the good of morality in general You agree with me, Lord Summerhays, dont you?

LORD SUMMERHAYS It's a very moral moral, if I may so express myself

Mrs Tarleton comes in softly through the inner door

MRS TARLETON Dont make too much noise The lad's asleep

TARLETON Chickabiddy we have some news for you

JOHNNY [apprehensively] Now theres no need, you know, Governor, to worry mother with everything that passes

MRS TARLETON [coming to Tarleton] Whats been going on? Dont you hold anything back from me, John What have you been doing?

TARLETON Patsy isnt going to marry Bentley

MRS TARLETON Of course not Is that your great news? I never believed she'd marry him

TARLETON Theres something else Mr Percival here—

MRS TARLETON [to Percival] Are you going to marry Patsy?

PERCIVAL [diplomatically] Patsy is going to marry me, with your permission

MRS TARLETON Oh, she has my permission she ought to have been married long ago

HYPATIA Mother!

TARLETON Miss Lina here, though she has been so short a time with us, has inspired a good deal of attachment in—I may say in almost all of us Therefore I hope she'll stay to dinner, and not insist on flying away in that aeroplane

PERCIVAL You must stay, Miss Szczepanowska I cant go up again this evening

LINA Ive seen you work it Do you think I require any help? And Bentley shall come with me as a passenger

BENTLEY [terrified] Go up in an aeroplane! I darent

LINA You must learn to dare

BENTLEY [pale but heroic] All right I'll come

LORD SUMMER-
HAYS

No, no, Bentley, impossible I shall not allow it

MRS TARLETON Do you want to kill the child? He shant go

BENTLEY I will I'll lie down and yell until you let me go I'm not a coward I wont be a coward

LORD SUMMERHAYS Miss Szczepanowska my son is very dear to me I implore you to wait until tomorrow morning

LINA There may be a storm tomorrow And I'll go storm or no storm I must risk my life tomorrow

BENTLEY I hope there will be a storm

LINA [grasping his arm] You are trembling

BENTLEY Yes it's terror, sheer terror I can hardly see I can hardly stand But I'll go with you

LINA [slapping him on the back and knocking a ghastly white smile into his face] You shall I like you, my boy We go tomorrow, together

BENTLEY Yes together tomorrow

TARLETON Well, sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof Read the old book.

MRS TARLETON Is there anything else?

TARLETON Well, I—er [he addresses Lina, and stops] I—er [he addresses Lord Summerhays, and stops] I—er [he gives it up] Well, I suppose—er—I suppose theres nothing more to be said

HYPATIA [ferently] Thank goodness!

THE END

XIX

THE DARK LADY OF THE SONNETS

1910

Fin de siècle 15-1600 Midsummer night on the terrace of the Palace at Whitehall, overlooking the Thames The Palace clock chimes four quarters and strikes eleven

A Beefeater on guard A Cloaked Man approaches

THE BEEFEATER Stand Who goes there? Give the word?

THE MAN Marry! I cannot I have clean forgotten it

THE BEEFEATER Then cannot you pass

here What is your business? Who are you? Are you a true man?

THE MAN Far from it, Master Warder I am not the same man two days together sometimes Adam, sometimes Benvolio, and anon the Ghost

THE BEEFEATER [recoiling] A ghost! Angels and ministers of grace defend us!

THE MAN Well said, Master Warder With your leave I will set that down in writing, for I have a very poor and unhappy brain for remembrance [He takes out his tablets and writes] Methinks this is a good scene, with you on your lonely watch, and I approaching like a ghost in the moonlight Stare not so amazedly at me, but mark what I say I keep tryst here to-morrow with a dark lady She promised to bribe the warder I gave her the wherewithal four tickets for the Globe Theatre

THE BEEFEATER Plague on her! She gave me two only

THE MAN [detaching a tablet] My friend present this tablet, and you will be welcomed at any time when the plays of Will Shakespeare are in hand Bring your wife Bring your friends Bring the whole garrison There is ever plenty of room

THE BEEFEATER I care not for these new-fangled plays No man can understand a word of them They are all talk Will you not give me a pass for The Spanish Tragedy?

THE MAN To see The Spanish Tragedy one pays, my friend Here are the means [He gives him a piece of gold]

THE BEEFEATER [overwhelmed] Gold! Oh, sir, you are a better paymaster than your dark lady

THE MAN Women are thrifty, my friend

THE BEEFEATER Tis so, sir And you have to consider that the most open handed of us must even cheapen that which we buy every day This lady has to make a present to a warder nigh every night of her life

THE MAN [turning pale] I'll not believe it

THE BEEFEATER Now you, sir, I dare be sworn, do not have an adventure like this twice in the year

THE MAN Villain wouldst tell me that my dark lady hath ever done thus before? that she maketh occasions to meet other men?

THE BEEFEATER Now the Lord bless your innocence, sir, do you think you are the only pretty man in the world? A merry lady, sir a warm bit of stuff Go to I'll not see her pass a deceit on a gentleman that hath given me the first piece of gold I ever handled

THE MAN Master Warder is it not a strange thing that we, knowing that all women are false, should be amazed to find our own particular drab no better than the rest?

THE BEEFEATER Not all, sir Decent bodies, many of them

THE MAN [intolerantly] No All false All If thou deny it, thou liest

THE BEEFEATER You judge too much by the Court, sir There, indeed, you may say of frailty that its name is woman

THE MAN [pulling out his tablets again] Prithree say that again that about frailty the strain of music

THE BEEFEATER What strain of music, sir? I'm no musician, God knows

THE MAN There is music in your soul many of your degree have it very notably [Writing] "Frailty thy name is woman!" [Repeating it affectionately] "Thy name is woman"

THE BEEFEATER Well, sir, it is but four words Are you a snapper-up of such unconsidered trifles?

THE MAN [eagerly] Snapper-up of—[he gasps] Oh! Immortal phrase! [He writes it down] This man is a greater than I

THE BEEFEATER You have my lord Pembroke's trick, sir

THE MAN Like enough he is my near friend But what call you his trick?

THE BEEFEATER Making sonnets by moonlight And to the same lady too

THE MAN No!

THE BEEFEATER Last night he stood here on your errand, and in your shoes

THE MAN Thou, too, Brutus! And I called him friend!

THE BEEFEATER Tis ever so, sir

THE MAN Tis ever so Twas ever so [He turns away, overcome] Two Gentlemen of Verona! Judas! Judas!

THE BEEFEATER Is he so bad as that, sir?

THE MAN [recovering his charity and self-possession] Bad? O no Human, Master Warder, human We call one another names when we are offended, as children do That is all

THE BEEFEATER Ay, sir words, words, words Mere wind, sir We fill our bellies with the east wind, sir, as the Scripture hath it You cannot feed capons so

THE MAN A good cadence By your leave [He makes a note of it]

THE BEEFEATER What manner of thing is a cadence, sir? I have not heard of it

THE MAN A thing to rule the world with, friend

THE BEEFEATER You speak strangely, sir no offence But, an't like you, you are a very civil gentleman, and a poor man feels drawn to you, you being, as twere, willing to share your thought with him

THE MAN 'Tis my trade But alas! the world for the most part will none of my thoughts
Lamplight streams from the palace door as it opens from within

THE BEEFEATER Here comes your lady, sir I'll to t'other end of my ward You may een take your time about your business I shall not return too suddenly unless my sergeant comes prowling round 'Tis a fell sergeant, sir strict in his arrest Good een, sir, and good luck! [He goes]

THE MAN "Strict in his arrest"! "Fell sergeant"! [As if tasting a ripe plum] O-o-o-h! [He makes a note of them]

A Cloaked Lady gropes her way from the palace and wanders along the terrace, walking in her sleep

THE LADY [rubbing her hands as if washing them] Out, damned spot You will mar all with these cosmetics God made you one face, and you make yourself another Think of your grave, woman, not ever of being beautified All the perfumes of Arabia will not whiten this Tudor hand

THE MAN "All the perfumes of Arabia"! "Beautified"! "Beautified"! a poem in a single word Can this be my Mary? [To the Lady] Why do you speak in a strange voice, and utter poetry for the first time? Are you ailing? You walk like the dead Mary! Mary!

THE LADY [echoing him] Mary! Mary! Who would have thought that woman to have had so much blood in her! Is it my fault that my counsellors put deeds of blood on me? Fie! If you were women you would have more wit than to stain the floor so foully Hold not up her head so the hair is false I tell you yet again, Mary's buried she cannot come out of her grave I fear her not these cats that dare jump into thrones though they be fit only for men's laps must be put away Whats done cannot be undone Out, I say Fie! a queen, and freckled!

THE MAN [shaking her arm] Mary, I say. art asleep?

The Lady nates, starts, and nearly faints He catches her on his arm

THE LADY. Where am I? What art thou?

THE MAN I cry your mercy I have mistook your person all this while Methought you were my Mary my mistress

THE LADY [outraged] Profane fellow how do you dare?

THE MAN Be not wroth with me, lady My mistress is a marvellous proper woman But she does not speak so well as you "All the perfumes of Arabia"! That was well said spoken with good accent and excellent discretion

THE LADY. Have I been in speech with you here?

THE MAN Why, yes, fair lady Have you forgot it?

THE LADY I have walked in my sleep

THE MAN Walk ever in your sleep, fair one, for then your words drop like honey

THE LADY [with cold majesty] Know you to whom you speak, sir, that you dare express yourself so saucily?

THE MAN [unabashed] Not I, not care neither You are some lady of the Court, belike To me there are but two sorts of women those with excellent voices, sweet and low, and cackling hens that cannot make me dream Your voice has all manner of loveliness in it Grudge me not a short hour of its music

THE LADY Sir you are overbold Season your admiration for a while with—

THE MAN [holding up his hand to stop her] "Season your admiration for a while—"

THE LADY Fellow do you dare mimic me to my face?

THE MAN 'Tis music Can you not hear? When a good musician sings a song, do you not sing it and sing it again till you have caught and fixed its perfect melody? "Season your admiration for a while" God! the history of man's heart is in that one word admiration Admiration! [Taking up his tablets] What was it "Suspend your admiration for a space—"

THE LADY A very vile jingle of esses I said "Season your—"

THE MAN [hastily] Season ay, season, season, season Plague on my memory, my wretched memory! I must een write it down [He begins to write, but stops, his memory failing him] Yet tell me which was the vile jingle? You said very justly. mine own ear caught it even as my false tongue said it

THE LADY You said "for a space" I said "for a while"

THE MAN. "For a while" [he corrects it] Good! [Ardently] And now be mine neither for a space nor a while, but for ever

THE LADY Odds my life! Are you by chance making love to me, knave?

THE MAN Nay tis you who have made the love I but pour it out at your feet I cannot but love a lass that sets such store by an apt word Therefore vouchsafe, divine perfection of a woman—no I have said that before somewhere, and the wordy garment of my love for you must be fire-new—

THE LADY You talk too much, sir Let me warn you I am more accustomed to be listened to than preached at

THE MAN The most are like that that do talk well But though you spake with the tongues of angels, as indeed you do, yet know that I am the king of words—

THE LADY A king, ha!

THE MAN No less We are poor things, we men and women—

THE LADY Dare you call me woman?

THE MAN What nobler name can I tender you? How else can I love you? Yet you may well shrink from the name have I not said we are but poor things? Yet there is a power that can redeem us

THE LADY Gramercy for your sermon, sir I hope I know my duty

THE MAN This is no sermon, but the living truth The power I speak of is the power of immortal poesy For know that vile as this world is, and worms as we are, you have but to invest all this vileness with a magical garment of words to transfigure us and uplift our souls til earth flowers into a million heavens

THE LADY You spoil your heaven with your million You are extravagant Observe some measure in your speech

THE MAN You speak now as Ben does

THE LADY And who, pray, is Ben?

THE MAN A learned bricklayer who thinks that the sky is at the top of his ladder, and so takes it on him to rebuke me for flying I tell you there is no word yet coined and no melody yet sung that is extravagant and majestical enough for the glory that lovely words can reveal It is heresy to deny it have you not been taught that in the beginning was the Word? that the Word was with God? nay, that the Word was God?

THE LADY Beware, fellow, how you presume to speak of holy things The Queen is the head of the Church

THE MAN You are the head of my Church when you speak as you did at first "All the perfumes of Arabia!" Can the Queen speak thus? They say she playeth well upon the virginals Let her play so to me, and I'll kiss her hands But until then, you are my Queen, and I'll kiss those lips that have dropt music on my heart [He puts his arms about her]

THE LADY Unmeasured impudence! On your life, take your hands from me

The Dark Lady comes stooping along the terrace behind them like a running thrush When she sees how they are employed she rises angrily to her full height, and listens jealously

THE MAN [unaware of the Dark Lady] Then cease to make my hands tremble with the streams of life you pour through them You hold me as the lodestar holds the iron I cannot but cling to you We are lost, you and I nothing can separate us now

THE DARK LADY We shall see that, false lying hound, you and your filthy trull [With two vigorous cuffs, she knocks the pair asunder, sending the man, who is unlucky enough to receive a righthanded blow, sprawling on the flags] Take that, both of you!

THE CLOAKED LADY [in toning wrath, throwing off her cloak and turning in outraged majesty on her assailant] High treason!

THE DARK LADY [recognizing her and falling on her knees in abject terror] Will I am lost I have struck the Queen

THE MAN [sitting up as majestically as his ignominious posture allows] Woman you have struck WILLIAM SHAKESPEAR!!!!

QUEEN ELIZABETH [stupent] Marry, come up!!! Struck William Shakespear quotha! And who in the name of all the sluts and jades and light-o'-loves and fly-by-nights that infest this palace of mine, may William Shakespear be?

THE DARK LADY Madam he is but a player Oh, I could have my hand cut off—

QUEEN ELIZABETH Belike you will, mistress Have you bethought you that I am like to have your head cut off as well?

THE DARK LADY Will save me Oh, save me

ELIZABETH Save you! A likely savior, on my royal word! I had thought this fellow at least an esquire, for I had hoped that even the vilest of my ladies would not have dishonored my Court by wantoning with a base-born servant

SHAKESPEAR [indignantly scrambling to his feet] Baseborn! I, a Shakespear of Stratford! I, whose mother was an Arden! baseborn! You forget yourself, madam

ELIZABETH [furious] S'blood! do I so? I will teach you—

THE DARK LADY [rising from her knees and throwing herself between them] Will in God's name anger her no further It is death

Madam do not listen to him

SHAKESPEAR Not were it e'en to save your life, Mary, not to mention mine own, will I flatter a monarch who forgets what is due to my family I deny not that my father was brought down to be a poor bankrupt, but 'twas his gentle blood that was ever too generous for trade Never did he disown his debts 'Tis true he paid them not, but it is an attested truth that he gave bills for them, and 'twas those bills, in the hands of base hucksters, that were his undoing

ELIZABETH [grimly] The son of your father shall learn his place in the presence of the daughter of Harry the Eighth

SHAKESPEAR [snelling with intolerant importance] Name not that inordinate man in the same breath with Stratford's worthiest alderman John Shakespear wedded but once Harry Tudor was married six times You should blush to utter his name

THE DARK LADY } crying { Will for pity's
 } out { sake—

ELIZABETH } together { Insolent dog—

SHAKESPEAR [cutting them short] How know you that King Harry was indeed your father?

ELIZABETH } Zounds! Now by— [she } stops to grind her teeth with } rage]

THE DARK LADY } She will have me whip} ped through the streets
 } Oh God! Oh God!

SHAKESPEAR Learn to know yourself better, madam I am an honest gentleman of unquestioned parentage, and have already sent in my demand for the coat-of-arms that is lawfully mine Can you say as much for yourself?

ELIZABETH [almost beside herself] Another word, and I begin with mine own hands the work the hangman shall finish

SHAKESPEAR You are no true Tudor this baggage here has as good a right to your royal seat as you What maintains you on the throne of England? Is it your renowned wit? your wisdom that sets at nought the craftiest statesmen of the Christian world? No 'Tis the mere chance that might have happened to any mulkmaid, the caprice of Nature that made you the most wondrous piece of beauty the age hath seen [Elizabeth's raised fists, on the point of striking him, fall to her side] That is what hath brought all men to your feet, and founded your throne on the impregnable rock of your proud heart, a stony island in a sea of desire There, madam, is some wholesome blunt honest speaking for you Now do your worst

ELIZABETH [with dignity] Master Shakespear it is well for you that I am a merciful prince I make allowance for your rustic ignorance But remember that there are things which be true, and are yet not seemly to be said (I will not say to a queen, for you will have it that I am none), but to a virgin

SHAKESPEAR [bluntly] It is no fault of mine that you are a virgin, madam, albeit 'tis my misfortune

THE DARK LADY [terrified again] In mercy, madam, hold no further discourse with him He hath ever some lewd jest on his tongue You hear how he useth me! calling me baggage and the like to your Majesty's face

ELIZABETH As for you, mistress, I have yet to demand what your business is at this hour in this place, and how you come to be so concerned with a player that you strike blindly at your sovereign in your jealousy of him

THE DARK LADY Madam as I live and hope for salvation—

SHAKESPEAR [sardonically] Ha!

THE DARK LADY [angrily]— ay, I'm as like to be saved as thou that believest naught save some black magic of words and verses—I say, madam, as I am a living woman I came here to break with him for ever Oh, madam, if you would know what misery is, listen to this man that is more than man and less at the same time He will tie you down to anatomize your very soul he will wring tears of blood from your humiliation, and then he will heal the wound with flatteries that no woman can resist

SHAKESPEAR Flatteries! [Kneeling] Oh, madam, I put my case at your royal feet I confess to much I have a rude tongue I am unmannerly I blaspheme against the holiness of anointed royalty, but oh, my royal mistress, AM I a flatterer?

ELIZABETH I absolve you as to that You are far too plain a dealer to please me [He rises gratefully]

THE DARK LADY Madam he is flattering you even as he speaks

ELIZABETH [a terrible flash in her eye] Ha! Is it so?

SHAKESPEAR Madam she is jealous, and, heaven help me! not without reason Oh you say you are a mereiful princee, but that was cruel of you, that hiding of your royal dignity when you found me here For how can I ever be content with this black-haired, black-eyed, black-avised devil again now that I have looked upon real beauty and real majesty?

THE DARK LADY [wounded and desperate] He hath swore to me ten times over that the day shall come in England when black women, for all their foulness, shall be more thought on than fair ones [To Shakespear, scolding at him] Deny it if thou canst Oh, he is compact of lies and scorns I am tired of being tossed up to heaven and dragged down to hell at every whim that takes him I am ashamed to my very soul that I have abased myself to love one that my father would not have deemed fit to hold my stirrup—one that will talk to all the world about me—that will put my love and my shame into his plays and make me blush for myself there—that will write sonnets about me that no man of gentle strain would put his hand to I am all disordered I know not what I am saying to your Majesty I am of all ladies most dejected and wretched—

SHAKESPEAR Ha! At last sorrow hath struck a note of music out of thee "Of all ladies most dejected and wretched" [He makes a note of it]

THE DARK LADY Madam I implore you give me leave to go I am distracted with grief and shame I—

ELIZABETH Go [The Dark Lady tries to kiss her hand] No more Go [The Dark Lady goes, convulsed] You have been cruel to that poor fond wretch, Master Shakespear

SHAKESPEAR I am not cruel, madam but you know the fable of Jupiter and Semele I could not help my lightnings scorching her

ELIZABETH You have an overweening conceit of yourself, sir, that displeases your Queen

SHAKESPEAR Oh, madam, can I go about with the modest cough of a minor poet, belittling my inspiration and making the mightiest wonder of your reign a thing of nought? I have said that "not marble nor the gilded monuments of princees shall outlive" the words with which I make the world glorious or foolish at my will Besides, I would have you think me great enough to grant me a boon

ELIZABETH I hope it is a boon that may be asked of a virgin Queen without offence, sir I mistrust your forwardness, and I bid you remember that I do not suffer persons of your degree (if I may say so without offence to your father the alderman) to presume too far

SHAKESPEAR Oh, madam, I shall not forget myself again, though by my life, could I make you a serving wench, neither a queen nor a virgin should you be for so much longer as a flash of lightning might take to cross the river to the Bankside But since you are a queen and will none of me, nor of Philip of Spain, nor of any other mortal man, I must even contain myself as best I may, and ask you only for a boon of State

ELIZABETH A boon of State already! You are becoming a courtier like the rest of them You lack advancement

SHAKESPEAR "Lack advancement" By your Majesty's leave a queenly phrase [He is about to write it down]

ELIZABETH [striking the tablets from his hand] Your tables begin to anger me, sir I am not here to write your plays for you

SHAKESPEAR You are here to inspire them, madam For this, among the rest, were you ordained But the boon I crave is that you do endow a great playhouse, or, if I may make bold to coin a scholarly name for it, a National Theatre, for the better instruction and gracing of your Majesty's subjects

ELIZABETH Why, sir, are there not theatres enough on the Bankside and in Blackfriars?

SHAKESPEAR Madam these are the adventures of needy and desperate men that must, to save themselves from perishing of want, give the silver sort of people what they best like, and what they best like, God knows, is not their own betterment and instruction, as we well see by the example of the churches, which must needs compel men to frequent them, though they be open to all without charge Only when there is a matter of a murder, or a plot, or a pretty youth in petticoats, or some naughty tale of wantonness, will your subjects pay the great cost of good players and their finery, with a little profit to boot To prove this I will tell you that I have written two noble and excellent plays setting forth the advancement of women of high nature and fruitful industry even as your Majesty is the one a skilful physician, the other a sister devoted to good works

I have also stole from a book of idle wanton tales two of the most damnable foolishnesses in the world, in the one of which a woman goeth in man's attire and maketh impudent love to her swain, who pleaseth the groundlings by overthrowing a wrestler whilst, in the other, one of the same kidney sheweth her wit by saying endless naughtinesses to a gentleman as lewd as herself I have writ these to save my friends from penury, yet shewing my scorn for such folies and for them that praise them by calling the one As You Like It, meaning that it is not as I like it, and the other Much Ado About Nothing, as it truly is And now these two filthy-pieces drive their nobler fellows from the stage, where indeed I cannot have my lady physician presented at all, she being too honest a woman for the taste of the town Wherefore I humbly beg your Majesty to give order that a theatre be endowed out of the public revenue for the playing of those pieces of mine which no merchant will touch, seeing that his gain is so much greater with the worse than with the better Thereby you shall also encourage other men to undertake the writing of plays who do now despise it and leave it wholly to those whose counsels will work little good to your realm For this writing of plays is a great matter, forming as it does the minds and affections of men in such sort that whatsoever they see done in show on the stage, they will presently be doing in earnest in the world, which is but a larger stage Of late, as you know, the Church taught the people by means of plays, but the people flocked only to such as were full of superstitious miracles and bloody martyrdoms, and so the Church, which also was just then brought into straits by the policy of your royal father, did abandon and discountenance the art of playing, and thus it fell into the hands of poor players and greedy merchants that had their pockets to look to and not the greatness of this your kingdom Therefore now must your Majesty take up that good work that your Church hath abandoned, and restore the art of playing to its former use and dignity

ELIZABETH Master Shakespear I will speak of this matter to the Lord Treasurer

SHAKESPEAR Then I am undone madam, for there was never yet a Lord Treasurer that could find a penny for anything over and above the necessary expenses of your government, save for a war or a salary for his own nephew

ELIZABETH Master Shakespear you speak sooth, yet cannot I in any wise mend it I dare not offend my unruly Puritans by making so lewd a place as the playhouse a public charge, and there be a thousand things to be done in this London of mine before your poetry can have its penny from the general purse I tell thee, Master Will, it will be three hundred years and more before my subjects learn that man cannot live by bread alone, but by every word that cometh from the mouth of those whom God inspires By that time you and I will be dust beneath the feet of the horses, if indeed there be any horses then, and men be still riding instead of flying Now it may be that by then your works will be dust also

SHAKESPEAR They will stand, madam fear not for that

ELIZABETH It may prove so But of this I am certain (for I know my countrymen) that until every other country in the Christian world, even to barbarian Muscovy and the hamlets of the boorish Germans, have its playhouse at the public charge, England will never adventure And she will adventure then only because it is her desire to be ever in the fashion, and to do humbly and dutifully whatso she seeth everybody else doing In the meantime you must content yourself as best you can by the playing of those two pieces which you gave out as the most damnable ever writ, but which your countrymen, I warn you, will swear are the best you have ever done But this I will say, that if I could speak across the ages to our descendants, I should heartily recommend them to fulfil your wish, for the Scottish minstrel hath well said that he that maketh the songs of a nation is mightier than he that maketh its laws, and the same may well be true of plays and interludes [The clock chimes the first quarter The warder returns on his round] And now, sir, we are upon the hour when it better beseems a virgin queen to be abed than to converse alone with the naughtiest of her subjects Ho there! Who keeps ward on the queen's lodgings tonight?

THE WARDER I do, an't please your majesty

ELIZABETH See that you keep it better in future You have let pass a most dangerous gallant even to the very door of our royal

THE DARK LADY OF THE SONNETS

chamber Lead him forth, and bring me word when he is safely locked out, for I shall scarce dare disrobe until the palace gates are between us

SHAKESPEAR [kissing her hand] My body goes through the gate into the darkness, madam, but my thoughts follow you

ELIZABETH How' to my bed!

SHAKESPEAR No, madam, to your prayers, in which I beg you to remember my theatre

ELIZABETH That is my prayer to posterity
Forget not your own to God, and so good-night, Master Will

SHAKESPEAR Goodnight, great Elizabeth
God save the Queen!

ELIZABETH Amen

Exeunt severally she to her chamber he, in custody of the warder, to the gate nearest Blackfriars

THE END
